Welcome back! Sports & Arts sections inside.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

COLLEGIAN

70° Wednesday
September 8, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 1

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Smoke-free campus begins next month

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

While former University of Massachusetts at Amherst Chancellor Richard O'Brien announced in June that as of Oct. 1, 1993 the campus would be smoke-free, there will be a few exceptions.

Under this new policy all areas of campus are smoke-free except for "designated guest rooms at the Campus Center hotel and certain University owned and leased individual rooms and apartments, including residence halls."

Administrative Assistant of Housing Jean Hebert said Housing Services will keep the same policy it has been using, which is to allow smoking in designated lounges in the residence halls.

The smoke-free areas of campus include: all classrooms, stairwells, restrooms, public areas, food service areas, food preparation areas, entrance ways and auditoriums, all work sites including individual faculty and administrative offices, all rooms in which business meetings are regularly conducted, University Health Services, and any state vehicles in which any occupant is a non-smoker.

"Health is the driving force behind the policy," said O'Brien. "The campus administration has a responsibility to assure the health and safety of students and staff."

To enforce the policy, formal letters of reprimand will be sent to any individual who does not abide by its rules. These letters would have an effect on that person's career, regardless of the person's position at the University.

The University will offer clinics and workshops to help smokers stop smoking.

The new policy was supposed to be implemented on Sept. 1, but was moved up in order to permit individuals to work out the new procedures and to utilize the assistance programs before it goes into effect.

The policy was proposed by the University Health Council in accordance with recent medical findings by the Environmental Protection Agency who declared second-hand smoke a

Turn to SMOKE-FREE, page 8

RA strike over longer 'on duty' hours avoided

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts housing officials last week narrowly escaped a major uprising by campus resident assistants. Resident assistants threatened to go on strike due to a last-minute enlongation of their work hours by administrators.

A day before the RAs were scheduled to sign contracts, an announcement was made about a possible new policy concerning longer "on duty" hours.

The proposed hours could more than double what the student workers have traditionally worked. RA hours were originally scheduled from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. on weeknights, with weekend hours running from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m.

If the new policy was enacted the hours would be from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. on weekdays, and an RA would remain on duty at all times from 5 p.m. on Friday until 8 a.m. on Monday.

"We're not getting any (monetary) compensation for [the extended hours of labor]," said Jill Dailey, an RA in Brown Residence Hall.

The night the new policy was introduced, about 200 RAs crowded into the Student Union Ballroom for an impromptu meeting to discuss possible options.

Leading the meeting was Aaron Mintz, an RA in Baker Residence Hall, who said he believed housing picked an awful time to inform students about the hours.

Resident assistants found out about the proposed hours during an afternoon meeting. Four Brown RAs spoke with Janice Freehill, interim associate director of residential education, and said they were told RAs were "expendable."

Mintz advised the students to sign their contracts after adding a clause at the bottom stating they were signing under the condition they were hired. Many were skeptical about the idea because the contract says the University has the right to change the conditions under which the RAs were hired.

The proposed policy change stemmed from a combination of studies Housing Services did last year. The questionnaires showed residents wanted more from their residence hall staff, according

Turn to HOUSING, page 5

MATT KOPA, COLLEGIAN

A bulldozer digs out a steam pipe near Marcus Hall, one of a number of campus renovation projects forcing pedestrians to re-map their routes to class.

Campus gets a face-lift

$3.5 million spent beautifying grounds

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

This was the summer for the University to experience a face-lift. A new pipeline for the Silvio O. Conte Polymer Research Center and the restoration of the grounds surrounding Durfee Conservatory are just a few of the projects being tackled on campus.

"We're starting to make some progress, it was slow going," John Robinson, senior project manager at Physical Plant, said of the Polymer steam line.

If all goes well, the construction will be finished by the first of December, a month after the original projected completion date.

As part of the University's effort to upgrade the campus steam distribution center, a pipe has been constructed to provide steam to Polymer and Lederle Graduate Research Tower, while also providing additional services to other buildings in that area.

This new high-pressure pipeline, running from the power plant to the vicinity of the research building, has a $1.8 million price tag and is expected to be completed in November.

Pedestrians will have to find alternative routes to the northeastern entrance of the Campus Center this semester. Along with the work being done near Polymer, another pipeline has been installed along Hasbrouck.

The project will cost an estimated $1.2 million and is being done in two

Turn to FACE-LIFT, page 8

Provost Gordon shuffles the academic deck

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Provost Glen Gordon has spent the past year working on a plan to reorganize the academic structure of some of the colleges on campus.

Gordon said the plan was developed because it will bring together departments that have common goals. He said the logic was that the reshuffling will eventually help the groups by being in close proximity.

"[The plan] doesn't eliminate any department, it just puts them under different jurisdiction," Gordon said.

The plan will not necessarily save any money, but will be more efficient, according to Gordon. "[The plan] will better equip the University for the changing fiscal outlook," Gordon said.

Gordon also cited the opportunities for collaboration by the new departments. He said teachers and researchers will be most affected by the changes.

"There will be a unity of kindred souls with possibilities for research," Gordon said.

The plan will divide the School of Education into three departments. These will be Student Development and Pupil Personnel Services; Educational Policy, Research and Administration; and Teacher Education and Curriculum Studies.

Bailey Jackson, dean of the School of Education, said the changes would be fairly significant in the way of structure. He said it would clear up the direction of the department and would make it more cost efficient.

"We'll be able to coordinate services and deliver to students better and be more responsive to their needs," Jackson said. "Ultimately that's what it's all about."

Jackson supported the plan from the beginning and said he was pleased with the eventual outcome.

The School of Physical Education will be eliminated according to the plan. The three departments in that school — Exercise Science, Sports Studies and Professional Preparation — will be transferred to other areas.

Exercise Science will become part of the School of Public Health which will be renamed the School of Public Health and Health Sciences under the plan. This new school will also include the Nutrition Department, which will be removed from the College of Food and Natural Resources.

Sports Studies will become part of the College of Food and Natural Resources. The Department of Professional Preparation will be integrated into Teacher Education and Curriculum Studies.

The final part of the departmental changes will separate the faculties of the College of Arts and Sciences. The three new colleges will be Humanities and Fine Arts, Natural Sciences and Mathematics and Social and Behavioral Sciences.

Bill Khrouz, a senior psychology major and student advisor at the College of Arts and Sciences Information Advising Center [CASIAC] said the changes would have little effects on students.

"CASIAC will still give counseling and general advice that is not particularly pertaining to any major," Khrouz said. "For a specific department students should see that chief undergraduate advisor."

Turn to REORGANIZATION, page 7

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Lisa J. Curtis
Black Affairs Editor .....
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor .....
Jewish Affairs Editor .....
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor .....
Women's Issues Editor .....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager .....
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Brian Harrington, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Attention Graphics Staff:

There will be a meetingTONIGHT at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the semester's work schedule.

BE THERE!

For Your Information

FYIs are a public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of a contactbe contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, September 8

Library tours — One-hour University Library tours will leave the tower entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. weekdays through Sept. 17. No appointment necessary. Physical Sciences Library tours will meet through Friday at 10:15 a.m. and 2:15 p.m., 2nd floor Lederle Graduate Research Center.

First Week — Comedy Club with "Master Lee," followed by Rocky Horror Picture Show in the Campus Center Auditorium. The show begins at 8 p.m., and the film follows at 10 p.m. — prizes and surprises are promised. Sponsored by Student Activities Office, admission is $2.

Thursday, September 9

Meeting — Al-Anon, a confidential 12-step fellowship for all who feel their personal lives have been affected by another person's drinking, holds weekly meetings every Thursday from noon to 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 802. No dues or fees.

First Week — Reggae Dance with The New Horizons Band in the Campus Center Auditorium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sponsored by the Student Activities Office, admission is $2.

Friday, September 10

First Week — First Annual Student Comedy Contest will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium at 7 p.m. Prizes offered — sign up at the Student Activities Office. Also featured will be comediennes Lisa Ann Walter and Rhonda Hansome from New York Entertainment. Admission is $2.

AIDS educator/comedian sued

Chelmsford parents charge civil rights violations

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Suzi Landolphi, the self-proclaimed "comedienne with a message" isn't laughing much these days.

Landolphi is an AIDS educator who tours the country with her "Hot, Sexy and Safer" show. Based out of Gloucester, she performs at colleges and high schools around the country.

Originally trained as a high school AIDS educator, Landolphi is now being sued by the parents of three students from Chelmsford High School. In Chelmsford, Mass., where she performed in April.

The $3.5 million lawsuit was filed against Landolphi and the Chelmsford school officials in US District Court on Aug. 24.

The parents charge that their constitutional right to direct their children's education was violated by the performance and a state law banning contributing to the delinquency of minors was broken.

The complaint filed also alleges forced attendance of the performance is equivalent to sexual harrassment.

Host of the weekly show for teens, "Raparound" on WBZ in Boston, Landolphi has been nominated for various humanitarian awards and was the celebrity spokesperson for the First National Children with HIV/AIDS Awareness Day in 1991.

Her show involves the use of methods from the theater, stand-up and lecture mixed together with a healthy dose of audience participation.

The end of last semester brought Landolphi to the University for two free shows that were videotaped for an upcoming educational documentary to be aired on national television.

State policy encourages school districts to devise programming on AIDS awareness for all grade levels. At present the state does not have a list of suggested facilitators.

Class size stable, cost creeps higher

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst statistician has been busy working on this year's figures about the class of 1997 — and the numbers are similar to past years.

The projected number of incoming freshman is 3,800, about the same as last year's freshman class of 3,898. Of that number, 661 are students of color, or 17.4 percent, compared to 585 students from last year. The total percentage of foreign students on this campus is 2.9 percent.

The class of 1997's wallet will be a bit slimmer this year compared to past incoming first-year students. The total cost for a Massachusetts resident to attend UMass increased 6.96 percent this year, making the price tag $9,364, up from $8,755.

For out of state residents, the increase was 5.73 percent, costing the students $15,710, while it was $14,858 for the '92-'93 school year.

Compared to the other four colleges in this area, however, UMass students are saving a bundle. The average cost for a student to attend Smith, Hampshire, Amherst or Mount Holyoke is about $24,000.

As the first-year students become accustomed to the sprawling 1,405 acres of campus, faculty advise them to take it easy and not to put too much pressure on themselves.

Arlene Cash, director of undergraduate admissions, encourages students to realize that UMass is a "fresh start" and to seize that opportunity.

Students should take the opportunity to get involved with the cultural, sporting and other clubs and events around the campus, she said.

"Number one, keep focused on why you're here. . . an education is not just academic," advises Cash.

AIM HIGH

IF THE HIGH COSTS OF COLLEGE HAVE GOT YOU DOWN, AIM HIGH WITH AIR FORCE ROTC.

College costs have never been known to go down.

But efforts to pay for your education can get a big boost with Air Force ROTC. In fact, you may be eligible to compete for a full scholarship that will pay full college tuition, textbooks, fees and $100 each academic month.

That's just one of the benefits available to those who Aim High. You'll also combine the lessons of leadership with your college degree to begin an outstanding career.

From the day you join the Air Force, the advantages continue to multiply. Upon graduation, you'll wear the gold bars of an Air Force officer – and you'll discover the prestige and respect given to proven leaders. And the kind of opportunities available to no other graduate will be open to you.

It's your future, your scholarship, your decision. Choose Air Force ROTC today.

Call Major Cheryl Koren
545-2437/2451

or visit us on the second floor of Dickinson Hall, right above the Police

AIR FORCE ROTC

Leadership Excellence Starts Here

Collegian classifieds
113 Campus Center

The Collegian News Desk is always looking for new writers.

Stop by today and ask for Tracy!

113 Campus Center

The Collegian.

Earn great experience while in college.

D.P. Dough®
Delivers Calzones
The Pizza Alternative™
256-1616

Local News

News Briefs

compiled by Tracy Monahan and Darienne Hosley

Minority faculty wil join UMass ranks

Despite a statewide hiring freeze, UMass has hired 67 new faculty members. This is the first time since 1988 that the campus has had a net gain of faculty. This will include 21 minority members and 25 women. They will be spread across most of the academic departments.

CCEBMS celebrates 25 years

The Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and other Minority Students celebrates its 25th anniversary this fall. CCEBMS was started in the fall of 1967, at a time when there were only 46 Black undergraduates in a student body of about 18,000. The organization has recruited about 600 students for the fall semester and provides them with peer counseling, tutorial services, academic counseling and career planning.

Possible scientific advancements being developed at UMass

Richard Farris, a polymer scientist at the University has been awarded a $150,000 contract to develop electric cars. The project will study ways to make an electric car workable in the northeastern area. According to Farris, the problem with solar cars in the northeast region is that heating them quickly drains the battery. Funding for the program is part of an effort by the U.S. Department of Defense to convert advanced military technology to civilian uses.

Scientist 'bugged' by thieves in Siberia

Ring Carde, an entomologist at the University was studying the Asian gypsy moth in Siberia when he and a group of researchers fell victim to armed robbers. The scientists were in the country as part of a joint effort by agricultural agencies in the two countries. Despite a broken rib suffered by one of the group, none of the researchers were seriously hurt.

'Animal House' syndrome linked to high testosterone

Recent studies at Georgia State University have indicated that the hormone testosterone may be responsible for the "rowdy" behavior in fraternity houses. James Dabbs Jr., a psychologist at the university and researcher on the project said the amount of the hormone is magnified in some ,,roups.

Those fraternities with higher levels reportedly partied more, did worse in school, got fewer community service awards and smiled less in yearbook photos, according to Dabbs. The male hormone testosterone has been linked by other studies to aggression. There have yet to be any studies released on the link between female hormones and sororities.

Paralyzed student sues University for negligence

A former University student who was paralyzed in an incident during the 1992 Spring Concert has filed suit with his parents against the University. They claim that inadequate security and negligent design, construction and maintenance of the Campus Pond played a role in the accident which left David F. Stone paralyzed below the shoulders. Then a 21-year-old junior resource economics major, Stone dove into the Campus Pond May 10, 1992.

In the lawsuit, filed this summer in Berkshire Superior Court, Stone and his parents, Robert and Susan Stone of Lee, Mass., claim that UMass officials did not adequately warn of the dangers of diving into the pond, and that an "even and regular depth" was not maintained. In addition, they say there wasn't a warning about debris in the pond and that UMass officials should have expected that students would swim or dive into the pond.

UM performance to be graded

Hooker to forward 'report card' to state legislature

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

In order to promote the University system to the state legislature, President Hooker came up with a plan to present a "report card" on the performance.

One purpose of the report is intended to prove that the institution is deserving of financial support from the legislature. It is intended to insure continued financial support from the government.

Hooker will also be speeding up the consolidation of the five campuses in the University system. This move will alleviate repetition of costly programs.

Bill Wright, the public relations director for the president's office said there will be discussions on what the criteria for the report will be and the data eventually collected will measure the success of the system.

"It's important that the representative legislation see that tax dollars provided to the University system are well spent so the best possible education can be provided," Wright said.

One area the report card will focus on is alumni satisfaction, according to Wright. Job acquisition and security will be reviewed in the data collection process.

Wright said other areas to be considered include student retention and public service. Some other criteria will be determined by a private auditor. The reports will be delivered to the legislature every year.

The report system is also being considered by higher education institutions in West Virginia, Colorado and New Mexico, according to The Boston Globe.

Consolidation will alleviate the fights between the five campuses for state funding. It may include interactive television that will beam courses from one campus to the others, according to Ron Story, vice president for academic affairs.

Enticing professors with pay will help to fill campus vacancies with faculty from the other campuses. The development of a joint doctoral program could also be a part of the consolidation.

Construction at one campus of major science and engineering facilities that will be shared by all is also a possibility.

Wright said it is too early to foresee how the plan will affect the campuses. He said issues such as layoffs and further budget cuts are impossible to predict.

"It's too early to say anything more solid," Wright said. "In a while it things will become more conclusive."

"There will be a lot of work and cooperation by many departments at the campus," he said.

Ready for take-off...

COURTESY MIKE CAVANAUGH

A month of team-building training showed concrete results July 16 when Mike Cavanaugh's summer management course built — and launched — a yellow radio-controlled C3 Piper Cub radio-controlled airplane. Francis Mitchell, left, president of the Hampshire County Radio-Controlled Airplane Club, served as an advisor to the class with club member Alan Walrond. Between them, from left to right, are students Jesse Shiah and Dave Vivian.

Budget crunch faces campus

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Due to financial difficulties the campus still faces a $7 to $9 million deficit in the 1994 fiscal year.

Despite receiving $13 million more from the State Legislator this year, the UMass system still faces a budget crunch.

On August 10, Chancellor David K. Scott issued a letter to the campus community explaining this year's budget and what the school should expect. The letter stated that the State budget allotted $322 million for the University system, compared to only $309 million from last year.

According to Bill Wright, director of public information for the UMass system, the extra money the state gave the university system is already tied up by previous obligations. One obligation is a raise that will be given to University employees.

Some of Scott's proposed cuts to the University community is an elimination of approximately 100 positions, basic upkeep and maintenance will be "curtailed," and further program reductions.

President Hooker has also put a two month hiring freeze for all positions with exception to student

Turn to BUDGET, page 15

Student hurt, two killed in car crash

A University student was injured and two former students were killed in an Aug. 29 car accident in Oklahoma.

Jeffrey Pimental, 22, of Hartford and Julian d'Errico, 22, of Amherst suffered internal chest and head injuries and were pronounced dead at the scene. Rebecca Neumann, 23, of Florence, was treated and released from a local hospital.

D'Errico's father, Peter d'Errico, is an associate professor in the legal studies department. His mother, Katja Hahn d'Errico, is the coordinator of student business in the Student Activities Office.

The three were returning from a wedding in New Mexico on Interstate 40. Police reports said Pimental apparently fell asleep driving the 1993 Jeep near Shawnee, Okla., around 7:45 a.m. The vehicle flipped four times across four lanes. Troopers said both road and weather conditions were clear.

An art major, Neumann works for alumni relations.

D'Errico majored in anthropology and withdrew from the University last year. Pimental graduated with an engineering degree in February, and worked for the state of Connecticut as an engineer.

— DARIENNE HOSLEY

Firm recommends plan for UHS improvements

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

An outside firm hired to study the University Health Services made several recommendations for improvement of UHS which could possibly be implemented in the months to come.

The consulting firm of Stephen L. Beckley and Associates suggested the creation of a women's health clinic, establishing a clinic coordinating scheduling committee and possible elimination of the urgent care clinic.

Other suggestions include discontinuing the optometry service, a possible joint venture with Cooley Dickinson Hospital that would eliminate the 19 bed in-patient unit and expansion of the laboratory capabilities.

Bernette Melby, the newly appointed interim director of health services, said she will be studying the reviews and trying to determine the needs of the campus community.

"I will be looking very carefully at the pros and cons of the review and what the impact on students will be," Melby said.

Melby said she was unsure about the effects of possible closure of the urgent care clinic. She said the service might be a particular need of the campus.

"Cooley Dickinson may be only eight miles, but that could be a long eight miles," Melby said.

Another concern is access and availability to health services, according to Melby. She said she plans to look intensely into the telecommunications at the health services to help broaden access to the community.

Melby said things are still in the beginning "talking stage." She said she looks forward to the opportunities in the year ahead.

"This is going to be an exciting year," Melby said. "I want students to be engaged in the process, I want to hear from them.

"My task is to look at the information provided and determine what needs to be done at health services to meet the needs of the students," Melby said.

Melby was appointed by vice chancellor for Student Affairs Thomas Robinson after the resignation of former UHS director David Kraft.

Before coming to the University, Melby was clinic service manager at the Boynton Health Services at the Minneapolis campus of the University of Minnesota. She has taken a leave of absence to work at UHS for a year.

Robinson said he still plans to begin a national search in the fall for a permanent executive director.

The women's health forums, started last year under the direction of Pamela Gonyer, will continue to meet and discuss problems and possible changes in the handling of women's health care at UHS.

Melby said the suggestions of those forums will be reviewed with the other material. She said she plans to consider how to go forward with the need for a women's health clinic.

Beckley and Associates is based out of Colorado and specializes in reviewing health care and insurance on college campuses. The group began their study last year by surveying random users of health services.

They presented their findings to campus staff during three sessions held August 9, 10 and 11. The four volumes includes a program review, a review of the student health insurance and a survey of other colleges' health centers.

Newman pastor settles in

Lavelle looks to continue Quigley legacy

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

After over thirty years of service at the Newman Center Father Joseph Quigley retired at the beginning of August. A crowd of more than 600 people gathered to pay tribute to Quigley at a reception held in the center.

While Quigley left with a bang his successor, Father Francis P. Lavelle, "came in softly."

Lavelle began his duties on Aug. 1 and made the decision to come onto campus with as little fanfare as possible. He said he did not want to detract any attention from Quigley's retirement.

Lavelle said he had no specific plans for the center but hopes to carry on with the program which already exists. He said he presently just trying to settle in to his new job.

"I'm still trying to figure out what key goes in what hole right now," he said.

A Holyoke native, Lavelle has been in the priesthood for over 20 years. He attended St. Anselm's College in New Hampshire and graduated in 1966 with a degree in history.

Lavelle went right on to St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore, MD where he was ordained as a priest in 1970. His first assignment was at the Greenfield Trinity Church for two years. He then spent a year at St. Mary's in Westfield.

He was also the bishop's secretary in Springfield for five years and then the rector at St. Michael's Cathedral in that same area.

Lavelle spent the last nine years at St. Thomas Aquinas in the Berkshires before coming to UMass.

The Newman Center is a part of the Springfield diocese and is funded by the Catholic community. Catholic students at Amherst and Hampshire Colleges are also served by the center.

Quigley will still be in residence at the Newman Center and said he will help Lavelle with the transition. Bishop John Marshall of Springfield has asked Quigley to stay on as a financial adviser.

AKAM COMRAN / COLLEGIAN
Father Francis P. Lavelle

ATTENTION WRITERS:

This coupon is good for one free story assignment from the News Desk at the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

Must be redeemed in person at 113 Campus Center.

Offer good while supplies last.

Amherst Sunshine CAR WASH
AUTOMATIC RAINWASH
SELF-SERVICE BAYS
VACUUM CLEANERS
$1 & $5 CHANGER

Harness the power of the written word.
Write for the Collegian.
113 Campus Center
545-0719

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St Northampton, MA 584-3232
50 Congress St Boston, MA (617)722-0043
Free Consultation for Free-College Students/Faculty

haircuts always $10!
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N PLEASANT ST AMHERST 256 0733

USTRAVEL
At the Campus Center
Your Complete Travel Planning Specialist
•Domestic & International Airline Reservations
•Hotel, Rental Car & Rail Reservations
•24 Hour Emergency Service
•Free Ticket Delivery
•Group Travel Specialists
•Escorted Tours
•Discounted Cruises
•Discounted Vacation Packages
Featuring Maestro™ -the revolutionary automated reservation system which continually checks prices to secure the lowest fares available.
545-1700
Over 700 Offices Worldwide
545-2900

Welcome Back Students!
Our talented staff is here for all your hair care needs!
Now Open Sundays
12 - :00
to better serve you...
Amherst
103 N. Pleasant
256-0438
Hours:
Monday - Friday 9-8:00
Saturday 9-5:00
Sunday 12-5:00
HAIR EAST

Another computer theft brings losses to $33,000

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

A rash of computer thefts on campus has resulted in the loss of more than $33,000 in stolen equipment this year.

The most recent theft was reported Aug. 28. Computer equipment worth over $7,000 was taken from a second floor office in Goessmann Lab. This was the fifth theft within the past year.

Sources said the equipment missing from a chemistry professor's office included an Apple computer, printer, hard drive, mouse and keyboard. The hard drive was reported to have had years of research stored on it.

Police said entry into the office appeared to have been forced, involving the smashing of a heavy glass window in the door. The frosted glass prevents anyone from being able to see inside the office.

According to police, earlier incidents of computer theft on campus were reported March 10, April 10 and July 4.

The music, journalism, physics and astronomy departments have also been victims of computer theft this year.

Phil Cavanaugh, an official of the public safety department, said he has no suspects at this time. He could not say any of the thefts were related.

"I cannot speculate on who committed the thefts," Cavanaugh said. "It could be anyone."

Cavanaugh said preventive measures are being taken. After any theft, a crime prevention team will investigate and make recommendations as to how the theft could have been avoided.

"The recommendations we have received have included putting new locks on doors and attaching lock cables to the computers so they are locked right to the desks," Cavanaugh said.

None of the computers have been recovered and the incidents are still under investigation, according to the department's detective bureau.

■ Housing

continued from page 1

to Freehill.

The next day at lunch, before the RAs were scheduled to sign their contracts, officials announced the policy was not going to change this semester.

"The RAs said they'd rather keep [the policy] the same than change it as we're going," Freehill said.

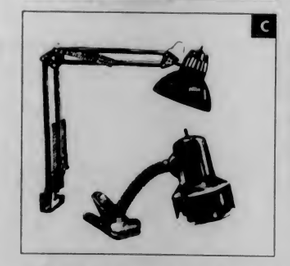
Housing officials will use this semester to do more studies concerning the role resident assistants play within the campus community.

"We're not going to do anything but assess and look at job descriptions from the other colleges," said Freehill.

Freehill said she was not really surprised about the swift reactions from the resident assistants.

"I'm not surprised at all," Freehill said. "It gives me encouragement that they reacted."

Some ideas offered by resident assistants during Wednesday night's meeting was additional cluster office workers, RA's obtaining beepers and keeping the area office open as a cluster office during the weekend so the RA's would have a longer rotation for weekend duty.



FILL THE EMPTY SPACE ON OUR PAGES
AND THE EMPTY SPOT IN YOUR SOUL.
WRITE FOR THE COLLEGIAN. 113 CAMPUS CENTER

1/2 Price Appetizers
Monday thru Friday
4 P.M. till 7 P.M.
At The Bar
Fitzwilly's restaurant bar
23 Main Street Northampton 584-8666

NEWS
SPORTS
ED/OP
ARTS
COMICS
LUNCH
EVERYONE READS US.
COLLEGIAN
FOR ADVERTISING INFORMATION CALL
545-3500

Downstairs

a

b

c

d
Posters
Lighting
Bedspreads
Rugs
Bookcases
Chairs
and more good stuff
at Faces
a. Rugs: dhurries, orientals, rags & more. From $7.95 to $69.95
b. Posters: over 1,000 designs. From $3.95 to $30.00
c. Lighting: task lamps, desk, clip-on, halogen & floor styles. From $7.95 to $79.95
d. Folding Bookcase: black or natural. $49.95 also desks, TV carts, tables & more.
northampton • main street • 7 days

Mirror, mirror in the pool

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Recent alum Jeffrey White and graduate student Laurie McLary have lost their shadows, but their reflection is keeping them company by Haigis Mall.

Head fights dismissal

Hooker hands pink slip to fundraiser

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Thomas H. Trotman, the executive director of the private, non-profit University of Massachusetts Foundation, has been dismissed by University President Michael J. Hooker in order to make the foundation a part of the fund-raising division of his office.

Trotman has filed a legal challenge to the dismissal.

Head of the foundation since 1979, Trotman was given a dismissal notice from Hooker in April. According to Bill Wright, spokesperson for the president, the decision is effective Oct. 12.

Wright would not comment on the details of Trotman's dismissal.

University trustees have been discussing moving the foundation to Boston, but a decision has yet to be reached, Wright said.

Trotman refused to comment by telephone last Wednesday.

The foundation was established in 1950 before the campuses of Boston, Dartmouth, Worcester and Lowell were instituted into the University system.

Approximately $60 million in gifts and land grants primarily to the Amherst, Boston and Worcester campuses are managed by the foundation.

UMass-Lowell and UMass-Dartmouth currently have separate foundations.

Trotman's attorney, James Collins, is a former state representative and chancellor of higher education. He is fighting the dismissal on Trotman's behalf, and said he hopes the situation can be resolved quickly.

"Our view is that Tom has dedicated 27 years of good and productive service to the University," he said. "He built a foundation from $300,000 to $71 million in a few short years.

"As Mr. Trotman's attorney and a former graduate of UMass, I think the University will be a great university when it respects people who have made a significant contribution for decades, and doesn't just relegate them to the trash heap," Collins said.

Collins said he expects to work out a settlement that will benefit both his client and the University, and does not feel constrained by the Oct. 12 date, a deadline he calls "artificial."

The University of Massachusetts Foundation manages the university's endowment and awards scholarships.

It also buys and renovates buildings, maintains endowed chairs and raises money through research grants, in addition to managing patents and copyrights.

The annual operating budget of the foundation is $419,000.

Wire reports contributed to this story.

Write for the Collegian.

There are many different opportunities, including News, Sports, Black Affairs, Editorial/Opinion, Arts and much more!

Come to 113 Campus Center for information. We Need You!

HADLEY
456 Russell Street
Phone: 256-4167

STOP & SHOP PHARMACY

Pharmacy Hours:
Monday-Saturday 9 am-9 pm
Sunday 9 am-6 pm

STOP & SHOP PHARMACY NOW ACCEPTS JOHN HANCOCK "PHARMACY ACCESS" PRESCRIPTION PLANS

Let our pharmacist show you how easy it is to transfer your next prescription to us.

Pharmacy Manager
John O'Neill

Staff Pharmacist
Robert Brawders

TRANSFER YOUR PRESCRIPTION TO STOP & SHOP PHARMACY AND RECEIVE A...
FREE $10 GIFT CERTIFICATE

TRANSFER A PRESCRIPTION TO STOP & SHOP PHARMACY
AND GET A $10.00 STOP & SHOP GIFT CERTIFICATE

Receive a $10 Stop & Shop Gift Certificate when you fill any new or transferred prescription except from another Stop & Shop Pharmacy. Present this coupon to our pharmacist when you pick up your prescription. Most insurance plans welcome! Good for any store merchandise. Limit one per customer. This coupon cannot be used with any other coupon.

Good through October 9, 1993.

LSC's power still restricted by Trustees

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Efforts to regain litigation rights by the Legal Services Center stalled in June when the Board of Trustees sent out a letter restating the reasons they oppose the issue.

According to Charles Dimare, directing attorney of LSC, the student-funded organization has been working with and advising the Student Government Association to revive limited litigation power in civil suits, landlord-tenant disputes, and other off-campus disputes, but not suits against the University.

"We're willing to forego the authority to litigate against the University," Dimare said. "The office just wants to restore off-campus litigation, so that the office can help students with the problems they have most frequently."

Jon Aronson, attorney general of SGA, said SGA representatives filed a bill last semester to get limited litigation to go through the statehouse, instead of going through the Board of Trustees.

Sources said that in 1986 the trustees revoked the power of LSC to sue the University, and then in 1987 the trustees abolished the Legal Services Office and established the Legal Services Center, with no authority to litigate at all.

Aronson said the trustees' decision was based on not wanting students to file cases against the University. Prior to 1987, LSC had represented students in cases against the University 13 separate instances, and won every time.

A law suit was filed against the trustees, In Turn to LEGAL SERVICES, page 16

UMass to host civility conference

Bill Cosby tagged as keynote speaker at Mullins Center

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bill Cosby

The five-campus system of the University of Massachusetts will be particlpating in a conference addressing issues such as racism, homosexuality, anti-Semitism and multiculturalism in 46 workshops.

The conference, titled "Strategies for Combating Racism and Promoting Civility," is sponsored by the University president's office. It will be held September 28 and 29 in the Lincoln Campus Center.

Javier Cevallos, a professor of Spanish and Portuguese and secretary of the Faculty Senate at the Amherst campus, said the committee originally met to "organize a conference to create and offer new perspectives" on the various issues to be addressed. Cevallos said it may also offer "new trends" for dealing with such issues.

Bill Cosby, the keynote speaker for the event, earned his master's of education degree at UMass in 1972 and his doctorate in 1977. Cosby is a well-known entertainer as well as a philanthropist and supporter of education.

"We're thrilled Bill Cosby accepted," Bill Wright, director of public relations for the president's office, said. "He has made education one of his prime areas of support."

Cosby will speak on the first night of the conference at the Mullins Center. Although free to the public, tickets will be required for the event and will be available at the Mullins Center box office.

The presenters and topics will be diverse in order to address the various needs of the five different campuses.

This is the first event of its kind that brings the UMass system together. The chancellors of all five campuses are expected to appear on a panel with Michael Hooker, president of the UMass system.

Aside from addressing social issues on campuses, the conference will offer an opportunity for faculty from the different UMass branches to meet.

"It's hard to keep track of everyone," Cevallos said.

Coordinators said approximately 600 will attend the event, filling the Campus Center to capacity. Cevallos estimated that nearly three times as many people applied as could be accepted.

Participants were selected by a board after the mid-August deadline for applications. Cevallos described the interest as "overwhelming."

Forums may be offered after the conference to allow those unable to attend the workshops to see the scope of issues addressed.

Organizers hope the conference will become an annual event.

Collegian Classifieds

They really work.

Whether you're selling a car, renting an apartment or trying to locate a long lost friend, students read the Classifieds.

Place yours today!
113 Campus Center

Special student savings right now

With this, you can save for years.

That penny jar on your dresser

With these, you can save right now.

Apple Macintosh Color Classic® 4/80, Built-in 10" Color Monitor and Apple Keyboard II

Apple PowerBook™ 145B 4/80, Built-in Keyboard & 10" Backlit Super Twist Monochrome Display

Apple Macintosh LC III 4/80, Apple Basic Color Monitor and Apple Keyboard II

Apple Macintosh Centris™ 610 4/80, Apple Basic Color Monitor and Apple Extended Keyboard II

Now, you can get substantial savings on these Macintosh® personal computers. You can also get special student financing with the Apple® Computer Loan® — to make owning a Mac® even easier. To see just how affordable a Macintosh can be, visit your Apple Campus Reseller today. And discover the power more college students choose. The power of Macintosh. The power to be your best.

UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center

Computer Department
545-2619
Monday-Friday 9-5 Saturday 11-3

■ smoke-free

continued from page 1

Class A carcinogen which is in the same category as asbestos, radon and benzene. It also is intended as a minimum to comply with the State Clean Indoor Air Law.

The policy was ratified by the Faculty Senate last February and then approved by O'Brien last June.

O'Brien asked for advice on the proposal from several University constituencies, and it was supported by the Undergraduate Student Senate, the Service Employees International Union, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the Executive Council of Deans, and informal discussions with the Senior Staff Group and the vice chancellors.

However, the policy is not without its opposition. The two major groups who oppose the new smoking rules are the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, and the Graduate Student Senate.

According to the President of GSS, Shyamala Ivatury, her group is against the smoking ban because it mostly effects people on staff, and the large number of foreign students that smoke.

"It's nice to have a smoke-free campus, but the University should spend a little money to install adequate ventilation to accommodate smokers, especially in cold weather," Ivatury said. "This way people could smoke without offending or harming those who do not."

In compliance to the policy, individuals do have the right, as provided for by State Law, to file a written complaint with the responsible Department Head. The Department Head has fifteen days to respond in writing to the complainant, including a statement about how the problem will be resolved.

The Division of Environmental Health and Safety may be contacted for consultation regarding the implementation of the policy.

■ face-lift

continued from page 1

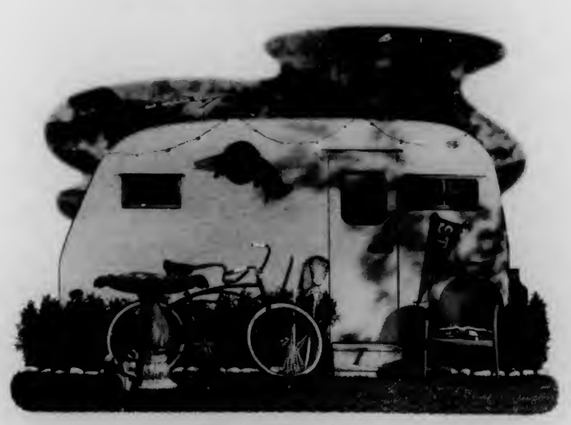
phases, according to Niraj Dangoria, the physical plant's senior facilities planner.

The first phase, which was expected to be finished last Friday, included installment of a 400 foot steam trench and the prep work needed for phase two.

Phase two's plans will be paving and new landscaping. Ultimately, the entrance on the Northeast side of the building will be a grassy terraced area for people to sit on. The steps were also taken out to make the building more accessible.

This phase is expected to take about twelve weeks. To allow students to enter and leave the building, tempororary fencing will go up to mark off pedestrian pathways.

A year after celebrating its 125th anniversary, Durfee Conservatory has been under a major reconstruction. The comprehensive plan to revitalize the area was started in late June.



When finished the site will include a turf demonstration garden and perennial beds, a new Durfee entry court, a trellis orchard, and a meditation garden beneath the century-old copper beach trees that grow alongside the conservatory.

For the second phase for this project, a sculpture garden and an overlook garden near the Chancellor's house will be added and the existing Rhododendron Garden will be renovated.

Before his exit from the University, O'Brien earmarked $500,000 for this project.

Other support came from the University Arts Council, the Amherst Council for the Arts, the Alumni Association, Friends of Durfee and other private donations.

AT&T can help you save money whether you live on campus, off campus, or somewhere in between.

Choose AT&T and save.

No matter where you choose to live, you can save money on your long distance phone bill with AT&T.
On campus, your administration offers AT&T ACUS™ Service Long Distance savings.
Off campus, choose AT&T as your long distance carrier and save with AT&T Savings Options. Either way, you'll save money no matter how your calling needs change. It's all part of The i Plan.™
The personalized plan designed to fit the way you call.

THE i PLAN™

To sign up, stop by our booth on campus or call 1 800 654-0471, Ext. 4119.

AT&T

© 1993 AT&T

Have you seen this man?

You will.

"BOB" is back.

Night Graphics meeting for returning staff tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 105 C.C. Want to apply? Come down, too.

STAIRMASTER

AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low

Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Everything You Need To Create the Perfect "Study" Environment!

"Recycled" laminated desktops
1¼" Formica covered slabs - variety of widths and lengths — just $13"-$34" each

Pine Shelving
1"x4" thru 12"
18'-85' lin. ft.

Plywood Cut To Size
¼" thru ¾" fir
Fully sanded good one side
FROM 72' per square foot

FOR ALL YOUR BUILDING AND REMODELING NEEDS

COWLS BUILDING SUPPLY

125 Sunderland Road, North Amherst
7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Weekdays • 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays
ACE Free Delivery in Area 549-0001

Former dept. chairman passes away at age 76

Joseph Frank, an emeritus professor of English at the University, died Aug. 19 at his Amherst home. He was 76.

Frank joined the University's English faculty in 1969, serving as department chair until 1975. He retired in 1984.

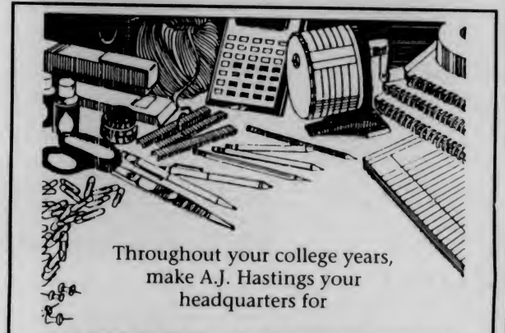
A founder of the Massachusetts Society of Professors faculty union, he was the organization's first president. Frank chaired the president's Academic Advisory Committee for three years and served on the faculty senate for several terms. While on the senate, he was a member of the rules committee and a delegate to the board of trustees.

Frank had a "generous spirit," said Jules Chametzky, currently an emeritus professor in the English department who worked with Frank.

"He made the department much more interesting, and tried to lift up the department in a happy and professional stance," Chametzky said. "He made everyone feel you were part of the big time when you were around him."

Frank was born in Chicago and graduated from Harvard University in 1939. He later earned both a master's degree and a doctorate from Harvard.

He first taught English at the University of Rochester in 1947. Before joining UMass, Frank chaired the English department at the University of New Mexico for two years.



Of the books Frank published, five were textbooks, including Literature from the Bible.

He was a member of the College English Association, the Milton Society, the Modern Language Association, the American Association of University Professors and the Renaissance Society.

He leaves his wife, Florence Stanton Clark Frank, two sons, two stepsons, three stepdaughters and one grandchild.

A memorial service will be held on campus in the fall.

– DARIENNE HOSLEY

Throughout your college years, make A.J. Hastings your headquarters for SCHOOL SUPPLIES!

Count on us for everything from your first freshman notebook to your final thesis paper... plus all those years of pens, pencils, paper clips, typewriter ribbons, etc., in-between!

A·J·Hastings, Inc.
Newsdealer and Stationer

"Conveniently located in the center of Amherst"
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN: Weekdays 5a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays, 5a.m. to 5p.m.

WILDWATER OUTFITTERS
355 RUSSELL ST. (RTE 9)
HADLEY, MA 01035
586-2323

THE NORTH FACE

BACK TO SCHOOL SALE!!!
Over 300 daypacks and shoulder bags!
All at $5.00 off the regular low price!

Caribou MOUNTAINEERING

JANSPORT

Coupon
15% OFF on all Day Packs offer good til 9/30/93

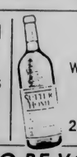
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

Welcome Back Savings from Scotts

BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT
24-12 OZ. CANS
$9.99 + DEP

COORS (REGULAR, EXTRA GOLD, LIGHT)
$19.99
BEER BALLS

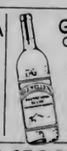
MILLER GENUINE DRAFT & G.D. LIGHT
24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES
$10.99 + DEP



RUBINOFF VODKA
1.75 LTR
$8.99

BUSCH ½ KEG
$36.99
NO PERMIT NEEDED TO PURCHASE KEGS

CAPTAIN MORGAN CO-PACK
1.75 LTR. MORGAN W/FREE 2.0 LTR. COKE
$15.99



MOLSON GOLDEN & LIGHT
12 PK. BOTTLES
$8.39 + DEP

SUTTER HOME
WHITE ZINFANDEL
750 ML
2 FOR $6.99

COLUMBIA CREST
CHARDONNAY
750 ML
$5.49

GLEN ELLEN
CHARDONNAY, CAB. SUAV. SAUV. BLANC
750 ML.
$3.99

JOSE CUERVO TEQUILA
CO-PACK
750 ML. TEQUILLA/FREE 1 0 LTR. MARGARITA MIX
$11.99

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!

Tele-check for your personal check.

6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

We now have all Mass Lottery games!

QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

Wednesday, September 8, 1993

University Health Services...

"I Didn't Know"

One of the reasons that students give for not using the Health Center is that they didn't know that their health problem could be solved here. Simply put, if it is a concern for which you would see your family doctor(s), you can definitely come here and get the same care. Because UHS has its own laboratory and diagnostic imaging (x-ray) department, you can count on a fast and accurate diagnosis. Also, there are specialists like gynecologists or orthopedic surgeons who have hours here or who are on call to come to the health center to treat you if your problem warrants it. You can buy the medicines that are prescribed by any UHS physician and many over the counter items at the Health Center's pharmacy. What follows is a list of some of the common and not so common concerns for which students call UHS.

- Sports Injuries Like Sprains, Strains and Broken Bones
- Physical Assessments that are often necessary for jobs or team sports
- Colds and the Flu
- Emergencies
- Urinary Tract Infections
- Toothaches and other Dental work
- Stress
- Contraception
- Sexually Transmitted Diseases
- Emergency Care and Treatment for Sexual Assaults
- Relationship Problems
- Eye Exams and Prescriptions for Glasses
- Nutritional Counseling
- Eating Disorders
- Back Problems
- Pediatric Care for Children of Students
- Infertility
- Acne
- Allergy Medications
- Health Related Travel Information
- HIV Antibody Testing (anonymous or confidential)
- Any and all symptoms that may worry you

✔Women's Health Services

- Gynecological Exams (recommended for all women over eighteen or upon becoming sexually active)
- Contraception such as the Pill, Diaphragm and Intrauterine Device
- Pregnancy Testing and Counseling
- Ending a Pregnancy (counseling and a referral to a local health clinic)
- The Morning After Pill (available for 72 hours after unprotected intercourse)
- Menstrual irregularities and concerns

✔Men's Health Services

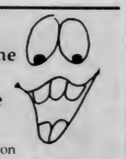
- Testicular exams
- Vasectomy consultations
- Prostate evaluations

uhs

Eye Care Program

Complete Optometry Exams



- Quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
- Courteous, friendly, professional staff.
- Reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
- a comprehensive contact lens service.

Convenient hours and campus location.

For Appointments or Questions

Call: 549-2671

Why spend your vacations going to the dentist when you can Save Your Smile right here?

Visit the Lubin Dental Clinic on the ground floor of the University Health Services

Hours: Weekdays, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Cost: Reasonable rates and some procedures covered by insurance
Call 545-2400 for appointments and information

Comprehensive services from cleanings to root canals. We will help you submit insurance claims.

The UHS is.....	The UHS is not....
a major medical center . It is staffed by Board Certified physicians, licensed psychologists, nurse practitioners, physician assistants and a variety of support staff who have a specific interest in the college age population. We are accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) and Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care (AAAHC).During the 1993 fiscal year, there were 103,108 visits to UHS. This number includes appointments to the Dental Clinic, the Eye Program and Physical Therapy as well as the general Medical and Urgent care clinics.	staffed by medical students. Some medical students receive part of their training here but your permission is always sought before you are to be examined by a medical student. In fact we encourage you to have a regular provider (a physician, nurse practitioner or physician assistant), someone you see every time you come here.
able to provide many services without additional charges beyond the Basic Health Fee. Therefore, you have already paid for these services as part of your tuition if you have registered for more than five credits.	always free. Some services are not covered by the Basic Health Plan. For these services you pay a small additional fee called a co-payment when you come here. If you have bought the Supplemental Health Benefits Plan some of these fees will be paid for.
comprehensive. Practically every health concern you have can be dealt with here. From a hang nail to hospitalization for the flu, you can be treated here. From diagnosis to treatment to follow up care, the UHS is equipped in terms of staff and facilities to help you. In a life threatening emergency, you will be seen immediately.	a walk in clinic. Call before you come here even in urgent situations. By calling first, you will get specific directions about what to do, whom to see and how soon to come. For all other types of care, call to make an appointment. If you call before 10:00 a.m. you may even get an appointment for the same day.

...Get High With A Little Health From Your Friends

Get High With A Little Health From Your Friends. Your goals and our goals are the same: Your good health! The staff of the University Health Services (UHS) welcomes you back to campus. We ask that you read this guide so that you will know more about us and in doing so help us to serve you in the most personal and efficient manner. Please read on and remember the many different ways we can help you, including the ways that you can become involved.

uhs

Health Questionnaires... Why?

Did you ever wonder why you had to fill out a Health Questionnaire? The most compelling reason is that the information you provide may save your life. For example, you may arrive here unconscious after an accident, unable to give us your medical history. In this situation, your questionnaire will be used by your physician to make decisions about treating you.

The second reason is that Massachusetts law requires ALL new students entering college to submit proof of the following immunizations, within 10 days of coming to campus:

TETANUS-DIPHTHERIA vaccine within the last 10 years
2 (TWO) DOSES OF MEASLES* after your first birthday
1(ONE) DOSE OF MUMPS after your first birthday
1(ONE) DOSE OF RUBELLA after your first birthday

* Please note: due to outbreaks of measles on some campus' within the last few years, Massachusetts law since 1991 has required proof of a second dose of Measles vaccine for people born after January 1, 1957.

To complete your immunization requirements on the Health Questionnaire form, please contact your doctor, high school nurse, or attach photocopies of your immunization records to the form. If you have not received a Health Questionnaire form please contact the University Health Service Health Questionnaire office immediately, since failure to complete your immunization requirements does affect your standing at the University. If you have any questions please contact the Health Questionnaire office at (413) 549-2671 ext 275.

Finally, you will be denied academic preregistration privileges if the Health Questionnaire is not returned. Records, transcripts and grades will be frozen as well.

Health Education

If you are looking for information on Alcohol, Sexuality, Stress Management or just about any health related topic, visit us in room 250 at UHS . We have written information on many topics and offer workshops and counseling as well.

Check Your Mail! The Fall Issue of Healthwatch will arrive the end of September.

Special Note To R.A.'s: You will receive the first in a series of Bulletin Board Kits this month too.

The UHS is open seven days a week twenty four hours a day for urgent and emergency care and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for routine procedures. The University Health Center is located in the central residence area adjacent to Brooks House and the Durfee Conservatory.

Using the Touchtone Telephone System

549-2671

When you call the Health Services you will hear the recorded greeting of the automated attendant. Callers from rotary phones must stay on the line for assistance from the operator. If you are calling from a touch-tone phone, you may immediately dial an extension number or access the menu of services offered at UHS. If you do not know the extension, stay on the line for a list of options.

Operator.....0
Emergency/Urgent Care.....1

For your convenience, we have listed some frequently used extensions:

Administration & Finance	214
Advice Triage Phone Nurse	229
Allergy/Immunization	124
Appointments	101, 102
Billing (last name A-L)	256
Billing (last name M-Z)	104
Clinic 1	121, 122
Clinic 2	131, 132
Clinic 3	141, 142
Clinic 4	233, 234
Executive Director	211
Eye Care	244
Gynecology/OB	150
Health Education	181
HIV Phone Line	126
InPatient Unit	222
Laboratory	154, 155
Medical Director	213
Medical Records	114
Member Services	192, 265
Nursing Director	219
Obstetrics/Gyn	150
Orthopedic Clinic	117
Pharmacy	165
Physical Therapy	158
Prescription Refill	191
Radiology/X-Ray	157
Supplemental Health Benefits	231
Surgery Clinic	117
Urgent Care	228

Some departments cannot be reached through the UHS switchboard and must be dialed directly:

Mental Health Services	545-2337
Dental Care	545-2400
TTY - Hearing Impaired	545-5905
FAX	545-3871

clip and save

Three Plans

The cost of health care is very much in the news these days. Hundreds of national experts are trying to figure out what services should cost and who should pay for them. It is not surprising that it is sometimes difficult to keep track of what your Health Fee covers. The following brief guide should help.

The Basic Health Plan (BHP)

(you have already paid for these services if you are taking more than 5 credits)

Health Education- all workshops and consultations on Alcohol, Nutrition, Contraception and other topics
Mental Health Counseling (up to 10 visits) in the twelve month period from 9/93 to 8/94
Physician and nurse practitioner visits at UHS
Maternity Care (prenatal and postnatal visits)
Physical Therapy
Some immunizations
Laboratory and x-ray services
Routine gynecology exams
Allergy shots (except allergens)
Contraception visits

Services that require an Additional fee

Seeing a gynecology specialist	$10
Seeing a surgeon for a consultation	$10
After hour care (weekends and after 9:00 pm on weekdays)	$10
Drugs prescribed by a UHS physician	Varies
EkGs	$10

There is also a $10 charge for breaking an appointment without calling to cancel.

Supplemental Health Benefits Plan (SHBP)

This plan covers you in the event you need hospitalization or emergency care off campus. It also helps to pay for prescription drugs and mental health care if you need more than 10 visits. Some dental procedures are covered as well. If you are a student taking more than 5 credits you will be billed for the SHBP unless you have a comparable health insurance plan. The cost is $456 for the twelve month period of 9/1/93 to 8/31/94.

Student Family Plan (SFP)

This plan is for students who wish to have medical coverage for their spouses and children. It costs $635.50 per semester. To obtain this plan a student must be a member of the BHP and the SHBP.
The brochure Health Plans For Students describes the cost of UHS services and off campus care and you can obtain one in the Member Services Area of the Health Center

Please note that the above is a summary and is not inclusive.

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or x234, Clinic IV.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-261 x233 or x234, Clinic IV

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30 - 6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or x234. Confidentiality Assured.

This year the Health Service will be offering 6,000 immunizations to the campus community in an effort to immunize a large enough group to prevent or weaken the spread of influenza on campus. This will be a special project with the vaccine supplied by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and administered at no charge to students, staff and faculty. Immunization Clinics will be held at various locations on campus beginning in October and continuing through November. Look for the dates and times in future issues of the Collegian. There will also be more about the Flu and "Bug Off" campaign in the fall issue of Healthwatch.

BUG OFF!
I got a flu shot

Confidentiality of Records

All UHS records are confidential. No information will be released, either verbally or in writing without your written permission. The restriction on information release applies to parents, friends, and University staff. Mental health records are kept separate from the general medical records and are also governed by this strict policy.

PEER HEALTH EDUCATION

- Interactive
- Dynamic
- Challenging

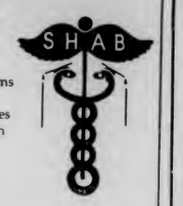
What students have said about Peer Health Education:

"The best course I've ever taken at UMass!"
"It changed my life - I learned about things that affect me."
"I liked being able to teach other students about sexuality, stress, alcohol and eating disorders."

PEER HEALTH EDUCATORS
Are students helping students.



Public Health 213
Education 213
6 Credit program,
2 semester commitment

Permission of instructor required
Call 549-2671 ext. 181. There are still a few openings.

When you party... Remember to party smart!

Know what you are drinking
Know your limit; stay within it.
Don't let your friends drive drunk.
If you are not sober, or not sure, let someone else drive.

Get involved with the Student Health Advisory Board

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health concerns
- Review UHS Budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

Call 549-2671 ext. 181
Ask about "SHAB"

Contraception Information

Are you about to choose a method? Are you about to change your method? Do you want the most up to date information about contraception? If your answer is yes to any of these questions, then attend one of the OPTIONS FOR CONTRACEPTION Sessions. Men and Women are welcome. An appointment is not necessary.

Monday and Thursday	3:00 p.m.
Tuesday and Wednesday	7:00 p.m.

Room 302 in the University Health Center.

Mental Health Groups

These groups lead by a Mental Health Staff Person offer students a chance to enrich their skills and gain support in specific areas of life as well as providing an opportunity to be with other students who share similar experiences.

Adult Children of Alcoholics
Developing Relationship Skills
Eating Disorders Group
Self-Esteem
Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Identity

Look for registration information in future Collegians, call 545-2337 or stop by 127 Hills North.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Editorial Policy

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes and encourages columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the entire Five College area. The following are some important guidelines to consider when submitting material to the page:

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear the writer's name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editor's discretion. Letters or columns written under a psuedonym will not be accepted.

All submissions must be typed and double spaced to be considered for publication. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

Letters should not exceed 50 typed, double spaced lines. Columns should not exceed 70 typed, double spaced lines. Letters and columns of unreasonable length will not be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will not be printed. Responses to or criticisms of columns or other Collegian articles are restricted to letter form. Any exceptions to this guideline will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. All submissions become property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual artist or writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, it's staff or the Editorial staff.

••••••••

The Editorial page wants you. Yes, you, the reader of these smudgy pages. We are looking for good writers and good artists to fill this page every day with their ideas and opinions.

If you're interested, stop by the Editorial desk at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center (the basement level). Your opinions count — but no one will know what you're thinking unless you tell them. 19,000 people want to hear what you think.

We can't afford a weak man

There was a time in higher education when the job security of a college president or chancellor was nearly as solid as a justice of the Supreme Court. Nowadays though, the position is about as secure as that of a major league baseball manager (in less than three years this campus is on both its third president and chancellor.)

Dan
WETZEL

So as our new Chancellor, David Scott, reads this on his first day of school, he has to wonder what his future will bring. Will it be a time of administrative fiscal sense (probably an oxymoron), tough minded leadership and growth, both for the University and Scott himself (see Bromery, W.)? Or will it be a bang your head against the wall sprint of mishaps, dead ends, infighting and frustration (see O'Brien, R.)?

While there is much Scott has little control over, namely the state of the Massachusetts economy, luck and the performance of the top Minuteman, President Michael Hooker, in the corner office and Senate Chambers of Beacon Hill, there is much he can do.

What has ruined this campus over the past half a decade can be summed up in one over used phrase — lack of leadership. Since the economy went south in the late 1980's, this University (save the basketball program) has gone south with it.

In 1990, when the times got tough in Amherst, then-President and Chancellor Joseph Duffy got nervous and bolted to American University, a place where a politician of his stature could feel more at home. Now he works for Bill Clinton.

His replacement, Richard O'Brien, was never able to make a stand on much of anything, so infuriating his servants in Whitmore that his last day was said to have brought more smiles to the old concrete block than Christmas bonus day.

So what was left for Scott?

First, he has to deal with the simple loss of prestige his office has recently been subject to. On this campus, the Chancellorship just is not what it used to be. Running from healing meetings, getting sworn at by students and being spit at by striking workers will do that to you.

Rebuilding the office should be fairly easy though. From all accounts Scott has already healed some wounds over the summer. His staff apparently enjoys him personally and word is that he actually is able to listen to people, something sorely missed in recent years.

Secondly, this University is still a fiscal disaster. Years of letting the faculty spend the money, without an executive who could either say no, or figure out what to say no to, has lead to some ridiculously bloated budgets and duplicated services.

Hiring freezes and not handing out raises did little to solve the budget problem, it just infuriated professors and staff and chased many talented people away from campus.

It is long since time for some serious streamlining. It is unlikely this campus will see an increase in state funding for awhile and with Hooker grabbing $2.1 million of campus money to give his already well paid assistants a seven percent raise, money will surely be tight.

With that the case, Scott needs to make some wise decisions, nothing brash, just responsible. There are millions which can be easily saved and redistributed. He needs to drop the ax where it needs to fall and not worry about his popularity with this department head or that associate dean of whatever.

The old solutions have just postponed the problems, major redirection is in order.

Finally, the only thing which university officials do less than spend money wisely is stand up to the political correct police, who are rapidly destroying the very fabric of higher education in this country. This could be Scott's greatest challenge.

The Wall Street Journal says college campuses are generally run by "Weak men," and no where is that more evident than when you watch a gray haired P.H.D. turn to Jell-o, or rush out of an auditorium, when confronted by some ignorant 19-year old political zealot.

When a small group of small-minded individuals can so scare a Chancellor by crying some form of "-ism" that rationale decision making is thrown out the window, it speaks volumes of the man in charge. How Scott reacts to his first political correct crisis and how long it takes him to cave in will speak volumes of how long he will remain on this campus.

Dan Wetzel is a Collegian columnist.

What it all adds up to

This message is my first to the campus community and I wish that it could be a happier one. I am keenly aware that all of you have coped with crisis after crisis during the last few years and yet, this year, we find ourselves with less than adequate resources once again.

As the State budget process began to unfold more than six months ago we were hopeful that the modest recovery in State funding we experienced last year might be extended but the continuing weakness of the State's economy and other pressing legislative priorities resulted in a disappointing State appropriation for the University.

David K.
SCOTT

The State budget passed by the Legislature and approved by the Governor includes $316 million for the University system. When the costs of recently awarded salary increases (the first in four years) are taken into account, this figure is $16.1 million less than the University had available last year.

As a result of the elimination of tuition being retained on the campus another estimated $3.7 million was lost in projected tuition revenue increases. However, a supplemental budget, which added $5.8 million back to the University, was approved by the Governor. The net effect of these actions to the University is a shortfall of $14 million, and to the Amherst campus a problem of approximately $7.4 million.

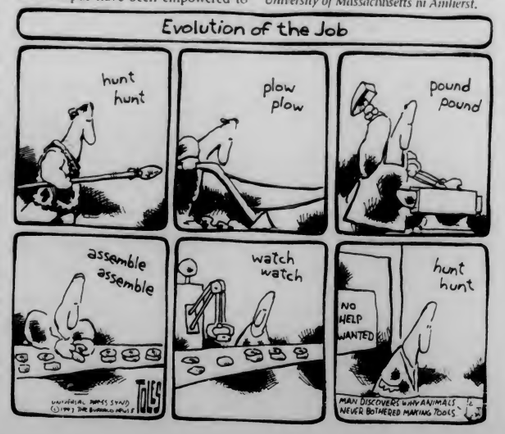
I am well aware that over the last few years the Amherst campus and the University system have suffered wrenching budget cuts. During those years, the campus had a number of options available to moderate the impact of the lost State funds, but unfortunately many of those cards are no longer available to play. We will be faced, therefore, as are many State agencies and campuses, with the necessity of meeting the shortfall by reducing or eliminating some campus programs and activities.

Whatever changes may occur over the next few weeks or months, it is clear that we must respond to the shortfall of about $7.4 million dollars. The first elements of that response are already underway.

• The Governor imposed a State-wide 60-day hiring freeze on all agencies under his direct jurisdiction. The President extended the freeze to the University for two months, beginning July 18. The freeze applies to all positions with the exception of student employees and those funded from grants and contracts. Chancellors on each campus have been empowered to grant exceptions to the freeze, and I have reinstituted the process for a critical needs review developed during the last hiring freeze in 1992. Details on these procedures have been distributed to departments and units. It is quite possible that the freeze may have to continue beyond 60 days.

• We are developing a list of campus priorities for the strategic intiatives fund created in the President's Office with the goal of bringing as much of the funding set aside for university system mission enhancement back to this campus as possible. Given the breadth of our activities in each of the system priorities identified by the President, we will make a strong case for a significant share of the pool.

• Once final budget figures are available, and after appropriate consultation, we will develop the process to be used in allocating the budget shortfall. At this stage, no option has been ruled out.



As we learn more about the situation we face, we shall inform the campus community as quickly and completely as possible about important developments. It is unlikely that any part of the campus will escape some consequences, and it is critically important that we confront this challenge as a community.

Your record of dealing with fiscal crises during the past five years has been remarkable. You have done what many said was impossible: you have maintained the fundamental strength of one of the State's most precious assets, carrying out our multiple mission with the distinction that befits our role as a leading land-grant and research university reflecting the skill and commitment of an extraordinarily talented community of students, faculty and staff. Your achievements over the years persuaded me, in large part, that the Amherst campus was the place to be during the years ahead.

Very soon we must develop new strategic plans for the next few years, building on the hard work of restructuring over the last year. We shall seek input and suggestions from all parts of the campus on the approach to the future. We need to face the future realistically and as a community to ensure that we have an environment of better support and equality for all our personnel and students for whatever array of activities we focus on.

We face a very difficult time, but I am convinced that if we work closely together as a community we will be able to respond to this challenge and continue to move the campus into the leading ranks of American universities.

David K. Scott is the Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Don't believe the hype

Welcome to, or welcome back to the University of Massachusetts, the only place on Planet Earth where we like to eat our bean sprouts from our bongs and call Columbus Day "Indigenous People's Day."

My name is Michael Morrissey and I'll be your tour guide through UGrass-Amherst. To those in the freshman class: Hello, you are now a liberal! Painless, quick and easy, wasn't it? All you had to do was move out here and register for classes.

Michael
MORRISSEY

In all seriousness, people often ask me why I hold such a disdain for the University and its liberal majority, and why I've written some of the editorials I have in the past. I would like to share with some of you younger folk my experience in my first few weeks at UMass, which helped shaped me into the #$&^*$%#@ I am today.

I had always heard about UMass' reputation growing up on the South Shore, where everyone goes to Harvard, MIT, or really has connections and gets into BU. Let us not forget the prep hockey and football stars, who go directly to BC without much thought. Boston's version of educational diversity.

I, like most, looked down at UMass with real disgust once, before reality drop-kicked me in the groin and I ended up here. Well, I figured, I'll meet normal people like myself and will fit in fine. Yeah, forgetaboutit.

What I saw when I got to town was perversion, plain and simple. The most shocking aspect was that the administrators not only allowed such behavior, but seemed to encourage it. Heterosexual freshmen were forced to room with homosexuals without any forewarning, any notice whatsoever. UMass' response: "You'll just have to deal with it."

I saw Queer Nation, something I thought only existed in our larger cities, run rampant with its "Men love men— Women love women" flyer campaign. UMass' response: "They're here, they're queer, get used to it."

Besides the perverted "alternative lifestyle" on campus, I saw Whitmore do nothing about the rampant drug use either. It's a known fact that some RAs not only allow freshmen access to marijuana, they encourage its use. Political incorrectness, at UGrass, is a crime, but smoking pot isn't.

I saw women who were covered from the top of their head to the bottom of their shoes in all-black outfits, conspiring to absorb every last ray of sun from the normal folk.

I saw men who had rainbow-colored hair, zooming around on the only four-wheel vehicle civilization has introduced them to — the skateboard. UMass' official response: "You'll just have to deal with it."

I thought the worst had happened in 1988, when the student body elected a Communist for SGA President. After hearing that story, I got the feeling things were a little out of tilt, but I should have known it was only the tip of the iceberg.

UGrass prides itself on being the school where everybody fits in. But oddly, the people who are the most mainstream fit in the least.

For those who don't associate themselves with Fidel Castro, Gloria Steinem, Michael Stipe, or an assortment of other "role models," they are just supposed to "deal."

I wouldn't deal.

I got fed up enough to try to give an alternative view of the liberal mainstream. Don't believe any of the hype you hear about this column or its originator. I'm just a guy who got fed up at the perversion and lunacy on this campus and spoke out.

If it wasn't me, it would be one of you folks out there. I know I'm not alone, there are many students out there who feel the same way. You can hear the same things criticized all the time.

Just remember: this campus only seems crazy, it really isn't (I think). Even the people with deluded views are friendly enough. You shouldn't be scared to have an opinion, that's what makes the United States of America the greatest country in the world.

Oh yeah, and don't forget: Indigenous People's Day is right around the corner, so start your party preparations.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

English prof decides to teach 'Women and Sexuality' 101

Who doesn't know of someone, male or female, that fooled around with a professor? It's not rare, nor can it be stopped. What is a private affair should remain private — if both sides willingly consent.

We have an English professor right here at UMass, William Kerrigan, who endorses sex with his students. Actually, he is more than willing to share his sexual experiences, just look in the September issue of Harper's magazine where Kerrigan participated in a panel discussion on the issue of teacher-student sex.

Kelly
SPANG

Of course Kerrigan is against any ban of faculty-student sex and willingly supported his position with personal experiences. However, his comments were an embarrassment to UMass and a slap in the face to any women's movement.

Several issues of sexuality and its expression were discussed. According to Harper's, Kerrigan posed the following question to the panel: "Tell me, which is the truer expression of desire for a male towards a female: writing her a sonnet or patting her on the ass?"

That's the problem: women are sick of being a piece of ass. If the truest way any man can think of to show desire is a pat on the ass, they are not worthy of the woman they desire. William Kerrigan proved himself unworthy.

At a campus where we are trying to dispel discrimination, it is really disappointing to see a professor so openly sexist. Kerrigan scorns feminists. He sees women as lost children who need to be taught about their own sexuality — and he thinks he's the man to do it. A man who thinks it is "unnatural" to be a virgin in college needs to be taught a few things himself. Like sexual experimentation should be with a woman's peers, not someone the age of her father.

What's more, Kerrigan needs to know that it is not necessary to reach between someone's legs to have a fulfilling college experience. There is nothing wrong with being a virgin; I am truly sorry for the women who lost their virginity to Kerrigan. Clearly he sees women as objects of conquest, not companions.

The issue of professor-student relationships will probably always be of debate because it's tough to monitor what people do in their private lives. The stance Kerrigan takes is not troublesome; it is his views on women that are disgusting and quite out-of-date.

Women do not need to be taught anything, we are quite capable of educating ourselves. That's why we enter universities and pursue meaningful careers. We are no longer chained to men's desires or feel the need to rely on men for our own existence. It's time for women to be seen independently of men and of equal importance.

I only hope William Kerrigan is not a true representative for the faculty at UMass.

Kelly Spang is a Collegian staff member.

A summer to remember

Everything was set in stone. The last time I graced these hallowed pages of the Collegian, I had what I thought to be an incredible internship in Buffalo ahead of me.

I would be living with my two closest friends from UMass while learning an experience of a lifetime. Guess again. The summer that was to be the best ever suddenly became one that was not even close.

Arthur
STAPLETON JR.

Crushed like a grape. Yeah, that is pretty much what it felt like when I was told that I could not be accommodated at the World University Games. The Mickey Mouse operations staff of the Games showed me that the real world was not fun. Some living in it don't even act professionally.

Like the guy who told me he really didn't care why my parents took off work for the day, even if they just happened to be taking me to the Port Authority in New York City for a nice, convenient nine-hour bus ride to this special internship. The same guy who told me, "I'm not your personal travel agent."

So there I was without a job and stuck home with my friends from home. Those of you who have been here in Amherst for at least one year know what I mean. For the freshmen, you will. I was on the brink of depression... at least until my father bailed me out and was able to get me a job. The only catch: he was my boss and I was now a mechanic's helper. Very different than sitting behind a computer terminal.

From the first week I worked with my dad I knew our relationship would grow. It was not that we didn't talk, or that he didn't know how much I cared about him; but when you spend eight hours a day, 40 hours a week with someone, it is bound to change your relationship forever.

It may sound very trite, but I learned to appreciate everything Dad did. I used to think because my father didn't go to college, he really didn't know much. Of course he was the best possible father to my sister and me, but I never knew how many other things he excelled at.

Seeing Dad communicate with men over the age of 65 who would not stop talking, as well as snotty engineers barely past the age of 30, made me realize that education does not always need to take place on a campus in a classroom.

My father told me I would encounter people like the folks in Buffalo for the rest of my life. He said that the key was in so many words, "you just have to learn from it and never stop being professional." Well up until now I haven't.

Before I knew it, my time in Rochelle Park ended. As the summer with Scales Air Compressor came to a close, I couldn't wait to get back here. To start writing stories again. To start partying again. To see my friends again.

But part of me didn't want to leave. The part that loved driving around northern New Jersey with my father, talking about minute things such as Michael Jordan's gambling habits. I'll never forget Dad's outburst when for three days straight on WFAN, the sports-talk radio station out of NYC, that was all the hosts argued about. Over and over and over.

The part of me that remembers filling up with pride when the owner of the company kept reassuring my father that they couldn't do without him. That's funny, neither could I.

So as I look back at this summer, I wonder what would have been if I had encountered professionals in Buffalo. I probably would not have had the experience of my life.

Let's just say that the summer that wasn't turned into possibly one of the best.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Watchdog attitude of salesperson has significant racial undertones

In May, 1993, I had the misfortune of entering the Rainbow's store located at the Hampshire Mall near UMass. A group of friends and I were trying on shoes in the back of the store, when the sales associate approached us to offer her assistance. This is nothing out of the ordinary, but it was her attitude that bothered me.

When she approached us, she looked us up and down and all around before she asked if we needed anything. We told her no, and she reluctantly went on her way. A couple of minutes later, I glanced over my shoulder and there she was, inconspicuously standing behind a rack of clothes — watching us.

I asked her why and she loudly and rudely told me it was her job. I told her that neither I, nor my friends were thieves, and if she felt the need to watch us, then she could watch us leave the store without purchasing any merchandise. I later returned to the store to let her know I didn't appreciate being treated like a thief.

When we spoke, she was overly hostile — to the point of rudeness; she told me that I was lying, and she was watching us because it was her job. There is a difference between being helpful, and being a watchdog — she definitely crossed the line. Is it store policy to watch every African-American who enters your store? This is the impression I received from this woman's words and actions.

I asked her why she was watching only us, and no other customers in the store, and she could not answer my question. She finally ended the conversation by telling me I was lying, and she was not going to apologize to me.

I have worked in retail for a number of years, and during that time, I have learned that the aim is to please the customer. The policies of the stores in which I have worked have been "the customer is always right" and an apology was always forthcoming from the sales associates if warranted. Maybe Rainbow's doesn't practice these policies, or maybe the customer just isn't as important as I would have expected.

I feel that we were targeted by this woman to be "watched" because of our color, and I will never step foot in another Rainbow's store again if this is the way you treat your customers. This woman's attitude was unacceptable. She was very argumentative, and extremely unprofessional; and in no way apologetic for her insulting behavior.

If non-White students aren't good enough to be treated with respect when we enter your store, then your store isn't good enough to receive our hard earned money. I will also see to it that none of my friends ever step foot into another Rainbow's store again... and all of my friends are not Black.

Michelle Cannon
Amherst

The Editorial/Opinion Desk is currently accepting applications for the position of Associate Editor. No previous experience is required, just an interest in working hard and learning.
For more information please contact E.C. Thomas at 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500.

RSO leaders develop skills at conference

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Members from various student groups on campus gathered together in the Campus Center hotel to "get connected."

Student leaders from over 20 recognized student organizations on campus took part in the three-day retreat held from Sept. 1-3 which concentrated on developing networking, communicating skills and the conference's main theme of "getting connected."

Organizers of the event said they hoped the conference could help students utilize each other for resources and advice. They said building support between the groups through teamwork will make future campus events more successful.

The conference was the fifth conference of its kind, but the past four years they were held off-campus, according to Gloria Santa Anna, the event's coordinator.

"We saw the magic that happened with last year," Santa Anna said. "The groups were networking."

"Student leaders put in a major commitment. The conference is three days out of their lives," she said. "It shows the level of commitment and intensity for their organizations and students in general."

This year's event drew almost 100 student leaders, a significant increase over last year's attendance.

"There is like twice the number of people since last year," Jalil Mendoza, president of Ahora said.

Workshops were held throughout the conference to help students strengthen their management and leadership skills. Thomas Robinson, vice chancellor for student affairs, was the keynote speaker and Chancellor David K. Scott dropped by a special dinner held for event-goers.

Conference attendees said the event was helpful and informative.

"It's helpful because it is forcing us to break

Turn to CONFERNECE, page 16

Top posts are no longer vacant

New leaders for housing, admissions and facilities

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Several administrative positions that were vacated last year have been filled over the summer, offering new officials for the fall semester.

Chika Nnamani has been hired to replace former Housing Services Director Joseph Zannini. He is assuming responsibility for managing the sixth largest residence hall system in the country.

Before coming to the University, Nnamani was the associate director of residential life at Illinois State University in Normal, a position he held since 1989.

Nnamani's responsibilities include designing systems and procedures for managing services in residence halls and coordinating strategic plans for the office of residential life, which provides housing for 7,704 students. He also oversees the office's multicultural program.

Nnamani said the commitment to academic excellence and the reputation of UMass are the primary reasons he came to the campus.

He said ultimately he would like to create an environment in which the administration sees the students as a whole and provides them with sufficient services within the resident halls.

"What is needed is a unified position," Nnamani said, with all of the campus services.

William Rose has been appointed to the position of vice chancellor for facilities and campus services. He has served as director of facilities at Montana State University since 1987.

Rose said that at Montana State he was involved in managing capital construction programs, contract administration, campus facility planning, the physical plant, central stores, telecommunications and governmental relations activities involving long-range facilities planning and property management.

The associate vice chancellor's post combines two previously vacant positions encompassing overall administration for the physical plant, facilities planning and administrative services.

Rose, who arrived from Montana last week, said the New England area and UMass' reputation of excellence helped him decide to apply for the job.

"I'm very, very pleased to be here," he said.

Arlene Cash will also be joining the campus community as the new director of admissions. She was the associate director of admissions at Boston University.

Cash is replacing former director Timm Rinehart, who resigned last semester.

At BU, Cash said she was actively involved in the recruitment of minority students and has been responsible for recruitment efforts in the Midwest and the West, in addition to the greater Boston area.

Student involvement within the campus community is one reason Cash said she accepted the job.

She added that she was very surprised because she had never before seen a student representative sitting on an interview committee.

Cash said she is happy to be here.

"It's been a long time since I woke up in the morning excited to go to work," she said.

Shoot for the Collegian

The Collegian is looking for photographers!

All you need is interest and enthusiasm, not years of experience.

Contact Aram, the Photo Editor, for information on how to get involved.
113 Campus Center

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

The Office of Greek Affairs Wishes to Extend A Warm Welcome To all New and Returning Students. May the 1993-94 Academic Year be Your Best Ever.

SOUTHPOINT
APARTMENTS AND TOWNHOUSES
2&3 Bedroom Townhouses from $500

- 1 Bedroom Apartment $380
- 2 Bedroom Apartment $470
- 4 Bedroom Apartment $900

Free Bus • Hot Water Included
Dining Room • Fully Carpeted
Tennis Court • No Pets

Call 1-413-253-4055

Easy does it

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Roohi Prem, right, and her husband, Satinder Singh, move out before teeming masses of students move in.

New rule gives victims answers

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

The Board of Trustees approved a revised Code of Student Conduct on June 2 which will allow victims of violent crimes to learn the results of University disciplinary procedures.

According to Paul Vasconcellos, assistant dean of students, most changes in the code are minor and only for the purpose of clarifying regulations to assist students and staff in handling future discipline cases.

Previously, the CSC kept all disciplinary records completely confidential and would not allow their release. Under the revised edition, victims of violent crimes are now able to learn the outcome of University disciplinary actions.

According to Jo-Anne Vanin, dean of students, the new addition to the CSC complies with the Crime and Campus Security Act.

"As you can imagine it would be very awkward for a victim of a violent crime to not know what had happened to his or her abuser," Vanin said. "It puts the victim in a much better situation, if they are informed."

The CSC governs graduate students in University housing and all undergraduates, but the revisions went on to specify that the regulations also apply to fraternities, sororities and Recognized Student Organizations.

Vanin said the Judicial Affairs Committee proposed changing the definition of stalking as a form of harassment. University legal council advised the Committee that "stalking" was a legal term and the University should keep legal terms out of the CSC.

Legal council also said the CSC covers the behavior of stalking adequately under the section outlining harassment.

Other changes were made under the section explaining sanctions. References to deferred suspension or removal from University housing were removed from the description of penalties to eliminate confusion, Vanin said.

There is now a section on group sanctions which eliminates the need for the separate categories of warning and reprimand.

"All of these revisions were made only to clarify the code," Vanin said. "There was no change in actual substance nor in any of the regulations."

■ budget

continued from page 3

employees, those funded through grants and contracts and the 60 new employees hired before the freeze was instituted on July 19.

As the campus buckles down for the cuts, there will be an estimated $3.2 million channeled to what UMass president Michael Hooker calls, "mission enhancement."

This program will be aimed at promoting multiculturalism, economic development, teaching, learning and other activities. Each campus will put in proposals concerning the program to receive the money that is available for it.

President Hooker has justified the spending for "mission enhancement" by explaining the importance for the university community to go forward with the program.

A second plan from the President's office is giving non-union employees a raise to match those granted to the unionized employees. Classified employees, those paid by the hour, will receive a 7.25 percent raise, and a 4 percent raise will go to the "merit pool" for administrators.

"We wanted to be fair to the entire campus workforce," Wright said of the raise that will be given to both union and non-union employess.

The move is opposed to many on the campus, including the union that represents 35 employees who were temporarily laid off earlier this summer when their seasonal employment with physical plant was cut oft.

Because of the budget crunch "each campus has had to take a closer look at the programs they offer," Wright said.

The final budgets are due in late September, with the "mission enhancement" proposals coming in October.

It's Back to School Time

10% off with Student I.D.
Not valid with other discounts
Does not apply to oil changes
Discount valid only at time of purchase
offer expires 10/3/93

Free Midas Shuttle to Campus

MIDAS

MUFFLERS BRAKES SHOCKS STRUTS
COMPUTERIZED ALIGNMENT
RTE. 9/HADLEY
586-9991
Near Hampshire Mall

EARN MONEY BY ASKING FOR IT . . .

IT'S THAT EASY!

UMASS TELEFUND

☆Network with UMASS alumni all over the U.S.☆
☆ Work evenings for $5.50/hour PLUS bonuses ☆
☆ Add marketable experience to your resume! ☆

Call 545-3509 or stop by Memorial Hall

■ Legal Services

continued from page 7

which the First U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the board's decision.

According to Dimare, students and administration support the return of LSC's authority to represent students. The only obstacle is the trustees, who as of now will not even allow limited litigation.

"The trustees are wrongly interpreting the First Circuit's decision," Dimare said. "To read the First Circuit decision as specifically prohibiting limited litigation authority goes well beyond the case decision."

Dimare said the trustees will not grant limited litigation rights because they fear students might file lawsuits against the University on the grounds that limited litigation is unconstitutional. Trustees were unavailable for comment.

If a student were to sue the University on these grounds, Dimare proposed the board then do what they did in 1987, and once again take away litigation rights.

Bill Wright, director of public information for the University, said general council is looking into the issue. Hooker could not be reached for comment.

"The board's argument is ridiculous, it has no merit," Dimare said. "It should be noted that there are many student legal service programs, at many universities across the country where litigation is authorized, and no student has filed a case against their university."

Security forces strengthened

Sixteen new police, security officers in training

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

The Division of Public Safety hired five new police officers and 11 security officers to help boost security on campus. Two minorities and one woman will be part of the new group of police officers.

The appointments result from promises made by former Chancellor Richard O'Brien to increase campus security, according to Police Chief Jack Luippold.

The officers began a 17-week course on July 19 that includes training on matters of human relations, criminal law, police ethics, civil rights, defensive tactics, motor vehicle law, police liability, firearms and report writing. The program is being held at the Municipal Police Officers Academy in Agawam.

After the training course, new officers are required to complete a three-month field training program with the division that will include diversity education.

One of the officers, Pablo Rodriguez of Amherst, is already in the field training course because he has been a member of the Greenfield Police Department for six years. He will be assigned a shift upon completion of the program.

The other appointees are Laura Moore of Sunderland, Brian Narciewicz of Greenfield, James Roberts of Amherst, and Stephen Westerling of Westfield. They will be assigned to shifts after they finish the training period.

Moore has served as an auxiliary police officer in Sunderland. She has an associate's degree in criminal justice from Greenfield Community College.

Narciewicz was an aviation operations sergeant for the U.S. Army from 1988 to 1992.

Roberts is completing his bachelor's degree at the University.

Westerling is a Westfield State graduate with a degree in criminal justice. He was also a member of the Massachusetts Army National Guard from 1988 to 1992.

Luippold said despite the credentials of the new officers, a college education is not a requirement for the job.

"There is no requirement that police have to have certified degrees," Luippold said.

In addition to the new police recruits, 11 security officers have been hired by the department to increase the 19 member staff.

The security officers were hired to assist police with safety matters on the campus. They carry no weapons and have no powers of arrest, but are in constant radio contact with the police.

"They will be the eyes and ears of the police," Luippold said.

The new officers are outfitted in green uniforms. They will be responsible for security in the academic and residential areas, running the escort service, bike registration and parking enforcement.

The field training program for the officers ran for eight weeks and included first aid/CPR, non-confrontational tactics and report writing.

■ conference

continued from page 14

into groups with people we don't know," Greg Zenon, business manager of the Index, said.

"I like it — people realize we are really trying to make change," Manuel Aguilar, public relations chair for the SGA, said.

"Networking is really big here," John Wong, a representative from the Asian American Students Association, said. "There is a huge diversity of organizations."

The Student Activities Office sponsored the gathering which drew representatives from the Student Senate, Black Student Union, Hillel, Earthfoods, Nommo News and WMUA in addition to many of the other RSOs.

HELP WANTED! The Collegian's Graphics department is now hiring for night production positions.
To Apply: please attend our meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 105 Campus Center.
Macintosh and/or layout & paste-up experience is a plus, but not necessary.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887. Earth Share

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS
YES COMPUTERS
STUDENT MAC RENTALS
~~$75~~ /MONTH
BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING
AUTHORIZED RESELLER
585•0007
NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

NEW AND USED CARS AND TRUCKS
COMPLETE HONDA SERVICE
Fall Service Student Special
10% off Parts and Labor
Now through October 31
Northampton HONDA
171 King St., Northampton, 586-8626

Whatever you want, we've got it.
The Collegian 545-3500.

Acupuncture and Natural Healing
549-6856
245 Lincoln Ave., Amherst
F.E. Steinway, Lic. Ac.

"Dedicated to treating the cause, not the symptom."
Amherst Chiropractic Family Health Center
Dr. Virginia D. Harper
Chiropractic Physician
190 University Drive
Corner of Rte. 9 and Univ. Dr.
By Appointment Only
256-6700
Present this coupon for free consultation
Good thru 10-31-93

PLAYING FOR KEEPS

Kenwood KRC-260
ONLY $219.00*
The best FM ... Removable Face ... High Power ... Legendary Reliability
KENWOOD
* Prompt Professional Installation Available

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

DOONESBURY — By GARRY TRUDEAU

DOONESBURY — By GARRY TRUDEAU

DOONESBURY — By GARRY TRUDEAU

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editors ..... D. Hosley, T. Monahan, D.Wetzel
Copy Editors ..... M. Morrissey, S. Hayden
Photo Technicians ..... A. Comjean, M. Kahn
Production ..... L. Jezowski, M. Carvalho

MENU

LUNCH
Chicken Fajitas
Egg Roll

DINNER
Fettucini
Cheese Strudel

BASICS LUNCH
Veggie Pocket
Tofu Fajitas

BASICS DINNER
Fettucini
Cheese Strudel

Calling all student cartoonists!

Join the Collegian's comic tradition and sumbit your strip for the Collegian's comics page.

Please deliver samples to Darienne Hosley, Managing Editor in 113 Campus Center right away!

The Collegian regrets that not all strips submitted can be printed.

Quote of the Day

"I can't wait for classes to start so I can get some sleep."

– Overheard

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21 – April 19): Be careful if traveling today. You could be a bit accident-prone. The personal touch is important to your loved ones. Show appreciation for your mate's effort. Live closer to your ideals.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20): Avoid contacting others today. Let them come to you! Financial matters turn out as planned. A visitor brings welcome news. You find the answer to an old riddle.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20): Your intuition is "right on the money." Make financial decisions by yourself. Other people mean well but may guide you down the wrong path. Romantic entanglements could cause a change in plans.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22): You can make considerable headway in your financial dealings with someone influential. A loved one could behave in a strange manner. Withhold judgment until you know more.

LEO (July 24 – Aug. 22): Concentrate on work and ignore outside distractions. Today's events will affect you in a positive way, opening the door to better financial opportunities. A relationship needs time to mature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22): You have all the tools you need to win a competition. You are a leader, not a follower. Show how mature you are and a relationship will develop the way you want.

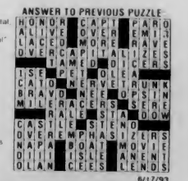
LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22): You may have to work side-by-side with someone who irritates you. Hide your impatience and concentrate on teamwork's many benefits. Leave your cares at home when you go out tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21): Do not sit back and wait for things to come to you. Get busy and turn your dreams into reality. You know what it takes to succeed. Prominent people will be impressed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21): Heed subtle signals from your romantic partner. A relationship may be ending. News from someone at a distance makes the situation clear. Take the first step towards setting things out.

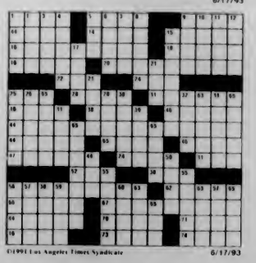
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19): Curb a tendency to be gullible, especially in business. Be wary of someone who tries to influence you with a take-it-or-leave-it manner. Strangers could jeopardize a important relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18): Your diplomatic skills are put to the supreme test when you are asked to settle a dispute. Once again, think out matters, a cautious, thoughtful decision. Don't be shocked if gossip runs this evening.



PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20): Getting the go-ahead for a personal project makes you feel as large as the world. Do not expect too much or you could be overestimating a business proposition.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Vessels
5 Extravaganza
9 Actor Hicks
11 Maleficent
14 Harbinger
15 Mat
16 Cougar
18 Viewpoint
19 Actor Kevin
20 Umbrella weather
22 Chatter
24 Socks for one
25 Titan, e.g.
26 Walesa of Poland
31 to DPU: the P
36 Caspian Sea feeder
38 Granny's companion
40 Legendary Edmund James
41 The choice is yours
44 The briny
45 Lennon and Murray
46 Singer Murray
47 Positions
49 Calabar
51 Pinnacle
52 Copenhagen coin
54 Perch
56 Composers Johann and Richard
62 Golfers' vehicles
66 Fragment
67 Expenses
69 IRS threat
70 Green land
71 Wee
72 Exigency
73 Radiograph
74 Michael J. Fox role

DOWN
1 Actor Gregory
2 Filipse
3 Little monkey
4 Argot
5 Sticky stuff
6 East Asian river
7 Actress Olin
8 Gambado
9 Greenery note
10 Canada's capital
11 Supporter
12 Colors
15 Famed auto race site
17 Brunch
21 Siesta
23 Penchant
25 Flowers
26 Dogwood petal, for example
27 "Let's ___ Deal"
29 Hutch
30 Biblical mountain
32 Fiji's capital
33 River in SE Ontario
34 ___ acid
35 Metric measure
37 Spare
39 Modern Swiss painter
42 Not sure
43 Unfamiliar
48 Next year's grads
50 Monte Carlo's neighbor
53 County in SE England
55 Bayou
58 Look over
57 Faithful
58 Impudent
59 Confined
60 Arab prince
61 Match tent
63 Die up
64 Dancer Tommy
65 Underworld river
68 Anthem author

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

6/17/93

©1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WELCOME TO UMASS

The University of Massachusetts has chosen Sprint Operator Services for the Residence Hall students. There is no need to dial extra numbers for other carriers, to make an operator assisted call, simply dial...

9 + 0 + Area Code + Number

Sprint processes the following types of calls:

Sprint FŌNCARD
Outgoing Collect
Third Party (Billing Number)
Person to Person

Sprint accepts all the following cards:

Sprint
DINERS CLUB INTERNATIONAL DISCOVER
Carte Blanche
JCB
MasterCard
VISA
Telco Calling Card
AMERICAN EXPRESS Card
Bell Canada

IT'S AN EASY CALL!

Sprint

All calls will be billed at rates equal to AT&T's.

State is first to finance AIDS vaccine testing

By ANNE THOMPSON
Associated Press

BOSTON — Massachusetts has become the first state to sponsor testing of a politically controversial AIDS vaccine, officials announced Sept. 1.

The vaccine trial, which started two weeks ago, tests a genetically engineered protein called gp160, manufactured by MicroGeneSys Inc. of Meriden, Conn.

Unlike traditional vaccines, which are given to prevent infections, this one is intended to fight a virus after is becomes established in the body.

Run by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health's HIVAIDS Bureau and financed with $150,000 in state funds, the trial studies the effects of gp160 on 140 patients who either have AIDS or are infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Patients in the 15-month test are inoculated once a month at one of 12 community health centers around the state.

"I hope it keeps up with the quality of my life," said William Catalini, 46, one of the trial participants. "It's terrible to be kept alive year after year without being able to enjoy life."

Catalini, who lives in Gloucester, said he found out he was infected with the HIV virus eight years ago and since then, has participated in tests of the drugs DDI and AZT.

He said he experienced slight flu-like symptoms after his first inoculation with gp160.

"That we know of, no one has dropped dead," he said, laughing. "The risks seem relatively small."

The vaccine has been tested for six years, said Frank Volvovitz, MicroGeneSys president and part of the team that invented the vaccine.

But Massachusetts, he said, is the first state to pay for its own vaccine trial, although MicroGeneSys is donating the drug.

Massachusetts residents can contribute a voluntary amount of their state tax return to funding for AIDS research. In 193, the state collected $356,756, of which $150,000 is financing the vaccine trial, said Kate McCormack, spokeswoman for the state Department of Public Health.

A state Department of Revenue review of other state's most current available personal income tax returns found Massachusetts was the only state with this tax option.

Volvovitz said AIDS activists and Boston city officials approached him about the possibility of testing the vaccine at community health care centers.

"This sends a message to (the government) which has, for more than six years, been dillying and dallying around and not conducting a national trial to see if this vaccine has therapeutic value," said Boston city councilor David Scondras, who advocated for the test.

Scondras, who is gay, announced earlier this year that his partner is HIV positive, although he has not tested positive with the virus.

Next year, MicroGeneSys and the U.S. Army will conduct a national vaccine trial, which will cost $20 million and study 5,000 to 10,000 patients. Vovolovitz said the Massachusetts study is not part of the much larger Army research.

The vaccine is a synthetic copy of the protein on the outside of the AIDS virus. Developers hope that flooding the system with extra levels of the protein will stimulate the body to produce stronger immune responses against the virus.

HELP WANTED

the following paid positions are currently available:

Black Affairs Editor
GLB Issues Editor
Jewish Affairs Editor
Third World Affairs Editor
Women's Issues Editor

For job descriptions and an application, come to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, or call 545-0719 and ask for the Managing Editor.

Also needed: writers/reporters for news, arts, editorial, sports, photo, third world affairs, women's issues, Black affairs, multicultural affairs, GLB issues and Jewish affairs desks. Positions are also available in the graphics and business departments.

COLLEGIAN

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

This week on Little Paper on the Prairie

"Hey Pa, ain't there anything for me to do besides working hafe on the farm?"

"Well Half Pint, if you feel like writing, taking pictures – or working in business or graphics – there's always opportunities at the Massachusetts Daily Collegian."

"Oh Pa! Hitch up the wagon! I'm gonna write for the Collegian!"

Laura "Half Pint" Ingalls

Tune in next week... or come down to 113 Campus Center today!

University Store's

Textbook Annex

We discount all new copies of books
5% off pubisher's list price.

The Textbook Annex is now handicapped accessable!

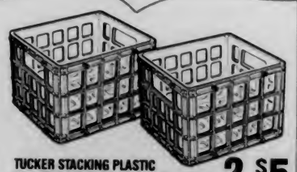
Our large selection of used books save you money.

Our extended hours for this semester are:

Tues., Sept. 7:	9:00 am-5:00 pm
Wed., Sept. 8:	9:00 am-9:00 pm
Thurs., Sept. 9:	9:00 am-9:00 pm
Fri., Sept. 10:	9:00 am-5:00 pm
Sat., Sept. 11:	11:00 am-5:00 pm
Mon., Sept. 13 to Fri., Sept. 17:	9:00 am-5:00 pm

SUPER STOP & SHOP

HADLEY
440 Russell Street



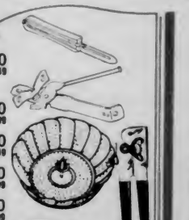
Also visit our nearby store in...
HOLYOKE
28 Lincoln Road

WELCOME BACK U-MASS STUDENTS

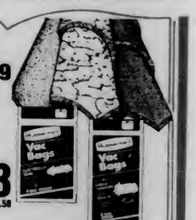
From notebooks to nightlights, furniture to fresh fruit, we've got everything you need to go back to school... conveniently located under one roof.

FLIP CHAIR/BED COMBINATION ... $29.99
• Hercuron Fabric Finish Bed Size 76 L x 27 W x 7 Thick

TUCKER STACKING PLASTIC STORAGE CRATES OR BINS .. 2 for $5
• Choose from Windsor Capri or White



RUBBERMAID
1⅛ BUSHEL LAUNDRY BASKET ..... $4 SAVE 1.00
• Almond or Slate
Vanity Basket 2 for $5 SAVE 2.00
• White or Blue
Bowl Brush ..... 3.00 SAVE 2.40
• White or Blue
20 QUART WASTEBUCKET ..... $4 SAVE 2.40
• Almond or Slate



RUBBERMAID
SINK DRAINER ..... $4 SAVE 1.00
• Almond or Slate
Dishpan ..... $3 SAVE 1.40
• Almond or Slate
2.5 Quart Pitcher .. 3.00 SAVE 1.40
Ice Cube Tray ... 1.00 SAVE .70
1 Pint Bottle ..... 1.00 SAVE .50
2 QUART BOTTLE ..... $2 SAVE .99

HOAN GADGET SALE
Stainless Steel
Swivel Peeler ... 1.00 SAVE .49
• Or 3 Pc. Wooden Spoons Pastry Brush
Multi Use
Can Opener ..... 2.00 SAVE 1.00
Stainless Steel
Health Steamer 3.00 SAVE 2.40
Tri Star
5" Utility Knife 3.00 SAVE 1.00
Swing A Way Sr.
Can Opener ... 6.00 SAVE 1.00

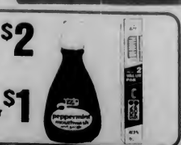
NATCO 6 X 9
BROADLOOM CARPETS $34.99

RUBBERMAID
VACUUM BAGS ..... 2 for $3 SAVE 2.50
• Choose from a wide variety of styles and sizes

G.E. HIGH INTENSITY
READING BULB ..... 2 for $5
• 40 Watt

G.E.
NIGHT LIGHT BULBS ..... 99¢
• 2 Pack

STOP & SHOP STANDARD
2 PACK LIGHT BULBS 99¢
• Choose from 40, 60, 75 or 100 Watt



STOP & SHOP
T-120 VIDEO TAPE .. $1.99

L.A. LOOKS SHAMPOO ..... 99¢
• Assorted Varieties 16 Oz Bottle
BUY ONE GET ONE FREE
MEDICATED STRIDEX PADS $2.99
• Bonus Pack of Two Jars of 32 Pads

STOP & SHOP MOUTHWASH $2
• Assorted Varieties 32 ZOz Bottle
STOP & SHOP
VALUE PACK TOOTHBRUSH ..... 2 for $1
• Pkg of 2

We reserve the right to limit quantities.
Not responsible for typographical errors.

Prices effective through September 10, 1993.

Fall 1993 Back to School

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

LSAT GRE GMAT MCAT

- Total Training
- Expert Teachers
- Personal Tracking and Tutoring
- Insider Test Information
- Permanent Centers

Classes Are Starting Right Now

1-800-KAP-TEST

KAPLAN RULES

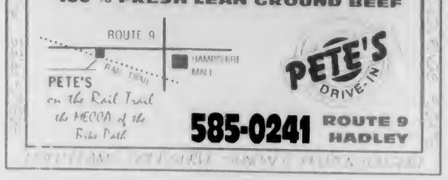
Fentons SINCE 1924

ATHLETIC SUPPLIES INC

DISTRIBUTORS OF

Rawlings • Nike • Wilson • CCM • Avia • Pony • Adidas • Sand Knit • Bauer • Mizuno • Diadora • Mitra • Asics • Converse • Micron

377 Main Street, Amherst • 253-3973



We Design Intramural Team Shirts & Jerseys

GREAT BURGERS HOTDOGS SHAKES DRAGONETTES

2 BURGS 2 BUCKS

QUARTER POUND BURGERS

100 % FRESH LEAN GROUND BEEF

585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY

Pearl Street Nightclub

THE AREA'S BIGGEST & BEST DANCE CLUB

THURSDAY & FRIDAY IT'S THE 2-DAY PARTY ZONE!

THURSDAY, 18+

Party to the latest in Hip Hop sounds with DJ DENNIS and get Free Admission coupon to party on Friday night

FRIDAY, 21+ TOP DANCE PARTY with DJ PETE D.

Drink Specials & Give-Aways every week! Plus in September – Free Admission with College I.D. or coupon from Thursday's Dance Party.

THE PARTY CONTINUES. . .

SATURDAY, 21+ DANCING WITH PETE D.

Eat in Northampton, Bring Your Check And Receive Free Admission

PEARL STREET. . . where you can experience the ultimate in music and high tech light and fog shows.

Proper Dress And I.D. Required • Check The Collegian Every Thursday For Upcoming Live Concerts

10 Pearl Street, Northampton · 584-7771

WELCOME BACK UMASS!!

THE SPOKE

35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass.

Est. 1984, 1st Bar off Campus

A Drinkery To Meet, Relax and Enjoy

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIALS

IMPORTED BEER OF THE MONTH

Heineken or Amstel a mere $2.00 can

DOMESTIC BEER OF THE MONTH

Schlitz a mere $1.50 can

DRINK OF THE WEEK

Pink Lemonade a mere $1.75

(Vodka•Lemon Mix•Cranberry)

Proper ID Required

HALF PRICE TICKETS FOR STUDENTS!

YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO TO NEW YORK TO GET LOST IN YONKERS.

(OR 23 OTHER GREAT SHOWS)

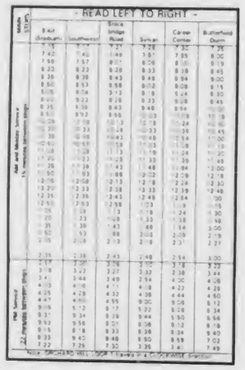
The Fine Arts Center at UMASS in Amherst. Right in your own backyard! Call for your free '93-'94 season brochure.

413-545-2511

TOTAL FITNESS

WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE

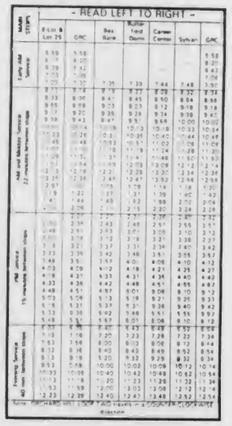
AEROBICS	STRENGTH	CARDIO
Funk	Keiser Air Power	STAIRMASTERS
REEBOK STEP	NAUTILUS	LifeCycles • LifeRower
Hi/Low	Olympic weights	Treadmills • BioCycles
Boxercise	GRAVITRON	Climb Max • NordicTrack
Yoga	The Treadwall	TrueClimb• VersaClimber



SEMESTER SPECIAL

$139 four months

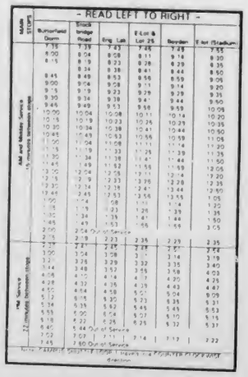
Amherst Athletic Club 460 West St. South Amherst 256-0080



Orchard Hill Loop 1

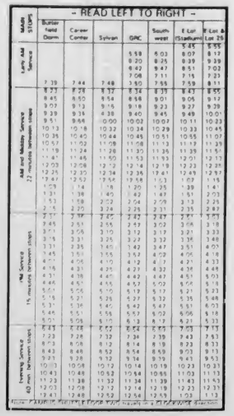
From Stadium and Southwest Area to Central, Orchard Hill, and Sylvan

Orchard Hill Loop 2



From Lot 25 and GRC to Central, Orchard Hill and Sylvan

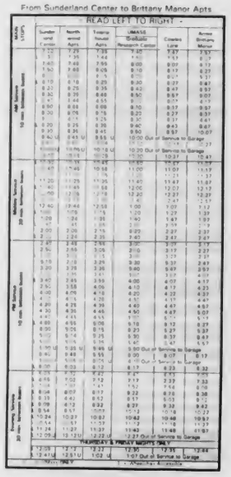
Lost and found, suggestions and complaints should be directed to the UMTS Business Office at 545-0056.



Campus Shuttle Loop 1

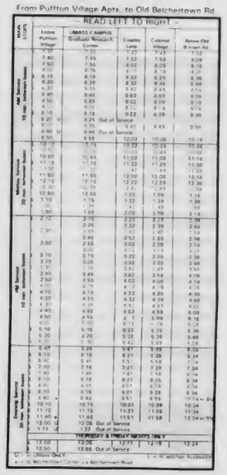
From Central, Orchard Hill, and Sylvan to Southwest Area and Stadium

Campus Shuttle Loop 2



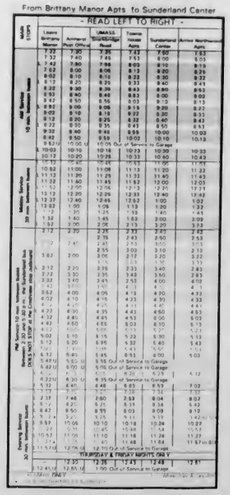
From Orchard Hill and Sylvan to Southwest and Lot 25

Schedule Info: 586-5086
Info for the Deaf – 545-2086



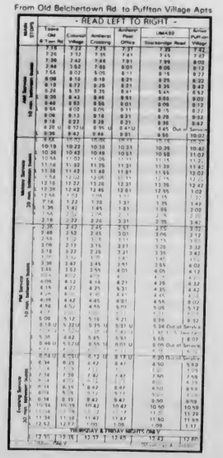
Southbound 330 – South Amherst

From Sunderland Center to Brittany Manor Apts



Southbound 320 – Belchertown Road

From Putnam Village Apts. to Old Belchertown Rd.



Northbound 380 – Sunderland

From Brittany Manor Apts. to Sunderland Center

Northbound 360 – North Amherst

From Old Belchertown Rd. to Putnam Village Apts

You're Back!

WELCOME

Kevin's Auto Repair

Invites students and faculty to avail themselves of our services. Free towing to our shop is available to all in the five college area. We provide complete repair and rebuilding services in addition to a line of select used cars and full autobody repair and restoration.

586-9336

If you wish to receive our useful and informative newsletter called "Is Your Car Sick" please mail this advertisement to

Kevin's Auto Repair

Railroad Street, Hadley, Ma. 01035

Or Call: 586-9336

IF YOU AIN'T ATE AT

DOROTHY AND LEEROY'S ALSO

YOU JUST AIN'T ATE!

Welcome Back Students!

BRING IN THIS AD TO GET $1.00 OFF YOUR DINNER!

Create Your Own Sandwich!

Everything Homemade!

Vegetarian Dishes

Sweet Potato Pie

Fried and Baked Chicken

Smothered Pork Chops

Chicken Fried Steak

BBQ Beef

Seafood

Meatloaf

Peach Cobbler

Rt. 9 Near Pizza Hut 256-0118

CLIFF APARTMENTS

248 Amherst Rd.

Sunderland, MA 01375

(413)665-3958

office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2

- Eff., 1, 2, &3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $420 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

MULLINS CENTER

University of Massachusetts Amherst

For your entertainment, we offer...

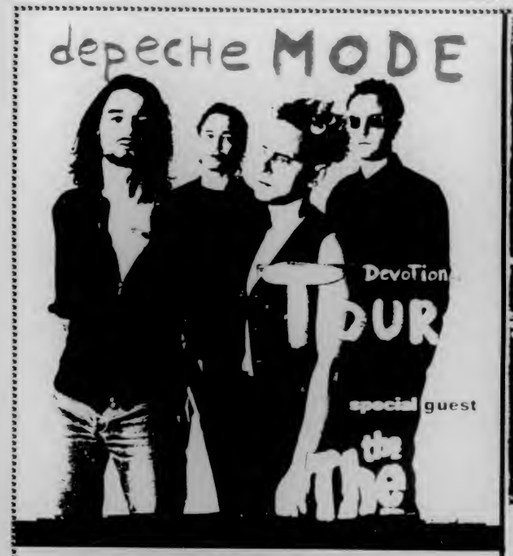
Music

Depeche Mode
in Concert
September 11
7:30 pm

Aerosmith
in Concert
September 21
7:30 pm

Sports

Boston Bruins
Black & White Game*
September 18 @ 7:30 pm
'12.25 & '8.25



Hartford Whalers
vs.
New York Islanders Exhibition Game*
September 24 @ 7:30 pm
Ticket Prices To Be Announced

Geography
Direct from Scotland
Royal Regiments on Parade*
September 25 @ 7:30 pm
'18.25 & '15.25

Campus Affairs
Conference on Multiculturalism & Diversity
Keynote Speaker: Bill Cosby
September 25 @ 8:00 pm • Free Admission with ticket

Round out your experience at the Mullins Center!
* UMass Student Discount Available at Box Office Only • Discount for Children 12 & Under

Budweiser
CONCERT SERIES

SAT • SEPTEMBER 11 • 7:30PM

SEPTEMBER 21 • 7:30PM

PROUD TO BE YOUR BUD.

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst

TICKETS ON SALE NOW!
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER
BOX OFFICE (413) 545-0505,
AND AT ALL TICKETMASTER OUTLETS INCLUDING
FILENE'S, MOVIES & MORE, B.D. MUSIC, VIDEO PARADISE
CALL - FOR -TIX
(413) 733-2500 • (617) 931-2000
EVENT DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE

PRODUCED BY JIM KOPLIK/ SHELLY FINKEL/ JOHN SCHER/ METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT

Holly Hockenbrock of the UMass field hockey team

Football returns to build on last year's success

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

If you have a copy of the University of Massachusetts football team's schedule, throw it away. It's wrong.

The Minutemen are not going to Ireland. More surprisingly, they don't really care.

Almost to a man, players will tell you they would prefer to do their travelling in the postseason. Going to Samford or Marshall may not seem as exotic as the Emerald Isle, but those are where the roads to a championship traditionally go through.

And Huntington, West Virginia? Ireland may have shamrocks, potatoes and Guinness Stout, but Huntington is home to the NCAA Division I-AA Championship this year.

"Upperclassmen came in yesterday, and I haven't heard a word about [Ireland]," head coach Mike Hodges told reporters two weeks ago. "Bottom line is, we have seven home games, and no one is more important than the other."

UMass was supposed to battle the University of Rhode Island in Killarney, Ireland in what was termed the "Emerald Isle Classsic." The game, scheduled for October 9, was cancelled and moved to Amherst. Promotors exercised an option in the contract terminating because a financial success could not be guaranteed.

"I really don't care, personally," said linebacker Mario Perry. "Guys won't be looking ahead because it's just another game on the schedule."

"Actually, I'm glad we're not going. It would have been nice to go over there to Ireland just for the experience of it, but the whole fact kind of worried me because that's what I think a lot of guys were thinking of," said LB Scott Assencoa. "Now, everybody's more focused on the games ahead, one game at a time."

With the team safely stuck in the U.S.A., UMass coaches can worry about other things, like the team's play, for instance.

Inside the football office, guarded optimism abounds, as the players and coaches prepare to make the 1993 campaign even more successful than last year.

While the Minutemen return 17 starters from last season's 7-3 team, the team wants to defend against what may be its biggest enemy: complacency.

With second-year head coach Hodges at the helm, it is not likely UMass will be complacent, yet Hodges said he hopes that his team is consistent.

"You've seen UMass football, and for the last few years it's been up and down, up and down. We're working very hard to make our kids remember what it was that won seven footbal games last year, and that was that they worked very hard," Hodges said.

"Defensively, we've got some holes to fill. We've graduated two inside linebackers that were excellent players (Phil Lartigue and Bobby Burke) and John Creamer, a defensive tackle. That's right up the middle and when you lose those three guys in the middle and a great athlete, a consensus All-American in Don Caparotti, you've got some places to fill."

Defense is the cornerstone of UMass football. The cornerstone of the defense is senior outside linebacker Mario Perry, who is the best NFL prospect UMass has had in years.

Perry's intensity is best seen in his fierce pass rush, where he will flatten, throw aside or hurdle any blocker who gets in his way. His view of the upcoming season is typical of his teammates.

"We want to win. We want to win as a team, we want to win the Yankee Conference and we want to win a National Championship," Perry said. "Me personally, I could care less about awards, I just want to go out there and do my job."

Perry's job last year included forcing five fumbles, fifteen sacks, and 68 tackles en route to being named first team All-Yankee Conference.

On the other side of the field at linebacker is Scott Assencoa, a three-year starter who had nine sacks last year and is as solid, if not as spectacular as Perry.

COURTESY UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior safety and co-captain Matt Rajotte, seen here picking off a pass last season, and the rest of the Minuteman football team open the season on Sunday against Holy Cross at McGuirk.

Assencoa's play on the right side along with Perry's on the left has effectively shut down the opposition's outside run for some time, but as Hodges said, they still need strength up the middle.

Possible middle linebacker candidates include juniors Phil Curtin and Majette Tynes, although Hodges said sophomore Trejo Rust is also coming on.

Although the linebacking corps looks solid, the team must also replace holes on the defensive line and the secondary. On the line, defensive end Brian Corcoran will anchor the left side. Corcoran had 82 tackles last year, and his outstanding play against Richmond won him the Coca Cola Gold Helmet Award and the ECAC Player of the Week honor.

The rest of the line is shaky, with a lot depending on left tackle Ben Albert's knees. Albert had 54 tackles and is another great run stopper, but he had two off-season surgeries on his knees and did not participate in spring practice. He appears ready to go.

This year, the Minutemen will play with two tackles in a 4-3 scheme, so Silas Burke, David Dakin and John

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 14

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE
338 COLLEGE ST.
253-5384/256-8433
ONE MILE EAST OF AMHERST CENTER ON RT.9
OPEN 9 AM - 11 PM
VISA/MASTERCARD/DISCOVER ACCEPTED

Over 450 Different Beers
– Over 40 new beers arrived this summer, more coming!
We Welcome Any Quantity of Returnable Bottles or Cans in our Recycling Haus

• Largest selection of kegs in New England: Domestic, Imports and Micro Brews always in stock.
• Premium Beer Balls now available!
• In a Hurry, We've Doubled our Chilled Beer, Wine, and Juice Department. Fast in, fast out!

Busch Suitcase $10.99
Meister Braü 12-pack cans ..... $3.99 reg. + Light
Miller Lite 16oz cans ..... $4.70 six, $13.99 case
Rolling Rock 12-pack bottles $6.99
Bud Dry Bar Bottles ..... case $11.99
Miller Genuine Draft & Light Exports ..... $11.49 case
Golden Anniversary 16oz. Bar Bottles ..... $9.99 case
Catamount Trio & Post Road ..... $4.69 six mix-and-match a case $17.99
Pilsner Urquell 6-pack bottles $5.69
Gilde Pilsner 6-pack bottles ..... $4.69 six, $17.99 case
Watneys Red Barrel 6-pack bottles $6.69
Coca-Cola 6 pack cans $1.99

• Over 20 Wheat Beers in stock
• Look for Octoberfest Beers soon! We will have the largest selection in the area. Brett Weir shops here too!

Gordon's Vodka 80 proof ..... 1.75L $11.99.
& Pepper Vodka ..... (Killer Bloody Mary) 1L $5.99
Poland Springs Vodka 1.74L $8.99
Fleischman's Vodka 750ml $5.99
Luksusowa Vodka 1.75ml $18.99
Jack Daniel's 750ml $12.99
Southern Comfort 750ml $8.99
Mad Dog 20/20 ..... 750ml all flavors $1.99
Franzia Wine "bag in a box" Chablis and Burgandy ..... 5 Ltr $8.99

LOTTERY Headquarters
Beers from around the world!
Imports • Gourmet • Microbreweries
Kegs starting at $33.00
(checks/Mastercard/Visa/Discover accepted for Keg Deposits)
Malt Scotchs • Cognacs • Brandies • Champagnes

Yankee Conference expands

Delaware looks to repeat, UM looks to leave for I-A

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Just when the party known as the Yankee Conference was starting to get interesting, the University of Massachusetts had to go and spoil it.

The 1993 YanCon season begins on September 11, with three new toms arriving (Northeastern, William and Mary and James Madison University) and national semifinalist University of Delaware attempting to repeat as conference champs, but UMass' "Don't pour the coffee, we're not staying" decree has not gone over too well at YanCon headquarters.

In other words, the Minutemen are counting the seconds until they move up to Division I-A (see accompanying story), and there will be no tearful good-byes in Amherst when it happens.

Until then, UMass will have to fight to earn its 18th YanCon title, and the fight appears to be an uphill one. Four teams, Delaware, Richmond, William and Mary and Villanova, were ranked ahead of the Minutemen in the preseason YanCon poll, and all were nationally ranked.

Because of size, the YanCon has split into two divisions. UMass, University of Connecticut, University of Maine, University of Rhode Island, University of New Hampshire and Boston University make up the New England Division.

In the Mid-Atlantic Division are Villanova University, University of Delaware, University of Richmond, Northeastern University, James Madison University and the College of William and Mary. The winner of the YanCon receives an automatic bid to the Division I-AA playoffs.

Clearly, the Minutemen will have their work cut out if they wish to return to the playoffs for the first time since 1990. The following is a synopsis of the Yankee Conference, in the Collegian's predicted order of finish:

University of Delaware (11-3, 7-1 YanCon, NCAA semifinalist in 1992): What can you say to a team which returns 1,500 yards of rushing and 1,300 receiving yards on offense and a Kodak All-American on defense?

Go to the head of the class.

The biggest blow the Blue Hens (preseaon No. 5 in the country) took was with the graduation of four-year starting quarterback Bill Vergantino. Vergantino threw for over 200 yards per game and led Delaware to its third YanCon title in five years. Senior Dale Fry and redshirt freshman Leo Hamlett vie for the starting QB job.

Even with a new signal caller, the Blue Hens have a number of experienced offensive threats. Junior fullback Daryl Brown rushed for 909 yards, third in the YanCon, and halfback Lanue Johnson ran for 606 more.

At receiver, senior Dan Johnson caught 38 passes for 665 yards, and both Johnson (21.3 yards per catch) and Brown (17.3 average) served as threats as well.

No wonder Delaware was the first YanCon team in seven years to advance past the first round in the I-AA playoffs; they were able to score, like the traditionally strong teams of the South.

On defense, six starters and 22 lettermen return, including defensive end Matt Morrill, a Kodak All-America and Associated Press third-team All-America last year. Morrill opens the 1993 season with 45 career sacks, five shy of the school record.

Coach Tubby Raymond has built as close to a football dynasty as you can have in the YanCon, and his affinity for his alma mater, Michigan, is seen on the Blue Hens uniforms. They wear the same helmets as the Wolverines.

College of William and Mary (9-2, first year in YanCon): This year marks the 300th year of the College of William and Mary's existence, its 100th of football and its first in the Yankee Conference. A little tradition never hurt anyone.

The Tribe has a football tradition of losing two or three games each year, one to a Division I school (last year they were blown out by Virginia), cruise into the I-AA playoffs, win a game or two and finish in the top 20. This year should be no different, as the Tribe were ranked No. 15 in the preseason.

Quarterback Shawn Knight finished his first season as a starter as the sixth-rated passer in the country. What Knight lacks in size (he's listed at 5-foot-10) he makes up for with ability. He was also drafted by the Chicago Cubs in June.

Tailback Derek Fitzgerald gained 835 yards on the ground his freshman year, which was good enough to win ECAC Rookie of the Year. At receiver, split end Corey Ludwig (506 yards) and Mike Tomlin (560) give the Tribe a solid air threat. Both started all 11 games last year.

On the line, offensive guard Tom Walters is the anchor, and the Tribe return three other starters.

The weak spot for William and Mary, like most southern I-AA teams, is defense. Only five starters remain from last year's squad, including only one member of the secondary, cornerback Marc Richards.

Instead of playing in the I-AA playoffs last season, William and Mary flew to Tokyo for the 1993 Epson Ivy Bowl against Nihon University, a 35-19 win. Look for head coach Jimmye Laycock and company to be hungry for a return trip to the playoffs.

University of Richmond (7-4, 5-3 YanCon): The Spiders are another southern team with enough offensive firepower to blow the opposition off the field. While not overly impressive in the conference, Richmond was the only YanCon team to defeat Delaware last season.

Richmond fans will find it impossible to look at the Spider offense and not be optimistic. Nine starters return, with QB Greg Lilly first and foremost.

Lilly, a senior co-captain, passed for 2,704 yards and 19 TDs last year, breaking Richmond records in both categories. He had four games of over 300 yards passing, and was named YanCon Offensive Player of the Year.

Lilly's favorite target for years now has been wide receiver Rod Boothes, a third-team AP All-America last year. Boothes averaged 23.7 yards per catch in 1992, and was fourth in the country in yards per game. His 1,115 receiving yards were a school record.

When Richmond decides to go to the ground attack, they have an outstanding tailback in Lily Scott. Scott, a junior, had a spectacular season as a sophomore, carrrying for 1,318 yards in 11 contests. He had eight 100-yard games and a school-record 13 TDs last year.

The Spiders return eight defensive starters, including their entire secondary. Free safety Maurice Glenn is the defense's quarterback, handling most of the reads and adjustments. His 126 tackles led Richmond last year. Left tackle Matt Joyce is the only returning lineman.

The Spiders have a great home field advantage in 22,611 seat Richmond Stadium, but three road games at UMass, Delaware and William and Mary may throw a wrench in Richmond's postseason hopes.

University of Massachusetts: see accompanying preview.

Turn to YANCON, page 16

New commitment for UMass football

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The irony is so bitter you can almost taste it.

About nineteen months ago, one of the greatest head coaches in University of Massachusetts football history quit because he finally could not take the Mickey Mouse operation that was the UMass athletic department.

It seems like ages ago, but in February 1992, Jim Reid resigned because his integrity would not allow him to rescind on offers of full scholarships to recruits. Former chancellor Richard O'Brien had cut scholarships out of the budget without telling Reid, a man who won three conference titles in five years despite persistent cuts.

Fast forward to the University at present, where the catch phrase of athletic director Bob Marcum is, "We're building a first class program here." The new chancellor, David Scott, was formerly at Michigan State, an institution which takes its annual football battle with instate foe Michigan more seriously than just about anything else.

The new UMass president, Michael Hooker, is seen at football media day in a maroon "UMass football" golf shirt, shooting the breeze with second-year head coach Mike Hodges and proclaiming to reporters, "We've made the decision. We're going to go [Division] I-A. It's not a question of if. It's a question of when. We're definitely on the way up to I-A."

Hodges is the man who replaced Reid after six seasons as Reid's assistant coach. Hodges is the man who took over less than five months before his team's first game and led them to an overacheiving 7-3 finish. Hodges is the man, who, with a little luck, will someday soon be the first Division I-A football coach at the University of Massachusetts.

And Reid? Reid is still in the Yankee Conference, as an assistant head coach/defensive coordinator at the University of Richmond. Reid was the man who kept pushing for an increased commitment, whose pleas fell on deaf ears just 15 months ago.

The commitment to UMass football is here now, bigger than ever. It's ironic that the man

Turn to COMMITMENT, page 12

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Gordons Vodka $11.49 1.75 L
Miller "Lite" 16 oz. cans
Sale $12.49 Case Final Cost $9.49 After $3 Mfg. Discount
(Quantity Discounts Available)
BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT $9.99 case cans
Stoli 80 $11.99 750ml
American Beer $7.29 case
$6.99 (10 cases or more) WOW!!
Catamount (your choice)
$4.99 6 pk (includes Octoberfest)
Beer Balls (Your Choice $19.99)
Fetzer Sundial Chardonnay $4.99 750 ml
Fosters Bots $14.99 case
Pete's Ale $20.49 case
Visa/Mastercard accepted on keg deposits
Many More In-Store Specials
(especially on wines)
All Beers plus Deposit
Delivery Available

What Do Aerobics And Strength Training Have In Common?

• Nautilus
• Free Weights
• Aerobics Classes
• Step Classes
• Stairmasters
• Lifecycles
• Recumbant Bikes
• Crossrobics
• Quinton Treadmill
• Rowing Machine
• Saunas
• Student Discounts

Northampton Nautilus
216 N. King St. • Northampton
584-4975
Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm
Sat. 8am-5pm • Sun. 9am-4pm

UMass sends four players to Festival

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Senior co-captain Tara Jelley and three of her UMass teammates took part in the United States Olympic Festival earlier this summer in San Antonio, Texas.

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

When you play well and your team is competitive nationally, you get noticed. Three veterans of the University of Massachusetts field hockey team learned that as they were recognized for their outstanding play last year and selected to participate in the 1993 United States Olympic Festival, held July 18-29 in San Antonio, Texas.

Senior co-captains Holly Hockenbrock and Tara Jelley, along with senior All-American candidate Jenn Salisbury all competed in the prestigious event. Also representing UMass were incoming freshman Kyle Rothenberger and assistant coach Karen Marley.

Jelley and Salisbury competed in the 1991 Olympic Festival in Los Angeles, Calif., as well, but found this year's experience more rewarding.

"Instead of me being one of the youngest at the festival, I was one of the oldest," Salisbury said. "It gave me more of a chance to gain leadership qualities."

The advantage of playing with familiar faces was not present because all four of the players competed for different squads: Jelley played for the gold-medal winning West team; Hockenbrock for the East; Salisbury for the North; and Rothenberger for the South. Marley was an assistant for Hockenbrock's team.

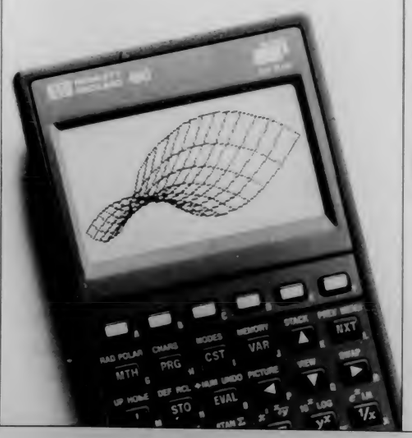
Rothenberger said competing at the Festival helped ease her transition from high school field hockey to a Division I program.

"It just gave me experience of playing with other college players," Rothenberger said. "The competition level was much higher than what I had experienced in high school."

While the players said the games were hard-tought and well-played, they also said the emphasis was not as much on winning as it was on just going out and having fun while competing.

"It's more like a reward for all the hard work you've done to get there," said Jelley. "Although it's very competitive, it's more of a laid back atmosphere. It's not really hard-nosed like college."

"You have the opportunity to meet different players from other teams and become friends with them," Hockenbrock said. "A couple of us went to Sea World and we were able to see the sights. I had a great time."



How will their experience this summer help them when the Minutewomen take the field to begin their 1993 season Sept. 4 against Northwestern University?

"I've played a forward position all my life and when I went to the Festival I had to take a defensive role to help out the younger kids," Salisbury said. "Now coming back to UMass I'm going to take a different role."

"We've got so many younger kids, I'm

Turn to FESTIVAL, page 11

The new 3-D graphing grade-making easy-learning fast-answering budget-pleasing headache-busting HP 48G

Check it out
The new HP 48G graphic calculator gives you a whole lot more for a whole lot less than you think.

Get more
- Push a button, choose from the pull-down menu, and fill in the blanks. Entering data is that easy.
- View 3-D graphs.
- Access over 300 built-in equations.
- Perform algebra and calculus operations on equations before entering values.
- Enter and see equations like they appear on paper.
- Work with different units of measure. The HP 48G will convert them for you. For example, enter inches, centimeters, yards, and feet, together in one equation — it'll convert them.

Get more ... for less
- Compare prices — the HP 48G fits your budget.

Special introductory offer*
When you buy an HP 48G or HP 48GX, you can get free software (plus games!) and a free cable for connecting to your desktop PC. Write programs for the HP 48 using your PC keyboard, or store HP 48 files and programs on your desktop PC.

Pick up a coupon at your college bookstore.

HEWLETT PACKARD

*Offer good while supplies last on purchases made from August 1, 1993 through October 31, 1993. See coupon for terms and conditions.
Hewlett-Packard Company PC-12906B

THIS SPACE FOR RENT

Collegian Advertising.

Reach over 19,000 students daily.

Call 545-3500 for rates and information.

Collegian Advertising Works.

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact Step Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Field hockey forgets the past, focuses on '93

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

While University of Massachusetts field hockey fans are still abuzz over last year's trip to the Final Four, it is back to business as usual for head coach Pam Hixon and the Minutewomen as they prepare for the upcoming season.

Despite losing some of last year's key players to graduation, UMass still looks to be a national power. The NCAA pre-season poll has the Minutewomen checking in at number eight.

Hixon said the team has come back in shape, and she is pleased at what she has seen so far.

"They've been on a conditioning program all summer," Hixon said. "I feel these kids are in a very good position to be fit."

Senior tri-captains Tara Jelley, Holly Hockenbrock and Tracy Barclay will provide the bulk of the leadership.

"You have to have confidence in everyone around you, so we all have to be leaders," Hixon said.

The UMass offense looks to be a strong point with last season's front line of Jelley (6 goals, 4 assists), senior All-American candidate Jenn Salisbury (12 goals, 21 assists), and junior Danielle Borges (6 goals, 3 assists) remaining intact. Freshman speedster Rachel Doherty will help pick up some of the scoring load as well.

The Minutewomen will field a talented but somewhat untested defense this season.

"We're very fast but inexperienced on defense," said Hixon. "Right now we're concentrating on finding th right group of defenders to fit in together."

Hixon will look to Barclay, a four-year starter, to be a leader on defense. Junior sweeper Natalie Hart will be counted on for big contributions as well.

"Natalie has such stature, such a dominant presence on the field," said Hixon. "She has to play to her size and be our enforcer."

At the midfielder positions, Hockenbrock and junior Colleen Duffy will be called on to play important roles. Hixon has also tossed around the idea of moving Salisbury back to center-midfielder to fill out the line.

With the graduation of goaltenders Philippa Scott and Tina Rusiecki, the position is open. Redshirt freshman Stacy Walker and freshman Hilary Rose, who spent the summer playing for Great Britain's under 21 national team, will be competing for the starting spot.

"Certainly with Stacy's improvement and Hilary's experience, we'll be very strong in goal," said Hixon.

Four Minutewomen participated at this summer's Olympic Festival at San Antonio, Texas. Salisbury, Hockenbrock and Jelley, along with highly touted freshman Kyle Rothenberger, all played well at the event.

"They were all ranked among the best players on their teams," remarked Hixon.

UMass assistant coach Karen Marley was also an assistant on Hockenbrock's team.

Rothenberger, who is from Boyertown, Pa., will be expected to play a big role in her rookie season.

"Kyle Rothenberger is going to be excellent. She came in fit and strong. She's a very talented and smart player," said Hixon. "I think Kyle will definitely fill one of those defensive spots."

The Minutewomen have a tough schedule from beginning to end, facing nine teams ranked in the top 20. They renew rivalries with New England powerhouses Boston College, University of Connecticut, University of New Hampshire, Providence College, Boston University and Northeastern for a chance to go to the NCAA Tournament.

"You need to be the number one team in your region to get into the tournament," said Hixon. "We really need to play our best against these teams."

Highlighting the schedule is an Oct. 2 match-up against top-ranked Old Dominion, the two-time defending NCAA champion.

A road trip to play highly-ranked Duke and North Carolina looms large to close out the regular season.

"The trip down there will be a good experience for the team heading into the post-season," Hixon said.

Hixon doesn't think the fact that UMass plays on a grass field, when many schools play on turf, will be an advantage or a disadvantage.

"Sometimes the bumps go for you. Sometimes the bumps go against you. We have to play an up-tempo style that suits both surfaces," Hixon said.

Hixon scoffs at the notion that the pressure is on the Minutewomen.

"Pressure is perceived. Last season ended on the last day of last season," she said. "This is a new team and a new season."

"We're going to function one day at a time," Hixon said. "We have to keep our wits and stay on an even level — don't get too high, don't get too low."

Chemistry is always an important factor on any successful team, and in the early going it seems to be a strength for the Minutewomen.

"They seem to be coming together, finding and accepting their roles," she said.

Hixon said she expects good things from the 1993 squad.

"These kids are competitive. They understand what it takes to win and are all smart players. If we can stay healthy, we'll do just fine."

■ basketball

continued from page 13

Amherst to hit the books as well as the weights this semester.

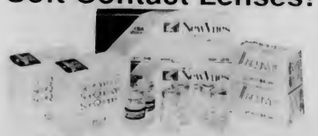
Freshmen Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso, the tandem that fills out the rest of the new cast, should add depth to the backcourt of Derek Kellogg and Mike Williams. Travieso is a sharpshooter, and Padilla is expected to get minutes at the point.

• Calipari and company will air on ABC nationally twice this season against two rivals: Kentucky at the Meadowlands in New Jersey on Feb. 6, and a week later against Temple in Mullins Center.

The Kentucky contest is a rematch of two years ago when UMass grad Rick Pitino's Wildcats put an end to the Cinderella season of the Minutemen by knocking them out of the round of 16 in the NCAA tournament.

Florida State comes to town on Feb. 3, looking to defeat the Minutemen for the second straight year.

Seminole guard Bob Sura, a teammate of Lou Roe's on the Foot Locker/NIT summer squad, and Mike Williams of UMass put on a scoring clinic as they battled down to the wire of the FSU victory in Tallahassee.



Road trips to Oklahoma, Cincinnati and De Paul continue the trend of rematches for the Minutemen. It is the third year in a row that UMass will play the Sooners and head coach Billy Tubbs. The teams have split the last two games.

Midnight at Mullins is the theme Feb. 18 as UMass will take the court against Manhattan College for a contest on ESPN. It will be the first ever midnight game at Mullins Center.

Speaking of midnight, the Madness returns this year on Halloween for another first in Mullins Center: the first practice of the year for the Minutemen.

• Bausch & Lomb • Ciba Vision • Cooper Vision
• Barnes-Hind • American Hydron • Johnson & Johnson

SAVE
On Replacement Soft Contact Lenses!

Everything you want in replacement soft lenses. Even fashion tints!
Ask our Pharmacist about Contact Replacements-Check our Low Prices!
SeeQuence, NewVues or Acuvue
1 FREE lens with 6, $22 3 FREE lenses with 12, $44
Most Contact Lenses Available in 48 Hours
Walgreens The Pharmacy America Trusts

Welcome Back to School Sale
The Club
Save $30 OFF of Any Student Membership
Buy Now & Pay $130/Semester, $210/Year
Offer Expires Sept. 30, 1993
• 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
• 2 Racquetball Courts
• Cardiovascular Machines
• On Bus Route
• Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
• Unlimited Aerobics
• Child Care
659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

KLEIN'S ALL SPORTS WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD!
ANNUAL EARLY BIRD SKI SALE
10 DAYS ONLY SEPT. 16 THRU SEPT. 26
UP TO 50% OFF

INTRODUCING THE NEW ROSSIGNOL 7SK!
COLUMBIA Bug-A-Boo $99.99
93 NORDICA N127 Kids Boots $69.99 Reg. $125
SALOMON 557-90 BINDINGS $79.99 Ski Only. Reg. 125
RAICHLE RE 192 Mens & Ladies $99.99
COMPLETE SKI PACKAGE WITH BOOTS
ELAN 665 ONLY $279.99
K2 R5000 ONLY $309.99
DYNASTAR TXP ONLY $309.99
ROSSIGNOL ONLY $309.99
FREE LAY-A-WAY!
INCLUDES: NORDICA B10.40 OR RAICHLE 102, SALOMON 557 BINDINGS, POLES AND MOUNT
NEW KIDS Complete Elan Ski Package with Boots! $179.99
NEW K-2 HC 161 Snow Board with Bindings $399.99
W/COUPON Full Ski Tune-Up with Binding Insp. $14.99 Reg. 125 Expires Oct. 31, 1993
LET US CUSTOM FIT A SKI BOOT TO YOUR SKIING NEEDS, ALL ON SALE WITH GREATER SAVINGS WHEN PURCHASED WITH A SKI PACKAGE
CROSS COUNTRY PACKAGES
WORLD-CUP TOURING NO-WAX COMPLETE $89.99
ROSSIGNOL ADVANTAGE NO WAX COMPLETE $119.99
FISCHER LITE CROWN NO-WAX COMPLETE $129.99
ALL SKI CLOTHING 20% - 50% OFF
THOUSANDS OF ITEMS ON SALE!
GLOVES, HATS, MITTENS, SWEATERS, LONG UNDERWEAR, PARKAS, PANTS, GOGGLES, SOCKS, ETC.
KLEIN'S
WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD
HAMPSHIRE MALL, HADLEY 585-0470
BERKSHIRE MALL, LANESBORO 443-3531

Minutewomen on the way up

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team must be thinking only good thoughts heading into the 1993-94 season after recording the program's best record (11-15) since 1988-89.

Head coach Joanie O'Brien's team returns four starters to this season's squad, led by 1993 ECAC Rookie of the Year Melissa Gurile and 1993 Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Year Octavia Thomas.

"I think last year was one of improvements. We started out slow in the sense of our record but not in the sense of what we were trying to accomplish," said O'Brien.

"We finished up the year very strong . . . In November they picked us to finish last in the A-10. I think that gave our kids a little incentive to show that we were better than last," she said.

The Minutewomen finished in fifth place, one game behind West Virginia, with a 6-8 record.

• Heading into this season, UMass faces a tough schedule, consisting of at least two games, possibly three, against final Four teams of a year ago.

On Jan. 2, the Minutewomen host Vanderbilt, a perennial top-five team in women's basketball. The contest between the Lady Commodores and UMass is the first of two women's games that will be held at the William D. Mullins Center.

Vermont, a team that has posted undefeated records over the last two regular seasons will be the opponent at the Minutewomen in the other Mullins game.

UMass travels to Columbus, Ohio, on Nov. 28 for its season opener against Ohio State.

In a tournament at St. Peter's College in New Jersey, the Minutewomen may face Texas Tech, the 1993 NCAA National Champion.

• The Minutewomen lost one starter from last year's squad, small forward Kim Kristofik, who averaged 13.8 points and 6.4 rebounds per game.

O'Brien said she will look to the freshmen to fill the scoring void left by graduation, but it is the consistency of Kristofik that will be missed.

"She [Kristofik] was consistent; you could pretty much count on her for about 12 points and eight rebounds a game," said O'Brien. "That's the hardest part to fill in: the consistency."

Of the four starters left, Gurile, a 6-foot-3-inch center from Pataskala, Ohio, was a 1992-93 Street and Smith Honorable Mention All-America selection and averaged 14.0 points and 8.3 rebounds per game.

A freshman, Crystal Carroll, is expected to get quality minutes at the power forward slot, according to O'Brien.

"It is putting a lot of pressure on Crystal to expect her to step in and fill Kim Kristofik's spot, but I feel she can do it," said O'Brien. "She may not be as consistent, but she has the physical capabilities to be as good if not better than Kim very quickly."

At the small forward position, Thomas will be counted on to continue her consistent play, along with senior Maleeka Valentine, who is a great defensive star.

Sophomore Tricia Hopson returns at the point to lead the Minutewomen. She led the team last season with 101 assists and according to O'Brien, is the key to the team's success.

• O'Brien said the Minutewomen will utilize their three-point shooters, sophomore Kim Gregory and freshman Beth Kuzmeski from Northampton, Mass., more than in past seasons.

UMass had the fewest three-point attempts last season in the Atlantic 10.

"If I can get Beth on one side [of the three-point arc] and Kim Gregory on the other side, then we're going to be able to spread people out and open it up for our inside players," said O'Brien.

COURTESY UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Sophomore forward Octavia Thomas of the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team powers inside in a game last season against Temple University.

Attention all interested sports writers:

There will be a meeting tomorrow night at 7 p.m. sharp in the Collegian offices.

We're located in the Campus Center Basement on the opposite side of the bank machines.

Some beats are still open for fall sports, so come on down and hang with Brett Weir, Frank Rizzo and Mike Morrissey. No experience is necessary.

Don't miss out on your chance at greatness.

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, THIS GUY IS IN CLASS.

Excitement and adventure is the course description, and Army ROTC is the name. It's the one college elective that builds your self-confidence, develops your leadership potential and helps you take on the challenges of command.

There's no obligation until your junior year, and that means there's no reason not to try it out right now.

ARMY ROTC

THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE.

For More Information
Contact Captain Hedly, 545-2321

The biggest surprise is how little it costs.

Weight loss and maintenance vary by individual

12 Weeks of Program Service
And
$110.00 in Free Food Coupons
For $51.00
Call Today 586-8111

137A Damon Rd. Northampton
Nutri/Systems Foods Additional
Offer Expires Sept. 15, 1993

Hockey opens in October; head coach prepares

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

You may have noticed traces of it in the last six months: eight-year-olds with sticks bigger than their bodies walking into the William D. Mullins Center, students going to classes with Bauer skates slung over their shoulders, or the first intramural tournament ever held on campus.

You may have noticed: hockey has arrived at the University of Massachusetts.

Since the opening of the Mullins Center in February, one man has frantically been working to put together a Division I hockey team for the fall. His name is Joe Mallen, and his title is head coach.

Mallen's job is to bring hockey back to UMass after a 15-year hiatus, build a Division I team from scratch in two years and turn the team into a nationally competitive program while playing in Hockey East, one of the top conferences in the country.

You may not have noticed: it is not as easy as it sounds.

"For me it's been nothing but hard work. We've got a million details to iron out and take care of," said Mallen, a former assistant at Boston College. "Some nights I've been here until 11 p.m. I've consistently left long after dark, and I come back at 8 a.m.

"The fun part will be to get on the ice and start running practice, the games will be fun, even dry-land conditioning will be fun."

Mallen has tabbed October 5 as the first day of practice, which means between now and then, he and his staff will be getting new recruits settled on campus, recruiting next year's class, and taking care of the business end.

Technically, UMass is a Division I independent this season and does not enter Hockey East until next season. The independent status gives Mallen more freedom to schedule, but may also hinder his recruiting of the best college players in North America. In reality, UMass is a step below the rest of its Hockey East rivals and there may be some ugly games this year.

While the youngsters from the bantam and mite divisions skate around Mullins down below, Mallen sits in his third-floor office preparing for a different type of hockey player, known as the walk-on. He said there may be over 100 players, over 70 of those walk-ons, fighting for 30 roster spots.

"I want to make this very clear — I would love for walk-ons to come in and make our team. I love that. i'm not looking to close practice; on the contrary, I was a walk-on, and so was [assistant coach] Bob Deraney.

Turn to HOCKEY, page 11

NHL and Team USA to play exhibitions at Mullins Center

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

If ice hockey fans in the Pioneer Valley needed anything more to cheer about, the Boston Bruins and the Hartford Whalers from the National Hockey League will each be taking the ice in the William D. Mullins Center early this fall.

When the University of Massachusetts tabbed Joe Mallen as the man that would start up an ice hockey program that had been dead since the 1978-79 season, no one questioned the recruiting power that the Mullins Center, with its top-of-the-line facilities and two Olympic-size rinks, would have.

Now it seems that this optimism was well-deserved, as a professional hockey team will christen the ice come Sept. 18.

The Bruins will hold their annual "Black and White" intrasquad scrimmage away from their training camp headquarters for the first time ever. Net proceeds from this event will be shared by the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association and the Make-a-Wish Foundation.

"This is the first time we've ever taken this game out of our training camp site and we're looking forward to coming up to Amherst," Bruins vice president Nate Greenberg told the Springfield Union-News.

"Once our players get a load of this place they won't want to go back to the Garden."

As for an actual exhibition game, the Whalers will play the New York Islanders on Friday, Sept. 24.

Mallen said having the NHL play in Mullins is an incredible asset to the UMass program, and that the team can only benefit.

"To me, it is an unbelievable positive push for our program," said Mallen. "The Bruins and Whalers don't come and play games at just any college arena."

In addition to the NHL games, the United States Olympic team will host the Russian team on Dec. 1 in Mullins as well.

The Minutemen host Villanova University on Oct. 30 for their home opener at the Mullins Center.

Marshall wins silver medal

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Facing some of the best competition in the world, former University of Massachusetts gymnast Tammy Marshall capped her career in a manner that, for her, was routine. She won a medal.

Marshall, who was selected to the six-woman United States team at the World University Games in Buffalo, garnered a silver medal in the last performance of the night on the floor exercise August 12. Marshall's outstanding routine was just one more in a series of remarkable acheivements for her this summer.

After graduating with a 3.50 grade-point-average in Sport Management, Marshall was named the Atlantic 10 Conference's Female Scholar-Athlete of the Year. To top it off, she was also named to the GTE/CoSIDA Academic All America National At-Large Second Team.

Marshall's floor routine at the Games brought a capacity crowd in Niagara Falls, New York to its feet and had teammates eagerly cheering her on. She earned a 9.612, which fell just short of Ukrainian Lyudmilla Stovbchataya's 9.750 gold-medal performance. Marshall said she didn't mind coming up second best.

"I'm so excited," she said. "I just went out and gave it my all, and I knew I would have a chance at a medal if I hit my routine."

The victory at the Games was especially sweet for the 22-year old Marshall, who has had roadblocks along the way. After suffering a career-threatening knee injury in high school, Marshall opted for UMass, not known for its gymnastics program. Still, she won national championships in both the vault and the floor exercise, in 1992 and 1993, repectively, and was also a member of the World University Games team in 1991.

"It just goes to show you what kind of person Tammy is," said former UMass gymnastics coach Alfie Mitchell. "She was simply awesome out there, competing against the best

Turn to MARSHALL, page 15

Come Clean With Us!!

Speedwash

11 Pray St. Amherst
549-1665

Open 24 hrs.

Drop-off service available:
Mon & Sat 10am-6pm
Tues 2pm-10pm
Wed &Thurs 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm

South Towne Commons Laundromat

479 West St., So. Amherst

Open 7days/week, 7am-10pm

Regular wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

YOU'RE AWAY FROM HOME? NOT SO. WE'LL GIVE YOU HOMEMADE COOKING LIKE YOU NEVER HAD.

KRETE

RESTAURANT • BEER AND WINE

586-8255
FREE DELIVERY.

YOU'VE TRIED ALL THE OTHERS...NOW TRY KRETE AND TASTE THE DIFFERENCE OF HOMEMADE FOOD!!!

Minimum $5.00. Amherst and Hadley Areas Only.

Call For Our Daily Specials.

NEW! GREEK WHITE PIZZA
6 different cheeses
Fresh basil & Fresh garlic. Tomatoes & artichoke hearts
14" MED $8.95
18" LG $13.95
KRETE 586-8255 Exp. 12/31/93

18" LARGE CHEESE PIZZA
$5.99 or two for $10.99
Plus $1.50 for each item
14" MEDIUM CHEESE PIZZA
$3.99
Plus $1.00 for each item
Not combinable with any other offer
KRETE 586-8255 EXP 12/31/93

BUY ANY CALZONE GET THE 2nd 1/2 PRICE!
equal or lesser value
KRETE 586-8255 Exp. 12/31/93

BUY ANY 3 GRINDERS AND GET THE 4th FREE!
OR $.75 OFF ANY GRINDER
KRETE 586-8255 Exp. 12/31/93

EXTRA LARGE PIZZA
"Larger than anybody else"
32 slices
$2.00 off
with 1 item or more
KRETE 586-8255 Exp. 12/31/93

BUY ANY GYRO GET THE 2nd 1/2 PRICE!
equal or lesser value
KRETE 586-8255 Exp. 12/31/93

331 Russell St. Rt. 9 Hadley

What's Cookin'

at the Campus Center/ Student Union

Graduate Student Lounge

READING ROOM

Bluewall Coffee House

Espresso, gourmet coffees, homemade cookies

Mon-Thurs: 11:30 am-12: am;
Fri: 11:30 am-6 pm;
Sat: CLOSED; Sun: 5:00 pm-12:00 am

Bluewall Cafeteria

Pastrami, tabuli ...best sandwiches around

Mon-Fri: 11:30 am-1:30 pm

University Store

Special Hours This Week:

Wed., Sept 8: 9 am-7 pm
Thurs., Sept 9: 9 am-7 pm
Fri., Sept 10: 9 am-5 pm
Sat., Sept 11: 11 am-5 pm

Coffee Shop

The only place to get a full breakfast

Mon-Fri: 7 am-2 pm

Textbook Annex

Our hours this week:

Wed., Sept 8: 9 am-9 pm
Thurs., Sept 9: 9 am-9 pm
Fri., Sept 10: 9 am-5 pm
Sat., Sept 11: 11 am-5 pm

BLDG. SERV.

Campus Center Print Shop

Mon-Thur. 9 am-8:30 pm
Fri: 9 am-5 pm

Desktop Services
Xerox Copying
Offset Printing

US TRAVEL

BARBER SHOP

University Catering Services Dining Room

10th floor

Quickie Lunch

Mon-Fri:
11:30 am-1:30 pm

TOC Restaurant

Dinner Exchange Program

Lunch Served
11:30 am-2 pm
Mon-Fri

Dinner Served
4:30-9 pm, Tues-Sat

11th floor

TOC Lounge

Big screen TV, Sam Adams, munchies

Mon-Sat:
2 pm-
12:30 am

the hatch

Stir fry to order pizza, chicken

Mon-Thur: 11 am-11 pm
Friday: 11 am-9 pm
Sat-Sun: 8 am-9 pm

hatch bar

Pool tables, entertainment

Mon-Thur: 12 pm-12:30 am
Fri: 12-9 pm; Watch for special events
Sat & Sun: Closed

Women booters prepare for new conference

COURTESY UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Stephanie Nicole Roberts and the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team host the University of Rhode Island in its first ever Atlantic 10 game today at 3:30 p.m.

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

For head coach Jim Rudy and his University of Massachusetts women's soccer team, success is a road often travelled. The Minutewomen have only missed the NCAA post-season tournament once since 1980.

This season should be as productive for the Minutewomen, according to Rudy, but will be a lot more challenging.

"To me, this will be the toughest challenge of my career here, mainly because of our schedule," said Rudy. "Even though the tournament field is expanded (from 12 to 16 teams), I think it will be tougher."

Rudy said because those extra four teams will be invited to the post-season, it will keep the fourth, fifth and sixth-best teams in each of the four regions alive until possibly the final weekend of the season.

The perennial top three teams in the Northeast region are Connecticut, Hartford, and UMass. But according to Rudy, anything can happen.

"For the tournament, because of that fourth bid, teams that normally wouldn't have a chance to get in will have that shot," said Rudy. "It makes everyone that much more dangerous."

The Minutewomen will compete this season in the newly-formed Atlantic 10 conference, which is made up of six teams: Temple, George Washington, St. Bonaventure, Rutgers, Rhode Island, and UMass.

Rudy said he is happy to be in the A-10, but he was disappointed the move came so quickly.

"Because of our conference schedule, I had to drop games against Harvard and New Hampshire, which were two of our rivals," Rudy said. "We now have to play at least 20 games over a span in which we would have played 18. It is going to be a slugfest."

In addition to the A-10 schedule and the annual contests against UConn and Hartford, the Minutewomen make a trip to the West Coast to play St. Mary's, Calif., and one of last season's Final Four participants, Santa Clara.

As for the players, UMass loses four starters from the 1992 squad. Kim Eynard and Lisa Mickelson join Carrie Koeper and All-American Holly Helmuth as the quartet which left the Minutewomen.

Eynard scored 13 goals last year, eight of them game-winners.

The entire squad scored 31 goals in 1992; the Minutewomen lose 20 of them entering this year.

Rudy also loses goalkeeper Skye Eddy, who transferred to George Mason. According to Rudy, Eddy left on good terms with the team and cited lack of playing time as a reason for leaving.

"Skye and Bri [Briana Scurry, a senior keeper along with Eddy] were splitting time. It was a tough situation, but now hopefully both of them will play," said Rudy.

Scurry has a chance to be one of the best goalies in the country, according to Rudy, as long as she stays healthy.

The forward line of sophomores Nicole Roberts and Rachel LeDuc and senior Colleen Milliken remains intact and is a strong point for UMass.

With the mix of veterans and the new freshmen that have joined the Minutewomen, Rudy said success is possible.

UMass water polo team seeks redemption, NCAA berth

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

After missing out on a chance to qualify for the NCAA Championships last year by one point, University of Massachusetts water polo head coach Russ Yarworth has his players in the pool working even harder this year hoping to atone for last year's disappointment.

"We were so close last year," Yarworth said. "So the guys know that it is right there for them. That's obviously the goal."

The reigning New England champions were anything but a disappointment however, and with players such as senior co-captains Tsan Engin and Jeremy Aiters returning this year, Yarworth figures to have another strong squad.

"I think T [Engin] can be one of the dominant two-meter men both offensively and defensively in the East this year," Yarworth said. "And Jeremy will be a dominant player with his intelligence and knowledge of the game."

A change in the conference structure has the Minutemen competing in the Northern Division of the East Coast Water Polo Conference this season where they will have to be one of the top four teams in order to qualify for the Eastern Championships, a stepping stone to the NCAAs.

Yarworth said he hopes to take advantage of another change this season. Any shot made beyond the seven-meter mark will now be worth two points, instead of one. Yarworth likens this rule to the three-point line in basketball.

Starters have not yet been determined because Yarworth said he wants everyone starting out even and working as hard as they can for their starting job.

But he said he does have a few players in mind like team and New England League Most Valuable Player Javier Gonzalez, and left-handed shooter Luke Harlan.

"Luke Harlan was our best lefty shooter last year," said Yarworth. "He's certainly a player to watch for. He's a definite threat outside seven meters."

Goalkeeper appears to be a strong position for the Minutemen as well with incumbent Alex Mujica back. Todd Hourihan and Paul Engin (T's brother) are both pushing Mujica for the starting spot in the net.

Yarworth said he is looking for contributions from his freshman class, which he calls the best he's had at UMass.

"Ron Gonen is an excellent left-handed shooter," Yarworth said. "Dumrul Alcici has loads of experience and Greg Menton and Gary Spremullo should help replace the speed we lost with the graduation of our seniors."

Antonios

31 North Pleasant St.
Downtown Amherst

253-0808

Over 1 Million Served

Pizza by the slice

HELP WANTED
The Collegian's Graphics Department is hiring!
Get involved! Work at the Collegian!
See Mike or Lisa in 103 Campus Center for information.

PHOTO CENTER OFFER
Kodak Colorwatch System
GET A 2ND SET OF 3" PRINTS FREE WITH OUR QUALITY FILM DEVELOPING Film Developing Offer
12 Exp. with FREE 2ND SET $2.99
15 Exp. with FREE 2ND SET $3.99
24 Exp. with FREE 2ND SET $5.99
36 Exp. with FREE 2ND SET $7.99
Receive a second set of standard size 3" prints absolutely FREE with your next roll of 35mm disc, 110 or 126 color print film left for developing at our everyday low prices. C-41 process only. Excludes larger 4" size prints.
Offer Available at all Campus Locations
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
Mini Store • Student Union
Worcester • Franklin • Hampden
Munchy Stores

Men's soccer confident heading into season

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

After falling just one penalty kick short of making its first trip ever to the NCAA post-season, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team is looking ahead to quite possibly the most successful season in the history of the program.

The entire lineup that played for the Minutemen in the Atlantic 10 tournament in 1992 is back, and according to senior captain Todd Kylish, the team cannot help being optimistic.

"The outlook is really positive," said Kylish. "We came into the pre-season excited; we had a good year last year goin' to the finals of the A-10, so we're just looking to build on that."

This season's schedule is difficult, according to head coach Sam Koch, especially because the team opens against New England rivals Boston University and the University of Connecticut in a six-day span.

BU is ranked in the top three in the region, and Big East conference member UConn is always tough, according to Koch. However, he said the Minutemen may hold the advantage.

"I think UConn is going to have to worry about us. I think BU is going to have to worry about us," Koch said. "These are tough games, but now people are worrying about UMass. We're not a given like we were three years ago."

A big difference this season in the A-10 schedule is that the Minutemen play the three tourney teams from last season here at Garber Field. Some of the players point to two dates, Oct. 8 and 10, as the swing games of the season.

George Washington and West Virginia, the defending A-10 champion, come to Amherst back-to-back, and Koch said even though the games will be tough, it is to UMass' advantage.

• UMass' defense always started the offense last season, and it is anchored by Kylish (four goals, one assist), a member of the All-New England First Team. Kylish is joined by senior Chris Merrill (one assist) and sophomore Dan Chagnon (named to the 1992 A-10 All-Tournament team) as three of the four starters in the defensive backfield.

According to Koch, there are a few players vying for the final starting job, and several factors will be considered.

"A lot will depend on fitness and who's fit, and who is playing real well," said Koch. "Matt Edgerly is sort of our swingman; he could swing from midfield to the back. Teddy Priestly has had a very good pre-season and he can swing from up front to midfield and then to the back.

"We're just trying to put the best combination together. There are people still fighting for positions," he said.

"I think we'll be solid defensively, and I don't think we will give up much in the back," said Koch. "I'm hoping we'll be able to attack in more ways than in the past."

In the midfield, the Minutemen have senior Justin Edelman (six goals, nine assists), junior Mike Doyle (five assists) and sophomores Colin Johnson (six goals, three assists and two-time A-10 Freshman of the Week) and Brad Miller (one goal, two assists).

At the forward spot, UMass has sniper Randy Jacobs. The senior led the Minutemen in scoring last season with 17 goals and six assists, and was named A-10 Player of the Week twice.

Between the pipes is junior keeper Mark Wolf, who over his career has a 1.18 goals against average and has posted four shutouts.

COURTESY UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior co-captain Todd Kylish leads the UMass men's soccer team into a 7 p.m. clash with New England rival UConn tomorrow night in Connecticut.

■ festival

continued from page 4

not going to be a forward, I'm going to be a midfielder playing in a defensive position," she said. "So I think that going to the festival it helped me get a different perspective that there isn't just one set thing for me to do."

The next obvious step for anyone competing in the U.S. Olympic Festival would naturally be the 1996 Summer Olympic Games being held in Atlanta, Ga. So do the players think about Atlanta?

"I think I'm prepared to move on to something else after field hockey this season," Hockenbrock said.

"I think about Atlanta, but I still have a long way to go," said Rothenberger.

"I do," Salisbury said. "I've been participating with the national team, I've played with all the players. I know that it's what I want and that's what I've been working for every summer since I came here to UMass."

"I just take it day by day," Jelley said. "My main concern is this season."

And just like last season, if they play well this season and the team is competitive, everything else will take care of itself.

Men's X-Country set for success

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

A strong class of incoming freshmen, combined with three strong returning lettermen, has brought a sense of optimism to the 1993 University of Massachusetts men's cross country team.

The team hopes to build on the success it achieved last season when the Minutemen finished third in the Atlantic 10 and were ranked in the top three in New England.

A trio of upperclassmen will be called on to lead the way for this year's team. Seniors Craig Cormier and Kevin Greenhalgh and junior Rick Copley figure to be the team's top three runners in the early going.

Head coach Ken O'Brien said that he ranks this year's freshmen class as one of the top three he has had in his 27 years coaching at UMass.

"It was a great recruiting year to put the program on firm footing for the next four years," said O'Brien. "Six to eight of these freshmen could make many other school's top five."

Inexperience could hinder the Minutemen in the early going, but the depth that the freshmen provide could help in the long run.

If everything works out, O'Brien will have the luxury of using different combinations in different races to find the best seven runners to take part in the championship meets.

UMass will face some tough competition in the first meet on Sept. 18 against Iona College, who is ranked in the top 20, and strong Maine and Northeastern squads.

Boston University, who is also in the top 20, and rival Vermont come to Amherst on Sept. 25.

O'Brien said that he hopes Cormier, who is recuperating from off-season ankle surgery will be back to top form in time for the Atlantic 10 Championship.

If Cormier's return coincides with the freshmen hitting their stride, the Minutemen could contend for the A-10 title.

"It's a reach, but within our grasp," said O'Brien.

Be more than a UMass fan.
Write for Collegian Sports.
See Art in 113 Campus Center for details.

■ hockey

continued from page 7

"We have between five and 10 full-scholarship players this season that will likely be our nucleus, and I have 35 names of players who have played high school, prep or junior hockey. But our tryouts are going to be wide open, and that's where we'll choose our team."

The season opens at Merrimack on October 23, and UMass will play its first home game against Villanova on October 30. The 1993-94 schedule is a potpourri of Division I and III teams which Mallen said will be "more difficult than easy." The intention is to prepare the team for the rigors of a Hockey East schedule for the fall of 1994.

"We have seven Division I teams on that schedule, and that represents the meat of the schedule," Mallen said. "Then we have teams like Bowdoin, Colby and AIC, and I can tell you right now, those games will be tough. You don't just show up at Bowdoin on a Friday night expecting to win.

"The big question is whether we can go in and beat a team that played in [now defunct] Division II. If we can do that, we can challenge a Division I team and beat a Division III team. I want to see what the team's made of, how they'll handle hostile environments."

Most people are already looking ahead to the 1994-95 season, when UMass can take a crack at teams like Boston University, BC and national champion Maine. Season tickets are already being sold for both seasons, and UMass hockey pamphlets have both this year and next year's schedules.

Mallen can't afford to look ahead to 1994-95; he has to worry about international players getting visas, hiring a second assistant, and getting ready for practice. He said he hopes the fans come out and support what may be a long first season.

"At BC, we had over 6,000 fans the years we did well, but they were the type who sat on their hands," he said. "I'm hoping we can get all the support that the basketball team has received, because I see, and a lot of others see, the hockey team as a sense of pride."

WELCOME BACK TO ALL STUDENTS!
LIQUORS 44
BEER WINE LIQUORS

LITE $9.49 + DEP (16 OZ FOR THE PRICE OF 12 OZ.) SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE CASE OF 24 16 OZ SUITCASE CANS
BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT $9.99 + DEP CASE OF 24 12 OZ CANS
COORS LIGHT $9.99 + DEP SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.50 AFTER REBATE CASE OF 24 12 OZ CANS
BUDWEISER $9.99 + DEP AFTER REBATE (REG. - LIGHT DRY) SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 CASE OF 24 12 OZ CANS
BUDWEISER (REG-LIGHT-DRY) & MICHELOB REG. - LIGHT EVERY DAY PRICE ½ BARREL $40.99 + DEP
AMERICAN BEER $7.29 + DEP REG-LIGHT CASE OF 24 12 OZ CANS
CATAMOUNT $16.99 + DEP PORTER AMBER GOLD CASE OF 24 12 OZ BOTTLES
FOSTERS LAGER $7.99 + DEP 12 PK BOTTLES

WINE OF THE MONTH
CONCHA Y TORO $3.99 750 ML CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON, MERLOT 100% VARIETALS FROM CHILE
FRANZIA $8.49 750 ML CHABLIS, RHINE, BURGUNDY, WHITE GRENACHE, BLUSH, FRENCH COLOMBARD, CHENIN BLANC
GLEN ELLEN $3.49 750 ML WHITE ZINFANDEL
GALLO CALIFORNIA RESERVES $6.99 1.5L CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON
SEAGRAM'S COOLERS $1.49 4 PK AFTER REBATE SALE 2.49 MAIL IN REBATE 1.00 ALL FLAVORS
COKE, DIET COKE, SPRITE $4.99 + DEP CASE OF 24 12 OZ SUITCASE CANS

SMIRNOFF VODKA $13.99 1.75L
BACARDI RUM (LIGHT & DARK) $13.99 1.75L
GILBEY'S GIN $8.49 1.75L SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE
SEAGRAM'S 7 $7.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00
LIQUORS 44 VODKA $8.99 1.75L
JOSE CUERVO MAX PACKS $11.49 1.75L (1.75O GOLD TEQUILA 1 1 0 MARGARITA MIX)
KAHLUA $7.99 750 ML AFTER REBATE SALE 11.99 MAIL IN REBATE 4.00
CLAN MACGREGOR SCOTCH $14.99 1.75L

not responsible for typographical errors
• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 9.2.93 THRU WEDS. 9.15.93
Full Redemption Center

■ commitment

continued from page 3

who might have wanted it the most isn't here to enjoy it.

Start with the athletic director. Marcum was the former AD of the University of South Carolina, down where football is a close No. 2 to religion. Marcum knows what big-time football is all about, and his intention from the get-go was to bulk UMass' program up.

One of the first changes was in the tailgating policy. Banned for years, the University allowed fans to use the adjacent parking lot at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium for tailgating, allowing the consumption of alcohol. A simple move, but one that will pay off when more and more students and alums make the trek to the stadium on Saturday afternoons.

Hodges then got the scholarships back. He went from five freshmen on scholarship last year to 25 this year. That's quite a difference, and it sends a message, according to Hodges.

"We thought when we went into kids' houses we would have to overcome the whole scholarship situation, but no one ever mentioned it. People know we have the scholarships back and we have a new president who cares about athletics."

The helmets' logos were changed this year. The "UM" logo with the little "Amherst" underneath is gone. Now, the Minutemen wear the familiar "UMass" logo. No Amherst. Just simply "UMass."

One of the weight rooms at Boyden will be exclusively used by varsity athletes, a move which, for better or for worse, benefits the UMass football team.

Another weight room for the players is to be added to the locker room by McGuirk, with tens of thousands of feet of weights. All part of the commitment.

Ask any of the players, and you will hear their stories. They return from the summer to find the locker room is spruced up and freshly painted for the first time in ages. This is UMass? It is now. Sophomore quarterback Andrew McNeilly is one who said he is ecstatic about the changes in the football program.

"I definitely see the commitment in the program," he said. "Look around; it's changed a lot. The locker room looks great, they've hired a new weight coach [Robert Otrando] who used to work with the New England Patriots. They've done a lot moneywise.

"Coach Hodges told us, they're a lot more willing to do things like this if we go 7-3 rather than 3-7."

The stories are more of the same with coaches. Thanks to Marcum's "you want it, you got it" attitude, the coaches have made changes in their own wardrobes and their players, buying the team new warmup suits for road trips. Hodges said he thanks his lucky stars.

"The weight room, the painted locker room, are little things you don't see on the outside that a kid feels a lot better walking into the way it is now," Hodges said. "They feel good about themselves, they feel good that somebody cares about them. That kind of feeling is contagious."

So even if it takes Marcum, Scott, Hooker and Hodges five or ten years to move from Division I-AA to I-A, it will probably fly by pretty quick.

Look at the last nineteen months.

After seven month hiatus, Pigskin Picks is back

"When you've reached the top, you either stay there or you go down. That's what drives me now. I don't want to start a fall." — Emmitt Smith

With the 19 Naughty III football season upon us, I've decided that anyone who wants to jump on the coattails of a winner should follow yours truly. Last season was a banner one for me, and hopefully this one will prove to be the same.

Art Stapleton's PIGSKIN PICKS

So, without further gloating or just plain babbling, here come the pre-season picks.

For the record, Emmitt Smith is one of my favorites and deserves every penny. But, here is a question to ponder: If Andres Galarraga can sit out on the DL for two months and still get enough at-bats to win the batting title, can Emmitt retire and be known as a better running back than Barry Sanders for what he has accomplished in three seasons?

I guess not.

The NFC will be changed tremendously if Emmitt comes back anytime soon. Dallas (13-3 predicted record) is still head and shoulders above any team in the league, and for this season, let's just say that the Cowboys are the "me too" team.

"Dallas, baby, is my favorite team!"

"Yeah, me too."

Anyway, the main competition for the Boys in the NFC East will come from the New York Giants (9-7) and their new head coach Dan Reeves. The Giants added two solid linebackers, Carlton Bailey and Michael Brooks, to support the rejuvenated LT.

Despite dumping Carl Banks off on Washington, N.Y. still has one of the three best linebacking corps in football.

A team that should remain on the way up is Phoenix (8-8), who added some free agents that know how to win. Garrison Hearst will emerge as a force from the get-go.

Speaking of Hearst, he followed in the footsteps of the last two great running backs to come out of college. When they were drafted, both Sanders and Smith held out throughout the pre-season, then went on to star. Hearst will do the same. Enough said.

As for the Skins (7-9) and the Eagles (4-12), unless Randall Cunningham and Mark Rypien decide that they want to win at all costs, they can kiss the playoffs goodbye.

For Washington, two words: Joe Gibbs. Taking nothing away from Richie Petitbon, but when you lose the best coach in the NFL, expect to drop two wins that you may have had a chance at.

In the NFC Central, everyone and their mother likes the Packers (12-4). Fine. I don't think my mom even knows where Green Bay is, but I guess Reggie White deserves a divisional title.

Minnesota (10-6) will suffer from the loss of Terry Allen. But the Vikings are extremely tough at home, have an attacking defense and should make the dance.

Don't look now, but the Detroit Lions (10-6) have a fifth place schedule again, plus a new offensive line that Barry gets to run behind. I hope you know what that means, so I don't have to tell you.

In the NFC West, Steve Young... I mean Steve Bono... I mean Elvis Grbac... I mean Bill Musgrave... oh, whoever QB's the Niners (11-5) will lead them to the top. Won't San Fran fans miss the sound of "Montana to Rice, touchdown!"

Ground Chuck should ride roughshod into the playoffs, and the Rams (10-6) will keep close tabs on San Francisco with a revamped defense starring Shane Conlan and Henry Rolling.

In the other league, Super Joe and Super Dan should fight it out in order to be called the best team in the AFC. In the East, Marino's team, the Dolphins (12-4), acquired an Eagle, a Giant and a Patriot while ridding themselves of the Marx Brothers.

Well, thanks to the decline in the division, Shula's team should have few problems on its way back to the playoffs.

Last season I picked the Jets to challenge and make the playoffs. This season, I have not learned: It is Coslet's final chance to take New York (9-7) to the show.

Sorry, Buffalo, but I heard you are nothing special. That's funny, neither are your Bills (8-8) this season (although they probably will make more money than the World University Games).

Hmmm, I guess it is time for the Patriots (7-9). Yes, the team with the uniforms from the USFL and the stadium from hell will improve immensely under the tutelage of Bill Parcells. Drew Bledsoe is the real deal, and Leonard Russell should return to his form of two years ago.

The special teams will be the most improved area this side of Foxboro. I hate to say I told you so, but good riddance Charlie Baumann. The tag-team of Sisson and Saxon will keep the Pats in close games, but they will fall short yet another time.

In the Central, Houston (12-4, but expect a choke) and Pittsburgh (11-5) will battle it out for the division. The Oilers have Buddy Ryan, so look for some cheap shots, and the Steelers have Barry Foster and Neil O'Donnell, so watch for some excitement.

Way out West Kansas City (12-4) is the favorite, with San Diego (11-5) hot on the trail of the Chiefs. The one thing about Montana is that more often than not, he will win, not lose, a game for you.

The Lightning Bolts have the one of the three best defenses in football (behind Dallas and KC of course), and Marion Butts does not have to worry about Rod Bernstine anymore.

Come December, some teams are ecstatic and some are home. Period. For a recap, the Cowboys, Packers, Dolphins and Chiefs get byes in the first round; in the NFC wild card games, the Vikings travel to Candlestick to take on the Niners and the Lions travel to Anaheim to face the Rams.

In the AFC wild card games, in a matchup of divisional foes, the Oilers host Pittsburgh and the Jets make the trip to San Diego.

On that final weekend before Super Bowl Sunday, we could see two incredible games. In the AFC, I feel the Chiefs will have it all together and meet Miami and Super Dan in Joe Robbie Stadium. After it is all said and done, Mr. Marino will finally get another chance at a ring. Miami Dolphins 31, Kansas City 21.

Dallas and San Francisco are on a collision course for a rematch of their intense championship game last time around. With a fresh and ready Emmitt, and quite possibly the scariest defensive line since the Bears of 1985, the Cowboys could prove to be too much for the 49ers once again. Dallas Cowboys 23, San Francisco 49ers 21.

And in the main event, I say it is time for one of the most productive quarterbacks that has ever lived to become one of the greatest. The pressure built up between Jimmy Johnson and Jerry Jones may finally come to a head, and the young superstars may suffer because of it. Miami 17, Dallas 16.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is the Collegian Sports Editor, as well as a weekly sports columnist.

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB

Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($169) & get a free HFC T-Shirt!

The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446

90 Gatehouse Road
"Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center"

• PVTA bus route to Rolling Green •
• pool • aerobics • aqua-aerobics •
• steps • nautilus • racquetball •
• free weights • jacuzzi • sauna •
• massage • bikes • tennis •
• rowers • treadmills •

Find a long lost friend from last semester!

The Collegian is now accepting Classified advertisements.

Come down to 113 Campus Center to place yours today!

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

WELCOME BACK !!

Fall Sports	Entries Due By
Flag Football	Sept. 13th
Soccer	Sept. 13th
Co-Ed Softball	Sept. 14th
& Much More

FOR TEAM ENTRY FORMS AND MORE INFO
DROP BY 215 BOYDEN, 5-2693/5-0022

Malloy transfers out, Roe and Camby shine

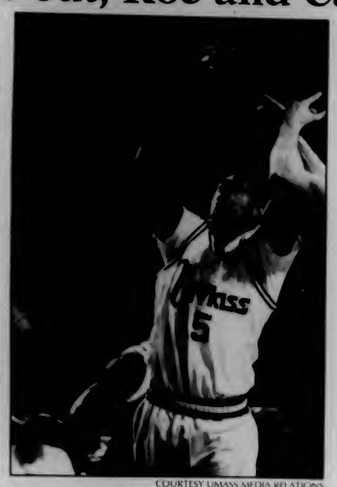
By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team has lost yet another starter from last season's Atlantic 10 Championship squad with guard Jerome Malloy's decision to transfer from the University.

Malloy joins former Minutemen Harper Williams and Tony Barbee as a triumvirate of players that will be missing from the UMass starting lineup come November.

The 6-foot-4-inch, 180-pound junior was the fourth leading scorer for UMass last season, averaging 12.0 points a game for the Minutemen.

UMass head coach John Calipari said the decision to transfer was Malloy's.



"We appreciate Jerome's contributions to the team and the UMass basketball program the past two seasons," said Calipari. "It was Jerome's decision to transfer, and we wish him the best in his academic and athletic pursuits."

Malloy is reportedly considering several schools, including Jacksonville University and the University of Missouri.

• Two years ago, the Minutemen started their march to a Sweet Sixteen season by winning the Great Alaskan Shootout, one of the top pre-season tourneys in college basketball.

For the 1993-94 team, the start of something big could in fact come very early. The Minutemen will host Cleveland State in the first round of the Pre-Season National Invitational Tournament on Nov. 18. This battle between UMass and the Vikings at the William D. Mullins Center will be seen on ESPN nationwide.

The second round will pit the winner of the UMass-Cleveland State game against the winner of the St. John's-Towson State matchup. Five other teams besides St. John's and Massachusetts in the pre-season NIT were in the NCAA's last season: eventual champion North Carolina, Cincinnati, California, Kansas, and Western Kentucky.

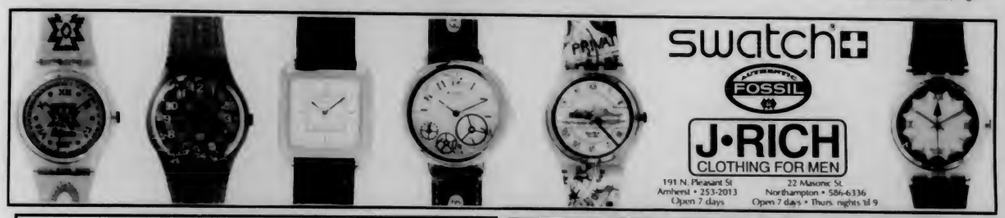
COURTESY UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

All-American candidate Lou Roe of the UMass men's basketball team had himself a great summer playing hoop in Europe with the Foot Locker/NIT All-Stars.

• UMass junior power forward Lou Roe dominated in an exhibition stint over the summer with a team of Foot Locker/NIT All-Stars that traveled to such cities as San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Milan, Italy.

Roe led USA/NIT in scoring and rebounding in three of the final four games, averaging a double-double (21.0 points per game, 11.3 rebounds per game) over that span.

In a 91-78 loss to Germany, Roe poured in a team-high 31 points and grabbed seven boards (six of them offensive). The All-Stars were coached by former St. John's University coach Lou Carnesecca, and finished with a 1-7 record.



• Despite losing Williams, Barbee, Malloy, and Kennard Robinson, the Minutemen welcome in a new cast of characters for the 1993-94 season, and two of them were showcased at the United States Olympic Festival earlier this summer.

Sophomore Donta Bright and freshman Marcus Camby were teammates on the East team in the four-team tournament. Fab freshmen such as Jerry Stackhouse (North Carolina) and Rasheed Wallace (North Carolina) were overshadowed by Camby.

In the finale, a 116-101 loss to the South, Camby led the East once again with 15 points and 17 boards. His performance throughout the Festival earned him First Team All-Olympic Festival honors, and also garnered him praise from the likes of TNT analyst Hubie Brown and ABC/ESPN College Basketball analyst Dick Vitale.

UMass received some disheartening news when it was declared that Tyrone Weeks would be ineligible because he did not score the minimum of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Weeks, a 6-6 forward, remained optimistic and said he would be here in

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 5

A Textbook Example Of Great Pizza.

College I.D. Special

One Topping BIGFOOT
$8.99 + tax

253-3443

Pizza Hut 318 College Street
Coming Soon: Breadsticks

★ EXTRA HOURS ★
FOR YOUR SHOPPING CONVENIENCE

UNIVERSITY STORE

Campus Center
Wednesday & Thursday 9/8-9/9 • 9am-7pm
Friday • 9am-5pm Saturday • 11am-3pm

University Store's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
Wednesday & Thursday 9/8-9/9 • 9am-9pm
Friday 9/10 • 9am-5pm
Saturday 9/11 • 11am-5pm

★WE NOW ACCEPT VISA-MASTERCARD-DISCOVER★

Fame, shame and sorrow head summer of '93

There was no fun in the sun during the summer of 1993 for the sports world.

Starting with the death of New Jersey Nets star Drazen Petrovic in the first week of June and ending (hopefully) with the recent death of James Jordan, father of Air, this summer has meant nothing but disaster for many sports fans.

Davey Allison. Roy Campanella. Don Drysdale. Ewing Kaufman.

Thoroughbreds Union City and Prairie Bayou.

One Crazy 1993 Summer
By Sean Hayden

The list is long and filled with many prominent names, none more prominent than Reggie Lewis, however.

The July 27 death of the Boston Celtics star and captain set off a pathetic series of finger-pointing sessions and whispers behind closed doors. What was originally the greatest sports tragedy the people of Boston had seen since the days of Tony Conigliaro soon turned into a sorry public spectacle led by none other than Lewis' "friend," WEEI's Jimmy Myers.

May you rest in peace now, Reggie.

On a happier note, I just watched the team from Long Beach, Calif., repeat as Little League World Champions. Long Beach was led by coach Jeff Burroughs, 1974 American League MVP, and his son Sean, pitcher-shortstop and "Free Willy" look-alike.

Spent the summer up in Buffalo and every time I mentioned I was from the Bay State, some hoser would say, "How 'bout them Sabres?" Thank you Ray Bourque and company for making an extremely long and tedious summer painful as well.

What a ridiculous display the San Diego Padres have become. General Manager Randy Smith gave me a ring the other day and expressed some interest, but once I told him about the wheelbarrows full of cash I'm making down here, he quickly reconsidered and I haven't heard from him since.

What does baseball need a commissioner for when it's got Bud Selig?

Let's see. So far this season we've had pitchers going after batters, batters going after pitchers, one pitcher beating the hell out of Robin Ventura, managers going after pitchers, batters going after managers, and managers going after broadcasters.

You just know that somehow Vince McMahon is going to make a buck off of this.

As impressive as Florida State looked in its 42-0

Turn to SUMMER, page 15

■ football

continued from page 2

Sawyer will fight for playing time at right tackle. At right end, sophomore Vernard Fennell battles with senior Jon Kromenhoek for a starting position.

Last season, cornerback Don Caparotti was given the brunt of the attention from opposing teams and members of the media, but Hodges and company are pretty satisified with this season's secondary.

Senior Matt Rajotte is one of the team's four captains, and the All-Academic safety handles most of the reads for the defense. Hodges calls Rajotte the most underrated player on the team.

"I don't know if it had to do with having [Caparotti] back there last year, but Matt is big, he's strong, he can run, he understands the game, he'll try to knock ya right out of your shoetops," said Hodges. "I'll be very surprised if he's not All-Conference this year, I really will."

Rajotte will man the free safety position. Rajotte said he thinks the defense will be just as outstanding this year, provided it keeps its focus.

"We can't worry about the other team, we have to worry about UMass," he said. "I can't worry about about being underrated. I have to do my job. If I don't, I'm not only letting down my teammates, I'm letting down my 10 best friends."

Cornerback appears to be solid despite the loss of Caparotti. Tony Williams is back at CB for his second straight year, and junior college transfer Breon Parker has had excellent practices.

"I feel pretty good at where we are at corner right now because we brought in [Parker] and he had a great spring practice for us," said Hodges. "He's an older guy, a little bigger than Donnie and he's got excellent speed. He's still becoming acquainted with our system but we feel he's going to be a great player."

Hodges made coaching changes at defensive line, where Bill Clinton-lookalike Art Bittel replaces Todd Rundle. Bittel was a former assistant at Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

The offensive coaching staff was shaken up when receivers coach Bobby Erhardt left for Penn State, so the team hired Mark Gallagher to replace him.

Defense may win football games, but offense wins tailgaters, and facing reality, UMass had about an equal number of both last year. Blame it on the horrendous weather, or blame it on the methodical offense, but Hodges and sophomore quarterback Andrew McNeilly will both be quick to tell you things will be different this fall.

"We expect to open up our offense up this year, but you're talking to an old defensive coordinator, and I'm telling you right now — if you don't stop the run, you don't win the football game," Hodges said. "We think that we put some things in our offense that, in those situations where everybody knows we've got to throw the football, we'll have a better passing game."

"Our offense is gonna be really tough to stop," said McNeilly, who started last year as a redshirt freshman. "In terms of what we have, we still have the option in, which other teams will have to prepare to stop. We have the rollouts, we have the nakeds, we have the dropbacks, so defensively, teams will have a lot of different things that they're going to have to stop."

McNeilly is an option QB who threw four touchdowns and 11 interceptions last year. His strong arm and injured thumb got him into trouble when he tried to force coverage, but he says this game is "night and day" from where it was last season.

"One thing I look at that kills the whole offense is interceptions, and with my thumb healed and having 10 games under my belt, they'll go way down, no doubt about it."

McNeilly attempted only 150 passes last year, and his backfield is the reason why. Sophomore tailback Rene Ingoglia surprised fans by stealing the starting job away from former Yankee Conference Rookie of the Year John Johnson, rushing for 656 yards at 4.3 yards per carry, and taking home a Rookie of the Year award himself. Expect both to see some action.

Senior Mike George returns for the third straight year at the starting fullback position, hoping to have as successful a season as he had in 1992. George rushed for 475 yards on 86 attempts (5.5 avg) in eight games, and when he twisted his ankle and missed three games at the end of the year, the team floundered, losing its last two games.

Receiving is probably the biggest offensive concern. Tight end Steve Dembowski is a good blocker who catches everything thrown his way, which was only 18 passes last year.

Matt Read returns to start at split end. He had an average of 17.5 yards per carry and 1 touchdown last season. Senior Eric Thimas will line up at flanker, and said he thinks the offense will do its share this fall.

"I think if we start off like we did at spring camp, that will help our whole offense gel," said Thimas. "We're multi-faceted now, and we can beat a lot of teams because we have a lot of threats."

Offenses are only as good as their lines, and UMass' line is as solid as a rock. All five 1992 starters return.

Andy LeBlanc anchors the line at center, with YanCon first team selection Bill Durkin at left guard and YanCon second teamer Phil Hallard at right guard. Andy Rice starts at left tackle, and junior Joe Sabella, the line's only non-senior, is penciled in at right tackle.

"The offense is more experienced this year," said McNeilly. "Our line is huge! If you see those guys, they're huge already, and they've bulked up 10 or 20 pounds each in the off-season."

On special teams, freshmen Justin Riemer and Eric Oke are battling for the kicker's job, and Hodges is raving over them. Both players kicked 50-yard field goals at a recent scrimmage.

Obviously, the ingredients are there for success. UMass could obliterate last year's 7-3 record, or they could disappoint everyone, including themselves. With the YanCon adding three new teams, Northeastern, William & Mary and James Madison, the annual conference free-for-all will be wilder than ever.

The Minutemen were picked fifth in the YanCon, first in the New England Division. With both experience and success under their belts, the players have their sights set on the moon.

"For me, having one loss would be disappointing," Assencoa said. "We'll definitely be disappointed if we don't make the playoffs this season," said Rajotte. "I'd like to go out my senior year in the I-AA Playoffs."

SUBWAY
of Amherst
$1.00 OFF
any FOOTLONG SUB
(With This Coupon)
Not Good With Any Other Offer
Offer Expires 12/30/93
4 Main Street • Amherst • 256-1919
Open Til 2am, Thurs., Fri. & Sat.

VALLEY MOTORSPORTS
Rt. 5 Northampton, MA 01060
413/584-7303 • 800/649-9965
94's In Stock Now!
Scooters • Generators
Snow Blowers • Jetmate
Motorcycles • ATV's
Lawn Mower • Jet Skis
Snowmobiles
HONDA
Kawasaki
YAMAHA
DUCATI

"Don't be a wussy. Come down to the Collegian and write for Sports."
"Huh-huh, huh-huh. Hey Beavis, you said... uh... you said... uhhh... never mind. Sports are cool."
"Yeah. Art Stapleton is cool. He could kick Axl's ass!"
Collegian Sports - 113 Campus Center - 545-1762

20% one item discount with this ad
Not valid on sale items
DISCOUNT SURPLUS
•Couches •Carpets •Beds
•Chairs •Desks •Lamps
(413) 586-7202
206 Russell St. (Rt.9) Hadley, MA
We take in consignments
Cash • Personal Checks • Major Credit Cards Accepted

USED COMPUTERS
Available Due To Corporate Downsizing
IBM Brand
Model AT 286 2MB Ram, 52MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $550
Model AT 286 1MB Ram, 20MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $395
Model XT 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $310
Model 3270 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $275
Rentals, Printers Avaliable
CALL 253-7510

"TIRED OF CROWDED GYMS?"
The GYM at mountain farms mall
Rt.9/Russell St. • 584-2175
Membership Thru 12-31-93
Fall Semester Special
Only $109.00
Conveniently Located on the New Bike Path.
Plenty of Free Parking - Easy To Get To.

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE
Dr. Martens
mail order INCREDIBLE DEAL
SHOES ONLY $59.99 BOOTS ONLY $69.99
For FREE COLOR Brochure & Order Form, send your name and address to:
Dr. Martens Deal
16057 Tampa Palms Blvd. W. #302
Tampa, Florida 33647
Or call: 1-813-973-8593
Air Wair
STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Dixon raises tennis from the ashes

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Athletic coaches all around the UMass campus are anxious to start this upcoming fall season, but no one is more excited than Judy Dixon, the head coach of both the women's and men's tennis teams.

In February 1993, Dixon was named as the person to head the rebuilding quest of the UMass women's program. The Minutewomen played their first season this past spring and went 3-3.

When the men's tennis program here at the University was given new life, Dixon was looked to take charge of the Minutemen as well. She was named head tennis coach for both the men and the women, and Athletic Director Bob Marcum said he was very pleased to have Dixon as coach for the two programs.

"I believe that this an extraordinary opportunity for our tennis program to have a coach of Judy's caliber," said Marcum. "We are most fortunate that she is available to enhance these programs."

Dixon said both teams would face difficult schedules right off the bat this fall, and the people she has come into contact with that are interested in trying out for the teams are just happy to have a chance.

"I have spoken to so many interested students on the phone, and they keep on asking me when I am holding tryouts," said Dixon. "It is just amazing to have two programs starting up again. People who have graduated from here are calling me and asking, 'Is tennis really back?'"

The athletic department has refurbished the upper tennis courts near Boyden, and they will be used by the teams for all home matches. Dixon said, however, that the courts are mainly for the campus community when the teams are not practicing.

The Minutewomen open their season Sept. 12 with a dual match at Providence College against Vermont and the host Lady Friars.

The Minutemen start their first season back on Sept. 17 at Wheaton College.

Tryouts for both teams are on Sept. 8.

■ summer

continued from page 7

debacle of the Kansas Jayhawks in the Kickoff Classic, the Seminoles will never win anything with Sideshow Bob calling the shots.

How can Sports Illustrated justify putting FSU freshman kicker Scott Bentley on its college preview cover? He hasn't played a down of college ball. It's a slap in the face to Charlie Ward, Marshall Faulk, Marvin Graves and other worthy candidates.

I just pray that the 'Noles are undefeated heading into their Nov. 13 contest at Notre Dame. Go Irish.

After his final round shoot-out over Nick Faldo to win his second British Open title, Greg Norman seemed poised to regain the title as the premiere golfer in the world.

Unfortunately for The Shark, he chose a bad time to get a case of the yips and blew a back-nine lead at the PGA Championship to Paul Azinger, who shed the tag of being the greatest player in the sport never to win a major.

Corey Pavin, can you hear the whispers?

How can anyone like SkyDome in Toronto? It is baseball played in a mall. Yecch. Of course it didn't help that my visit coincided with the four-game sweep the Jays pulled on the Red Sox in June.

I must add, however, that Pilot Field in Buffalo is as nice a place to watch a game in the country. And they bring the beer to you.

As much as they may frustrate me at times with their 18-hit, two-run performances, the Sox have proven to be competitive and entertaining, which is more than anyone expected in April.

My, does the future look bright for young Mr. Sele.

While the death of James Jordan is tragic, it does raise lots of questions, especially in the wake of the whole Richard Esquinas ordeal.

Does Jim Pierce, the father of professional tennis player Mary Pierce, have the worst case of Little League parent syndrome you have ever seen or what? The guy is a menace to himself and his family and should be barred permanently from all future pro women's events.

The mania is running hog wild in Foxboro. Drew Bledsoe and the Pats versus Rick Mirer and the Seattle Seahawks on Sept. 19 could be a preview of future and more important match-ups.

I don't care what anybody else says: Buck Showalter should be the hands-down winner of the American League Manager of the Year Award. He has kept his Yankees on an even keel all year long and more importantly, has them playing winning, consistent ball.

It might not seem like a big deal, but take into consideration that Showalter is doing it in the largest media market in the world under the watchful eye of George Steinbrenner, who starts a controversy every time he opens his mouth by threatening to move the team out of the Big Apple.

If the Yanks are Dr. Jekyll, then their crosstown National League counterparts are playing the role of Mr. Hyde rather convincingly.

The Mutts may have just become the sorriest franchise in professional sports, wrestling the title away from the reborn Patriots.

Bonilla, Coleman, Saberhagen and the rest of the sorry squad could all take a lesson from recently demoted pitcher Anthony Young.

Young has had the most to screech and squawk about all summer but handled himself and the losing streak with class.

Dah-dah-dah, dah-dah-dah.

Sean P. Hayden is a Collegian columnist.

■ Marshall

continued from page 7

in the world."

Marshall holds all school records at UMass for the sport of women's gymnastics.

Marshall qualified for the finals in the beam and the floor exercise at the Games, and her nervousness was evident with her last competition at hand. She fell off the beam in her first event, costing her a chance at a medal. The floor, however, was a different story.

The tiny gymnast had the crowd, and, presumably, the judges, eating out of her hand with a spectacular routine which included an Arabian double front flip, a move which helped her get a 10.0 at the National Championships. While not golden that night, Marshall said she has no regrets of her superb career.

"The last six years, ever since my knee injury, have been just great," said Marshall. "I would do it all over again. It's been awesome."

In other UMass gymnastics news, women's head coach Alfie Mitchell left Amherst to become head coach at the University of California. Mitchell said his star Marshall's graduation made his decision a little easier.

"I'm excited. I'm looking forward to coaching at Cal, being a member of the Pac 10. It's a strong team in a strong conference," Mitchell said. "Of course, I'm upset to leave UMass, because of the great times I had there, but I think it's time for both programs to get a fresh start.

Mitchell coached five years with a 47-15 record, but his legacy will be giving Marshall a full scholarship on blind faith. Marshall became the greatest gymnast in school history.

"I figured, what the hell, I'll either be a genius or they'll run me out of town. I was just coming in and had nothing to lose."

Best in the Valley!
Bart's HOMEMADE FREE
*Beverage with Sandwich Purchase *medium coffee, tea, or soda
Lunch Specials
Deli Sandwiches & Pockets
Vegetarian Lasagna
Soup with Cornbread or Crackers,
Vegetarian Chili with Cornbread
Potato, Spinach & Broccoli Knishes
103 N. Pleasant St., Boltwood Walk • Amherst

Who's been making Amherst's finest pizza since 1967?
SLICE OF PIZZA
BELL'S Pizza
89¢
Serving the Valley for over a quarter century
1967-1993
BELL'S PIZZA HOUSE
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-1311 253-9051

FIRST
WALKING
Co-Ed FLEX Co-Ed
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
DISTANCE
CHOICE

■ YanCon

continued from page 3

University of New Hampshire (5-5-1, 3-5 YanCon): After a rough start early on in 1992, the Wildcats came on strong, losing only one of their final five games. Head coach Bill Bowes may be worried about the youth of his team, but he probably hopes last season's momentum carries over to the 1993 campaign.

On offense, David Gamble at wide receiver will set the tempo. A senior, Gamble is sure-handed and led the team with 737 yards. Jim Stayer, who as a sophomore last season threw for 2,220 yards and 11 TDs, will play quarterback, but the backfield remains suspect.

UNH will have to find someone to replace school record holder RB Barry Bourassa. Redshirt freshman Calvin Jones and junior Lee McClinton will try to pick up the slack.

The Wildcats lost two All-YanCon first-teamers in Dwayne Gordon and Greg Lewis, a linebacker and cornerback, repectively. The good news is the team still has strong safety Bob Jordan, a senior who had seven interceptions last year.

Villanova University (9-3, 6-2 YanCon): The Wildcats are the type of team that could fall anywhere in the Mid-Atlantic Division; they've been solid for four straight seasons, including two straight I-AA playoff appearances, but this year they lose 12 starters.

The question is, does Villanova have enough remaining talent to beat out Delaware, W and M, or Richmond? The answer is, probably not.

Looking at the quarterback situation is indicative of the whole team. Senior Brad Parpan held the clipboard while Tom Columbo was setting school records, but proved a capable backup when given the chance to play. Obviously, being a capable starter will be more difficult.

The Wildcats were picked No. 16 in the preseason, and the more you look at the losses the team sustained to graduation, the more you wonder why.

Two-time YanCon Defensive Player of the Year and All-America linebacker Curtis Eller is probably the toughest player to replace, although Villanova replaces seven others on defense, including its whole linebacking corps.

James Madison University (4-7, first year in YanCon): The Dukes become the third Yankee Conference team from below the Mason-Dixon line (Richmond and fellow newcomer William and Mary are the others), but this season may provide anything but southern comfort.

Gone are QB Eriq Williams and tailback Kenny Sims, who combined for over 4,000 yards of offense. Williams holds JMU records for passing yards, TD passes and rushing TDs, while Sims was eighth in Division I-AA in rushing last year and signed a free-agent contract with the San Diego Chargers in the spring.

Sophomore Gary Lyons and redshirt freshman Tony Jordan are candidates to replace Williams. Lyons had a solid spring practice, while Jordan was a member of the JMU basketball team.

John Allen and David McLeod make up a receiving core that is the strength of JMU. McLeod broke Phoenix Cardinal and former Duke Gary Clark's single-season receiving record with 932 yards.

Jack-of-all-trades Dion Foxx will anchor the defense at end. The Dukes have an entirely new secondary, which may drastically hurt the team's pass defense.

University of Connecticut (5-6, 4-4 YanCon): There appears to be no QB controversy this year at the very least with the Huskies. Sophomore Zeke Rodgers took over the reigns from junior Tom DeSarno in the seventh game in the 1992 campaign and guide UConn to a 3-2 record. Rodgers appears to have the full confidence of the Husky coaching staff.

Tailback Ed Long gained 900 yards on the ground last season, including 209 against UNH, and is a Sporting News preseason first team Yankee Conference pick. Sophomore Wilbur Gilliard will also see time in the backfield.

Tackles Sherrard Joseph and Pat Walsh are the only returning starters on the offensive line, and head coach Tom Jackson plans to fill the holes with two sophomores and a freshman.

Defense is the strength of UConn, with eight starters (five of those seniors) returning. Defensive tackles Mike McCarthy and Brian Gleason will hold the line, and outside linebacker Paul Duckworth hopes to improve on last year's 83 tackles and three sacks.

Northeastern University (5-5-1, first year in YanCon): These Huskies are the third new team in the conference, and they may have gotten a raw deal by being put in the Mid-Atlantic Division with the southern powers. NU will suffer more than W and M or JMU, both of whom are more accustomed to playing a wide-open style of football.

Head coach Barry Gallup is now handling double duties as the school's athletic director, but when it comes to September, the third-year coach will focus his energies on his team.

Ralph Barone's departure at QB will most likely be filled by Clarzell Pearl, a scatterbug-type quarterback who would rather run than throw.

The good news is all of the Huskies running backs are returning, and Kevin Williams has flourished for two years in the one back offense.

Northeastern returns nearly its entire defensive personnel, with only DT Justin Zwart and CB Bruce Richardson gone. Mark Salisbury, a strong safety who was All-New England in 1991 and 1992, is the defensive leader.

University of Maine (6-5, 4-4 in YanCon): First-year coach Jack Cosgove will have his hands full with replacing the Maine offensive line, which has only two returning starters. Cosgrove, a former offensive line coach, will have to work wonders to give QB Emilio Colon protection.

Colon has been a starter since his freshman year, and last season he threw for 1,823 yards and 13 TDs while being picked off six times. Flanker Kenny Squire is Colon's only returning target, so the Black Bears may have trouble putting points on the board.

Maine's D was second against the run in the YanCon, and linebacker Jemal Murph was a big reason why. Murph was second on the team with 94 tackles. Dan Girard, who was second in the YanCon with 152 tackles last season, is gone, so the Black Bears will have to replace him at middle linebacker.

Suffice it to say that Maine may not put many points on the board, but with six defensive starters, opponents may not either.

Boston University (3-8, 2-6 YanCon): Terrier head coach Dan Allen reports in the YanCon media guide, "We won our final two games last year, and it has rejuvenated our entire program."

In truth, the Terriers would not have been such a bad team, had they not lost their first six YanCon games.

In the last five years, BU has not finished any higher than fourth place. They have not had a strong program traditionally, but with 19 starters returning, there remains a glimmer of hope.

Senior QB Greg Moore returns for his third season at the helm, and he has plenty of help. On defense, John Schaefer and John Hickey serve as anchors at outside linebacker.

University of Rhode Island (1-10, 0-8 YanCon): In case you have not read the above preview, the only thing preventing Boston University from last place is this URI squad. The Rams have won six conference games in four years.

Quarterback Tony Squitieri will be looked on to be the team leader for the Rams, but he has to stay on the field to do this. Squitieri was hampered by an ankle injury last year, but still managed to throw for almost 2,000 yards.

A defense which gave up an average of 30 points a game last year will be revamped. It has to be. Only five players remain on D.

WELCOME BACK FROM

Mike's Westview

Try Something New!
1 16oz. Prime Rib
$6.95
Dinner Includes salad and Potato
Saturdays 6-9

Pints of Killians Red... $2.00
Busch Pitchers... $4.25
Bud and Bud Light Pitchers... $5.25
Beer of the Week - Miller Genuine Draft... $1.25

Mike's is now serving Lunch... 12-6

Hot Specials - $3.95
Monday - Lasagna
~
Tuesday - Hot Roast Beef Sandwich with Mashed Potatoes
~
Wednesday - Meatloaf with Mash Potatoes
~
Thursday - Roast Turkey Dinner
~
Friday - Fish of the Day

Sandwich Board - $2.95
includes French Fries or Chips
Roast Beef Sandwich
Ham & Cheese Sandwich
Turkey Sandwich
Corned Beef Sandwich
Burger

Baskets
Onion Rings... $1.75
French Fries... $1.25
Mozzarella Sticks... $2.75
Chicken Fingers... $3.95

Calendar
~ Monday ~
FREE BUFFET
~ Tuesday ~
TACO TUESDAY
~ Wednesday ~
GUEST BARTENDER
~ Thursday ~
PARTY NIGHT
Captain Morgans Night - Capt'n & Coke $2.00
Free T-Shirts & Hats-Free Patriot & Concert Tickets
~ Friday ~
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
Roast Beef, Baked Ham, Mac & Meatballs
Veal Parm, Stuffed Mushrooms & Au Gratin Potatoes
Roast Chicken, Corn on the Cob and Assorted Salads - $3.00

Arts & Living Fall 1993

A Whole New World

First Week '93 brings fun and films to campus

Three days of music and comedy for $2

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Fall '93 semester promises to start off with a bang, uh, make that a crunch, as the Division of Student Activities presents the 10th annual First Week '93 festivities.

Featured in the three-day line-up of comedy, music and films is Master Lee from New York Entertainment. This comedian has been seen on MTV's Comikaze, Showtime at the Apollo, Caroline's Comedy Hour, Apollo Comedy Hour and he promises to break — crunch — boards on his head. Lee will perform today at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Immediately following Master Lee at 10 p.m. will be a showing of The Rocky Horror Picture Show. This cult musical film showcases a young couple who stumble into a castle inhabited by an unusual cast of characters from Transylvania.

The New Horizons Band, a local reggae group, will provide the tunes at the First Week Dance on Thursday, Sept. 9, in the Campus Center Auditorium from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

For all you hams out there, the highlight of the week will be the First Annual Student Comedy Contest on Friday, Sept. 10. The Contest will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m.

If you think you can tell jokes or funny stories, this is your opportunity to exhibit your talent. To sign up for your chance at fame, or just a five-to-10 minute stint on stage, go to the Student Activities Office in the Student Union as soon as possible.

For the rest of us too timid to climb onto that stage, there will be some professionals at the event. Both Lisa Ann Walter and Rhonda Hansome, a.k.a. Passion, will perform.

Walter went from a suburban New Jersey homemaker to a nightclub comedienne. She uses the lessons she learned at home to earn laughs on stage. Walter has made television appearances on All My Children, Caroline's Comedy Hour and Showtime at the Apollo.

Passion is an eccentric feminist who tackles topics from philosophy and politics to sex and race in her stand-up routine. She has entertained audiences in London, Las Vegas and the Catskills.

First Week will end with "House, Hip-Hop, and Techno" provided by Studio Guam Productions, the deejays for the First Week Dance. It begins at 9 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

A $2 ticket purchased at any First Week Event between Wednesday and Friday can be used for admittance to all remaining First Week programs. All proceeds from these events will be donated to the Dean of Students Emergency Loan Fund.

COURTESY DIVISION OF STUDENT ACTIVITIES
Lisa Ann Walter will perform at Friday's First Annual Comedy Contest in the Campus Center Auditorium at 7 p.m.

If it's happening in the Five College Area, you'll find it in the Collegian's Arts & Living Section.
Be sure to look for our special This Weekend Section every Thursday.

REKINDLE YOUR PASSION For Indian Food at
The Valley's Original
INDIA HOUSE
Restaurant
On State Street
Where Indian Food is more than Curry!
For Excellent Food and Hospitality
Come to our House...
45 State Street • Northampton, MA 586-6344
Students, bring this ad and receive 10% OFF DINNER from Sunday to Thursday. Expires Dec. 31, 1993

CAFE DICARLO
Now Open Upstairs
The Ultimate in Casual Italian Dining
Full Bar
Lighter Fare
Amherst's Newest Jazz & Blues Club
Open 7 days a week
71 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 253-9300

• MOVIE POSTERS • OLD MASTERS • ROCK POSTERS • CARS • AFRICAN AMERICAN ART • MODERN & ABSTRACT • MATISSE • HUMOR • TRAVEL • WYETH • GALLERY PRINTS • ANIMAL POSTERS • ORIENTALS • ROMANCE • FANTASY • WARHOL • DALI • ANSEL ADAMS • ROCKWELL • PICASSO • MC ESCHER • NATURE • MUSIC • FLORALS • MARILYN MONROE • EINSTEIN • SKIING • CONTEMPORARY BLACK & WHITE PHOTOGRAPHY • TALBOT • MONET • VAN GOGH •
BACK TO SCHOOL POSTER SALE
Most Images Only $5, $6 and $7
Sponsor: WMUA 91.1 FM
Date: Mon. Sept. 6 thru Fri. Sept. 10
Time: 9 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.
Place: Student Union Ballroom
Biggest & Best Selection
STING

Internships abound in arts

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

The Arts Extension Service (AES) of the Division of Continuing Education is recruiting interns for the fall.

The Arts Administration Internship Program provides education and training to people interested in gaining knowledge and skills in arts management. Internships are unpaid.

Positions include program and promotion assistants for the Artist Business Library, desktop publishing and market assistants, arts management education program assistants and a research assistant in community cultural planning. Graduate students are encouraged to apply for this last position.

The 19th annual New England Film and Video Festival has promotion and publicity internships available for the fall and spring semesters. The internships are on campus, although the actual festival takes place in Boston, May 12-14, 1994.

A national arts service organization, AES works to achieve access to and integration of the arts in communities through continuing education for artists, arts organizations and community leaders.

One-on-one training is augmented by workshops addressing arts management skill development, careers in arts management and other topics of interest to interns. The AES program was recognized by the National University Continuing Education Association for creative programming in Continuing Education.

Interested people are invited to attend an information meeting today from 4 to 5 p.m. in Goodell Building, room 602. For further information, call AES at 545-2360.

Bono goes to the ZOO

U2 continues to push their boundaries

By GLEN GOLAND
Collegian Staff

B.B. King and the Edge jammed through the final chords of "When Love Comes to Town" and Bono spoke into the microphone, "We have to go away for a while, and dream it all up again." It was 1990 and his voice was barely audible over the thousands of screaming U2 fans who had gathered to see the last concert in support of the movie soundtrack, Rattle and Hum.

In the fall of 1991, the quartet from Ireland shocked the music industry with a brand new album, Achtung Baby. The album was filled with all sorts of exciting new sounds. The blues sound of Rattle and Hum was gone, political anthems like "Pride" and "Sunday Bloody Sunday" were gone, and Bono was gone.

Bono's alter ego, "The Fly," had taken over and brought with him all the greed and corruption that make up rock and roll. U2 was no longer four Irish guys roaming the desert looking for Joshua Trees; they had become rock stars.

U2 opened its biggest tour ever in Lakelands, Fla., in February 1992. The tour was titled "Zoo TV," and it made stops in the United States, Canada, Europe and Australia. The European leg of the tour was titled "Zooropa" and plans were made to record a four- or five-song EP during a break in European touring.

When U2 arrived at Westland Studios in Dublin, they realized they had enough material for a full-length album. The group called in producer Brian Eno, who had worked on The Unforgettable Fire, Achtung Baby and The Joshua Tree. In three months U2 carved out a 10-song album, Zooropa.

The first song, "Numb," was released in June 1993, and the rest of the album was released a week later. "Numb" features Dave "The Edge" Evans on lead vocals. Evans sang "Van Dieman's Land" on Rattle and Hum and he also wrote and recorded the soundtrack to the movie Captive, so he had singing experience.

In "Numb", Edge chants lines like "Don't move/ Don't talk out of time/ Don't think/ Don't worry everything's just fine, just fine." Bono and drummer Larry Mullen Jr. sing "Fat Lady backing vocals" in the background. "Numb" sounds like nothing U2 has ever done before, and serves as an example of the experimenting the band has been doing musically.

The opening track, called "Zooropa," is filled with popular American slogans like, "Be all that you can be" and "Fly the friendly skies." The song also con-

Turn to ZOOROPA, page 6

3 three opportunities to learn about arts management at the Arts Extension Service

1 Introduction to Arts Management, 3 credits
Meets Mondays, 4 to 6:30 p.m. Offered through the Division of Continuing Education (Fee waiver available to qualified students through support from the UMass Arts Council)

2 Internships at AES/credit possible
•New England Film and Video Festival •Desktop publishing
•Community cultural planning research •Artist Business Library
•Arts management education programs
Meeting: Wed., Sept. 8, 4 p.m., 602 Goodell

3 Work Study Positions
•congenial staff
•nationally respected organization
•great experience

Interested? Call AES, 545-2360 or stop by 602 Goodell.

AES is a program of the Division of Continuing Education.

Cool Cuts & Hair Conditioning
Cleansing Facials
Lash Tinting
Body Waxing
Ease into Fall
GLAMOURAMA
586-8643
7 Old South Street, Northampton
M-F 9-7, Sat 9-5

Natural fibre knitting yarns
NORTHAMPTON WOOLS
Classes and Workshops
413-586-4331
11 Pleasant St., Northampton, MA 01060
Mon-Sat 10-5 Thurs. til 9

CTB CENTRAL TRAVEL
YOUR STUDENT TRAVEL EXPERTS
Air Car Tour Hotel Train Cruise
Complete Travel Services
We Get You There With Money to Spare
Central Travel
25A Pray St.
Amherst, MA 01002
Call... 549-4900
No Charge for American Express Vouchers

Especially For You
Haircare & Beauty Supply
Now at
233 N. Pleasant St., Downtown Amherst Carriage Shops
OPTIMUM • MORNING MAGIC • LUSTER'S
BRAIDS & WEAVES HUMAN & SYNTHETIC & BEADS & MUCH MUCH MORE
Come Down & Browse Around or Call 549-8316 To Place Your Order
FREE Delivery Within The Five-College Area
Especially For You
Hair Care & Beauty Supply Specializing in African American Hair Care Products

Adventures in the Reel World: Best of Summer

By JON LUPO
Collegian Staff

If you had asked me last summer to come up with a "10 Best" summer movie list, I would have laughed in your face, or at least have sneezed. Last summer was just one dumb movie after another, most with roman numerals at the end.

I am pleased to report that this summer is an entirely different matter. Each week it seemed there was another must-see opening, their debuts crowding the screens at the mutiplex. So of course, it was tough to whittle them down to 10 — okay, 11 — best bets.

You may not see one of your favorites or you may cringe at my choices, but hey, get over it. Reviewing movies, especially summer ones, is no easy task; everyone has an opinion, and they all seem to have loved Hocus Pocus. With that in mind, here goes:

1. Jurassic Park — Steven Spielberg delved into his seemingly endless bag of tricks to concoct this summer's — heck, this year's — must-see flick.

Say what you will about the plot holes and lame-o ending, but one glance at those dinosaurs and even a supporting performance by Madonna couldn't have ruined this movie. The way Spielberg packs the action scenes with an abundance of wit, cleverness and scares is the key here, and from then on the weak characterizations and other flaws don't seem to matter.

From the awestruck power of the first glimpse of dinosaurs, to the merciless menace of the T. Rex, to the slippery cunning of the velociraptors, Jurassic Park proves that there's still some life in the mass market summer movie, some genuine sense of wonderment. The book was better of course, but no one directs hype like Spielberg — and delivers. A-

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Emma Thompson, seen here with Anthony Hopkins in The Remains of the Day, is a Lupo favorite.

2. Menace II Society — Twenty-one-year-olds Albert and John Hughes burst onto the cutting edge of cinema with this most superb film that's crackling with tension, dread and sadness. Menace tells, in the boldest, most immediate terms, of the self-destructive genocide sweeping over our inner cities.

Unfolding as an unrelenting series of deadly snapshots of life in Watts, Menace is hard to watch and even harder to ignore. The Hughes brothers take the two leads, the charismatic O-Dog (Larenz Tate) and the questioning Caine (Tyrin Turner) — two basically amoral characters — and show how their actions stem not from stereotypes, but from a shattered society and a culture of violence that seems beyond repair.

From a horrific opening sequence to its bravely scar-filled climax, Menace treads dangerous but ultimately necessary waters to deliver this summer's pre-eminent wake up call. Watch and learn — hard. A-

3. Much Ado About Nothing — Kenneth Branagh has made by far the happiest movie of the summer with this luminous and lush romantic comedy. You can take the rigged luvfest of Sleepless In Seattle. I'd go for this unabashedly amorous, spirited romp that shows Branagh knows how to make movies come alive.

Branagh and the sumptuous Emma Thompson engage in wonderfully biting vocal volleys, while Denzel Washington, Robert Sean Leonard, Michael Keaton and gulp, Keanu Reeves come along for the ride in Shakespeare's enjoyable tale of love and mistaken identity set in a sun-drenched Italian villa. The cast is tanned and gorgeous and it looks like they're having the time of their lives. Funny thing, so was I. A-

4. The Fugitive and In the Line of Fire (tie) — Two crackerjack commercial efforts that prove there's still some creativity and entertainment to be found in formula.

The Fugitive has Harrison Ford — the Cary Grant of understatement — on the run form a seemingly unstoppable federal marshal (a great Tommy Lee Jones). That's all it really needs, but director Andrew Davis (Under Seige) keeps the momentum hot and relentless, while engineering one crafty close call after another. Breathlessly satisfying.

As for In the Line of Fire, Clint Eastwood, ready to become our latest living movie icon, is charming and effective as he tries to battle an unsettling assassin played with icy venom by perennial ham John Malkovich.

Just as momentous as when Garbo laughed, Clint cries in Fire and even manages to romance Rene Russo with panache. Eastwood and Malkovich make perfect sparring partners and their final confrontation is expertly staged. Both films: A-

5. Searching for Bobby Fischer — Yes, yes, yes. All the good things you've heard about this badly titled but truly wonderful movie are true. Josh Watizkin, a 7-year-old chess prodigy played by newcomer Max Pomeranc, is our guide into the surprisingly thrilling and nearly cutthroat world of championship chess.

Yet the film isn't nearly the dopey Karate Kid knockoff one might expect. It's a studied, admirable story of a little kid with a gift, his parents (played with strength by Joe Mantegna and Joan Allen) and their hopes of, and astonishment at, that gift — as well as the fear.

The chess sequences are executed with a brilliant form of kinetic grace, and the more than solid supporting work by Laurence Fishburne and Ben Kingsley make Fischer the intelligent sleeper of the summer. A-

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jean-Claude Van Damme

6. Manhattan Murder Mystery — Woody Allen leaves the shadows and fog behind to come up with this delightfully funny and clever screwball mystery. Re-teaming with his Annie Hall co-star Diane Keaton, she and Allen play bored Manhattanites who begin to suspect their neighbor has murdered his wife.

Allen turns in his most neurotic and funniest performance in years and Keaton is refreshingly un-Mia (if there's one thing good that has come out of the whole break-up, it's that we won't have to sit through another Allen flick with whiny Mia and her bag of tics.) It wouldn't be an Allen movie without the relationship subplot, but here, co-star Alan Alda and Angelica Huston keep it from taking over the film.

With plenty of sly film allusions, including a particularly inspired Lady from Shanghai conclusion, Mystery gets more engrossing and amusing as the plot thickens. Good stuff. A-

7. Dave — This early summer hit is classy, old-fashioned, feel-good fluff, and that's only part of its charm.

Kevin Kline turns in a dandy, robust performance as a nobody who ends up standing in for the incapacitated president. Dave's innocence and genuine good intentions are almost contagious, while director Ivan Reitman doesn't let the film get to preachy or schmalzy — a rarity in movies today.

Reitman is also the first director to invoke Capraesque themes without resorting to mere imitation and hollow ironies. The romance with Sigourney Weaver is a bit underwritten but its happy ending is more than well-earned. B+

8. Like Water for Chocolate — All's fair in love and cooking. The summer's most accessible foreign movie is a beguiling erotic fantasy about love, passion and food — sometimes all at once. Lumi Cavazos plays Tita, a quiet young woman who loves a man her evil mother (Regina Torne) won't let her marry.

What follows is a rich and, regrettably, sometimes mawkish soap opera, complete with adultery, murder and even vengeful ghosts. Despite this, Chocolate triumphs because of its memorable imagery and the fact that beneath the foreign accents and myriad of subplots, this is just a grown-up fairy tale about two people who want to love each other and how others keep messing things up.

The ending goes overboard, but Chocolate holds its viewers under such a haunting spell that you probably won't care. B+

9. What's Love Got to Do With It? — If it wasn't for the superb, on-target performances by the rapturous Angela Basset and Laurence Fishburne, this chronicle of Tina and Ike Turner's stormy (to say the least) relationship could have been a chintzy A Star is Born retread.

The real strength is how Bassett and Fishburne — both underrated no matter how much they're praised — transcend easy impersonations and TV-movie clichés. Fishburne plays Ike as a charming svengali who turns jealous and insecure, and actually makes him sympathetic. All the way through, Basset keeps it understated, showing both the personal nightmares and public genius with equal resonance. The end is a triumphant chapter mark for a woman whose life is still a work in progress. B+

COURTESY TRISTAR PICTURES

Mia Farrow, seen here in Husbands and Wives, is not a Lupo favorite.

10. Hard Target — Trust me, I was very surprised that any movie with the Belgian Buffoon Jean-Claude Van Damme in it would make any list except the 10 worst. Credit Hong Kong action movie auteur John Woo for propelling what could have been another stupid waste of celluloid into an exhilaratingly ridiculous shoot 'em up. Woo re-invents a stale genre and invigorates it with loopy, exhausting fervor.

There isn't much to say about the plot, or rather, the plot doesn't have much to say, but it's really Woo's cooly stylized action set pieces that stand out. It's not hard to figure out that the gun is a major phallic symbol (Woo nearly pushes it to the point of parody) and that in the end, the gun is more important than the girl.

Excessively violent and terrifically goofy, Target is really just pulpy, self-conscious trash given a big budget sheen — but it's also the best brainless fun you'll have all summer. B+

First Week

The Division of Student Activities presents

Wednesday September 8
Comedy Club with Master Lee

Tonight

followed by the
"Rocky Horror Picture Show"

Campus Center Auditorium, 8:00 pm
$2.00 admission

Thursday, September 9
REGGAE DANCE with the New Horizons Band; Campus Center Auditorium. 9pm to 1 am, $2.00.

Friday, September 10
FIRST ANNUAL STUDENT COMEDY CONTEST. Also featured on the show will be comediennes Lisa Ann Walters and Rhonda Hansome from New York. Campus Center Auditorium, showtime is 7pm, $2.00.

D.J. DANCE with "Studio Guam Productions" from Springfield. Student Union Ballroom. 9pm to 1 am, $2.00.

Our Admission policy:
A $2.00 ticket, purchased at any First Week event between Wednesday and Friday, can be used for admission to all remaining First Week Programs

SIGN-UP for the First Annual Student Comedy Contest. If you can tell jokes or funny stories here is your opportunity to show your stuff. 5 to 10 minutes max. CASH PRIZES. Call the Student Activities Office. 545-3600.

If your hair and tan isn't becoming to you, you should be coming to us
TANNING
at Carol's Headquarters
Intro Special: 8 Sessions for $29.95
115 Russell St. • Rt. 9 Hadley • 584-9948

Main St RECORDS
One of the area's largest selections of Imported, Independant & Domestic Records, Cassettes and Compact Discs
586 5726
213 MAIN ST

SON OF Main St RECORDS
Tens of Thousands of Used, Cut outs & Collectible Records and Cassettes 586 1707
21 STATE ST
NORTHAMPTON

Dance Stuff '90
220 N. Pleasant St. (Rear), Amherst, MA
For the Dancer, Gymnast, Fitness Minded
We have all supplies for dance majors
Fun Bodywear! Great Shoes! 253-5201

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湖園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet served 5-8pm Sun-Thurs.
Brunch served Sunday 11:30am-3pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3pm - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

August the First
✧ Beads
✧ Jewelry Supplies
✧ Finished Jewelry
44 Main Street, Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
413-256-0276
Welcome Back Special
10% Off Your Purchase
Through September 30th

■ Zooropa

continued from page 3

tains images of utter confusion: "I've been hiding, what am I hiding from?" and "Don't worry baby/ It's gonna be alright/ Uncertainty. . . can be a guiding light." "Zooropa" sounds like a song that was left off Achtung Baby and serves as a strong opening number.

"Some Days are Better than Others" appears to be a song about life in general. "Some days take less/ but most days take more/ some slip through your fingers and onto the floor/ Some days . . . it all adds up/ and what you got is enough/ some days are better than others." This is a fast-paced song (that sounds nothing like the beer ad.)

Old timer Johnny Cash leads his trembling voice on the album's final track, "The Wanderer," a strong example of how far U2 has come since releasing The Joshua Tree in 1987.

Bono has tried to shed his serious image and no longer felt comfortable singing, "I went out walking through streets paved with gold/ lifted some stones/ saw the skin and bones/ of a city without a soul." Bono is through singing about politics and poverty, so he surrendered the singing duties to Cash.

Zooropa is a continuation of the thoughts and ideas from Achtung Baby. While not as powerful and definitely not as good as Achtung Baby, Zooropa is proof that U2 is not afraid to test the boundaries of their musical abilites. The group recently signed a six-record deal with their label, island Records, and it's a safe bet that these musical boundaries will surely be tested again and again, until U2 finds what it is looking for.

Bernhard's second novel a bit too hollow, juvenile

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

With her unique wit and general disregard for propriety, comedienne Sandra Bernhard takes her readers on a violently sensual roller coaster ride of amorous adventure in her latest book Love, Love, and Love.

Best known for her role as the obsessed fan in Scorsese's The King of Comedy and her lewd antics on television's "Late Night with David Letterman," Bernhard seems to have a more difficult time entertaining with the written word in Love, her second book.

Of course her sarcastic humor and her ability to say anything — shamelessly — holds true in this book. But Bernhard is not being fair with her readers. She is holding back. Even the book jacket isn't straight with the reader because Love is described there as "a mixture of memoir, fiction, invented memoir and fiction that rings with the truth."

There is a difference between what has happened to a person and what they wish to be true about their past — especially when the topic is Bernhard's stories of romance, sex and relationships with both genders. The reader is never told which tales are true and which are false.

Love is written in a variety of forms: poetry, play, dream sequences and straight prose.

It is difficult to feel anything for Bernhard's sketchy, hollow characters or her own juvenile antics. She includes a

Turn to LOVE, page 8

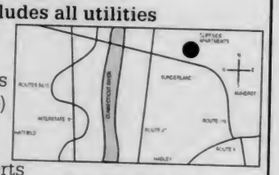
on RNX 100.9 FM

THR. SEPT. 9
SOUNDCHECK
at 9 p.m.
The Zen Cats
live in studio

FRI. SEPT. 10
Mike Thorton
10 p.m.-2 a.m.
WIN TICKETS TO DEPECHE MODE

SAT. SEPT. 11
ON THE EDGE
11 p.m.-Midnight
• Ziggy Marley
• Blind Melon
• Cranberries

SUN. SEPT. 12
The Blues Show with Blue Bill & Black Bart
6-9 p.m.



TOP FIVE REQUESTS
1. The Story, "So Much Mine"
2. Radiohead, "Creep"
3. Blind Melon, "No Rain"
4. Marc Con, "Paper Walls"
5. Tears For Fears, "Break It Down Again"

PLAYING IN THEIR CAR
BUDDY'S PICK
The Story, "Angel In the House"

WRNX 100.9 FM

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2

- Eff., 1, 2, &3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $420 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

ARTworks

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL. Over 25 years of providing grant support, financial resource networking, and arts information to student organizations & academic departments; addressing contemporary issues, identity, and the values of cultural awareness...

SUPPORTING THE ARTS...the Arts Council awards Block Grants and Single Project/Event Grants to RSO's and UMass groups that present arts related events and programs.

ARTS INFORMATION...the Arts Council publishes ARTSITINGS, a bi-weekly arts calendar of programs at the Five Colleges; ART NOTICE:NOTICE ART, a monthly gallery banner promoting all six of the UMass galleries. Available by mail, at galleries, box offices and information centers at the Five Colleges.

ARTS MANAGEMENT...courses and internships for UMass students are supported by the Arts Council through Arts Extension Services.

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL...is funded primarily by a portion of the student Arts Fee. Council members include undergraduate and graduate students, alumni, faculty, and professional staff appointed by representative senates. If you would like to become a Council member contact your Senate or the Arts Council.

GRANT DEADLINES...for the Fall are 9/24, 10/22, and 11/19. Applications are available at the Arts Council and Student Activities Office. Consultations and help with applying can be arranged.

For more information, contact the UMASS ARTS COUNCIL at 203 Hasbrouck 545-0202

Inclined and Shockra return to Northampton

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

East meets West tomorrow night at Pearl Street Nightclub, when Shockra and Inclined promise to bring the house down.

Boston's Shockra is a five-piece band which plays a variety of styles ranging from jazz and funk to rock and blues, all with a cutting psychedelic edge. Their music is often socially or politically charged, and they are known for their jams, described as "long, Grateful Dead-like space jams with a groove you can dance to," by Gary Susman of the Phoenix.

Principal songwriter Dave Watts' deep-groove drumming and Edwin Hurwitz's funky bass lines are the backbone of Shockra's rhythm section. Dan Coutu's percussive keyboard work and original sampled sound effects add to the band's sound.

Felix Rentschler, an innovative guitarist and composer, contributes a unique blend of melodic and rhythmic styles in both his compositions and his guitar work. Firmly rooted in R & B, Jeff Grove's singing and saxophone adds yet another dimension to their already complex sound.

Coutu on keys keeps that beat electrified, which is what their logo represents. The triangle with the lightning bolt within it over the man arching backwards is the French symbol for "warning — electricity." The band borrowed the warning sign and their name, which sounds just like the "chakras" of yoga, the six energy centers of the spine.

Also performing will be the Los Angeles trio Inclined, which consists of lead singer and guitarist Miles Tackett, drummer Steve Smart and bassist Gene Perry. The group still jokingly argues over the genesis of their name, but the final impetus to accept "Inclined" seems clear: the dictionary definition caught Miles' eye.

"It said, 'Veering from a set course or path,'" he recalls. "It encompassed a lot of cool things: progress, spontaneity, change — taking a new, unpaved road."

COURTESY FAMILY TREE PRODUCTIONS

Shockra will be appearing at Pearl Street tomorrow night.

Their latest album, Bright New Day, showcases inclined's gift for blending a wide variety of rock, funk and jazz influences. One of those influences is Miles' father, Fred Tackett, guitarist and trumpeter for Little Feat (in addition to his work with Bob Dylan, Bob Seger, Tom Waits and Boz Scaggs).

"It was a natural environmental influence," Miles admits. "He was like a musical library to me, and contributed a lot to my diversity. I grew up listening to everything from bluesy, soulful stuff to country and jazz. His lyrics always had a real personal quality. He encouraged me to be more introspective."

But despite his father's influence, Miles has chosen a musical path quite different from his father's. Miles first studied piano, then cello (featured on the lively suite "She Won't Go"), and finally guitar. Actively involved in the underground hip hop community, Miles also records and produces several rappers, among them The Poetess (on Interscope records), Urban Prop (Capitol Records), and basketball star Shaquille O'Neal (of the Orlando Magic).

Inclined's song lyrics are surprisingly thought-provoking for such a young group of musicians — all of whom are 23 years old. Miles Tackett's soulful vocals infuse each song, especially "Bright New Day": "We believe that we are one/ No separate tribe or race. . . . higher ground for us to practice what we preach/ Know what we teach/ A bright new day for us to reach."

Uncertainty and improvisation add an exciting edge to their galvanizing live shows. "Spontaneity is the key," Perry says. "We love to make it up as we go along — it's total immediate gratification." Echoing the sentiment, Smart bluntly describes his intuitive drumming approach: "I don't like to think too much about what I'm playing, I just do it."

Inclined first began making music together at age 15 in 1984, when Perry and Smart, pals since childhood, met Tackett in junior high school. In addition to becoming close friends, the three forged a strong musical bond, with a broad array of shared influences ranging from rock and funk to jazz and hip hop.

Their tastes span the entire musical spectrum, from Tackett's admiration of Echo and The Bunnymen, Jungle Brothers, Main Source and little Feat to Perry's love of Miles Davis, Steely Dan and Bill Frisell; to Smart's passion for Jimi Hendrix and Cream.

God Street Wine will also be performing with Inclined and Shockra. The show begins at 8 p.m. in Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton.

NEW IN AMHERST
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Traditional Chinese Cuisine
Relax and enjoy yourself at our beautiful Newly remodeled Facility • Sunny Greenhouse • Beautiful Lounge with Big Screen TV.
Serving Lunch & Dinner 7 days a week • Lunch Specials served daily
"Largest Chinese Restaurant in Hampshire County"
PLENTY OF FREE PARKING
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK • 11:30AM-10PM
FRIDAYS & SATURDAYS TILL 11PM
WITH COUPON 10% OFF DINING ROOM OR CARRY OUT • DINNER • ONLY
351 Northampton Rd. • Rte. 9 • Amherst
Corner of Rte. 9 & University Dr. • 256-8800

Everyone needs a PAAL.

Stay protected with the PAAL. Quorum's Personal Attack Alarm that blasts 105dB (min.) when you simply pull the pin. Choose either the standard or sports model. Carry it to school, the mall, the park, wherever you go. PAAL lets out a cry for help wherever you need it. And only Quorum gives you that kind of technology and security. Quorum Securing Life

Lori Belloti
(413) 256-3115

Thrills
Write for the Arts & Living Section.
You'll enjoy fun times with some swell guys and gals!
113 Campus Center
545-1361

Sounds Easy Video Stores
"The Intelligent Choice"

When you're ready to relax, fast break to Sounds Easy Video.
Free Membership, VCR Rentals, 3 Days 2 Night Rentals, Friendly Service, and Large Selection.
Amherst • 6 University Dr. 549-5200 • Sun.-Thurs. 10-10 • Fri.-Sat. 10-11
Northampton • Hamp Plaza, King St. 586-7260 • Sun.-Thurs. 10-10 • Fri.-Sat. 10:30-10:30
Greenfield • 20 Mohawk Trail 772-2141 • Sun.-Sat. 10-10

COUPONS

RENT 2 MOVIES at reg. price
Get one FREE
Good Mon.-Thurs.
Keep for 3 days and 2 nights
Includes new releases
One Coupon Per Customer.
Expires Oct. 31, 1993 Col.

NEW MEMBERS
Sign Up For A Free Membership And Receive A Free Rental With The Rental Of A Second Movie.
One Coupon Per Customer. Offers not to be combined.
Expires Oct. 31, 1993 Col.

4 Pack Special
Rent 4 Movies And Receive 2 Liter Bottle of Soda Or Microwave Popcorn All For $8.99
Monday Thru Thursday Only
One Coupon Per Customer
Offers Not To Be Combined
Expires Oct.. 31, 1993 Col.

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

■ Love

continued from page 6

hasty, hateful epistle to an ex-girlfriend. The letter doesn't create any sympathy or empathy for Bernhard — only horror that she could write such a venomous item to another human being.

Bernhard creates a violent scene without saying what events came before it — not that hurting people has any justification — but it would help the reader to understand where she was coming from. Instead, Bernhard comes off as unstable. Sometimes Bernhard uses only a few pages to summarize an entire relationship.

It is passages like this which aggravate the reader and one can't help but wonder if Bernhard was feeling the hot breath of an editor on her neck, urging her to make deadline instead of a quality book.

But there are nuggets of wonderful prose. Easily one of the strongest appears early on; Bernhard is selective with her words and they pack a punch: "Love is the only shocking act left on the face of earth. Eroticism, murder, betrayal, starvation, torture, war — all pale in the face of love."

Bernhard also wins points for the few and far between passages when she chooses to flesh out her characters with detailed descriptions.

Sometimes her writing seems to be just a list of crazy shenanigans and love affairs Bernhard has taken part in. She begins a passage reminiscing about her childhood and it may not be until two or three paragraphs later that you finally laugh, eyes bugging out, and say, "That did not happen."

But that's part of the charm of the book. It comes across as the bragging of an insecure teenage girl telling of her sexual exploits to get attention — not sympathy or empathy — merely to shock. The reader has to work too hard to read between the lines and see the turmoil and pain Bernhard must harbor to have written some of the violent scenes or, heaven forbid, to have lived through them.

She herself even acknowledged the fact that she may be a little more disturbed than the average person.

"A woman who read my last book told me that when she finished it she thought to herself, 'This is a very unhappy person, I really hope she finds love in her life,'" Bernhard said. "I thought about it a lot while writing this book, what she'll think of me now?"

What she gains by using a variety of subjects (a London laundromat, going back to the house she grew up in, ordering lunch in Rome, phone sex, death, a train ride) is cancelled out by her inability to stay with one strong storyline or theme that could evoke emotion.

The last section of the book contains the barely legible, unfinished pieces. With no small amount of sarcasm, Bernhard explains their inclusion in the book: "I always find it interesting and revealing to see what people don't include."

It seems fitting that in a book of (some) memoir there would be pieces written in the author's handwriting. They make the book distinctly more personal.

Perhaps her most telling line is when she writes, "Oh, I'm always acting, I'm acting out my whole life, acting out a scene no matter where I am." I'd like to read a book by Bernhard where she really opens her heart to love and leaves the bravado and acting at home.

Take that!

COURTESY WORCESTER ART MUSEUM

"Cain and Abel" (1886) by Odilon Redon, is an etching with drypoint and can be seen at the Worcester Art Museum until Nov. 7 as part of "Master Printmakers, The Poetic Visions of Odilon Redon."

how to break each other down watch our love crumble tumble slowly like a clumsy boulder rolling down into the sea off the cliffs of distant memory tricks we've played to break each others spirit see the tears fall
small drops of bitter rain that splash down my gutter no one did it better than you my dear friend my lover who did it first your father your mother

– excerpt from "Love, Love, and Love"

"NAUGHTY YET HILARIOUS"
Gross Yet Laughable, Tasteless Yet witty, Revolting Yet Funny...Words Can Hardly Describe the FUN STUFF AT JOKE CITY.
Come See For Yourself! JOKE CITY Come See For Yourself!
1,001 laughs in store for you at
233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 549-8117
(in the carriage shops)

Hairworks PLUS
HAIR, NAILS, TANNING AND SO MUCH MORE
Nail Nails Tanning
Located Next To Super Stop & Shop
Phone: 253-3334
Open Evenings Until 8PM
Sebastian, Nexxus, KMS, Paul Michell, Redkin
$5.00 OFF One Month Unlimited Tanning Exp. 10/31/93
$2.00 OFF Any Manicure Exp. 10/31/93
10% OFF Any Retail Items Exp. 10/31/93

ADVOCATE ★BEST★ OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1992 1st Place
PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
Mon. - Thurs. ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET $5.99
SUNDAY BRUNCH - ALL YOU CAN EAT $6.99 11:30 - 3PM
20% OFF DINNERS FOR COMEDY PATRONS FRI. & SAT.
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK LUNCH AND DINNER
586-1202 FREE PARKING 北京園 ON RT. 9 HADLEY MASTER CARD VISA

Friendly's
Great Food and Ice Cream
FREE Original Sundae with any Super Melt Purchase.
Hampshire Mall Hadley
Russell St. (Rt. 9) Hadley
Valid through Oct. 31st, 1993
Good only at Hampshire Mall and Russell St.
Not good with any other promotions or discounts
One Coupon per person.

Call Opticians
Prescriptions Accurately Filled
STYLISH EYEWEAR
HEARING AIDS
30% OFF Serengeti Bolle Ray Ban
Parking Available • Handicap Accessible
178 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA
253-6375 or 256-6375

Professor to return to Nigeria as a cabinet minister Page 2

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
70° Thursday September 9, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 2
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

UM campus may grow pot for state

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

Last Thursday state health officials announced they will consider growing or producing marijuana through the University of Massachusetts for medical purposes.

The Burton-Nazzi Act of 1991 legalized marijuana in Massachusetts for the treatment of cancer, glaucoma and asthma.

Vice-President of the UMass Cannabis Reform Coalition Aaron Wilson said the plan to possibly grow hemp is a response to Massachusetts' inability to get federal approval, and to the "Diversion Act."

"Under the Diversion Act, the state's source of marijuana would be marijuana confiscated by the police," Wilson said. "But people from the medical field objected to the plan because they said they would rather grow the plant under controlled conditions to assure quality."

The act was introduced into the Massachusetts legislature in mid-July, but was never passed.

Marijuana is currently used to reduce nausea caused by chemotherapy treatment given to cancer patients. It is also used to stimulate the appetites of AIDS patients to combat the "wasting away syndrome." Marijuana has also been used to help people suffering from glaucoma retain their vision.

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci said the state will consider producing marijuana in pill form so the drug will resemble "traditional" forms of medicine and to reduce the "stigma" of using marijuana.

Wilson disagrees with Cellucci's stance. He said there are several advantages to growing the plant versus synthetically producing the drug in pill form.

"It is very difficult for patients to control their dosage when the drug is in pill form because the pills are usually too potent," he said. "If they smoke it, it is easier to determine how much and how often they need the drug."

Wilson said the pill is more expensive because patients have to be hospitalized, and it costs $600 per day to receive the drug in pill form. He also said most patients quickly get over the fear of using marijuana as medication.

"There is usually some resistance at first," he said. "But when a responsible physician describes the benefits of the drug, most people get over their fear of it. Marijuana is legal for medical purposes. If you are a sick person, you want your medicine."

Wilson said the amount of marijuana the university could produce if they adopt the plan would depend on how many purposes the government plans to use the drug for.

"If they plan to use marijuana only for the treatment

Turn to POT, page 6

Sitting on the dock of Southwest

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Junior accounting major Peter Sloan keeps stress-free while waiting for an elevator on moving-in day.

Town opens ear to students

Commission formed to build relations with campus

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Correspondent

The Amherst Commission on Civility and Community Relations met Tuesday night to discuss what is hoped to be a brighter fall semester than in years past.

The group gathered to review policies that will affect Amherst residents and the UMass and Amherst police.

The five-member board, chaired by Amherst resident Joseph Swartz, a graduate of UMass, highlighted residents' complaints about noise, vandalism and even tailgating before football games.

Most noise complaints come from residential neighborhoods surrounding the uptown bars and the routes to and from Southwest, according to the board. Some solutions were offered, but none represented the voice of students and commuters living in Amherst.

"I think you need to inform people of the rules before you try to apply them," said University Police Chief John W. Luippold.

A definite lack of communication between the students and residents was cited, and solutions such as creating student-resident forums and panels were suggested by Luippold.

According to the board, student life has changed in years past for residents. They said not only are students going out more, but they are staying out later hours.

Swartz and the board suggested activities to accommodate students under the age of 21 such as later movie showings, better movies and more activities on campus.

Chief Luippold said a positive outcome will result from the new keg law and only a handful of violations were filed last semester.

However, he said he is concerned by an increase in the number of incidents related to domestic violence, an increase in restraining orders and also problems with alcohol-related occurrences.

"Enforcement is only a small part in coming to a solution," said Paul Vasconcellos, the assistant dean of students at the University and also a board member.

The board agreed that a communication tie between residents and students must be established to clear up many confusions, including the difference between Amherst law and UMass policy and the keg licensing laws.

Senate okays national service bill

By ROBERT NAYLOR JR.
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate gave final approval Wednesday to a $1.5 billion compromise version of President Clinton's plan for students to earn college money in exchange for national service.

The 57-40 vote gave Clinton the first all-new program of his administration. The bill now goes to the White House for his signature.

Clinton said the vote was "in the best sense of reinventing government." He praised the Senate action as "yet another opportunity for change for the American people."

The program could be up and running by next June, said Eli Segal, who heads Clinton's Office of National Service. The legislation goes into effect on Oct. 1.

The bill was supported by 51 Democrats and six Republicans while four Democrats and 36 Republicans opposed it.

"On the one hand, President Clinton says national service will be the centerpiece of his administration and on the other hand that he wants to reinvent government," Sen. Bob Bole, Kan., the Senate Republican leader, said in a floor speech. "Well, we think when we talk about reinventing government we're talking about less government, less new programs."

"The fact that our colleagues misstate fact time and time again... may be persuasive to some people but it does not represent accuracy, veracity or truth," Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, said.

He said if the program did not work, Congress could scrap it.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., argued that the bill is "fraught with... overlapping programs, unnecessary legislative requirements and cumbersome bureaucratic structures."

She called it ironic that the Senate was considering the legislation a day after Clinton presented his "reinventing government" plan to streamline the federal bureaucracy and cut costs by $108 billion over five years.

"We have lost a tremendous opportunity... to lead the way in reinventing government," she said. "We chose to take the old tried and true way."

Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., countered that the National Service program was an "innovative public-private partnership" that is "part of a process of reinventing government, not by more government but by igniting citizen action and citizen responsibility."

Under terms of the compromise, students who complete two years of community service work can earn $4,725 a year to apply toward college tuition. Clinton initially proposed $5,000 a year.

Participants also would receive living allowances of at least $7,400 a year and health care and child day care

Turn to BILL, page 7

Arafat seeks PLO support on peace deal

By SALAH NASRAWI
Associated Press

TUNIS, Tunisia — Yasser Arafat prepared on Wednesday to ask the PLO' ruling body to approve his peace deal with Israel, amid indications that mutual recognition between the Palestinians and the Jewish state was imminent.

The Executive Committee's approval is the key hurdle before the groundbreaking peace accord for Palestinian self-rule in the occupied Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho can be signed.

Arafat's meeting with the ruling committee promised to be stormy because of strong opposition to the deal from radical PLO factor. He is expected to win the backing of a majority of the panel.

Arafat arrived in Tunis after a brief stopover in Cairo, en route from Oman, where Sultan Qaboos welcomed the

Turn to PLO, page 7

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Arts & Living Editor.....Lisa J. Curtis
Black Affairs Editor.....
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....
Jewish Affairs Editor.....
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
Third World Affairs Editor.....
Women's Issues Editor.....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Jason Janoff
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Brian Harrington, Marty Pappas
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Collegian advertising.
545-3500
It works.

Prof to join Nigerian cabinet

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

University professor Bartholomew Nnaji has been named Minister for Science and Technology in Nigeria.

Nnaji, a native of Nigeria, was sworn in by a tri-partite committee made up of representatives from the country's two political parties working with the government.

An interim civilian administration is leading the country, replacing the military government that has been in power for the past eight years, according to Nnaji. The government plans to hold democratic elections in the near future.

Nnaji's appointment will last seven months. During that time he will be on a leave of absence from the University.

According to Nnaji, he will oversee policies involving technological developments and science to help further industrial advancements in the country.

A graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg, Va., Nnaji received his master's and doctoral degrees in industrial engineering and operations research at that university.

Nnaji is the director of the department of automation and robotics lab, which he established in 1984. He has been a member of the UMass faculty since 1983.

Founder and president of Geometric Machines Corporation, an Amherst-based firm that specializes in software development and computer-aided design for industry, Nnaji is the editor in chief of the International Journal of Design and Manufacturing.

Recipient of the 1992 United Technology Outstanding Teaching Award, Nnaji was also awarded the 1991 Outstanding Young Industrial Engineer Award presented by the Institute of Industrial Engineers.

Nnaji has been a consultant for the United Nations Development Program, which was assigned to establish the Nigerian National Agency for Science and Engineering Infrastructure along the lines of the United States National Science Foundation.

Springfield leaders study infant deaths

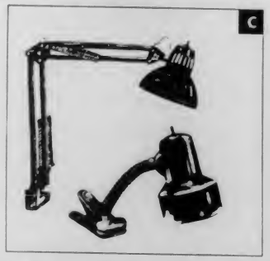
By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — Leaders said Wednesday that the city must repair its bruised sense of community before it can permanently curb the second highest rate of infant deaths in the state.

"Infant mortality is a vital statistic that gives you the pulse of how healthy a community is," said Maria Morales-Loebl, co-chairwoman of the Springfield Infant Mortality Coalition. "I got a sense from what we did that people felt very disconnected as a community."

The coalition, a state-funded network of community groups, released a report, "Seeds of Hope," to identify the causes of infant deaths and develop an action plan. Members are alarmed because Springfield has failed to parallel the state's steady drop in infant mortality in recent years.

Since 1987, the city's rate has risen from 7.2 to 9.9 deaths per 1,000 births in 1991, the latest year of the statistics. That means that 9.9 Springfield children per 1,000 survive birth but die within a year.



The statewide infant mortality rate slid steadily downward during the same period, from 7.2 to 6.5.

(413) 549-1840
JUNGLE RED
VISION
Nails
Colors
Perms
Lower Level, Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant / Amherst, MA 01002

Downstairs

a

b

c

d

Posters
Lighting
Bedspreads
Rugs
Bookcases
Chairs
and more good stuff

at Faces

a. Rugs: dhurries, orientals, rags & more. From $7.95 to $69.95
b. Posters: over 1,000 designs. From $3.95 to $30.00
c. Lighting: task lamps, desk, clip-on, halogen & floor styles. From $7.95 to $79.95
d. Folding Bookcase: black or natural. $49.95 also desks, TV carts, tables & more.

northampton • main street • 7 days

Thrills
Write for the Arts & Living Section.
You'll enjoy fun times with some swell guys and gals!
113 Campus Center
545-1361
The Collegian Party Band

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Local News

State matches bond for $200 million in repairs

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

The President's Office of the University of Massachusetts will be issuing a bond to raise money for repair and maintenance work on the five campuses.

The value of the bond will be $100 million to be divided up among each campus.

Gov. William Weld recently announced the state would match the University's bond, allowing for one bond to be issued for $200 million.

Moody's and Standard & Poor will be the two companies that will determine the financial health of the University and will then base a rating of the bond accordingly. Before a rating can be set, a sense of the value of an institution must be determined.

Interest rates on the bond will also be affected by the interest rates at the time.

No ratings have been set as of yet. Paul Page, vice chancellor of administration and finance, said it is possible the rating will be set within 30 to 60 days.

The University will have to pay interest on the bond each year for about 20 years.

Bill Wright, director of public relations for the president's office, said "It's hard to say," if tuition and fees will need to be raised in order to pay the interest.

However, Page said the University does not anticipate raising the tuition. "The money is built into the institutional budget," Page said.

The University has issued bonds in the past to pay for other projects. For example, a bond paid for part of the construction of the Mullins Center. Student fees were raised to pay for the interest on the bond.

Wright said each campus provided a list of repairs needed. "Health and safety projects will be the priority," he said.

On the Amherst campus, many of the buildings will be repaired and new ones built.

Repairs have been done on campus, but Page estimated that money specifically designated for routine repairs on campus has not been given in about five years. Capital money, money set aside for major repairs or construction, was used previously to pay for maintenance.

"The repair money is pretty well dried up," Page said.

Peter Wozniak, director of the physical plant, said the condition of the campus is "fair to good." The physical plant is responsible for all repairs and maintenance on campus.

Wozniak said some of the newer buildings on campus need a few repairs that will not be obvious once completed. The older buildings on campus need the attention, such as Wilder and French Hall.

"Older buildings like French Hall may have to be taken off line if money is not put into them," he said.

Repairs and construction will not begin until the bond is issued

In a hole in the ground

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Seemingly oblivious to traditional superstitious beliefs about ladders, two men work in the Parking Garage.

New lab to serve disabled students

By GEOFF REGAN
Collegian Correspondent

For many visually and physically disabled students here at UMass, the use of a computer is a difficult, if not impossible, task. The computer keyboard and monitor are not easily accessible to most disabled students. Fortunately, equal access and independence to computer terminals at the University is right around the corner.

Due in large part to the Disability Services department and Auxilliary Services, the University of Massachusetts has received a $26,000 grant from the Digital Equipment Corp. of Maynard, Mass. The money from this grant will be used to establish an adaptive computer lab for the approximately 125 disabled students on campus.

Currently, the University is awaiting the five Digital computers and file server that will augment the special computer equipment the University has already obtained.

The computer lab is slated to open on the 16th floor of the Tower Library by the first week of October. The adaptive lab will contain computers modified with magnification equipment and voice synthesizers for the visually impaired and blind students on campus.

Turn to LAB, page 16

Professor dies of heart attack

Peers describe Vincent Dethier as an expert, mentor

Vincent G. Dethier, a UMass biology professor, died yesterday at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton after suffering a heart attack at the University.

Dethier, 78, an Amherst resident, leaves his wife, Lois Evelyn, and two sons, Jehan Vincent and Paul Georges.

An expert in neuroscience, Dethier became the first director of the University's neuroscience and behavior program in 1986.

A Boston native, Dethier received his bachelor's degree from Harvard University in 1936. He also earned his master's in 1937 and his doctoral degree in 1939, both from the same university.

He joined the UMass faculty in 1975. Previously, he worked on the faculty of John Carroll University, The Ohio State University, Johns Hopkins University, the University of Pennsylvania and Princeton University.

He received a number of honorary degrees, and was a fellow of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Philospophical Society and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Dethier, an expert in neuroscience, became the first director of the University's neuroscience and behavior program in 1986.

He also worked in the fields of entomology, ecology and biochemistry.

Dethier received the John Burroughs Medal for Distinguished Nature Writing in 1992 for his book Crickets and Katydids, Concerts and Solos. The publication received favorable reviews from both the Wall Street Journal and Smithsonian Magazine.

Although he was not an entomologist, Dethier was known as an expert on flies and how they function. His interest in nature was apparent in his writing, photography, painting and drawing.

In a statement released late yesterday, Provost Glen Gordon said, "Vince had a deep appreciation for the complexity of living things. His love for nature illuminated his research and scholarship."

He was also recognized for his extensive studies on the host plant relationship of plant-feeding caterpillars and investigation of the chemical senses of insects.

"He was a superb mentor to younger faculty members," said psychology professor Karen Fite, someone who understood how to balance difficult issues."

Dethier was a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II and worked as an Air Force epidemiologist in Africa and the Middle East.

Dethier served as the first chair of the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations, which was created at the University in 1980.

"Vincent Dethier was one of the most respected and genuinely liked members of our University faculty and he will be deeply missed," Chancellor David K. Scott said in a statement issued yesterday.

Dethier was a communicant at the Newman Center. Details for the funeral were incomplete at press time but are being arranged by the Douglass Funeral Home in Amherst.

Wire reports contributed to this story.

-TRACY MONAHAN

Carpe diem, class of '97

By JENNIFER C. EDWARDS
Collegian Correspondent

Sunday night hundreds of University first-year students marched by the residential areas on their way to the Mullins Center for convocation, where the UMass faculty and staff extended their welcome to the class of 1997.

Following an opening fanfare by campus herald Walter Chesnut, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Thomas B. Robinson led the welcoming remarks.

Robinson greeted the class of 1997 and encouraged students to take advantage of the opportunities that await them.

"Our futures begin as we seize the day," Robinson said.

Robinson was followed by Student Government President David Nuñezwho recommended that first-year students get involved on campus.

"There is something for everyone," Nuñez said.

Nuñez also said the faculty was there to work for students, and they should use that to their advantage.

Esther Terry, professor and chair of Afro-American Studies, ended welcoming remarks by informing the audience that she and the rest of the UMass faculty will try to assist the incoming students.

"We [the faculty] will do our best to help you do your best," Terry said.

Chancellor David K. Scott delivered the keynote address on the theme of

Turn to CLASS, page 8

Once upon a time. . .

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Before classes — and book-buying — revved into high gear, there was actually room to move around in the Textbook Annex.

The Secret To Surviving College Life...

Lesson #1: Avoid paying high retail prices. Get more for your money by shopping wholesale prices.

Lesson #2: Don't chase sales. You are much too busy. Shop lowest wholesale prices everyday. No gimmicks---just big savings.

Lesson #3: Go to one convenient location for all your needs. From toothpaste to CD's, highlighters to laundry detergent, cereal to soda, get it all in one place.

Lesson #4: Have fun when you do your shopping. Wholesale club shopping is exciting.

Final Exam: Where can you get everything you need at the lowest wholesale prices everyday---and have fun doing it?

The Answer: WHOLESALE DEPOT

Free Food Samples Every Wednesday through Sunday.

Check Out Our EVERYDAY, Low Wholesale Prices!

Area Rugs — 29.99 — 6' x 9' Area Rug, Assorted Styles & Colors

1.7 CUBIC FOOT — 94.97 — Avanti Cube Refrigerator, Separate Freezer Compartment

24.87 — Back Pack, Fullsize • Canvas with Reinforced Leather Bottom

46.97 — Curvcraft Task Chair

5.98 — 24 COUNT 3.5 OZ. EA. — Act II Microwave Popcorn, Butter Lite

5.98 — 35 Oz. — Cheerios

KXP-2023 — 199.97 — Panasonic Dot Matrix Printer, 24 Pin Letter Quality Printing • Quiet Printing

5.49 — 32 Oz. — Pert Shampoo Plus Conditioner In One

Warehouse Hours:
Mon.-Fri. 10:00AM-9:00PM
Saturday 9:00AM-9:00PM
Sunday 10:00AM-6:00PM

Special Hours for Business Members Only:
Mon.-Fri. 9:00AM-10:00AM

WHOLESALE DEPOT
Conveniently Located At: Mountain Farms Mall Route 9 Hadley

Get Your FREE Survival Kit
Including: Razor, Bar of Soap, Peanut Butter Crackers, Pack of Wrigley Gum, Pad of Paper, Highlighter and Coupon for $1.00 off any CD
Simply Bring Your Student ID to the Membership Desk Offer Expires Sept. 14, 1993

SUBWAY of Amherst

$1.00 OFF any FOOTLONG SUB
(With This Coupon)

Not Good With Any Other Offer
Offer Expires 12/30/93

4 Main Street • Amherst • 256-1919
Open Til 2am, Thurs., Fri. & Sat.

ARE YOU A CARTOONIST?

THE EDITORIAL PAGE IS LOOKING FOR EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS.

INTERESTED?

CONTACT E.C. THOMAS AT THE COLLEGIAN

Welcome Back to School Sale

The Club

Save $30 OFF of Any Student Membership
Buy Now & Pay $130/Semester, $210/Year
Offer Expires Sept. 30, 1993

- 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
- 2 Racquetball Courts
- Cardiovascular Machines
- On Bus Route
- Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
- Unlimited Aerobics
- Child Care

659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

WELCOME BACK UMASS!!

THE SPOKE

35 E. Pleasant Street Amherst, MA

1st Bar Off Campus

Est. 1984
A Drinkery
To Meet, Relax and Enjoy.

Back To School Specials

Imported Beer Of The Month
Heineken or Amstel
a mere $2.00/can

Domestic Beer Of The Month
Schlitz
a mere $1.50/can

Drink Of The Week
Pink Lemonade
a mere $1.75
• Vodka • Lemon Mix • Cranberry

PROPER ID REQUIRED

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Eustacia and Kent — over a morning cup of coffee

"I hate freshmen," growled Kent O'Brien as he peered over his newspaper at the crowds of students walking through the Campus Center.

Eustacia Fields swallowed another bite of her bagel. "Not bothering with the obvious retort that you were once a freshman too, oh aged one, I still don't see why you should hate them in the first place. They are just new. Big deal. We all were."

Kent put his paper in his lap and raised his right finger. "First of all, I may have been a first-year student at one time, but I was never a freshman. Freshmen are goofy and lost and do stupid things, like pay dues and travel in packs to lunch for fear of eating alone. They even buy appointment books for Christ's sake! What kind of fool buys an appointment book!?" He paused, "Oh yeah, you bought one, didn't you?" he smiled.

Eustacia punched Kent in the arm. "Hey, at least I didn't go through my first week urinating in every possible corner and out every window of my dormitory."

"I'm afraid I don't remember any of that," he smirked, glancing away.

"Yeah, first-year student my butt," she laughed. "You were stinking drunk."

"Okay, okay," he said, waving his hands. "I was a bit more intoxicated the first few weeks than I should've been, but that doesn't mean I was a freshman. I got over that after a while and realized it was a stupid thing to do.

"Most people, however, simply compund their stupidity over time and make bigger idiots of themselves even after they've been here a while. I mean, look at that guy," he said, pointing at a student wearing a tie-dye with an ALLY pin stuck on the bottom. "Get a life, buddy!" he yelled.

"I think you've got a lot of pent up bitterness inside you, Kent."

"Damn right I do. How can you not be bitter at people who don't ever have a clue, and will probably end up with a bunch of other clueless people and decide to protest something they know nothing about in order to achieve a goal they cannot define. What's not to be bitter about?"

Eustacia propped her legs up on the marble table.

Nathan
CRICK

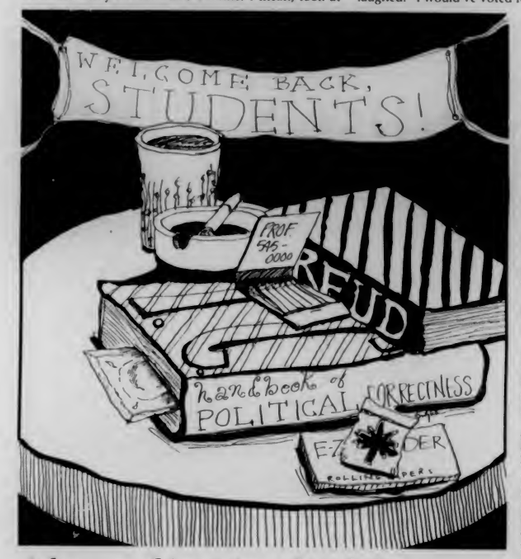
"Ahh, now I see what's wrong with you. You think all these people are going to be left in your little Republican enclave down in Southwest fighting peacenicks off you with a stick. Am I right?"

Kent shook his head. "Well, it's true, isn't it? All these stupid freshmen walk up here without any ideas about anything and then fall right lock-step into every nature-boy-save-the-world-happy-faced group that this University pushes on them, and pretty soon they'll all grow into self-righteous sophomores, shouting and yelling and pretending they own the world. I mean, why shouldn't I hate freshman? I'm sure they'd hate me as soon as I mentioned I voted for Bush."

"I don't hate you because you voted for Bush," she laughed. "I would've voted for him too if I were a little bit more of a Nazi. I just couldn't get over that whole oppression of the minority by means of neglect and exploitation thing. You got over that hump much easier than I."

"You don't have any idea how much I appreciate your attempts to brainwash me, Eustacia."

Eustacia shrugged. "Hey, if you weren't always trying to do the same to me I would let you off the hook. And anyhow, where would be the fun in pretending to respect each other's opinions anyway? I think you're too closed-minded, and you think I'm a liberal pinhead. It makes for a good challenging argument. Who always wants to agree? I think everyone would be much better off if they could relax and enjoy an argument every morning over a cup of coffee."



Kent nodded as a pack of young students went marching by, giggling and pointing. "Well, maybe you have a point. The only problem I see is that most people don't have any idea what the hell they're talking about, and they're the ones who always want to argue."

"Well, I guess we have no choice but to resort to calling people names, then."

Kent lifted his newspaper again. "Well, why not? Everybody else does it. You should know, being a cultural elitist feminazi yourself."

"Aahhhhh, the sweet sounds of patriarchy," she laughed. "I guess college has begun after all. Good-bye diversity and tolerance, hello reality and dissention. Let the pigeons loose!"

Nathan Crick is a Collegian columnist on sabbatical.

A letter of 'writing thanks' from the country of rising sun

Hello! How are you all doing? Still dreaming of your long summer days? Hope you guys are ready for your school. Don't say you aren't in the mood to go back to school.

I envy you so much because you are back at UMass again this fall, while I'm not there anymore. Now I'm thinking back to my dear UMass days with a sort of nostalgic feeling, it's lonesome over here in Japan,

Last fall, I came to UMass with big expectations and a suitcase. I was there for two semesters as an exchange student from a small women's college in Japan. I had an awesome year. I learned a lot, made a lot of friends and had many memorable moments.

But now, it seems appropriate to write and let you know how much I miss UMass: the duck pond, the California-like Campus Center terrace, the giant chocolate chip cookies of the Blue Wall, the hide-and-seek of squirrels, Moscow-like long lines at the D.C., the shower of beer at the Pub, the piles of pizza boxes in the dorms, etc.

All those UMass-unique pictures are still vividly stocked in my mind. They are all treasures of my life. And among the many great things I will never forget, friendship comes first.

I came to UMass from a different culture and with a poor command of English — I had to start from zero. To understand each other beyond our many differences, one needs much more energy and tolerance. So when we come close to each other, the tie gets tighter all the more. This is what I learned and I will cherish.

I miss UMass so much. I'd like to thank all of you for a wonderful time. To those whom I became friends with, acquainted with or just passed by — thank you so much.

Miki Takeyama
Tokyo

Health Services roulette

I am finally back after a miserable seven month summer vacation. No, I wasn't on academic probation and I wasn't taking the semester off to earn money. I wasn't on an internship and I definitely wasn't having a good time. I was sick.

I wasn't sick for the whole seven months — just long enough to miss the first four weeks of last semester, which was enough to make my plight of coming back impossible. I can't really be mad about getting sick initially (after all, everyone gets sick); it's the reason I stayed sick for so long — UMass Health Services.

David W.
COPELAND

Early last semester I was sick with strep throat. I went to Health Services, was put on penicillin for 10 days, and then felt fine. But when the medicine ran out, I was sick again and back at Health Services.

A lot of people were sick that day. It seemed like half of the undergraduate population was crammed into a tiny waiting room, located so that it catches the cold winter draft from the door. Now I won't complain about waiting — I understand that there are always going to be more patients than staff. But doesn't it seem, redundant to have all of these sick people crammed in the same room sharing germs?

Finally it was my turn. The doctor quickly examined me — no blood work, just a look into the throat and a rub of the glands, said it was bronchitis, prescribed me erythromycin, and sent me out the door. I waited an hour for the prescription to be filled. There were no instructions on how to properly take the medicine: the bottle just said to take one pill every few hours.

I went home for a few days, and my condition deteriorated (because, as I would later learn, I did not have bronchitis, and I was not taking the right medicine). Furthermore, erythromycin is to be taken only when you have a full stomach, which neither Health Services nor their pharmacy told me.

Finally, I woke up one night with tremendous stomach pains, and went to my own doctor at the hospital. He described taking erythromycin on an empty stomach as the equivalent of swallowing razor blades. He then correctly diagnosed me with tonsillitis and put me on the proper medication. However, my doctors were concerned that the erythromycin may have caused stomach damage, so I had to return the next week for a barium enema. I'll spare you the details of this procedure. Anyhow, by this point coming back to school would have been academic suicide, so I was forced to withdraw.

I've been told that Health Services is going through an administration change as well as other major changes. But there is still no excuse for playing with people's health. A change in administration will not solve the problem of the doctors and nurses who work there performing as incompetently as they do. The health fees we pay here are considerably higher than most other universities in the country, yet the it is the worst medical care I have ever received.

I could understand if I were the only mistake, but I'm not. I've never met anyone who had something good to say about Health Services. Can you really afford to get sick, knowing the chances you take playing Health Services roulette?

David W. Copeland is a UMass student.

If you are a liberal, hippy, conservative, dressed-in-black-absorbing-the-sun, save-the-whales-the-world-the-seals-the-rainforest-the-owls-the-library-or-the-older, fatter Elvis stamp, a publisher's Clearing House winner or wanna-be winner, a jock, a fraternity/sorority person, an artist, engineer, a Rush Limbaugh fan, a Mother Theresa-in-waiting, a vegetarian, someone who eats raw meat with their hands — ANYONE interested or just curious about becoming a Collegian columnist, you are cordially invited to an Ed/Op meeting on Monday the 13th of September at 7 p.m. in the Collegian office (113 Campus Center Basement — opposite end from the ATMs).

All potential Fall 1993 columnists (including those of you who think you don't have to be there because you already are one) are strongly encouraged to attend — we have plenty of spaces to fill (much more than you would probably think). Please bring with you a sample column (which you, and only you, have written) — not a term paper or a news story — a column (typed, double spaced, roughly 2 pages). If you don't have a column, or can't come up with one fast enough, don't just not show up: come anyway, and we will make different arrangements!

We are also looking for an Ed/Op associate. Anyone interested should come down to the basement and fill out an application as soon as possible.

Rally to mark church bombing

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

A march and rally sponsored by the American Freedom Foundation, founded by UMass student Martin Jones, will mark the beginning of a new movement in Amherst.

The event will commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Birmingham Church bombing which took the lives of four young Black girls in Alabama.

According to Jones the commemoration is planned for Wednesday, Sept. 15 and will start with a march up North Pleasant Street at 11 a.m.. It will end with arally in front of the UMass Student Union steps.

At a press conference at the Hope Community Church in Amherst yesterday, Jones explained his plans to have all of the area churches simultaneously ring their bells at 10:20 a.m., the time the bomb exploded 30 years ago. He also said he liked the idea of businesses closing their doors from that time until the beginning of the march to "pay their respects."

The march, which Jones expects will draw a few thousand people, will head from North Pleasant Street to the Student Union Steps for the noon rally.

The rally will deal with the issues that led to the deaths of the young girls, and will include a memorial service. A moment of silence will be observed, and a poem will be read in memory of the girls.

"Everyone has a moral obligation to pay their respects," said Jones. "We need to show [the four

Turn to RALLY, page 7

■ pot

continued from page 1

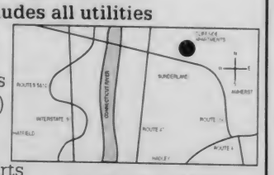
of cancer, glaucoma and asthma then only a few hundred people in Massachusetts will be qualified to use the it," he said. "But if the they plan to experiment with the drug in the treatment of other diseases such as cerebral palsy, the university will have to produce much more."

Wire reports contributed to this story.

FOR 26 WAYS to help SAVE THE EARTH CALL
Ad Council A Public Service of This Publication 1-800-488-8887. Earth Share

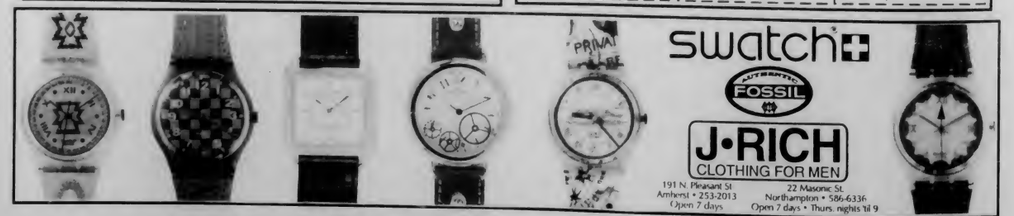
Write for the Collegian.
It's not as hard as you think.
113 Campus Center
545-3500

haircuts always $10!
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N PLEASANT ST AMHERST 256 0733



Le Boudoir
Fine Lingerie
233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst • 549-6915
Hours: Mon-Sat 10-6
VISA/MC/AMEX-Mail & Phone Orders

CTB CENTRAL TRAVEL
YOUR STUDENT TRAVEL EXPERTS



Air Car Tour Hotel Complete Travel Services Train Cruise
We Get You There With Money to Spare
Central Travel
25A Pray St.
Amherst, MA 01002
Call... 549-4900
No Charge for American Express Vouchers

NOW HIRING
UMASS TELEFUND
☆Network with UMASS alumni all over the U.S.☆
☆Work evenings for $5.50/hour PLUS bonuses☆
☆Add marketable experience to your resume☆
Call 545-3509 or stop by Memorial Hall

CLIFF SIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2
- Eff., 1, 2, &3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $420 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

Hairworks PLUS
Hair Nails Tanning
HAIR, NAILS, TANNING AND SO MUCH MORE
Located Next To Super Stop & Shop
Phone: 253-3334
Open Evenings Until 8PM
Sebastion, Nexxus, KMS, Paul Michell, Redkin
$5.00 OFF One Month Unlimited Tanning Exp. 10/31/93
$2.00 OFF Any Manicure Exp. 10/31/93
10% OFF Any Retail Items Exp. 10/31/93

swatch
FOSSIL
J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst • 253-2013 Open 7 days
22 Masonic St. Northampton • 586-6336 Open 7 days • Thurs. nights 'til 9

■ bill

continued from page 1

benefits.

The plan allows 20,000 participants in the first year, 33,000 in the second year and 47,000 in third year, assuming an average annual cost per participant of $15,000. Spending would be limited to $300 million in the first year of the program, $500 million in the second year and $700 million in the third year.

This space for rent.
Collegian advertising.
545-3500
It works.

■ rally

continued from page 6

young girls'] lives were not in vain."

The American Freedom Foundation is a multicultural human rights group that was the brainchild of Jones after he attended the 30th anniversary of the March on Washington.

He said he encourages high school students and all students from the Five-College area to become involved with the group.

Carlos Anderson is an Amherst resident who decided to become involved with the movement.

"There's a positive revolution happening in this town. The revolution is taking place in a couple of bodies," Carlos said. "This new movement will mark the beginning of the human rights movement."

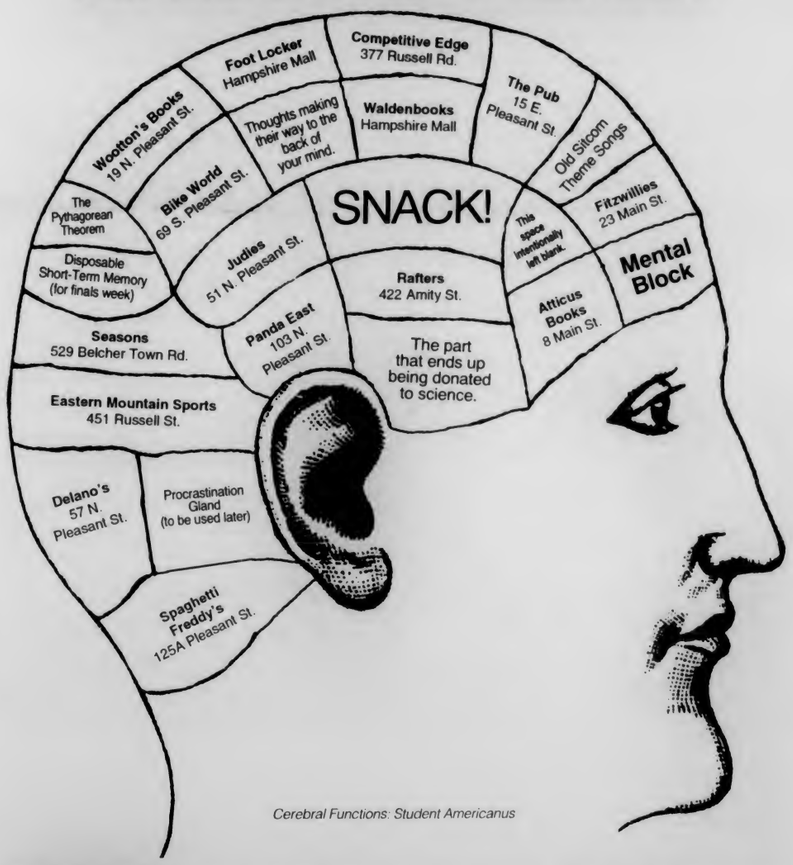
■ PLO

continued from page 1

peace accord. The trip was Arafat's first to an oil-rich gulf Arab nation since they broke with the PLO chief three years ago over his support for Iraq during the Persian Gulf War.

In Tunis, a senior PLO official said the PLO and Israel had agreed on a draft declaration of mutual recognition, a major sticking point holding up the accord.

The official, a member of the PLO committee supervising the Palestinian at Mideast peace talks, said the PLO would recognize Israel and its right to exist, renounce terrorism and promise to call a meeting of the 468-member Palestine National Council, or parliament-in-exile, to formally endorse his statements.



The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Arafat was expected to make these commitments in a news conference soon after the Executive Committee meeting, and in a letter addressed to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel.

The agreement for self-rule in Gaza and Jericho could then be signed later this month, probably before Sept. 20, the official said.

In Jerusalem, Rabin's government faced strident opposition to the deal from an estimated 50,000 protesters who camped out near his office Tuesday night. Before dawn, police moved in with water cannon and clubs to disperse hundreds who had remained through the night. Forty-five people were injured and 33 arrested.

Israel's Supreme Court issued a ruling that clouded the future of the Mideast peace talks. The court recommended that Rabin fire two ministers under investigation for corruption. Interior Minister Arieh Deri said he will resign on Sunday, but his six-member party, Shas, has threatened to bolt Rabin's frail coalition government over the investigation.

UMASS STUDENTS HAVE GIVEN US A PIECE OF THEIR MINDS.

Cerebral Functions: Student Americanus

© 1993 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

Recently, we've been talking to students on campus — to get inside their heads and find out where they like to go. For pizza. PCs. Posters. And other paraphernalia. And how do students like to pay for their purchases? With the American Express® Card, of course. No finance charges. No hassle. With that all taken care of, their minds are freed up for the really important things in life.

Cards

■ class

continued from page 3

"Seize the Day." Scott linked his situation as a new chancellor to that of the class of '97.

"I am entering this University with you, but I hope I am not leaving it with you," Scott said, winning a laugh from the audience.

Following Chancellor Scott came the University of Massachusetts Minuteman Marching Band, led by director George N. Parks. The band, cheered on by the audience, played several selections ending the convocation ceremonies.

EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER OPEN HOUSE 1993
Thursday, September 9, 9am-7pm
Wilder Hall, 2nd floor
Inviting Faculty, staff, students!!
Staff will be on hand to provide information about employment for students, internships, and volunteer opportunities. Refreshments and Reception from 4-7pm.
For more info. call 545-0883

Acupuncture and Natural Healing
549-6856
245 Lincoln Ave., Amherst
F.E. Steinway, Lic. Ac.

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993
Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

"Back in my day, we used to wait in line for hours starting at 3 in the morning just to get one class during add/drop. We didn't have 'telephone add/drop!' Back in my day, we didn't even have phones..."
the COLLEGIAN
Oh, the stories we could tell. Join us. 115 Campus Center 545-3500

The NY Times Delivered to Dorms and Offices by Dad's News-
We're under new management and committed to bringing back the delivery standards demanded by students and faculty.
Please deliver The New York Times as checked below. Daily subscription rates are 60% below newsstand price. That's only .30¢ per copy. Subscriptions will be delivered to Dorms and Offices on campus. There will be no Saturday delivery.
COMPLETE YOUR EDUCATION! Get with The Times!

	FALL TERM	FULL YEAR
( ) Weekdays (Mon.-Fri.)	$16.80	$36.60
( ) Weekdays & Sundays	$36.80	$77.60

Fall Semester delivery begins on Mon., Sept.20th and ends on Mon., Dec. 13th. The spring semester delivery will begin on Mon., Jan. 31st and ends on Wed., May 11, 1994. There will be no delivery during holidays and vacations. Please enclose check and make payable to : RICHARD BAYER

NAME_____ PHONE_____
DELIVERY ADDRESS_____
CLASS OF_____ Detach here and mail to Dad's News P.O. Box 633 Amherst, MA 01004

Save a tree. Recycle this Collegian.

Arts & Living

Pioneers The The begin North American tour

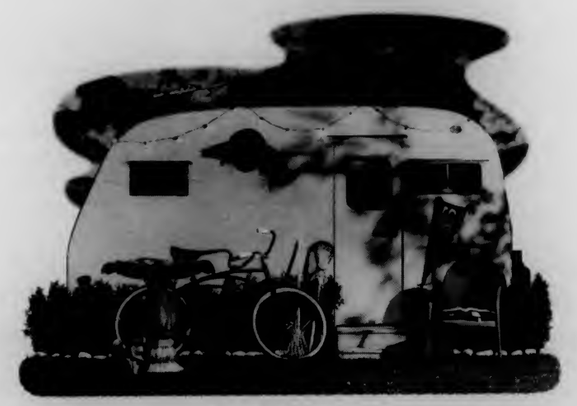
By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

Two pioneers of alternative music began their seven-week North American tour yesterday in Quebec. These two bands' ground breaking musical explorations of a decade ago laid a path to the alternative music fervor of the '90s: The The and Depeche Mode.

The The in particular has gone through many changes in its line-up as well as its basic format, although their music's lyrics, written by founder Matt Johnson, contain philosophical — albeit depressed — questioning of life's meaning.

The The is touring in support of its critically acclaimed Epic album, Dusk, with headliners Depeche Mode. Matt Johnson, lead singer of The The, is backed by D.C. Collard (Hammond organ, piano), Keith Joyner (guitar, backing vocals), Jared Nickerson (bass)

Turn to THE THE, page 11



Shockra

COURTESY FAMILY TREE PRODUCTIONS

Shockra will perform at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton tonight with Inclined and God Street Wine opening.

AT&T can help you save money whether you live on campus, off campus, or somewhere in between.

Choose AT&T and save.

No matter where you choose to live, you can save money on your long distance phone bill with AT&T. On campus, your administration offers AT&T ACCUS™ Service Long Distance savings. Off campus, choose AT&T as your long distance carrier and save with AT&T Savings Options. Either way, you'll save money no matter how your calling needs change. It's all part of The i Plan.™ The personalized plan designed to fit the way you call.

THE i PLAN™

To sign up, stop by our booth on campus or call 1 800 654-0471, Ext. 4119.

AT&T

© 1993 AT&T

Read all about it
Don't miss a beat. Be in the know. Collegian.

Council Travel

LONDON FRANKFURT PARIS SYDNEY TOKYO AMSTERDAM AUCKLAND HONG KONG

CHEAPEST FARES TO:
•EUROPE
•ASIA
•AUSTRALIA / NEW ZEALAND
Plus rail passes, international student ID,
tours & much more.
Ask for our FREE travel catalog!
79 South Pleasant St.
AMHERST
(413) 256-1261

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

WIN $5,000* EVERY DAY FOR DOING WHAT YOU'D DO ANYWAY:

CALL YOUR PARENTS COLLECT.

It's as easy as dialing 1-800-COLLECT,℠ instead of zero, when you make a collect call.

It's the 1-800-COLLECT $5,000 DAILY GIVEAWAY.

Just complete your collect call between August 30 and September 28, and you'll have a chance to share $5,000 with the person whose number you're calling.

Call as often as you like. There are winners every day.

You'll also save up to 44% with 1-800-COLLECT. It's America's Inexpensive Way To Call Someone Collect.℠ Use it every time you make a long distance collect call. That's all there is to it.

Bet you call Mom and Dad more than ever.

Savings vs. AT&T 3 min. operator dialed interstate collect call.

THE 1-800-COLLECT $5,000 DAILY GIVEAWAY

*1-800-COLLECT $5,000 DAILY GIVEAWAY. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. ALL ENTRANTS ARE BOUND BY COMPLETE RULES WHICH ARE AVAILABLE BY CALLING 1-800-RULES4U. FOR EACH DAY FROM 8/30/93 THROUGH 9/28/93 (30 DAYS), 1-800-COLLECT WILL GIVE AWAY A GRAND PRIZE OF $5,000!!. TO ENTER BY MAKING A 1-800-COLLECT CALL. Each time you make a 1-800-COLLECT domestic telephone call (within the U.S. and Puerto Rico) during the prorated potential winners to share a daily prize of $5,000. Calling day is 12:00 midnight EDT up to the following 12:00 midnight EDT. 2. No purchase or telephone call necessary. TO ENTER BY MAIL, hand print your name, address, zip code and daytime telephone number on a plain piece of 3" x 5" paper and mail in a hand addressed 4 1/8" x 9 1/2" (#10) envelope, with first class postage affixed, to: 1-800-COLLECT Giveaway, P.O. Box 4396, Blair, NE 68009. IMPORTANT: ON LOWER LEFT HAND CORNER OF MAILING ENVELOPE, YOU MUST PRINT THE SPECIFIC DATE OF THE PRIZE GIVEAWAY (FROM 8/30 through 9/28/93) FOR WHICH YOUR ENTRY IS DESIGNATED. Enter as many times as you wish for as many days as you wish, but each entry must be mailed separately. No mechanically reproduced entries permitted. Entries must be received by 5 business days after prize giveaway date indicated on your mailing envelope to be eligible for that daily prize. 3. SELECTION OF WINNERS. Each daily winner will be randomly selected from among all eligible 1-800-COLLECT telephone call entries and all eligible mail-in entries received for that day's giveaway. Random selection will take place 6 days after the specific prize giveaway date. Odds of winning a prize will depend on the number of eligible 1-800-COLLECT telephone calls completed each day and the time of day the call was made, and on the number of mail-in entries designated for each day's prize award. Odds will vary each day of the promotion based on the above factors. Odds of winning via mail-in entry will be as good as odds of winning via telephone entry. 4. PRIZES: 1 Grand Prize per day of $5,000, divided equally between Caller and Call Recipient. Call Recipient portion of the prize will be awarded to the individual or company whose name appears on the telephone bill for the telephone number called. If potential winner has entered via mail, he/she subsequently will be required to give name, address and telephone number of individual with whom he/she wishes to share prize equally. 5. GENERAL RULES. To be eligible, callers/mail-in entrants must be 16 years or older as of 8/30/93. Sponsor's employees directly involved in the planning and implementation of this promotion and employees of it's advertising and promotion agencies, and their immediate family members and/or those living in same household of each are not eligible for any prize, either as an entrant or designated recipient. If either potential winner of a daily prize is not eligible, per the above, that entire $5,000 prize will not be awarded. Void where prohibited by law. No substitution or transfer of prize permitted. All federal, state and local taxes are the sole responsibility of winner. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply. Not responsible for malfunctioning or breakdown of telephone systems, for faulty telephone transmission or for lost, late or misdirected entries. In the event that technical difficulties prevent selection of a winner for any daily prize of the promotion, that prize will be awarded on the following day. Random selection of winners will be under the supervision of D.L. Blair, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. By participating in this promotion, entrants agree to be bound by the Official Rules and decisions of the judges. COMPLETE rules are subject to any requirements or limitations that may be imposed by the Federal Communications Commission.

Fall Jobs in Amherst

TOWN OF AMHERST

LSSE

Leisure Services and Supplemental Education

POSITIONS AVAILABLE

SWIMMING INSTRUCTOR ($5.45-$6.28/HOUR)
LIFE GUARD ($5.15-$6.28/HOUR)
TENNIS INSTRUCTOR ($10.08-$11.11/HOUR)
TENNIS ASSISTANT ($7.90-$8.71/HOUR)
RECREATION SUPERVISOR ($5.42-$5.98/HOUR)
WEEKEND FACILITIES SUPERVISOR ($5.16-$7.26/HOUR)
TIMEKEEPER/SCOREKEEPER ($5.17-$6.59/HOUR)
VOLLEYBALL LEAGUE OFFICIALS ($8.00-$10.00/MATCH)
CLERICAL ASSISTANT (WORK STUDY ONLY, $5.19/HOUR)
BEFORE SCHOOL FITNESS LEADERS ($5.99-$6.91/HOUR)
SPECIAL EVENTS PROGRAM ASSISTANT ($5.96-$6.90/HOUR)

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES ARE AVAILABLE.
WORK STUDY AND NON-WORK STUDY POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE.

JOB INFORMATION AND APPLICATIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT AMHERST LEISURE SERVICES, BANGS COMMUNITY CENTER, 70 BOLTWOOD WALK, AMHERST, OR AT THE UMASS CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE ON SEPTEMBER 9TH. FROM 9-4. THE PREFERRED APPLICATION DEADLINE IS TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14TH.

■ The The

continued from page 9

and Jim Fitting, a Bostonian and former member of Treat Her Right (harmonica). The The's new drummer is Andy Kubiszewski, a conservatory-trained Cleveland native who has played with Nine Inch Nails, the Cleveland Orchestra and synth band Exotic Birds.

Johnson, the backbone of the group, was born and grew up in London's East End. The The was formed when Johnson, then 17 years old, received an answer to his advertisement from Keith Laws, who suggested the band's name. Laws eventually left The The and went on to be a research psychologist at Cambridge.

Breaking away from a rigid group format, Johnson molded The The into a creative platform; honorary members include Neneh Cherry, Sinead O'Connor, Zeke Manyika, Thomas Leer, Jim Foetus and Jools Holland. Over 300 musicians and singers, from orchestras and choirs to accordionists and harmonica players, have appeared on The The's four albums.

Johnson released the solo album Burning Blue Soul, yet the album is considered The The's debut LP because it contained the blueprint for many of the ideas which later came to characterize The The's music. Soul was one of the first albums to use drum loops and sampling.

Fastforward 10 years, to late summer 1991: Johnson returned to the recording studio with a full band, working on a fresh repertoire of songs. Ideas he wanted to incorporate in the new album: stripped-down production values in which the quality of the songs was given space and room to develop.

Johnson finished the cut of Dusk, The The's latest album, exactly 365 days from the date of the first session. Released on Nov. 2, Dusk features the same band that had played the world tour: Matt Johnson, Johnny Marr, D.C. Collard, James Eller and Dave Pamer. (Marr will not be on the current tour in order to be with his new infant.)

Dusk has a generally uplifting sound to it — spare acoustic guitar lines and bouncy synth-pop — except for Johnson's lyrics which continue with probing questions about redemption and salvation, love and obsessions. Even the album cover sports an anguished red figure, hand raised to brow, hanging over the skyline, much like the heavy thoughts pressing down on Johnson in Dusk. However, Dusk is not a chore to listen to and certainly the band and its stage set-up are dramatically impressive in concert.

It takes a powerful songwriter like Johnson to break through society's apathy and bring some humanitarian ideas to audiences through music. In "Love is Stronger than Death," he writes, "How could you believe that the life within the seed/ that grew arms that reached/ and a heart that beat/ and lips that smiled/ and eyes that cried/ could ever die?"

Dusk also serves up some rocking good songs — with no redeeming value philosophically — like "Dogs of Lust," which bounces with rolling rhythms and a whimsical harmonica. Similarly, "This Is the Night" makes use of "Honky Tonk Piano" courtesy of D.C. Collard, to create a memorable tune, though the lyrics leave something to be desired: "How many whores have walked through that door/ lain by my side & climbed in my mind / & taken me down to where the heat/ blisters the skin upon my feet." Get a grip, Johnson.

But he does pull through with a few cathartic songs like the lonely "Helpline Operator" and the searing "Bluer than Midnight," "I ask myself why love can never touch my heart like fear does." And suddenly, like a good therapy session, Johnson bounces back with the up beat "Lonely Planet" to round out the album in which he urges listeners to take action, a noticeable change from the rest of the album and Johnson's previous writings which languish in self-doubt and general remorse.

But this is great stuff! Dusk is thought provoking and borne of Johnson's 31 years of struggling, drugs and the death of his brother. His questions are depressing, but sympathetic to the "lost, lonely and lustful."

As Johnson says of the album's title, Dusk, "It's a magical time. It's when opposing forces exchange. The theme of the album is the tension of opposing forces. It's all about being human, and experiencing change."

You can experience The The opening for Depeche Mode Friday, Sept. 10 at the Centrum in Worcester.

First Week presents a "Reggae Dance" with the New Horizons Band

Tonight
9pm-1am
Campus Center Auditorium
$2.00

Sign up for the student comedy contest, Friday, Student Activities Office, 545-3600

The new edition is here. Ready when you are.

"The definitive writing reference work, revered by scholars, universities, publishers, and editors."
—The Bloomsbury Review

The new Chicago Manual of Style

- Updated throughout to reflect changes in style, usage, and technology
- New chapters on documentation, rights and permissions
- Many more illustrative examples
- Easier than ever to use

$ 51.98 During the month of September

- Jeffery Amherst College Bookshop & Store 26 S. Prospect St. Amherst, MA 01002 (413) 253-3870; 253-7816 FAX (413) 253-7852

Ready for a new generation of writers and scholars, the first revision in eleven years is 25% new—easier to use, richer in illustrative examples, and inclusive of a wide range of contemporary alternatives in style and usage. It is also current with the advances made in computer technology—from ways to cite electronic documents to writing, editing, design, composition, and printing in the computer age.

What hasn't changed is the commitment to clarity, consistency, and literacy that has made the Manual the authoritative voice of scholarly publishing since 1906. The new edition is ready when you are.

ISBN: 0-226-10389-7

The University of Chicago Press

Summer movies take bites out of fans' wallets

By EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Following the gargantuan profits of the 1993 deluge of summer cinematic fare, it seems only fitting that Summer '93 bear the moniker "Year of the Dinosaurs."

Led by Stephen Spielberg's blockbuster cash cow (er...raptor) Jurassic Park and Clint Eastwood's portrayal of a grizzled Secret Service carnosaur in In the Line of Fire, Hollywood took a monstrous bite out of moviegoers' wallets from coast to coast.

Though all genres were equally represented in the past three sultry summer months (i.e. "Predictable Family Fare" had its Free Willy), the action/thriller ranks seemed especially full as Hollywood generated some of the best "thrills, spills and kills" seen across the screen in a long time.

With such rich hunting grounds its hard to pick one truly superior thriller, but Sydney Pollack's adaptation of the John Grisham page-turner The Firm (A-) excels due to another labored Tom Cruise performance and great supporting work by a host of character actors.

Among the standout performances, oatmeal huckster Wilford Brimley's villainous turn as The Firm's sinister security expert erased all thought of a second bowl of Quaker being "a smart thing to do and a tasty way to do it."

As for those with tastes running toward the strict action persuasion, Sylvester Stallone rose to the forefront of the field, easily hurdling Schwarzenegger's "Big Mistake." Though basically "Die Hard on a mountain", Stallone's Cliffhanger (B) generated adrenaline early on due to its spectacular stuntwork and an Oscar caliber performance from the man who gave the world Oscar. O.K. — one out of two isn't bad and the stunts are phenomenal. The gripping 10-minute prologue is easily one of the most breathtaking moments on film and it alone is worth the price of admission.

Hot Shots Part Deux (B-) virtually led the summer movie stampede in late May and despite the pitfalls associated with attempting parody of those long-dead Reagan Era anti-communist propaganda flicks, (the Rambo movies), it still generated a fair share of laughs. The best bit contained a riverboat scene spoofing star Charlie Sheen's Platoon and Martin Sheen's Apocalypse Now. Though the comedy was an uneven mixture of explosive hysterics and embarrassing duds, it retained a lightweight, fun spirit throughout.

Such is also the case with the aptly named Heart and Souls (B-). Director Ron Underwood can't seem to avoid a predictable plot or poor character sketching (is Charles Grodin doomed to always play the middle aged neurotic?) yet he fashions an affecting romantic comedy that plays off the innocence of early Frank Capra comedies. The story concerns itself with four souls given one last chance to make things right through the persona of Robert Downey Jr. As cliches go, this could probably be called "the feel-good movie of the year." If so, it delivers upon that promise.

Though summer '93 sparkled with such gems as the aforementioned Jurassic Park and big screen revival of The Fugitive, there was a significant amount of dated fossils captained by

Turn to MOVIES, page 14

SEPTEMBER 29 • 8PM
RESERVED SEATS: $23.50 & LIMITED GOLD CIRCLE SEATING
FACILITY CHARGE INCLUDED IN TICKET PRICE.

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
PRODUCED BY DELSENER/SLATER ENTERPRISES

TICKETMASTER
FILENE'S • VIDEO PARADISE
MOVIES AND MORE
VIDEO DIMENSIONS
CHARGE BY PHONE
(203) 525-4500
(413) 733-2500
(617) 931-2000
FOR INFO: (413) 545-0505

TIX AT MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE AND TICKETMASTER. NO SERVICE CHARGE AT BOX OFFICE. TICKETS SUBJECT TO APPLICABLE TICKETMASTER SERVICE CHARGES. PHONE CHARGES SUBJECT TO AN ADDITIONAL PER ORDER HANDLING FEE. DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

4 Seasons
Thank you for your patronage
The Krupa...ski Family
Rte. 9 • Hadley • 584-9174
NEW!! Lower Keg Deposits
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

KEGS	BUD DRY 24-12oz. Bar Bott	SMIRNOFF VODKA	MAD DOG 20/20
1/2 BBL BUSCH $36.99	$10.99 + Dep	$13.99 1.75L	$1.99 750ML
1/2 BBL Natural Lt. $32.99 + Dep	M.G.D. & M.G.D. Lt 24 Bar Bott $10.99 + Dep	MATADOR TEQUILA $6.99 1.0L	American Beer 24-12oz. Cans $7.29 + Dep
1/2 BBL BUD, Lt, DRY $40.99 + Dep	BUSCH & Lt 24-12oz. Cans $9.99 + Dep	4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L	Andre Champagne $2.99 750ML
1/2 BBL Rolling Rock $44.99 + Dep	NEW! Beer Balls Are Back!!!	ICE 10 LBS $1.25 50+LBS $5.49 100+ LBS $9.99 BLOCKS $1.50 You Can't Buy It Cheaper	KNICKERBOCKER 24-16oz. Bar Bott $9.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL Milwaukees Best $32.99 + Dep			BOONES FARM $1.99 750ML
1/2 BBL Michelob & Lt $42.99 + Dep	BUD, BUD LT. BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep	BARCARDI RUM $14.99 1.75L	PABST 24-12oz. Bar Bott $8.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL M.G.D.-Lite $40.99 + Dep	COORS, LT., GOLD BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep	GO UMASS FOOTBALL	Tired of Stores with Bad Attitudes? At 4 Seasons You'll Be Treated with Gratitude And...
Largest Keg Inventory in WMASS	Killians Red BEER BALL $21.99 + Dep	GO #98 KROMES	WE DELIVER

Not Responsible For Typographical Errors
Sale Thru 9-23-93
Monday - Saturday 9:00am - 11:00pm
Kegs & Beer Ball Deposits Held Up To 30 Days

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst
549-1665
Open 24 hrs.
Drop-off service available:
Mon & Sat 10am-6pm
Tues 2pm-10pm
Wed &Thurs 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., So. Amherst
Open 7days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

Antonios
31 North Pleasant St.
Downtown Amherst
253-0808
Over 1 Million Served
Pizza by the slice

Walden Woods benefit is a $1 million success

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

1993 Concert for Walden Woods
Sept. 6

Six of the biggest names in music, VH1, the Westwood One radio network and almost 50,000 people all converged on Foxborough Stadium Monday for the 1993 Concert For Walden Woods.

The five-hour long show featured performances by Melissa Ethridge, Elton John, Sting, Aerosmith, organizer Don Henley and a special appearance by Jimmy Buffet.

Melissa Etheridge led off the event with a 45-minute set featuring her guitar-heavy country rock sound. Following her performance, Ethridge joined Boston area disc jockey Carter Allen to host the event on the Westwood One radio network.

Elton John followed Etheridge with an hour-long mixture of his classics and some of his more recent material. He played a relatively mellow assortment of songs before bringing a delighted crowd to their feet by returning to the stage with a cover of The Who's classic, "Pinball Wizard."

Sting's North American tour has been receiving rave reviews, and his performance Monday was no exception. He opened with three songs from his current album, Ten Summoner's Tales, before performing Police classics, highlighted by "King of Pain" and "Every Breath You Take."

The crowd erupted when hometown rock heroes Aerosmith took the stage for a six-song set. They opened with "Toys in the Attic" and "Sweet Emotion," followed by two songs from their current album Get a Grip, before roaring off the stage with "Dude Looks Like a Lady" and "Walk This Way."

Henley hasn't toured since 1990, but he showed no signs of rust in his hour-and-a-half long set. He led off with his solo hits "The Boys of Summer" and "The End of the Innocence."

Jimmy Buffet, who postponed his Nantucket vacation to play the benefit, joined Henley on stage for two songs. He played his famed "Margaritaville" and then was joined by Henley for a duet on "I Don't Know."

Henley then jumped behind the drumset to play Eagle classics "Hotel California" and "Life in the Fast Lane."

Henley has put his recording and touring on hold for almost four years to devote his energies to the Walden Woods Foundation.

The foundation is trying to raise funds to purchase the land surrounding Walden Pond in Concord, Mass., in an effort to preserve it as conservation area. The foundation was over $10 million in debt. Since Henley began work on the project, he's raised over $4 million for the cause. An estimated additional $1 million was raised on Monday.

This is the third concert Henley has organized for Walden Woods. In April 1990, Arlo Guthrie, Bonnie Raitt, John Mellencamp, Bob Seiger, Buffet and ex-Eagle bandmate Glenn Frey joined Henley for two shows at the Worcester Centrum.

The Associated Press ran a story last week claiming that not all of the money that Henley had raised for Walden had gone into the project. Henley denied these allegations vehemently.

"Our books are open," Henley said. He went on to call the AP "one of the sloppiest news organizations in the country."

WMUA 91.1 FM
The Student Radio Voice of the University of Massachusetts
NEW PERSONS MEETING
TONIGHT AT 7:00
IN CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 101

At our New Persons' Meeting tonight, you'll get a general overview of WMUA and learn how you can fit in.

Whether you have a simmering idea for a new radio show, want to get involved in our News or Sports broadcasts, want experience in fund raising, marketing or any of the other skills that radio depends on, we invite you to check us out.

No experience is necessary – just the ability to get along with a diverse group of people and a desire to broaden your knowledge of music, radio and organizations. Get involved!

Take a dip in the ocean of Student Radio!

WMUA NEWS
People interested in joining the WMUA News Team are encouraged to attend tonight's meeting and sign up for a training session. Positions are available for on-air news anchors, sports anchors, entertainment news, field reporters, in-house writers and production/board engineers.

movies

continued from page 12

Arnold Schwarzenegger's Jurassic lark, The Last Action Hero (D). An insult from start to finish, Columbia Pictures billed this film as "Your big ticket for Summer 1993." Make that your "ticket to ride" ...to another theater and catch something else.

It's hard to target just where this film ultimately fails; the Shane Black (Lethal Weapon) script is teeming with various missteps, but when a cartoon cat detective stumbles across the screen to interact with Ahnuld halfway through the picture, it's obvious that the filmmakers have run out of ideas.

Arnold isn't alone in the bad career move department as fellow Hollywood heavyweight Sharon Stone stumbled big early on with Sliver (C-), her "more of the same" follow-up to her starmaking role in Basic Instinct. Perhaps the biggest problem with Sliver is that it is billed as an "erotic-thriller" yet it isn't erotic and it doesn't thrill.

Director Phillip Noyce stages one ingenious central sequence where Stone's Carly discovers a wall embedded with video screens capturing the everyday lives of everyday people and invites the viewer along on a voyeuristic montage, but none of the combined hour and 50-minute running time ever matches up to this spellbinding three-minute sequence.

As for the rest of the summer entertainment, sequels Another Stakeout (D), Super Mario Bros. (C) and Weekend at Bernie's II (F) only served to pose the question — why? Is there really a demand for sub-par, over-advertised space fillers such as these weak sequels to weak originals? Doubtful!

The over-rated "date-movie" Sleepless in Seattle (C+) attained sleeper hit status. And deservedly so, for its comatose acting by Tom Hanks and predictable Nora Ephron script surely do inspire yawns.

Summer '93 certainly served up a variety of cinematic escapes, and despite the ever-present disease of lackluster films that plague every film season, this year's crop stood out from summers past.

WITH THIS COUPON

BUY ONE, GET ONE FREE!!

James H. McManus eating place

Rte. 9, Campus Plaza, Hadley • 256-6889
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Sun. - Thurs 6am to 3am • Fri. & Sat. 24 Hours
VISA, MasterCard & Discover accepted

FREE Breakfast or Lunch
Buy one breakfast or lunch at reg. price & receive the second 1 of equal or lesser value FREE (min. purchase $3.55)

Buy one Dinner Get 2nd DINNER HALF PRICE
Buy one dinner at reg. price & receive the second 1 of equal or lesser value at HALF PRICE

Must present coupon. Min. 2 in party. Some exclusions consult server. Exp. 12/31/93 - Collegian

USED COMPUTERS
Available Due To Corporate Downsizing
IBM Brand

Model AT 286 2MB Ram, 52MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $550

Model AT 286 1MB Ram, 20MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $395

Model XT 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $310

Model 3270 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $275

Rentals, Printers Avaliable

CALL 253-7510

LEARN MORE, SPEND LESS

Everyone is looking for a bargain. College, however, is usually the last place where you can find one. With the rising costs of tuition, books, and housing, many are finding out that a student rarely encounters a good deal these days. Until now.

Introducing The Boston Globe's version of financial aid: get The Globe delivered to your dorm or apartment for 50% off the regular delivery price.

For students, The Globe is much more than a newspaper: it's a resource. You'll get the best coverage of local and foreign news, arts and entertainment and all your favorite college and pro teams. Plus, The Globe's classified pages will help you find that perfect apartment or the ideal job. All for half price!

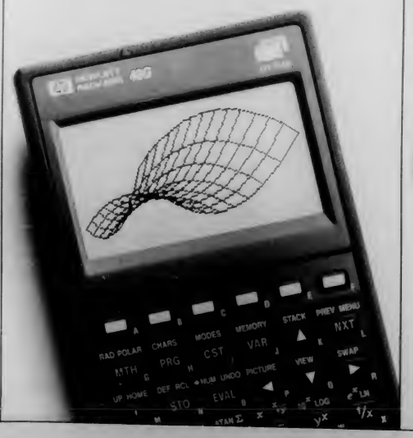
To start receiving The Boston Globe on campus call:



1-800-858-4275

For off-campus delivery call:

1-800-622-6631 Ext. 75

The Boston Globe Campus Program

The new 3-D graphing grade-making easy-learning fast-answering budget-pleasing headache-busting HP 48G

Check it out
The new HP 48G graphic calculator gives you a whole lot more for a whole lot less than you think.

Get more
- Push a button, choose from the pull-down menu, and fill in the blanks. Entering data is that easy.
- View 3-D graphs.
- Access over 300 built-in equations.
- Perform algebra and calculus operations on equations before entering values.
- Enter and see equations like they appear on paper.
- Work with different units of measure. The HP 48G will convert them for you. For example, enter inches, centimeters, yards, and feet, together in one equation — it'll convert them.

Get more ... for less
- Compare prices — the HP 48G fits your budget.

Special introductory offer*
When you buy an HP 48G or HP 48GX, you can get free software (plus games!) and a free cable for connecting to your desktop PC. Write programs for the HP 48 using your PC keyboard, or store HP 48 files and programs on your desktop PC.

Pick up a coupon at your college bookstore.

HEWLETT PACKARD

*Offer good while supplies last on purchases made from August 1, 1993 through October 31, 1993. See coupon for terms and conditions.
©Hewlett-Packard Company. PG 12306B

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE FRIDAY, SEPT 24

Grants for:
- Visual Art & Design
- Literature, Theatre, Performance Art
- Film & Video
- Music
- Artistic components in multicultural programs

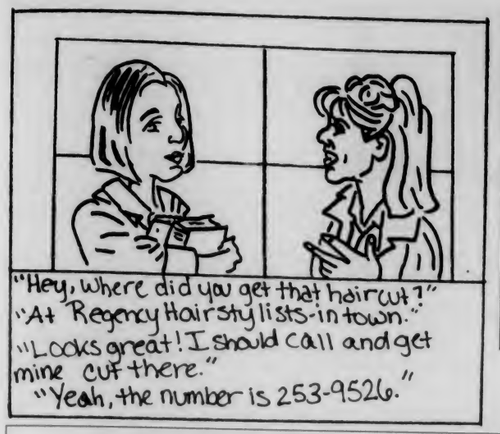
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS



Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the Arts Council 203 Hasbrouck 545-0202

STAIRMASTER

AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low

Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

BOOKS! WHY BUY NEW?
We carry a large selection of USED texts and paperbacks.
Check Atticus First!

ATTICUS
A world of reading Since 109 BC.

Atticus-Albion • 8 Main St., Amherst, MA 01002 • (413) 256-1547
Monday-Saturday 9 a.m.-11 p.m. • Sunday 11 a.m.-8 p.m.

WORK SMARTER. NOT HARDER.

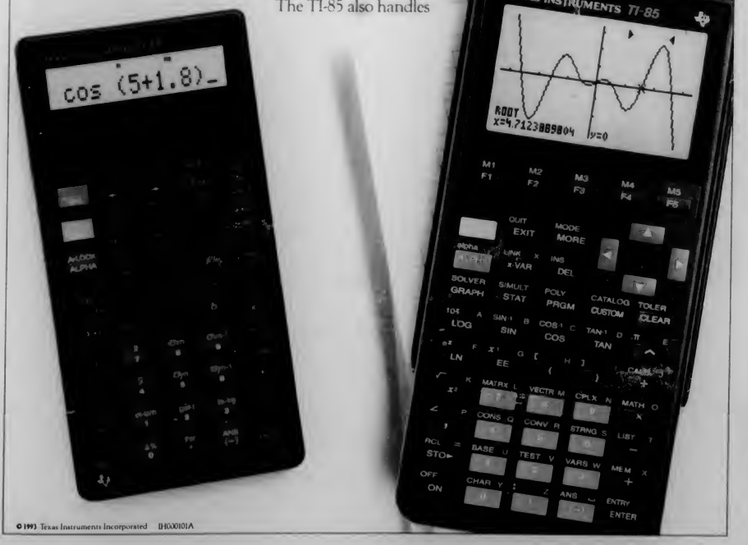
Engineering student? Smart.

Math or science major? Also smart.

On tests, you probably run equations over again to make sure they're right. So you're working harder.

You don't have to do that anymore. Not when you use the TI-68 Advanced Scientific or TI-85 Graphics Calculator, with their last equation replay feature — and many other smart functions.

We've spent years with students like you and educators like your professors to develop the TI-68 and the TI-85. That's why they're so highly recommended.



For engineering students, the TI-68 solves up to five simultaneous equations, has complex number functions and offers formula programming.

The TI-85 builds on the power of the TI-68 by adding a wide range of graphing capabilities. Math students can handle calculus problems more easily. And technical students can see the functions for a better understanding of problems.

The TI-85 also handles complex numbers. Matrices. Vectors. Lists. Strings. Plus, it offers a powerful one-equation SOLVER.

Try a TI-68 or TI-85 at your local TI retailer today. And start working smarter. Instead of harder.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

© 1993 Texas Instruments Incorporated BH00101A

Have you always wanted to get your name in the paper? Now's your chance. The Collegian needs talented cartoonists, bring your work to 113 Campus Center (In The Basement, Behind the Stairs)

Nobody Makes You SWEAT Like We Do!

- Nautilus
- Free Weights
- Aerobics Classes
- Step Classes
- Stairmasters
- Lifecycles
- Recumbant Bikes
- Crossrobics
- Quinton Treadmill
- Rowing Machine
- Saunas
- Student Discounts

Northampton Nautilus
216 N. King St. • Northampton
584-4975
Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm
Sat 8am-5pm • Sun 9am-4pm

"NAUGHTY YET HILARIOUS"
Gross Yet Laughable, Tasteless Yet witty, Revolting Yet Funny...Words Can Hardly Describe the FUN STUFF AT JOKE CITY.
Come See For Yourself! JOKE CITY Come See For Yourself!
1,001 laughs in store for you at
233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 549-8117
(in the carriage shops)

■ lab

continued from page 3

It will also include special keyboards and voice recognition equipment that will enable motor disabled students independence on the computer. Traditionally, students with disabilities have had to rely on readers or special textbooks to access conputers.

Director of Disability Dervices Madeline Peters was instrumental in securing the grant and subsequent computer lab. She praised Digital's assistance in the construction of the lab and said "it fosters equal access to learning."

Peters also said the lab, when operational, will be staffed by a graduate teaching assistant during regular library hours, along with students with work-study jobs.

REKINDLE YOUR PASSION For Indian Food at
The Valley's Original
INDIA HOUSE
Restaurant
ON STATE STREET
Where Indian Food is more than Curry!
For Excellent Food and Hospitality Come to Our House...
45 State Street
Northampton, MA 586-6344

Especially For You
Haircare & Beauty Supply
Now at
233 N. Pleasant St., Downtown Amherst Carriage Shops
OPTIMUM • MORNING MAGIC • LUSTER'S
BRAIDS & WEAVES HUMAN & SYNTHETIC & BEADS & MUCH MUCH MORE
Come Down & Browse Around or Call 549-8316 To Place Your Order
FREE Delivery Within The Five-College Area
Especially For You
Hair Care & Beauty Supply Specializing in African American Hair Care Products

The Collegian has positions available in the newsroom.
Several are paid positions.
If you are interested, come down today!
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Sounds Easy Video Stores
"The Intelligent Choice"
When you're ready to relax, fast break to Sounds Easy Video.
Free Membership, VCR Rentals, 3 Days 2 Night Rentals, Friendly Service, and Large Selection.
Amherst • 6 University Dr. 549-5200 • Sun.-Thurs. 10-10 • Fri.-Sat. 10-11
Northampton • Hamp Plaza, King St. 586-7260 • Sun.-Thurs. 10-10 • Fri.-Sat. 10:30-10:30
Greenfield • 20 Mohawk Trail 772-2141 • Sun.-Sat. 10-10
COUPONS
RENT 2 MOVIES at reg. price — Get one FREE — Good Mon.-Thurs. — Keep for 3 days and 2 nights — Includes new releases — One Coupon Per Customer. — Expires Oct. 31, 1993 Col.
NEW MEMBERS — Sign Up For A Free Membership And Receive A Free Rental With The Rental Of A Second Movie. — One Coupon Per Customer. Offers not to be combined. — Expires Oct. 31, 1993 Col.
4 Pack Special — Rent 4 Movies And Receive 2 Liter Bottle of Soda Or Microwave Popcorn All For $8.99 — Monday Thru Thursday Only — One Coupon Per Customer — Offers Not To Be Combined — Expires Oct., 31, 1993 Col.

Amherst Sunshine CAR WASH
AUTOMATIC WASH/WAX
SELF-SERVICE BAYS
VACUUM CLEANERS
$1 & $5 CHANGER

AUCTION to benefit the National Child Rights Alliance
September 11 - 12, 1993
Marriott Hotel
1500 Main St., Springfield
Featuring Sports and Movie Star Memorabilia, and including coins, jewelry, animated cels, and 1,000s of Rare and Unusual Items from Sports and Celebrity Personalities!!
Special Autographs to be Auctioned:
Elvis Presley, Marilyn Monroe, Beatles, Laurel & Hardy, Pete Rose, George Foreman, Muhammad Ali, John Wayne, Lucille Ball, Groucho Marx - the list is endless!!
Public Invited - $5 cover! Kids FREE! 10AM BOTH DAYS!
Doors open at 5AM for preview
FMI (413)773-7116
Raffle for Children: Basketball signed by Michael Jordan!!!
Another Global International Event

HALF-PRICE TICKETS FOR STUDENTS!
YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO TO NEW YORK TO GET LOST IN YONKERS.
(OR 23 OTHER GREAT SHOWS!)
The Fine Arts Center at UMASS in Amherst.
Right in your own backyard!
Call for your free '93-'94 season brochure.
413-545-2511

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Copy Editor ..... John Winchell
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Jim Ganley
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski, Mike Carvalho
V.R. Ityper

MENU

LUNCH
BBQ Ribs
Tacos
BASICS LUNCH
Veggie Tacos
Falafel

DINNER
Turkey Tenderloin
Cavatelli Supreme
BASICS DINNER
Turkey Tenderloin
Rice & Beans

PS MUELLER By MUELLER

Quote of the Day

"They can't do anything to you if you skip the first class– it's like a University rule or something"

– overheard

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Heed your intuition when looking for ways to get your ideas across. Resist going to extremes. Give things a chance to settle down. Give a good friend some kind words and a big hug to make her smile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Plan for the future. You need to have a clearer vision of what lies ahead. Watch out for someone who views you as an opponent. Listen more and talk less.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be determined but not stubborn when dealing with employers or employees. You can learn a lot from each other. Business can be combined with pleasure tonight. Keep expenses within reasonable limits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Being punctual is especially important now. Your job could depend upon it. Romance could also be affected. The financial outlook begins to improve, thanks to certain new developments.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A wonderful day for those in the arts. Take care of old business before becoming involved in a new project. Bargains abound for those who are comparison shopping.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23): Do not neglect your work this morning or a lucrative offer could pass you by. You may need to re-evaluate your priorities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Crosscurrents could make it difficult for you to reach an understanding with someone influential. When devising a budget, decide what is a luxury and what is a necessity.

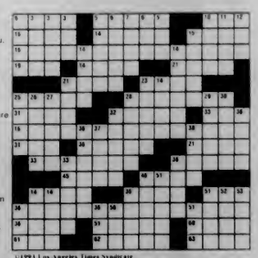
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Postpone signing documents or contracts until more up-to-date information is available. Adopt a wider and wiser view regarding your financial future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on one thing at a time. You could lose out if you try to force a legal issue. Seek professional advice to avoid court battles. Keep a low profile socially.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 21-Jan. 19): Anyone called on the carpet today may have a hard time justifying his actions. You may be judged, not only by those in authority but by your own allies. State your case.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your work environment seems much more friendly now. You feel ready to go forth and conquer. Be bold! Romance may keep you guessing. Focus on your platonic relationships for a change.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fame and fortune may be your lot if you have a goal and are willing to work hard. Use your workday wisely. Postpone any aggressive business or financial moves until next week.



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS
1 Fragrant flower
5 Squander
10 Ailing
13 Comedian Johnson
14 "The —" Tryon novel
15 Liberate
16 Liz Hope Shelley
19 Pub quaff
20 Stalemate
21 Touch down
22 Turkish governors
23 Innovative mod musical
25 Storms
28 Mine, female: neuter
31 — code
32 Cheer
33 Clumsy one
35 Marilyn, Geena, Lucille
39 Standard
40 Erect
41 On the briny
42 Feasts
44 Itsy follower
45 Washington bills
46 Maya Angelou, for one
48 Village
50 Stronghold
51 Measure
54 Jody, Jane, Meg
58 War god
59 Unit of measure
60 Former, once
61 Florid
62 Come in!
63 Places

DOWN
1 Pro —
2 Kind of test
3 Eyelid problem
4 Slippery one
5 Fret
6 Book of maps
7 "Candida" playwright
8 Decade
9 Unit of work
10 Press
11 Impart
12 Part of a table
15 Spread outward
17 Keats products
18 Omits
22 Poon or Smokey
23 Hurl
24 Against
25 Inclined way
26 Bellowing
27 Variety
28 Goblet
29 Sunday dinner treat
30 End-of-season events
32 Blue-pencils
34 Criticize harshly
36 "A Clock-work —"
37 Comfort
38 Fishing need
43 Harbors
44 Greek letter
46 City in S Puerto Rico
47 Sequence
48 Nuisance
49 Secondhand
50 Set of type
51 Stringed instrument
52 Orient
53 Picnic pests
54 Remote
55 Fish eggs
56 Amusement
57 In media —

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

N	O	M	A		R	A	P		E	P	S	O	M
C	P	A	S		H	U	G	E		S	L	I	G	O
D	E	C	I		I	D	E	A		P	A	L	E	O
		C	H	A	R	M	E	D		C	I	R	C	L	E
		L	I	N	E	S			E	L	E	S
L	O	N		D	E	C	O		A	S	C	O	R	E
I	C	A	O		L	O	D	E		S	A	V	E	S
P	E	T	A		T	I	F	I	E	D	F	O	R	E	S	T
P	A	E	A	N		L	O	G	E		O	R	E	E
E	N	S	T	A	R		N	E	R	D		S	T	E
		O	N	E	R			G	O	A	T
W	O	R	D	S	O	F	W	I	S	D	O	M
R	A	D	I	O		M	E	R	E		O	R	A	N
A	E	I	O	U		E	L	I	S		R	E	D	O
E	R	N	S	T		O	T	T			E	D	E	N

©1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

LSAT
GRE
GMAT
MCAT

Total Training
Expert Teachers
Personal Tracking and Tutoring
Insider Test Information
Permanent Centers
Maximize your score

Call for a free introductory seminar
1-800-KAP-TEST

KAPLAN RULES

"TIRED OF CROWDED GYMS?"

The GYM at mountain farms mall
Rt.9/Russell St. • 584-2175

Membership Thru 12-31-93

Fall Semester Special
Only $109.00

Conveniently Located on the New Bike Path.
Plenty of Free Parking - Easy To Get To.

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Miller "Lite" 16 oz. cans
Sale $12.49 Case Final Cost $9.49 After $3 Mfg. Discount
(Quantity Discounts Available)

Gordons Vodka $11.49 1.75 L

BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT $9.99 case cans

Stoli 80 $11.99 750ml

American Beer $7.29 case
$6.99 (10 cases or more) WOW!!
Catamount (your choice)
$4.99 6 pk (includes Octoberfest)
Beer Balls (Your Choice $19.99)

Fetzer Sundial Chardonnay $4.99 750 ml

Fosters Bots $14.99 case
Pete's Ale $20.49 case

Visa/Mastercard accepted on keg deposits
Many More In-Store Specials
All Beers plus Deposit (especially on wines) Delivery Available

Read It...
Remember It...
Recycle It...

The Collegian

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS
YES COMPUTERS
STUDENT MAC RENTALS from $75 per month
BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING
AUTHORIZED RESELLER
585•0007
NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

La Cucina di
Pinocchio
PIZZA, SUBS, & CALZONES
FREE DELIVERY ~ 256-4110

LASAGNA SALADS

30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst
Hours:
Mon-Thurs. 11:30am to 2:00am
Fri.-Sat. 11:30am to 3:00am
Sun. 11:30am to 1:00am
Coupons valid for delivery or pick-up only.

$1.50 OFF any Large Pizza with 2 toppings
Limit of one Coupon per pizza.
Coupons for pick-up or delivery only.
Valid at Amherst location only.
Expires May 31, 1994

$1.00 OFF any Large Pizza
Limit of one Coupon per pizza.
Coupons for pick-up or delivery only.
Valid at Amherst location only.
Expires May 31, 1994

Any 2 Calzones for $7.00
Pick-up or delivery only.
Expires May 31, 1994
Valid at Amherst location only

3 Calzones for $9.95
Pick-up or delivery only.
Expires May 31, 1994
Valid at Amherst location only.

TWIN SPECIAL
2 Large Cheese Pizzas $12.00
Any Topping $1.25 more
Pick-up or delivery only.
Valid at Amherst location only.
Expires May 31, 1994

$1.00 OFF any Medium Pizza
Limit of one Coupon per pizza.
Coupons for pick-up or delivery only.
Valid at Amherst location only.
Expires May 31, 1994

21 killed in South Africa

Attacks follow agreement on election

By TOM COHEN
Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Gunmen firing automatic rifles killed at least 21 Black commuters and wounded 25 others in two separate attacks Wednesday night, police said.

Attackers in two mini-vans pulled up alongside a line of hundreds of commuters and began firing wildly, leaving dead and wounded the length of a 70 yard parking lot.

Three hours later and a few miles away, gunmen standing on a street corner fired on a passing taxi van. Police gave conflicting reports on the casualties at each site but said at least 21 people died and 25 were wounded in both incidents.

The attacks followed a landmark agreement reached Tuesday by Black and White groups that will end White minority rule. Political violence has soared as negotiations on reform proceed, and Wednesday's attack was similar to several others that coincided with major steps forward.

Broken glass and blood covered the parking lot outside the small shopping mall in the Wadeville industrial area outside Johannesburg.

Police Brig. T.J Koekemoer said all the victims were Black and were attacked by several gunmen, also Black, who then fled in their vehicles.

"This is absolutely senseless," he said, noting the victims were from various townships and did not represent any particular political group.

Police Maj. Eugene Opperman said it was well planned. "The minibuses stopped at each end of the parking lot. They were basically cornering the people," he said.

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

A DESERVED WALKING DISTANCE REPUTATION

Co-Ed FLEX Co-Ed
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539

Welcome Back Savings from Scotts

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon-Sat 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT 24-12 OZ. CANS $9.99 + DEP

COORS (REGULAR, EXTRA GOLD, LIGHT) $19.99 BEER BALLS

MILLER GENUINE DRAFT & G.D. LIGHT 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES $10.99 + DEP

RUBINOFF VODKA 1.75 LTR $8.99

BUSCH 1/2 KEG $36.99 NO PERMIT NEEDED TO PURCHASE KEG

CAPTAIN MORGAN CO-PACK 1.75 LTR MORGAN W/FREE 2.0 LTR. COKE $15.99

MOLSON GOLDEN & LIGHT 12 PK BOTTLES $8.39 + DEP

SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL 750 ML 2 FOR $6.99

COLUMBIA CREST CHARDONNAY 750 ML $5.49

GLEN ELLEN CHARDONNAY, CAB. SUAV. SAUV. BLANC 750 ML $3.99

JOSE CUERVO TEQUILLA CO-PACK 750 ML TEQUILLA/FREE 1.0 LTR. MARGARITA MIX $11.99

Tele-check for your personal check.

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst

We now have all Mass Lottery games!

QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons -- Free -- Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

College Pizza
Open for lunch
At 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 toppings add $1
549 8073 549 6098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or Income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543 5640

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale 83 Mercury Marquis (Parts) BO 549-3581

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Toyota Tarcel 1980 runs very well Many new parts 104,000 miles on engine $1250 259-1850

Toyota - 1982 Tercel SR5 Hatchback 5 speed runs well - one owner well maintained - $1450 - evenings 253-2410

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Downtown. Outlet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4235 9am - 9 pm.

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets Fourth Row Steve 665-2058

Macintosh Printers: Imagewriter II, $199; Apple Personal LASERwriter $499. Both excellent condition! Call 256-0067

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipments.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

Television Color $60, B/W $20 256-5135

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000 $4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Early Sunday Part-time delivery. Great money. Car required. Cheryl 548-9688

Fundraisers Raise $150-$3001 Guaranteed in one week plus bonus up to $500! Manage promotions for top companies for one week on your campus. Call for free gift and to qualify for free trip to MTV Spring Break '94 Call 1-800-950-1037 ext. 25

Peace and Justice Organization seeks Grants Assistant workstudy students. Phone reception and general clerical work. 10 hours a week. $5-$6 per hour call Juan Carlos at 256-8306

RGIS Inventory Specialists now hiring part time inventory takers $8 per hour. Flexible schedule temporary or year round work will train call 737-7218 M-F 10-4 EOE

Spring Break '94 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student travel services is now hiring campus reps call 800-648-4849

The Amherst Boys and Girls Club needs work/study assistants for recreation programs. Open 2:30 to 5:00 afternoons 7:00 to 9:00 evenings. Workers schedule as time available $5.25 per hour. UM buses stop in front of club at 390 Main St. Contact Richard Britt 253-3261

Theatre Director Childrens Theatre Forming EOE Experienced Actor/Director. Send resume to Production Arts Limited Box 639 South Hadley MA 01076-0639

$287.30 Sell 50 Hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol related, college t shirts and mugs $287.50. All shirts 100% guaranteed. A risk free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

Wanted: Campus Representatives Spring Break Discounters (Vacation Packages) Earn cash and free trips Cancun Bahamas Padre Island Daytona. We handle bookkeeping you handle sales. 1-800-336-2260 Monday thru Friday (9 am - 5 pm).

INTERNSHIPS

The Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is hiring Interns for Fall semester. Conduct research, lobbying, training, and organizing in support of Student Government Association Agenda for Change. 6 work study credits for 15-20 hours per week. To apply send letter of interest to SCERA Box 128 Student Union. For more information call Marc 545-0341

PERSONALS

POSTER SALE. Biggest and best selection. Choose from over 1000 different images. Rock, old masters (Monet, Dali, Van Gogh, Picasso, Escher, Matisse, Wyeth, and hundreds more), movie posters, sports, scenic landscapes, music, dance, skiing, personalities (Einstein, James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, and others), travel, humor, romance, photography (Talbot, Ansel Adams, and others). Most images only $5, $6, and $7 each! See us at Student Union Ballroom on Wednesday September 8th through Friday September 10th. The hours are 9 am to 4:30 pm. This sale is sponsored by WMUA 91.1 FM.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995

Listen to the first fall broadcast of SportsLine on WMUA 91.1 FM tonight, 6-7 p.m.

Sports

Women's soccer greets A-10 foes with a bang

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team defeated Rhode Island yesterday in its first-ever Atlantic 10 conference game. The Minutewomen are now 2-0 heading into this weekend's action.

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Yesterday's University of Massachusetts women's soccer team's 5-0 victory over Rhode Island was probably not what Atlantic 10 Commissioner Ron Bertovich had in mind when he founded the league last spring.

It was a case of two teams in distinctively different leagues playing a slow game in a cold September rain. Hardly the stuff rivalries are made of.

Massachusetts	5
Rhode Island	0

UMass (2-0, 1-0 in the A-10), ranked No. 11 in the nation, dominated the WRams from start to finish, outshooting URI 23-1. Sophomore forward Nicole Roberts led the attack with two goals and one assist; sophomore Rachel LeDuc added two more tallies and freshman Melissa Mitchell scored once.

"We just played very strong today," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "Everyone played very well and when we are hitting like that we can be difficult to stop."

The onslaught began early as Roberts chased down a pass from Amy Trunk in the right corner during the fourth minute of play. Roberts beat URI defender Kendra Kallberg in the corner, then drilled a perfect cross to a driving Mitchell, who was never picked up by a WRam defender. Mitchell made no mistakes as she one-timed it to the right of goalkeeper Sarah Moon.

Roberts did it herself in the 19th minute, when she collected a pass from Heidi Kocher in the right flank about 30 yards out. She again decked out Kallberg, then went through two WRam defenders before planting a shot into the upper right-hand corner.

In the 42nd minute Roberts bombed one in from 25 yards out, putting the ball just under the cross bar and just over the leaping Moon. UMass took the 3-0 lead into the half.

"I feel relaxed and patient out there," Roberts said. "I'm seeing the plays much better than I did last season and that is making a difference. It's fun when the shots are going in."

The fun continued in the second half for Roberts' replacement, Rachel LeDuc. LeDuc, who suffered through a preseason illness and missed the opener against Boston College (a 2-1 UMass victory) due to a family commitment, looked in mid-season form as she scored twice.

Just into the game for Roberts, LeDuc took a pass from Erin Lynch at midfield and drove in with only WRam defender Sharon Fish left to beat. LeDuc simply ran by Fish, who was left spinning around like a pinwheel. In alone with Moon, LeDuc chipped the shot over the diving goaltender.

"I just wanted to get by her (Fish) and she gave me room to run," LeDuc said. "She ended up just tripping over her own feet."

Rudy said, "She read that defender. The defender gave it to her and Rachel just cut back on her, and drove right by her."

LeDuc rounded out the UMass scoring (five goals is UMass' highest tally in over three seasons) when she headed in a Paula Wilkins corner kick in the 87th minute.

UMass goalkeeper Briana Scurry recorded probably the easiest shutout of her career as she was never tested and spent much of game as a virtual spectator.

The Minutewomen travel to Hartford this weekend for some tougher competition in the Holiday Inn / Hartford Invitational, where UMass will meet Michigan State and Colorado College.

Minutemen impressive in victory over Terriers

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Senior Randy Jacobs tallied his first goal of the season at 38:57 of the first half to lead the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team over the second-ranked team in New England, Boston University, 1-0 last Saturday.

The Jacobs goal was all the Minutemen (1-0) and goalkeeper Mark Wolf needed as the UMass defense smothered the Terrier offense, allowing only eight shots for the game.

Massachusetts	1
Boston University	0

"It's a good boost when you have Randy out there scoring goals," said sophomore Dan Chagnon. "It takes a lot off the defense when you don't have to go into overtime. All we need is to score one goal and I think our defense can hold any team."

UMass was ranked fifth in the pre-season New England poll, but should move up when the next rankings come out.

The task for the Minutemen gets no easier as three of their next four games are on the road against NE rivals. The road trip starts tonight at 7 p.m. when UMass travels to Storrs, Ct., for a battle with the University of Connecticut.

Last season, the Huskies were stunned by Jacobs and the Minutemen as he scored four goals in a 4-0 rout here at Richard F. Garber Field. UMass head coach Sam Koch said that obviously UConn will be ready for Jacobs, but he feels that the Minutemen have more offensive firepower than just their leading scorer.

"They [UConn] will definitely be marking him [Jacobs], and there is no doubt about that," said Koch. "We're aware of that and we'll be prepared. We have other people on this team that can pick up the scoring load.

"They can't stop everybody. Yeah, you can put one person on Randy Jacobs, but that's not going to stop him."

On his goal-scoring ability, Jacobs said that it was his job to put the ball in the net, and if he didn't, he wouldn't be helping the team win.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Randy Jacobs and the rest of the Minuteman soccer team travel to Storrs, Ct., to face UConn at 7 p.m. tonight. Jacobs scorched the Huskies for four goals in last season's contest which UMass won 4-0.

"I love balls around the goal. That's my job. I've got to score the goals, and if I don't, it's my fault," said Jacobs. "If the defense does its job, the pressure is on myself and the rest of the forwards to score."

Sophomore Colin Johnson played an outstanding two-way game against the Terriers, and he said that the team is very confident on both sides of the ball heading into the game with the Huskies.

"UConn is another big game for us," Johnson said. "But I think even though we're on a high, we won't overlook them. We've learned from last year that you have to take everyone seriously."

Chagnon, a member of last season's All-Atlantic 10 Tournament Team, impressed many with his defense against the Terriers. Koch said that Chagnon is improving every time he steps on the field.

"He [Chagnon] shut 'em down 100 percent," Koch said. "He did an excellent job, and he is only going to get better. He's a great kid, has worked hard all pre-season.

"Dan was one of the best players on the field in the A-10 tournament, and he's continuing to get better and better. So you're going to see more from him."

Wolf, who wasn't tested much in the shutout, said that the team will not experience a letdown against the Huskies, mainly because of what the squad went through last season.

"Letdowns won't be a problem. This year we are really hungry because we missed the NCAA's by penalty shots," Wolf said. "There are going to be no letdowns this year. I'm confident in that."

SPORTS NOTICES

- Anyone interested in trying out for the softball team, please call 545-0038.
- There will be a meeting for anyone interested in competing for the men's and women's indoor or outdoor track teams on Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 4 p.m. in Boyden Gym, room 253.
- The UMass Lacrosse Club (JV-level men) meets today, Sept. 9, at 5 p.m. in Boyden 253 to start 1993 Fall Ball. Experienced and new players welcome. For information, call 545-6353.
- There will be open tryouts for anyone interested in trying out for the field hockey team on Monday, Sept. 13, at 2:30 p.m. at Totman Field. Come prepared to practice. For further information, contact the field hockey office at 545-1942.

Attention all interested Sports Writers:

For anyone interested in joining the Collegian sports staff, there is a mandatory meeting to be held tonight, Sept. 9, at 7 p.m. in the Collegian offices (in the Campus Center, opposite the ATM machines).

If you cannot attend, contact Arthur Stapleton, Collegian Sports Editor, at 545-1762.

Don't miss out on your chance at greatness.

Football set to face Holy Cross at home tomorrow Page 16

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

77° Friday September 10, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 3

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Can't be called for icing

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Two University of Massachusetts students take a break between classes to play rollerhockey in front of the Fine Arts Center.

Kerrigan's remarks examined closely

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Would you go out with your professor? Would you have sex with your professor? Would you fall in love with or even marry your professor?

University of Massachusetts English professor and director of Psychoanalytic Studies, William Kerrigan said it frequently happens. Kerrigan was quoted on his views on faculty-student relationships in Harper's Magazine this month.

His provocative remarks were made at a roundtable discussion on the subject of whether or not faculty-student romances should be banned from university campuses. Harper's chose the panel which included Kerrigan, two other professors from other schools, and a college president.

Kerrigan admits in the article that he has had sexual encounters with students, but not since he has been at UMass.

"But there is a kind of student I've come across in my career who was working through something that only a professor could help her with. I'm talking about a female student who, for one reason or another, has unnaturally prolonged her virginity," Kerrigan said in the Harper's article. "And if she loses that virginity with a man who is not a teacher, she's going to marry that man, boom. And I don't think the marriage is going to be very good."

When contacted by the Massachusetts Daily Collegian for comment, Kerrigan refused to be interviewed.

"I'm shutting down," he said. "I think I've talked about this issue enough."

Kerrigan told the Daily Hampshire Gazette that "love happens." What he calls "intimate mentoring" can take place in these relationships "and that's precious." Kerrigan's own marriage was a result of a student-teacher relationship.

All five panelists opposed a ban on such liaisons between students and faculty.

"I just don't like the idea of someone telling me or anyone else who they can sleep with," Kerrigan told the Gazette. "And actions that are harmful can be dealt with using existing sexual harassment policies."

The University does not have any specific bans on faculty-student relations, but it does have policies on sexual harassment.

Chancellor David Scott issued a statement regarding Kerrigan's comments.

"The University's sexual harassment policy prohibits unwelcomed sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature," the statement reads. "But the University also urges caution by faculty and others in using their authority to become sexually involved. The function of faculty members is not to help students overcome sexual problems. Sexual issues are complex, and formal avenues of advice and guidance on sexual issues are available at the University."

The issue in Harper's was not sexual harassment, nor does Kerrigan in any way condone it. But in his own personal view, Chancellor Scott fears that if a "consensual" faculty-student relationship goes wrong the consequences could lead to sexual harassment.

"It is very difficult to ban consensual, amorous relationships," Scott said. "These will happen and develop, and at a minimum, we need to make people aware of the consequences and risks."

Vincent DiMarco, Chair of the English department, also disagrees with such a ban, but hopes that UMass as a whole will think about the consequences of consensual relationships.

Scott is bringing this issue up for discussion to establish clear guidelines for the faculty member involved in one of these romances when the student is in the same classroom.

Scott also noted a third party type of sexual harassment in terms of the other students in the class who are not in the relationship with the professor, but are still affected by it.

"It can be difficult for the rest of the

Turn to REMARKS, page 4

Peace in Middle East eminent due to accord

By SALAH NASRAWI
Associated Press

TUNIS, Tunisia — Leaders from Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization swept away one of the major obstacles to Mideast peace Thursday when they agreed to recognize each other and take the risky path to peace.

The mutual recognition agreement clears the way for a separate pact giving Palestinians a measure of self-rule in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, occupied by Israel since the 1967 Middle East war.

Late Thursday Arafat won approval from the PLO's ruling Executive Committee on a mutual recognition agreement when the committee voted 8-4 in favor of the agreement.

Arafat, a wide smile on his face, also announced he had signed a document recognizing the state of Israel.

Farouk Kaddoumi, whom the PLO considers its foreign minister, boycotted the Executive Committee meeting.

Sources in Tunis said Kaddoumi objected to winding down the Palestinian uprising in Israeli-occupied territories before any tangible steps have been taken to implement self-rule

The Executive Committee was to vote Friday on the autonomy pact.

President Clinton called the agreement "a very brave and courageous thing," and a congressional aide said Clinton told leaders of Congress that Washington would renew dialogue with the PLO, suspended in 1990.

Yitzhak Rabin's office said in Jerusalem that Israel and the PLO will sign the recognition agreement in

Turn to ACCORD, page 4

Problems arise in grad housing

Prince and Crampton suffer from overcrowding

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Correspondent

On Sept. 5, residents of Prince and Crampton houses were sent a letter from the University of Massachusetts Housing Assignment Office stating that the single rooms they registered for in the spring were to receive another set of furniture and a roommate.

Thea Costine, the housing assignment director, and Jefferey M. Ederer, area coordinator of Southwest, met with the students on Sept. 9 to discuss the problem and present new ideas to alleviate further lack of communication.

Being mostly international graduate students who take classes as well as teach them, the residents of Prince and Crampton said they feel their needs are different from other students. They also expressed a desire for a written guarantee from housing stating that their singles will not be disturbed from now on as long as they live in Prince and Crampton.

"This is not just a dorm room," said Mercedes Gonzalez, a graduate student in linguistics. "I live here for about eleven months of the year, and this is the place I call my home."

Other residents housed in the area are older students with special needs, and some are going for a second degree. One resident said she is a registered nurse going for her second degree and that she works all night while taking undergraduate classes during the day.

On the basis of a mutual understanding between housing and the students, they said they were guaranteed singles by housing because Prince and Crampton were originally formed to be strictly graduate housing only.

Housing counters with the fact that the residents signed a contract stating the students were aware they might lose their singles if a situation of high capacity developed.

Due to a substantial amount of late-arrival international graduate students, most residents of Prince and Crampton were assigned roommates.

Many students described their "luck" because most of their newly assigned roommates did not show up, or found alternative housing. Yet, many residents feel trapped because they cannot find "alternative housing."

"This is my home, and my home has been violated by people entering my room and placing furniture when I'm not home, and by trying to put a roommate in with me," said Andreas Graham, an economics graduate student from Great Britian.

Housing officials counter with a no-win situation.

"I am required to give these people without housing a bed to sleep in, regardless that they arrived late and missed the deadline, Costine said. "I cannot deny these grad students a right for a place to live."

The task force decided to alleviate such problems in the future between housing and the students, and many students made suggestions for alternative housing. Until an official "no show" count is taken by housing throughout campus, those with roommates must keep them until there are other options.

Those who "lucked out," are told to wait the five week waiting period so they can secure their singles with a payment.

Homosexuals pose 'unnaceptable risk' according to Senate

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press

The Senate branded homosexuality an "unacceptable risk" to military morale and voted Thursday to tighten President Clinton's policy toward gays in the military.

In the first floor vote on the issue since Clinton unveiled his "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" policy in July, the Senate rejected a measure that would have left the matter to the president's discretion.

The vote was 63-33, with members of the Democratic leadership, including Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine and Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia voting against the amendment.

The legislative policy states that Congress has the constitutional right to make rules for the military, that the armed forces are unique and "persons who demonstrate a propensity or intent to engage in homosexual acts would create an unacceptable risk to the high standards of morale, good order and discipline" in the military.

Clinton's compromise policy ended the practice of questioning recruits and service members about their sexual orientation, but allowed the military to continue to discharge homosexuals.

Turn to SENATE, page 8

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Arts & Living Editor.....Lisa J. Curtis
Black Affairs Editor.....
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....
Jewish Affairs Editor.....
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
Third World Affairs Editor.....
Women's Issues Editor.....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, September 10

Meeting — The Muslim Student Association is holding Jumaa Salat at 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 904.

Meeting — Breakaway, sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ, meets every Friday for fellowship, fun and food. Meetings begin at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center.

First Week — "Comedian Contest" sponsored by Student Activities Office will be held from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. Admission is $2.

First Week — The Student Activities Office is sponsoring a dance with Studio Guam will begin at 9 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, and run until 1 a.m. Admission is $2.

Saturday, September 11

Dance — The Korean Student Association will be holding a dance in the Campus Center Auditorium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Admission is $3 for UMass students, $5 for Five-College students and $6 for the general public.

Dance — Hillel and Zeta Beta Tau are sponsoring a "Welcome to UMass" dance in the Bluewall Cafe from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Admission is free for Hillel members and $3 for the general public.

Sunday, September 12

Festival — The Pioneer Valley Combat Club is holding an "Autumn Festival" in the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is $5. The event begins at noon and will last until 8 p.m.

Don't be a lonely soul
In the great UMass sea.

ΙΧΘΥΣ

Alliance Christian Fellowship

A student ministry of the Amherst Alliance Church and a Registered Student Organization since 1984

Call Paulina @ 549-1930

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS

YES COMPUTERS

STUDENT MAC RENTALS
FROM $75 PER MONTH

BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
•
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
•
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
•
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING

AUTHORIZED REBELLER

585•0007
NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湖園南湖

The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet served 5-8pm Sun-Thurs.
Brunch served Sunday 11:30am-3pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3pm - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

Welcome Back to School Sale

The Club

Save $30 OFF of Any Student Membership
Buy Now & Pay $130/Semester, $210/Year
Offer Expires Sept. 30, 1993

- 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
- 2 Racquetball Courts
- Cardiovascular Machines
- On Bus Route
- Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
- Unlimited Aerobics
- Child Care

659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

Local News

Banks offer financial convenience

By EVELYN A. DE JESUS
Collegian Staff

Banking is getting easier for UMass students.

By just showing up today at the Campus Center concourse and filling out an application form, UMass students can not only get a highlighter, but they can also open a checking or savings account at a local bank. Students can even obtain a credit card if they are 18 years or older and have no bad credit history.

BayBank and Shawmut Bank have had display booths on the concourse all week so students can "start earning a credit history" as one slogan read.

Contrary to popular belief, students are a major target in the market for these two banks, since they are seen in a long-run perspective.

"It is the beginning of a relationship with a customer," said Gordie Lauder, an officer of the Amherst branch of the Shawmut Bank.

BayBank opens more than 1,000 student accounts every year at UMass, according to Roger Kennedy, senior vice president of Community Banking for BayBank in western Massachusetts.

According to Kennedy, 75 percent of the students at the University are Massachusetts residents so "retention rate is very high." He said he is pleased to see them handled responsibly.

"Our exposure here is enormous, thousands of students go by the concourse," Lauder said.

BayBank is offering a "Student Value Package" that includes a checking and companion savings account in which a student can write up to eight checks a month, do unlimited transactions at BayBank's automatic teller machines, receive a debit card, transfer money and print out computer inquiries on their balance. There is no interest rate for the account.

Students can apply for a credit card if they are 18-years or older. If that student has good credit history they can get a credit line of up to $500.

The bank also offers overdraft protection up to $250 and free "CheckView" in which a picture of the cancelled checks are received on each monthly statement.

There is no minimum balance for the accounts. Monthly service charges are waived for students up to

Turn to BANK, page 12

Bookworms

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Throngs of students wait in line to enter the Textbook Annex and spend their hard-earned money.

UMass Key Society honored

Presented Key Chapter Award at national convention

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts chapter of Golden Key National Honor Society was presented the Key Chapter Award in August at national convention awards banquet in Orlando, Fla.

The Key Chapter Award is a prestigious honor presented to select Golden Key chapters which have excelled in communication, leadership, public relations, faculty and administrative involvement and campus and community service, according to the National Honor Society.

Associate dean of students and advisor of the chapter, Gladys Rodriguez, Chapter President, Dina Raimo, and several other officers accepted the award at the Golden Key National Convention, "The Magic of Excellence." All chapters may apply for the award, but only the most outstanding are selected to receive the honor, Raimo said.

According to Raimo, the UMass chapter participated in several specific activities to earn this award, including hosting the regional conference in Northampton this summer.

Raimo said Golden Key also helped with "Into Amherst," the town's community service day, held benefit marches, started their own national magazine called Concepts and began circulating a newsletter.

The UMass chapter was started five to six years ago and now has approximately 600 members, Raimo said.

Golden Key is a non-profit, academic honors organization which provides academic recognitions, leadership opportunities, career networking and scholarships. The Society has 198 chapters across the United States, Puerto Rico and Australia. Membership into the Society is by invitation only to the top 15 percent of juniors and seniors in all fields of study.

Stuck with the duck

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
A duck and his reflection take a swim through the campus pond yesterday.

Norwottuck Rail Trail links Amherst, Noho

By MICHAEL SMITH
Collegian Correspondent

Just in time to accommodate mountain bikers, roller bladers and other non-motoring folks back in the area, the Norwottuck Rail Trail opened officially on August 1.

The trail stretches a leaf-shaded 8.5 miles between Elwell State Park in Northampton and Station Rd. in Amherst, with additional parking at Mountain Farms mall.

After 10 years and $2.2 million the Department of Environmental Management succeeded in turning the defunct and rusting tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company into a bike path that is accessible to everyone.

Trevor Augustino, who patrols the path as the park ranger, observed that it has been extensively used for recreation and as an alternative to the Rte. 9 commute. In the winter the trail will be maintained for cross country skiing.

Also enjoying the new Rail Trail is Patrick Serio, owner of Pete's Drive-In. Located near the midpoint of the trail, "Pete's" offers refreshment for travellers. Serio said although he is pleased with the Rail Trail, he is "one of the few" in Hadley who approve.

According to Augustino there has emerged a "vocal minority" which fears the potential increase in accidents and crime that may come along with the trail. However, by following the rules and regulations posted along the trail and using common sense, Augustino said he believes all accidents can be avoided.

Augustino said the intersection at South Maple has been the sight of some close calls and urges caution. He also said the trail is not lit at night and can be very dangerous.

Bike lights are required along the path after dark. The only serious incident to date occurred when two cyclists collided in the dark.

The trail is there, "use it," said Augustino, "but pay attention to the rules."

Bike registration can prevent theft

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

The UMass Division of Public Safety and Alpha Phi Omega will be sponsoring a week of free bicycle registration starting Monday September 13 at various locations on campus.

The program goal is to "prevent theft before it occurs," Larry Holmes, Security Services, said. "We want you to continue to keep your keep your bike."

Registering a bike requires recording the information on the bike, such as the serial number, with the police department where it is then entered into a computerized database.

Engraving is also available to mark a bike with one's name, driver's license number, and state of residence. Holmes said the bike is engraved in a couple places on the bike because if someone strips the bike the information will still be on the bike.

Registering a bike is good for two rea-

Turn to BIKE, page 6

■ remarks

continued from page 1

class if any favoritism is shown openly or in grading," Scott said.

According to Scott, there are two problematic issues in the Harper's article.

The first concerns people who find their way in sexual matters and are not prepared for them, Scott said. This also includes other students in the class as well as the student in the relationship.

Secondly, according to Scott, the entire discussion is insensitive and oblivious to the havoc and devastation caused in people's lives because of such romances.

DiMarco also said he feels that the discussion was freewheeling and provocative, but thinks it's unfortunate that Kerrigan has had to endure so many heated comments.

"I'm proud of this department because of its production and quality of teaching," DiMarco said. "The publicity has obscured what happens in the department from day to day."

According to Women's Studies professor, Jan Raymond, the article is an attack on gains that women have made in the University in terms of sexual harassment.

"It seems that the Harper's Five, as I call the panelists, said that we don't need regulations because students are responsible for their actions," Raymond said. "The professor is the one who is mature and should take the responsibility."

According to Raymond, the panelists talk about the University as a separate society which doesn't need regulations and is a place of tolerance where women have to bear sexual advances.

The University needs some policy that says it is unethical for faculty members that are in supervisory positions to have certain relations with their students, Raymond said.

■ accord

continued from page 1

simultaneous ceremonies in Jerusalem and Tunis on Friday. It said Rabin would sign in his office at 9 a.m. Friday.

On Monday in Washington, the two sides will sign an accord on Palestinian self-rule in the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho.

Under the recognition agreement, the PLO would renounce terrorism and recognize Israel's right to exist. The agreement on self-rule could eventually lead to a more comprehensive autonomy for Palestinians in lands captured by Israel.

In Washington, Hanan Ashrawi, spokeswoman for the Palestinian delegation at the Mideast peace talks, said, "There are very few moments in history that are comparable to this moment."

She said the agreement "recognizes Palestinian national rights and allows for genuine reconciliation based on the rights of both peoples to live in the region."

Texts of the unsigned recognition letters were released by Rabin's office on Thursday.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat, in a letter to Rabin, pledges the PLO will renounce terrorism and declares that sections of the PLO covenant that call for Israel's destruction are "no longer valid."

PLO officials said the last sticking point in the agreement concerned the nearly six-year Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied lands.

A senior PLO official said that under a compromise Arafat will announce that "the PLO will encourage the Palestinians in the occupied territories to work for reconstruction and will urge them to avoid violence."

AIM HIGH

EXTEND YOUR CAREER POTENTIAL IN COLLEGE – JOIN AIR FORCE ROTC.

When you graduate, the career competition will be fierce.

But you can sharpen your competitive edge now. Join Air Force ROTC, and you'll gain so much more from a college degree. You'll learn leadership skills and gain a powerful sense of confidence. You'll emerge from school as an Air Force officer, an individual who knows the demands and rewards of responsibility. The fact that you're a decision-maker will be self-evident by your background.

Employers everywhere will notice the stature of that kind of individual. And you'll have an extraordinary world of experience for building an outstanding career. Exactly why you sought a degree in the first place.

Exactly why you joined Air Force ROTC.

Get started today. Call

Major Cheryl Koren
545-2437/2451
or visit us on the second floor of Dickinson Hall, right above the Police

AIR FORCE ROTC

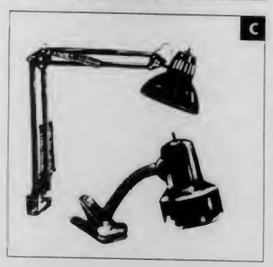
Leadership Excellence Starts Here

Break away

You're Invited!!

Campus Crusade for Christ
Weekly meeting -- every Friday 7:00p.m.
UMASS Campus Center

Check Campus Center Info Booth for Room Number
For more Information call:
Pete: 367-9212 or Liz: 253-0513



Downstairs

a

b

c

d

Posters
Lighting
Bedspreads
Rugs
Bookcases
Chairs
and more good stuff

at

Faces

a. Rugs: dhurries, orientals, rags & more. From $7.95 to $69.95
b. Posters: over 1,000 designs. From $3.95 to $30.00
c. Lighting: task lamps, desk, clip-on, halogen & floor styles. From $7.95 to $79.95
d. Folding Bookcase: black or natural. $49.95 also desks, TV carts, tables & more.

northampton • main street • 7 days

Thrills

Write for the Arts & Living Section.

You'll enjoy fun times with some swell guys and gals!

113 Campus Center
545-1361

STAIRMASTER

AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low

Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

The Psychology behind the Citibank Classic Visa card, and the emotional security of the Photocard.

The Citibank Classic Visa® instills in students feelings of safety, security, and general wellness not unlike those experienced in the womb. Therefore, it is the mother of all credit cards. ¶ Some experts attribute these feelings to the Citibank Photocard, the only credit card with your photo on it. A voice inside says, "This is me, really me." (As opposed to, "Who the heck is that?"—a common response to the photo on one's driver's license.) It's an immediate form of ID, a boost to your self-image. ¶ Of course if your card is ever lost or stolen and a stranger is prevented from using it, you'll feel exceptionally good (showing no signs of Credit Card Theft Nervosa). ¶ Other experts point to specific services, such as The Lost Wallet℠ Service that can replace your card usually within 24 hours. Or the 24-Hour Customer Service line, your hotline, if you will, for any card-related anxiety whatsoever. ¶ Further analysis reveals three services that protect the purchases you make on the Citibank Classic Visa card, at no additional cost. 1. Buyers Security℠ can cover them against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase[1] (preventing, of course, Insecurity). 2. Citibank Lifetime Warranty℠ allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years.[2] 3. And Citibank Price Protection assures you of the best price. You need only see the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150[1] (hence no Post Purchase Depression). ¶ Special student savings are particularly therapeutic. There's the free Citibank Calling Service℠ from MCI to save up to 26% on long distance calls versus AT&T.[3] (You're encouraged to call Mom and Dad regularly preventing Parenta Non-Supportus.) And a $20 Airfare Discount[4] on any domestic flight. (Case studies indicate that a Fear of Flying is overcome when Spring Break in sunny Florida is a possibility.) Not to mention the low variable interest rate of 15.4%[5] and no annual fee for college students. ¶ Suffice it to say, you'll have a credit card you can depend on while building a credit history. So call 1-800-CITIBANK, extension 19, to apply over the phone (students don't need a job or a cosigner) or to have your photo added to your Citibank Classic Visa card. ¶ If we say that a sense of Identity is the first component of the Citibank Classic Visa card, a sense of Security the second, and a sense of Autonomous Will from your newfound financial independence the third, don't be crazy...Call.

Subject suffering from Credit Card Theft Nervosa.

Subject after receiving Citibank Classic Visa Photocard.

The Monarch® Notes Version: The Citibank Classic card gives students peace of mind, protection against Freud—or rather fraud—a low rate and no fee. Apply today. Call 1-800-CITIBANK, ext. 19

Not just Visa. Citibank Visa.

[1]Certain conditions and exclusions apply. Please refer to your Summary of Additional Program Information. Buyers Security is underwritten by The Zurich International UK Limited. Certain restrictions and limitations apply. Underwritten by the New Hampshire Insurance Company. Service life expectancy varies by product and is at least the minimum based on retail industry data. Details of coverage are available in your Summary of Additional Program Information. [2]Savings claim is based on a 10 minute night/weekend call in the 1901 to 3000 mileage band using MCI's Card Compatibility rates vs. AT&T's standard calling card rates, effective 4/93. Citibank Calling Service long distance usage cannot be applied to obtain benefits under any other MCI partner, program or offer, including travel award programs. [3]Offer expires 6/30/94. Minimum ticket purchase price is $100. Rebates are for Citibank-student cardmembers on tickets issued by INF flights only. The Annual Percentage Rate for purchases is 15.4% as of 8/93 and may vary quarterly. The Annual Percentage Rate for cash advances is 19.8%. If a finance charge is imposed, the minimum is 50 cents. There is an additional finance charge for each cash advance transaction equal to 2% of the amount of each cash advance transaction, however it will not be less than $2.00 or greater than $10.00. Monarch®, Notes are published by Monarch Press, a division of Simon & Schuster, a Paramount Communications Company. Used by permission of the publisher. Citibank credit cards are issued by Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. ©1993 Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. Member FDIC

■ bike

continued from page 3

sons, according to Holmes. "It forces a person to record the information" on the bike and it is a requirement for theft insurance purposes.

The U-shaped locks require proof of registration with a police department within a certain numbers of days after purchasing the lock in order to offer insurance on a stolen bike due to a faulty lock.

"Cables and chains are easily defeated," Holmes said.

Homles said mountain bikes are a target for theft, but he said any bike is susceptible if there is "opportunity and availability."

The police have had success retrieving stolen bikes which are registered on campus.

If a bike is stolen after a person graduates, it is still registered because the UMass police department will keep the records in the computer.

Sept. 13 and 14 registration will be at the Student Union Circle, Sept. 15 at Southwest Mall, Sept. 16 at the Worcester Dining Common, and Sept. 17 at Franklin Dining Common. Registration will be held each day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

LEARN MORE, SPEND LESS

Everyone is looking for a bargain. College, however, is usually the last place where you can find one. With the rising costs of tuition, books, and housing, many are finding out that a student rarely encounters a good deal these days. Until now.

Introducing The Boston Globe's version of financial aid: get The Globe delivered to your dorm or apartment for 50% off the regular delivery price.

For students, The Globe is much more than a newspaper: it's a resource. You'll get the best coverage of local and foreign news, arts and entertainment and all your favorite college and pro teams. Plus, The Globe's classified pages will help you find that perfect apartment or the ideal job. All for half-price!

To start receiving The Boston Globe on campus call:

1-800-858-4275

For off-campus delivery call:

1-800-622-6631 Ext. 75

The Boston Globe Campus Program

WELCOME BACK TO ALL STUDENTS!

LIQUORS 44

BEER WINE LIQUORS

LITE $9.49 + DEP (16 OZ FOR THE PRICE OF 12 OZ!) SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE CASE OF 24/16 OZ. SUITCASE CANS

BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT $9.99 + DEP CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

COORS LIGHT $9.99 + DEP SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.50 AFTER REBATE CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

BUDWEISER $9.99 + DEP (REG. LIGHT DRY) SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

BUDWEISER (REG-LIGHT-DRY) & MICHELOB REG. - LIGHT EVERY DAY PRICE ½ BARREL $40.99 + DEP

AMERICAN BEER $7.29 + DEP REG.-LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

CATAMOUNT $16.99 + DEP PORTER-AMBER-GOLD CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BOTTLES

FOSTERS LAGER $7.99 + DEP 12 PK. BOTTLES

WINE OF THE MONTH

CONCHA Y TORO $3.99 750 ML CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON, MERLOT 100% VARIETALS FROM CHILE

FRANZIA $8.49 750 ML CHABLIS, RHINE, BURGUNDY, WHITE GRENACHE BLUSH, FRENCH COLOMBARD, CHENIN BLANC

GLEN ELLEN $3.49 750 ML WHITE ZINFANDEL

GALLO CALIFORNIA RESERVES $6.99 1.5L CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON

SEAGRAM'S COOLERS $1.49 4 PK. SALE 2.49 AFTER REBATE MAIL IN REBATE 1.00 ALL FLAVORS

COKE, DIET COKE, SPRITE $4.99 + DEP CASE OF 24-12 OZ SUITCASE CANS

SMIRNOFF VODKA $13.99 1.75L

BACARDI RUM (LIGHT & DARK) $13.99 1.75L

GILBEY'S GIN $8.49 1.75L SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE

SEAGRAM'S 7 $7.99 1.75L SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00 AFTER REBATE

LIQUORS 44 VODKA $8.99 1.75L

JOSE CUERVO MAX PACKS $11.49 1.75L (1.750 GOLD TEQUILA 1:1:0 MARGARITA MIX)

KAHLUA $7.99 750 ML SALE 11.99 MAIL IN REBATE 4.00 AFTER REBATE

CLAN MACGREGOR SCOTCH $14.99 1.75L

not responsible for typographical errors

• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •

HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344

HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555

OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday

SALE PRICES THURS 9/2/93 THRU WEDS. 9/15/93

Full Redemption Center

Tonight Kick Off

THE UMASS FOOTBALL SEASON

With A Rally At

THE HATCH

George Parks and the UMASS Pep Band

Special Appearance by Head Football Coach Mike Hodges !

Chance to Win a UMASS Sweatshirt !

Free Tee Shirt and Hat Giveaways !

☆ 1st 200 People Receive Coupons ☆

For $2 Off Any Large Pizza Order

Free Popcorn

Drink Specials

All Ages Welcome

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Going once, going twice...

There will be an Ed/Op meeting for all past, present and future columnists on Monday the 13th of September at 7 p.m. in the Collegian offices (113 Campus Center Basement, opposite end from the ATMs).

Please* bring with you a sample column (50-70 lines, typed and double spaced); if you are unable to do so — come anyway!! This is very important, the spaces need to be filled immediately — and they will be by next week! If you cannot make the meeting leave the Ed/Op desk a message, so we can make other arrangements.

The Ed/Op desk is still accepting associate applications — but please apply as soon as possible or call (545-1491) if you cannot make it down here before Monday.

We are also searching for artists to bless the pages with their talents; this is not only limited to cartoonists. Artists with a zany, wacky, bizarre or otherwise slanted view of life, and all it has to offer, are strongly encouraged to attend the Monday night meeting or drop by the Ed/Op desk when you have a chance.

The Pioneer Valley's P.C. dictionary

Hi. I would like to take this opportunity to welcome all the new freshpeople to campus.

What is a freshperson you ask? Oh that's right you're new to this campus and you most likely don't know the secret language we speak here at UMass.

Stacy MALONE

WARNING: DO NOT HOLD ANY FURTHER CONVERSATIONS UNTIL YOU FINISH READING THIS COLUMN.

Just to let you know, if you are a first year student at UMass you are a freshperson. If you were all called freshmen it would imply that only men go to this school. Since there are women students who attend UMass (and there are statistically more women then men), first year students are called freshpeople.

Did you catch all of that?

Think about it, it does make sense.

Well even if it doesn't make sense to you, you better get used to it very fast. It is necessary for you to know the secret language of being "PC" if you want to survive on this campus.

I should probably let you learn how to communicate in the Happy Valley by yourself, but being the nice person I am, I'll spare you another trauma freshpeople typically endure. So put on your seat belts as we browse through a few more terms from the "UMass PC Dictionary" and discuss the herstory of this secret lingo.

Oh, what is herstory you ask? My you have a lot of learning to do. There is herstory and history. Herstory includes the experiences of women. History is what we have been taught.

We have been taught history since the day we were born and herstory has been completely excluded and minimized so as not to be part of our education and socialization. So remember as a great philosopher once said "there are two sides of every coin".

(I believe the philosopher was a woman, but I don't remember her name because she was never in my her/history text.)

Another important translation in the "PC" language is the politically correct term for being conservative which is "politically immature." Believe it or not there are conservatives on this campus.

Many of them will not come forward and stand up for their silly and pathetic ideas, but they're out there so watch out. Don't let them trick you into any un-PC conversations or else...

The next step in speaking fluent PC falls into the category of relationships.

There are not only boyfriends or girlfriends on this campus — those words come from the heterosexual sugar you use to lace your Corn Flakes. At UMass people often have partners or lovers.

Actually this is kind of nice. We can all be neutral in our sexual speaking and have the freedom to have any kind of relationships and fun we want (regardless if it be behind closed doors or on the Student Union steps).

Oh, yes watch out for those Student Union steps. They have been constructed with a rare cement which has the power to attract large crowds. So, if you see a large crowd there run, run fast and read about it in the Collegian the next day.

Being politically correct can be rather complicated because it changes frequently with the times, but don't give up it may make you a better person — or at least save your butt when engaged in conversations.

NOTE: YOU MAY NOW ENTER CONVERSATION AT YOUR OWN RISK.

Stacy Malone is a Collegian columnist.

Then I was looking for a random God in my cereal bowl

I don't want an epiphany. I tried to explain this to the little man on the street corner with the big grin, but he wasn't having any. He had it all figured out, and as a bonus had all the flyers to prove it.

"So, you know when the world is going to end?"

"Yup. I do." He nodded smugly.

"Doesn't that kind of ruin the surprise?"

"I'm prepared. Are you prepared for the end? I know when it's going to happen and I'm ready."

"Been stocking up on all those nonperishables at Stop n' Shop?" I laughed. I had to. "Get it? Non-perishable..."

No, I don't want an epiphany. I don't want to stick out in a crowd like that. I don't want to be that conspicuously pleased with myself. I feel more comfortable in a state of constant... agitation.

What is this phenomenon of unfailing belief in Something? What is "faith?" Who is "divine?" For some I guess it's the Pope, or Allah, or Buddah, or Elvis, or King Hussein, or John Lennon. I suppose it's a need to believe the buck doesn't stop with you, that somewhere there's a superior being with a lot more together than the rest of the little humans.

Whether it's Jim Morrison or Jesus or David Letterman, it means there's some entity that is more powerful than you and can never be really understood. That's probably a great relief. Even the CEO of Warner Brothers or General Motors can relax and know there's somebody higher up than him.

Brooke C. WHEELER

After walking about half a block I noticed one of the man's flyers was stuck to my shoe. I think that would have pleased him greatly — some little bit of the information he was trying to impart had (literally) stuck with me, and involuntarily or not, this sort of accomplished his goal.

I started to wonder... how would unshakable faith in something affect my life? Would I be more smug like that man — would I rise out of bed each morning feeling shiny and new instead of nauseous? Would I smile more, would I study more, would I clean my room? But how would I go about obtaining one of these "faiths" — how would I pick out the appropriate receptor for my devotion and attentions?

I could look in the backs of magazines, watch the Discovery Channel, listen to the wind, check the horizon, ask my professors, ask my mom, my dog, my roommate. I could interview priests and rabbis and ministers and monks, visit Mecca and Jerusalem and Lourdes and Graceland.

Just the thought of all that legwork exhausted me. It's hard enough trying to find classes. It's probably easier just to remain... agitated.

So, I lived my daily life this summer. I drove to work, I worked, and I drove home from work. I slept. I ate. I watched "Melrose Place." I went to the flea market. I could never find what I was looking for (like Bono).

One morning I caught myself staring down into my cereal bowl. What was going on down there? It was making a little noise and I thought maybe I should listen. Hmmm. It said... nothing. And then suddenly it dawned on me. I was looking for a random god in my cereal bowl. This obviously was the incorrect way to go about this. What then?

One day a week or so later I was driving home from work, and suddenly my hands clutched the wheel desperately and wrenched it into a right turn, away from my usual route home. I guess my hands didn't want to go home yet, so I sat back and let them take me on a little scenic tour around the bovine-laden countryside of the Valley.

My little VW sputtered over the country roads and I gawked at the blazing green beauty all around me. The road rose and fell and maybe I got a little dizzy because the next thing I knew I was parked at the side of this bumpy little road and walking across the biggest expanse of lush verdent foliage I had ever seen. My god! The trees dripped with life, the hills rolled softly around me and the warmest whisper of a breeze lifted my hair off my neck. Fat black and white critters were grazing in the distance and I could hear, very faintly, some plaintive moos. I looked up. The sun, I could swear, smiled at me for a moment. I wanted to sing. In fact, I did.

After a few verses of a medley from the Sound of Music, I got back in my car and started to drive home. I felt elated and carefree. Suddenly I had the urge to clean my room.

So these epiphany things weren't so gruesome after all. At least the small ones.

Brooke C. Wheeler is a Collegian columnist.

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

Here's the deal, folks. This columnist has inherited (for the time being) the Notes from the Campus Center Basement, which is one of the most prestigious honors to be bestowed down in this rathole. At this point, this space's contributor would like to thank his editor for the task.

Anyone who has been around here for any time (and even the brightest freshmen) can see that the University has undergone a number of major construction projects, coinciding with the beginning of the semester.

From the greenhouses in Central to the Polymer Science Center to the work on both sides of Hasbrouck, the campus looks terrible. Instead of doing the construction at the beginning of the semester, it appears as the construction began in early August. Why?

This columnist doesn't know if we should all be happy that they are building again on campus, or angry that we all have to tip-toe through tractor treads. Hopefully, no one will blow up a backhoe with a rocket launcher a la Michael Douglas in the movie "Falling Down." Then again, don't bet against it.

Speaking of construction, I had a chance to play on the wonderful new tennis courts at Boyden... after I plowed through the moat around the courts and climbed the locked 11-foot fence. Give us a break, we knew athletes get special privileges, but this is ridiculous. Make the courts accessible to everybody.

The cancellation of the Depeche Mode concert on the surface appears to be no big deal. After all, the Mode already has a date in the Worcester Centrum.

Michael MORRISSEY

But this is the second big name (Guns N'Roses was the first) to cancel a concert and the ramification is UMass is getting less out of its contract with Ogden Entertainment Services then it bargained for. Surprise, surprise. (Note: I guarantee I won't use the words "UMass" and "bargain" in the same sentence for the rest of the year.)

While we're on the topic of smoke: every year in early September, the University holds a free picnic for its loyal (and disloyal) employees, held right on Metawampe Lawn, next to the outside of the Bluewall.

In case you didn't know, that happens to be next to the Collegian offices, and the hot dog and hamburger smoke from the grills invariably seeps through the fire exit and chokes anyone in the basement.

You know, wouldn't it be a shame if the abundance of smoke set off the sprinkler system in the Collegian offices, ruining the 10-year-old computer system and forcing the University to buy us new equipment? Just thinking...

I was reading Thursday's USA Today when I saw the story of Virginia high school basketball star Allen Iverson, a senior who was sought after by many colleges before he was arrested and convicted of inciting a riot. Alverson received a five year prison sentence.

What troubled me was the words of UMass basketball assistant, Bill Bayno, who noted Iverson's conviction wouldn't necessarily discourage colleges. Bayno referred to Coach John Calipari, who said "he is the type of coach that will give a kid a second chance."

The basketball program has done some remarkable things in a few short years, but it is my opinion that Bayno was out of line. I think I can safely say we've had enough criminals lurking on campus.

Giving a kid who didn't get 700 on his SAT's a second chance makes sense. Giving a 17-year-old with five years hard time does not.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

■ senate

continued from page 1

The president's plan centers on the premise that orientation is not a bar to military service and calls for an end to witchhunts to ferret out gays. It also urges even-handed enforcement of the Uniform Code of Military Justice for heterosexuals and homosexuals, a provision sought by gay rights groups.

The legislation makes no mention of orientation, witchhunts or the code, and says a future defense secretary could reinstate the policy of asking recruits their sexual orientation.

Liberal Democrats said Clinton's compromise was a first step that had been accepted by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"The spirit of the Clinton plan is protective of people's rights," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. "The Armed Services Committee provision on the other hand is brutal, brutal."

A former Marine who served in Vietnam, Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., said the tougher policy impedes "the ability of the commander in chief and the uniformed services to carry their particular responsibilities.

"I know it is politically difficult and politically unpopular but I know it is the right thing to do," said Robb, who faces a difficult re-election next year. He voted against the tougher measure.

Filler-up

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

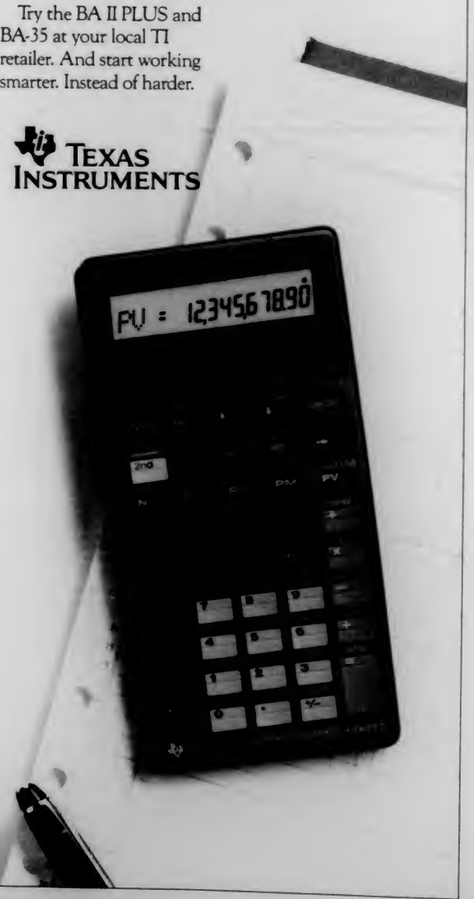
An excavator places a bucket-full of material into a truck as University workers replace the steam line near Marcus.

WORK SMARTER. NOT HARDER.

Management or marketing major? Smart.

Finance or accounting student? Also smart.

To be even smarter, you need a BA II PLUS™ now, before assignments pile up.



It's designed especially for business professionals. The kind you're going to be.

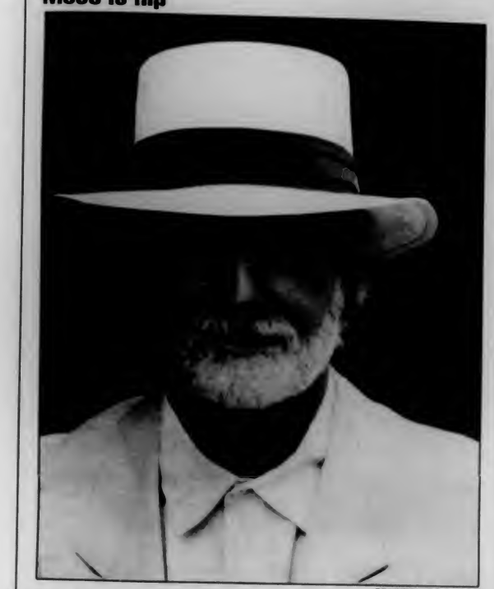
Naturally, the BA II PLUS has basic business functions like time-value-of-money. Plus, it delivers much more. Cash flow analysis for internal rate of return (IRR). Net present value (NPV). Bond calculations. Depreciation. Advanced statistics.

Also have a look at the BA-35. It's our most affordable model for time-value-of-money, and even handles one-variable statistics.

Try the BA II PLUS and BA-35 at your local TI retailer. And start working smarter. Instead of harder.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

*Trademark of Texas Instruments Incorporated
©1993 Texas Instruments Incorporated BA000102A



READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE BEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS: 9 a.m. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-5711
Walk-ins are welcome

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Council Travel
LONDON
FRANKFURT
PARIS
SYDNEY
TOKYO
AMSTERDAM
AUCKLAND
HONG KONG
CHEAPEST FARES TO:
•EUROPE
•ASIA
•AUSTRALIA / NEW ZEALAND
Plus rail passes, international student ID,
tours & much more.
Ask for our FREE travel catalog!
79 South Pleasant St.
AMHERST
(413) 256-1261

Arts & Living

Mose is hip

COURTESY IRON HORSE

Soulful jazzy pianist and vocal hipster Mose Allison will play the Iron Horse in Northampton tomorrow night at 7 and 10 p.m. Tickets are $11 and available in advance through the Northampton Box Office at 586-8686.

Depeche Mode cancelled

The Depeche Mode concert scheduled for tomorrow night at the Mullins Center has been cancelled.

According to Pam Wentworth, Director of Marketing for the Mullins Center, the distance between the scheduled engagements on Sept. 10 at the Worcester Centrum, Sept. 11 at the Mullins Center and Sept. 12 in Landover (MD) presented "insurmountable technical problems" for the band because of the sheer size and complexity of the Depeche Mode show.

Executive Director of the Mullins, Lee Esckilsen, declined to give an estimate of the number of tickets sold. Depeche Mode is the second rock group to cancel their Mullins show. Last semester Guns n' Roses backed out due to an illness in the band. Esckilsen said, "It's too early to tell which shows will be more successful here because we've only been open less than a year. Metallica's show was sold out and went over well."

Refunds for the Depeche Mode show are available at the point of purchase.

Depeche Mode apologize to their fans for any inconvenience this may have caused, according to Depeche Mode's promoters, Metropolitan Entertainment.

— LISA CURTIS

– Amherst Area –
New Testament Church
invites you to join our
SUNDAY WORSHIP CELEBRATION
at the Amherst Ballet Center
29 Strong Street, Amherst

10am WORSHIP, PRAYER, SHARING
11am TEACHING:
"The Perpetual Weekend: Jesus as The Lord of the Sabbath"
Call 256-8856 for more information
Cross East Pleasant Street at Butterfield Dorm. ABC is a brown house on the right. Enter through back door.

Antonios
31 North Pleasant St.
Downtown Amherst
253-0808
Over 1 Million Served
Pizza by the slice

Especially For You
Haircare & Beauty Supply
Now at
233 N. Pleasant St., Downtown Amherst Carriage Shops
OPTIMUM • MORNING MAGIC • LUSTER'S
BRAIDS & WEAVES HUMAN & SYNTHETIC & BEADS & MUCH MUCH MORE
Come Down & Browse Around or Call 549-8316 To Place Your Order
FREE Delivery Within The Five-College Area
Especially For You
Hair Care & Beauty Supply Specializing in African American Hair Care Products

BOOKS!
WHY BUY NEW?
We carry a large selection of USED texts and paperbacks.
Check Atticus First!
ATTICUS
A world of reading Since 109 B.C.
Atticus-Albion • 8 Main St., Amherst, MA 01002 • (413) 256-1547
Monday-Saturday 9 a.m.-11 p.m. • Sunday 11 a.m.-8 p.m.

CAFE DICARLO

Now Open Upstairs

The Ultimate in Casual Italian Dining

Full Bar

Lighter Fare

Amherst's Newest Jazz & Blues Club

Open 7 days a week

71 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 253-9300

The NY Times Delivered to Dorms and Offices by Dad's News-

We're under new management and committed to bringing back the delivery standards demanded by students and faculty.

Please deliver The New York Times as checked below. Daily subscription rates are 60% below newsstand price. That's only .30¢ per copy. Subscriptions will be delivered to Dorms and Offices on campus.
There will be no Saturday delivery.

COMPLETE YOUR EDUCATION! Get with The Times!

	FALL TERM	FULL YEAR
( ) Weekdays (Mon.-Fri.)	$16.80	$36.60
( ) Weekdays & Sundays	$36.80	$77.60

Fall Semester delivery begins on Mon., Sept.20th and ends on Mon., Dec. 13th. The spring semester delivery will begin on Mon., Jan. 31st and ends on Wed., May 11, 1994. There will be no delivery during holidays and vacations. Please enclose check and make payable to : RICHARD BAYER

NAME_____ PHONE_____
DELIVERY ADDRESS_____
CLASS OF_____ Detach here and mail to Dad's News P.O. Box 633 Amherst, MA 01004

First Week '93 presents the 1st Annual

STUDENT COMEDY CONTEST

with

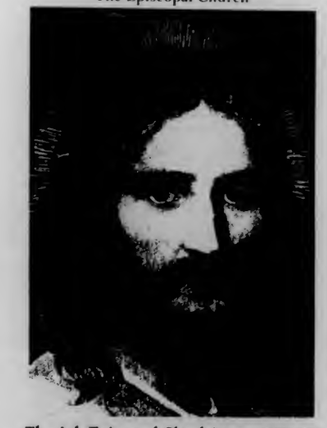
Lisa Ann Walter & Passion

Campus Center Auditorium - $2.00

D.J. DANCE

with

"Studio Guam Productions"



from Springfield

Student Union Ballroom • 9pm - 1am • $2.00

He died to take away your sins. Not your mind.

You don't have to stop thinking when you walk into an Episcopal Church. Come and join us in an atmosphere where faith and thought exist together in a spirit of fellowship.

The Episcopal Church

The Ark Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMASS

758 North Pleasant St. (2 Doors North of Lederle)

Come this Sunday Evening at 6:00 to an Open House Dinner to Inaugurate the New Student Center and Residence.

EARTHFOODS

is

HIRING!!!

CO-OP

We're looking for a diverse group of responsible people for hard work and fun at this student-run vegetarian restaurant.

Both work and non-work study may apply.
Applications are available in the CSB Office, 409 Student Union.

2 Semester Commitment required

Applications are due September 16th 5pm in C.S.B.

Do I have a case?

The attorneys at your Legal Services Center can answer fee-paying UMass/Amherst students' questions on a variety of legal problems, including: Housing, Criminal, University, Civil Rights, Consumer, Labor Relations, Personal Injury, and Family Law

LEGAL SERVICES-545-1995

The Legal Services Center is your first source of law-related assistance. Whether you need information, advice or referral, call for an appointment. Located in room 922 of the Campus Center, the LSC is open Monday through Friday, from 9am to 5pm.

Do I need a lawyer?

Wildcat, Seals show is down and dirty blues

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

Raised in the back of his father's classic "juke joint", the Dipsy Doodle, blues guitarist Son Seals has been familiar with his instrument since the womb.

Because Seals' childhood home was a few rooms in the rear of his father's club, his surroundings teemed with blues and great bluesmen.

"When I was about fifteen, I really started getting interested in guitar. I played along with the jukebox and my father taught me everything right from the start — tuning the guitar, fingering," says Seals. "Where I wanted to be riffing around all up and down the neck right away, he'd keep me on one chord for hours, until I could feel it in my sleep. I'd get up the next morning, grab the guitar and I'd be right on that chord.".

Seals has appeared live with George Thorogood, Stevie Ray Vaughan, Johnny Winter, Bonnie Raitt and Clarence Clemmons.

He has also made six of his own LP's. Bad Axe garnered particular acclaim. The Boston Globe wrote, "Seals is able to take the classic blues sound of the postwar saloon scene and pull it wholesale into the '80s, by gently blending elements of contemporary music into the blues tradition. There's an undeniable magnificence factor inherent in Son Seals' performance, and in this album he's been captured at his best. Terrific."

Opening for Seals will be the Wildcat O'Halloran Band. Frying eggs in the morning and simmering blues at night, O'Halloran is also the owner and chef of the Dove's Nest diner in nearby Sunderland. O'Halloran is lead guitarist and vocalist.

"The band started in '81 with some of the members coming and going. We've opened for the Stray Cats, Greg Allman and Bo Diddley," says O'Halloran.

He admits his band's performances haven't always been predictable or "over easy."

"We were performing at the Speakeasy in Cambridge and a fan in the front of the audience unzipped our female harmonica player's pants. They weren't the regular kind of zippers — they were on the side, so when the fan unzipped her pants they fell off," O'Halloran said. "After we had him ejected from the club, she told us he was her brother."

Tomorrow's performance with Son Seals' band promises to be just as exciting for Wildcat.

"Son's band is great. We opened for them a year ago around this time. They're real down and dirty — even doing some of that new funk stuff," he says.

Son Seals will perform at the Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton on Saturday, Sept. 11 at 9 p.m. This is a 21 and over show.

COURTESY PAUL NATKIN

Son Seals

Dance Stuff

220 N. Pleasant St. (Rear), Amherst, MA

For the Dancer, Gymnast, Fitness Minded

We have all supplies for dance majors

Fun Bodywear! Great Shoes! 253-5201

NEW INDIA RESTAURANT

Authentic Indian Cuisine

Specializing in Lamb, Chicken, Beef, Seafood & Fresh Vegetables and Tandoori Delights

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!

Take 10% OFF

Any Dinner Order with this ad & student I.D. Expires Oct. 20, 1993

Lunch: Mon.-Sun. 11:00-3:00 p.m.
Dinner: Sun.-Thurs. 3:00-10:30 p.m.
Dinner: Fri.-Sat. 3:00-11:00 p.m.

17 Kellogg Ave., Amherst • 253-4200 • Take-out available
American Express • Mastercard • Visa • Call for Catering

WELCOME BACK UMASS!!

THE SPOKE

35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass.
Est. 1984, 1st Bar off Campus

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIALS

IMPORTED BEER OF THE MONTH
Heineken or Amstel a mere $2.00 can

DOMESTIC BEER OF THE MONTH
Schlitz a mere $1.50 can

DRINK OF THE WEEK
Pink Lemonade a mere $1.75
(Vodka•Lemon Mix•Cranberry)

Proper ID Required

"TIRED OF CROWDED GYMS?"

The GYM at mountain farms mall
Rt.9/Russell St. • 584-2175

Membership Thru 12-31-93

Fall Semester Special
Only $109.00

Conveniently Located on the New Bike Path.
Plenty of Free Parking - Easy To Get To.

The Collegian has positions available in the newsroom.

Several are paid positions.

If you are interested, come down today!

113 Campus Center
545-3500

Welcome Back Savings from Scotts

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon-Sat 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT 24-12 OZ. CANS $9.99 + DEP.

COORS (REGULAR, EXTRA GOLD, LIGHT) $19.99 BEER BALLS

MILLER GENUINE DRAFT & G.D. LIGHT 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES $10.99 + DEP.

RUBINOFF VODKA 1.75 LTR $8.99

BUSCH 1/6 KEG $36.99 NO PERMIT NEEDED TO PURCHASE KEGS

CAPTAIN MORGAN CO-PACK 1.75 LTR. MORGAN W/FREE 2.0 LTR. COKE $15.99

MOLSON GOLDEN & LIGHT 12 PK. BOTTLES $8.39 + DEP.

SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL 750 ML 2 FOR $6.99

COLUMBIA CREST CHARDONNAY 750 ML $5.49

GLEN ELLEN CHARDONNAY, CAB. SUAV. SAUV. BLANC 750 ML $3.99

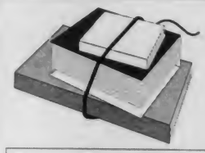
JOSE CUERVO TEQUILLA CO-PACK 750 ML TEQUILLA/FREE 1.0 LTR. MARGARITA MIX $11.99

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!

Tele-check for your personal check.

6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

We now have all Mass Lottery games!



QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

■ bank

continued from page 3

19-years old and $5 will be charged after their 19th birthday. There are extra charges for using an ATM machine different than BayBank's or writing extra checks.

Shawmut Bank is offering the "StreamLine Checking Account." There are no service charges if less than eight checks are paid per month but there is charge of $5.25 for each extra check. There is no interest rate for the checking account.

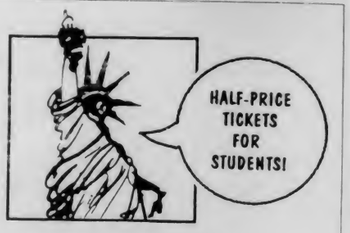
HELP WANTED!

Are you organized?
Want to organize us?
We need you!

The position of Librarian at the Collegian is currently open. Interested applicants should contact Darienne at 113 Campus Center as soon as possible.

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB



Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($169) & get a free HFC T-Shirt!

The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446

90 Gatehouse Road
"Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center"

• PVTA bus route to Rolling Green •
• pool • aerobics • aqua-aerobics •
• steps • nautilus • racquetball •
• free weights • jacuzzi • sauna •
• massage • bikes • tennis •
• rowers • treadmills •

YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO TO NEW YORK TO GET LOST IN YONKERS.

(OR 23 OTHER GREAT SHOWS!)

The Fine Arts Center at UMASS in Amherst.
Right in your own backyard!
Call for your free '93-'94 season brochure.

413-545-2511

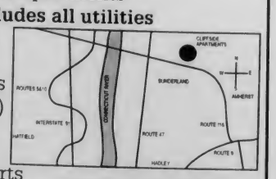
Late Night SHOW
with Tracy Monahan

Well, okay, it isn't all that late. But next Tuesday at 7 p.m. there will be a staff meeting for all former staff writers and anyone interested in writing for the Collegian's News Desk.
Your hosts will be News Editor Tracy Monahan and Darienne Hosley, Managing Editor.
Find out the plans for this semester's News section, and see where you fit in.
Need more info? Can't make it?
Call 545-0719.

News Writer Staff Meeting
Tuesday, Sept. 14 at 7 p.m.
in the Collegian Newsroom
113 Campus Center

Hairworks PLUS

Hair Nails Tanning



HAIR, NAILS, TANNING AND SO MUCH MORE
Located Next To Super Stop & Shop
Phone: 253-3334
Open Evenings Until 8PM
Sebastion, Nexxus, KMS, Paul Michell, Redkin

$5.00 OFF	$2.00 OFF	10% OFF
One Month Unlimited Tanning	Any Manicure	Any Retail Items
Exp. 10/31/93	Exp. 10/31/93	Exp. 10/31/93

CLIFF SIDE APARTMENTS

248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2

- Eff., 1, 2, &3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $420 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor.....Sean Hayden
Photo Technician.....Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor.....Mike Carvalho
Production.....Lisa Jezowski, Jim Bakker
Dr. Gene Scott, & Robert Tilton

MENU

LUNCH
Chicken Pucks
Hot Hero
BASICS LUNCH
Chicken Pucks
Ratatouille

DINNER
Southern Fried Steak
Chicken Burrito
BASICS DINNER
Spinach Noodles
Bean Burrito

PS MUELLER By MUELLER

Quote of the Day

"I am entering this University with you, but I hope I am not leaving it with you."
– Chancellor David Scott to the freshman class

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Something exciting could begin at lunch today. Varying your work routine will boost both your spirits and your creativity. Seize a last-minute chance to showcase your special talents for higher-ups.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): So-called friends may try to pump you for information. Keep a relationship to yourself. It will be easier to resolve things if others do not know. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): End the work week on a happy note by meeting an old friend for lunch. Distractions abound at work. Do not despair! Concentration will help you finish a project on time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put yourself in a more positive frame of mind. Your determination will impress those in authority. Romance will heat up if you want it to. Play your cards close to your chest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try a new version of an old idea. Perseverance makes you a winner. No matter how great peer pressure gets, hang on to your integrity. Long-distance communications help you land new business.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Things go smoothly at work or home. A new spirit of cooperation is evident. Tackle complex tasks and stock up on interesting reading matter. Focus on your strengths, not your weaknesses.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A recent misunderstanding can be smoothed over. Show your willingness to listen to other people's opinions. Optimism is often contagious. Emphasize the positive when dealing with a difficult person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your intuition reveals the best way to deal with a prickly co-worker. Your finances show steady improvement. Make sure of your own feelings before seeking a romantic commitment.

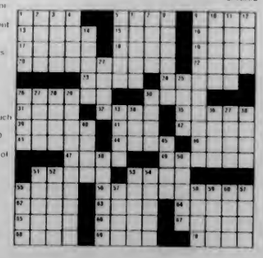
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An ideal day to handle government-related matters. A friend helps you cut through red tape. Loved ones play a supportive role. A romance could be cooling. Be discreet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some behind-the-scenes maneuvering helps your career no fingers. Compromise is possible if you make the first move. Deal face-to-face with a potential adversary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sequiring new skills will give you an edge over the competition. Other people look to you for leadership. Some words or nature projects. Regular exercise reduces stress.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your communication skills improve, allowing you to accomplish more in less time. An inspired idea leads to higher profits. Curb a tendency to act dismissively.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Scots' caps
5 Jejune
9 Roman date
13 "___ mess is as good as I—"
15 Way in
16 Cleopatra's waterway
17 Catalina's element
18 "Chip 'n' ___"
19 Yield
20 Mediates
22 Iron and Stone, e.g.
23 Scuffs
24 Marked insider
26 Prides
30 Pair
31 "___ Yesterday"
33 The Mediterranean, e.g.
35 Appear to be
39 Make very happy
41 Double curve
42 Personal pronoun
43 Tax provisions
44 Greek god
46 SS adjustment
47 Cow of Asia
49 Odds
51 Rowing blades
53 Competent
55 Strike out
56 Bigoted
62 Cupid
63 Toy shop purchase
64 The Pentateuch
65 Cat's cradle
66 Part of Q.E.D.
67 Hinge
68 Homophone of 23 Across
69 Back talk
70 Leg joint

DOWN
1 Gab
2 Set be n
3 ___ gulep
4 The blackthorn
5 Viper
6 Highways
7 Prisoner of Hercules
8 Stylish
9 Glow with heat
10 Mexican painter Rivera
11 Church officer
12 Deceivers
14 Register
21 Players
25 Alleviate 26 Support
27 Small rodent
28 Blackish lake of Central Asia
29 Meddles
30 Measured amount
33 Gesume
34 Neighbor of Syr.
36 School near Windsor Castle
37 Shape
38 Mineral springs
40 Way out
45 Bear's admonition
48 Play lines
50 Joins
51 Monkey kin
52 Marry in haste
53 Sky-supporter
54 Fasteners
55 Pedestal part
57 Nick's wife
58 Ice cube
59 Elvis's middle name
60 Scruff of the neck
61 Biblical pronoun

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

R	O	S	E		W	A	S	T	E		I	L	L
A	R	T	E		O	T	H	E	R		F	R	E	E
T	A	Y	L	O	R		A	N	G	E	L	O	N	G
A	L	I		M	O	R	A		L	A	N	D
		B	E	Y	S		H	A	I	R
R	A	G	E	S		G	E	N	D	E	R	S
A	R	E	A		E	L	A	T		D	A	T	E
M	O	N	R	O	E		D	A	V	I	S	B	A	L	L
P	A	N		R	A	I	S	E		A	S	E	A
	R	E	P	A	S	S		S	H	I	T	S	Y
		O	N	E	S		P	O	I	N	T
	B	U	R	G		F	O	R	T		L	E	A
F	O	S	T	E	R		F	O	N	D	A	R	Y	A	N
A	R	E	S		O	U	N	C	E		E	R	S	T
R	E	D		E	N	T	E	R		S	E	T	S

5/18/93

Weld will not gamble on megaplex funding

By EVE EPSTEIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Gov. William F. Weld said Thursday he is willing to abandon the use of floating casinos to pay for a state-financed $700 million sports and convention center.

The governor had proposed paying for the complex through a combination of gambling revenues and borrowing. But Weld said he is willing to look at paying for the project entirely through general obligation bonds because he believes the convention center will generate enough tax revenue to pay for itself.

Weld was grilled on the convention center proposal by members of the Legislature's Committee on State Administration.

Asked about his plan's reliance on gambling revenues, Weld said he believed the 630,000-square-foot complex would generate $63 million in tax revenue for the state — enough to pay off debt service on borrowing even without gambling money.

"I think we could pay for the whole thing with g.o. (general obligation) bonds," Weld said, adding that he offered the water-based gambling as a way to allay fears by some that there should be a dedicated source of revenue to pay for the project.

Shortly before Weld testified, one of the most powerful leaders in the Legislaturee questioned whether it is wise to expand legalized gambling operations in the state.

"I don't think it's the right way to raise revenue," said Senate President William Bulger, D-Boston.

Bulger said Weld boxed himself into a corner by pledging during the 1990 campaign that he would not raise taxes. Now, the governor has to look to gambling to pay for such projects.

"He's stuck," Bulger said. "He did something no one should ever do to themselves in politics."

The governor has repeatedly said he will not raise taxes, either to pay for a convention center or to pay for additional funding for education reforms.

Legislators grilled Weld on a variety of issues, including the abandonment of Foxboro stadium, current home to the New England Patriots, which would be replaced by a domed stadium under the so-called "megaplex" plan.

Some asked why the state should pay for the complex, instead of a private compnay — noting that Weld has repeatedly called for the state to contract with private industry for public services in other areas.

Weld said the Patriots are not his only concern. "A domed stadium will allow Boston to bid for the Final Four, the Super Bowl and even college bowl games," he said.

■ Roberts

continued from page 16

"I'm a little more confident now," she said. "As a sophomore I realize I'm not going to score all the time because everyone wants to score. I just have to be patient and wait for the opportunities to come."

Roberts has been creating her own opportunities this season as part of UMass' new offensive plan. She plays what was traditionally the center forward position but her job is to dart around the offensive end, pressure the goalkeeper and make runs into open areas in the flanks. The position was created with Roberts in mind.

"It was set up to suit what we had in terms of personnel and Nicole has fit in very nicely," Rudy said. "She is doing a better job pacing herself and running at the proper times instead trying to go hard for 90 minutes. She has developed into quite an ethereal player, a heady player, and that is what we need.

"She has been able to get to the open corners and flanks and make the crossing plays (Roberts assisted on Mellisa Mitchell's score in just that manner on Wednesday) so it's working out fine."

Roberts and the Minutewomen (2-0 and ranked No. 11 nationally) will look to continue their strong play this weekend at the Holiday Inn Soccer Tournament at the University of Hartford, where they will meet Michigan State at 1 p.m. on Saturday and Colorado College at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

LSAT
GRE
GMAT
MCAT

Total Training
Expert Teachers
Personal Tracking and Tutoring
Insider Test Information
Permanent Centers
Maximize your score
Call for a free introductory seminar
1-800-KAP-TEST
KAPLAN RULES

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

IF YOU THOUGHT COLLEGE WAS EXPENSIVE, TRY PUTTING YOURSELF THROUGH RETIREMENT.

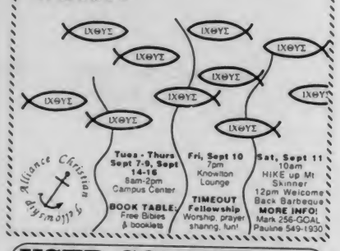
Think about supporting yourself for twenty-five, thirty years or longer in retirement. It might be the greatest financial test you'll ever face. Fortunately, you have one valuable asset in your favor. Time.

Time to take advantage of tax-deferral. Time for your money to grow.

But starting early is key. Consider this: if you begin saving just $100 a month at age thirty, you can accumulate $172,109* by the time you reach age sixty-five. Wait ten years and you'd need to set aside $219 a month to reach the same goal.

At TIAA-CREF we not only understand the value of starting early, we can help make it possible—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over a million people in education and research are already enrolled in America's largest retirement system. Find out how easy it is to join them. Call today and learn how simple it is to put yourself through retirement when you have time and TIAA-CREF on your side.



Start planning your future. Call our Enrollment Hotline 1 800 842-2888.

TIAA CREF
75 years of ensuring the future for those who shape it.™

*Assuming an interest rate of 7.00% credited to TIAA Retirement Annuities. This rate is used solely to show the power and effect of compounding. Lower or higher rates would produce very different results. CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services.

© 1993 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund.

Come meet other friendly fish in the water.

USED COMPUTERS
Available Due To Corporate Downsizing
IBM Brand

Model AT 286 2MB Ram, 52MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $550

Model AT 286 1MB Ram, 20MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $395

Model XT 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $310

Model 3270 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $275

Rentals, Printers Available

CALL 253-7510

REKINDLE YOUR PASSION For Indian Food at
The Valley's Original
INDIA HOUSE
Restaurant
ON STATE STREET
Where Indian Food is more than Curry!
For Excellent Food and Hospitality Come to Our House...
45 State Street
Northampton, MA 586-6344

■ field hockey

continued from page 16

went right after it."

UMass got a scare at the end of the half when Jenn Salisbury went down with a back injury, but she appeared to be all right as she returned to play a strong second half.

"I was hoping she wasn't hurt so seriously that she wouldn't be able to return," Hixon said.

BC collapsed in the second half as the UMass offense dominated the play, starting with Kerry Metelski's first goal of the season which came less than four minutes after the break.

Jelley added her second goal on a pass from Hockenbrock and flew past the Eagle defense for her hat trick, which put the Minutewomen up 5-0.

Sherry Doiron collected a pass from Natalie Hart and drove it home to close out the scoring at 66:01.

"I'm just glad we won, and we won big because we needed it," said Jelley. "We came out strong and from the beginning to the end, we totally dominated."

Hixon said, "Tara played really well. When she gets the ball on the outside she can run the sideline better than almost anyone."

The Eagles could not get anything started, registering only six shots against Minutewoman goalie Hilary Rose, who recorded the first shutout of her UMass career.

It was a key win for UMass as it rebounded from Saturday's 1-0 loss to Northwestern.

"We really controlled the game," said Hixon. "Against Northwestern, they really controlled us. We didn't seem quite ready to play. Today we were ready to play. We kept the pressure on for the full 70 minutes."

UMass heads to Durham, N.H., tomorrow for an important game against New Hampshire.

■ football

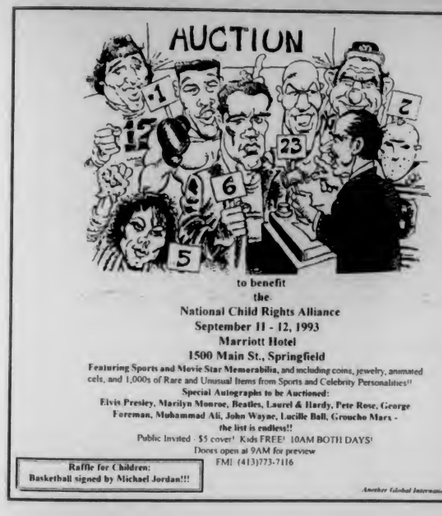
continued from page 16

experienced."

Holy Cross has a sophomore quarterback and a second-year coach, like UMass. A question the Crusaders have to answer is whether they have the depth and balance of UMass.



For the Minutemen, they have to answer the biggest question of all: are they for real? Will they stay hungry? Saturday's game will begin to answer some of these questions.

Game Notes: The game can be heard on WMUA 91.1 FM with Jeff Crofts/Jason Nash and WTTT 1430 AM with Mike Fagerson/Jim Degnim.

VALLEY MOTORSPORTS
Rt. 5 Northampton, MA 01060
413/584-7303 • 800/649-9965
94's In Stock Now!
Scooter • Generators
Snow Blowers • Jetmate
Motorcycles • ATV's
Lawn Mowers • Jet Skis
Snowmobiles
HONDA Kawasaki YAMAHA DUCATI

haircuts always $10!
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST 256 0733

Acupuncture
and Natural Healing
549-6856
245 Lincoln Ave., Amherst
F.E. Steinway, Lic. Ac.

to benefit the National Child Rights Alliance
September 11 - 12, 1993
Marriott Hotel
1500 Main St., Springfield
Featuring Sports and Movie Star Memorabilia, and including coins, jewelry, animated cels, and 1,000s of Rare and Unusual Items from Sports and Celebrity Personalities!!
Special Autographs to be Auctioned:
Elvis Presley, Marilyn Monroe, Beatles, Laurel & Hardy, Pete Rose, George Foreman, Muhammad Ali, John Wayne, Lucille Ball, Groucho Marx - the list is endless!!
Public Invited $5 cover! Kids FREE! 10AM BOTH DAYS!
Doors open at 9AM for preview
FMI (413)773-7116
Raffle for Children: Basketball signed by Michael Jordan!!!
Another Global International Event

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons — Free — Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

College Pizza Open for lunch At 11 Sat. and Sun. Fall Special: Small Cheese $3.50 Large Cheese $5.99 1 or 2 toppings add $1 549-6073 549-6098

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508 543 5640

LBGA Infosocial Tuesday September 14 7-9 pm. CC 905 09. Socialize, eat, and get to know us.

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale 83 Mercury Marquis (Parts) BO 549-3681

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Toyota Tercel 1980 runs very well Many new parts 104,000 miles on engine $1250 259-1850

Toyota - 1982 Tercel SR5 Hatchback 5 speed - runs well - one owner - well maintained - $1450 - evenings 253-2410

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Downtown. Quiet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4236 9am - 9 pm.

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets Fourth Row Steve 665-2058

Grateful Dead Need a miracle? 2 tix 9-26 Jeff 549-3912

Kitchen Table, desk, dishes 584-2784

Original Macintosh, Imagewriter printer, write, draw, spellcheck software, instruction manuals. $295/all 586-5447

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/profressional equipment. Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

Super Single Waterbed with bookcase and side pads $160 Mike 256-3076

T.V.'s — 19" COLOR. Cable ready! $85. 549-4793

Television Color $60, B/W $20 256-6135.

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Early Sunday Part time delivery. Great money. Car required. Cheryl 548-9888

EARTHFOODS IS HIRING!!! Student run vegetarian cafe Seeks a diverse Group of responsible people For hard work and fun Applications available in The CSB Office, 409 Student Union

Excellent Extra Income Now! Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc 1375 Coney Island Ave Brooklyn, NY 11230

Fundraisers Raise $150-$300! Guaranteed in one week plus bonus up to $500! Manage promotions for top companies for one week on your campus. Call for free gift and to qualify for free trip to MTV Spring Break '94 Call 1-800-950-1037 ext. 25

Peace and Justice Organization seeks Grants Assistant workstudy students. Phone reception and general clerical work. 10 hours a week, $5.56 per hour call Juan Carlos at 256-8306

RGIS Inventory Specialists now hiring part time inventory takers $6 per hour. Flexible schedule temporary or year round work will train call 737-7218 M-F 10-4 EOE

Spring Break '94 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student travel services is now hiring campus reps call 800-648-4849

The Amherst Boys and Girls Club needs work/study assistants for recreation programs. Open 2:30 to 5:00 afternoons 7:00 to 9:00 evenings. Workers schedule as time available $5.25 per hour. UM buses stop in front of club at 390 Main St. Contact Richard Britt 253-3261

Theatre Director Childrens Theatre Forming EOE Experienced Actor/Director. Send resume to Production Arts Limited Box 639 South Hadley MA 01075 0639

$287.30 Sell $0 Hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol related, college t shirts and make $287.50. All shirts 100% guaranteed. A risk free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

Wanted: Campus Representatives Spring Break Discounters (Vacation Packages) Earn cash and free trips Cancun Bahamas Padre Island Daytona. We handle bookkeeping you handle sales. 1-800-336-2260 Monday thru Friday (9 am - 5 pm).

INTERNSHIPS

The Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is hiring interns for Fall semester. Conduct research, lobbying, training, and organizing in support of Student Government Association Agenda for Change 6 work study credits for 15-20 hours per week. To apply send letter of interest to SCERA Box 128 Student Union. For more information call Marc 545-0341

PERSONALS

POSTER SALE. Biggest and best selection. Choose from over 1000 different images. Rock, old masters (Monet, Dali, Van Gogh, Picasso, Escher, Matisse, Wyeth, and hundreds more), movie posters, sports, scenic landscapes, music, dance, skiing, personalities (Einstein, James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, and others), travel, humor, romance, photography (Talbot, Ansel Adams, and others). Most images only $5, $8, and $7 each! See us at Student Union Ballroom on Wednesday September 8th through Friday September 10th. The hours are 9 am to 4:30 pm. This sale is sponsored by WMUA 91.1 FM.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995

Late men's soccer score: Connecticut 1, Massachusetts 0

Sports

Football hopes to run over Holy Cross

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team opens its season Saturday at 1 p.m. at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium against Holy Cross, but it is the Minutemen who will play the role of crusaders.

After a 7-3 season in 1992, the Minutemen were largely ignored by media in Boston and nationally. The ultimate slap in the face came from The Sporting News, which picked UMass ninth out of 12 teams. The numbers do not seem to add up. 7-3. Fifteen returning starters. Ninth? Needless to say, the team has plenty to prove.

UMass starts the year hoping to find answers to some difficult questions. The team, led by second-year Coach Mike Hodges, has to prove on the playing field that last season's performance was not a fluke. The Holy Cross game will be a good test.

Peter Vaas mans the helm for Holy Cross, and he is also in his second year as head coach. The Crusaders have lost 14 starters (twice as many as UMass) and have not offered scholarships for two seasons. The program seems to be on the decline. Still, Vaas said he expects an exciting battle tomorrow.

"You have a UMass team that's coming off a strong season, you've got the tradition of Holy Cross, and it should be a decent Saturday [in terms of weather]," Vaas said. "I expect a lot of Holy Cross alums to come. Traditionally, it's been a great rivalry."

The Minutemen also have to answer the question of depth. Fullback Mike George and offensive tackle Andy Rice were expected to return but both suffered apparent season-ending injuries. How Hodges fills these holes will be interesting.

David Smith and Miles Robinson are numbers one and two on the depth chart at fullback, but do not be surprised to see the top two tailbacks, Rene Ingoglia and John Johnson, in the backfield at the same time.

As for the offensive line, both head coaches said they agree that UMass will have the upper hand, regardless of the replacement of Rice with redshirt freshman Dan Markowski.

"I think the biggest problem we'll have is with their offensive line," said Vaas. "They're huge at any point in the line and their mass really concerns me. That can tend to wear you down over the course of the game."

Hodges said, "We've always had a huge line, this year's no different. When you have fifth-year seniors, which most of the line is, and they've been doing the things they've supposed to do for four offseasons, I think it should be the strength. The only exception is with Dan Markowski, and he's strong but not experienced."

Vaas said his own team's strength will also be the run.

"In A.C. Crevadi we have some balance in a fullback who can block, run and catch the ball," said Vaas. "In Andy Fitzpatrick, at quarterback, we have a guy who is only a sophomore but is very

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 15

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Last season, All-America candidate Mario Perry had 68 tackles and 15 sacks. Perry and the Minutemen look to improve this year, starting with tomorrow's clash with Holy Cross (1 p.m., Alumni Stadium).

Minutewomen trounce Eagles in home debut

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Senior Tara Jelley and the Minutewoman field hockey team thrashed Boston College yesterday at Totman Field, 6-0. Jelley tallied three goals as UMass upped its record to 1-1.

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

Senior co-captain Tara Jelley shined in the University of Massachusetts field hockey team's home opener, scoring three goals, as the Minutewomen (1-1) routed Boston College, 6-0.

UMass came out aggressively in the first half, keeping the majority of the play in the BC end of the field. Eagle goalie Sarah Egnaczyk looked sharp from the beginning, turning back several UMass shots, including a Jenn Salisbury penalty stroke.

Boston College	0
Massachusetts	6

Salisbury took a penalty corner pass from Holly Hockenbrock, and flipped it in past Egnaczyk to break the deadlock at 16:13 of the first half.

With only 26 seconds remaining in the half, Jelley drove past the BC defense and blasted a shot past Egnaczyk giving the Minutewomen a 2-0 lead.

"I was glad to see that second goal go in," said UMass Coach Pam Hixon. "Usually when you get close to the end of a half there's a tendency to relax, but we

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 15

Roberts fulfilling her scoring potential

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Nicole Roberts, a sophomore forward on the University of Massachusets women's soccer team, collected a pass 25 yards in front of the Rhode Island net on Wednesday.

She calmly turned, settled herself and ripped a shot just under the crossbar for UMass' third and her second goal of the game. As a smile brightened her face, Roberts' teammates crowded around her to offer congratulations.

The difference in Roberts' play from this season, albeit young, and last is striking. Last fall Roberts probably would not have even attempted the shot, instead opting to pass the ball off; or maybe she would have tried to take it in alone and beat a couple of defenders with some quick moves before botching the shot.

It was apparent last season Roberts had incredible scoring potential, and while she did have a good season as she chalked up six goals, in order to live up to the potential she showed, Roberts just needed to put it all in place. And thus far in 1993, she has.

"I am so much more relaxed this season," Roberts, who finished second on the team in scoring last season, said. "I'm a lot more patient with the ball, I'm not just rushing a shot or doing things quickly.

"I'm not worried about beating a player or scoring goals, I just want to be a soccer player."

And she is turning into the player who knocked in 163 goals during her career at Troy (N.Y.) High School, including 65 during her senior season, en route to being named New York State Section II Player of the Year.

"When we brought her in we thought she would become a very good player," said UMass head coach Jim Rudy. "But to become a great player it takes time. Very few players come in and become an All-American in their first season, and she wasn't one of them, but right now she is progressing rapidly."

For Roberts, her freshman season may have been a matter of simply trying to do too much too soon.

"She puts a lot of pressure on herself," Rudy said. "She was used to a lot of success and a lot of goals. And while she did score for us last season, it just wasn't at the rate she was used to. For Nicole it was a somewhat frustrating freshman season."

Now Roberts insists the pressure is gone.

Turn to ROBERTS, page 14

SPORTS NOTICE

- Anyone interested in trying out for the UMass softball team, please call 545-0038.
- There will be a meeting for anyone interested in competing for the men's and women's indoor or outdoor track teams on Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 4 p.m. in Boyden Gym, room 253.
- The UMass Lacrosse Club (JV-level men) meets today, Sept. 9, at 5 p.m. in Boyden 253 to start 1993 Fall Ball. Experienced and new players welcome. For information, call 545-6353.
- There will be open tryouts for anyone interested in trying out for the women's field hockey team on Monday, Sept. 13, at 2:30 p.m. at Totman Field. Come prepared to practice. For further information, contact the field hockey office at 545-1942.
- INTRAMURALS BEGIN AGAIN – Enter now for Fall Flag Football, Soccer, Co-ed Softball, among other sports. Entries due as early as 9/13 so don't hesitate. Stop by 215 Boyden for more information on upcoming sports and health clearances.

Read about Mel Gibson's latest film, 'The Man Without a Face' Page 7

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Monday
September 13, 1993
76°
Volume CIII Issue 4

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

UM students ask for more GLB focus

By MELANIE DESILVA
Collegian Staff

Some students at the University of Massachusetts are looking to their counterparts at other universities and are wondering why they do not have an established gay, lesbian, and bisexual studies program (GLB).

At the University of San Francisco one can major in it. At the City College of New York, one can enter a gay studies graduate program. And at Yale, students may indulge in a variety of courses and research options centering on GLB issues.

Yet despite the increasing number of universities which have established GLB studies departments, UMass administrators have yet to establish a similar program.

"I'm annoyed there isn't a GLB studies program," said undergraduate Kelly Hayes, who said she is a lesbian. "There's a really rich history of GLB liberation that's important for people to know about."

"It's frustrating," Deven DeMarco said. "By being a gay man on campus, I want to be able to learn about gay history, and if we don't have gay studies courses and anyone to teach them, then we have no sense of background and origin. And, if we have no sense of the past, we have no future."

It has been over a decade since the concept of a GLB studies program was introduced into the UMass academic arena. The idea of a visiting professorship in lesbian and gay studies was first recommended by Dr. Felice Yeskel in her 1984 report, "The Consequences of Being Gay". Yeskel is now the director for the Program for GLB Concerns.

Although isolated courses such as Queer Lives in Twentieth Century United States, are being taught this semester by graduate student Jaimee Saliba, classes containing substantial GLB content are scarce, even after 10 years.

"As an English major I would love to see writers like Rita Mae Brown and other queer writers such as her read by non-queer people, so they would be a clue," said John Beck, who said he is a queer English major.

Yet despite criticism from GLB students and community leaders, administrators contend that they have a strategy and are slowly and systematically working towards the year when a GLB studies program can be unveiled.

According to Norm Aikten, Assistant Provost and member of the Chancellor's Task Force on GLB Matters, and Yeskel, the administration's strategy has begun by offering a series of lectures and seminars for

Turn to GLB, page 6

Talk about being overloaded

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

These oxen are starting the semester off with a heavy load by pulling a pile of bricks at the 3-County Fair in Northampton.

Panel looks at a mixed bag of topics for fall convention

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The state of Massachusetts Democratic Party sent on Saturday a platform panel to the University of Massachusetts to hold a public hearing in anticipation of the party's convention to be held later this fall.

The panel is one of five being held across the state by the Democratic Party. It is being held in order to get suggestions from the state's Democrats which will be presented at the statewide convention in October.

The panel, which consisted of seven men and two women, was chaired by Carmen Buell. It convened Saturday morning on the ninth floor of the Campus Center.

Dolores Sutton, a resident of Amherst, argued for the single-payer health care plan, in opposition to President Clinton's multifaceted bill. Sutton said she had more hope than confidence in the country's plan for national health care.

"I think we need a single-payer plan as a unified federal program that would underwrite the costs," Sutton said. "We live in a two-class society on the issue of health care, with the wealthy families being haves and the poor the have-nots."

Amherst resident Alice Friedman, who called herself "a registered nurse and a registered Democrat," said she lamented the nation's inability to address health care.

"There is an urgency to the health care reform bill," Friedman said. "I'm holding a copy of the 1948 national home care bill. In it it says they wanted to go slow on the issue of health care, but I hope they didn't mean this slow."

National health care was the primary issue on the agenda for the panel, but the North American Free Trade Agreement was also discussed. The NAFTA bill, allowing free trade with Canada and Mexico, was not endorsed by Northampton mayor Mary Ford.

"I helped to elect our President, but I think he's dead

Turn to PANEL, page 2

Sperm bank set to open

Student depositors could earn cash

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard and MIT men can earn about $100 a week selling their designer genes.

California Cryobank, one of the largest commercial sperm banks in the nation, will open its new office Monday along the 1 1/2 mile stretch of Massachusetts Avenue separating Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dr. Charles Sims, Cryobank's co-founder, told the Boston Sunday Globe that his bank is open to all qualified donors — not just Harvard and MIT students.

"But we would like good donors and would be very happy to have donors from those institutions," Sims said.

Although Harvard sperm maybe appealing to some would-be recipients, others may be underwhelmed by the concept.

"I've had couples say, 'I don't want Harvard sperm, I don't want some snobby donor,'" said Carol Frost Vercollone, an infertility counselor in Stoneham.

"What they say about MIT, I shouldn't even repeat it," she said. "You know, they say maybe the baby will be born with a slide rule. People might be a little more comfortable if they were down at UMass."

Sims said a Harvard or MIT degree is not necessarily a sign of genius.

"We don't at all believe that college is a measure of intelligence," he said. "My own father never finished fourth grade and I think he is an intelligent man."

That hasn't prevented Cryobank from locating all of its banks next to college campuses.

It also hasn't precluded the company from prominently using the names of those campuses — Stanford and the University of California at Berkeley—in its marketing materials.

And it hasn't stopped Cryobank

Turn to BANK, page 2

Signing of peace agreement a big change for two leaders

By RUTH SINAI
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two old warriors, Yasser Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin, headed Sunday toward a reshaping of the Middle East: the launch of an experiment in peace that will set the stateless Palestinian people on the road to independence.

For Rabin — the general who 25 years ago captured the West Bank and Gaza strip, and Arafat — the guerrilla leader who now hopes to free them from Israeli rule, their attendance at Monday's White House signing of an Israel-PLO accord on self-rule for Palestinians marks a moment of hope and trepidation.

Along with President Clinton, the two men will share a stage on the South Lawn of the White House, facing 3,000 guests—former Presidents Carter and Bush, dozens of foreign ministers, and legions of Americans, Arabs and Jews who have tried to make peace in the Middle East — and millions of tv viewers around the world who will watch the ceremony live.

The prospect of the encounter between Rabin and Arafat, sworn enemies until three days ago when they signed a mutual recognition pact between Israel and the PLO, generated intense speculation and disbelief Sunday amid the frenzied preperations for the signing.

"An awful lot of taboos are being broken in the last few days," said Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

The document will likely be signed by Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Arafat's top aide, Mahmoud Abbas. White House workers were dusting off the desk used to ink the 1979 peace agreement between Israel and Egypt — the only Arab-Israeli peace ever signed.

On everyone's minds was whether Rabin and Arafat would shake hands.

Even before Rabin and Arafat set foot here, there was trouble. Three Israeli soldiers were killed by Muslim militants opposed to the accord, and the thorny dispute over the future of Jerusalem surfaced.

The future of the holy city is one of the issues which Israeli and PLO negotiators left to be decided at a later date.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0714

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Arts & Living Editor ..... Lisa J. Curtis
Black Affairs Editor ..... [illegible]
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... [illegible]
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... [illegible]
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
Third World Affairs Editor ..... [illegible]
Women's Issues Editor ..... [illegible]

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanito
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Students feel future is bright

BOSTON (AP) — Most Massachusetts university and college students believe their education is preparing them well for life and are largely optimistic about their future, according to a survey.

Sixty-three percent feel sure they will find a job when they graduate, and 52 percent believe their college education will help them do better than their parents.

On political issues, 52 percent of the men and women polled said abortion should be legal in all circumstances, and 31 percent in some circumstances; 51 percent support affirmative action as a means of providing opportunities to minorities; and 59 percent think gay and lesbian partners should be entitled to the same legal rights and benefits as married couples.

The poll, conducted Sept. 7 by KRC Communications Research of Newton for the Boston Sunday Globe, included in-person interviews with 703 students at seven campuses representing a cross-section of the more than 300,000 Massachusetts college undergraduates. The results have a margin of error of plus or minus four percent.

While the majority are confident they will land a job upon graduation, 20 percent are pessimistic about future employment and 17 percent told the pollsters they didn't know what to expect.

More than half the women students said they are concerned about being victims of date rape, and just under one-third of the men are worried about being accused of that crime.

In his own national survey of student-affairs administrators, Arthur Levine, chairman of Harvard's Institute for Educational Management, found that 69 percent of four-year colleges and 73 percent of two-year schools said reports of date rape had increased over the past three years.

In the Globe poll, 46 percent of the men and 26 percent of the women think men on their campus accept a woman's right to say no to sexual advances.

■ panel

continued from page 1

wrong on this issue," said Ford. "I urge support for further debate."

Other issues included suggestions for anti-privatization, expanding the bottle bill, abortion rights and anti-term limits. The final two panels will be held in Worcester and New Bedford.

Members of the University Democrats said they were happy with the party's choice of UMass as a panel site.

"I'm really happy," said Steve Cohen, a sophomore political science major. "It shows the commitment to higher education, especially here of all places."

"I'm not really disappointed because there wasn't a lot of publicity," said Neil Carpenter, president of University Democrats. "I told some students about it, but I'm surprised there were kids here that we didn't talk to."

■ bank

continued from page 1

from using advertisements in college newspapers to recruit donors.

That's because college campuses provide an abundance of healthy, fertile young men with flexible schedules and empty wallets. And the college background does appeal to some customers.

"The average recipient is of average or upper-middle class background and is looking for the donor to meet certain expectations, sort of like selecting a mate," Sims said.

"I want a donor who would not be offensive to the recipient if they happen to meet," he said. "We would like a donor that you wouldn't be ashamed of if your daughter married him."

Depositors will receive $35 for each accepted specimen up to three times a week. They must be healthy, at least 5-foot-9, between the ages of 19 and 34, and willing to make a commitment for at least nine months.

U. The National College Magazine

Coming in September

- Talk show hosts battle it out for the late night crown
- Money for nothing: Is college worth the price you pay?
- Robert Downey Jr. hosts candidate camera in The Last Party
- Billy Idol unveils his new version of punk

It's Back to School Time

10% off with Student I.D.
Not valid with other discounts
Does not apply to oil changes
Discount valid only at time of purchase
offer expires 10/3/93

Free Midas Shuttle to Campus

MIDAS

MUFFLERS BRAKES SHOCKS STRUTS
COMPUTERIZED ALIGNMENT
RTE. 9/HADLEY
586-9991
Near Hampshire Mall

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

"HERE'S OUR CHANCE TO BE HEARD"
paid political advertisement

"For the first time in fifty years, the residents of the First Franklin District have the chance to elect a progressive Democrat to serve as their Sate Representative. Gloria Carme unequivocally supports public higher education, a woman's right to choose, and the graduated income tax; this makes her the only candidate who can help us make the most of our future. Please join me in voting for Gloria Carme in the Democratic Primary on Tuesday, September 14."
-Tris Carpenter, Graduate Student, Sunderland

GLORIA CARME
for State Representative

IN OUR MANAGEMENT TRAINING PROGRAM YOUR HANDS WILL BE FULL...NOT HELD.

Lechmere has taken retail management training to a new level—one that allows you to engineer the timetable for achieving your management goals. We have designed a program that will empower you to advance within our organization, if you are a self-starter and have the drive and motivation to direct your own career. In just one year's time, you could be managing a multi-million dollar business!

As the premier hard goods retailer in the Northeast, Lechmere offers quality brand name merchandise at competitive prices. Our management philosophy emphasizes partnership, teamwork, open communication and an entrepreneurial spirit. We offer hands-on experience with a well-defined career path.

This semester we will be conducting an on-campus information session to let you speak directly with select Lechmere Executives about our Management Trainee Program. So if you're interested in challenging career opportunities, come talk with us about just how exciting a career in retail can be!

See Your Placement Office to Reserve Your Spot.

LECHMERE.
with stores in MA, CT, NH, NY, RI
Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center
Room 805-09
7pm-9pm
Refreshments will be served

Local News

Say "cheese squared"

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Photographer Buck Stewart photographs Laura Cayer outside of Tobin Hall.

Fair bids farewell for yet another year

By MICHAEL SMITH
Collegian Correspondent

The Hampshire, Franklin and Hampden Agricultural Society Fair, better known as the 3-County Fair, closed its gates Saturday night bringing its 176th show to an end.

Since 1817 the 3-County Fair has been annually held in Northampton, which makes it the country's oldest continuously run fair.

Everything ran smoothly, although attendance numbers were slightly slightly lower than years past, said Allan O'Brien, a UMass alumni and fair secretary for 10 years. Poor weather and a smaller horse racing schedule were cited for the lower attendance. Nonetheless, 80,000 people were estimated to have attended the fair by the end of the week.

The fair usually attracts two groups," O'Brien said, "One comes for the horse races and the other comes for the traditional county fair."

The number of horses at the fair this year was down to 250 from the usual 350, making it necessary to cut down on the number of races. A lack of other racing venues in the region was blamed for the low number of horses available to race at the 3-County Fair this year.

The attendance would have been much lower had it not been for several non-traditional additions to the Tri-County Fair venue. For the first time in five years the demolition derbies, truck pull events, monster truck and motorcycle act were offered in the same week.

"They were the major draws," O'Brien said. He said he is hopeful they will continue to be on the venue in the future.

Turn to FAIR, page 6

Clubs find a recruiting haven

Tables at Campus Center allow groups to reach out

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

For many of the special interest student-run organizations on campus, setting up information booths in the Campus Center is the best way for them to recruit and educate interested students.

To some groups, the number of people they are able to entice while sitting at their table is crucial to the future of their program.

This is true for the TEAMS tutoring program, a group of students who tutor kids at local schools in a variety of subjects.

Junior TEAMS tutor Anne Marie Cervini said one of the locations that TEAMS tutors work at is in danger of being cancelled because they are unusually short of student tutors.

"This is the first time we have had to do this," Cervini said. "Enrollment is usually high, but numbers are low now for some odd strange reason."

For other groups, the reason for their presence in the Campus Center is more to educate rather than recruit students.

The Campus Crusade for Christ (CCC) is a social and educational group found on 400 campuses in the United States and has 150 other sites around the world.

For full time CCC staff member Kirk Irwin, the Campus Center is a place where he can meet other people with Christian and church backgrounds.

"We are not really out here to recruit people," Irwin said. "We want to present who Jesus Christ was in a thoughtful and relative way."

For Captain Hedly, who sat at the Army ROTC table, there was also no pressure to bring in new members.

"The overall numbers (of interested students) are down," Hedly said. "But of those who have shown interest, more than 50 percent have signed up. We have no quota. We are here to make a presence and to represent ROTC. Whether we get one or 100 students, we will be here."

The clubs requiring a great deal of commitment, such as the UMass Crew team, know the importance of attracting as many new people as possible. The crew team practices six days a week, beginning at 5:30 a.m.

First year Coach Rick Kelliher, who is taking over a team which won the division two national championship last year, said turnout for the first practice is usually high, but the numbers dwindle when people realize how much commitment is needed for the sport.

"We get four to six hundred people who try out, and we usually end up with 30 men and women," Kelliher said. "Many people find it is just too difficult. It is a real commitment."

Kelliher also said it is important for the crew team to actively recruit, because many people are unaware of a crew team at UMass.

"There are a lot of good athletes at UMass, we just have to go out and get them," he said. "Many people do not realize that they could be part of a championship team."

Beginning of school means different things to a variety of UMass students

By MIKE EINHORN
Collegian Correspondent

The first days of school brought life to the Campus Center Concourse as students returned to begin classes, buy books and reacquaint themselves with their surroundings.

Julie Trainito, a senior English major who works at the information desk, said her first few days were going well and she was glad to be back.

"It's fun seeing all the new students come in and seeing the confusion, as well as the excitement on their faces," Trainito said.

Abdolla Moghaddam is a second year graduate student in public health. Although Moghaddam said he liked the school very much, he added that he had some serious concerns.

"I want UMass to get some common sense, stop cutting back on classes for construction, including new arenas. We have to keep in mind the goals of the institution," Moghaddam said.

Some first year students may get a little nervous over the size of UMass. Brian Penkait said he is surprised that he is not lost yet on the large campus.

"I want to do well in school and not have to worry about other things," Penkait said.

Nancy Alpert is a senior psychology major, who works at the AT&T calling card booth on the concourse. And, like many UMass students, who work at a job, Alpert said she has been working very hard.

"I just want to have a good time, it's my senior year," Alpert said.

Jason Dowley, first year accounting major, said he has dreams of acting.

During the first weekend back at school, some UMass students may get a little carried away with the partys. But Dowley said he has not had a hangover, since he arrived on Sunday.

"I would like to at least be able to meet a whole variety of people," Dowley said.

A senior communications major, Tina McColgan, said her first few days were going great. McColgan said she is going to work hard for good grades, and is planning to attend the University of Georgia for graduate work.

And, thanks to people like McColgan, who said she is always honest and up front with other students, especially students who need advice or directions, perhaps first-year students will feel more comfortable on campus.

Some seniors said they do not distance themselves from first year students. And, they said they have similar goals of education and fun, as other students do.

Kelly Conwell is a first year nursing major and works in the University store.

"I'd like to do well in school and continue having fun," Conweil said. "Its laid back here, I think that is good because I don't feel like a freshman. I love it."

Seniors Stephanie Souto, an art education major, and Barbara Banks, a wildlife major, said they wanted the sun to come out and were both glad to be back.

UM Professor set to testify on wetlands

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

The director of the Environmental Institute at UMass will be testifying in front of a United States Senate Committee on Wednesday.

Joseph S. Larson, a professor of wildlife biology and a nationally known wetlands expert, will present testimony in front of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works on Sept. 15.

Congress is holding the hearing to review the Federal Clean Water Act. This program requires people to apply for and receive permits before filling, draining or altering wetlands.

"Wetlands are important in maintaining water quality, redirecting flood damage, promoting wildlife habitats and maintaining water supply."

Professor Joseph S. Larson

Larson said he has been chosen to testify because his area of expertise is developing techniques to determine the function and values of wetlands.

He said he will be testifying from a scientific point of view to the functions and values of wetlands in the eastern part of the United States. A professor from Colorado State University will be joining Larson in Washington to give testimony about the situation in the western part of the country.

"Wetlands are important in maintaining water quality, redirecting flood damage, promoting wildlife habitats and maintaining water supply," Larson said.

Larson did his undergraduate studies at UMass, receiving a bachelor's degree in 1956. He also earned his master's at the university in 1958.

In 1966 Larson received his doctorate from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

He has been a member of the UMass faculty for 23 years and has been involved with the Environmental Institute for the past 10 years.

The Environmental Institute was founded in 1972 and is a unit of the graduate school. Larson said the responsibility of the institute is to bring in research contracts and supply graduate students with resources and education.

"I'm just a regular professor, I teach classes to graduate students," Larson said.

Larson has testified before several Congressional committees and subcommittees studying the wetlands.

He is scheduled to testify at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday morning in the Senate building.

WORK SMARTER. NOT HARDER.

We're working smarter, too. So you don't have to work harder.

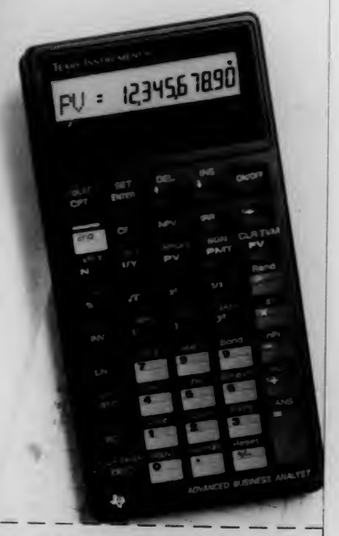
For us, it means an ongoing relationship with educators and professors, striving to understand what's needed to help them make math concepts come alive.

It means continually working with students like you, discovering firsthand what you expect from the calculator you select.

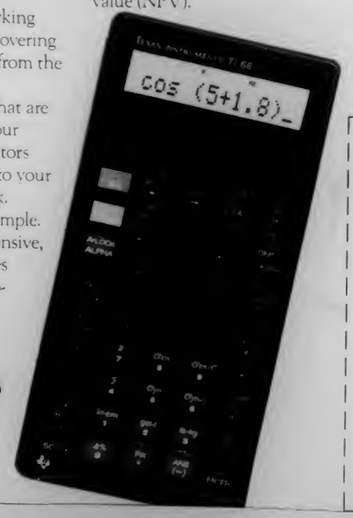
The result? Calculators that are highly recommended by your teachers and peers. Calculators that are perfectly matched to your major and your coursework.

The TI-81 is a perfect example. It offers the most comprehensive, easy-to-use graphing features available with extensive programming capabilities.

And there are others.

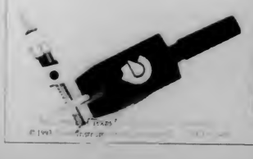


Like the TI-68, an advanced scientific that solves up to five simultaneous equations, performs complex numbers and offers formula programming.



The TI-36X SOLAR, a general purpose workhorse powered by ANYLITE™ solar cells so you never need batteries.

The BA II PLUS™ For business students, this is the one to get. It handles time-value-of-money and offers cash flow analysis for internal rate of return (IRR) and net present value (NPV).



Plus a whole lot more.

No matter what your major, no matter what the course, there's a TI scientific or business calculator that's right for you. Do the smart thing: make one of them a part of your professional personality now, and for the years to come.

You'll be on your way to working smarter. Instead of harder.

Try the entire line of TI scientific and business calculators at your local TI retailer.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

$5.00 MAIL-IN REBATE $5.00 when you buy the TI-60X, TI-68 or BAII PLUS™

HERE'S HOW:
1. Save your original cash register receipt.
2. Clip the proof-of-purchase UPC bar code from package.
3. Complete this mail-in rebate certificate.
4. Send all three items to the address below.

MAIL TO: BACK-TO-SCHOOL REBATE OFFER
Texas Instruments Incorporated
P.O. Box 53 • Lubbock, Texas 79408

Name

Address

City

TERMS AND CONDITIONS: This offer valid for purchases between 8/15/93 and 10/15/93. All claims must be received by 11/30/93. Allow 6-8 weeks for processing. Mail this completed form along with the original cash register receipt and the proof-of-purchase bar code to the address above. The original mail-in certificate must accompany your request and may not be duplicated or reproduced. Not redeemable at your store. Offer valid only as stated on this form and only in the U.S.A. Void where prohibited, taxed, licensed, or restricted. Limit one rebate per household or address. Texas Instruments reserves the right to discontinue this program at any time and without notice.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

An abuse of power

Throughout time, the student-teacher relationship has been a powerful and sacred one. We look to teachers for wisdom, guidance, support and understanding, for it is through our teachers that we broaden our minds and brighten our futures.

For those of us who have made the choice to attend this University, they represent a critical link to the outside world where our dreams and ambitions await recognition. The Collegian finds it disgraceful that a professor has blatantly tarnished such an important link.

When UMass professor William Kerrigan spoke his opinion on student-teacher sex through Harper's magazine, he not only displayed his abuse of power but also his glaring disrespect for women on this campus.

Comments such as, "there is a kind of student I've come across in my career who was working through something that only a professor could help her with. . . a female student who, for one reason or another has unnaturally prolonged her virginity," express an arrogance and insolence that has no place in a classroom and certainly not on this campus.

By publicly demeaning his female students, William Kerrigan has unforgivably degraded the student-teacher relationship and embarrassed this University.

The Collegian feels that any professor who believes it is in his job description to broaden a woman's sexual experience needs to find a job more appropriate to his interests — and not one that abuses its power at the expense of its female students.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Don't repeat Vietnam

Gideon's trumpet sounds peace as Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat join hands and begin building a new nation of Palestine.

Yet, just across the Red Sea, the United States continues its disastrous military adventure in the geopolitical backwater of Somalia. Without cause or provocation, the U.S. military, under guise of multilateral United Nations support, fires upon the rabble of Mogadishu, with no end in sight and with no purpose to bring about such an end.

Peter J.
ORVETTI

Last Thursday, two American Cobra attack helicopters fired into a crowd of Somalis in Mogadishu, killing as many as 100 natives. Meanwhile, the U.N. death toll climbed to 48. "We saw all the people swarming on the vehicles as combatants," said Maj. David Stockwell, chief U.N. spokesperson. "We've seen this before. If they reach our soldiers they tear them limb from limb."

A tenuous argument at best, that the Somali people — most unarmed and uninterested in politics — present a threat to the strongest military force on the planet. Why, then, does our Helping Hand now hold a gun? Very few people could give a coherent answer. Among those who could not are the commanders of the operation, the U.S. Departments of State and Defense, and the president of the United States himself, William J. Clinton.

In sharp contrast to their numerous successes in domestic policy, the Clinton administration has committed a calamitous foreign policy thus far, with the U.S. policy toward Somalia, not Bosnia, providing the greatest parallel to the Vietnam War since that conflict's end.

Perhaps George Bush was attempting to redeem himself for his war crimes against Iraq. Perhaps he was truly interested in using his last days of power to help heal a starving, anarchic state. Or perhaps he was cleaning up his tarnished image for the history books.

At any rate, Operation Helping Hand was on the surface a decent act. Just below that surface, however, the operation was both patronizing and paternalistic — the great rich United States kneeling down to feed a tiny child, Africa.

The entire Somalia operation, from the first troop landing on the media-drenched coast, was scheduled as George Bush's last great sound bite, a nice picture of kindness and gentleness to see that failed executive back to Kennebunkport. Like all pictures, though, Somalia was beautiful but fleeting, and chaos was inevitable.

It is against the charter of the United Nations to become involved in civil wars and internal conflicts of any state, a fact ignored in the formation of both Yugoslavia and Somalia policy.

In Somalia, the stated objective was the re-nourishment of a nation, and the withdrawal of support as soon as a government was established. Again, it is important to remember: the United Nations is to have no say in the form of that government; as long as a government occurs, the mission is complete. A government not unlike that proposed by enemy-of-the-week General Mohammed Farrah Aidid — who, incidentally, received support in his power centralization efforts from the United States just months ago. The original objective has been met. Now the truth is told — the United Nations and the United States want a say in who the head of Somalia will be.

No longer held are the lofty goals of ending starvation or of establishing peace. Rather, it is now painfully evident that the purpose of Somalia is to anoint a Somali leadership hand-picked by the United States, a subservient child on the African coast.

What then remains is the worst of all military situations: a quagmire, unwinnable with any amount of force. The Somalia operation also suffers from the fact that no one in Washington can say why we are involved, since even they do not know. Somalia is now like the last years of Vietnam, on a smaller level: a lost cause kept up to save face, while the casualties multiply.

If President Clinton is truly committed to peace, he should withdraw U.S. forces from Somalia immediately and exercise his operation to stop U.N. action. Then, with the assistance of the world community, the United States should help establish a strong government in Somalia, no matter who heads it. This is the only responsible course. Otherwise, one day we might find ourselves attempting to explain Somalia to our children as our parents told us of Vietnam.

Peter J. Orvetti is a student at Hampshire College.

Shabby treatment of NWT

The New World Theater has done a laudable job carrying out its goals. Through the efforts of its members, New World Theater (NWT) has been able to produce theatrical and multidisciplinary offerings of the highest caliber to educate and sensitize audiences to social, historical, political and cultural contexts.

In addition, NWT has provided strong educational components through workshops, lecture demonstrations and panel discussions.

Malkes
GOMES

It has built strong alliances to different student organizations on campus, such as the Black Mass Communication Project, Asian American Student Alliance, Ahora, the Josephine White Eagle Center and many more.

NWT, one of the multicultural organizations reaching thousands of students and residents within and outside the Pioneer Valley, has carried out its mission successfully. And yet, once again, the University has displayed a blatant disrespect toward one of its children.

Since August of 1987, NWT has implored the University to provide for a larger and more adequate space. This request has been constantly eschewed and denied.

During a Bright Moments Concert in late July, members of NWT, through casual conversation, discovered their offices were to be moved.

Some unknown authority took the liberty to evict NWT from its offices in Hasbrouck — and yet they themselves didn't know.

Before school started, members of NWT obtained a letter sent to another office, stating that NWT, the Arts Council and the Fine Arts Center Programming office would have to move. Other than this NWT was never extended the common courtesy of being informed, and was denied the right to have any input. The way the situation was handled displays very aberrant behavior on the part of the University.

One would think the University would take the initiative to correct the situation and to put a sincere effort in locating adequate space, as opposed to throwing people out of their offices like trash is thrown in the dump.

NWT was forced to move because the Physics Department needed the space. This is a perfect example of politics played on this campus. The University avidly claims to support multiculturalism, yet it seems that programs from the ALANA community, especially those that have had such strong impact, are always the programs to be penalized.

The present space NWT has been moved to is six feet bigger than the two original offices from which the theater was expelled. The two original offices together were the size of a double room in the residence halls, housing a director and a staff of eight.

After the very turbulent semester we experienced last year on this campus, I hope the University has reflected on some of the inane decisions that are often made without any communication with members of the community and which have been made with lack of regard for the feelings of others.

As Henry David Thoreau, once said, "If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer."

Hopefully starting off the semester with a new administration will allow us all to listen to the same drum.

Malkes Gomes is a Collegian columnist.

What Weld did this summer

For those of you who don't know: we got shafted by management over the summer. I will spare the University from blame this time. Mainly because Chancellor David Scott was seen greeting students on move-in day. Let's hope this minimal effort is more than nominal support.

Chancellor O'Brien left him a mess to clean up, which he assumes the blame for should he choose to follow step and ignore it. He has, so far, only rented the benefit of the doubt, but has an option to buy.

Steven L.
COHEN

Instead we must turn our eyes upon Beacon Hill. Although they finally passed a decent K-12 Education Reform Bill, they slapped us in the face — twice.

First Governor Weld proposed a $200 million state tax decrease; then he signed a bill prohibiting funding organizations that lobby with money from student-elected waivable fees.

For those of you trying to figure out what is so bad about this, here's the scoop:

One: The tax decrease is designed to help out those poor souls in the bread lines who make over $180,000 a year. President Clinton raised their taxes to lower the national deficit. Would Gov. Weld raise the Massachusetts debt $200 million to offset this burden for them? Yes!

But wait, he has a plan to make up the money by legalizing casino gambling. (What ever happened to new business and industry?) Who gambles? Rich people? No, poor and middle class people trying to get rich.

Once again Bill's rich Republican buddies are carried on the backs of the economically struggling. Just imagine what this could do to our communities. When personal economy over-rides a contradiction with moral justice and logic we are half way to institutional slavery.

Two: "Student-elected waivable fee" means a fee put on our tuition bill, and anyone who doesn't want to pay the $4 for students and faculty.

■ GLB

continued from page 1

Coordinated by the Program for GLB Concerns and the Chancellor's Task Force, and sponsored by a myriad of campus organizations, the lectures have been offered for several years, providing faculty and students with knowledge they seldom experience inside the classroom.

Aitken said the lectures and seminars will be used to measure student interest in the establishment of a GLB studies program and will hopefully encourage faculty to diversify their departments by hiring GLB people. As more departments begin hiring GLB faculty, it is hoped the foundation for a substantial independent GLB program will emerge.

"This is the strategy of the Chancellor's Task Force, and I strongly support that strategy," Aitken said.

Some students, however, believe that the administration has been too slow to respond, and a GLB studies program could have been a reality by now.

""I think it could be moving faster," Hayes said. "It's something that's been talked about for years. They should have already started the preliminary work they're doing now."

"The idea of going slowly and waiting and seeing is most often a cop out. The same thing has been said to African American students, Latinos, women, etc.," said Meeghan Ziolkowski, a graduate student.

This semester, as in the past, the GLB Brown Bag series lectures will take place every Wednesday at noon in the Campus Center. Students may receive credit for attending the lectures by signing up at the first lecture on Wednesday, September 15 or by stopping by the Program for GLB Concerns. Among the speakers this semester will be James Woods, author of "The Corporate Closet: The Professional Lives of Gay Men in America", and Lillian Faderman, author of "Odd Girls and Twilight Lovers".

Faculty Seminars will begin Wednesday September 22 with a lecture by Woods, and will be followed by Faderman on October 6, and David Halperin, author of "One Hundred Years of Homosexuality and Other Essays on Greek Love", among others.

Meanwhile, UMass is losing its reputation as a progressive institution in the eyes of many frustrated students, who said they feel they have been waiting too long.

"If UMass wants to stay progressive it needs to keep up with the current issues," said continuing education student Sandy Bosselaer.

Because those GLB community has always played a role in every society, its history should be taught, said Chris McCarthy, a UMass graduate student.

"It's incredible that this community, which has been a part of every community throughout human history, is still, in 1993, being grossly neglected in

■ fair

continued from page 3

Events such as the Windham County Cloggers, the sheep shearing exhibition and even the llama show cannot offer the same drawing power as a good demolition derby.

Though they might stray from the traditional idea of a county fair, events like the monster truck and motorcycle act could help to attract a portion of the population who may not normally attend the fair on a purely horticultural basis.

VISA

With Visa® you'll be accepted at more than 10 million places, nearly three times more than American Express. And that's not a misprint.

Visa. It's Everywhere You Want To Be.®

Visa U.S.A. Inc. 1993

Nobody Makes You SWEAT Like We Do!

- Nautilus
- Free Weights
- Aerobics Classes
- Step Classes
- Stairmasters
- Lifecycles
- Recumbant Bikes
- Crossrobics
- Quinton Treadmill
- Rowing Machine
- Saunas
- Student Discounts

Northampton Nautilus

216 N. King St. • Northampton

584-4975

Mon-Fri 6am-9pm

Sat 8am-5pm • Sun. 9am-4pm

LEARN MORE, SPEND LESS

Everyone is looking for a bargain. College, however, is usually the last place where you can find one. With the rising costs of tuition, books, and housing, many are finding out that a student rarely encounters a good deal these days. Until now...

Introducing The Boston Globe's version of financial aid: get The Globe delivered to your dorm or apartment for 50% off the regular delivery price.

For students, The Globe is much more than a newspaper: it's a resource. You'll get the best coverage of local and foreign news, arts and entertainment and all your favorite college and pro teams. Plus, The Globe's classified pages will help you find that perfect apartment or the ideal job. All for half-price!

To start receiving The Boston Globe on campus call:

1-800-858-4275

For off-campus delivery call:

1-800-622-6631 Ext. 75

The Boston Globe campus PROGRAM

Arts & Living

Lambert escapes Fortress; Gibson saves Face

By EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES & JON LUPO
Collegian Staff

Fortress — Subterranean maximum security prisons. Torture devices with names like the "intestinator." A future so near that the city scape has been decimated yet everyone still drives 1988 model cars (saves the producers a buck). Yes, the usual conventions of those future shock films are all here, but Fortress rises above these stock cliches due to above average direction by Stuart Gordon and a script that places social conscience above (well, slightly above) the blood splattered mayhem that ensues.

Owing debts to such varied fare as Robocop and The Great Escape, Fortress tells the story of John Brennick (Christopher Lambert), a man incarcerated for fathering a second child in a world desperate to stem the rise of overpopulation. As in Robocop, Big Business lends a hand and creates a maximum security prison dubbed the "Fortress" from which (cliche number one) "no one has ever escaped." The plot then revolves around Brennick's attempts to find his wife (Lori Locklin) and foil the evil overseer Warden Poe (Kurtwood Smith).

Credit director Stuart Gordon for manipulating a meager budget into something worth viewing. Gordon makes use of few sets, but his claustrophobic vision of the "Fortress" is evocative of Alien and thus he is able to heighten the suspense. What's truly amazing is that despite the poor dialogue ("It took four screenwriters to write "Quit your jabbering or you'll end up a Speak and Spell"), Gordon grasps the true nature of science-fiction by propelling current social ails to a future setting.

Perhaps the film's most intriguing concept is the resolution of overpopulation through the increased overcrowding of prisons. One doesn't often expect a morality lesson from low rent sci-fi, but suprisingly Fortress delivers.

However a good social conscience does not completely make a good action movie, and despite a good buildup

Turn to FILMS, page 8

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mel Gibson

TOTAL FITNESS WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE

AEROBICS	STRENGTH	CARDIO
Funk REEBOK STEP Hi/Low Boxercise Yoga	Keiser Air Power NAUTILUS Olympic weights GRAVITRON The Treadwall	STAIRMASTERS LifeCycles • LifeRower Treadmills • BioCycles Climb Max • NordicTrack TrueClimb• VersaClimber

SEMESTER SPECIAL $139 four months

Amherst Athletic Club 460 West St. South Amherst 256-0080

Legal Problems?

Call UMass Legal Services!

Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law
and more...

Call 545-1995
for an appointment

UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

STAIRMASTER

AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low

Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

The NY Times Delivered to Dorms and Offices by Dad's News-

We're under new management and committed to bringing back the delivery standards demanded by students and faculty.

Please deliver The New York Times as checked below. Daily subscription rates are 60% below newsstand price. That's only .30¢ per copy. Subscriptions will be delivered to Dorms and Offices on campus.
There will be no Saturday delivery.

COMPLETE YOUR EDUCATION! Get with The Times!

	FALL TERM	FULL YEAR
( ) Weekdays (Mon.-Fri.)	$16.80	$36.60
( ) Weekdays & Sundays	$36.80	$77.60

Fall Semester delivery begins on Mon., Sept.20th and ends on Mon., Dec 13th. The spring semester delivery will begin on Mon., Jan. 31st and ends on Wed., May 11, 1994. There will be no delivery during holidays and vacations. Please enclose check and make payable to : RICHARD BAYER

NAME_____ PHONE_____
DELIVERY ADDRESS_____
CLASS OF_____

Detach here and mail to Dad's News P.O. Box 633 Amherst, MA 01004

EXTEND YOUR CAREER POTENTIAL IN COLLEGE – JOIN AIR FORCE ROTC.

When you graduate, the career competition will be fierce.

But you can sharpen your competitive edge now. Join Air Force ROTC, and you'll gain so much more from a college degree. You'll learn leadership skills and gain a powerful sense of confidence. You'll emerge from school as an Air Force officer, an individual who knows the demands and rewards of responsibility. The fact that you're a decision-maker will be self-evident by your background.

Employers everywhere will notice the stature of that kind of individual. And you'll have an extraordinary world of experience for building an outstanding career. Exactly why you sought a degree in the first place.

Exactly why you joined Air Force ROTC.

Get started today. Call

Major Cheryl Koren
545-2437/2451

or visit us on the second floor of Dickinson Hall, right above the Police

AIR FORCE ROTC

Leadership Excellence Starts Here

■ films

continued from page 7

Fortress ultimately falls in its final act. Once the social ills have been identified and the conflicts between man and machine have been acknowledged, all that's left is a "get the hell out of the prison before it explodes" caper, and its here that Gordon substitutes his gruesome wit (via his own Re-Animator) for tired action pyrotechnics (a la Robot Jox).

Though not as good as other superior films of the genre (i.e. Robocop), Fortress deserves special notice for rising above budgetary and script restraints and painting a portrait of a very possible future. It's certainly not impregnable and its last act threatens to pull the walls down on its otherwise rich structure, but nice understated performances by Locklin and Kurtwood Smith (Robocop) help to suffocate the memory of the dreadful climax. Though Lambert never rises above action hero cliches, Fortress is worth the 90 minute cinema incarceration. C+ — E. H.

The Man Without A Face — I'm happy to report that Mel Gibson's directorial debut is not the first feel-good movie about facial disfigurement. For the most part, this affecting drama avoids the pandering sap you might expect from a movie about a brilliant but tortured teacher and a lonely, misunderstood pupil — which in itself is a towering achievement in nineties cinema. Though it never rises above a simple moral message, it does have sterling supporting performances, all of whom have the distinction of outshining Gibson's bland turn.

Gibson plays Justin McCloud, a former prep school teacher whose body has been partially disfigured by a mysterious accident, who befriends and later tutors an impressionable and father figure-less boy named Chuck (newcomer Nick Stahl).

The main story is pretty routine, and you won't find any surprises in the way of plot twists. It's good then, that Gibson loads his film with interesting tangents. There's the question of how Gibson got disfigured, the whereabouts of Chuck's real father, as well as Chuck's other family woes. The problem is they stay tangents, tantalizing the viewer and making it obvious that the most interesting story (and stories) are being told off-screen.

Gibson has said that he was his fourth choice to play the title character, and by the looks of it, he should have kept searching. It's not that he's embarrassingly bad, but he's so not there. Many have mistook this for being mysterious and understated, but the simple fact is Gibson doesn't seem in the movie — there's none of the fire of Hamlet or the cleverness of the Lethal Weapon-s. It's a remarkably skin-deep performance, especially for a film dealing with what's beyond surface assumptions.

The supporting characters, however, take up most of the slack, delivering first-rate characterizations that cry out for a film of their own. Nick Stahl is marvelous as the young Chuck. Full of wit, charm and soul, his eyes prove wondrous windows to the enchantment and fear of a complex growing-up.

Stahl never succumbs to a "Wonder Years"-type faux angst, his tears and pain are real and by the way, nicely realized by director Gibson. Also good is Margaret Whitton (Major League) as Chuck's mom and Gaby Hoffman (Sleepless in Seattle) as his brainy younger half-sister.

Gibson gets points for avoiding a crocodile tear-filled ending for one that is mildly uplifting, if not entirely earned. Face is a respectable first effort as a director and unfortunately, a weak acting job as well. B — J. L.

Greeks, Geckos and greenbacks

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Last Friday's Pi Kappa Alpha fundraiser for the Jimmy Fund was set to music by The Geckos, a Longmeadow rock band.

LSAT
GRE
GMAT
MCAT

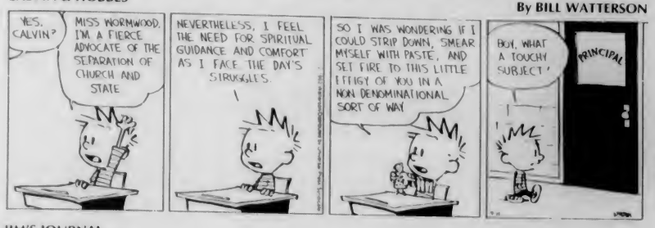
Total Training
Expert Teachers
Personal Tracking and Tutoring
Insider Test Information
Permanent Centers
Maximize your score

Call for a free introductory seminar
1-800-KAP-TEST
KAPLAN RULES

TRAVELING?
WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
• Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
• Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
• Adventure Tours • Language Courses
• International Student & Teacher I.D.
• Work & Study Abroad
• Youth Hostel Memberships
• Car Rental & Leasing
• Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!
FREE "STUDENT TRAVELS" MAGAZINE!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

INTRAMURAL SPORTS
WELCOME BACK !!
Fall Sports
Flag Football
Soccer
Co-Ed Softball
& Much More
Entries Due By
Sept. 13th
Sept. 13th
Sept. 14th
FOR TEAM ENTRY FORMS AND MORE INFO
DROP BY 215 BOYDEN, 5-2693/5-0022



The INDEX Yearbook
•••
First General Staff Meeting
Tomorrow
Tues, Sept 14 at 7:00 pm
304 Student Union
•••
Photographers, Writers, Marketeers and anyone else welcome!

OPEN 24 HOURS
cousins MARKET
Downtown Amherst
11E. Pleasant St. (Next to The Pub)
549-3500
◆ Full Line of Deli Meats, Cheeses & Salads
◆ Fresh FRUITS & VEGETABLES!!!
◆ Largest Selection of Juices
◆ Cigarettes - all brands $2.19
◆ Fresh Grinders & Sandwiches Made to Order
SUB, SODA, SALAD & CHIPS ONLY $3.75
BULKIE ROLL SANDWICH ONLY $1.50

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

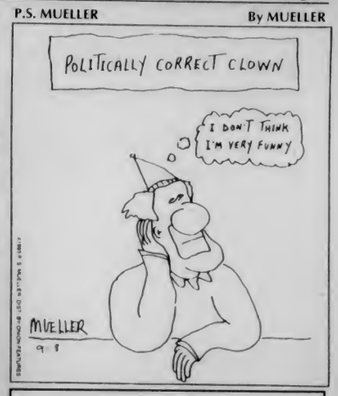
JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

PRICE — By PRICE VAN RAY

PRICE — By PRICE VAN RAY

TODAY'S STAFF



Night Editor.....Christina Rothwell
Copy Editor.....Jeff Crofts
Photo Technician.....Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor.....Mike Carvalho
Production.....Tara Dixon, J.R. "BOB" Dobbs

MENU

LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Rueben on Rye
BASICS LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Caponata Pocket

DINNER
Chicken Cacciatore
Beef and Broccoli
BASICS DINNER
Chicken Cacciatore
Curried Chick Peas

P.S. MUELLER — By MUELLER

Quote of the Day

"Glam rock just ain't what it used to be, Beavis."

– Butt-head

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work out the details before putting your stamp of approval on a project. You may not realize how really talented you are. If a competitor is winning, you are not working hard enough. Keep in mind a really good friend is under a lot of stress. Be nice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Gather last-minute information before making an important decision. Decline a request to settle a family dispute lest you find yourself in a tug of war.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Refuse to be taken in by a sob story. You should not be afraid to express your feelings. Splurge on something nice for yourself — you deserve the best.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your creativity begins to pay off. Influential people take notice. Selling unclaimed items brings extra cash. The young-at-heart find adventure in an unusual setting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Complete routine chores before launching new projects. Refuse to pay for poor service. A candid chat with a pushy neighbor could prevent an ugly confrontation later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Set out to create a new image. Consult experts before investing in some smart-looking clothes. Harmony reigns at home following a straight talk about finances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A small opportunity can be turned into giant gains if you make the right moves. Cut spending and avoid borrowing money. Look for ways to become even more self-reliant.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be direct and you will get what you want. Self-discipline is the secret to your success. Your exuberant spirits rub off on your partner, making this an evening to remember.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A work associate should get fired now; everyone else becomes more productive. Keep your personal goals in mind when asked to make a snap judgment later today.

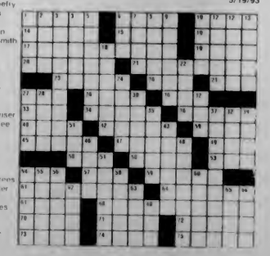
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your tenacity is a tremendous asset. Do not let anyone discourage you. Your tireless efforts will be rewarded with both cash and true love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do what you can to win over someone who appears envious of your success. Influential people are clearly in your corner. Move swiftly to close business deals.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Look for ways to boost your income and acquire needed household items. Loans are likely to be granted if you have the right collateral. A casual flirtation could jeopardize a long-time relationship.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS
1 Palindromic title
6 Catcher's need
10 Rajas, another way
14 — to bury Caesar
15 Penn's pronoun
16 "It's a sin to tell —"
17 Ingmar Bergman star
19 Grand party
20 — Fidelio"
21 Prepared as for battle
23 Peaches with rum
24 Ascot
26 Commercials
27 To and —
29 Doses
31 Styron's "Lie in —"
33 Put a match to
34 Picnic pests
36 Age
40 Malt drinks
42 Window covering
44 Cloud —
45 Makes certain
46 Mote of poetry
49 Recordings Abbr.
50 Shoshonean
52 Musial or Smith
53 Little one
54 Elec. unit
57 Finnish star Turna —
59 Movie stars eat here
61 Stanza
64 Woman adviser
67 Sandbar tree
68 Advice
70 Make watertight
71 Weight: e.g.
72 Lanai
73 "Slippery" trees
74 Mark or mete starter
75 Merchandises



DOWN
1 Uno — 18"
2 — feet

3 Pigeon houses
4 Divest
5 — -pot
6 Stand contrary
7 Ill — a hammer
8 Dogma
9 Bowler's target
10 Palm starch
11 — simple melody
12 Felt rocky
13 Peruses
18 Professor Hayward
22 Fictional English king
23 Something in reserve
27 Apartment in Solo
28 Anger
30 Heirlooms
32 — Pan Alley
35 Petty quarrels
37 Illustrated periodical
38 Conductor Abbado
39 Awoke
41 R.V. connection
43 Public storehouses
46 Pardons
48 Wild asses
51 Educe
54 Swiftly
55 Ethical
56 Sacred song
58 Mother of nymphs
60 Cosmetic substance
62 Popes
63 — and void
65 Part of t.t.f.
66 Easter lilies
69 Formerly called

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

T	A	M	S		A	R	I	O		I	D	E
A	M	I	L	E		D	O	O	R		N	I
X	E	N	O	N		D	A	L	E		C	E
I	N	T	E	R		C	E	D	E		A	G
			D	A	R	S		S	E	N	D	R
A	V	A	I	L	S		D	Y	A	D
B	O	R	N		T	R	I	O		S	E	E
E	L	A	T	E		E	S	S	E		S	T
T	E	L	E	X		A	R	E	S		C	O
		P	I	A	L		E	M	E	N	O	S
	L	E	F	T	S		A	B	L	E
D	E	L	E		I	N	T	O	L	E	R	A
A	M	O	R		D	O	L	L		T	O	R
D	U	P	E		E	R	A	T		S	C	O
O	R	E	S		S	A	S	S		K	N	E

5/19/93

WRITE FOR THE ARTS DESK!
Find out more at the New Writers Meeting
tonight at 5 p.m.
in the Collegian offices
113 Campus Center

The ArtCarved
Double Savings
EVENT

Save up to $100 when you purchase your College Ring
and
Get a Gift Certificate for up to $100 to use at the bookstore*
A Savings of up to $200!
OUR BIGGEST SALE OF THE YEAR
ARTCARVED
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
Art Carved Representative
Will Be Available
September 13-17
9:30am-3:30pm

Emily returns to the U.S., burger joints & campus

It the beginning-of-the-semester blues are hitting you right about now, and just about everything from where you are sleeping to how many checks you seem to be writing to local bookstores seems of twilight-zone caliber, stick with me for a few minutes and we'll make this bizarre journey together.

For those of you who somehow (and surely mistakenly and regrettably) failed to read the Arts/Living page in-depth last semester, I must sum up all of the enlightening columns that I wrote during my semester abroad in Siena, Italy by merely saying that I was there. Now I am here. This, alone is enough to account for my temporary insanity upon returning to campus this fall.

Where in the world was Emily Marino?

Of course all of the students on exchange realized that (with a few exceptions) we would eventually have to come back. Chock full of fast-paced automobiles gliding along open, gray highways to the beat of even faster-paced music, lunches which can be proudly consumed in the setting of some clown-laden, plastic, red and white, neon-lit burger joint within a fraction of any reasonable lunch break, big hair, small-town carnivals, and corn-on-the-cob, America called us back.

I have to admit that first arriving back on campus sent chills up my spine. The buildings, those huge concrete monsters that we dread travelling to and from as freshmen, remained just as I had remembered them, erect and proud.

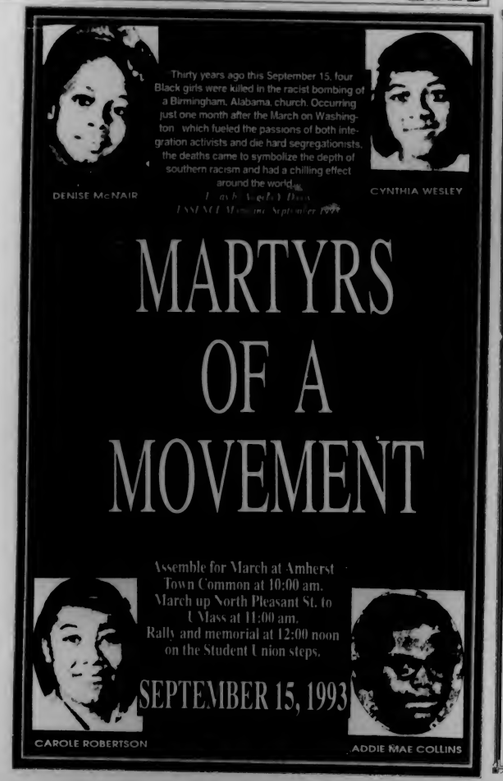
My cobblestone streets were replaced by concrete paths, dissecting flat, green lawns laced with friendly trees. Happy-go-lucky students clad in sweats and grungy jeans substituted sleek, polished, wool and leather-wrapped scholars.

But I was home, and there's no place like home, right?

The first thing I noticed was that there is something very deliberate about the way Americans walk. Whether it is a hip-swaying, hair tossing display of sexuality or a forceful stomp, Americans step with conviction, focus and direction.

We are also loud. Groups of students emit every which noise, announcing their presence on campus via burps, giggles, screeches, shouts and the inevitable "Hey, what up?" The Italians' "ciao" seems to pale in comparison.

A few trips to the old D.C. brought back various memories of unidentifiable meat, guesses at the origin of terms like "chicken puck," food fights, free silverware, cereal-dinners and lines beneficial only in "building character."



Dorm life almost instantly likened my existence to an episode of "The Tweetlebugs" from Sesame Street, minus the flowers and soil. While I enjoy having access to many students and just about anything I would ever need on campus, 50-person name-games at hour-long floor meetings ("Alcohol policy? So, like, if you don't actually "see" it, it's o.k.?") did not put me in the right frame of mind to make a "positive contribution to my community." While my apartment in Italy was far from posh, it was home and it was mine, mildew complications and all.

Admittedly, lectures in English are much easier to digest, although not nearly as melodic as the Italian to which I had become accustomed. Professors here also seem more accessible, down-to-earth, and more prompt.

Overall, being back at UMass is a mixed bag. I would not trade my experience in Italy for anything, and there are memories that will probably never stop following me around campus, making me question what it is exactly that I am doing here and why. But that is all part of an education, undoubtedly.

On the other side of the fence, there are things about being here that make me realize how lucky I am to be a part of the UMass scene, and help me appreciate that not only can we, as students take a magic carpet ride to virtually anywhere in the world, but that we can always find our way home to a place that welcomes us.

Emily Marino is a Collegian columnist.

FIRST MEETING
UMASS
THEATRE
GUILD
Tuesday, September 14
7 p.m.
in Earthfoods
We'll be discussing auditions for
Pippin and Black Comedy.
EVERYONE IS WELCOME!
Questions? Call the Guild office 545-0415
or visit 423A Student Union

■ football

continued from page 12

pounder to get to the linebacker level. [Rene] gets there."

The Minutemen had no trouble in filling Ingoglia's spot at tailback. Senior John Johnson, another former Yankee Conference Rookie of the Year (1990), rushed for 85 yards on 19 carries. Quarterback Andrew McNeilly rushed for 88 yards, and redshirt freshman tailback Frank Alessio chipped in with 35 yards.

The passing game for UMass was strong as well, with McNeilly throwing for a career high 173 yards, completing 12 passes on 22 attempts.

"We had a great line," McNeilly said. "We controlled the line of scrimmage today, and all we had to do was hit the holes."

Freshmen kicker Eric Oke booted three field goals on the day for the Minutemen, including a 46-yarder. He also attempted a 52 yard field goal; the kick had the distance, but was wide.

Next up for the Minutemen will be the Maine Black Bears this Saturday. Maine gave up 45 points to Boston University this past weekend, including 35 points in the first quarter.

"It didn't surprise me the way we played (last Saturday)," Berry said. "I know they have been out to prove they are a good unit — the whole offense."

■ field hockey

continued from page 12

mates would need when she scored unassisted at 18:47 of the first half.

The goal was Jelley's fourth on the year in only her third game, compared to last season when she had six for the entire campaign.

Led by senior co-captain Tracy Barclay and junior sweeper Natalie Hart, the UMass defense completely stifled the Wildcat offense, allowing only seven shots on goal.

Against Boston College last Thursday, the UMass defense allowed six shots.

The Minutewomen attempted more shots on Saturday than they have allowed the last two contests by managing 16 against Wildcat goalkeeper Jenn Bourhie. UMass held a 12-3 advantage in penalty corners.

The UMass Minutewomen return to action when they host regional foe Providence College at Totman Field on Wednesday. Game time is 3:30 p.m.

■ women's soccer

continued from page 12

ed until the second half to score, but the results were the same. In the end, it was a 3-0 victory for the Minutewomen, this time against Colorado College.

Roberts blasted the game winner (number five on the season) again for UMass only 1:03 into the second half. Myers, a freshman, scored two more goals to put the game out of reach.

UMass goalie Briana Scurry collected two shutouts over the weekend. Scurry had 10 saves in the finale against Colorado College.

The host team of the Cup, the University of Hartford, was the only team that the Minutewomen did not face. The two national powers collide on Oct. 9 in Hartford. The Lady Hawks knocked UMass out of the NCAA Tournament last season.

The undefeated Minutewomen, ranking 11th nationally, face Providence College on Wednesday at Richard F. Garber Field.

A rough start

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team lost its second straight contest yesterday, dropping a 3-0 decision to Providence College. The Minutemen have been shutout two games in a row.

Sam Koch's squad will look to snap the streak on Wednesday against Holy Cross at 3:30 p.m. as sophomore Colin Johnson (pictured) and the rest of the offense will look to get on the scoreboard.

UMOC
UMASS Outing Club
Try:
Hiking • Backpacking • Canoeing
Kayaking • Caving • Cross-Country Skiing
Rock Climbing • Ice Climbing • Mountaineering
...and more!
UMass Outing Club is having it's first meeting of the semester.
Monday, Sept. 13 • Campus Center Auditorium
We Take People Out In The Woods And Do Things With Them...

First Priorities
WALKING
Co-Ed
FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
Co-Ed
DISTANCE
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
U-Mass • Flex

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons – Free - Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks, Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

College Pizza
Open for lunch
At 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 toppings add $1
549-6073 549-6098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Interested in a 3 credit class which covers recycling, waste management and sustainable resource use? Take Education 397K, Tues 2:30-5:00 Hills 467

LBGA Infosocial
Tuesday September 14 7-9 pm. CC 905-09. Socialize, eat, and get to know us.

UMASS THEATRE GUILD will hold its first general membership meeting on Tuesday 9/14 at 7 pm in Earthfoods. Auditions for "Pippin" and "Black Comedy" will be discussed.
ALL ARE WELCOME!
??s 5-0415

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale 83 Mercury Marquis (Parts) BO 549-3581

Toyota - 1982 Tercel SR5 Hatchback 5 speed - runs well! - one owner - well maintained - $1450 - Evenings 253-2410

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Downtown. Quiet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4236 9am - 9 pm.

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets Fourth Row Steve 665-2058

Computer For Sale
Amiga 500 - very good condition includes 1084 color monitor, external 3 1/2" disk drive, plenty of software incl. ProWrite and Deluxe Paint. $375/bo. Also Panasonic KX-P2123 printer. Can be upgraded to color. Quick, quiet and less than one year old. $165. Computer and printer only $500. Call Adam 6-4845, leave message.

Grateful Dead
Need a miracle?
2 tix 9-26
Jeff 549-3912

Kitchen Table, desk, dishes 584-2784

Original Macintosh, Imagewriter printer, write, draw, spellcheck software, instruction manuals. $295/all 586-5447

RCA 25" TV w/stereo hook-up and 12" TV cable $200 firm 6-2505

Smith Corona laptop WORD PROCESSOR with separate printer. Works Great! $450 neg. Call 582-0455

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

Super Single Waterbed with bookcase and side pads - $145 - Mike - 256-3076

T.V.'s – 19"COLOR Cable ready! $85. 549-4793

Used Futon. Good condition. $50 or BO. 863-8996. Leave message.

FOUND

Found – Bike U-Lock
Call 6-1116 (Andy)

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Early Sunday Part-time delivery. Great money. Car required. Cheryl 548-9688

EARTHFOODS IS HIRING!!!
Student-run vegetarian cafe
Seeks a diverse
Group of responsible people
For hard work and fun
Applications available in
The CSB Office, 409 Student Union

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $800-$800/ every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

Fundraisers Raise $150-$300!
Guaranteed in one week plus bonus up to $500! Manage promotions for top companies for one week on your campus. Call for free gift and to qualify for free trip to MTV Spring Break '94. Call 1-800-950-1037 ext. 25

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college level Spanish is preferred
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2075 for more information.

Peace and Justice Organization seeks Grants Assistant/workstudy students. Phone reception and general clerical work. 10 hours a week. $5.56 per hour call Juan Carlos at 256-8306

Spring Break '94 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student travel services is now hiring campus reps call 800-648-4849

The Amherst Boys and Girls Club needs work/study assistants for recreation programs. Open 2:30 to 5:00 after noons 7:00 to 9:00 evenings. Workers schedule as time available $5.25 per hour. UM buses stop in front of club at 390 Main St. Contact Richard Brill 253-3261

Theatre Director Childrens Theatre Forming EOE Experienced Actor/Director. Send resume to Production Arts Limited Box 639 South Hadley MA 01075-0639

$287.30 $all 50 Hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol related; college t shirts and make $287.50. All shirts 100% guaranteed. A risk free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

INSTRUCTION

Would you like to communicate better? Because of low enrollment, this class of COMM 260 - Public Speaking will be the most intensive course I have ever taught. It is an unusual opportunity for anyone wanting to improve their ability to speak to communicate with an experienced and earnest instructor. Tonight 7-10 pm, Herter 202. Division of Continuing Ed.

INTERNSHIPS

The Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is hiring interns for Fall semester. Conduct research, lobbying, training, and organizing in support of Student Government Association Agenda for Change. 8 credits/work study for 15-20 hours per week. To apply send letter of interest to SCERA Box 128 Student Union. For more information call Marc 545-0341

PERSONALS

Congratulations Alle and welcome to sisterhood! AXO is going to be better than ever now that you and the rest of your pledge class are sisters! Love Your Big Sis, Sarah

ROOM FOR RENT

Female wanted to share two bedroom Apt in Britanny Manor. Large rooms. 300.00 month includes everything. 562-2731 Ask for Linda

Sports

Ingoglia, Oke carry football over HC

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team got its season off on the right foot, thanks to the right foot of freshman Eric Oke, who kicked for 13 points, and the two feet of newly-appointed starting fullback Rene Ingoglia, whose two touchdowns carried the team to a 37-7 trouncing of Holy Cross at McGuirk Stadium Saturday.

Holy Cross 7
Massachusetts 37

The Minuteman (1-0) defense allowed for an opening drive touchdown on the third play of the game on Crusader quarterback Andy Fitzpatrick's 78-yard run, but regrouped quickly and stuffed Holy Cross for the rest of the game.

Meanwhile, the UMass offensive line, averaging 273 pounds, plowed through a Crusader defense which returned only two starters. The holes created by the line enabled Ingoglia, last year's starting tailback, who was switched to fullback when Mike George went down for the year, to rush for 118 yards.

Tailback John Johnson, who had one touchdown and 85 yards, and freshman Frank Alessio (one touchdown) also ran roughshod over the Cross (0-1). Holy Cross head coach Peter Vaas said his worst fears were realized.

"The thing that concerned me the most was that big offensive line," said Vaas. "I thought their runners were excellent. [Ingoglia], boy is he an intense hard-nosed runner. He's the type who never goes down."

"[Johnson] was great too. They had third and one and he jumped about six yards up in the air. I thought he was gonna land on his feet and keep running."

An animated Hodges said he was delighted with his line.

"I'll tell you what, we had a great performance from our offensive line and our running backs," he said. "We've got a bunch of fifth-year seniors who did a great job."

Lost in the shuffle was the play of sophomore quarterback Andrew McNeilly, who was 12-for-22 and passed for 173 yards while rushing for 88 more. McNeilly out dueled fellow sophomore Fitzpatrick, who had a disappointing six-of-16 day.

"I think our goal going in was to establish the run, because all our guys are 270 pounds and strong," McNeilly said. "We feel like we always controlled the line of scrimmage. We knew we had the offense, the experience and the depth, but you're not confident until you can do it against another team."

McNeilly threw three consecutive incompletions in UMass's first offensive series, but down 7-0 the quarterback drove his team 45 yards in eight plays, and Oke booted his first collegiate field goal, a 38-yarder, at 8:23 of the first quarter.

The Minutemen then scored six minutes later at 14:35 to take a 10-7 lead on a six-yard run by Ingoglia. Two more Oke field goals in the second quarter, one a 46-yarder with no time left, gave UMass a 16-7 halftime cushion.

Oke made a strong collegiate debut, to say the least. The Eastpointe, Michigan native attempted a 52-yard field goal in the first half, had the length, but missed wide to the right. Hodges said he thought Oke and freshman punter/kickoff specialist Justin Riemer did an excellent job.

"The biggest question was whether these two 18-year-olds, who have been at college for three weeks, could handle it," Hodges said. "And they both did the job. We're very lucky, because we don't have anybody else. If they don't do it, there's no place else to turn."

In the second half, McNeilly (a perfect 6-for-6) continued where he left off, guiding the team to the goal line, where seven-yard touchdown runs by Ingoglia (at 10:06 in the third quarter), Alessio (at 4:22) and Johnson (at 12:45 in the fourth) finished the Crusaders off.

The Minutemen offense clearly hogged the spotlight, but the defense was rock solid if unspectacular. All-America candidate Mario Perry had only two tackles and five assists (compared to Holy Cross preseason All-America Rob Milanette, who had five and 20), but the Minutemen outlasted three different Crusader quarterbacks.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Senior tailback John Johnson was part of a four-pronged attack last Saturday as the University of Massachusetts football team rolled over Holy Cross, 37-7.

Ground game dominates as offense clicks

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

With the University of Massachusetts football team returning 11 starters to its offense, the expectations were positive.

Did the expectations really include trouncing Holy Cross by 30 points? Were these not the Holy Cross Crusaders, a former Division 1-AA powerhouse, who despite finishing the 1992 season with a 6-5 record, compiled a 60-5-1 record in the previous six years?

Needless to say, the Minutemen had an explosive day on the offensive side, as they tallied their highest point total since the 1991 season when they defeated Richmond 42-14.

Granted Holy Cross is not the dominating team it once was (at least for now), and the Crusaders have only two defensive starters returning from a year ago.

The Minutemen did it all last Saturday, dominating the Crusaders in almost every category. UMass had the ball for 37:20 to 22:40 for Holy Cross. Another key statistic was third down efficiency, where UMass converted 10 of its 17 tries for 59 percent. Holy Cross only converted three of 13 third down plays, totaling 23 percent.

UMass had a tremendous game on the ground as it rushed for 365 yards on 67 attempts. 1992 Yankee Conference Rookie of the Year Rene Ingoglia, who was recently moved to the fullback position because of the season-ending injury to starter Mike George, picked up where he left off last year as he rushed for 118 yards on 19 carries.

"We had a lot of confidence in the huddle," Ingoglia said. "We knew that the offensive line would get the job done. We got the easy part — just run through the holes. They opened the (holes) up nice."

"The thing I was real pleased about with Rene was not his rushing yardage, but the way he blocked for the tailbacks," said Doug Berry, an offensive coordinator. "He hits the linebacker faster than you can snap your fingers. Normally, with a fullback, it takes a while for a 235

Turn to OFFENSE, page 11

Minutewomen shut down UNH

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team is listening to the old adage, "offense wins games, but defense wins championships."

The Minutewomen displayed stellar defense for the third game in a row and rode that effort to a 1-0 victory over the University of New Hampshire.

Saturday's win in Durham, N.H., ups the Minutewomen's record to 2-1 for the season.

New Hampshire 0
Massachusetts 1

UMass freshman goalkeeper Hilary Rose recorded seven saves while posting her second straight shutout and had a rather easy go at it during those two outings.

Rose has allowed only one goal in her three games minding the net.

Tara Jelley, senior co-captain and a Greenfield native, provided all the offense Rose and her defensive

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Freshman Kyle Rothenberger (seen here against Boston College) and the rest of the Minutewoman field hockey team returns to action on Wednesday as they face Providence. The Minutewomen defeated New Hampshire 1-0 last Saturday.

Women's soccer still undefeated

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team flexed its muscles this past weekend at the Holiday Inn Women's Soccer Cup at the University of Hartford, where the Minutewomen defeated Michigan State and Colorado College by identical scores of 3-0.

UMass 3, Michigan St. 0
UMass 3, Colorado Coll. 0

UMass scored three first half goals on its way to the victory over Big Ten power Michigan State on Saturday. Sophomore Nicole Roberts tallied the game winner just 14:42 into the contest, taking a pass from Courtney Smith and pushing it past Spartan keeper Kristi Turner.

Roberts now has five goals on the young season, one away from her total output of six for last season.

Melissa Mitchell and Rebecca Myers scored the other two goals for UMass against the Spartans.

Yesterday, UMass head coach Jim Rudy's team wait-

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
UMass head coach Jim Rudy's women's soccer team upped its record to 4-0 on the season by beating both Michigan State and Colorado College. The Minutewomen face Rutgers this Saturday at 12 p.m. here at Garber Field.

Everywoman's Center throws open its doors Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Tuesday
86° September 14, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 5
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Leaders sign historic PLO-Israeli treaty

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a breathtaking moment of hope and history, Yasser Arafat and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin exchanged a handshake of peace before a cheering White House audience Monday after the signing of a PLO-Israeli treaty that once seemed unimaginable.

"Enough of blood and tears. Enough," the gravelly voiced Rabin said with emotion. "We wish to open a new chapter in the sad book of our lives together, a chapter of mutual recognition, of good neighborliness, of mutual respect, of understanding."

Arafat said the agreement should mark "the end of a chapter of pain and suffering which has lasted throughout this century."

The two men watched from several feet apart as aides signed historic agreements that will bring Palestinian rule to the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Then, drawn toward Rabin by President Clinton, a grinning Arafat extended his hand.

The prime minister reached out for a businesslike handshake.

Cheers of delight roared from the crowd of 3,000 people assembled on the sun-soaked South Lawn.

The audience included former Presidents Carter and Bush. There were eight former secretaries of state, the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and most members of Congress, as well as diplomats and Arab and Jewish leaders in the United States.

Jihan Sadat, the widow of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, assassinated for making peace with Israel, also was present.

The agreement was signed at 11:41 a.m. EDT by Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and, at 11:43 a.m., by Arafat's lieutenant, Mahmoud Abbas.

Clinton expressed regret later that Arafat, in his speech, had not reaffirmed commitments he's made in writing to renounce terrorism and violence and to recognize Israel's right to exist in peace and security.

"I think I would have loved the speech better had he done so," the president said in an interview on Israeli on television.

The president said he told Arafat, in a 10-minute private meeting, that it was important for him to live up to his word.

Arafat and Rabin first came face to face in a meeting with Clinton before the ceremony. "They looked at each other really clearly in the eye for the first time and the prime minister said, 'You know, we are going to have to work very hard to make this work.' And Arafat said, 'I know and I am prepared to do my part,'" Clinton recalled.

Arafat, in a separate PBS television interview, was asked about the weekend slaying of Israeli soldiers in the occupied

Turn to TREATY, page 11

Shimon Peres
Israeli Foreign Minister

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Warren Christopher
U.S. Secretary of State

Campus reaction is skeptical

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

History was in the making as Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Palestinian Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat signed a peace accord on the White House South Lawn.

The agreement, which came after months of deliberation, pledged Israeli withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho and will grant limited self-rule elsewhere in the West Bank.

As the accord was signed, with more than 3,000 in attendance and millions watching their televisions around the world, the University of Massachusetts campus rang with reactions filled with both hope and disappointment.

"I think it's remarkable... after years of terrorism and bloodshed, they're recognizing each other," said Christopher Tunney.

Tunney, a junior education major, has a guarded opinion concerning the outlook, remarking on the fact that although the two nations are trying to

Turn to REACTION, page 11

Hatch revitalizes fall menu

Chinese food, Taco Bell among many new choices

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The Hatch Cafeteria will begin serving a stir-fry menu at a stand called "Wok on the Wild Side" as early as this Monday, Hatch manager Ron Perault said.

The stand will be located where the "Deli Garden" was last year.

Perault said the Hatch decided to start selling stir-fry because of its growing popularity and because of the success stir-fry stands have had at other cafeterias.

"Stir-fry is the hottest thing going," Perault said. "It is all natural and there are no preservatives. We observed a stir-fry stand at a cafeteria at Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance and it did very well."

Perault said the idea to call the stand "Wok on the Wild Side" came from one of his employees.

"The Chinese word for stir-fry is wok, and the idea for the name came from one of the students who works here," he said. "I thought it was kind of a catchy name."

Perault said the stand will serve peppers, broccoli, carrots, snow peas, zucchini and bean sprouts in addition to the items already on the salad bar. He also said that after customers finish adding vegetables to their plates, they will have the option to add several other ingredients.

"After they finish (putting vegetables on the plate) they will bring their plate to a weigh station," he said. "The stir-fry cook will then ask the customer if they would like to add any other ingredients, which are sold a la carte. The other ingredients will include six stir-fry sauces, four meats,

Turn to HATCH, page 9

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
The new Taco Bell stand is one of a number of changes being made in the Hatch this semester.

Rep. Rosenberg tabbed for post on task force

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

In this time of tuition hikes and decreasing financial aid, Senate President William Bulger has appointed State Senator Stan Rosenberg (D-Amherst) to the newly formed Higher Education Financing Task Force.

Rosenberg initiated the task force by filing a bill for the upcoming legislative session. The bill calls for the creation and implementation of a more consistent funding system for the state's public colleges and universities.

According to a release from Rosenberg's office, the group will operate under the guidance of the Higher Education Coordinating Council, and is expected to make its recommendations to the Legislature next spring.

According to Rosenberg, what this means for UMass and other state universities is the creation of a funding formula that is fair for the students, the university and the state.

"We're trying to create a predictable picture for the funding of higher education," Rosenberg said in a phone interview. "This would give some stability to our public higher education system and help alleviate some of the anxiety students and parents must surely feel in light of recent tuition increases."

Right now funding is done on a year to year basis, Rosenberg said, and this is what he is trying to avoid. Establishing a predictable budgeting policy will be a priority in the task force's deliberations because that will allow campus officials, students and parents to plan for the future.

"We want to establish what is a fair amount for students and families to pay, and what it costs to run the University," Rosenberg said. "The difference in these two amounts should then be paid by the Commonwealth."

Rosenberg added that the students unable to pay the "fair amount" would then apply for financial aid.

According to the release, tuition hikes, brought on by state cutbacks, have made Massachusetts one of the most expensive states in the country for public higher education.

The result of these tuition increases, Rosenberg said, is that fewer and fewer students are getting the college

Turn to ROSENBERG, page 9

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Arts & Living Editors.....Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....
Jewish Affairs Editor.....
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
Third World Affairs Editor.....
Women's Issues Editor.....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Iezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

News Writers Meeting Tonight at 7 p.m. in the Collegian Newsroom 113 Campus Center

GLB Forum

The GLB Forum runs each Tuesday in the Collegian. To submit an announcement, please send a typed notice to the Collegian c/o the News Editor. All submissions must include the name and phone number of a contact person. No submissions will be taken over the phone.

Tuesday, September 14

Info-social: The Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance's first gathering of the year will be held from 7-9 p.m. in Campus Center Room 905.

Wednesday, September 15

Brown Bag Series: Felice Yeskel, adjunct assistant professor in the UMass School of Education, will discuss "Can we educate ourselves to liberation?" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 911.

Friday, September 17

Meeting: The Gay Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization will meet from 5 to 6 p.m. in the Grad Lounge.

Monday, September 20

Speakers Bureau: New Members Training will run from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Program for GLB Concerns' Office, Crampton House, Southwest. Please call 545-4824 to register for the training.

Vegetarian wins sausage contest

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — What's a vegetarian doing in the sausage-eating contest at the World Kielbasa Festival? Winning it.

"Everybody goes off their diet once in a while," Ruth Young explained yesterday. The Hull woman consumed 2.77 pounds of smoked Polish sausage in 45 minutes Sunday to top five rivals in the women's division.

Young, who is blind and uses a wheelchair, described herself as "an Irish-American woman with an international stomach."

After leaning back from the table, the 108-pound woman cheerily asked her husband, Robert, if they could get some ice cream on the way home to "settle her stomach."

She said she didn't practice for the contest, but munched anti-acid pills on the drive over and "ate a very light breakfast."

Young said she "loves kielbasa," and last slipped from her non-meat diet more than eight years ago when she consumed 2.5 pounds of kielbasa at the 20-year-old festival of Polish food and music.

She was the only woman in the contest then and didn't win.

"But they gave me a t-shirt," she recalled. "I looked all over, because I wanted to wear it this year, but I couldn't find it."

This year she came home with a trophy and a $100 prize. "My cat really likes the trophy," she said. "She's curled up around it right now."

Would she be back next year?

"I'd have to think that one over," she said. "I really enjoy the festival, especially the children. But maybe once every eight years is enough."

Great-grandmother cleared of misconduct

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — A disorderly conduct charge had been dropped, and it was now certain that 87-year-old Vera Mirkin wouldn't go to the slammer for blocking a construction crew in front of her home.

But that wasn't enough. Before she walked out of District Judge Herbert Goodwin's courtroom Monday, this tiny, white-gloved great-grandmother gave the judge a piece of her mind.

"I have proof with pictures that I was protecting my property for good reasons," she said firmly.

Brookline police arrested Mirkin June 9 after she blocked a cable television crew from installing a manhole outside her condominium. She was afraid the workers would damage her lawn — just as another crew had done a year earlier.

Police handcuffed her and took her to the police station where she was fingerprinted, photographed and locked up. She faced up to six months in jail and a fine of $200.

Assistant District Attorney John McDonald said outside of court Monday that police acted properly.

"Her actions on that day did consist of her being a disorderly person," he said. "It got to such a level, there wasn't much else that could be done."

Mirkin's court-appointed attorney C. Harold Krasnow said prosecutors offered to dismiss the charge. But Mirkin would have had to pay $50 in court costs and the charge could be refiled later. That was unacceptable.

"She never had any run-ins with the law," Krasnow said. "at this stage of the game she doesn't want a record."

Special student savings right now

Not even your local diet center offers reductions like this.

Apple Macintosh Color Classic® 4/80, Built-in 10" Color Monitor & Apple Keyboard II

Apple Macintosh LC III 4/80, Apple Basic Color Monitor & Apple Keyboard II.

Apple PowerBook™ 145B 4/80, Built-in Keyboard & 10" Backlit Super Twist Monochrome Display

Apple Macintosh Centris™ 610 4/80, Apple Basic Color Monitor & Apple Extended Keyboard II

Right now, you can get substantial savings on these Macintosh® personal computers. You can also get special student financing with the Apple® Computer Loan®— to make owning a Mac® even easier. To see just how affordable a Macintosh can be, visit your Apple Campus Reseller today. And discover the power more college students choose. The power of Macintosh. The power to be your best.®

UNIVERSITY STORE

CAMPUS CENTER
545-2619

MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM
SATURDAY 11AM-3PM

®available to qualifying students at participating authorized Apple Campus Resellers. ©1993 Apple Computer Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Mac, Macintosh and "The power to be your best." are registered trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. Macintosh Centris and PowerBook are trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. Classic is a registered trademark licensed to Apple Computer Inc.

Local News

News Briefs

compiled by Tracy Monahan

Tower library has become an international television star

A documentary produced for Australian public television was filmed at the UMass Tower Library.

The subject of the documentary is Noah Gordon, an Ashfield writer who is currently one of Europe's best-selling novelists.

Gordon said he used the library extensively for his research and his latest novel, Shaman, centers on four decades in the life of a young physician in 19th century America.

Gordon and his wife's two children all attended UMass.

Weiss scholarship awarded to recent alum

The 1993 Philip Weiss Memorial Scholarship was presented to Barbara Szathmary, a graduate of the class of 1993. The scholarship was established by Rachel Weiss in 1989 in memory of her late husband.

Weiss escaped Poland during World War II and later moved to the United States. His work is widely read in Yiddish, Russian, Polish and English and the award was set up to recognize his lifelong appreciation for learning and education.

The award is presented to graduating seniors who have majored or minored in Judaic studies and have shown academic excellence. A ceremony to present the award took place at Hillel House last Sunday.

Szathmary will continue her studies this fall to receive a masters in Jewish Education through the Hornstein Program at Brandeis University.

Windmill to be constructed on top of Mount Tom

The Renewable Energy Research Lab at UMass will be participating in the construction of an 80 foot windmill that will sit on top of Mt. Tom.

James Manwell, director of the lab said development of the project has been going on for the past year and a half.

The purpose of the windmill is to study and refine the technology of wind power and to generate cheaper electricity for the Mt. Tom Ski Area. Construction is slated for early fall.

Funding to prepare new teachers comes through special grant

The school of education has received funding to recruit and prepare future teachers. The $52,024 grant was awarded by the Dwight D. Eisenhower Mathematics and Science Education Program.

This is the fifth year the Math, English, Science Technology Education Program has received this award.

The program, funded by the Massachusetts Higher Education Coordinating Council, formed ten years ago as a cooperative effort between the University, the community and the corporate sector.

UMass students to join worldwide legal link-up

The Internet, an international collection of electronics networks, will be linked through computer software to the UMass legal studies department.

"Gopher" is the software which allows users to easily find information from many different computers around the world and link-ups can be attained through personal computers.

Students will be able to read complete Supreme Court decisions minutes after they are issued and also retrieve information on law schools, government agencies, Government Accounting Office reports and some law libraries.

Tag sale brings town together

Church, selectmen chip in

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Amherst College freshman John Collurn tries out an armchair at Saturday's used furniture sale on the Amherst Common.

A local church and the town of Amherst said they joined forces Saturday in an effort to address both the needs of area students and the environment. The end result was a tag sale which offered cheap used furniture and a decreased demand on local landfills.

The Amherst select board said they began the project last spring, when they looked for a way to stem the glut of discarded furniture left behind by departing students each May.

At the same time the North Congregational Church of Amherst said they were looking for a way to raise funds for their organization.

The two organizations said they teamed up to help each other. Last May, volunteers from the church began collecting more the 100 dumpster-bound desks, couches, mattresses and chairs at a cost of $4 per item — the same amount charged by local landfills, according to organizers.

Unusable pieces like mattresses, which cannot be resold, were placed in a "free" pile for anyone to take. The rest of the haul was stored throughout the summer months, earmarked for sale this fall.

A second collection was made the morning of the sale, bringing the number of saleable items to approximately 150.

The time and preparation culminated in the tag sale last weekend on the town green. By day's end, nearly everything except a few table-sized stereos had been sold.

Organizers from the church and town said the sale was a success and intend to make it annual event.

— NATHAN MARTIN

EWC offers help at open house

BY JENNIFER C. EDWARDS
Collegian Correspondent

The Everywoman's Center (EWC), located at Wilder Hall, held an open house last Thursday which was planned to coincide with the recruitment of student staff members, and also served to introduce new students to the services they provide.

The EWC provides services to UMass women, as well as women from the entire Five-College area. These services, which are all free, include the Resource and Referral Program, the Counseling Program, a graduate women's program, support groups, a 24-hour hotline and more.

The stream of visitors was described as "steady" by Carol Wallace, director of the center.

These women attended for various reasons, but most came to learn about the programs the EWC sponsors or to pick up a job application.

One student said she came to "find sources of information just in case I find myself in trouble." Students said they learned of the Open House from posters around campus.

The Resource and Referral Program (R/R) offers answers to questions concerning women's issues. There is a resource room with research materials, self-help books, brochures and a library.

"Women can call for just about any referral you can imagine," Wallace said. Students can also use the R/R program to write papers and do research for classes.

The Counseling/Advocate Program at EWC provides free counseling to women by themselves or with their partners. The program offers support groups for graduate women, rape survivors, incest survivors and many other topics that affect women's lives.

This program also provides information and counseling services to women experiencing sexual harrassment or sexual assault.

As part of the Educator/Advocate program, the EWC hosts workshops on such topics as rape awareness, pornography, incest and abusive relationships.

The graduate women's program provides workshops on time management and self-esteem for graduating women.

Refreshments were provided for visitors during the open house and brochures on the EWC, its programs and job applications were available. Staff members were on hand to answer questions and direct women who dropped by.

There is a 24-hour hotline for victims of sexual assault and battering at (413) 545-0800. A hotline for date rape public safety is at 545-2677.

Better safe than sorry

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

With the help of Public Safety Officer Neil Lunney, sophomore microbiology major Andrea Baptiste has an identifying number engraved on her bike. In an effort curb bicycle thefts, the UMass Division of Public Safety and Alpha Phi Omega are sponsoring free bicycle registration throughout the week. Registration will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Student Union Circle today, Southwest Mall on Wednesday, Worcester Dining Common on Thursday and Franklin Dining Common on Friday.

PVTA approves raises

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Pioneer Valley Transit Authority workers have approved a three-year contract calling for 2.5 percent pay hikes each year.

Vince Gonzalez, business agent for Local 448 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, said the contract was approved in a 74-to-42 vote Sunday. He said the authority's bus drivers now make $9.55 to $14.42 an hour.

Gonzalez said the pact included a "little more money" and better opportunities for promotion than a proposed agreement rejected by transit authority workers earlier this summer. Workers who have been without a contract since July and have voted to authorize a strike.

The union represents about 200 drivers, mechanics and office workers for the transit authority, which serves 22 communities in the Connecticut River Valley from Longmeadow north to the college towns of Amherst and Northampton

Roofer does the right thing

EASTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — George Thibodo says being honest doesn't make him a hero. It just makes him happy.

When the 52-year-old roofer saw a blue bank deposit bag fall from the top of a car at a gas station Sunday, he picked it up and took it to the police station, where an officer counted out $944.96.

Patrolman Stephen Cialek said that less than an hour later Erin Sheldon of Seattle came in to the station in tears saying she had lost the bag and all the money she made selling magazine subscriptions in the area this summer.

She tried to thank Thibodo before leaving for home, but he was out on a roofing job.

Survey says raises down

BOSTON (AP) — New England workers got smaller pay raises in 1993 than their counterparts in other regions of the country for the fourth year in a row, according to a national survey.

Salary increases in New England averaged 4.5 percent this year, down from 4.8 percent in 1992. The national average was 4.6 percent this year and 5 percent in 1992.

"The continued decline in salary raises in 1993 reflects the lagging economic recovery in New England, as well as low inflation," said Christopher Hatch, head of the Boston office of William M. Mercer Inc., the international consulting firm that conducted the survey.

Hatch said slow economic growth would continue to keep salary raises low in the Boston area next year.

The company surveyed more than 2,500 national organizations with nearly 9.5 million employees, including 253 New England firms with 868,000 workers.

Course offered for honors program freshmen

The UMass Honors Program is offering a course for the fall semester titled "Meet UMass." The class is geared toward first-year students interested in the honors program.

The course, which offers one credit on a pass/fail basis, will provide first-year students with opportunities to discover the services and programs offered by the University, as well as workshops devoted to stress management, mental and physical health.

During the semester, various academic departments will host an open house to inform and advise students about their particular department.

Part of the course there will include the "Pizza and Professor Night" seminar series, in which the students will meet informally with faculty to discuss specific concerns of the students, special topics and how to prepare for various professions.

The Mather Career Center along with the International Programs Office will giving lectures as part of the course.

Guest speakers include: Dr. Abel, administrator of the University of Massachusetts Health Services and Theodore Slovin, councilor of Academic Development.

— PHILIP LEVASSEUR

The INDEX Yearbook
•••
First General Staff Meeting
>>Today<<
Tues, Sept 14 at 7:00 pm
304 Student Union
•••
Photographers, Writers, Marketeers and anyone else welcome!

TRAVELING?
WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
• Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
• Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
• Adventure Tours • Language Courses
• International Student & Teacher I.D
• Work & Study Abroad
• Youth Hostel Memberships
• Car Rental & Leasing
• Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!
FREE 'STUDENT TRAVELS' MAGAZINE!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

The sun will always rise in the morning.
The price of a stamp will always go up.
The Collegian will always be looking for new writers.
A few things you can always count on.
113 Campus Center

Feeling trapped?
Break loose.
Write for the Collegian

Can you type? Fast?
The Collegian is looking for typists.
113 C.C.

Papa Gino's
"We're Hot To Deliver"
10% College Discount
Tuesday 4-9pm All You Can Eat Pizza • $3.49
Wednesday 4-9pm All You Can Eat Pasta • $3.99
Sunday-Thursday 11:30am-9pm
Friday & Saturday 11:30am-10pm
(413) 584-0220
HADLEY
•• This offer good for any college student with a valid ID and is not to be used with any other coupon offer ••

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!
▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼
Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.
University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414
A quality education at affordable prices
▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

They ALL had to be here Sunday, Sept. 5, at 10 a.m.

New student assistant, that's what I was, as I guided, I directed, and I escorted scholars into their new homes. I could not help but notice that I was also escorting them through a great deal of anxiety, as they went through the paces of move-in day.

They were fitted into small designated spaces and expected to follow regulated procedures, and then attend a convocation that more than 80 percent of them were compelled to walk out of before it was over. Move-in day was a failure for UMass and a very disappointing experience for the new students, as it began long before 10 a.m.

Trucks were pulling up to the curb, and voyagers, and students with more than two full elevators worth of stuff, stuff that would stuff their room after one elevator.

I am the elevator operator, holding, moving and wheeling carts and carts worth of stuff. I cannot describe it any other way; it's just stuff. To be honest they are new students and they don't know how much they can fit comfortably in a UMass dorm room. So I don't blame; I empathize.

My blame is directed toward the administration since there were hundreds of cars lined up just to get into the corner of Melville/Thoreau and Kennedy. Hundreds of loaded Plymouths, Subarus, Escorts, pick-up trucks, rented Ryders, company vans and hatchbacks. All puffed out and slung low on their rear shocks. They were hobbling in on overstressed engines, burnt out from driving and air-conditioning, and then waiting up to an hour just to park. Many traveled 23 hours, or more, from Florida and further, and now we just can't handle them all. We can't because they all had to be here at 10 a.m. on Sunday the 5th.

Mike
EINHORN

And there is more, much more of this ordeal that could be avoided for the next move-in day. After the hour's wait for unloading a car caravan, there is a good 20-minute wait for check in. Then the two-hour wait for elevators in one of five towers, and then the trudging up of stuff.

And mom and dad with the last lecture, as the first-year student just wants a minute to figure out what is going on. They are in a daze as more than two or three hundred pounds of their stuff is now in a room that seems much smaller.

UMass seems to think it's good to have a billion people trying to do the same thing at the same time. No move-in weekend for first-year students, not here, not at UMass. What? Are you kidding — a whole weekend?

Why not? Why not give them three days to take their time, Friday night to Sunday night, and have the rest of the school move in later. The first-years could relax and think carefully about how they want things and how they want to arrange their rooms. They could meet other first-years for a day and their parents can leave peacefully.

After a full day's work I file in with the new students to the "Seize the Day" convocation. It was in the Mullins Center, and I will try to be kind as I get into this. Our new chancellor, David K. Scott, did not take his audience into consideration when he made his speech. A very brilliant man who spoke on recognitions our school received, he gave us too much information from an unaccessible vocabulary for myself, resident assistants and the first-years.

He lost his audience after around 32 minutes. It was when they began to clap (hoping he was finished) after every phrase from a fact he looked to "UMass is great." I felt sorry for him; the crowd was beginning to leave.

But after a full day of unloading and helping stressed out freshmen, who were enduring much more than they really should have, my sympathy was parched. "It is a great school, it really is," I kept saying all day.

Move-in day needs work, first-year students, and I hope you will not hold it against us; you are much more important than the administration showed you. Seize the day? It wasn't move-in day — not this year, anyway.

Mike Einhorn is a Collegian columnist.

If it's out there, it's in here

We're all here together. Side by side in this big, happy, so-called zoo for another year of hangin' out, trying to be politically correct, reading the Collegian and Jim's Journal, and an occasional study session.

And no matter where you come from, be it the fast lane of the city or a hick town whose idea of "big time" is a Wal-Mart, the size of this place is bound to boggle at least a few pairs of eyes.

Troy
MERRICK

The throngs of people hurrying to and from the miles-distant classes by day and to any beer source by night, is sure to, while not daunting them, make even the strongest freshman soul homesick.

Well, even the Guinness Book of World Records said Southwest area was one of the most populated places, per square foot, in the country. It's a mini-city in itself.

Although it may appear that UMass is holding you upside down and shaking every last penny out of your pockets, we all need to take advantage of the very size of the campus and make the most of our college careers, or we'll just be looking back at it, wondering why we "never got around to it" — whatever it is.

Take it from me, I've got one more year to spread myself as thin as possible just to get a glimmer of a taste of what college really has to offer. That on top of things I have to commit to, like getting an internship, pinning down a job and making sure my grades are up to par for the final UMass lap.

Another thing is the very people we all walk to class beside, see in the D.C., and struggle alongside as we blindly make our way in this mini-cosmos of society. I'd love to know more people than I do. It seems "what's up?" is as far as conversation goes around here. We've got to have more to say to our fellow animals of the zoo than a grunt. If we were really animals, that would be fine.

We don't need to be wary of people — that just makes the transition even worse and fuel problems as serious as racism. And no, that's not beating a dead horse. It's more like trying to revive one.

Whether you're sickened by all the bureaucracy or think "UMass is cool" (to quote Beavis and Butt-head), or plainly don't give two hoots and a holler, college can be a worthwhile experience.

Obviously, academics come first; there won't be an asterisk next to your 1.3 which says "but Billy was in 13 organizations and knew almost everyone on campus, so give the guy a break."

Just think of UMass as almost as diverse as the NYNEX yellow pages — if it's out there, it's in here. Go find it.

Troy Merrick is a Collegian columnist.

Freshmen flunk first week

Yeah, the first week has passed and the first-year students are still getting their feet wet when it comes to partying, goin' to classes, and just dealin'.

Pretty much the whole nine yards.

But the thing that gets me is the way a lot of freshman try to make their mark on UMass the very first week. Beer — oh, boy. It just seems that many newcomers treat alcohol like children treat presents on Christmas morning.

Arthur
STAPLETON JR.

I don't know for sure whether the two clowns who decided it would be fun to drench a friend and me with a bucket of water were sauced last Monday night in Orchard Hill. Even if they weren't, it was still a freshman prank.

Let me tell ya, it was not the best thing to happen to me. Just a little advice for my shower pranksters: it will all come back to you at some point; just be happy that I was the one you got. It could have been a lot worse.

And to the fool who asked me if I had any Grey Poupon in the DC: huh, huh, huh? It amazes me what some guys do for attention.

Sure, I may sound a bit sour; but you have to remember, I've been there. First week of my freshman year at Townehouses, the sophomores on my floor had me eating out of the palms of their hands, mainly thanks to the Natural Light that made me an easy target.

I found out that a lot of people thought I was foolish. Hey, I was. But I never dreamed that I was a freshman. Even if it did, everyone would know I was lying. Who else would do something so stupid?

It baffles me when some freshman girls lie about their year.

"Oh, I'm a junior. I live at 175 Brandywine." For the person who uttered this, you are a freshman.

How about this dialogue for the freshmen?

"Hey, I'm in your class."

"Really, which one?"

"Intro. Ya, know, 101?"

"Oh my god, we are in the same class."

For those who fall for that trick, you are freshmen.

How about the stumbling and bumbling drunks that walk around parties introducing themselves to everyone in sight?

"Hi, my name is Joe, and I live in Southwest, man. Dude, I am sooooo wasted." You, pal, are a freshman.

So last week, on the first night of partying, I met up with some of my old friends from freshman year at a Hobart bash. We were all the same, but our attitudes were different. This past weekend, out in F Lot beside McGuirk, it was a veritable fall 1991 reunion for me.

Except it wasn't time for me to get plastered and eat bark off of a tree (another freshman mistake). It was a chance to get reacquainted with some old friends, drunk or otherwise. Just by being near the old crew I remembered what a dunce I acted like freshman year: the pennied-in doors, the bucketed elevators, the prank calls. Maybe I am sour.

What goes around comes around.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Professors disturbed by Kerrigan

We the undersigned are disturbed by the ways in which our profession spoke, and was portrayed in the recent issue of Harper's magazine.

We do not believe, as our colleague William Kerrigan apparently does, that faculty have the right to see as part of their professional duties the initiation of a student who has "unnaturally preserved her virginity."

Relations between faculty and students are complex, but their complexity need not obscure these principles: that the roles of professor and lover are not compatible, and that should teacher and student become romantically involved, they must end any relationship in which the teacher grades the student, directs a dissertation, or participates in any decision that would give that student anything not readily available to others.

Robert Keefe
Charles Moran
Peter Elbow
UMass English Dept.

Tower Library practices hypocrisy

Last week, the foyer of the Tower library became home to a promotional campaign for AT&T. As a library employee for four-and-a-half years, I have been repeatedly told that the Tower is neutral territory — off limits for promotions of any kind. I'd like to know, then, why concessions have been made to a major corporation.

The library's philosophy, so I'm told, is to refrain from making political statements or taking political stands. Yet, under the course it accepts and furthers the deadly status quo illusion that we, Pastore, are not colonized. This is far from the truth.

The rapaciousness of these predatory companies carries some of the strongest political implications on the face of the earth. Will the library administration be so hospitable it asked to provide space for such organizations as the Union of Concerned Scientists, ActUP or the National Coalition to Abolish the Death Penalty? Until such time, they should consider the [illegible] hypocrisy of their [illegible] hospitality.

Kevin J. Smith
Hadley

UNITED WE STAND, AMERICA
March for National Unity

A Human Rights march commemorating the 30th anniversary of the September 15, 1963 Birmingham church bombing

On September 15, 1963, the Sixteenth St. Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama was bombed by the Ku Klux Klan, killing four young African-American girls. 30 years later, in 1993, an office of the NAACP was bombed in Sacramento, California, and another bomb plot was uncovered targeting a Los Angeles Church. Over a year has passed since the 1992 Los Angeles Riots, and the trial of truck driver Reginald Denny, who was severely beaten during the riots, is still under way at this time.

Our nation is headed towards a severe crisis not seen in over a generation. It is unmistakably clear that we must come together as a nation lest we follow the same tragedy of the civil war and ethnic cleansing in Bosnia. Over a century ago America was nearly permanently dissolved and destroyed in her own Civil War which claimed over 600,000 lives. Now, in the twentieth century, the color line continues to divide our country. We must fight to end racism NOW, along with all other forms of related oppressions and bigotry. Please join us in our struggle for human rights as we pay our respects to the four young martyrs who fell victim to a nation divided against itself. Let us all commit ourselves to the rebuilding of a new, united America.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1993

Assemble at the Amherst Town Common at 10:00 a.m.
March up North Pleasant St. to UMass at 11:00 a.m.
Rally and memorial on the Student Union Steps at 12:00 noon

SPONSORED BY THE AMERICAN FREEDOM FOUNDATION

To the Campus Community:

September 15, marks the 30th anniversary of the bombing of the Sixteenth St. Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama. A group of students on this campus and in the local community have organized a human rights march in memory of the four young African-American women killed in that bombing, and to encourage all of us to commit ourselves to building a united and just country. The march will begin at the Amherst Town Common at 10:00 a.m. and will finish with a rally on the Student Union Steps at noon.

We support the goals of this event and plan to participate. We urge all students, faculty and staff to attend all or part of this event as their schedules permit. We look forward to seeing you there.

Sincerely,

Thomas B. Robinson
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

Glen Gordon
Provost

David K. Scott
Chancellor

Arts & Living

On the run with nihilistic True Romance

Cool characters, graphic violence penetrate slick film

By JON LUPO
Collegian Staff

Once in a while a movie comes along that just, well, knocks the wind out of you. This while, and that movie, is Quentin Tarantino's shockingly violent, corrosively funny True Romance. Though Tony Scott (Top Gun) may have directed, Romance remains through and through a Tarantino (Reservoir Dogs) original.

Perhaps original is not the correct word. Characters and situations in Tarantino's wild landscape aren't exactly new; they're just inflated nuances left swirling in Tarantino's seemingly endless cinephilia.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Christian Slater

Before he became America's coolest, brash indie filmmaker (sorry Gus), Tarantino worked for years in a video store — and it's easy to see that while Romance is fun (in a sick sort of way) and devastatingly romantic, it really doesn't say or mean anything. You just get the feeling that Tarantino thought it'd be neat to shock the bejesus out of conventional moviegoers with in-your-face violence while aiming at the wit of cynical film buffs. What results is a wild ride of graphic '90s nihilism, pop melodrama and in-joke film references — all of which make for one hell of a movie.

It helps to have a young, terminally hip cast along for the ride. You can see why it'd be irresistable to saddle up with Tarantino's razor-sharp dialogue — one character's idea of camaraderie is "you know, we park our cars in the same garage."

Christian Slater, sporting a black buzzcut, plays Clarence, a nowhere guy who works in a Detroit comic book store and whose idea of birthday fun is seeing a trashy karate movie marathon, alone, and who incidently receives other-worldly advice from Elvis himself (Val Kilmer).

Enter third-trick hooker Alabama (Patricia Arquette), all gosh darn sweetness and honey-blond sex appeal, hired by Clarence's boss to sleep with him. They meet, have sex, fall in love and get married, all within a couple of days.

Complications ensue when Clarence kills Alabama's pimp, Drexl (Gary Oldman, in a hysterically out there performance), a dreadlocked Brit portraying an American trying to be Black. Clarence and Alabama escape to California with half a million bucks worth of cocaine and well, things get considerably more intense and convoluted.

There's Saul Rubinek (Unforgiven) as a schlock movie producer, Bronson Pinchot as his wimpy wannabe, Brad Pitt as the stoner roommate from hell, Tom Sizemore and Christopher Penn as two gung-ho cops, and the list goes on. Sure, these characters are never more than the sum of their quirks, but each actor draws their part so vividly, it doesn't matter. They're there for a good time, and so are we.

As with both casting and characterizations, Tarantino's excess swims through this film. There are a number of truly violent, totally superfluous sequences, one more vile than the next (the final shootout is as hilarious as it is disturbing). Yet Tarantino knows we get a perverse kick out of graphic violence (Reservoir Dogs, again) and he delivers. This kind of delivery is of the love-it or hate-it school. The fact that Tarantino punctuates these scenes with jokes, via David Lynch, is all the more ingratiating.

Christian Slater and Patricia Arquette make a cool couple, but it's disappointing that the supporting cast one-ups them. It makes you wish Tarantino spent more time with the leads and less staging violent crescendos.

After all this, what does this movie end up saying? Either Tarantino is a genius of the Scorsese-knockoff school

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Writer-director Quentin Tarantino

or good at dressing up trash with hip stars and utter relentlessness. Only one thing's for sure, True Romance is not for the weak of heart, or for anyone seeking depth beyond visceral thrills. After seeing the movie, my shell-shocked companion Heather just muttered, "I really think I need to see a Merchant-Ivory film now." Indeed. A-

FIRST MEETING
UMASS
THEATRE
GUILD

Tuesday, September 14
7 p.m.
in Earthfoods

We'll be discussing auditions
for
Pippin and Black Comedy.

EVERYONE IS WELCOME!
Questions? Call the Guild office 545-0415
or visit 423A Student Union

USED COMPUTERS
Available Due To Corporate Downsizing
IBM Brand

Model AT 286 2MB Ram, 52MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $550

Model AT 286 1MB Ram, 20MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $395

Model XT 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $310

Model 3270 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $275

Rentals, Printers Available

CALL 253-7510

LEARN MORE, SPEND LESS

Everyone is looking for a bargain. College, however, is usually the last place where you can find one. With the rising costs of tuition, books, and housing, many are finding out that a student rarely encounters a good deal these days. Until now.

Introducing The Boston Globe's version of financial aid. Get The Globe delivered to your dorm or apartment for 50% off the regular delivery price.

For students, The Globe is much more than a newspaper: it's a resource. You'll get the best coverage of local and foreign news, arts and entertainment and all your favorite college and pro teams. Plus, The Globe's classified pages will help you find that perfect apartment or the ideal job. All for half price!

To start receiving The Boston Globe on campus call.

1-800-858-4275

For off-campus delivery call:

1-800-622-6631 Ext. 75

The Boston Globe Campus Program

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE
FRIDAY, SEPT 24

Grants for:
•Visual Art & Design
•Literature, Theatre, Performance Art
•Film & Video
•Music
•Artistic components in multicultural programs

PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS

Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the the Arts Council
203 Hasbrouck
545-0202

Valley theatre promises anemic hit lineup

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

Pickings are slim for on-campus theatre this fall, with only four major productions planned at UMass. Here, in brief, is a theatre-goer's notebook for the upcoming months.

Department of Theatre: Following a season of ultra-contemporary work last semester, the department has decided to slip into the comfortable land of classics this fall. "Pericles, Prince of Tyre" is the show, and the author — believe it or not — is none other than William Shakespeare.

A rarely-produced minor play, "Pericles" is being touted as a "sweeping romance," chock full of piracy, kidnapping and prostitution. How a high-seas melodrama by the bard can remain so ferociously obscure over so many years is anyone's guess — but if there is passion, pathos or perspiration to be found in this swashbuckler, director Michael ("Cloud Nine") Tritto is the man to bring it to life.

UMass Theatre Guild: Thanks to some inspired production decisions, this season may prove to be the finest in this student group's six-semester history. For the musically-inclined, the group is offering Stephen Schwartz's great toetapper "Pippin," a bolsterously enjoyable story of a young man's search for the extraordinary.

An enormous hit on Broadway 20 years ago, "Pippin" is the sort of uniquely 1970s musical that Schwartz ("Godspell") does best. The characters are introspective, the message is peaceful and the score is infectiously fun.

Also at the Guild, we have a brilliant farce in the form of Peter Shaffer's "Black Comedy." The group is responsible for a type of theatrical PR coup here, scheduling their production of the lunatic comedy opposite a highly-touted New York revival at the Criterion Center.

Will the Guild production be as good as the New York production? Maybe not. But if it is anywhere near as good as their last farce, "Noises Off," it should be a close bet.

Lack of space prevents a detailed explanation of too much of Shaffer's inspired craziness, except to say that when the audience sees a brightly-lit stage, the characters are experiencing an impenetrably dark apartment in the midst of a blackout.

New World Theatre: There is a big question mark next to this group's upcoming Curtain production, "A Dream of Canaries." Billed as a "politically charged drama," "Canaries" follows the adventures of a soldier and a prostitute in pursuit of a dream. If you need to know any more, you'll have to see the show.

With artistic director Roberta Uno directing, the one sure bet is that this play will be interesting. It is the very least one can expect from the always daring NWT.

Off-campus: A great season at Smith College includes productions of Arthur Miller's McCarthy-parable "The Crucible," an engrossing drama of the Salem witch trials, and Brien Friel's sadly nostalgic "Dancing At Lughnasa," about the dissolution of a family in Ballybeg, Ireland.

"Lughnasa" is a special treat, following the sabotage of the Broadway production by Actors Equity (the evil New York Actors Union), who forced out the play's acclaimed Irish leads and sent ticket sales into a nose dive.

Whether or not director Ellen Kaplan's production will equal the simple elegance of the original, I am happy at the chance to see this great, great show again.

Finally, there is a shot at redemption for those of you who missed "Jesus Christ Superstar" at the Mullins Center last semester. Thanks to some outstanding critical huzzahs, and even more outstanding box office receipts, numerous new engagements have been added to the Tony Christopher tour. The Second Coming (still with veterans Ted Neeley and Carl Anderson) will follow "Miss Saigon" into Boston's Wang Center next month.

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS
YES COMPUTERS
STUDENT MAC RENTALS
FROM $75 PER MONTH
BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING
AUTHORIZED RESELLER
585•0007
NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING
Monthly Expenses Income
1915
Rent 725
Telephone 60 32
Gas Electricity 60 48
Car Loan 240
Student Loans 125
Insurance 125
Credit Cards 125
Overdraft (Chk) 150
Groceries 300
Entertainment 100
Clothes 50
Misc. Social 275
IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

Can't afford to save for retirement? The truth is, you can't afford not to. Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning.

By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax-deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $172,109* by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $219 each month to reach the same goal.

Even if you're not counting the years to retirement, you can count on TIAA-CREF to help you build the future you deserve—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over a million people in education and research put TIAA-CREF at the top of their list for retirement planning. Why not join them?

Call today and learn how simple it is to build a secure tomorrow when you have time and TIAA-CREF working on your side.

Start planning your future. Call our Enrollment Hotline 1 800 842-2888.

TIAA CREF 75 years of ensuring the future for those who shape it.℠

*Assuming an interest rate of 7.00% credited to TIAA Retirement Annuities. This rate is used solely to show the power and effect of compounding. Lower or higher rates would produce very different results. CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services.

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
HIRING NOW FOR EVENING AND WEEKEND HOURS
NO SELLING INVOLVED
Interested part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Monday-Friday 9am-5pm, 5pm-10pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-7pm, Monday-Friday, (413) 586- 8635.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.
Telephone Research Center
Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9
Hadley, MA 01035.
An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993
Sponsored by University Health Services
Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.
Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.
Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.
For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

Boating, anyone?

MATT KOHN/COLLEGIAN
Kevin Hall and Scott Carrier of the UMass crew team scan the area for potential recruits.

No more weekend detentions

Arrestees must have hearing in 24 hours, court rules

By EVE EPSTEIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — The state's highest court ruled Monday that law enforcement officers must find a magistrate or a judge within 24 hours of arresting a person without a warrant to determine if they can continue to hold the suspect.

The court also made it clear that magistrates — not just judges — are qualified to make that determination.

"I think it's a great decision," said Patricia O'Neill, who argued for the change on behalf of the Committee for Public Counsel Services.

Prior to Monday's ruling, police could detain a person until the next available session of the court, which meant people were sometimes held over weekends or holidays. In some instances, people could be held as long as four days without a finding that there were legal grounds for arrest.

The case was brought by the committee on behalf of two men arrested in separate cases who were held in jail through a weekend. It was filed against the chief justices of the Boston Municipal Court and the District Court Department.

"This is a rule that number one, will benefit anybody innocent who's arrested, because that person should be out of the system very quickly," O'Neill said.

She also said the change means police cannot delay bringing somebody before a magistrate in order to collect more evidence.

"They can't arrest somebody without probable cause because they believe someone's guilty but they don't have the evidence," she said.

LaDonna Hatton, who represented the courts as the assistant attorney general in the case, said the Supreme Judicial Court ruling will put an additional burden on the court system, requiring that magistrates or judges be available on weekends.

But she said there is some flexibility in the decision, because the defendant does not have to be physically brought before a judge or magistrate and does not have to be represented by a lawyer. She said that could pave the way for probable cause to be determined by telephone or by fax machine.

A probable cause hearing — as distinct from arraignment — determines whether there are legal grounds to hold a person who has been arrested.

Hatton said that language allowing magistrates to determine probable cause also will make compliance easier.

The challenge to the detention system was brought by Torre Jenkins, who was arrested on a trespass charge on a Friday and was detained by Boston police until the following Monday, and by Reginald Waller, who was arrested on drug charges without a warrant and was detained through a weekend.

■ Hatch

continued fro m page 1

white rice, and unsalted peanuts and cashews."

Perault said the deli, which has been moved from the "Deli Garden" to the stand "La Cuchina," has been expanded.

"Now people can get a roast beef sandwich or a roast beef grinder at the same stand," he said.

To make up for the loss of Mexican cuisine, which was served by the "Deli Garden" last year, a Taco Bell stand has been set up in the Hatch, Perault said. He said the Hatch is using Taco Bell to experiment with bringing major fast food chains to UMass.

"Taco Bell is UMass's first step in branding," he said. "Branding is the process of identifying a brand-name product that you see on television and bringing it to UMass."

Perault said if the stand set up in the Hatch continues to do well, Taco Bell may expand to other locations on campus.

"Taco Bell has only been here since last Tuesday, but they have sold well," he said. "If they continue to do well they may open up a stand in Southwest and maybe one other location."

Perault said he is excited overall about the new variety of foods that the Hatch has to offer.

"I am really excited about all the changes we have made," he said. "Now we are much more complete. There is nothing that we do not sell."

■ Rosenberg

continued fro m page 1

education needed to compete in today's difficult job market.

"Tuition fees have gone up too high too fast and are way out of line with the rest of the country," Rosenberg said. "We want to get Massachusetts back on the same level with the other states, and try to keep it that way with increased state appropriation and increased efficiency."

Rosenberg said if this trend of ever-increasing tuition rates is not stopped, the state is in danger of moving away from a public higher education system toward a completely private one.

"Public systems, like the state's colleges and universities, should stay within the financial reach of most of the public," Rosenberg said.

According to the release, the 15-member Task Force will include five members appointed by the Higher Education Coordinating Council, two of the Coordinating Council's appointees are to be full-time students.

"Hire me."
Offer potential employers something more.
Gain valuable experience at the Collegian today.

IF IT AIN'T BROKE, WE DON'T FIX IT℠
MONRO
MONRO MUFFLER BRAKE
MUFFLERS • BRAKES • SHOCKS • SPRINGS • ALIGNMENTS • TIRES • FRONT WHEEL DRIVE EXPERTS
40,000 Mile Guarantee
All-Season Steel Belted Radial
GRENADIER
$37.95 P185/80 R13
List $50.95
Tough steel belts for strength & control. Great traction in any weather.

whitewall size	list price	our price
P165/80 R13	53.95	41.95
P175/80 R13	55.95	41.95
P185/80 R13	57.95	43.95
P185/75 R14	55.95	45.95
P195/75 R14	61.95	47.95
P205/75 R14	64.95	49.95
P295/75 R14	64.95	53.95
P205/75 R15	66.95	50.95
P215/75 R15	69.95	54.95
P235/75 R15	76.95	59.95

Worldwide Lifetime Guaranteed
Mufflers!
25% off
Manufacturer's list price
Original Equipment Quality
COUPON SPECIAL!
MONRO MUFFLER/BRAKE
Oil, Lube & Filter
$14.88 Plus Tax
Includes up to 5 quarts Kendall motor oil, new Kendall oil filter, chassis lube & free undercar inspection. Available for most vehicles. Please call for an appointment.
Coupon valid thru 10/16/93 4613

HADLEY 360 Russell St. 586-0892
NORTHAMPTON 326 King St. 586-3266
CHICOPEE 461 Memorial Dr 594-9161
WILBRAHAM 1971 Boston Road 543-8027
W. SPRINGFIELD 777 Riverdale St. 739-3860
90 Days same as cash! See store manager for complete details.
HOURS Mon. Tues. Thur. Fri. 7:30 am - 8:00 pm Wed. 7:30 am - 6:00 pm Sat. 7:30 am - 4:00 pm

Exchange students discuss transition to UMass

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

Three exchange students from Norwich University in England shared their experiences in the United States and in the "happy valley" of the University of Massachusetts.

Bruce MacLean, Robert Crane and Alan Brewin, all sophomore chemistry majors, have been in the States for approximately two weeks, and say what they have seen and heard is often quite different from the norm in their homeland.

"As far as the University is concerned, everything is absolutely massive," said Brewin. "I can't get used to getting on the bus for free, either."

"Everyone has a car here — it seems like the 16th birthday is paralleled with getting a car," he said. "But insurance is more here."

This year will complete the second of the trio's three-year college program, the British system of education being formatted differently than the traditional two- or four-year degree arrangement students enroll in here.

"We get concentrated on a particular subject earlier in school, like at age 16," Crane said. "Of course, there are pros and cons to it. What's good is you get specialization earlier and learn more, but it's right scary if it's not what you really want. Here we are taking 400- and 500-level courses and we're only sophomores."

"We have one preliminary year to see if we're up to it, then another two for the degree," MacLean said. "So it's one here then another and it's off to find a job."

In England, the tuition is paid for by the city in which the student resides. As for housing, it depends on the individual's financial situation.

"I think people here value their education more because they have to pay for it," Crane said. "Even though I'm not in Bournemouth, they're still paying my bill, even though I had to pay for housing fees."

"It's far less stressful in England with grades, too," Brewin said. "Here, there's continuous assessment, but in England, you can get by with the minimum, although you take a blister test afterwards."

Aside from school, they also spoke of some of the aspects they've seen in society in general, all the way from commercials to gun control.

"There's much more advertising here," Brewin said. "While the game was playing, there were both McDonald's and Pizza Hut ads. T.V. commercials here break up programs too much."

"Policemen have guns in this country, and girls thinking they have to carry mace is really scary," Crane said. "It seems like the hype says people here would kill you for ten dollars and not even sweat it, like life is valued very little here."

"As far as music goes, we make a lot of noise," MacLean said. "It seems like a quarter of the music here is British, and that's right weird considering how small we are. Plus, we hear songs here we've never heard before, but then groups that are big here are sort of old to us."

Free for life.

(Offer expires only when you do.)

Get an AT&T Universal MasterCard and you'll be eternally grateful.
Because it's more than just a credit card that's free of annual fees forever.
It's also an AT&T Calling Card that currently gives you a 10% discount on already competitive AT&T Calling Card rates. It's all part of The i Plan.™

THE i PLAN™

To apply, come by our booth on campus or call
1 800 438-8627.

AT&T

© 1993 AT&T

Yet another satisfied customer...

"I placed a classified ad in the Collegian because I needed to sublet my apartment for the summer. It only ran for a few days, but I had so many calls I found a person to sublet the place right away. People kept calling, and I actually had to turn them away. Thank you, Massachusetts Daily Collegian!"

Collegian Advertising. It works.

Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

Highlights of the Mideast peace accord:

- An elected Palestinian council would govern the West Bank and Gaza for a transitional period of no more than five years. The council would be elected within nine months after the agreement takes effect, and would have some legislative powers.
- The transitional period begins in Gaza and Jericho and would lead to a permanent accord based on U.N. Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338, which demand Israeli withdrawal from land occupied in the 1967 Mideast war.
- Palestinians in Gaza and Jericho would be responsible for administrative affairs such as education and culture, health and social welfare, taxes and tourism.
- A Palestinian police force would be set up to guarantee internal security for the Palestinians, but Israeli troops would control the external borders and be responsible for the security of the approximately 4,000 Jewish settlers in Gaza and the Jericho area.
- Within two months after the agreement takes effect, the two sides would sign an agreement on the withdrawal of Israeli troops from populated Palestinian areas in Gaza and Jericho. The pullout is to be completed within four months after the current agreement is signed.
- Between the time the agreement goes into effect and the Palestinian governing council is sworn in, Israeli troops would be redeployed outside populated areas in the West bank and Gaza.
- Negotiations on the permanent status of the territories would begin no later than the beginning of the third year of the interim period.

–ASSOCIATED PRESS

■ treaty

continued from page 1

territories. "We have to expect this until the implementation" of the peace accord, Arafat said.

Asked how difficult it would be to implement the agreement, Arafat replied: "Very difficult."

After months of secret negotiations, the PLO last week recognized the right of Israel to live in peace and renounced violence; Israel in turn recognized the PLO as the representative of Palestinians.

The fast-moving chain of events is expected to continue Tuesday with an announcement by Jordan and Israel at the State Department of agreement on a negotiating agenda that could lead to a peace treaty and diplomatic relations.

Israel's deputy foreign minister said his country was ready for a withdrawal on the Golan Heights if it negotiated a peace pact with Syria. Yossi Beilin was quoted in Tuesday editions of USA Today as saying Rabin's regime "is the first Israeli government which is ready to withdraw" from areas seized during the 1967 Six-Day War.

The success of the Israeli-PLO agreement depends on the international community providing billions of dollars to develop the economy of the West Bank and Gaza. Clinton made clear he expects other nations to provide the lion's share.

"We know a difficult road lies ahead," Clinton said. "Every peace has its enemies, those who still prefer the easy habits of hatred to the hard labors of reconciliation."

After the ceremony, the administration underscored its commitment to Israel's security.

Martin Indyk, a Middle East specialist on the National Security Council staff, said the United States was discussing new aircraft sales to Israel. Israel hasn't indicated what it wants, he said, but "there is no problem there."

Clinton, meeting with American Jewish and Arab leaders, said there were still obstacles to implementing the agreement. "A lot of the complicated details are left," he said.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher, speaking of the money that will be needed, said the United States will play "an organizing role."

He said Japan would be "very helpful" with contributions and that Nordic countries, the European Community and Persian Gulf states also would help.

"It's not so easy," Rabin said, "neither for myself as a soldier in Israel's war, nor for the people of Israel, nor for the Jewish people in the Diaspora who are watching us now with great hope mixed with apprehension."

Arafat sought to appease his critics after the ceremony by predicting that the Palestinian flag "will fly over Jerusalem's walls, minarets and churches."

Under the agreement, the controversial issue of Jerusalem was postponed until later in the negotiations.

Rabin spoke pointedly of the city as "the ancient and eternal capital of the Jewish people."

Later at a new conference, Rabin stressed that Israeli armed forces would retain control over all Israeli settlements in the land being turned over to the PLO, as well as "responsibilities for Israelis wherever they move."

Arafat was greeted by Clinton at a reception in the Blue Room. "He was smiling. He shook everybody's hands and was beaming," White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said.

Rabin arrived three minutes later and remained across the room from Arafat. The ceremony marked the first time an Israeli leader publicly met with the head of the organization it had officially considered terrorist.

The agreement was signed on the same desk used for signing the 1979 peace agreement between Israel and Egypt.

The signing was broadcast live to millions around the world.

In Jordan and Syria, Palestinians tore up pictures of Arafat, burned Israeli flags, marched angrily through the streets and promised to wreck the PLO-Israeli peace.

In Lebanon, security forces fired on protesters, killing seven and wounding 41. Elsewhere, Palestinians fired guns in jubilation when they saw TV pictures of Arafat on the South Lawn.

Opening the ceremony, Clinton called it a "great occasion of history and hope."

"A peace of the brave is within our reach."

The ceremony started a few minutes late after last-minute negotiations over changing a single word in the agreement. At the insistence of the PLO, the word "Palestinian" was changed to "PLO" during a reception in the Blue Room just before Clinton, Rabin and Arafat walked outdoors to the podium.

■ reaction

continued from page 1

be peaceful, there is still violence and terrorism.

Jason Smith, a senior in the social thought and political economy program was also apprehensive about the accord.

"It's one thing for the governments to recognize each other . . . and it's another thing for the people to come around. It's not something you can change in one day."

Mitchell Kotter has very definite feelings about the signing this afternoon. "I am completely, 100 percent against it," he said.

"(The accord) is going to kill more Jews," Kotter said, adding that ever since the "so-called peace talks" started there have been terrorist attacks.

Kotter, a graduate student in the mathematics department, feels that giving back any territory is not the way to solve anything. "Whatever you give back, there's just something else to fight over," he said.

Kotter also said he does not see any room for compromise when it comes to the city of Jerusalem. "Giving up holy land is a disgrace against God."

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter, director of the Hillel Foundation, has a brighter outlook concerning the peace agreement. He said he is "pleased" about the outcome, and called it "a giant step in the right direction."

Perlmutter is guarded, however, pointing out the fact there are still many dangers and issues to work out.

Yvonne Haddad, a professor of Middle East studies, said the accord does not recognize the legitimate rights of the PLO and that there will be potential for more trouble. "All it seems to be doing is giving autonomy over the Gaza Strip," she said.

She did think the ceremony was incredible to watch and that President Bill Clinton's words were very important.

"It's a beginning," Haddad said.

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!

No. 2 No. 2

NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR
1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets

Charlie's tavern
AMHERST, MASS.
since 1978

This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95

Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

BURN VICTIM.

For the Dancer...
Gymnast...
& Fitness Minded
Fun Bodywear!! Great Shoes!!
Dance Stuff
We Have All Supplies for Dance Majors
220 N. Pleasnat Street (Rear), Amherst, MA
Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. – 10-5
Thurs. – 10-7
253-5201

Joy and apprehension greet Mideast accord

By JOHN CURRAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — The signing of a historic peace treaty was an emotional affair for Massachusetts Jews and Palestinians alike, but people on both sides of the Arab-Israeli conflict said they were also apprehensive.

"To be honest with you, it's going to take a while for the women who lost their husbands and the children who lost their fathers to forget. But forgive? There is a good chance to forgive," said Palestinian businessman Husein Mustafa, 40, of Everett.

"It's an opportunity to live side by side," he said. "The only thing that worries me is the economy, that they build it up step by step and give everybody a chance. There's an excellent chance for them (Palestinians) to build and contribute to the work."

Israeli and Arab leaders signed an accord Monday that calls for self-government for Palestinians. Though it was hailed as a breakthrough, not everyone was ready to wipe the slate clean.

"It's not easy to forget what has happened to the Palestinian people since 1948 (when Israel became a nation)," said Marwan Dajani, 45, a Palestinian who lives in Boston.

"It's not like a computer. You don't push a button that makes things change right away," said Dajani, who own two home furnishings stores.

In a downtown office building, Jewish leaders gathered to watch televised coverage of the signing in Washington, D.C.

They cried and cheered while watching the event, which included a handshake between once-mortal enemies Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

At one point, Ruth Fein got out of her chair suddenly and began leading 60 people in a song based on a Jewish prayer.

"Oseh Shalom," she sang, clapping her hands as the others joined in. They sang heartily, one eye on a television monitor, the other on Fein, who is president of the Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Boston.

The daughter of slain Egyptian leader Anwar el-Sadat said the accord realized a prediction her father once made.

In 1979, Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menacham Begin shared the Nobel Peace Prize after signing the Camp David peace treaty orchestrated by President Jimmy Carter.

Camelia Sadat of Brookline, a teacher of Middle East history at Bentley College, said she told her father after the Camp David treaty was reached that the Arabs did not appreciate it.

"I told him, 'It seems they don't understand what you've done.' He said, 'They will understand it in 10 or 15 years.' He put it exactly right," Sadat said.

At the Jewish Community Relations Council's gathering, televised coverage of the signing was met with cheers, tears and — at times — apprehensive silence.

"I feel uplifted, very optimistic and very apprehensive, all at the same time," said Judith Slovin-Lovenfeld, 33, a Newton attorney. "After a generation of bloodshed and tears, to see Arafat and Rabin on the same dais. . . it's a very emotional thing, for the Jewish community here and I'm sure everywhere."

At several points, the room erupted in applause. One woman held a box of tissues, sharing its contents with teary people around her. Another took off her glasses, dabbing at the corners of her eyes.

Among them was Nancy Falchuk, chairwoman of the group's Middle East Steering Committee.

"I have mixed emotions. Hope. Opportunity. Concern. They took a giant leap today. From now on, it will have to be the baby steps," said Falchuk, a nurse.

SHOW
Late Night
with Tracy Monahan

Well, okay, it isn't all that late. But Tuesday at 7 p.m. there will be a staff meeting for all former staff writers and anyone interested in writing for the Collegian's News Desk.
Your hosts will be News Editor Tracy Monahan and Darienne Hosley, Managing Editor.
Find out the plans for this semester's News section, and see where you fit in.
Need more info? Can't make it?
Call 545-0719.

News Writer Staff Meeting
Tuesday, Sept. 14 at 7 p.m.
in the Collegian Newsroom
113 Campus Center

COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
545-3500

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

TUESDAY
SHARK NIGHT
- Singles Pool Tournament -

- $2.00 Entrance Fee
- Free Pizza Slices
- Play For Cash
- Sign Up: 7:00 - 7:45
- 20 oz. Drafts: $1.75

WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH

University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE

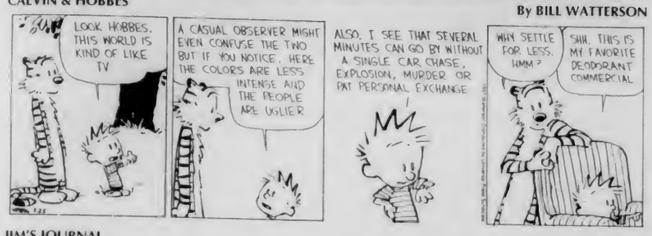
AEROBICS	STRENGTH	CARDIO
Funk REEBOK STEP Hi/Low Boxercise Yoga	Keiser Air Power NAUTILUS Olympic weights GRAVITRON The Treadwall	STAIRMASTERS LifeCycles • LifeRower Treadmills • BioCycles Climb Max • NordicTrack TrueClimb• VersaClimber

SEMESTER SPECIAL
$139 four months

Amherst Athletic Club — 460 West St. — South Amherst 256-0080

The NY Times Delivered to Dorms and Offices by Dad's News-
We're under new management and committed to bringing back the delivery standards demanded by students and faculty.
Please deliver The New York Times as checked below. Daily subscription rates are 60% below newsstand price. That's only .30¢ per copy. Subscriptions will be delivered to Dorms and Offices on campus.
There will be no Saturday delivery.
COMPLETE YOUR EDUCATION! Get with The Times!

	FALL TERM	FULL YEAR
( ) Weekdays (Mon.-Fri.)	$16.80	$36.60
( ) Weekdays & Sundays	$36.80	$77.60



Fall Semester delivery begins on Mon., Sept.20th and ends on Mon., Dec. 13th. The spring semester delivery will begin on Mon., Jan. 31st and ends on Wed., May 11, 1994. There will be no delivery during holidays and vacations. Please enclose check and make payable to : RICHARD BAYER

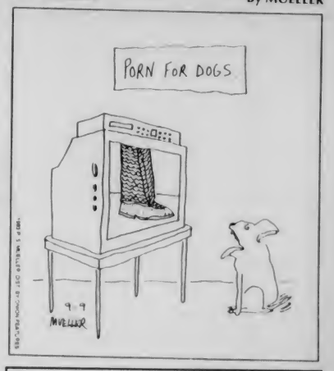
NAME _____ PHONE _____
DELIVERY ADDRESS _____
CLASS OF _____
Return form (and check) to: Dorm / News, P.O. Box 57, Amherst, MA 01004

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM



PRICE By PRICE VAN RAY

PRICE By PRICE VAN RAY

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

Quote of the Day

"She lingered in my mind like a John Coltrane song"

– overheard

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Shifting events call for firm footing. You and your co-workers' dedication saves the day. Happiness will be gained by resolving a difference of opinion with mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Patience is a cardinal virtue now. An important decision or project might roil fly unless you first tap expert minds. No problem is too big when you solicit support. Stay on course.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic plans blossom, thanks to your vision and the resources at your disposal. A new, more attractive offer will be tendered. If you have not already joined the computer generation, do so.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep your feet on solid ground. Insufficient information may cause delays or make overtime necessary. Trying to do everything alone is not nearly as effective as coordination with other people.

LEO (July 23- Aug. 22): Information received today becomes powerful in your hands. Your confidence shows in phone calls and communiques, creating lucky outcomes. Careful attention to detail pays off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23- Sept. 22): Being honest with a pal or group bridges a gap. No one feels left out anymore. You are admired and can win new friends. Reach out to people who share your interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Funding, favors or information is only a phone call or letter away. When you explain how good your plan is for all concerned, it will be easy to rally support. Emphasize teamwork.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your quick thinking pays off when you grasp the true nature of an alliance. New interests and changes can be made and a fresh start begun. A teen-ager shares a confidence. Be discreet.

SAGITTARIUS (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Decision-making is not a toss of the coin. Before committing yourself by word or pen, review where you are going — and where you have been. Learn more about an ancient culture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Loving words warm a family member's heart. You have a brilliant idea to act on. Innovative research and planning get a special project off the ground.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be wary of pitfalls in your financial dealings. Confusion need not be disastrous if you avoid acting in haste. A platonic relationship suddenly grows more intense.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be careful of what you say when around sensitive people. You need to strengthen existing ties as well as promote your creative pursuits. Avoid sounding critical.

WANTED:
STUDENT CARTOONISTS
Share your sequential artwork with over 19,000 people each and every day.

You'll be in great company!
Contact Darienne
113 Campus Center
545-3500

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Copy Editor ..... Michael Morrissey
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Michele Bakis
Production ..... Mike Carvalho, Sean Ramsey, Susan Nasberg, Bob

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Pizza Jalepeño Shrimp	CHIPS AND DIP! Roast Top Round of Beef/Gravy Breaded Chicken Tenders
BASICS LUNCH
Pizza Jalepeño Shrimp

■ baseball

continued from page 16

uncanny.

It didn't help when Sports Illustrated ran a baseball column from 1951 in its Classic edition in July, talking about the Brooklyn Dodgers insurmountable All-Star break lead, nor does it help that the Giants are also in this race. Only this time, as we all know, they are in San Fran instead of New York and are the prey instead of the predator.

For you Long Islandites waiting to read about the Yankees, I have three final comments about the NL West: A) It's my personal opinion that the Braves will either win the division by five games or in a one-game playoff. Sorry, Giants, but you live by the sword, you die by the sword. It's your turn for heartache.

B) Torres is talented, but he threw 189 innings in AAA Phoenix. With Bill Swift, John Burkett and Bud Black already worn out, the burden on Torres may be too much. He isn't a September savior.

C) Lost in the NL West hoopla is the exciting play of the Astros, who have invigorated Houston with a young, exciting ballclub. It takes rookie pitcher Darryl Kile a no-hitter (he's 15-6) to get into the headlines. It would be a shame if Art Howe wasn't rehired as manager for next season, when baseball realignment will give them a better shot at a division title.

Broken bats: While the Blue Jays are clinging to a scant lead in Toronto, their Canadian counterparts in Montreal, the Expos, are streaking down the stretch, trying to catch the Phillies.

It will be interesting to see whether the Expos, who have won 15 of 16, have the speed (they lead the league in stolen bases) or the gas (John Wetteland, 9-3 with 35 saves, leads a remarkable group of retreads on the pitching staff) for the last 19 games.

Well, Toronto remains atop the AL East, despite the fact they lost six in a row; the Yankees are hitting a collective .282, the Tigers have the best post All-Star break record and the Orioles have come from nowhere, and the Red Sox still have the best pitching in the league.

Sorry, you from the Bronx, but the Yanks are done. Their inability to vault over the top when tied for first has shown they lack the fortitude needed to dethrone the World Series champs. I'm still waiting for Baltimore's mirrors (as in, they did it with mirrors) to crack, but don't count the Sox out yet.

In the AL West, the Rangers have a legitimate chance to let the White Sox blow the division for them. The Royals, if Kevin Appier can remain healthy, also have a shot, but Chicago's pitching is tough. Jack McDowell (21-8) has four or five starts left to pad his Cy Young stats.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

Men's Basketball 1993-94 Schedule

Thurs. Nov. 18	CLEVELAND STATE (NIT)
Sun. Nov. 28	at Oklahoma
Sat. Dec. 4	t St. Bonaventure
Thurs. Dec. 9	CENTRAL CONNECTICUT STATE
Sat. Dec. 11	at Holy Cross (Worcester Centrum)
Mon. Dec. 27	Abdow's Hall of Fame Classic in Springfield vs. Hartford
Tues. Jan. 4	at Rutgers
Sat. Jan. 8	at Duquesne
Thurs. Jan. 13	at West Virginia
Sat. Jan. 15	ST. BONAVENTURE
Tues. Jan. 18	at DePaul
Thurs. Jan. 20	RUTGERS
Sat. Jan. 22	GEORGE WASHINGTON
Thurs. Jan. 27	at Cincinnati
Sun. Jan. 30	RHODE ISLAND
Thurs. Feb. 3	FLORIDA STATE
Sun. Feb. 6	Kentucky (at the Meadowlands, N.J.)
Thurs. Feb. 10	at Rhode Island (Providence Civic Center)
Sun. Feb. 13	TEMPLE
Tues. Feb. 1	at St. Joseph's
Fri. Feb. 18	MANHATTAN
Sun. Feb. 20	WEST VIRGINIA
Tues. Feb. 22	ST. JOSEPH'S
Thurs. Feb. 24	at Temple
Sun. Feb. 27	at George Washington
Wed. Mar. 2	DUQUESNE

■ football

continued from page 16

don't have any wins.

At least John Robinson knows why he's back at USC. He's there to win ballgames, not to tie or give a good performance. He showed his mettle on Saturday when he elected to go for the two-point conversion and the win in the last minute against Penn State. The conversion failed, however, and Joe Paterno and Co. held on for a 21-20 win.

Two lessons for the Aggies of Texas A & M: You can't hang with the big boys by playing teams like El Paso Tech week in and week out, and if you're going to cheat, don't get caught.

The Aggies found out what Top 20 football was all about on Saturday when they got crushed by Oklahoma 44-14. The win might've saved Sooner coach Gary Gibbs' job.

Texas A & M had to play this one without star running back Greg Hill and starting inside linebacker Jessie Cox, both of whom are suspended for receiving payments for a summer job they never showed up for. Hill has four games left on his suspension, while Cox is gone for the season. Bye-bye Aggies.

The Tide keeps on rolling. 'Bama proves that you don't have to be flashy to be a great college team as the tandem of Jay Barker (19-0 as a starting QB) and David Palmer (217 yards receiving) led the Crimson Tide past the Commodores of Vanderbilt 17-6.

Nebraska and Colorado are two teams to watch down the stretch. I'm usually not too high on the Big 8, but for some reason, I like these two teams. Maybe, just maybe, it's Tom Osborne's turn to win the big one.

The Cornhuskers definitely have the offensive firepower. In QB Tommie Frazier and tailback Calvin Jones, Nebraska has two of the most explosive players in college football. It's the big games that kill these guys, but like I said, Osborne is due.

The Buffs I really like. They have a solid defense and an absolutely dizzying offense. Bill McCartney completely revamped the offensive focus. Since he doesn't have anymore Darian Hagans or Eric Bienemys, he figured he had to make do with what he has.

What he has is a slingshooter named Kordell Stewart at quarterback complemented by two wide-outs that each gained over 1,000 yards in receptions last year, Michael Westbrook and Charles Johnson.

It's never too early to talk about the Heisman Trophy candidates. The two off to the fastest start this year appear to be Florida State quarterback Charlie Ward and Michigan tailback Tyrone Wheatley.

Wheatley racked up more than 300 all-purpose yards in Saturday's loss to the Irish. That was preceded by a 100+ yard effort on the ground last week against Washington State.

Ward has been nothing short of spectacular in 1993. He passed for 317 yards and four touchdowns on Saturday with zero INT's in 33 attempts. By the way, he hasn't played in the fourth quarter in any Seminole game this year.

Sean P. Hayden is a Collegian columnist.

Coming soon...
Art Stapleton's PIGSKIN PICKS
This and every Friday.
Only in Collegian Sports.

The ArtCarved Double Savings EVENT
Save up to $100 when you purchase your College Ring
and
Get a Gift Certificate for up to $100 to use at the bookstore*
A Savings of up to $200!
OUR BIGGEST SALE OF THE YEAR
* Cannot be used for the purchase of textbooks and Coin Items
ARTCARVED College Jewelry
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
Art Carved Representative Will Be Available September 13-17 9:30am-3:30pm

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment with
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos only $2.00
9:30-10:30
THE PUB IN AMHERST
CELEBRATES 25 YEARS 1968 • 1993
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

IF ONLY THEY CAME WITH INSTRUCTIONS.
American Red Cross

SUICIDAL?
LAY IT ON THE LINE.
617-247-0220
The Samaritans

UMass Skydiving Club soaring in popularity

ARAM COMEAN / COLLEGIAN
Members of the University of Massachusetts Skydiving Club prepare for a landing near the Tower Library last week.

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

Last Thursday afternoon, as students shuttled past the campus pond on their way to class, all eyes shifted upward as three parachutists descended from the sky.

The event was the first demonstration of the year for the University of Massachusetts Skydiving Club. The cloudy weather forced jumpers Tim Lynch, Bill Koski and club president Rob Desilets to make their freefall from only 2000 feet, a relatively low altitude for freefall.

The club hopes to do several more demonstrations while the weather is still conducive to jumping. One possibility includes jumping into McGuirk Stadium on homecoming weekend during halftime of the football game against Delaware.

The UMass Skydiving Club has been in existence for over 35 years, making it the oldest collegiate skydiving club in the country.

The club flies out of Turners Falls, Mass., a 20-minute ride from campus. Jumpers dive from a Cessna 182 plane which holds four jumpers and a pilot.

First-jump courses are offered to all students from all five colleges in the area in three kinds of jumps: the static line, the most popular option, in which the chute opens immediately following the jump; the tandem jump, in which the jumper and the instructor are attached; and the accelerated freefall, in which the jumper freefalls from 11,000 feet before opening the chute.

The club boasts state of the art equipment, and United States Parachute Association-rated jumpmasters and instructors.

Sixty new jumpers have made their first jumps this year and many more are expected to follow.

"Skydiving is a very safe, growing sport," said Desilets. "The thrill and doing something that not many people have done attract people to the sport."

In December, the club will send its top jumpers to Clewiston, Fla., for the Collegiate Nationals.

Every kick.
Every shot.
Every foul.
Every score.
Collegian Sports is there.
Follow UMass Sports every day in the Collegian.

Quality
WALKING Co-Ed FLEX Co-Ed DISTANCE
FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
Quantity

HEY SPORTS FAN ! !
PAID INTRAMURAL OFFICIALS NEEDED FOR FLAG FOOTBALL, SOCCER, CO-ED SOFTBALL AND ICE HOCKEY
Clinics: Football, Soccer- Sept. 15, 16, 17
Co-ed Softball- Sept. 20, 21
Ice Hockey- Oct. 4
Call for times & locations
IF YOU MISSED THE ENTRY DATES, YOU CAN STILL ENTER FLAG FOOTBALL, SOCCER & CO-ED SOFTBALL.
MORE INFO IN 215 BOYDEN, 5-2693/5-0022

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY. BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

Classifieds

- 20c per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons -- Free -- Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

College Pizza
Open for lunch
At 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 toppings add $1
549-6073 549-6098

DVP Meeting
The first general meeting will be on Tuesday Sept 14 at 6 pm in room 804 Campus Center

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543 5640

Interested in a 3 credit class which covers: recycling, waste management and sustainable resource use? Take Education 397K, Tues 2:30-5:00 Hills 467

LBGA Infosocial
Tuesday September 14 7-9 pm. CC 905-09. Socialize, eat, and get to know us.

Need a locker? We have them at OCHO. 428 Student Union

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating oil at reduced cost. Register at OCHO. 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Come join NOW!

UMASS THEATRE GUILD will hold its first general membership meeting on Tuesday 9/14 at 7 pm in Earthfoods. Auditions for "Pippin" and "Black Comedy" will be discussed.
ALL ARE WELCOME!
77s 5-0415

Women Ice Hockey Players
Interested in joining a club?
Call CHERI 665-0485 exp. preferred but not required.

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale 83 Mercury Marquis (Parts) BO 549-3581

Toyota - 1982 Tercel SR5 Hatchback 5 speed runs well one owner well maintained $1450 evenings 253-2410

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Downtown. Quiet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4236 9am - 9pm.

Small Dorm Sized refridgerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets
Call
546-3169
or 548-3866

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Computer For Sale
Amiga 500 -- very good condition includes 1084 color monitor, external 3 1/2" disk drive, plenty of software incl. ProWrite and Deluxe Paint. $375/bo. Also Panasonic KX-P2123 printer. Can be upgraded to color. Quick, quiet and less than one year old. $185. Computer and printer only $500. Call Adam 6-4845, leave message

Computer 286 M30 with so many software 549-7577

DOC Martens
Brown Derby Boots
Size 5 Men (7 women)
Brand new worn twice
$80 or b/o For more info 546-0070 Helen

Grateful Dead
Need a miracle?
2 for 9-26
Jeff 549-3912

Original Macintosh, Imagewriter printer, write, draw, spellcheck software, instruction manuals. $295/all 586-5447

RCA 25" TV w/stereo hook up and 12" TV cable $200 firm 6-2505

Skis/bindings/ expert never used 549-8180

Smith Corona laptop WORD PROCESSOR with separate printer. Works Great! $450 neg. Call 582-0455

Super Single Waterbed with bookcase and side pads - $160 - Mike - 256-3076

286 IBM Compatible, enhanced keyboard, monochrome monitor, 20 MB Harddrive, 1 MG RAM. $550 865-0031

T.V.'s -- 19" COLOR Cable ready! $85. 549-4793

Used Futon. Good condition. $50 or BO. 863-8996. Leave message.

FOR SALE - AUDIO

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

FOUND

Found -- Bike U-Lock
Call 6-1116 (Andy)

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000 $4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Childcare for 10 year old boy, in Leverett, Car req., some overnites. 548-9057

EARTHFOODS IS HIRING!!!
Student-run vegetarian cafe
Seeks a diverse
Group of responsible people
For hard work and fun
Applications available in
The CSB Office, 409 Student Union

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $400-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

Is Spanish your second language?
English/Spanish Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information

Peace and Justice Organization seeks Grants Assistant workstudy students. Phone reception and general clerical work. 10 hours a week. $5.58 per hour call Joan Carlos at 256-8306

Postal Jobs available many positions great benefits call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

Spring Break '94 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student travel services is now hiring campus reps call 800-648-4849

The Amherst Boys and Girls Club needs work/study assistants for recreation programs. Open 2:30 to 5:00 afternoons 7:00 to 9:00 evenings. Workers schedule as time available. $5.25 per hour. UM buses stop in front of club at 390 Main St. Contact Richard Britt 253-3281

$287.30 Sell 50 Hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol-related, college t-shirts and make $287.50. All shirts 100% guaranteed. A risk free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

INTERNSHIPS

The Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is hiring interns for Fall semester. Conduct research, lobbying, training, and organizing in support of Student Government Association Agenda for Change 6 work study credits for 15-20 hours per week. To apply send letter of interest to SCERA Box 128 Student Union. For more information call Marc 545-0341

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS!

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Legal Services Center 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

MUSICIANS

Guitarist seeks Bass player and drummer to form original heavy heavy rock band.
5 years experience required.
- Matt 549-3581

ROOM FOR RENT

Female wanted to share two bedroom Apt. in Britanny Manor. Large rooms 300.00 month includes everything. 562-2731 Ask for Linda

WANTED

Artist to Draw
Small floral tatoo. Call after 5 pm. 256-4525

Flyin' high with the UMass Skydiving Club Page 15

Sports

Water polo takes Cambridge by storm

By MIKE REISS
Collegian Correspondent

When Russ Yarworth glances down at a roster of his nationally-ranked University of Massachusetts water polo team, he sees each and every player as an ingredient to a winning recipe.

Saturday's opening day doubleheader at the Cambridge Invitational proved to be quite a satisfying appetizer for the seventh-year coach, as his squad rolled over Harvard and Army, 14-8 and 16-10, respectively.

Senior co-captain Tsan Engin led the charge, potting four goals in each contest.

"He [Engin] had a good weekend," said Yarworth. "I've been looking to him for leadership and he really came out to play."

Engin, a 6-foot-6-inch, 220-pound Michigan native, has the physical size to be an overpowering force at the two-meter position.

"He has the potential to become the most dominant player in the East this year," said Yarworth, noting his size, raw skill and knowledge of the game.

UMass 14, Harvard 8
UMass 16, Army 10

Saturday's sweep also displayed the talents of some of Engin's teammates. Senior co-captain Jeremy Alters is another legitimate force, described as "crafty" and "very smart" by Yarworth.

Other solid performances were turned in by Javier Gonzalez, Luke Harlan, Luis Limardo, Adolfo Oliete and Greg Menton.

Menton, a freshman from Oregon, is one of the fastest players on the squad. He netted three goals in the Harvard contest, a performance that raised Yarworth's eyebrows.

"That was nice to know he might be ready to step up to the prime time," Yarworth said . "He's got something you can't teach and that's speed."

The coach also referred to Limardo as a "legitimate stud" and Harlan as "probably our best outside shooter."

But Yarworth, in Bill Parcells-like fashion, said he is guarding against the optimism.

"I've told the guys we haven't really done anything yet. There's a long way to go."

This Saturday the team will travel to Army for the EWPA League Tourney.

"You have to have the attitude and desire to go out there and perform well," said Yarworth. "You have to have all the parts."

Or ingredients, if you will. And if the first two games are any indication, this looks to be one enticing recipe.

Braves take off, Giants nose dive in NL West clash

Michael Morrissey's BEANBALLS

The purpose of this column, devoted to major league baseball, is not to parrot what Peter Gammons writes or says.

Now that we've gotten that out of the way, welcome to "Beanballs," a semi-weekly column which will run during the pennant race and through the World Series. This week's agenda is the Atlanta Braves (did you really think we'd be talking 'bout the Expos?), their phoenix-like rise out of the ashes and the national and regional hold they have on baseball fans.

Any mention of ashes has to begin with the night of the Fulton County Stadium press box fire July 20, which coincided with the Braves trade for Fred McGriff. McGriff hit a home run that night and he and the fire (ulp) lit a fire under the Braves, who came back from a 5-0 deficit to win. They've been 38-12 ever since.

For those who were out partying like maniacs last Friday night, you missed two of the most pivotal games in the Braves-San Francisco Giants pennant race.

In San Diego, Greg Maddux, gunning for his second straight Cy Young Award, shut down the Padres for five-and-two-thirds innings but was nailed in the right elbow by a line drive and taken out of the game in the sixth.

At the time the Braves were leading 3-0, and the Padres rallied for runs in the seventh and eighth before 23-year-old closer Greg McMichael retired the Padres on 11 pitches for his 15th save of the year.

Meanwhile, the Giants were collapsing at home... again. Salomon Torres, the 21-year-old rookie the Giants would not trade for Dennis Martinez, allowed three runs in seven innings against the Cardinals, but two disturbing events occurred: the Giants offense continued to sputter (Barry Bonds has not had an RBI since Aug. 4) and the bullpen blew up again, allowing three runs in the final two frames for a 6-2 loss.

The Braves tied the Giants in the standings early that Saturday morning, and have since gone one game up. The turnaround completes a remarkable recovery for Atlanta, which was nine down at the All-Star break. As usual, the bandwagon-jumpers now are rooting for America's Team.

The only problem is that conventional wisdom in July dictated there was still plenty of time, and many people wrote them off by June 30. You know who you are, so don't root for them now if you forgot in June that teams play a 162-game schedule.

In Boston, the Braves have the status of number-two home team (behind the Sox) because of their reign in the town up until the '40s. Many feel the right and the privilege as children of Boston Braves fans to root for the team. That's great, but please, if you are a real fan, don't wear a maroon Braves cap with a black brim in public.

While the major league office has not informed either team when the coin flip determining home field for a one-game playoff will be, the resemblance of the 1951 NL race is

Turn to BEANBALLS, page 14

Women's crew good as gold

By DANA LIGHTNER
Collegian Correspondent

When a University of Massachusetts team is on the road to a national title, almost everyone knows about it. This wasn't the case last spring when the UMass women's crew team climbed the ladder to success, taking home the gold medal from the National Tournament in May.

For UMass, the road to the Nationals began after spring break with a boat of nine women out to conquer. Dual races against such teams as Trinity, Wesleyan, Mt. Holyoke and Navy were attacked and won throughout the season. The Minutewomen finished the season undefeated and headed to the New England Championships as the number one seed.

A combined effort from this experienced squad earned them the New England Championship with an invitation to the National Tournament, once again ranked number one.

Leading UMass were seniors Deanna Cooke (sixth seat), Allison Hurwitch (fourth seat), Jennifer Thompson (third seat), Amy Carroll (second seat) and Jennifer Lambert (bow).

Junior Heather Witaliz set the pace up front at the stroke position. Junior Kim Alhowik (seventh seat) and sophomores Roxanne Globis (fifth seat) and Jessica Fountas (coxswain) filled out the rest of the boat.

UMass approached its final goal when the squad traveled to Lake Quinsigamond in nearby Worcester, Mass., attempting to bring the University its very first National Championship in women's crew.

After battling through the first two heats, the UMass heavyweight boat captured the national title along with the gold medal in the final race. The University of Virginia and George Washington University finished behind the Minutewomen, earning the silver and bronze medals.

According to Cooke, who has since graduated and stayed on as the novice coach for UMass, the Minutewomen's overall success has a lot to do with team unity.

"Everyone had rowed together for at least two years," Cooke said. "We had a solid boat where everyone trusted each other."

The women's lightweight boat was also triumphant at the Nationals, winning a gold medal.

Fighting Irish embarrass Michigan, Texas A & M an utter embarassment

The echoes cheering her name have awoken.

There is no tarnished dome and Notre Dame is back. Back from the allegations set forth by a mudslinging book and back from the trash heap that all the so-called experts heaved them on last week when they survived a scare from lowly Northwestern and only beat the Wildcats 27-12.

BLINDSIDED
Sean Hayden on College Football

Twenty-seven seems to be a magical number for the Irish as that was all the Irish needed for a second week in a row, this time to polish off a Michigan team that was touted as a major force in the national championship run.

Irish quarterback Kevin McDougal left the doubters drooling and the alums with visions of Tony Rice and another national championship dancing in their heads after his performance on Saturday (208 yards passing, 83 yards rushing).

ND coach Lou Holtz pulled off his biggest upset since he and his Irish squad stormed New Orleans in 1992 and completely disassembled the more talented and highly-favored Florida Gators in the Sugar Bowl. Holtz proved that once again he is the best game-day coach in the country, bar none.

If you don't believe me, ask Tom Osborne. Or better yet, Jimmy Johnson. Steve Spurrier will suffice, as will Gary Moeller and his predecessor, Bo Schembechler.

Does anyone remember the last time the Irish entered a season ranked out of the Associated Press Top Ten because of an inexperienced quarterback who can't throw worth a lick but can run with the best of them?

1988. When was the last Irish national championship? 1988. Coincidence?

WARNING TO ATHLETIC DIRECTORS: DO NOT SCHEDULE FLORIDA STATE FOR YOUR SCHOOL'S HOMECOMING. You will be fired.

Can you believe these guys? They went into Clemson, where the only thing more important than football is the "Dukes of Hazzard" reruns and the distillation process and completely smoked the No. 21 team in the nation by a score of (those of you with a weak stomach, please look away) 57-0.

I love the athleticism of the Seminoles. No one can doubt it and no one can compare to it. Their Achilles' heel lies in the coaching.

Bobby Bowden will never win a national title even if the only two teams alive were his Seminoles and Slippery Rock College. The reason why: while he may be the best assayor of talent in the land, his teams are stupid.

How else can you explain players fielding punts in the end zone or giving up on plays because there's a flag on the field. Bowden molds talent, he doesn't coach it and that will kill him once again when he plays a well-coached, talented team like the Hurricanes of Miami.

Speaking of the Hurricanes, I really don't think they are the third-best team in college football. There's no way. As much as I dislike them, we share a common thread: a complete hatred of Boston College.

If they could have, Miami would have scored 100 points against the Eagles and the simple fact that they didn't leads me to believe that QB Frank Costa is not the second coming of Gino Torretta or Vinnie Testaverde and that the Hurricanes are lacking on the offensive side of the ball. He may be the second coming of Frank Perdue, but that remains to be seen.

The men of Troy have a new leader, too bad they

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 14

SPORTS NOTICE

STOCKBRIDGE SCHOOL ATHLETICS: Candidates for both the basketball and golf teams, there will be an important meeting Thursday, September 16th at 4 p.m. in 223 Boyden.

If you are unable to attend, contact Jack Leaman, 302 Mullins Center, or call 545-1301.

UMASS ATHLETES GAIN HONORS: Athletes Nicole Roberts (a sophomore on the women's soccer team), Rebecca Myers (a freshman on the women's soccer team), Hilary Rose (a freshman on the field hockey team) and Melissa Langevin (a freshman on the women's cross-country team) were all honored in the Atlantic 10 this past week.

Former UMass student on trial for murder conspiracy Page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Wednesday
September 15, 1993
84°
Volume CIII Issue 6
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Party goer struck by car

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

A night filled with "Back to School" celebrating ended with one UMass student injured and three others arrested after a fight at a bus stop on North Pleasant Street, near Phi Mu Delta fraternity early, in the morning on Sunday, Sept. 5.

According to reports, Jason Phillips, 22, of Melrose was hit by a car when Kevin Skeene, 22, was trying to flee from a fight to find police assistance. The fight resulted after a beer can was thrown at the passing car.

Witnesses reported that words were exchanged between the people in front of the fraternity and those in the cars. When it became heated, one of the passengers in the car allegedly threw the first punch and a fight began.

Accounts of the incident differ from that point. According to the Daily Hampshire Gazette, Skeene told Amherst police that he got into the car to get the police and mistakenly hit Phillips. Other students say Skeene intentionally hit Phillips by turning the car at him, and then took off.

According to what police told the Gazette, when Skeene returned to the scene with officers, 15 to 20 people started to damage the car by kicking and hitting it. The crowd also would not let the officers near Phillips, who was reportedly lying in a pool of blood.

More officers came to the scene and, with the two officers already present, helped the ambulance reach the injured student. Phillips was taken to Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in Northampton to be treated, and was then sent to the UMass Health Services.

Troy Ferragamo, Daniel Bretton and Kenneth

Turn to FIGHT, page 2

Look Ma, no feet...

GORDON FENWICK / COLLEGIAN
Christopher Hewhe spends a little extra curricular time playing hacky-sack outside the Fine Arts Center.

UMass professor accused of financial scam

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

AMHERST — A grand jury on Tuesday indicted a University of Massachusetts professor on a conflict-of-interest charge that resulted from a broad inquiry into alleged spending abuses at the Amherst campus.

The Hampshire County grand jury accused exercise science professor Frank I. Katch of a single count of violating conflict-of-interest law. The panel said he promoted a $168,000 purchase of equipment for the school from a Texas company he served as consultant.

"Public employees cannot serve two financial masters under conflict of interest laws," declared the state's attorney general, Scott Harshbarger, in announcing the indictment.

The case stems from wider allegations of misuse of trust funds, overbilling of travel expenses and a lack of oversight in sports programs at the campus. But Katch is the first and only person to face legal charges so far.

The state prosecutor's office was tight-lipped Tuesday about whether charges against anyone else might follow. "This particular indictment arises from one of a number of matters that were referred to the attorney general's office. I can't comment any more," said assistant attorney general John W. Van Lonkhuyzen.

Katch, 50, of Amherst, has worked as an exercise science professor at the campus since 1977. He stepped down as chairman of the department in 1990.

Prosecutors say their accusation stems from his role in helping to set up Body Shop Fitness Centers in two dormitories in 1988.

The indictment says he recommended the purchase of $168,000 in exercise equipment from Hydra-Fitness Industries, a division of Hydra-Gym Athletics in Belton, Texas, without competitive bidding. At the same time, he was earning payments of at least $200 a month as a technical consultant to the same company, in addition to reimbursement for attending meetings and trade shows, according to prosecutors. He allegedly failed to disclose his ties to the company.

If convicted, he could face up to two years in prison and a $3,000 fine.

Katch did not return phone calls Tuesday to his campus office and home. But his lawyer, Jonathan Souweine, issued a brief statement:

"The Commonwealth has chosen to seek and apparently has obtained a single count misdemeanor indictment charging Dr. Katch with a violation of the conflict-of-interest statute arising out of his well-known relationship with Hydra-Fitness Industries. None the less, we will attend

Turn to INDICTMENT, page 4

This space for rent

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
A special committee in Amherst hopes to clean up the posters like those covering this bus stop near the Peter Pan station. See story on page three.

UMass senior dies in accident

By MICHELLE BAYLISS
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON — A former University of Massachusetts student was struck and killed by a motor vehicle in a cornfield Sunday morning, according to a spokesperson from Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

Kari-Ann Hey, 23, of West Springfield was preparing for graduation this September as part of the class of 1993, according to University officials.

Hey was walking along a road near cornfields in the meadows section of Northampton late Saturday night with her housemate, David Smith, 18. Smith did not sustain serious injuries, according to Northampton police.

The man accused of running down Hey in a cornfield has been released on $1,000 bail after pleading innocent to vehicular homicide while drunk and leaving the scene of an accident.

Edwin Vazquez, of Springfield, pleaded innocent at his arraignment Monday in Northampton District Court.

Smith said the two heard a car coming and stepped into a cornfield to get out of the way when the car swerved into the field and struck them. Smith said the car returned and he flagged it down, but the driver

Turn to ACCIDENT, page 6

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors.....Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....
Jewish Affairs Editor.....
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....
Women's Issues Editor.....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

■ fight

continued from page 1

Holmes, all UMass students, were arrested for disorderly conduct. Skeene was charged with operating a vehicle after a license suspension.

Amherst police would not return Collegian phone calls for further information.

According to University officials, the incident is under investigation by both the interfraternity Council and the Office of Greek Affairs at this time.

The Office of Greek Affairs plans to have the report finished within seven to ten days.

Correction

The photo credit on the photograph of members of the UMass crew team on page 9 of yesterday's Collegian was incorrect. The photographer was Matt Kelly. The Collegian regrets the error.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, September 15

Service — Hillel House is holding services for Rosh Hashana and Kiddush at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Blood Drive — The UMass blood drive continues today in Room 101 of the Campus Center from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Thursday, September 16

Service — A Rosh Hashana service and Tashlich will be held today at 10 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Rosh Hashana service and Kiddush will be held in the S.U.B. at 7 p.m. The services are sponsored by Hillel House.

Blood Drive — The UMass blood drive continues today in Room 101 of the Campus Center from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Friday, September 17

Service — Hillel House will be holding services for Rosh Hashana at 10 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Police identify serial burglar

Suspect scares couple by walking out of their closet

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — Police believe that the man who walked out of Dan and Linda Wiggins' walk-in bedroom closet may be responsible for more than 100 North Shore burglaries.

An arrest warrant was issued Tuesday for Kenneth Testa, 27, of Marblehead, who is suspected of breaking into homes in Marblehead, Salem, Gloucester, Andover, Peabody and Swampscott. Most of the burglaries were in the last five weeks.

Marblehead Police Inspector Marion Keating said the burglaries have been linked by fingerprints, common break-in methods, and because the burglar would often steal a car from one burglary site and leave it at the next.

"It's a pretty neat circle," Keating said. The burglar who broke into the Wiggins' Marblehead home Monday night left behind a car stolen in an Andover burglary.

Linda Wiggins said she and her husband were asleep about 11:30 p.m. when she heard what she thought was the burglar scratching at the door. Before she could climb out of bed, she saw a man step out of her closet.

She fell back in bed. "The sheet went right over my head," she said.

The burglar momentarily went back in the closet, but as Wiggins elbowed her husband awake, the burglar stepped out and told them he had a gun pointed at them. Dan Wiggins turned on the light.

The burglar told Linda Wiggins to tie her husband with a phone cord. She ignored him.

"I was under the covers," she said. "What he couldn't see, he couldn't get."

The Wiggins never saw a gun, but they gave the burglar about $500 cash and car keys. The burglar climbed out of the window he had earlier climbed into. Dan Wiggins turned on an outside light and the burglar ran away.

Police thought they had cornered the burglar. Roadblocks were set up and a Salem police officer spotted the suspect on a bus from Marblehead. But the suspect jumped out a rear window and fled through back yards.

Keating said police had previously suspected Testa in the burglaries, but Monday's break-in provided them with their first positive identification.

"We have some concrete evidence as to what was believed anyway," Keating said. "We'll feel a whole lot better once we find him."

Linda Wiggins will feel better too. She said she spent a sleepless night after the burglary.

"You're just never prepared for that — to have someone invade your safe haven," she said.

Her dog, which she mistakenly thought had been scratching on her door, was actually sleeping on the other side of the house.

"He was being a horrible watchdog," she said.

Want to earn BIG money?

On a small investment?

It's staring you right in the face.

Collegian Advertising
545-3500
We reach students.
19,000 copies, every day!

The ArtCarved Double Savings EVENT

Save up to $100 when you purchase your College Ring
and
Get a Gift Certificate for up to $100 to use at the bookstore*
A Savings of up to $200!
OUR BIGGEST SALE OF THE YEAR
* Cannot be used for the purchase of Textbooks and Sale Items

ARTCARVED College Jewelry
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
Art Carved Representative Will Be Available September 13-17 9:30am-3:30pm

Attention UMass Students

The UMASS Athletic Department and the UMASS Football Team would like to thank the over 8,000 students who attended last Saturday's Home Football game to see the Minutemen Crush the Holy Cross Crusaders.

We would also like to thank the 75 student workers and Department of Public Safety all of whom helped make the game a tremendous success.

There are six home football games remaining on the following dates at Warren McGuirk Stadium:

Oct. 2	James Madison (Band Day)	1:00 pm
Oct. 9	Rhode Island	1:00 pm
Oct. 23	Delaware (Homecoming)	1:00 pm
Nov. 6	Richmond	12:30 pm
Nov. 13	William & May	12:30 pm
Nov. 20	New Hampshire	12:30 pm

Go UMass !!!

Local News

Town of Amherst looks to control postering

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Posters and signs like those plastered on the street post above have replaced other forms of advertising throughout the town of Amherst.

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

In the Amherst area, signs hanging from lampposts and other flat sufaces give testimony to the fact that many people prefer postering to advertise events rather than using the classified ads.

The Town Commercial Relations Committee, advisors to the Amherst Select Board, recently recommended Amherst provide specific areas to display posters.

"The purpose is to make the downtown area more attractive," Michael Greenebaum, chair of the Commercial Relations Committee, said.

The proposal is only in the experimental stages right now, taking the European idea of a kiosk and applying it to the downtown area. A kiosk is a small structure with flat faces for displaying purposes.

In Amherst, kiosks will probably be built around lamp posts and trees, Greenebaum said.

"Kiosks will replicate the amount of surface area [already used by posters] so no surface area is lost," Jonathan Tucker, assistant planner at the Amherst Planning Department, said.

Tucker said there will be no restrictions on the content of posters hung. The only requirements will be to sign and date each poster with a limit of two weeks hanging time for a poster.

Tucker said a regular schedule may be developed for poster removal, but the details are still unclear at this time.

"Most posters turn into waste paper," Tucker said.

Posters will be prohibited from being hung on surfaces other than kiosks once the plan is in effect.

Concerns around Amherst are that the town will censor posters if it provides an area to display posters.

An anonymous group, the People's Revolutionary Brigade to Free Amherst, is displaying brightly colored posters around town to protest the new proposal. They are calling for rebellion of any type of restrictions and are claiming Amherst will be violating the First Amendment.

One poster reads, "Resist the poster police. Rebel against this tyranny. Poster at will. Create your own poster (this is a contest — the prize is freedom.)"

"I would hope they could find more important issues," Greenebaum said in response to the Brigade. "The town will not engage in censorship."

Tucker said the Brigade is "wonderful" and he is happy to see such a response. "Posters are part of public dialogue of the town with itself." He said the kiosks will be trying to further accommodate the Brigade and people communicating through posters.

Amherst may use the local high school shop classes and vocational schools to make the kiosks out of wood or metal, Tucker said, because it would be expensive to have them made by a company.

It is unclear when the program will go into effect. Greenebaum said it may be seen within a couple of months while Tucker said it may be next year.

Campus groups sponsor projects

Honor societies and fraternities look to aid community

By NATHAN MARTIN
Collegian Correspondent

Bridge building, bicycle registration, career seminars and blood drives are all activities through which campus honor societies and service fraternities are quietly working to make a difference in the lives of other students and the community.

Members of the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity try to be anywhere volunteer help is needed, according to Francesco Del Priore, a senior who is the group's treasurer.

They are involved in activities like the Boltwood Project, which helps mentally and physically challenged boy and girl scouts; Las Vegas night, a fund raiser for a local charity; bicycle registration and Operation ID, aimed at discouraging the theft of bikes on campus. Del Priore said the chapter works hard to stay "interactive with the community and campus."

"We're doing service helping others and having a great time", Kevin Doyle, membership vice president, said.

A project being coordinated by Tau Beta Pi is scheduled to begin this week. The construction of a new pedestrian footbridge in Amherst will be undertaken by the engineering honor society, according to Pierre Tehrany, the organization's president. They've spent the summer designing a new span and recruiting help from local businesses, the town and the university, he said.

"Every one in the college is kicking in to help," Tehrany said.

Meanwhile, the accounting honor society is directing its attention more toward the needs of its members and their futures.

According to Beta Alpha Psi President Brenda Diluigi, the group sponsors six meetings each semester with large accounting firms that help to expose students to the professional world.

The focus of the meetings varies from recruiting and interviewing to recent developments in the field, said Diluigi, who considers it "a great professional organization."

Brian Croteau, a senior member of the organization, said he thinks it is a great opportunity for accounting majors to meet recruiters on an informal basis.

Beta Alpha Psi also stays active in the community through an annual service event, usually helping a homeless shelter, according to Diluigi.

LBGA welcomes in new semester

By JOSHUA BOYD
Collegian Correspondent

The first of many planned Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance info-socials were held last night in the Campus Center. There were refreshments served, and students were mingling to get to know each other before the meeting commenced.

Kelly Hayes, a senior women's studies major, was the mediator of the event.

Deven DeMarco, the social chairperson of the steering committee, said, "I was thrilled with the turnout. It is fantastic to have this many people involved with this new incarnation of the L.B.G.A.. The more people that are involved, the more we can do for them."

"I've been here for a while, and this meeting was great. I haven't seen this many people at a general meeting since fall of 1988. I'm really

Turn to LBGA, page 6

Tom Cruise, watch out!

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN

Lillian Castro, a undecided first year student, uses a bridge to shoot a difficult shot. Maybe she could try out for a role in The Color of Money Part II.

Job search is as easy as pressing a button

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Looking for a job? Thanks to the computer scientists over at Lederle Graduate Research Center, the search is right at your fingertips.

Dubbed "Star Jobs," or Strategic Technology Alliance to Restore Jobs, this computer search system is a product of a group of companies that met over a six to eight month period trying to find a way to offer a multitude of resources to people.

The system's data base, called Cortech, can provide the user with information about certain technology and information and 10,000 technology companies throughout the New England area and across the country.

Descriptions of technology available for licensing from federal laboratories and New England research universities will be added, as will the U.S. Department of Commerce's National Trade Data Bank.

The software that helps provide the STAR JOBS information called INQUERY, was developed through the National Center for Intelligent Information Retrieval, within the computer science department, by professor W. Bruce Croft.

According to W. Richards Adrion, chairman of the University of Massachusetts Computer Science Department, UMass took the lead with providing the system free to the public.

Right now, the computer science department is using data from a private company, UMass phones and modems to work with the system.

Ultimately, the system will be revised to provide up-to-date information to the users. It will also provide detailed information about New England companies.

Turn to JOBS, page 6

Trade Center trial treated with extra precaution

By LARRY NEUMEISTER
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The World Trade Center bombing trial got under way today as a judge reminded potential jurors that an indictment doesn't mean guilt.

"At this point, the indictment in this case is good for making paper airplanes," U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy told a group of about 50 jury candidates. He asked them to forget what they have heard about the case.

He spoke at the start of the quest to find 12 who will decide if four men conspired to set off a bomb in the second tallest buildings in the world.

Each defendant stood and nodded at the jury pool as he was introduced by the judge.

The judge said reporters would be banned from the room when especially sensitive questions are asked, but a transcript would be made public each day.

"Jurors are entitled to be relieved from abnormal pressure," said Duffy.

In preparation for the trial, barricades went up around the federal courthouse and the trade center itself.

In all, 5,000 jury candidates were selected, one of the largest groups ever assembled for a federal trial. It will probably take weeks to choose an anonymous, 12-member jury.

"I suspect that every potential juror we have either has a friend or a relative who works in that building," defense attorney Atiq Ahmed said.

In an unusual show of force, officers stood guard outside the courthouse, and barricades surrounded it. Blocks away, barricades also surrounded the trade center.

where the blast in an underground parking garage Feb. 26 killed six people and wounded more than 1,000.

Duffy dealt a blow to the defense Monday by refusing to create a questionnaire for jurors. He was to question the prospective jurors himself.

■ indictment

continued from page 1

to this energetically and proceed accordingly."

Many of the allegations have centered on another sports figure at the university, David Bischoff. He stepped down as dean of the School of Physical Education in July 1992, accusing his critics of "a witch hunt." He said he wanted to devote his energies to clearing his name.

The investigation first captured public attention when a panel of state legislators opened an inquiry spurred partly by questions raised by alumni angry over the resignation of football coach Jim Reid in January 1992. He was protesting cuts in football scholarships.

The legislative committee eventually made a series of recommendations for reform of spending practices, including tighter accounting of private trust funds and required bidding on purchases of $500 or more.

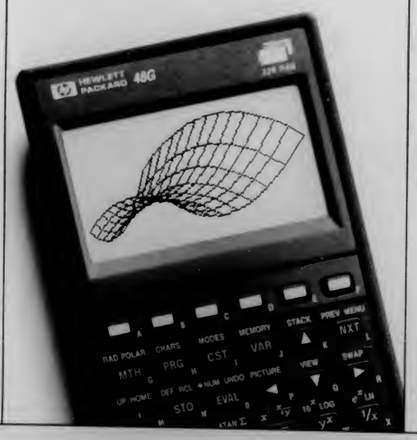
The university, on its own, has tightened the rules for travel reimbursements and bidding. The chancellor also took personal control over the athletic budget.

But school spokeswoman Karin Sherbin said Tuesday that campus officials would decline comment on the indictment. "Basically, when it comes to matters before the legal system, we don't comment," she said.

Witness testifies in murder trial

Ex-UMass student accused of ordering the slaying

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A gang member testified that he balked at shooting a 16-year-old Springfield boy who had made derogatory remarks about the signature beads worn by members of the Latin Kings gang.



Ismael Cintron, 18, told a Hampden Superior Court jury Monday that when he said "I can't go through with this," Hector Arriaga, 21, took the gun from his hand and fatally shot Arnaldo Esteras on a Springfield street last September.

Cintron, who said prosecutors have offered to allow him to plead to second-degree murder, was one of the first witnesses called at the first-degree murder trial of Arriaga of Hartford, Conn., and Alex Delgado, 21, of New Haven, Conn. Delgado is accused of being one of the gang members that ordered the slaying.

Delgado was a UMass student at the time of his arrest.

Arriaga's lawyer contended in his opening statement that Cintron fired the fatal shots and not his client.

The new 3-D graphing grade-making easy-learning fast-answering budget-pleasing headache-busting HP 48G

Check it out
The new HP 48G graphic calculator gives you a whole lot more for a whole lot less than you think.

Get more
- Push a button, choose from the pull-down menu, and fill in the blanks. Entering data is that easy.
- View 3-D graphs.
- Access over 300 built-in equations.
- Perform algebra and calculus operations on equations before entering values.
- Enter and see equations like they appear on paper.
- Work with different units of measure. The HP 48G will convert them for you. For example, enter inches, centimeters, yards, and feet, together in one equation — it'll convert them.

Get more ... for less
- Compare prices — the HP 48G fits your budget.

Special introductory offer*
When you buy an HP 48G or HP 48GX, you can get free software (plus games!) and a free cable for connecting to your desktop PC. Write programs for the HP 48 using your PC keyboard, or store HP 48 files and programs on your desktop PC.

Pick up a coupon at your college bookstore.

HEWLETT PACKARD

*Offer good while supplies last on purchases made from August 1, 1993 through October 31, 1993. See coupon for terms and conditions.
©Hewlett-Packard Company PG 12393B

RUSH
ΒΘΒ
The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days
8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine Starting at $1
Attendant available all day
326 College St. (Rt. 9)
Amherst • 253-5072

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE BEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS 9 A.M. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk-ins are Welcome

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

In your interest I present: In defense of 'Jim's Journal'

Seniors have already surrendered themselves to the futility of the debate. They know better.

Freshmen are only just being exposed to it and unfortunately, many of them are already formulating detrimental beliefs and depriving themselves of not only humor, but also positive reassurance. In your interest i present - In Defense of 'Jim's Journal.'

Side #1: Jim is funny.

Side #2: Jim is a waste of space.

Any astute UMass scholar has come to the realization that the seemingly mundane and trite words of Jim's Journal can be both amusing and beneficial.

Without delving into the analytical depths like those explored in a senior thesis, let me explain.

The premise of Jim's cartoon forum is simple - it is the daily diary of a completely average college kid (last name unknown, age and background sketchy). This is the point where confusion and misunderstanding can arise. Why is this cartoon syndicated?

The premise, as in The Tao of Pooh, is only a facade for an awareness to life. Those who have followed Jim for a few semesters have seen him gravitate from one series of events to the next. Few, if any of these, has he controlled. Jim's attitude - take it all in stride.

His first college job found Jim working in McDonald's bagging fries, a laborious and repetitive duty familiar to many a student in financial jeopardy. The job left Jim with recurring nightmares of bagging thousands of fries. Jim's response - it's all part of the new job process, back to work sans grudge.

Adam
GOULSTON

Jim's major duty in life is that of an observer, not a critic. While the activity of the impulsive and social Tony, the eternally optimistic Ruth, and the cynical Steve go on around Jim, he maintains a stance of unfazed mediocrity and blunt narration.

Readers of Jim past, or of his first anthology, I Went to College and it was Okay (recommended reading) will remember his study of English classics, which led him to the following evening watching television to stating, "It just didn't seem as interesting as usual."

Jim's main function is not to ponder and pontificate, but to be honest. Consider the following lines from one of last semester's strips.

"Today Steve asked me what I thought about musicians who only perform other people's music."

"I told him that I guess I never really thought about it."

In real life this may have been the making of a first class burn, but to Jim it's just the truth accompanied by a blank expression.

Another accurate representation of a college student in Jim's Journal is his roommate Tony. This is the Tony who declared in his first semester he would "party all night" and lived up to his promise by coming home drunk, passing out and vomiting. Jim wasn't upset or even sardonic.

This is the Tony who just recently boasted of his great new telemarketing job "with five-fifty an hour plus commission!." Shades of Telefund. Jim stood by blankly, not chiding, not chuckling.

Jim's philosophy of life can be summed up pretty simply - it exists. While not deliberately joking about his society, he communicates almost an enlightening sarcasm. This theory makes a daily perusal of his strip necessary. If you need a refresher course or background, pick up the first Jim book or the newer second edition, I Got a Job and it Wasn't That Bad.

Jim has no girlfriend, works a menial job, and generally has no life. So the next time you're feeling like a face in the crowd, think of Jim - he's doing okay.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

What defines harassment

As we begin the new school year, i call to your attention the status of our existing campus policies and grievance procedures dealing with harassment and discrimination.

The policies apply to all members of the Campus Community. Anyone who is uncertain about the meaning of these policies, or of the definitions of behavior that constitutes harassment and discrimination, should seek information immediateiy from one of the offices listed below. Professing ignorance about the types of behavior defined as harassment and discrimination is not acceptable.

David K.
SCOTT

We also need to discuss whether updating our policies is needed. For example, whiie there exists a clear policy prohibiting sexual harassment which applies to all faculty, staff and students, no specific policy or guidelines address consensual relationships between individuals.

When consensual relationships develop, we should be fully aware that these relationships may result in serious violations of our existing sexual harassment policy. Past sexual harassment cases have arisen when one person in a consensual relationship has sought to continue the relationship after the other has ended it.

Such cases are fraught with complications and we would be remiss if we did not take steps to make everyone aware of potential problems.

Other complications arise when two individuals in a consensual relationship are also in a position where one may pass judgement on the other, e.g. a faculty member with a student in that faculty member's class. In my view we have a responsibility to have clear policies for handling such situations.

Copies of these policies and grievance procedures are readily available form the offices which oversee them: the Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Office, the Dean of Students office and the Graduate School. I urge all members of the campus to become familiar with them. Other offices, such as the Ombuds Office, the Legal Services Center, and the Employee Assistance Program, can also provide valuable guidance and serve as important avenues of informal resolution.

While all these offices can help in resolving complaints of discrimination or discriminatory harassment, I also emphasize that the initial responsibility for resolution lies with the department heads and chairs, supervisors, administrators and staff closest to the complaint.

I do recognize that past budgets have limited the ability of the campus to publicize information about our policies and to provide education sessions about them. I hope we shall improve our performance in both areas during the coming year.

Finally, many of you may be aware of a proposal to revise our campus harassment policies and grievance procedure circulated last year by a committee coordinated by the Office of Human Relations. This proposal is under revision in response to comments by members of the campus. The revised proposal must now be brought before the appropriate governance bodies. it is my intention to do so this fall.

David K. Scott is Chancellor of UMass.

UMass is as good as you make it

For at least two semesters I have read Michael Morrissey's column. I have, as a matter of principle, never stooped to reply. I found his arguments so inflammatory and often illogical which suggests to me that he would never notice a word I said, and i had better things to do with my time than to get worked up over the silly ramblings of an egotistical malcontent.

However, his first column [Collegian Sept. 8] this year inspired me to make an exception. i am not writing to condemn or attack his distasteful babblings and the insults he tries to pass off as ideas. I believe most of us can see through his arguments well enough. But his latest effort allowed me to see through not only his arguments, but through Michael Morrissey himself.

He says he grew up on the South Shore, and all his friends went to Harvard, M.I.T., B.U. or B.C., but due to a "dropkick in the groin," he ended up here. Then he found his narrow little mind challenged by this incredible University, and he couldn't take it.

He just did not have the brains or the bucks to follow his South Shore buddies to their cushy destinations, and decided to vent the bitterness of his frustration on those around him.

There's a moral here, of sorts. UMass is what you make of it. It's not Harvard (thank God!), but it is as good as you make it. Come into it bitter and frustrated, and you'll just grow more so. But come in with an open mind and a willingness to accept the challenge and shape your own destiny. And rather than Michael Morrissey's nightmare, you'll come to know a UMass as excellent as the one I attend.

Jonathan Frantz Syivan

It's all yours for the taking

Lately it seems that there have been some common themes being presented for your perusal within these very hallowed pages we call the eds.

"The new students deserve better."

"The University is nothing but a giant morass of endless bureaucratic bull."

And my favorite, "Freshmen suck."

Well I'll tell you something kids, normally i'm pretty well known for my ascerbic and somewhat bitter mentality. I'm the type of guy who doesn't really care about the argument as to whether the glass is considered half-empty or half-full because regardless of your findings - you're still going to get testicular cancer from drinking it.

There usually ain't a whole lot of sunshine in my outlook and if it's at all possible to somehow find the evil, wretched, most psychologically disturbing angle - then I do.

It's a gift really.

But I find myself stepping out of that role today in order to speak to those whom these themes have been so directed at.

The freshmen. The plebes. The neophytes. The first years.

UMass is a treasure trove of adventures which is there for your taking. During the next four or five years of your lives you will have the opportunities to explore strange new universes never before dreamt by you.

There are more than 20,000 people here whom are so close in age, yet so different in origin and directions. Learn from them and hopefully they will do the same from you.

Get involved with something new and creative. Audition for a play with the wonderful people at The UMass Theatre Guild. Write a story for The Collegian. Take a class so far removed from your major that your parents will question your motives. Hit the airwaves with WMUA. Rush a Fraternity or Sorority. Go to an LBGA dance. Sleep with a professor (Heh, heh, heh).

There are so many positive things associated with this school and it would seem a shame to leave this place after four or five years without having explored some of them. There isn't enough time to do everything well but there's more than enough time to do a few things spectacularly.

The only limitations will be those which you place upon yourself.

Cutter Garcia is a Collegian columnist.

Cutter
GARCIA

Do you have something you want to say? Do you want to make your opinions heard? That's what the Editorial/Opinion page in the Collegian is for.

Write your letter and send it via Campus Mail, or deliver it to the Collegian: 113 Campus Center.

Remember to include your name and address, annonymous submissions may not be printed.

All letters or columns must be typed, double spaced, 50 to 70 words. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitsions.

■ accident

continued from page 1

sped off when he explained what had happened.

"He just took off," Smith said Monday. "He obviously knew he was in trouble so he decided to split. I wrote the license plate number down on my hand."

"It was total instinct," he said, adding that a pen was the only thing he had in his pocket.

State police arrested Vazquez on Interstate 91 a short time later.

Wire reports contributed to this story.

■ jobs

continued from page 3

This needs money.

The department has received $10,000 grants from NASA and another corporation and has a million dollar grant pending.

According to Adrion, the six New England states have agreed to put up money for the project, hoping the federal government will match the sum.

The response for the new system has "been pretty good," said Adrion. "A lot of information has been pouring in and we've been putting it into the system."

Star Jobs is up and running and is compatible with Macintosh and IBM systems. UMass students on campus can use their dial up ports that are available. Off-campus students and the public can use modems to hook up with the system.

WHOLESALE DEPOT

YOUR ONE STOP FOR COMPUTER SHOPPING!!

ALL ITEMS ARE EVERYDAY LOW WHOLESALE PRICES

Here's Just A Few Examples!

LEADING EDGE

999.97

486SLC 25MHZ Computer with Monitor

• 4MB Ram • 1K CACHE • 107 MB Hard Disc Drive • 3.5 & 5 1/4 K Floppy Disc Drive • 512x512x256 14" VGA Color Monitor • 1.2K Video Ram • Mouse • MS-DOS • MS Windows • MS Works for Windows • Virus Scan • Quicken for Windows • MS Productivity Pack

PANASONIC

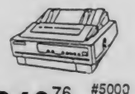
199.97 KXP-2023

Panasonic Dot Matrix Printer
24 PIN Letter Quality Printing
Quiet Printing

WESTERN DIGITAL

HARDDRIVES
212MB HD 269.97
255MB HD 299.97
340MB HD 369.97

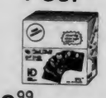
LEADING EDGE



1299.97

486SX-33 Computer with Monitor

• 4MB Ram • 170 MB Hard Drive • Dual Floppy Disk • Dos 6.0 • Windows



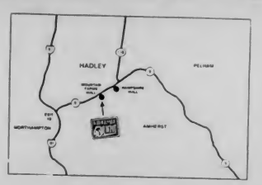
EPSON

249.76 #5000

Action Printer
*24 PIN Letter Quality Printer
*Scalable Fonts, Enhanced Graphics & Versatile Paper Handling

FUJI

19.99



20 Pk. 3.5" HD Floppy Disk

5 Assorted Rainbow Colors

COMPUTER ACCESSORIES

2 Pk. 15 oz. Canned Air	$8.76	Memorex Track Ball	$32.97
4 Way Data Switch	$14.97	Memorex Disc Box 2pk.	$7.99
Memorex Printer Stand	$7.98	Paris 9.5" X 11" 2500 Sheet Computer Paper	$11.99
Memorex Mouse Plus	$19.97	Power Control Center	$18.97
Memorex Anti-Glare Filter	$27.97	Computer Keyboard Drawer	$19.98

DISCOVER THE CONVENIENCE OF EVERYDAY LOW WHOLESALE PRICES, ONE STOP SHOPPING AND DISCOVER MasterCard VISA

Mountain Farms Mall
Route 9
Hadley, MA

WHOLESALE DEPOT Free Week Pass

Name: _____

Address: _____

Warehouse Hours:
Mon.-Fri. 10:00AM-9:00PM
Saturday 9:00AM-9:00PM
Sunday 10:00AM-6:00PM

Special Hours for Business Members Only:
Mon.-Fri. 9:00AM-10:00AM

Pass Users pay 5% above posted Wholesale prices.

#0190000023

■ LBGA

continued from page 3

hopeful that this will be a great year for the queers on campus," said Liz Weuhrmann, an undergraduate.

After many upcoming LBGA social events and meetings were announced by various chairpersons of the steering committee, the large number of students introduced themselves.

One of the projects the LBGA offers to students is the One In Ten project, in which anyone interested can help the LBGA community one out of any ten days, in any way possible. Students who participate will also be offered reduced admission to LBGA social events.

Another project the LBGA sponsors is the Two in Twenty program where students who are gay, lesbian, bisexual or heterosexual allies, can live safely on their own floor in the Mary Lyons Residence Hall.

A service offerred to lesbian and bisexual women is the Lesbian/Bisexual Women's Union, open to anyone, located on the second floor of the Student Union.

A unidentified student will be heading the L.B.W.U. and she said she is "very interested in creating a safe space for the lesbian, bisexual and gay community of the University of Massachusetts."

Newcomers, like Darcey, a freshman with an undecided major, said she hopes to be associated with the rap groups, general social discussion groups set up by the L.B.G.A., and other features of the Alliance and hopes to get more involved in her future years at the University.

"At orientation, there was alot of talk about diversity pertaining to race, and different viewpoints, but one thing that I didn't hear about was diversity pertaining to sexual orientation, Darcey said. "I wish the people coming to this school ahd been as prepared for dealing with people of different sexual orientation.

Matt Malone, a senior history major, said "the mission of the L.B.G.A. is to work to create a safer space and environment for gay, lesbian and bisexual students at UMass, and that's accomplished primarily through social programming and political action."

Ward Henline, a senior zoology major, and the diversity chair of the L.B.G.A., summed the whole meeting up, and invited future participants by saying that the lesbian, bisexual and gay community at UMass is diverse, speaking of religion, color, etc. and that's what his position is: to express the diversity of the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay community at the University.

Contaminated soil to be sifted through

By JOHN CURRAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Thousands of miles from the South Pacific, a high-tech company is sifting through tons of plutonium-contaminated soil left over from a botched missile test more than 30 years ago on a tropical island.

Thermo Analytical Systems Inc., a subsidiary of Waltham, Mass.,-based Thermo Electron Corp., has been awarded a two-year, $2.4 million contract to remove plutonium and americium from tiny Johnston Island, 800 miles southwest of Honolulu, officials said Tuesday.

In 1962, an atomic missile that was to be detonated at high altitude burned up on the launch pad, spraying radioactive material on the island's coral sands.

The island, which has been used by the U.S. Navy for military maneuvers dating to World War II, is about one mile wide and one and a half miles long. It was once used to store the toxic defoliant Agent Orange and is now also used by the Army to destroy chemical weapons.

Thermo Analytical, which won a $4.4 million contract for the work in 1990, has cleaned 20,000 cubic yards of soil, or enough to bury a football field almost four feet in dirt, said vice president Nels Johnson.

The new contract, awarded by Defense Nuclear Agency in Alexandria, Va., was announced Tuesday. It is the latest component of a project that will take three more years and $15 million more, according to the agency.

The company's open-air facility, which employs about 10 people, uses conventional conveyor belts equipped with radiation detectors to sort out contaminated sand, Johnson said.

"The key thing we've done is we're now able to clean up these extremely low concentrations of plutonium and americium. Normally, it would take lab analysis to detect these. We don't have to take a sample, run it to the lab and take weeks to get the results back," Johnson said.

About 100,000 cubic yards must still be cleaned, he said.

Arts & Living

FAC celebrates Indian music, dance

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

The Jhaveri Sisters Manipuri Dance Troupe and Nrityashree will will perform Thursday, Sept. 16 at Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m.

What do the Jhaveri Sisters Manipuri Dance Troupe and Nrityashree have in common? They are the two internationally renowned Indian classical dance companies opening the Fine Arts Center's performing arts season and its three-month-long celebration of South Asian culture.

The Jhaveri Sisters have become synonymous with Manipuri dancing, having dedicated their lives to the perpetuation of it under the guidance of Guru Bipin Singh, dancer, choreographer, scholar and teacher.

The movement vocabulary of Manipuri dance is extremely complex. Each part of the body plays a role: angle of the torso, gaze of the eyes, hand gestures, and rhythmic foot movements all carry specific meanings.

The Jhaveri Sisters and their teacher, Guru Bipin Singh, have been universally credited with having achieved the delicate task of bringing classical and traditional Manipuri dance from the temple to the theater without polluting its original form and spirit. Because of this they draw huge crowds in their native country.

The dance dramas of Nrityashree interpret narrative and descriptive themes from Indian literature. They are based on the technique of Bharata Natyam and extended in an applied form to dance dramas. At the center of Nrityashree is the Chandrasekhar family, husband and wife C.V. and Jaya, and daughters Chitra and Manjari. Choreographer C.V. Chandasekhar has been performing and teaching for 40 years, and he composes the music for most of his work. This is the group's first U.S. tour.

Because there are two types of dancing and information about them is difficult to find, there will be a free pre-concert lecture about these special dance styles presented by local afficionado, Ranjanaa Devi, at 7 p.m.

At 6 p.m., the South Asian Club and the Indian Palace will provide dinner for $6 per person outside Bowker Auditorium, on the lawn.

Sanjay Jain, a junior marketing major and president of the South Asian Club, explains the foods being served at the dinner.

"Aloo chole is a vegetarian dish and it contains potatoes and peas," Jain said. "There will also be Samosa, a type of spring roll. The meat entree is similar to curry chicken, Jalfrazi, and for dessert there will be Rasmalai."

Jain explains the South Asian Club's interest in this event, "Hopefully this year the club's event listing will be changing from what it has been in past years, when it functioned as more of a social group," Jain said. "This year we will sponsor guest speakers, and do more activities with the Asian-American Student Association and ALANA. We hope to be more political and educational, and still be social."

The South Asian Club has representatives from five countries among its members, including India.

Turn to DANCE, page 8

Come and Hear

BILL COSBY

Speaking on Multiculturalism & Diversity
in Higher Education

WHEN: Tuesday, September 28th, 8:00PM
WHERE: William D. Mullins Center, UMASS Amherst
ADMISSION: Free of Charge

For Ticket Information, Call: 545-0505
Tickets Available at the MULLINS BOX OFFICE
(Limit 4/Person)

■ dance

continued from page 7

Pakistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka and Nepal. Jain encourages anyone who is interested to join them. More information about the South Asian Club can be obtained in the Student Activities Office.

Other events included in the three-month celebration of South Asian culture are several exhibits of traditional and contemporary Indian art at the Student Union Gallery and Augusta Savage Gallery, beginning Sept. 16 and Sept. 20 respectively.

Also included is a Festival of Lights celebration in the Student Union Ballroom, Saturday Oct. 24, beginning at noon, and a performance of Sufi Muslim music from Pakistan by Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan on Friday, Nov. 19, in the FAC Concert Hall.

Tickets for the Jhaveri Sisters and Nrityashree start at $13 with half price tickets for Five College students, and $8 tickets for children 16 and under. The show begins at 8 p.m., Sept. 16. Call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545-2511 for more information concerning these events.

Soak up some local culture
write for Collegian Arts
talk to Lisa or Emily
113 Campus Center

EXOTIC FISH & PET WORLD
49 Russell St., Rt. 9
Hadley - At the Village Barn Shops
FRESH WATER FISH 586-3362
Hundreds of Types In Stock
MARINE FISH
The Areas Largest Selection
A FULL SELECTION OF QUALITY DRY GOODS & SUPPLIES FOR YOUR PET ... AT EXCELLENT PRICES!
REPTILES
A Separate Room Full - Don't Miss Seeing Our Own 14' Python!
SMALL ANIMALS & BIRDS
From Parakeets to The Unusual - Some Already Tame!
OPEN SAT, SUN, MON: 10-6
TUES-FRI: 10-9

BIG GUY LIQUORS
New in Town
25 Montague Rd.
North Amherst Rt 63
COME SEE THE BIG GUY
FULL LINE OF LIQUORS & WINES
ALL TYPES OF BEER
Next to Superior Pizza, Cumberland Farms, Brooks Discount, & Post Office.
One Minute From Puffton & Brandywine.
549-3555 BEER BALLS

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
TREK USA MOUNTAIN BIKES
ON SALE!
Trek 7000 was $700.00 now $629.95
Trek 930 was $539.95 now $499.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
EST 1971
319 Pleasant St.
Northampton, MA
586-3810
800-464-3810
TREK USA

UNITED WE STAND, AMERICA
March for National Unity

A Human Rights march commemorating the 30th anniversary of the September 15, 1963 Birmingham church bombing

On September 15, 1963, the Sixteenth St. Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama was bombed by the Ku Klux Klan, killing four young African-American girls. 30 years later, in 1993, an office of the NAACP was bombed in Sacramento, California, and another bomb plot was uncovered targeting a Los Angeles Church. Over a year has passed since the 1992 Los Angeles Riots, and the trial of truck driver Reginald Denny, who was severely beaten during the riots, is still under way at this time.

Our nation is headed towards a severe crisis not seen in over a generation. It is unmistakably clear that we must come together as a nation lest we follow the same tragedy of the civil war and ethnic cleansing in Bosnia. Over a century ago America was nearly permanently dissolved and destroyed in her own Civil War which claimed over 600,000 lives. Now, in the twentieth century, the color line continues to divide our country. We must fight to end racism NOW, along with all other forms of related oppressions and bigotry. Please join us in our struggle for human rights as we pay our respects to the four young martyrs who fell victim to a nation divided against itself. Let us all commit ourselves to the rebuilding of a new, united America.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1993

Assemble at the Amherst Town Common at 10:00 a.m.
March up North Pleasant St. to UMass at 11:00 a.m.
Rally and memorial on the Student Union Steps at 12:00 noon

SPONSORED BY THE AMERICAN FREEDOM FOUNDATION

To the Campus Community:

September 15, marks the 30th anniversary of the bombing of the Sixteenth St. Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama. A group of students on the campus and in the local community have organized a human rights march in the memory of the four young African-American women killed in that bombing, and to encourage all of us to commit ourselves to building a united and just country. The March will begin at the Amherst Town Common at 10:00 a.m. and will finish with a rally on the Student noon Steps at noon.

We support the goals of this event and plan to participate. We urge all students, faculty and staff to attend all or part of this event as their schedules permit. We look forward to seeing you there.

Sincerely,

Thomas B. Robinson
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

Glen Gordon
Provost

David K. Scott
Chancellor

Inside the University Gallery: It's a dog's life

By BECKY MALONEY
Collegian Correspondent

Elliott Erwitt: To The Dogs, an exhibit at the University Gallery at the University of Massachusetts, captures the essence of why dogs have for years been referred to as "man's best friend."

One hundred photographs taken over a 45-year time span immortalize tender moments between dogs and humans all over the world. These images are familiar to anyone who owns a dog, whether it's by the seaside playing fetch or romping around in an open field.

Again, dog owners will connect with the way Erwitt captures the way dogs can, at times, seem understanding and compassionate. In many of the photographs, the canines are gazing at humans as though questioning the peculiarities of our behavior.

Humor is also very prevalent in this series. All of the various and obvious ways dogs fit into our lives are humorous in their own right. Also on display is a family portrait where the dog is sitting on a woman's lap as though it is a small child.

In another photo, taken in a diner, a dog is sitting in the company of three old men as though he is contributing to their breakfast conversation.

The most striking exhibit is a series of three photographs. Taken at a grave sight, the first photo portrays an older gentleman paying his respects to a loved one while the dog sits quietly at his side. In the second photo, the man steps forward to place a bouquet of flowers on the grave, and the dog remains still and respectfully quiet. The man is absent in the third photograph, however the dog has rolled over to play dead. Not only is this last shot comical, but it also exemplifies the way dogs so often seem to sympathize and feel for humans.

It is the human condition in all its aspects which drives Erwitt to continue his work. In a 1981 interview conducted by Barbaralee Diamondstein, Erwitt said, "It's always the same thing; subject doesn't really matter. It's always the human condition and nothing else, really, expressed in whatever way, whether through dogs... through anything," he said.

"That's what you're dealing with; you're dealing with people and what they think and what they're like, their emotional side."

The exhibit is on view in the University Gallery now through Oct. 22. The gallery is located on the lower level of the Fine Arts Center, and is open to the public Tuesday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

COURTESY UNIVERSITY GALLERY
Elliott Erwitt's "Paris" (1989)

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!
No. 2 No. 2
NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR
1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
Charlie's tavern
AMHERST, MASS.
since 1978
This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95
Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

EVERY WEDNESDAY
SETTIE
All Menu Nachos
Only $2
9:30 PM - 10:30 PM
THE PUB
CELEBRATES 25 YEARS 1968 • 1993
IN·AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

Nobody Makes You SWEAT Like We Do!
• Nautilus
• Free Weights
• Aerobics Classes
• Step Classes
• Stairmasters
• Lifecycles
• Recumbant Bikes
• Crossrobics
• Quinton Treadmill
• Rowing Machine
• Saunas
• Student Discounts
Northampton Nautilus
216 N. King St. • Northampton
584-4975
Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm
Sat. 8am-5pm • Sun. 9am-4pm

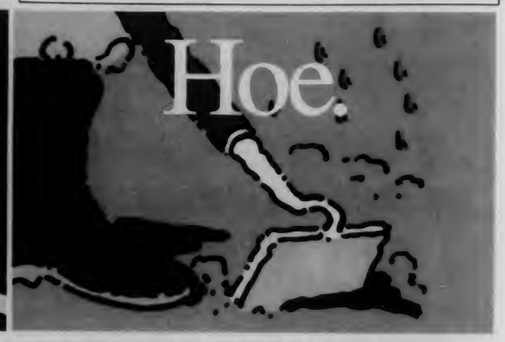
Student hurt in bike accident

Last Friday afternoon an accident involving a UMass student occurred at the access road leading into Baker Residence Hall.

At 4 p.m. a vehicle was travelling west on Clark Hill Road when it was struck by a bicycle ridden by Paul Batty, a 20-year-old living in the Butterfield Residence Hall.

The car had been making a turn into the access road at the time of the accident.

The identity of the driver of the car is unknown at this time.



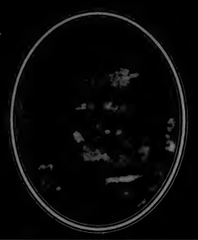
Batty was taken to the University Health Center and treated for minor injuries. He was later released.

No arrests have been made in connection with the accident.

— TRACY MONAHAN

News Comics Horoscope
Lunch Arts Opinion
Crosswords
Sports
Everybody reads us.

Dig into some hearty German fare. Or get the dirt on the latest in agriculture. At The Big E. See The US SPACE CAMP® EXPO. The Circus World Museum Exhibit, sponsored by Big Y SuperMarkets. The Big E Circus, under the Big Top!, sponsored by Coca-Cola. The Hofbrauhaus Alpine Festival. Historic Storrowton Village. And stars like Neil Sedaka on the Miller Genuine Draft Stage. For more info, call (413) 737-BIG E.



Just two of the 4,253 things to do at Sept. 15-26, W. Springfield, MA THE BIG E

DENISE McNAIR 1949-1963

CYNTHIA WESLEY 1949-1963

IN MEMORY OF FOUR YOUNG HEROINES

CAROLE ROBERTSON 1949-1963

ADDIE MAE COLLINS 1952-1963

DECEASED SEPTEMBER 15, 1963

Heads up

SARAH JOHNSON / COLLEGIAN

An unidentified group of students heat up the basketball courts in Upper Central.

Convicts to be expelled

Bill will allow for disciplinary action

By EVE EPSTEIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Principals would be allowed to suspend students charged with a crime off school grounds and expel them once they were convicted-dunder legislation that received a favorable committee vote Tuesday.

Under current law, school officials can only take disciplinary action against students for violations which occur on school property or during school sponsored events.

The problem has come up in school districts where students either charged or convicted of crimes have been allowed to return to the classroom.

A Billerica student convicted of manslaughter earlier this year was allowed by court order to attend Shawsheen Valley Vocational High School until his sentencing.

More recently, a Wakefield senior high school student who was charged with rape was allowed back into the same school as his alleged victim, a sophomore who said she ran into the boy in the hallway.

Gov. William F. Weld filed legislation last April to address the problem. The measure was rewritten and approved by the Education Committee Tuesday.

The measure would allow a principal to suspend a student charged with a felony, or expel one convicted of a felony if "student's continued presence in school would have a substantial detrimental effect on the general welfare of the school." The student could appeal a suspension or expulsion to the superintendent.

Rep. Daniel Ranieri, D-Bellingham, tried to add a further appeal to the school committee, which is made up of elected officials responsible for local schools.

But Sen. Arthur Chase, R-Worcester, a former school committee member, argued the change would make suspension decision "too political" and could result in committee members pressuring principals to reverse their decision.

Committee Co-Chairman Rep. Mark Roosevelt, D-Boston, said the problem of students returning to school after they have been charged with a crime may extend beyond the cases that have received publicity in news reports.

"We wanted to do this right now at the beginning of the school year to deal with a crisis before a crisis occurs," said Roosevelt, a likely Democratic candidate for governor.

When he filed the bill in April, Weld said allowing students to return to school after they have been charged with a crime sends the wrong message.

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst Division of Continuing Education Goodell Building 545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湖園南湖

The Best Chinese Buffet

MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11a.m.-3p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10- $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3p.m.-$3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

"Gimme a job... Please?"

You'll have to do better than that.
Offer them experience. Write for the Collegian.
113 Campus Center • 545-0719

THE FIVE COLLEGE PROGRAM IN WORLD PEACE & WORLD SECURITY STUDIES
presents:
"CLINTON ADMINISTRATION AND GLOBAL CRISES: RUSSIA, BOSNIA, IRAQ"

A Five College Faculty Panel

Wednesday, September 15th • 7:30PM

Converse Hall, Amherst College

This event is free, open to the public, and wheelchair accessible. Sign interpreting is available with two weeks notice. For more information call PAWSS at 549-4600 ext. 519

The Place

WALKING Co-Ed FLEX Co-Ed DISTANCE
FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539

The Place

The only way out

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN

The passageway beneath Tobin Hall, center of the psychology department, proves to be as complex and puzzling as a Freudian ink blot test.

Abortion coverage questioned, Clinton health plan criticized

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's health plan includes abortion as a standard benefit, but groups on both sides of the abortion debate say the White House has been purposely stingy with details in a bid to limit any political fallout.

The 240-page draft of the Clinton health plan puts "pregnancy-related services" on the list of standard benefits every plan would have to provide. Those services presumably would include abortion, even though the document doesn't spell it out.

Yet, abortion rights advocates say they're worried about the president's commitment. They cite the lack of detail and comments by White House officials playing down the impact of abortion's inclusion and suggesting that Clinton wouldn't squawk if Congress takes abortion out of the package.

"They're trying in every way to be vague ... to avoid controversy," said Kate Michelman of the National Abortions Right League. "It's important that the president be clear and unambiguous."

Anti-abortion forces also contend the White House is trying to straddle the fence to minimize any political damage from the president's stand on the emotional issue.

"We think they're trying to throw people off the scent with this doublespeak," said Doug Johnson of the National Right to Life Committee.

At issue are a couple of different points White House officials have made on the issue:

• Clinton aides have said privately the president likely would accept a plan that excluded abortion coverage, or at least left it up to the states, if that were the price of getting it through Congress.

• An unidentified White House aide said last week the plan only maintains "the status quo" and individual health plans still would get to decide whether to include abortion or make it an elective procedure. This aide said the Clinton plan would be "status quo" because many private insurers already offer abortion coverage.

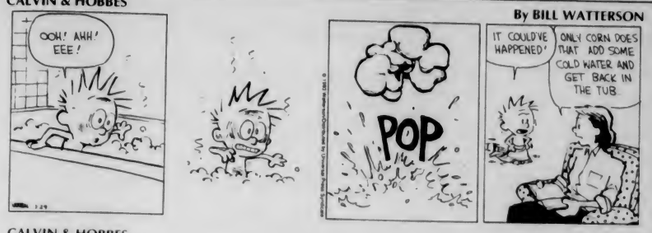
Letting individual plans decide is unacceptable and contradicts the very idea of a standard set of benefits, abortion rights supporters said.

"I'm certainly not going to work for a plan that takes women backwards," said Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. She said if abortion drops out of the package, it would be a loss for women who now have abortion coverage through their private insurance.

Meanwhile, anti-abortion forces dispute the idea of "status quo," noting that the Clinton plan would in fact be an expansion because all health plans — including tax-subsidized ones for the uninsured — would have to start providing abortion coverage.

FOR 26 WAYS to help SAVE the EARTH
CALL 1-800-488-8887.
Ad Council
A Public Service of This Publication

GREAT BURGERS HOT DOGS SHAKES DRAGON FRIES
CHICKEN FINGERS FISH ONION RINGS FLOATS
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
QUARTER POUND BURGERS
100 % FRESH LEAN GROUND BEEF
ROUTE 9 HAMPSHIRE MALL RAIL TRAIL
PETE'S on the Rail Trail the MECCA of the Bike Path
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY
FRENCH FRIES PHILLY STEAKS GRINDERS
FRIED CLAMS SOFT SERVE SUNDAES FROZEN YOGURT



USED COMPUTERS
Available Due To Corporate Downsizing
IBM Brand
Model AT 286 2MB Ram, 52MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $550
Model AT 286 1MB Ram, 20MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $395
Model XT 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $310
Model 3270 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $275
Rentals, Printers Available
CALL 253-7510

ARE YOU A CARTOONIST?
THE EDITORIAL PAGE IS LOOKING FOR EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS.
CONTACT E.C. THOMAS AT THE COLLEGIAN

Mike's Westview Cafe
Mike's Westview
Drink Special BUD Dry Bottles $1.25
Wednesday Night is Guest Bartender Night
This Weeks Guest Bartender is:
Mike Georges
YOU COULD WIN
$25 GIFT CERTIFICATE TO MIKE'S • $15 GIFT CERTIFICATE TO BIG GUY LIQUORS
LARGE PIZZA FROM PINOCCHIOS • 2 WEEK MEMBERSHIP TO THE GYM
KEEP YOUR TIPS
Wednesday Night is BUD Night
BUSCH PITCHERS $4.25
BUD & BUD LIGHT PITCHERS $5.25
COME IN AND WIN FREE CONCERT TICKETS TO LENNY KRAVITZ
FREE HATS & BUD BOOM BOX T-SHIRTS

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
AEROBICS: Funk, REEBOK STEP, Hi/Low, Boxercise, Yoga
STRENGTH: Keiser Air Power, NAUTILUS, Olympic weights, GRAVITRON, The Treadwall
CARDIO: STAIRMASTERS, LifeCycles • LifeRower, Treadmills • BioCycles, Climb Max • NordicTrack, TrueClimb • VersaClimber
SEMESTER SPECIAL
$139 four months
Amherst Athletic Club 460 West St. South Amherst 256-0080

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

THE POND — By JEREMY THORPE

THE POND — By JEREMY THORPE

PRICE — By PRICE VAN RAY

PRICE — By PRICE VAN RAY

THE FAR SIDE — By GARY LARSON

Gus Ferguson: Recipient of the first brain bypass operation.

Quote of the Day

"There is absolutely no justification for that show being on the air."
– Professor Vincent Bevilacqua, after watching an episode of 'Beavis and Butt-head' for the first time

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Shifting events call her turn looking. You and your co-workers' dedication saves the day. Happiness will be gained by resolving a difference of opinion with mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Patience is a cardinal virtue now. An important decision or project might not fly unless you first tap expert minds. No problem is too big when you solicit support. Stay on course.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic plans blossom, thanks to your vision and the resources at your disposal. A new, more attractive offer will be tendered. If you have not already joined the computer generation, do so.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep your feet on solid ground. Insufficient information may cause delays or make overtime necessary. Trying to do everything alone is not nearly as effective as coordination with other people.

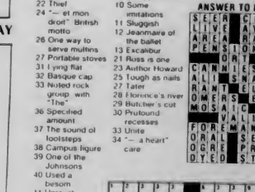
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Information received today becomes powerful in your hands. Your confidence shows in phone calls and communiques, creating lucky outcomes. Careful attention to detail pays off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Being honest with a pal or group bridges a gap. Serious work left out anymore. You are admired and can win new friends. Reach out to people who share your interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Funding, taxes or information is only a phone call or letter away. When you explain how good your plan is for all concerned, it will be easy to rally support. Emphasize teamwork.

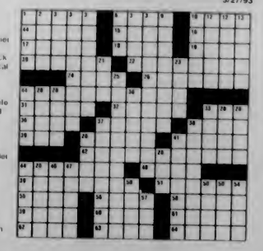
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your quick thinking pays off when you grasp the true nature of an affair. Some amends and changes can be made and a fresh start begun. A teen-ager shares a confidence. Be discreet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Jan. 19): Decision-making is not a loss of the common. Before committing yourself by word or pen, review where you are going — and where you have been. Learn more about an ancient culture.



CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Loving words warm a family member's heart. You have a brilliant idea to act on. Innovative research and planning get a special project on the ground.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Part of a sandal
6 Wearing boots
10 Cedar and cypress
14 Island in the Caribbean
15 Goddess of youth
16 Once more
17 Chemist Pauling
18 Sharp bark
19 Kin of lotto
20 Spires
22 Thief
24 "— et mon droit" British motto
26 One way to serve muffins
27 Portable stoves
31 Lying flat
32 Basque cap
33 Noted rock group with "The"
36 Specified amount
37 The sound of footsteps
38 Campus figure
39 One of the Johnsons
40 Used a broom
41 Unravel
42 Tenant
44 Bit in a higher standing
48 Type of truck
49 Ecclesiastical headwear
51 Paulette's location
55 Geraint's wife
56 Wading bird
58 Legitimate
59 Village in Africa
60 O'Neill's "Desire Under the —"
61 Hole
62 19th cen. American engineer/inventor
63 Branch of a Scottish clan
64 Lou Grant in the flesh

DOWN
1 Room in a casa
2 Spruce
3 Character in an old alphabet
4 Well-supplied
5 Hobby or sport
6 Draw back
7 Dickens "— umble clerk"
8 Cancelled
9 Disapproved of
10 Some imitations
11 Sluggish
12 Jeanmaire of the ballet
13 Excalibur
21 Russ is one
23 Author Howard
25 Tough as nails
27 Tater
28 Florence's river
29 Butcher's cut
30 Phutbound recesses
33 Unite
34 "— a heart" care
35 Oddball
37 A roaring period
38 Attractions at Marine World
40 Part of a chair
41 African country in the news
43 Simple shelter
44 Unpleasantly plump
45 Western mountain range
46 Group of three
47 Foxx and namesakes
50 Knucklehead
52 Small, saintly image
53 Branch on an antler
54 Roman road
57 Fast plane

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

5/27/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Sean Hayden
Photo Technician ..... Matt Simoneau
Production Supervisor ..... Jim Ganley
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski
Michael Harris

MENU

LUNCH
Hamburger
Tuna Melt

BASICS LUNCH
Oat Burger
Tuna Melt

DINNER
Shells & Cheese Sauce
Mandarin Chicken

BASICS DINNER
Shells & Cheese Sauce
Mandarin Chicken

Peace in Middle East

Israel negotiates treaty with Jordan

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The historic Israeli-PLO accord bore further fruits of peace Tuesday as Jordan and Israel signed a framework for negotiations and Morocco moved toward formal recognition of the Jewish state. Yasser Arafat was warmly received in Congress.

"We will continue now rapidly to break down the barriers between Israel and other nations," said President Clinton.

Jordan and Israel signed an "Agenda for Peace" at a State Department ceremony. The agreement lays out a framework for future negotiations.

Ambassador Fayez Tarawneh, who signed for Jordan, said he hoped it would establish an agenda for discussions and lead to "a comprehensive peace that will transform the lives of all our peoples."

The pact could lead to settlement of the border between the two countries and launch joint efforts to harness water resources, protect the environment and develop the Dead Sea region.

Negotiations would seek a "mutual commitment not to threaten each other by any use of force" or terrorism.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was in Morocco for a surprise meeting with King Hassan II. The meeting was expected to lead diplomatic relations.

Rabin said it would not happen instantly. "But the fact that from Washington we are coming to Rabat and are meeting with the king perhaps is another step forward in establishing relations," he said.

In Washington, a senior official said Secretary of State Warren Christopher had sent letters to some 10 U.S. embassies in Europe, the Middle East and Asia, suggesting the host governments "provide political and financial support" to the Palestinians.

The official said appeals had earlier been made to the European Community, Japan, Saudi Arabia and other Persian Gulf states.

Arafat said he was not ready to shuck his military uniform. He was clearly relishing a new Washington role of good-natured statesman.

"I am not a chameleon," Arafat said, proudly asserting he still was commander-in-chief of a Palestinian army.

He said at a news conference that when Palestinians get a state and control over East Jerusalem, Jews would be welcome to keep living there.

Arafat met with Senate leaders who promised to review U.S. laws that bar financial assistance to the PLO because of its long history of terrorism against Israelis and Americans.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said Congress and the Clinton administration would pursue "the best and most appropriate way" to further the peace process.

■ Volleyball

continued from page 16

The rest of the team's eight players are freshmen. This means that these women will be working together for a number of years and will get a feel for the game on the collegiate level together.

While it was tough for Kenny to recruit players because she was only hired in July, she said the team is very fortunate with the kids on the squad for this season.

"We have a good nucleus of players," said Kenny. "It says a lot about UMass and the type of kid that comes here."

UMass' season opener was this past weekend at a Connecticut tournament where the team picked up its first win, defeating Central Connecticut. The Minutewomen also won a set against the powerful University of Connecticut team, but dropped the match 3-1. UMass dropped its other match 3-0 to Hartford.

Some standouts include Dionne Nash, a powerful lefty hitter with 30 kills who Kenny describes as "the most athletic individual on the team." After one year of collegiate training, Sky is, according to Kenny, the "most court wise player."

With Cass Anderson leading the team as a setter and the young talent behind her, Nash said UMass is getting better

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

The Collegian.
545-3500.
Call Us!

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
HIRING NOW FOR EVENING AND WEEKEND HOURS
NO SELLING INVOLVED
Interested part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Monday-Friday 9am-5pm, 5pm-10pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-7pm, Monday-Friday, (413) 586-8635.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.
Telephone Research Center
Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9
Hadley, MA 01035.
An Equal Opportunity Employer

BIG E
THE BIG E
EXPRESS
WEEKEND
SHUTTLE
Now Includes Service from
HOLYOKE MALL at INGLESIDE
Every Hour on the Hour Beginning at 8:00AM.
$8 – Includes shuttle and Big E admission.
$2 – Round trip shuttle fare only.
PARKING IS FREE in the "White Lot" next to Herman's
Take Exit 15 off I-91 South
(Bus also stops at Holyoke Holiday Inn)
The last bus leaves The Big E at 10:30PM.
Listen to Rock102 for the up-to-date shuttle bus information

The Collegian needs photographers!
Contact Aram Comjean, Photo Editor, to find out how to get involved.
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

Are you artistically inclined?
The Collegian's Editorial/Opinion page is looking for cartoonists!
Contact E.C. Thomas
at 113 Campus Center for information.

AIM HIGH
IMPORTANT MEDICAL DISCOVERY FOR FUTURE NURSES: AIR FORCE ROTC.
More and more nursing professionals have made an important medical discovery – opportunities are greatest through Air Force ROTC. A sampling of reasons given in recent Air Force nurse interviews: "... you can move up fast ..." And, the facilities are "... more advanced than I'd ever imagined." Plus, "... respect. You're treated like a professional."
Air Force ROTC represents a tremendous way to enter this environment. It prepares you to be a leader, a trained professional in the U.S. Air Force.
With Air Force ROTC, you may be eligible for a two- to three-year scholarship that pays your full college tuition and most textbooks, labs and other fees. And when you graduate, you're an Air Force officer, ready to make the most of your nursing career.
Contact Major Cheryl Koren 545-2437/2451
or visit us on the second floor of Dickinson Hall, right above the Police
AIR FORCE ROTC
Leadership Excellence Starts Here

swatch
FOSSIL
J•RICH
CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant St
Amherst • 253-2013
Open 7 days
22 Masonic St
Northampton • 586-6336
Open 7 days • Thurs. nights til 9

Jason West wins gold at US Olympic Festival

By JONATHAN GANGI
Collegian Correspondent

As a freshman in 1990, Jason West walked into a meeting for the crew club here at the University of Massachusetts with no prior rowing experience and no idea what to expect. He said he felt like "anyone else off the street."

Three years later, the senior environmental science major from Stow, Mass., has a gold medal from the U.S. Olympic Festival and aspirations to make the U.S. National Crew Team.

At Nashoba Regional High School, West considered himself a "decent athlete." He ran track and captained the cross country team. A desire to remain involved in athletics and a suggestion from his older brother Rob, once a member of the UMass Rowing team, influenced him to try out for crew.

West's journey to success this past summer all started with an unexpected phone call in May. The U.S. Lightweight Developmental Camp wanted him to attend.

"When I got off the phone, I was bouncing off the walls," said West.

At Camp he met Matt Collins, a UMass alumnus who is currently a member of the U.S. National Team. In fact, just last week, Collins was an oarsman on the first U.S. lightweight boat to ever win a World Championship. West said he considers Collins to be "somewhat of a mentor."

West was also lucky enough to live with Don Spero, the 1966 World Champion in the Single Scull event. According to West, Spero was an inspiration and helped him build his confidence and learn about himself.

"He [Spero] taught me how to win," West said.

And win he did. West did not lose a single seat race this summer. In July, he qualified for the U.S. Olympic Festival that was held in San Antonio, Texas.

West said that he finally realized what he had accomplished on the day of Opening Ceremonies when he passed by Olympic Gold Medalist Gail Devers. However, according to West, the most amazing moment to that point was his entrance into Opening Ceremonies at AlamoDome in front of 65,000 people.

"It was breathtaking," said West.

But once in his boat, West said it was time for him to get serious.

"I pushed myself to the outer limits," said West. His four man crew gelled together perfectly, advancing to the finals.

In the finals, West's boat, out of the Potomac Boat Club from Washington D.C., faced a familiar opponent, the Pre-elites. The Pre-elites are an all-star team of the best collegiate oarsmen in the country, according to West. They had knocked West's boat out of contention in the World University Games Trials held in Indianapolis in June.

Revenge was sweet for West and company. They rowed what he termed a "flawless race" in a decisive victory over the Pre-elites.

Winning a gold medal in front of his whole family and brother Rob was something West said, "words can't describe."

"We [the members of the boat] just jumped up and down, hugging each other and throwing each other off the dock," West said. "It was a feeling of utmost happiness."

West must now turn his concentration back to Massachusetts Crew. Although the defending Division 2 National Champs lost many seniors, UMass has high expectations, according to West.

"We got a lot of talent coming out of the Novice Team," West said. "I think we can repeat."

And what does West expect of his own boat, the lightweight eight?

"Nothing less than the National Championship," he said.

■ Soccer

continued from page 16

"We must look at one game at a time with everyone being up for the game," said UMass coach Sam Koch.

"I feel we can go for a shutout, putting a couple of goals on the board early," Kylish said. "Even though we can't look ahead, I think we can reel off four wins in a row."

According to both Kylish and Donnenwirth, the team isn't down and they realize that after three games, emotions can't get out of hand. UMass has plenty of leadership, starting with Kylish and leading scorer Randy Jacobs, who has the lone goal for the Minutemen this season.

Holy Cross comes in as a versatile but young team. Led by freshman Mike Cort, who is averaging a goal per game, and sophomore Brian Petz (two goals, one assist), the offense is much improved. Goaltender Chris Murphy, however, has allowed ten goals in four games.

"Holy Cross is very fast and athletic and they will jump on any small mistakes we might make," said Donnenwirth.

"When we play our game we can beat anyone in New England and teams just go through slumps during the year," said Kylish when asked if the team needs to do anything different to get back on track.

According to Donnenwirth it is simply a matter of finding the right mix of players. Freshmen Joe Jacobson and Dave Siljanovski have looked particularly impressive so far. A big key would be to get Wolf healthy in goal.

UMass must put things together today as they need to build on a win with Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island coming to Richard F. Garber Field on Saturday.

■ Cross Country

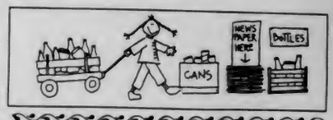
continued from page 16

and a half, finishing 11th overall, although she was slowed by some bad footing. She had injured her ankle in the spring and the rough terrain hindered her speed.

"I'd much rather have Kim be safe than lose her for the year," said LaFreniere.

UMass hosts Maine and Connecticut on Saturday at 12:00 p.m.

SPORTS NOTICE:



STOCKBRIDGE SCHOOL ATHLETICS: Candidates for both the basketball and golf teams, there will be an important meeting tomorrow at 4 p.m. in 223 Boyden.

If you are unable to attend, contact Jack Leaman, 302 Mullins Center, or call 545-1301.

• There will be a crew club meeting in Mahar Auditorium tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. No prior experience is necessary.

• There will be a meeting for anyone interested in the men's or women's fencing team on Monday, Sept. 20 at 4 p.m. in Totman Lobby.

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family

Wednesday - October 6
6 p.m.-8 p.m.
UHS - Room 304

I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?

I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?

I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?

If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.

For more information, please call
549-2671, Clinic IV - ext. 233 or 234.

Classifieds

- 20c per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons – Free - Wed 6-8 pm
8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt.
Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall
Campus Center.

Club CCA
Friday 9/17/93
9 pm- 1 am
$2.00 Members
$4.00 Nonmembers
Sponsored by the
Asian American
Students Association

Come to the Radical Student Union's first semester meeting! Tonight at 8 pm Check listing for Room #.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Asian American Students Association
First General Meeting
Tonight, 7 pm
Campus Center 162/175
Everybody is Welcome

College Pizza
Open for lunch
At 11 Sat, and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 toppings add $1
549-6073 549-8098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543-5640

Need a locker? We have them at OCHO. 428 Student Union

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating oil at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Come join NOW!

UMass Dance Team Auditions
12:00 Sunday 9/19
19th floor JA Tower
Questions? Contact Lorin: 546-1070

Women Ice Hockey Players
Interested in joining a club?
Call CHERI 665-0485 exp. preferred but not required.

AUTO FOR SALE

Chevy Citation 1980 Auto, cruise, runs ok, no rust, $500. 584-7936.

For Sale 83 Mercury Marquis (Parts) BO 549-3581

Toyota - 1982 Tercel SR5 Hatchback 5 speed - runs well - one owner - well maintained - $1450 - evenings 253-2410

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9747

Room Downtown. Quiet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4236 9am - 9 pm.

Small Dorm Sized refridgerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets
Call
546-3169
or 546-3866

AEROSMITH TICKETS best offer 549-1274 evenings

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Computer 286 M30 with so many software. 549-7577

DOC Martens
Brown Derby Boots
Size 5 Men (7 woman)
Brand new worn twice
$80 or b/o for more info. 546-0070 Helen

IBM Computer – IBM PS12 Model 50. Color monitor, math-co, HDisk, 3 1/2 & 5 1/4 drives $500. 545-6641, 323-5071

Macintosh printers: Imagewriter II $199; Apple personal laserwriter $499 Both excellent condition! Call 256-0057

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

Smith Corona laptop WORD PROCESSOR with separate printer. Works Great! $450 neg. Call 582-0455.

286 IBM Compatible; enhanced key board; monochrome monitor; 20 MB Harddrive; 1 MG RAM; $550 665-0031

T.V.'s – 19" COLOR Cable ready! $85. 549-4793

Used Futon Good condition. $50 or BO. 863-8996. Leave message.

FOR SALE - AUDIO

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Childcare for 10 year old boy, in Leverett, Car req, some overnites, 548-9057

EARTHFOODS IS HIRING!!!
Student run vegetarian cafe
Seeks a diverse
Group of responsible people
For hard work and fun
Applications available in
The CSB Office, 409 Student Union

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $500-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your frat, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for you self!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling.

1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Kitchen Help must be able to work 20 hr. Apply at DP Dough Downtown Amherst

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish. Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college-level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2025 for more information.

Peace and Justice Organization seeks Grants Assistant workstudy students. Phone reception and general clerical work 10 hours a week $5.56 per hour call Juan Carlos at 256-8306

Spring Break '94 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student travel services is now hiring campus reps call 800-648-4849

The Amherst Boys and Girls Club needs work/study assistants for recreation programs. Open 2:30 to 5:00 after noons 7:00 to 9:00 evenings. Workers schedule as time available $5.25 per hour. UM buses stop in front of club at 390 Main St. Contact Richard Britt 253-3261

$287.30 Sell 50 Hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol related, college t-shirts and make $287.50. All shirts 100% guaranteed. A risk free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

INTERNSHIPS

The Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is hiring interns for Fall semester. Conduct research, lobbying, training, and organizing in support of Student Government Association Agenda for Change. 6 work study credits for 15-20 hours per week. To apply send letter of interest to SCERA Box 128 Student Union. For more information call Marc 545-0341

MOTORCYCLES

Motorcycle Honda CX500 78 black 27,000 miles. NEW PARTS. $650 Brian 545-2735 days.

1985 Honda Interceptor 700 White runs strong - $900 b/o 549-4625

MUSICIANS

Guitarist seeks Bass player and drummer to form original heavy heavy rock band.
5 years experience required.
Matt 549-3581

PERSONALS

Friends Forever
Never Apart
Maybe in distance
But never in heart
Happy Birthday Amelia Reeve
We Miss You

Happy Birthday Kristen
(You have beautiful short hair!
Dimos

Happy 21st Birthday Raphael!
We Love You, Leonardo, Donatello and Michaelangelo

Mara Happy 21st
It's about time
How's the hangover
Love
The Oldest
Freshman

PILLOW SUB-ONE
Happy Birthday to my favorite Pillow
Don't let your suite mates know you're 21! I love you! Pillow sub two

Sigma Kappa
Get ready for Saturday! Rise and Shine! See you then! In Sigma Love, Your Rush Chair

SERVICES

Experienced Child Care
Student seeking employment in Amherst area excellent references CPR non smoker call 546-3552 leave message

Factfinder Custom Library Research
All students PO Box 3242 Amherst MA 01004 3242 549-0312

SITUATION

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

WANTED

Artist to Draw
Small floral tatoo. Call after 5 pm. 256-4525

Looking to Trade
Quality
Phish and Panic tapes
Mike 549-1272

UMass crew member Jason West wins gold medal at Olympic Festival Page 15

Sports

No. 11 Minutewomen host No. 15 Lady Friars

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

It will be a battle of top 20 field hockey teams this afternoon at Totman Field (3:30 p.m.) as No. 11 University of Massachusetts hosts No. 15 Providence College.

The Lady Friars enter today's contest with a 1-0-1 record. They beat a tough Ohio State team 1-0, and came away with a 1-1 tie against No. 14 Connecticut.

PC will be looking to avenge last year's 1-0 defeat that they suffered at the hands of the Minutewomen.

UMass head coach Pam Hixon said that she expects a tough game from the Lady Friars.

"We need to be persistent on offense and come out and compete hard," Hixon said.

Today's game features a matchup of two strong goaltenders. PC goalie Gina Martinello has been almost unsolvable, facing 42 shots in her first two games, giving up only one goal.

At the other end, UMass freshman Hilary Rose has been very impressive so far. In only her first week as a Minutewoman, Rose was named Atlantic 10 defensive player of the week. She carries a streak of five shutout halves into today's battle.

"The kids have a lot of confidence in Hilary," said Hixon. "She is mobile, very quick and has great save ability."

Freshman Kyle Rothenberger will face the toughest test of her career today, as she will be given the task of defending Providence's first team All-American midfielder Cathy Guden.

"This will be a great test for Kyle," said Hixon. "I think Kyle will give Cathy all she can handle."

ARAM COMEAU / COLLEGIAN

Senior Jenn Salisbury (number 23) blasts a shot past a goal keeper in an earlier contest for the University of Massachusetts field hockey team. The Minutewomen hope to have Salisbury, who is questionable, ready to play for today's game against Providence College (3:30 p.m. at Totman Field).

The Lady Friars are strong throughout their squad, sporting a very experienced lineup.

"The key is controlling the midfield, so we can let our forwards go to work," said Hixon.

Senior Jenn Salisbury, who has been battling a back injury, is questionable for today's contest. If Salisbury can't go, sophomores Streya Volla and Kerry Metelski will be called on to step up for UMass.

"No team plays an entire season without some adversity. We'll see what we're made of," said Hixon. "I think those kids will be prepared if called on."

Soccer team attempts to break losing streak

By ANTHONY GUIDO
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team travels to Worcester, Mass., today to take on Holy Cross, looking to rebound from two consecutive losses against the much improved Crusaders.

The Minutemen (1-2) are focused squarely on a Holy Cross (2-2) team which has already equaled last season's victory total.

"We can't overlook them, especially now that we need to bounce back," said UMass captain Todd Kylish.

"We didn't play well against Providence and we didn't respect them, but we must respect Holy Cross," said UMass assistant coach Rob Donnenwirth.

The Minutemen must again compete without starting goalie Mark Wolf, who is out with a leg injury. Today, UMass turns to Brian Hurley for an answer in net. Freshman keeper Brackie Reyes took the loss at Providence on Sunday.

UMass has had great success the last couple of years against the Crusaders, winning last year 3-0 while allowing only two shots on goal.

Turn to SOCCER page 15

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Brad Miller and the UMass men's soccer team look to fight past Holy Cross today at 3:30 p.m. in Worcester.

Women's X-C takes 2nd

UMass hosts Maine, UConn Saturday

By DANA ABIZAID
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's cross country team opened its season with a second place finish at the Central Connecticut State University Invitational last Saturday.

UMass placed second behind Providence College, who was ranked fifth in the nation last year. Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island took third and Holy Cross finished fourth. Rounding out the field were Marist, Central Connecticut State, Northeastern, Fairfield, and Hartford.

Coach Julie LaFreniere said she was pleased with her team's effort.

"We only had four working days to prepare for this race," said LaFreniere. "Our freshmen did an outstanding job for us, especially since we only had the limited practice."

Freshmen Melissa Langevin, Katie Greenia, and Kristin Donaldson ran well in their first varsity meet. Langevin finished fifth overall, while Greenia took tenth. Donaldson finished 19th overall and sixth for UMass.

LaFreniere said she was also impresssed with the performance of sophomore Jen Waeger, who finished 16th overall and fifth for the Minutewomen.

"Jen wasn't strong enough to run varsity last year but she has shown a lot of potential and come a long way," LaFreniere said. "I believe it was the best race of her career."

Co-captain Kelly Liljeblad displayed physical and mental toughness after being tripped in the opening 100 yards of the race. Liljeblad, who was out all last spring with a knee injury, made up considerable ground to finish sixth overall.

"Kelly had quite a task in front of her considering the field consisted of 97 runners from Division 1 schools," LaFreniere said.

Liljeblad's twin sister and co-captain Kim ran a strong race for the first mile

Turn to CROSS COUNTRY page 15

Kenny leads volleyball into new era after reinstatement

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts reinstated its women's volleyball team for this season, and the first step back was hiring head coach Bonnie Kenny.

Kenny, a Connecticut native, is a former volleyball player for the University of Tennessee where she was a three-time captain. Her teams had a 70.9 winning percentage, won two conference championships and made three NCAA appearances. In addition to her team's achievements, Kenny was selected a member of the 1982 SEC All-Tournament team, among many other honors she received throughout her college career.

Kenny was picked to coach the University of South Carolina following her graduation and remained there for nine years before coming to Amherst. At Carolina, she coached her teams to an overall 171-137 record and brought the Lady Gamecocks to the NCAAs once, in 1984.

Kenny was hired by the new athletic director Bob Marcum, who is the former athletic director for the University of Tennessee, and was impressed by what Kenny had accomplished with the Lady Gamecocks.

"I think it's great to have a volleyball coach of Bonnie's quality joining our department," said Marcum. "She has the Division I experience and we look forward to her return to the Northeast."

Kenny's coming was beneficial for her as well as for the program. She pointed out missing New England and her family as well as "the challenge of starting a new program, and working for a supportive administration" as being among her reasons for taking the job.

Because this is the first team since the program was dropped three years ago, the squad is comprised of mostly freshmen, with one junior and a sophomore filling out the roster.

The lone upperclassman is Cass Anderson, a UMass basketball player as well. She is the setter and basically the "quarterback" of the team, according to Kenny. The sophomore is Rachel Sky, a tranfer from Penn State University.

Turn to VOLLEYBALL page 14

SGA speaks out against decreased funding for UMass Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

65° Thursday
September 16, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 6

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Speakers remember civil rights in rally

KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Hope and positive action rang through the air as students and residents came together on the University of Massachusetts Student Union steps to commemorate the young girls killed in a Birmingham church bombing thirty years ago yesterday.

Approximately 150 people, including UMass students and faculty, Amherst Regional High School students and area residents, gathered around to hear 10 people share their feelings about civil rights and equality today.

Opening the rally, which started around noon, Carlos Anderson told the crowd, "We are here to unite together as one."

UMass student Natasha Springer stopped all foot traffic in the area when she did a rendition of the Star Spangled Banner.

Student Government Association President David Nuñez spoke to the crowd about growing up dealing with racism and the step people can take to end it.

"It's a vicious cycle and the only way we're going to get out of it as a people is education," said Nuñez. "Education is the key because racism is fear and ignorance."

"The first thing we got to do is make sure that we, as the younger generation, we have to stay in school, we have to learn what our grandparents and our parents went through, we have to educate ourselves 'cause ain't no one gonna do it for us," he said.

Chancellor Scott remarked on how people have to remember the four young martyrs while remembering "to think about the wrongs and the struggles of the present, and how we as a community can oppose and end them."

"I am here today, I am a part of this march, I am at this University because with you I want to be a part of doing everything I can do to help end this and I wish you very well in this important endeavor," said Scott.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Thomas Robinson talked about people on the campus and in society who feel threatened by people who are different from themselves.

"Discrimination and harassment have no place in the University community," he said. "They damage the education aspirations of students, interfere with the performance of faculty and staff and destroy the environment of tolerance and mutual regard that must prevail for the University to fulfill its mission."

He told the crowd that they must take individual action in order to overcome racism and all of the other -isms on the campus and to support people who have been victims of intolerant behavior.

Peggy Maisel, director of the Housing Discrimination Project in Holyoke, spoke about economic and racial discrimination in housing. She explained the procedure of how the Project proves that a certain landlord is in fact discriminating against their potential tenants.

Timothy Blake, an Early Childhood educator and student, challenged those who were not alive during the sixties to study it and learn from it, and for those

Turn to RALLY, page 5

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Natasha Springer, a sophomore communication major and member of the Black Student Union, signs at Wednesday's rally.

Students react to rally

Inspiration and positive feelings prevail

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Yesterday's rally commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Birmingham Church bombing held on the University of Massachusetts Student Union steps was inspiring for all who attended.

"It's very interesting to hear an 'In Your Face' view about this subject," replied UMass sophomore Jason LaFleur, after listening to Vickie Crockett speak on activism.

David Anderson, a UMass senior on the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Affairs steering committee, was impressed with the rally, but said he thought that it needed more students who were not knowledgeable about the Civil Rights Movement.

"It seems that the various communities that are oppressed are banding together," Anderson said. "The only way to further our cause is to be united. We need to respect, embrace and promote diversity."

"I think it's great," said Charlotte Steen, a UMass graduate student. "It's about time we all stand up."

Aisha Singelton, a UMass student, stressed the importance of the rally saying, "it's important for people to realize that something is wrong to even start making a change."

Ray Elliot, the vice president of the Amherst National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he was very inspired after seeing the turnout of young people and stressed the importance of the next generation to lead this country into a new age of equality.

"Everyone coming together is a tremendous show of force," said Deven DeMarco, a UMass student. He was surprised about the large number of high school students who had attended and participated in the march and rally.

DeMarco said the rally was very important because "you have to understand where you come from."

Rally organizer Martin Jones was very satisfied to see the number of people who came out and to see the participation and energy of the high school students.

"I think it's a good beginning for the school year for us to have this and I think from here on things will just go up," said Jones.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Yesterday's rally celebrating the Civil Rights Movement drew a full crowd on the Student Union Steps. Ten speakers of different background discussed race relations in the country.

The four turtles push the four food groups

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The UMass Cooperative Extension System will be using Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles to encourage children to eat properly, Cooperative Extension Specialist William Coli said.

Coli said Cooperative Extension worked with Mirage Studios in Northampton, the creators of Ninja Turtles, to create a comic/coloring book that teaches kids the value of eating right and exercising. The book will be used mostly at homeless shelters and day care centers.

"I came up with the idea when I heard that Mirage Studios was working with Random House Publishers in putting together a book a called 'The ABCs for a Better Planet,'" Coli said. "I thought it would be a good idea for the Cooperative Extension System, the outreach arm of the University, to work with the studio."

The book, which is entitled "The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles in the Food Pyramid Adventure," depicts the Ninja Turtles in a battle with their enemies, Rebop and Rocksteady. The Ninja Turtles are defeated in their first battle because they ate only pizza crusts and donuts for breakfast. After they discover foods such as grains and broccoli, however, they become stronger than ever and come back to defeat their rivals, Coli said.

The work of actually writing the script and drawing the pictures for the book was done by people at Mirage Studio free of charge, Coli said. He also said the book will be printed in Portugese and Spanish.

The book will be distributed at the YMCA of Greater Boston Families in Transition Shelter on Sept. 22, and the Prospect House in Springfield September 23. Someone dressed as Ninja Turtle Michaelangelo will help give out copies of the book at each location, Coli said.

Coli said he is confident the book will be an effective method of teaching kids about good nutrition.

"The book is not just entertainment by any means," he said. "The book contains a very strong message about good nutrition. I believe using Ninja Turtles, which kids ages six to 14 can readily identify, will help raise kids consciousness of good nutrition."

Coli said a study will be done of the coloring books to determine their effectiveness. He also said the book will be distributed nationally if the book does well and if they can find sponsors to fund it.

"I think if we can teach kids that there is more to nutrition than pizza, we have accomplished something," Coli said.

MassPIRG fights law

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

MassPIRG is fighting back this fall after an attempt by the Massachusetts legislature to cut the student-elected waivable fee, the primary source of its revenue.

The statewide public interest research group, founded in 1972, is in danger of losing funding due to a bill signed by Governor William Weld last July outlawing the collection of the waivable fee for lobbying groups on public colleges and universities around the state.

The group is fighting for a referendum on the November 1994 ballot and needs 40,000 signatures in the state to qualify for the appeal question. If the petition succeeds, the legislative act will be suspended and MassPIRG will retain funding until voters cast their decision.

Campus coordinator Julie Farb said MassPIRG is campaigning for 80,000 signees statewide by the Sept. 26 deadline, and the UMass branch is aiming for 2,400 signatures.

"The state government took away the students' voice," Farb said. "The students have passed the fee for two decades, and the reaffirmation vote last May was 87 percent.

"The representatives let the students elect them, then they stop respecting

Turn to MASSPIRG, page 5

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors.....Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....
Jewish Affairs Editor.....
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Arans Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....
Women's Issues Editor.....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

The Everywomen's Center programs were incorrectly described in the Sept. 14 issue of the Collegian. The story related details on a graduate women's program at EWC.

The EWC does not have a graduate women's program due to funding cuts by the Graduate Student Senate. There is a graduate women's program sponsored by the GSS in 919 Campus Center.

The Collegian regrets the error.

Vehicle damage highlights first week

Compiled by Vanessa Adelman
Collegian Staff

Wednesday, September 8

• A truck backed into another vehicle Wednesday morning on Clark Hill Rd. causing an estimated $1,000 worth of damage to the front end of the vehicle. The truck then left the scene. Police are interviewing a witness to the accident.

• An individual was issued a criminal citation on University Drive for operating after suspension on Wednesday morning.

• Police were called Wednesday morning to assist Amherst Fire Department at Morrill Science Bldg. with an individual having chest pain. Prof. Vincent G. Dethier, age 78 of 331 Strong St. was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton where he died.

• An individual reported her $165 bicycle stolen Wednesday afternoon from the rack at Gorman.

• An individual in Orchard Hill reported Wednesday afternoon that she received a call from a male subject who offered her money if she would talk to him.

• An individual reported her car, which was parked in Lot 29, was struck Wednesday night by an unknown vehicle. Her car was estimated at $500.

• University staff reported sexual graffiti written on the benches in the locker room of Curry Hicks Wednesday night.

Thursday, September 9

• Patrick F. Parker, 21, of 32 Maple Ave., Andover, Mass. was arrested Thursday morning for operating a motor vehicle after license or right to operate was suspended, operating a motor vehicle without an inspection sticker, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, and operating an uninsured motor vehicle.

• An individual in Gorman House reported the theft of a refrigerator from his room Thursday night. Dorm staff later located the unit.

• An individual reported the theft of his backpack from the Textbook Annex Thursday night. Estimated value was $50.

Monday, September 13

• An individual in John Quincy Adams Dorm reported the theft of $30 cash from his room Monday morning.

• A state vehicle parked in Lot 71 was "keyed" on the body panels and a rear window smashed. The estimated value of the damage is $500.

• UMass Police arrested Christopher J. Wheeler, 19, of 51 Liberty Park Ave., Braintree, because of a warrant out for his arrest.

Marilyn's dress is removed

Burglers help themselves to Hollywood memorabilia

NEW YORK (AP) — Police are investigating whether Marilyn Monroe's dress that billowed up in The Seven Year Itch was stolen from a warehouse.

A doll collection once owned by Monroe and correspondence with her acting coach, Lee Strasberg, were the only items confirmed missing so far, police said today.

Reports that another dress — the skintight gown Monroe wore when she purred "Happy Birthday" to President Kennedy in 1962 — was missing were false, said Detective William Oldham of the Police Department's Major Case Squad.

Oldham also denied reports that the loss totaled $10 million, and that other missing items included Hollywood memorabilia from James Dean, Montgomery Clift, Marlon Brando, Robert DeNiro, Paul Newman and Al Pacino.

The break-in was discovered Monday when an employee of Anna Strasberg, who owned the items, went to check on memorabilia, police said.

She is the widow of Lee Strasberg and the executor of his estate.

The employee couldn't get into the locker because the lock had been changed.

The burglars had broken the original lock, rifled the contents of the locker, and then put a new padlock on to make it appear nothing was amiss, police said.

Possibly missing was the white halter-top dress Monroe was wearing when a breeze from a subway grating lifted her skirts in an eye-popping scene from the 1955 movie The Seven Year Itch, police said.

Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center

It's Back to School Time

10% off with Student I.D.
Not valid with other discounts
Does not apply to oil changes
Discount valid only at time of purchase
offer expires 10/3/93

Free Midas Shuttle to Campus

MIDAS

MUFFLERS BRAKES SHOCKS STRUTS
COMPUTERIZED ALIGNMENT
RTE. 9/HADLEY
586-9991
Near Hampshire Mall

SEVEN O's
LIVE COUNTRY MUSIC
EVERY THURSDAY
KARAOKE
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Live Bands & Dancing
EVERY SUNDAY
OPEN MIC
Beers of the Week
$1.25 BUSCH BOTTLES
Next to Cliffside • Minutes from U-MASS
Never a Cover
M-F 3PM to 1AM • Sat & Sun Noon to 1AM
Rt. 116 • Sunderland
665-8788

Local News

News from other "U's"

compiled by Dan Wetzel

Greek to me

A report conducted by researchers at Southern Illinois University has concluded that members of fraternities and sororities drink twice as much as non-Greek students, which according to Dan Heath, a columnist for The Daily Texan, the student newspaper at the University of Texas, is not a surprise.

Heath brings up the valid points that people join greek organizations for social reasons and on college campuses social often goes hand in hand with alcohol.

He even points out that on his campus, which houses one of the nation's largest and most established greek systems, "the proper salutation at a fraternity party is not 'Hello!' or 'Great weather, huh?' but rather 'Point toward the keg.' (Always request gestural directions; verbal directions are often slurred, resulting in greater entrance-to-keg transit time)."

What miffs Heath is not that fraternity members consume alcohol in mass quantities but their other pranks. He cites a recent antics of the Beta Theta Phi members at Texas. Allegedly the Beta's dumped a swimming pool full of pancake batter, which they had previously used for a night of "pancake wrestling" into a local creek.

This angered Heath, not because of the environmental impact of fish swimming in flapjack batter, but because "with a little powdered sugar, that wasted pancake batter could have been my breakfast for a year."

He calls for the formation of SYRUP: Students Yearning for the Rational Use of Pancakes. A membership drive is currently under way.

Serious music

While fraternities often receive the brunt of hazing complaints on college campuses, allegedly at Michigan State University the school's marching band has gotten into the act.

Jeffery Greenfield, a former member of the MSU Marching Band, has sued the University for harassment charges he described as "bizarre and demeaning," according to The State News, the student newspaper at Michigan State. His return to campus this Fall has been marked by more telephone harassment and threats of "assing."

"Assing," one of the hazing practices Greenfield cites in his lawsuit, involves the rubbing of naked human buttocks in a member's face for a marching or playing mistake, Greenfield said.

On his first day back on campus, Greenfield said a picture of naked human buttocks was taped to the door of his dormitory room.

The MSU band's vice president insists the charges are exaggerated and hazing is used to promote unity. Likewise, any member of the band found harassing another student will be discharged from the band.

Needless to say, the MSU band is "the power and cLASS of Michigan."

Nutmeg correspondent

For a short period this semester it appeared as though this space would be able to expand its coverage due to the addition of a Connecticut correspondent to the "News from other U's" crack staff.

Collegian columnist David Scott and his faithful canine Bo, were for the most part homeless and forced to shack up in a very shady residence in Connecticut. Scott, the true journalist he is, immediately began gathering important news from Central Connecticut State, the University of Connecticut and the University of Hartford.

While the addition of a foreign correspondent would have been beneficial, Scott was faced with a number of problems.

First, the bursar's office began sending him out of state tuition bills. Second, there are no quality tie stores in Connecticut, as evidenced by UConn basketball Coach Jim Calhoun's choice in neckware. And third, he was seen in Boyden sporting a Rose Daly University of Hartford soccer shirt, which prompted an alleged scuffle to occur between Scott and UMass women's soccer Coach Jim Rudy. Scott was nearly saladed to death.

So finally Scott (or his brown truck) broke down and moved into Belchertown, were he can currently be found on the corner stool of the B-town watering hole, the Buck and Doe. Welcome back.

Student leaders closely examine rising tuition costs at UMass

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The cost of attending UMass will increase $2,000 by 1997 if the state continues to decrease funding for the University, Student Government Association (SGA) Speaker Matthew Pavesi said last night.

Pavesi said the University must deal with a shortfall of $7.7 million because the State has forced it to pay for the mandatory 13 percent pay raises of clerical and professional union members at UMass.

"The State appropriated $311 million this year, which is up $20 million from last year," Pavesi said. "But the University has had to pay over $26 million in pay raises, and the students are feeling it."

UMass is the second most expensive state university in the United States, Pavesi said.

"Affordability and accessibility are non-existant at UMass," he said. "Over the past four years the cost of attending UMass has gone up 166 percent. In the 1970s, tuition and fees cost only $1,000 combined."

Pavesi said the SGA will work with Chancellor David Scott and the board of trustees that governs all five UMass campuses to keep tuition and fees from rising.

"There are always going to be many things the SGA and the Board of Trustees do not agree on," Pavesi said. "But one thing we do agree on is that we need a higher appropriation from the state. The problem is that the state legislature does not consistently fund UMass to the point where it can cover its own costs."

Pavesi said the best way students can fight rising tuition and fees costs is to wage a "grass-roots campaign."

"We need to make it a district issue and we need to make current state representatives and senators accountable," he said. "Students need to call the representatives in their districts and say 'hey, I can't afford to go to UMass because it's too expensive.' If students, parents and alumni vote in blocks, they will be able to bounce out the representatives who don't work for affordable education."

Pavesi said part of the problem is the costs of attending UMass is so high that many alumni cannot afford to contribute to the University. He also said UMass has difficulty competing with private colleges because there are few UMass alumni senators and representatives and because the difference in price between UMass and the private schools is no longer as great.

"It is a vicious cycle and the students are caught in the middle," he said. "People have payed so much to come here that there is no pride, and many alumni can't afford to contribute.

"Private universities are also killing UMass," Pavesi said. "UMass now has six million less in financial aid than it had in 1987. Many people are taking out the extra loans to go to the private colleges. Also, most of our state representatives are alumni of the private colleges, while there are only 40 senators and representatives who are UMass graduates.

"If things continue to go the way they are," Pavesi said, "our school will die in four years."

Fast Times at UMass

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Greg Flatt, a sophomore anthropology major, enjoys a gnarly day by catching the frisbee.

GLB is brown-bagging it again

By VANESSA AMIN
Collegian Correspondent

The Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Studies Program held its first meeting in the Brown Bag Series on Wednesday in the Campus Center.

The Brown Bag Series is made up of a collection of speakers from all over the country discussing different topics on gay, lesbian and bisexual issues this semester held during the noon hour.

The first of this series was the issue "Can We Educate Ourselves in Liberation" given by Felice Yeskel, professor of education at UMass and director of the program for GLB concerns.

The GLB movement started in the early 70s and is slowly moving towards liberation, said Yeskel.

According to Yeskel, education and individual vision will help society understand and accept homosexuality. If society can educate our children about diversity, once they become adults, they will already have an open mind, said Yeskel.

"I was raised feeling that something was wrong with me. I felt inferior and inadequate throughout my childhood," Yeskel said.

Some people are raised with myths, stereotypes and stigmas about homosexuals which could have come about through their religion, family backgrounds and/or peers, Yeskel said. Education can erase some of those stigmas at an early age. In order for homosexuals to become liberated, all minorities need to be also, said Yeskel.

"Not one of us is free unless all of us are free," said Yeskel.

In 1979, Yeskel lived and attended college in Rochester, New York where there was only one gay man on campus. She said the words gay or lesbian were never heard on the campus which is very different from today.

"It has taken almost twenty years for a slight change, however, I feel we are moving in the right direction not just for the GLB organization but for heterosexuals as well," Yeskel said.

According to Yeskel, there are two strategies that can help society accept and understand homosexuality. She said the first strategy is education, in which society needs to educate professors, elementary teachers, parents, students and children on diversity.

The second strategy, said Yeskel, is called para-strategy. It includes demonstrations, strikes, media attention, speak-outs, boycotts, television, films and newspapers that openly discuss issues about homosexuality.

On every college campus, there should be more AIDS and safe sex seminars, lesbian and gay counselors, specific offices to report harassment, more gay and lesbian courses and visible posters to open student's minds that homosexuals are not invisible, said Yeskel.

One of the students in the audience commented on the issue at hand.

"Most homosexuals are afraid to stand out and rock the boat because some people assume they want special rights but in fact all they want is to be treated as an equal," said Deborah White, a junior journalism major.

Dog days of September

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
An adorable black Labrador enjoys the beautiful September weather.

Chancellor greets students

By JAMIE D. BEARSE
Collegian Correspondent

UMass again embraced diversity when Chancellor David Scott and the International Program Office (IPO) ushered in new exchange students and welcomed home returning students in the Amherst Room of the Campus Center yesterday.

Over 200 students were praised by Chancellor Scott in his opening remarks.

"You are energetic individuals, part of an active and vital program within the University," he said.

He also stated that returning exchange students should "share their enriched experiences and add to multiculturalism."

Returning students were welcomed back from over 25 different nations. Among them was, Amy Miller, a senior Chinese major.

"I had a great time in Xi-An, China despite no hot water or electricity and the tremendous culture shock," Miller said.

It was much more "relaxed" for junior political science major James Smith.

"Ireland was fantastic, the people were extremely friendly," Smith said.

He also added that he would like to encourage others to take part in the exchange program and that he's looking forward to returning to Ireland to live there for a few years.

Judy Sokop, a senior Spanish major also spoke of her trip. "Spain was great except for the food and I regret I didn't run with the bulls," she said.

Among the many exchange students spending their first days in the country was Kristina Arn-Hansen from Denmark, who chose an exchange program at UMass for the New England experience.

"I didn't want to end up around people with pink roller skates in California," Arn-Hansen said. "Besides, I want to do some skiing this winter."

Joining her at the reception was geography major Ann Kruger from Germany.

"It's a very pretty campus, I'm looking forward to traveling and visiting some friends in Oregon," Kruger said.

According to Maria Billings, member of the IPO, returning students can stay involved by taking part in the Re-Entry program on Tuesday, Sept. 21, 4-6 or 7-9 p.m., or Wednesday Sept. 22, 4-6 or 7-9 p.m. in room 805 of the Campus Center. To sign up for a session, interested students should call IPO at 545-2710.

An officer and a horse

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Dismounted officer Patrick Archibald takes a moment to ponder his choice of parking spaces.

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
TREK USA MOUNTAIN BIKES ON SALE!
Trek 7000 was $700.00 now $629.95
Trek 930 was $539.95 now $499.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
EST 1971
318 Pleasant St.
Northampton, MA
586-3810
800-464-3810
TREK USA

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
HIRING NOW FOR EVENING AND WEEKEND HOURS
NO SELLING INVOLVED
Interested part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Monday-Friday 9am-5pm, 5pm-10pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-7pm, Monday-Friday, (413) 586-8635.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.
Telephone Research Center
Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9
Hadley, MA 01035
An Equal Opportunity Employer

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS
YES COMPUTERS
STUDENT MAC RENTALS
~$75~ PER MONTH
BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING
AUTHORIZED RESELLER
585•0007
NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

USED COMPUTERS
Available Due To Corporate Downsizing
IBM Brand
Model AT 286 2MB Ram, 52MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $550
Model AT 286 1MB Ram, 20MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $395
Model XT 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $310
Model 3270 8088 640KB Ram, 10MB Hard Drive, 14" Color Monitor, Keyboard - $275
Rentals, Printers Avaliable
CALL 253-7510

The Savings Are Just Beginning at Scotts!
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon-Sat 8 A.M.-11 P.M. Tel: 549-2692
Miller High Life 24-12 oz. cans $9.99 + dep.
Bud Dry 24-12 oz. bar bottles $10.99 + dep.
Castillo Rum Sale Price $10.99 Mail-In Rebate $3.00 FINAL COST $7.99 1.75 ltr.
Rubinoff Vodka 1.75 ltr $8.99
Sutter Home White Zinfandel 2 for $6.99
Moosehead 12 pack bottles $7.99 + dep.
Sam Adams Wheat or Dark Wheat 6 pk $4.99 + dep.
Busch ½ kegs $36.99
NO PERMIT NEEDED TO PURCHASE KEGS
WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Tele-check for your personal check.
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

■ MassPIRG

continued from page 1

students. They won't give students the voice on how to spend their own money," Farb said.

Farb said MassPIRG has targeted the 80,000 signature goal across the state due to the 50 percent rate of voided signatures. Reasons for voiding a petition include illegibility, lack of signers who were registered voters, or the signers have moved.

Beside the Campaign for Student Rights, MassPIRG is also involved with a campaign called Hunger and Homelessness. They will coordinate education awareness events about H and H and will organize local trips to shelters, in addition to holding week-long events in the middle of October.

"It's a great way for students who are interested in environmental issues to get involved," Aleisha Belleville, a first-year environmental science major who is interning at MassPIRG. "I learned about the organization last April in Boston, but I didn't know about all the things they've done in the past."

Past efforts by MassPIRG have included the bottle bill law and the Reduce, Reuse, Recycle campaign. The UMass chapter of MassPIRG is participating in a Regional Student Rights march with Smith College, Amherst College, Greenfield Community College and Holyoke Community College this Saturday.

The march begins at 10:45 a.m. in room 423B of the Student Union, and Farb said MassPIRG is still actively recruiting volunteers and interns.

■ rally

continued from page 1

who lived it to "bring that energy into today."

He also spoke about being an African-American Homosexual in the army during Vietnam. Mentioning Perry Watkins, Blake explained how Watkins was very open about being gay, but the army took him anyway. But, after 21 years of being in service, the army would not let him re-enlist, because he was gay.

"We thought the enemy was the KKK 30 years ago, but it turned out to be the federal government," said Blake.

Vickie M. Crockett, a senior at Smith College, spoke on the need for aggressive and immediate activism.

"Today when you are talking about racism, you're being over defensive. You're being oversensitive. You're being emotional. In that case, let me be emotional, because when I look at the glaring inequalities of today's society I refuse to be silent any longer," said Crockett.

Other speakers at the rally included Cara Lee Birch, a UMass student, Ozzy Kalte and Ekene Nwokoye, both from Amherst High School, and Djata Bumpus, a community activist.

UMass student and AFF founder Martin Jones wrapped up the rally by thanking people for coming and sharing the story behind the foundation.

THE LAUNDRY CLUB
The Most Fun You Can Have in a Laundromat!
8 am-11 pm • 7 days
◆ Coin Operated Washers and Dryers
◆ State of the Art Machines
◆ Snack Bar
◆ Big Screen T.V.
◆ Pool Table and Video Games
◆ Senior Citizen Discount
COUPON
$1.00 OFF any size washer
Limit 1 coupon per customer
Coupon Expires 10/31/93
$3.00 OFF DRY CLEANING ($10 or more)
Limit 1 coupon per customer
Coupon Expires 10/31/93
Dry Cleaning
6 University Drive • New Market Center • Next To Victory Supermarket & Scott's Liquors • Amherst • (413) 549-2640

Want to earn BIG money?
On a small investment?
Collegian Advertising 545-3500
We reach students. 19,000 copies, every day!

You haven't declared a major.
Your relationship's over.
Jobs are scarce.
What better time to leave the country?
Just think. Next semester you can continue your major in another country. You can intern in London, ponder Peace Studies in Austria, cycle to class in Oxford or sun yourself in Mexico (while studying Spanish, of course). You can even linger at a cafe in Vienna or tour a Greek isle. We also have a wide variety of integrated university programs in the U.K. and Ireland. For over 30 years Beaver has been sending students abroad for the experience of their life. Now it's time for yours. Call us today for more information.
Study Abroad with Beaver College.
1.800.755.5607

Save a tree. Recycle this Collegian.

ARE YOU A CARTOONIST?
THE EDITORIAL PAGE IS LOOKING FOR EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS.
INTERESTED?
CONTACT E.C. THOMAS AT THE COLLEGIAN

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Editorial Policy

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes and encourages columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the entire Five College area. The following are some important guidelines to consider when submitting material to the page:

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear the writer's name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editor's discretion. Letters or columns written under a psuedonym will not be accepted.

All submissions must be typed and double-spaced to be considered for publication. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

Letters should not exceed 50 typed, double-spaced lines. Columns should not exceed 70 typed, double-spaced lines. Letters and columns of unreasonable length will not be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will not be printed. Responses to or criticisms of columns or other Collegian articles are restricted to letter form. Any exceptions to this guideline will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. All submissions become property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual artist or writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, its staff or the Editorial staff.

*****

The Editorial page wants you. Yes, you, the reader of these smudgy pages. We are looking for good writers and good artists to fill this page every day with their ideas and opinions.

If you're interested, stop by the Editorial desk at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center (the basement level). Your opinions count — but no one will know what you're thinking unless you tell them. 19,000 people want to hear what you think.

Losing your virginity 101

As director of Psychoanalytic Studies, Professor William Kerrigan has probably come across many female students with personal problems. Problems that have been revealed to him in the expectation they would be kept in the utmost of confidence. However, becoming sexually involved with a student does not help anybody, it only invites controversy.

Professor Kerrigan told Harper's Magazine that there was a time when he had responded to a particular kind of female student of his who had "unnaturally prolonged her virginity." Well, Mr. Kerrigan, I'm sure you've given all of your female students something to think about.

Now that you've completely tainted your reputation and sabotaged the teacher-student relationship, maybe you can think about what it is you've really done to your students. Believe me, you did anything but help them.

Virginity is and always has been kind of a touchy subject with people. However, the only thing that should be taught about it is that it is not, under any circumstances, something to be ashamed of. I admire those who are waiting until they marry to make love.

Nor is the instance of any woman attending this or any other university, who may happen to be a virgin, in need of "intimate mentoring," as he has called it. Is this going to show up as a Gen Ed? "How to lose your virginity 101."

Professor Kerrigan has displayed an attitude of extreme arrogance and irresponsibility. How dare he think he can save this woman from any failed marriages she may experience later on in life? The simple truth is, he cannot. Period. Nobody possesses that kind of power.

In Kerrigan's words, "love happens." Yes, everyday. But when a love relationship occurs in which someone's virginity is treated as a problem that needs to be solved, there is obviously something wrong.

I only hope that the female students who have trusted Mr. Kerrigan with their personal problems realized what they were getting themselves into. They could look back on this and realize they were manipulated in the most disgusting of ways — by someone they had turned to for help and by someone who they once respected.

Laurel Kleinschmidt
Southwest

The problems with peace

With all my heart and soul I yearn for peace in the Middle East. I have dreamt of a time when I would be able to travel from Israel to Turkey, directly through Syria. I know someday I will be able to enter Arab Nations with an Israeli passport, realizing the Arab peoples, the Semetic brothers of the Israeli nation, have recognized the Jewish state.

There is tremendous worldwide euphoria over the signing of the historic PLO-Israeli autonomy pact. I, too, cannot help but feel a rush of joy over the possibility of a solution to the endless conflict. However, my dominant feelings are not those of joy, but of anxiety, skepticism, and at times, anger.

Josh
SLOMICH

Although I may dream of a peaceful Mid-East, the reality of the region eschews that notion. The Mid-East is not the United States, things are different there. It is a region of war, terror, fanaticism, and religious extremism. A simple flick of a wrist from one of the many ruling despots could ignite the next war. If the current Israeli government continues down the path I see it leading, it will be a war. Israeli will have to fight without strategic depth and commanding heights to protect it.

On the surface, the plan for a limited autonomy deal for the Palestinians in the not so strategic Gaza strip and the city of Jericho is a moderate solution to an agonizing problem. The doubts arise not from the plan itself, but rather, who the deal was struck with — Yasser Arafat.

Only six months ago, both prime minister Yitzhak Rabin and foreign minister Shimon Peres, the two Israeli leaders who greeted Arafat on the south lawn of the White House this past Monday, had castigated the PLO chieftain as an "obstacle to peace" and "still proudly wearing the terrorist label." What happened in the last six months that so radically changed Rabin's mind? All of us, especially the Israeli people, have a right to know why Israel would turn to its most hated foe, right when that enemy was about to be swept up into the dust bin of history.

Thus far, Rabin and his Labor party cadres have been ambiguous and dismissive towards these questions. Rabin has repeated the cliche that one "makes peace with enemies, not friends." True, but again this is the Mid-East. Your enemy's enemy is your friend. In other words, Rabin is raising the spector of Iran and Hamas, both opposed to the negotiations, as the parties Israel may have to deal with tomorrow, if it does not deal with the "moderate" PLO today.

This point raises two questions. 1) Does Rabin really believe that an Israeli-PLO deal will stamp out the rise of Islamic militancy? Needless to say Israel and the West will have to fight this scourge with or without Arafat. 2) Rabin calls Hamas the enemy of peace because of its continual murder of Israelis. The PLO has spilt the most Jewish civilian blood since the Nazi era. The contradiction is obvious.

In reality it was time that caught up with Rabin's dovish government. Rabin promised both peace and security, and the year since Labor has been in power, both had deteriorated. Dictatorships do not have to worry about opinion polls and elections.

Rabin promised to deliver peace in six months, this was coupled by shrill voices form the Israel left for open negotiation with the PLO. The Arab parties simply dug in their heels and waited for one-sided concession after another. In the end it was not Hamas, or even President Clinton, that drove Rabin into Arafat's arms, it was his own delusion that peace could be achieved with the Arabs in a fixed period of time.

In the past, I have been reluctant to openly criticize Israel, fearing that my words may fuel the fires of those that wish the Jewish people harm. Arafat is no Sadat, he's not even a Gorbachev. The decision to include him in the negotiations is premature. Once the PLO receives a foothold in the territory it claims exclusive rights to, Israel may once again have to fight for its very existence. I pray that premier Rabin knows what he's doing, and my views turn out to be sheer nonsense.

Josh Slomich is a UMass student.

Increasing racism on campus

Over the three years I have gone to school here I have noticed an alarming trend. This is an increase in racism of all kinds on campus.

Last year an R.A. in a Southwest tower was racially and physically assaulted. Near-riot conditions soon followed.

During my freshman year the graffiti I saw while relieving myself was halfway intelligent. However, as my years at UMass rolled along the graffiti became racist. It does not surprise me that in a toilet stall I find a swastika. It still angers me, as it always will.

Just the past day while I was eating in the dining commons I noticed racism toward yet another minority group. Two groups of students sat at tables parallel to one another. At one table there was a group predominately made up of Asian students. At the other table, just an ordinary bunch of students. During the course of the meal a member of the latter group started imitating Asian speech under his breath and the other members of the group were snickering.

This is not a perfect world, it never will be, and this letter is not asking you to become perfect. I am asking that anyone who has ever snickered or wrote racist graffiti or racially assaulted anyone or ever thought of doing anything of this nature to think about what they are doing and why. With a little thought it will all seem stupid.

Daniel Fulton
Northeast

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

Sniff, sniff. Aaahh. Fall is in the air. Or is that marijuana I smell? So good old UMass might grow ganja for medical research. I bet that's why they want to grow it.

Cough, cough. What kinds of symptoms do I need to legally smoke pot in the Chancellor's backyard? I believe I have just spontaneously contracted all the symptoms necessary to do so. Don't worry, Chancellor Scott, you're new here so I'll give you a break and invite you along.

Imagine fields and fields of marijuana just overgrowing the athletic fields. What interesting sporting events. I promise you school spirit would rise.

Now UMass could never get away with growing pot on this campus — they would have the worst time preventing and stopping takeovers of the facilities.

What a takeover that would be. I can see the headline in now: "UMass students raid marijuana fields, 20,000 people walk away stoned."

I asked the reporter if he got any free samples, but he said he had to pay for it. That's a public university for you, they pinch you for every penny.

So what do you think about that Textbook Annex? The line was so long, I thought people were waiting to get something really cool. I jumped in line only to discover they had nothing but books. That sucked.

Stacy
MALONE

I looked for a shorter line hoping to find that one cool line in life — and I did. Good old Board of Governors was giving out free popcorn and soda. Yeah free, and the line was much shorter. It was like people really couldn't believe it was free.

Kudos for Board of Governors, but next time you should be more honest and put up a sign that says, "Cool line over here. Free popcorn and cups filled with foam."

Oh yes, as the semester gets underway so do campus politics. Campus politics? Yeah, I'm a senior here and I still have no clue how the politics on this campus work. It's an enigma to me.

SGA, Board of Governors, Senate. What's the difference? All I know is that they have nicer offices than I do.

Everyone keeps asking me how I feel about this Kerrigan jerk, oh, I mean guy. I thought he was an English professor, not a sex education teacher. They must have altered his job description during the budget cuts to be English professor/sex therapist. Personally, I think he's just looking for dates. Look elsewhere buddy.

Construction, construction and more construction. I have to plan a detour route before embarking on my journey to each of my classes. If they keep making it so difficult to get to class, I just may have to borrow one of their heavy duty pieces of equipment and bring my class to me.

Stacy Malone is a Collegian columnist.

Has a tabloid culture already convicted Jackson?

I have a confession. It's a burden that I've endured for far too long now, and I've got to get it off my chest. I was an honest-to-goodness Michael Jackson fan.

I got hit with Thriller hysteria at about the same time as millions of other kids around the world. For me, it fell between my Kiss period — lunch boxes, posters and Gene Simmons action figures (yes, they were action figures, I never played with dolls) — and a later brief bout with Def Leppard-induced Pyromania. Michael was truly the King of Pop in those days, the good old days when Prince had a name and for all we knew Madonna may have been — like a virgin.

So it may be nostalgia that fuels my anger at the way people in this country are quick to crucify this admittedly a bit Off The Wall superstar. It seems that no one was the least bit startled to hear of the allegations that the singer molested a child.

We are, after all, a nation of tabloid addicts. Enquiring minds want to know if Michael really wants to buy the elephant man's remains, sleeps in an oxygen chamber, or has a shrine to Elizabeth Taylor. People believe what they read in the checkout line, and if Mike did all the other stuff, then why not believe he's a child molester? It's a logical progression.

The fact is, the supermarket journalists are only giving us what we crave. We, the masses make stars out of people just like ourselves. I know, you're saying, in your best English 112 grammar, "I ain't nothin' like no Michael Jackson!" But remember that little kid who sang "I'll Be There" before Mariah Carey? He could have been any 10 year-old boy in the world with a sweet voice.

Derek
MILOSAVJEVIC

We love to watch people rocket to what seems like the top of the world. If we have a button or a poster with their face on it, it almost feels like we're along for the ride. The real joy comes however, in parachuting to safety and watching the rocket crash to the earth. We can change the posters on our wall as often as we change the sheets.

As much as we love a rags-to-riches story, our appetite is much stronger for a good old-fashioned riches-to-rags episode. The same people who tuned in, hankies in hand, to watch the fairy tale wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Di now await the stories of their breakup in Star Magazine each week with baited breath.

I know that some may attack me for seemingly defending a man accused of abusing a child, but shouldn't it be okay to believe in someone's innocence?

It has been printed that the boy's father may have tried to extort twenty million dollars out of Jackson to keep the story quiet. Is it too hard to believe Michael is the victim?

We may never know the truth about Michael, about Woody Allen, or even about convicted rapist Mike Tyson, but it should never be assumed that because one believes in their innocence, they don't support abuse victims. The reason these accusations are so damaging is because the crimes are so heinous. It sounds cliche, but there are no winners in these situations. Everyone is badly hurt.

Michael Jackson is a singer, but he could be a heavyweight boxer or a film director. Remember the next time you revel in a celebrity's misery that once upon a time he/she was a little boy or girl just like you were. If the allegations are true, we can only wish that the boy can heal emotionally and lead a happy life, and Jackson can be helped.

Personally, I hope Michael is exonerated, because after I turned in my Fan Club card and put out my Def Leppard fire, I must admit, I can't get that Free Willy song out of my head.

Was it irrational hostility?

Scapegoat: one who bears the blame for others; one that is the object of irrational hostility. At least according to Webster's Ninth Collegiate Dictionary. I'm sure there was a time in your life when someone you knew was "the object of irrational hostility."

Matt
BATTAGLIA

The fact of the matter is sometimes things happen, horrible things that someone must pay for. Maybe that person is innocent, or at least not totally responsible for what happened. None the less, executives are fired for a company mistake, professional athletes traded for a team loss, and enemy soldiers tried for war crimes.

TREBLINKA: Nazi death camp.

That was the setting for the crimes committed. Thousands of Polish Jews were put to death in the gas chambers. The world knows the name of the man who ran the gas chamber. Ivan the Terrible, a man responsible for so much pain. The name brings horror to many Holocaust survivors like the names of other famous Nazis; Hitler, Himmler, and Eichman.

Adolf Eichman.

The only person to be executed in Israel's history.

One can only receive the death penalty in Israel for treason or a crime related to the Holocaust.

Israel has never been known for readily giving out the death sentence. Maybe they believe it is God's right to judge a man, and whether or not he deserves death. Maybe they don't want to be linked to another execution. For all the uproar and cheers over Eichman's execution, there was outrage from others against the decision.

"Innocent."

That was the verdict rendered by the Israeli Supreme Court last month. At least that was the message when the court dismissed the charges against Ivan Demjanjuk. A ruling that shocked the world. An "upset."

Ivan Demjanjuk, charged with being "Ivan the Terrible."

Ivan Demjanjuk, who was extradited from the US to Israel for a trial - a trial years old now - that has once again brought the memories of the Treblinka concentration camp. Survivors were brought forth to identify him. KGB files were dug up for valid records, old passports were used, and records of prison guard testimonies brought out to the public. German documents were used to identify him as a member of the Trawniki unit - a unit set up to aid in the extermination of a race.

The court gave every doubt a chance and didn't trust the KGB files. Nor did they think the old memories of witnesses were reliable. Ivan Demjanjuk is a free man because of these doubts. It was proven that he was at least a guard at Treblinka even though the court would not say he was Ivan the Terrible. The Israeli Supreme Court did not want to try him for being a guard. They wouldn't bring him up on new charges.

It appears the court didn't want to go through another trial with witnesses and survivors reliving the terrible experiences. After all this they didn't want to hand him the death sentence. No matter the decision, controversy appears.

SCAPEGOAT.

Should Demjanjuk have been one? Even if he wasn't Ivan the Terrible?

Unfortunately, someone must always pay. Lyndon Johnson paid for Vietnam. Abraham Lincoln was assassinated over the Civil War. Many people felt the Holocaust again, but Ivan Demjanjuk is free. Even after people screamed in court that he was Ivan the Terrible. Maybe the Israeli Supreme Court is the scapegoat, with their policies that may have helped a criminal.

Matt Battaglia is a UMass student.

Protecting the constitution will preserve our freedom

I know the question is coming, so I'll say it right now: yes, I support the right of children to have guns. MTV news is on right now being oh-so-subtly disdainful of the National Rifle Association because they opposed a Colorado statute making it a crime for minors to be in possession of a gun.

Other gun laws making the rounds include similar limitations such as "no assault rifles" or "no automatic fire," but they're all just as flawed.

Christopher
WARREN

It may seem like a good idea at first (hey, we're just protecting them), but take a look at just how fat that logic can go and see if you are still in favor of squeezing the Bill of Rights out of existence.

The First Amendment: How about if only some words were censored. You can't swear, since that's naughty, and you can't use racist/sexist words either, because they're mean. But everybody's offended by something, so the lists would grow so large only two dozen words would ever be able to be spoken, and I don't know anyone in favor of killing beautiful language or free expression that thoroughly.

The Fourth Amendment: Well, sometimes, people are obviously guilty, aren't they? Rodney King's cop buddies were guilty, weren't they? (but two of them were not guilty).

And some crimes are pretty small, so you don't need a trial. It's just a little jail time, isn't it? (I wouldn't give up, especially if I wasn't guilty.) Prosecutors do make mistakes.

And then are other amendments. What if the police want to search your bedroom without a warrant, and they promise not to touch anything? How about increasing the pain of punishments for really vicious crimes? Maybe we should select an official state religion.

I sure hope you don't like these suggestions any better than I do. All of them have things in common with the gun laws I mentioned at the start of this little essay.

Every time somebody makes a little inroad on a constitutional right, the stage is set for the removal of more rights and one of them is eventually going to be your favorite.

It doesn't matter whether you're a liberal or conservative, because everyone can be hit like this.

In Texas, there's a great thing happening. A grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan is being defended by an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer who is black.

Anthony P. Griffin is going to try to help a man who hates him just because of his skin color. He's taken flak from his friends and colleagues at the NAACP, but he believes so strongly in preserving everyone's civil liberties that it doesn't matter what his client or anybody else, thinks about him.

So the next time you "protect somebody" despite the Constitution, think about all the liberties we are granted, and when your favorite might need protecting.

Christopher Warren is a UMass student.

For Southwest silence is golden

We are graduate students and live in the Prince/Crampton complex in Southwest. Last night while doing work, we were suddenly disturbed by loud shouts, piercing screams, and blaring music coming from the area by Kennedy and Coolidge dorms.

Seeing that this was not going to end anytime soon, we were forced to call Campus Police and they came to the rescue. Ten minutes later, the loud music and noise started up again.

What we want to know is: Where was the security assigned to those dorms? We find it difficult to believe there was no one around to calm the perpetrators down.

We try to study, and for that matter sleep, but often cannot because of the constant barrage of noise - especially on the weekends. As graduate students, we need to study very hard and do intense work, as do our graduate peers.

Why should all of us in Prince/Crampton have to sacrifice the established 24 quiet hours in our buildings when there is nothing but 24 hour (so it seems) noise outside our residence?

Laura Demers
Jennifer Wais
Southwest

I absolutely know you all have something to say — you always do and most likely always will — SO write us letters!! We want to know what you think, as does the rest of the campus community.

Send your thoughts (under 50 lines, always typed and double-spaced) to 113 Campus Center Basement.

All submissions must have your name, phone number and address! Anonymous submissions will not be printed. Thanks.

We are sorry, but submissions cannot be returned, and due to space constraints the Collegian cannot guarantee to print all material submitted.

Cook turns herself in after 23 years on the lam

By JOHN CURRAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Katherine Ann Power, who went from an unassuming winner of a Betty Crocker Homemaker award to a '60s student radical accused in a bank robbery and killing of a police officer, surrendered Wednesday after 23 years in hiding.

Power, 44, one of the most sought-after women fugitives in the nation's history, had been living since the late 1970s in Oregon, where she had raised a son, taught cooking classes, and paid her taxes on time.

Power said in a statement that she had suffered depression and had come to ask herself how "someone such as myself could commit such outrageously illegal acts," deciding she had to take responsibility.

She pleaded guilty to manslaughter and two charges of bank robbery in state court in connection with the Sept. 23, 1970, robbery and the killing of Boston police Officer Walter Schroeder Sr., 42. Power drove the getaway car, but was not there when Schroeder was killed.

Power, who wore work shirts and hiking boots in her student days, came to court in a beige business suit with a purple shirt and wire-rimmed glasses. She appeared calm, but her husband, Ron Duncan, fought back tears.

"This building isn't big enough to contain my grief," said Duncan.

The emotional scene included several law enforcement authorities, who refused to comment, and Power's parents and sister, with whom she had been reunited less than 24 hours earlier.

"We didn't know if she was alive or not," said Power's mother, Marjorie Power, 71, of Grand Junction, Colo. "It was a thrill. We showed her all the family that she hasn't seen. We had scrapbooks and everything."

Power's attorney, Rikki Klieman, indicated Power would actually spend less than five years in prison under a plea bargain agreement with the state court, but sentencing, set for Oct. 6, is at the discretion of the judge.

Later, in federal court, Power pleaded innocent before a magistrate to charges of theft of government property in connection with an earlier burglary at a National Guard Armory in Newburyport, but her attorneys said she would plead guilty at a later date before a judge. A federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution was dropped, which officials said is customary when a fugitive surrenders.

She was being held without bail in the Suffolk County Jail.

Prosecutor Brian Kelly said he would recommend that Power serve five years in prison, but that the term be concurrent with her state sentence.

Power, using the parlance of an era long ago, said in a statement that the crime stemmed from "the deep and violent crisis that the Vietnam War created in our land... (when) an intransigent president defied international law as well as the express intentions of Congress."

Her attorneys painted her both a protester in the mold of the Berrigan brothers and Jane Fonda, guilty of civil disobedience. But they also said she was "a naive young woman, unduly influenced by individuals she respected."

Free for life.

(Offer expires only when you do.)

Get an AT&T Universal MasterCard and you'll be eternally grateful.
Because it's more than just a credit card that's free of annual fees forever.
It's also an AT&T Calling Card that currently gives you a 10% discount on already competitive AT&T Calling Card rates. It's all part of The i Plan.℠

THE i PLAN℠

To apply, come by our booth on campus or call
1 800 438-8627.

AT&T

© 1993 AT&T

Amherst Sunshine CAR WASH
301 College Street (Rte. 9 East)
AUTOMATIC WASH/WAX
SELF SERVICE BAYS
Open 24 Hours
Soap/Rinse/Wax or Rubber Brush
Tire Cleaner • Engine Tile Cleaner
VACUUM CLEANERS
$1 = 8 MINUTES
Just minutes from campus or home

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE
FRIDAY, SEPT 24

Grants for:
- Visual Art & Design
- Literature, Theatre, Performance Art
- Film & Video
- Music
- Artistic components in multicultural programs

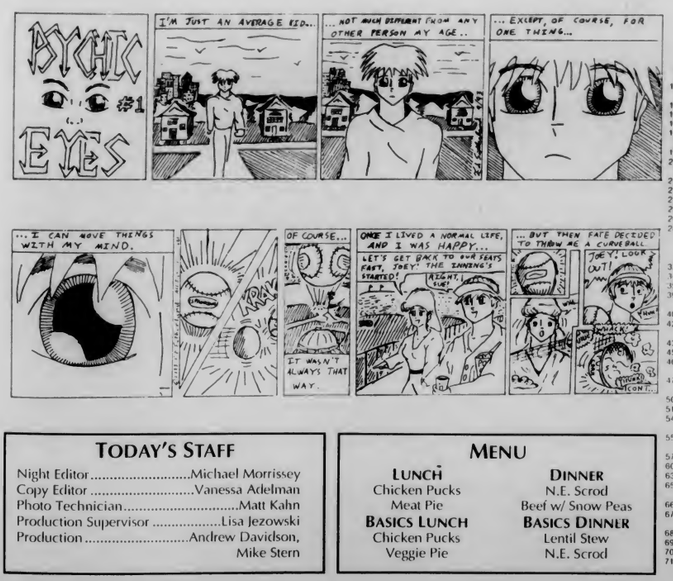
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS

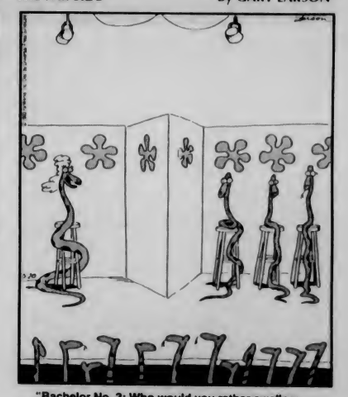
Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the the Arts Council
203 Hasbrouck
545-0202

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM



JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

PSYCHIC EYE By ED SUTHERLAND

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Bachelor No. 3: Who would you rather swallow — Mickey Mouse, Speedy Gonzales, or Rocky the Flying Squirrel? ... And why?"

Quote of the Day

"He who seeks revenge digs two graves."
– Confucius

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A lucky day for employment matters. Make some important overdue changes in your personal life. You arouse intense feelings in a member of the opposite sex.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Showcase your strength while downplaying your weaknesses. Catch up on paperwork and routine chores. An influential person sees you in a new light.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Double-check all facts and figures before making an important presentation. Open up new lines of communication at work and the atmosphere will improve.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Add positive action to positive thinking! Let others know exactly what your priorities are. There may not be an easy way to solve a recurring problem. Tap into your creative ingenuity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Feelings will run high today. Clear your mind of confusing or negative thoughts. Insurance matters, loans and joint financial ventures require prompt attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Choose your words carefully when talking with someone who is easily offended. Strengthen existing ties as well as promote your creative pursuit. Romance takes on a rosy glow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tackle routine tasks first. A heavier workload could result in a latter pay envelope. Have lunch with an old friend. Follow up leads for a second job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An old romance can be revived but you will have to use a great deal of ingenuity. You are wise to be reserved about your business dealings.

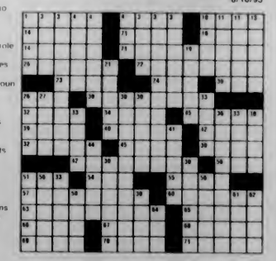
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your warm heart unites you with someone who can be a source of inspiration. New job opportunities surface. Romance could be right on a vacation plan. Redesign your diet along more healthful lines.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not allow financial worries to halt progress. You often see things others have overlooked. Move slowly on a rehabilitation project until more funds are available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Extensive research is a special plus. A deal brings new financial gains. You profit from taking a few chances. A current love deserves greater consideration.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A so-called friend is really looking for a romantic companion. Protect your belongings from theft. A swap meet or garage sale could give you extra spending money.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Side facing a glacier
6 Cougar and cheetah
10 Dull, uninteresting
14 Dugout
15 Athena's title
16 Roof overhang
17 "Norma" or "Carmen"
18 Idioms
20 Painter Max and family
22 Seethes
23 Spore sacs
24 Young 'n' amp
25 Fr. holy woman
26 Urge, with "on"
28 Milton! England — and there' Wordsworth
32 Anger
34 Cobra genus
35 Observes
39 Home of Iowa State
40 Garbo
42 Give expression to 43 Beginners
45 War god
46 "Das Rheingold" role
47 Turned up facial features
50 Go bad
51 French pronoun
54 Socks, to Chelsea
55 Judicial proceedings
57 In a hurry
60 Silver fish
63 Leading parts
65 Worker's reward
66 Part of Mit
67 Turner and Cole
68 Skin problems
69 Safe havens
70 Try out
71 Attack

DOWN
1 Barge
2 Gift wrapping need
3 Single
4 Blisters
5 Seek
6 Beret
7 Exclamation of sorrow
8 Ends
9 Biblical dancer
10 Curve
11 Shoe ties
12 Turn away
13 Darmstadt's state
19 Word with horn or stock
21 River of SE China
26 Part of QED
27 Snifter
29 Hairy spiders
30 Sacred: Comb. form
31 Bird of peace
33 Greek labyrinth
36 Turtles
37 Conductor Akira
38 Photocopy
41 Take — rest
44 Terrific
48 Old age: Comb. form
49 Sacred Egyptian beetle
51 — Brava
52 Come in!
53 Library feature
56 Vestige
58 Titles for Ekz. II et al
59 Court dividers
61 Doubly Bible's Hosea
62 Tree house
64 Fast flyer

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

J	O	W	E	R		C	A	P		E	B	B	S
O	P	E	R	A		C	O	L	E		L	A	R	A
W	A	R	D		W	O	R	D	S		S	A	G	E
S	L	E	D		E	R	R	A	T	A		T	H	E
		E	V	A	D	E		E	X	I	L	E
L	O	U	D	E	R		S	T	R	O	D	E
O	W	N		T	E	M	P	O		N	E	S	T	S
B	E	D	T		R	O	O	T	S		A	C	H	E
E	D	E	M	A		S	N	E	R		A	E	R
		R	I	P	P	E	D		S	C	A	R	A	B
	A	S	T	E	R		I	D	A	S
P	S	I		S	E	A	N	C	E		T	O	D	A
D	K	E	Y		F	I	G	H	T		D	R	U	G
S	E	G	O		A	R	L	O			C	A	R	E
E	D	E	N		B	E	Y				C	L	E	A

6/10/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor ..... Vanessa Adelman
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Lisa Jezowski
Production ..... Andrew Davidson, Mike Stern

MENU

LUNCH
Chicken Pucks
Meat Pie

BASICS LUNCH
Chicken Pucks
Veggie Pie

DINNER
N.E. Scrod
Beef w/ Snow Peas

BASICS DINNER
Lentil Stew
N.E. Scrod

Kuzara leads women's gym down a new path

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team has a new coach who is planning on doing nothing short of taking the program into the national spotlight.

David Kuzara, who replaces the departed Alfie Mitchell, is a former All-America at the University of Michigan where he had spent the last three seasons as the Wolverines assistant coach. He was named the NCAA Central Region Co-Assistant Coach of the Year in 1992.

Kuzara said that the ascent to the top should not take long, due to a strong core of returning upperclassmen and a highly recruited freshmen class.

"I believe it can happen within a couple of years," said Kuzara. "Maybe even this year."

Kuzara, who had never been to the area prior to accepting the job, has been pleased with what he has found.

"There are so many positive things here at UMass," Kuzara said. "The administration has made a tremendous commitment to the women's gymnastics program. I'm overwhelmed with what is happening at UMass."

The gymnastics facilities here at the university have also caught Kuzara's eye. The Curry Hicks Cage, according to Kuzara, is a very nice facility that has been kept in fine shape.

"In a few years, the Cage could be one of the premier competition centers in the nation," Kuzara said.

Kuzara said he was concerned about taking the job without having seen the team, but in a few short days he said he has been impressed.

"I get the feel from the team that they have a lot to accomplish," said Kuzara.

Kuzara said he plans on implementing his own system and is expecting a smooth transition. He said he believes a change in the system will be good for the team and help them grow.

Also on the agenda for Kuzara is to get the public involved with the program. Kuzara said he feels that UMass has a first rate facility and a successful program and wants to fill the Cage for home meets.

"You'll see a very exciting team. We're going to be good," Kuzara said. "You'll want to be there."

Women's Basketball Schedule

Sun. Nov. 21	Pecs (Hungary) (Exhibition)
Sun. Nov. 28	at Ohio State
Wed. Dec. 1	Northeastern
Wed. Dec. 8	New Hampshire
Sat. Dec. 11	at Providence
Wed. Dec. 29	vs. Texas Tech (at St. Peter's)
Sun. Jan. 2	Vanderbilt
Thur. Jan. 6	at Siena
Sun. Jan. 9	Vermont
Sat. Jan. 15	at St. Bonaventure
Wed. Jan. 19	Brown
Sat. Jan. 22	West Virginia
Mon. Jan. 24	Duquesne
Wed. Jan. 26	George Washington
Sat. Jan. 29	at Temple
Mon. Jan. 31	at St. Joseph's
Sat. Feb. 5	at Rhode Island
Wed. Feb. 9	St. Joseph's
Sat. Feb. 12	Rutgers
Thur. Feb. 17	at West Virginia
Sat. Feb. 19	at Duquesne
Mon. Feb. 21	Rhode Island
Sat. Feb. 26	at George Washington
Mon. Feb. 28	at Rutgers
Thur. Mar. 3	St. Bonaventure
Sat. Mar. 5	Temple
Sat. Mar. 9	A-10 Championships (at St. Joseph's)

■ men's soccer

continued from page 12

games. Yesterday, Reyes shutout the Crusaders in the first half, but the UMass offense still could not put a score on the board.

The contest remained scoreless until the 54th minute when HC sophomore forward Brian Petz tallied the first of his two goals on the day, giving the Crusaders the only goal they would need.

The strike by Petz opened the flood gates for Reyes and the Minuteman defense, as Holy Cross scored twice more before the final whistle, extending the UMass losing streak to three.

UMass had 10 shots on the day, but could not put one past Crusader keeper Chris Murphy, who recorded 10 saves.

With their three-game road trip behind them, the Minutemen return home for a battle with Atlantic 10 foe Rhode Island on Saturday at 2 p.m., their first conference game of the year.

Because only the top four teams in the A-10 regular season advance to the post-season tournament, UMass will look to win as many A-10 games as possible, especially at Garber Field.

From the start of this season, the Minutemen pointed to the NCAAs as a place they want to be come November. The winner of the A-10 tourney gets a bid to the big show, so every game from here on in for UMass in the conference is important.

The homestand for the Minutemen will be short-lived, however; UMass must travel to New Hampshire next Tuesday before getting back to the friendly confines of Garber Field to face Rutgers a week from Saturday.

■ women's soccer

continued from page 12

"It was designed to fit our skills and we feel very good about it right now. But our players are making the plays."

A number of players are surprising Rudy with their off-season development, namely forwards Nicole Roberts (five goals) and Rachel LeDuc (two goals) along with freshman midfielders Rebecca Myers (three goals, one assist) and Erin Lynch.

"Almost our entire returning team came back better than I thought and all of the freshman are playing better than I thought," Rudy said. "The new kids are very mature, especially for freshmen. You expect good things from recruits but not this quickly."

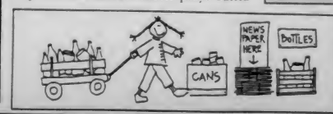
• A look at the national and regional rankings shows UMass ranked No. 8 in the nation and second in the North. The University of Hartford (3-1), ranked No. 6 nationally, is No. 1 in the region. Connecticut (3-1) is third in the North and No. 12 nationally.

The Minutewomen probably are suffering from a lack of respect from the pollsters, and should be ranked above Hartford, but the top team in the North will be decided on the field, namely on three dates (Oct. 8, UMass vs. Hartford, Oct. 23, UConn at UMass and Nov. 4, Hartford at UConn).

Both the Huskies and the Hawks lost to No. 5 Santa Clara when the California team visited the Northeast in early September. Massachusetts plays Santa Clara at St. Mary's (CA) next weekend.

• Still ranked No. 1 is eight-time defending national champion North Carolina. Carolina has already defeated No. 2 Portland, 2-0, but lost 1992 Player of the Year Mia Hamm in the process.

"(Hamm's injury) makes them a bit more reachable but not much," Rudy said.



SPORTS NOTICE

Stockbridge School Athletics: Candidates for the basketball and golf teams, there will be an important meeting today at 4 p.m. in 223 Boyden. If you are unable to attend, contact Jack Leaman, 302 Mullins Center, or call 545-1301.

• Entries are still being accepted for flag football, soccer, and softball. Play begins Monday. Stop by the Intramural Office in 215 Boyden for more information.

• There will be a crew club meeting in Mahar Auditorium tonight at 7:30 p.m. No prior experience is necessary.

• Anyone interested in the men's or women's fencing team, there will be a meeting on Monday at 4 p.m. in Totman Lobby.

GREAT END-OF-SUMMER SAVINGS RIGHT HERE!!
LIQUORS 44
BEER WINE LIQUORS

BUDWEISER (REG.-LIGHT-DRY) $9.99 + DEP — SALE 12.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.50 AFTER REBATE — CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES
MEISTERBRAU (REG. & LIGHT) $7.29 + DEP — CASE OF 24-12 OZ CANS
BEER BALLS $19.99 + DEP — BUDWEISER, BUD LIGHT, COORS, COORS LIGHT, COORS GOLD & KILLIANS
NEW BECKS OCTOBERFEST $5.49 + DEP — 6 PK BOTTLES
PETE'S WICKED LAGER & ALE $4.99 + DEP — 6 PK. BOTTLES

ALMADEN WINES $6.49 3.0L — ALL FLAVORS EXCEPT WIZIN)
SUTTER HOME $3.99 750ml — CABERNET SAUVIGNON
RIUNITE WINES $5.99 1.5L — ALL FLAVORS
WILLIAM HILL $7.99 750ml — SILVER CHARDONNAY
GLEN ELLEN $6.99 1.5L — WHITE ZINFANDEL

GORDON'S VODKA $11.49 1.75L
ABSOLUT VODKA $9.99 750ml
JIM BEAM $13.99 1.75L
CRUZAN RUM $7.49 1.75L — SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 4.00 AFTER REBATE
CANADIAN MIST $7.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE — SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00

not responsible for typographical errors VISA MASTERCARD
OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 9/16/93 THRU WEDS. 9/22/93
Full Redemption Center

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact Step Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

The Collegian.
545-3500.
Call Us!

August the First
has thousands of
BEADS
Visit Amherst's New Bead store
Free Classes ◆ Jewelry Supplies ◆ Finished Jewelry ◆ Beads
OPEN 7 DAYS
from 10am-6pm, Sun. 12-5pm
44 Main Street Amherst
256-0276

■ Scott

continued from page 12

• Sure, last Saturday's Holy Cross game was a great win for the Minutemen, and yes the attendance was impressive, but let's be realistic and admit that Division I-A football is a loooong way off.

• "Mallen's Center" will be the site of the home opener on October 30, just in time for Halloween. Bet the goalies have some great masks.

• I took the time to read the entire Boston Globe special section on the death of Reggie Lewis and still the only question remains — WHY?

• Let's hear it for the UMass women's soccer team who went into Hartford and came away with the Holiday Inn Soccer Cup, stealing it from the host, University of Hartford Hawks. That's sort of like going into the White House and stealing the desk from the Oval Office. A slap in the face indeed.

By the way, was that Diamond Jim Rudy trying to outbid San Diego Dan for Patriots tickets? Rudy quit bidding when he found out the Patriots use their hands and not just their feet. Sa-lad.

• Aside from looking absolutely legit as a linebacker, Mario Perry has the perfect LB's name.

• Early word from The Cage is that Marcus Camby, Can Be.

• My dog Bo has decided to come out of retirement to reclaim the Dog Boxing Council's middleweight championship he retired with two years ago. The reason? We're now back in Belchertown where it all began some years back against a dog called Rock, on a street named destiny in an era labeled hope.

Now, as he regains the eye of the tiger (not the Brady's dog), Bo is driven by those who say he's over the hill. Don King is arranging the Pay-per-view.

• The Shirl (mother and sports officianado) is gearing up for the final weeks of the pennant race. She still likes the Red Sox and speculation is she's been sniffing yeast again.

The Shirl, picking tomorrow's winners today.

• Wasn't it great to hear Mike "Sea Dog" Fagerson back on the radio last Saturday? No one gets as excited about bringing out the chains for a measurement as the Sea Dog.

• Hockeyheads have been telling me that Ray Bourque's days are over in Boston. I know not what that means, but in an effort to be more diversified we're trying to mention hockey more often. An equal opportunity column.

• I got to meet my namesake at Saturday's football game and as Lloyd Bentsen kind of said, "Chancellor, I knew David Scott. David Scott was a friend of mine and you are no David Scott."

• The Cravat King battle for best tie in the UMass media corps has started early this year due to overwhelming demand. Surprise entrant Garry Brown from the Springfield Union News took quick control with his dog tie. Labrador retrievers love the thing.

• Anyone else having withdrawals from John Calipari-isms?

• Keep your feet in bounds and your eyes on Rebecca Myers.

David Scott is a Collegian columnist.

■ field hockey

continued from page 12

half when she was given a penalty stroke and placed it in the top left corner of the net.

"I knew exactly where it was going," Hart said. "After that first one, that left post was totally free. The goalkeeper was shying from that side, and it opened it up for me."

Senior co-captain Tara Jelley added the icing on the cake when she scored from a yard out on a loose ball at 10:15. The goal was Jelley's fifth of the year and she has now scored at least one goal in each Minutewomen victory.

"We're not a high scoring team," Hixon said. "For us to get a corner, a stroke, and a field goal — that's a good mix of scoring opportunities, and I think we could've had some more. We really dominated this team."

Once again, the Minutewomen outplayed their opponents in every facet of the game. They outshot the Lady Friars 28-14 while holding a 6-5 advantage in penalty corner situations. Rose recorded 12 saves for UMass. Her counterpart, Martiniello, was equally impressive with 21 saves.

The Minutewomen are off until they travel to Yale next Wednesday.

WOMEN'S TENNIS WINS FIRST MATCH OF SEASON

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team, coached by Judy Dixon, defeated Central Connecticut 5-3 yesterday. Here are the results for the Minutewomen:

SINGLES (UMass players in bold)
Liesl Sitton def. Daniela Klein-Impelmann, 6-1, 6-3.
Liz Durant def. Jackie Pagano, 7-5, 6-7 (8-6), 6-3.
Violet Markowski def. Stacey Scheckner, 6-3, 6-4
Janine Litzman def. Pam Levine, 6-1, 6-3.
Dianne Laviero def. Alissa Cohen, 6-2, 6-1
Lesley Watts def. Heather Davis, 6-1, 6-2.

DOUBLES
Watts / Scheckner def. Litzman / Levine, 6-3, 6-1
Cohen / Levine def. Markowski / Davis, 6-3, 7-6

The Minutewomen will travel to Norton, Mass., this Friday to face the Lyons of Wheaton College.

SUMMER Peloton Sports Outrageous Clearance! SUMMER
Take the Bus Route to our front door!
Deals on Wheels!
Concordia ATB 15 spd. Shimano Index Shifters Now $179.99
'94 Diamond Back Outlook Mtn. reg. 299.95 Now 259.99
'94 Diamond Back Parkway reg. 279.99 Now 259.99
'94 Diamond Back Traverse reg. 329.99 Now 299.99
GT Talera (odd sizes) reg. 399.99 Now 329.99
GT Zaskar XT Mag 9'i shock reg.1,799.99 Now 1,399.99
GT RTS Dual Suspension XT reg.1,799.99 Now 1,399.99
Accessories at Warehouse Prices.
Rhode Gear Ultra Lite reg. 39.99 Now 19.99
Cycle Design U Locks reg. 28.99 Now 14.99
Kryptonite Combo lock reg. 18.99 Now 10.99
Cycling Gloves as low as 4.95 a pair
Cycle Design Bar Ends reg. 39.99 Now 29.99
Avenir Gel Saddles reg. 27.99 Now 19.99
Time or Shimano Cycling Shoes reg. 89-189 Now 40.00
Allen Car Racks reg. 49.99 Now 39.99
Selected Rear Luggage Racks as low as 19.99
Avenir AV-1 6 Function reg. 39.99 Now 24.99
Weightlifting
Dumbells 1-85 lb. as low as .89 per lb.
Plates Standard & Olympic as low as .69 per lb.
Belts Nylon or leather 22.99
Bars All types 20% off
Mens and Women's Swimwear 30%-50% Off
Aerobicwear by Gilda, Speedo, Sport Jock
Racquet Sports
Tennis
Pro Kennex Graphite (Strung) reg. 69.99 Now 49.99
Tributa (Strung) reg. 99.99 Now 79.99
Wilson Hammer 2 ? (Strung) reg. $99.99 Now $39.99
Racquetball
Introducing Ektelon Dynax EXD reg. 99.99 Sale 89.99
Pro Kennex Pro Saber reg. 27.99 Sale 19.99
Badminton
Yonex 8550 reg. 14.99 Sale 11.99
Squash In stock Prince
Prince Extender Pro LP reg. 49.99 Sale 39.99
Inline Skate Model Closeouts
Turboblades and Ultra Wheels Closeouts as low as 49.99 and see our revolutionary new Skate Stopping System
Peloton NORTHAMPTON Sports
15 State St. • 584-1016
Sale is limited to in stock items only. Sale ends Sept 20th
Hours: M-W 11-7 • T-F 11-8 • S 10-6 • S 12-5
SALE ENDS SEPT. 20TH
AMERICAN EXPRESS MasterCard VISA

Classifieds

- 20c per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons – Free · Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks Free book, lessons, t-shirt Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

Club CCA
Friday 9/17/93
9 pm- 1 am
$2.00 Members
$4.00 Nonmembers
Sponsored by the
Asian American
Students Association

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AUDITIONS
For the UMass Theatre Guild's production of "Black Comedy." Room 904 CC Sat., 7 pm. Sun 2 pm and 7 pm.
77 5-0415

College Pizza
Open for lunch
At 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 toppings add $1
549 6073 549 6098

Eurohouse Party

Eurohouse Party III
D.J. Tasos
Friday, Sept. 17, 9 pm
UMass Campus Center 10th Floor
Refreshments - Cash Bar
$3 before 10 pm - $4 after 10 pm
Organized by
Five Colleges European Club

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543 5640

Need a locker? We have them at OCHO, 428 Student Union

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating oil at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Come join NOW!

UMass Dance Team Auditions
12:00 Sunday 9/19
19th floor JA Tower
Questions? Contact Lorin: 546 1070

Women Ice Hockey Players
Interested in joining a club?
Call CHERI 665 0485 exp. preferred but not required.

AUTO FOR SALE

Chevy Citation 1980 Auto, cruise, runs ok, no rust, $500. 584-7936.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Downtown, Quiet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4236 9am - 9 pm.

Small Dorm Sized refridgerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets
Call
546-3169
or 546-3866

AEROSMITH TICKETS best offer 549-1274 evenings

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Computer 286 M30 with so many software. 549-7577

DOC Martens
Brown Derby Boots
Size 5 Men (7 women)
Brand new worn twice
$80 or b/o for more info. 546-0070 Helen

IBM Computer – IBM PS12 Model 50. Color monitor, math-co, HDisk, 3 1/2 & 5 1/4 drives $500. 545-6641, 323-5031.

100% Pure Cashmere
$95 Shawls, $195 Twin Blankets
$250 Queen 1 800 428 7825 x 303

Sega Games
NHLPA '93 and many more
$20 and up
Call Dilo at 253 4701

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

286 IBM Compatible, enhanced key board; monochrome monitor; 20 MB Hardrive; 1 MG RAM; $550 665 0031

T.V.'s – 19" COLOR. Cable ready! $85. 549 4793

White Ferrer for Sale
8 Month old. Cute, energetic, good pet for a good laugh, best offer over $50 Call Dan 6 5152

FOR SALE - AUDIO

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256 0941

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Childcare for 10 year old boy, in Leverett, Car req, some overnites. 548-9057

EARTHFOODS IS HIRING!!!
Student-run vegetarian cafe
Seeks a diverse
Group of responsible people
For hard work and fun
Applications available in
The CSB Office, 409 Student Union

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

GREEKS AND CLUBS
RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your frat, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for you self!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling
1 800 932 0528 ext. 75

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information.

Spring Break '94 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student travel services is now hiring campus reps call 800-648-4849

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

INTERNSHIPS

The Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is hiring interns for Fall semester. Conduct research, lobbying, training, and organizing in support of Student Government Association Agenda for Change. 6 work study credits for 15-20 hours per week. To apply send letter of interest to SCERA Box 128 Student Union. For more information call Marc 545-0341

MOTORCYCLES

Motorcycle Honda CX500 78 black 27,000 miles. NEW PARTS. $650 Brian 545-2735 days.

1985 Honda Interceptor 700 White runs strong. $ 900 b/o 549-4625

MUSICIANS

Guitarist seeks Bass player and drummer to form original heavy heavy rock band.
5 years experience required.
Matt 549-3581

PERSONALS

To the Cutest docile puppy on campus. I Love You lots, Tina

RIDE WANTED

Interested in carpooling from Longmeadow or Forestpark area. 567-6237

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo 323-9742

SERVICES

Experienced Child Care
Student seeking employment in Amherst area excellent references CPR non-smoker call 546-3552 leave message

FactFinder Custom Library Research
All students PO Box 3242 Amherst MA 01004 3242 549-0312

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

SITUATION

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

WANTED

I'm looking for a place my dog can run. Must be fenced with no small children. Will pay cash. 2-3 days a week. Mike 256-1960.

Looking to Trade
Quality
Phish and Panic tapes
Mike 549-1272

SportsLine tonight at 6 p.m. on WMUA 91.1 FM, Pigskin Picks in Friday's Collegian

Sports

Hart, Rothenberger lead UMass past PC

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Natalie Hart of the UMass field hockey team scored two goals Wednesday in a 3-0 win over Providence College.

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

It's only the fourth game of the year, but already the University of Massachusetts field hockey team is in mid-season form. It was business as usual for the Minutewomen yesterday as they defeated Providence College 3-0 before a packed house at sun-drenched Totman Field.

Providence Coll.	0
Massachusetts	3

Business as usual for UMass (3-1) has come to mean an outstanding defensive effort from the Minutewomen and yesterday was no exception.

Led by juniors Kyri Sparks and Natalie Hart, senior co-captain Tracy Barclay, sophomore Andrea Cabral, and freshman Kyle Rothenberger, the UMass D completely dominated the Lady Friar offense, allowing only 14 shots against freshman goalkeeper Hilary Rose, who recorded her third straight shutout.

Highlighting the defensive effort was the play of Rothenberger. Coming in, Rothenberger was given the unenviable task of marking Cathy Guden, PC's 1st team All-America midfielder. Not only did Rothenberger contain Guden, she completely shut her down. Guden managed only four shots, with all of those coming after the Minutewomen had established the three-goal lead.

"I think I did pretty well considering her reputation," Rothenberger said. "I was a little scared coming in when I found out she was an all-american, but I just had to put my game into perspective and just do what I had to do."

"I'm not sure Cathy had any true scoring opportunities from the field," UMass coach Pam Hixon said. "So a freshman to shut down a Division I All-American is big. Kyle was great."

"My philosophy is if you have a good defense, you're always going to be in the game," said Hixon. "Then it only takes one to win."

The one that the Minutewomen would need came at 7:12 of the first half when Hart blasted a penalty corner pass from Holly Hockenbrock past PC goalie Gina Martiniello for her first goal of the season.

"She's got a beautiful stroke," said PC coach Jackie Barto. "It looked like she just picked the post on that first shot."

Hart made it 2-0 at 4:55 of the second

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

Football notebook: UMass 25th

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team, with its worst beating of Holy Cross in a decade, jumped up to the I-AA Top 25 for the first time since last season.

The Minutemen, by virtue of their 37-7 win last week, slipped into the 25th spot, up from 32nd last week. Most of the players either did not know or did not care about the fact they were ranked.

"We are?" said senior safety Matt Rajotte. "I didn't even know we were ranked, and I don't even worry about it. It doesn't really mean much. The Maine game is what we're worried about."

Senior outside linebacker Scott Assencoa said he was more worried about next weekend then the team's ranking.

"I haven't thought twice about it," Assencoa said. "Last week was only one week. We've still got 10 more to go."

• • • • •

The newest upgrade for UMass football occurred right before the Holy Cross game, when athletic director Bob Marcum gave the team a surprise gift.

As the team went into the locker room for a pregame speech, Marcum put a sign above the gate the team uses to enter the field. It said "Play Like a Champion - TODAY" with the year-by-year listing of UMass' 17 Yankee Conference championships beneath it.

"Boy, were those guys pumped up when the saw that," head coach Mike Hodges said. "It was a great surprise, and I want to thank [Marcum]. I'm changing the locks on the gate so we only use it on the day of the game."

"It's a fantastic sign," Assencoa said. "It's a sign that makes you feel good that you have the staff support behind you."

• • • • •

With the team heading northeast for its longest road trip of the season, two games, you might think the people working down at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium would have it easy. Not so.

"We travel with the team," said equipment manager Wally Goyette, who has worked at the stadium for eight years. "Getting ready for a game is a big job in regards to packing, traveling, and being responsible for the players and coaches' belongings."

Goyette and assistant Larry Bourdeau typically spend all week preparing for a road game. They said it takes them from Monday to Thursday to pack for the trips, and they must take along extra equipment in case of emergencies.

"I generally bring three extra pairs of shoulder pads and two helmets for each away game," Goyette said. "But I bring at least six types of helmet liners so they can be replaced."

The team fits thousands of pounds of equipment on the same two buses that carry 55 players, nine coaches, two equipment managers and assorted team managers. UMass leaves Friday morning for Maine.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Quarterback Andrew McNeilly and the UMass football team leapt to 25th in the country after last week's 37-7 win over Holy Cross.

Shots on Drew, new UM regime

The Board of Trustees contemplated changing the name of this space to "Chancellor's Answers." We compared that to calling the new Boston Garden, the Shawmut Center. The name remains the same.

The Collegian's Own SCOTT'S SHOTS

• In our first act as the official mouthpiece for the Chancellor, we reiterate our campaign promise of Free Beer and Sports for All. Thank you for your support.

• When the Drew England Patriots notch their first win under Savior Bill Parcells this Sunday, it will become acceptable to reserve Super Bowl tickets. Just Drew It.

• Lots of new faces in and around Boyden and here's a heartfelt welcome to the new era of UMass athletics. The Mark of Marcum is being emblazoned everywhere from fresh maroon and white paint in Boyden to the "Play Like Champions Today" sign at McGuirk.

Turn to SCOTT, page 11

Minutemen fall to Crusaders

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team continued its slumping ways yesterday against Holy Cross, falling 3-0 to the Crusaders and lowering its record to 1-3.

After winning their first game of the season against Boston University here at Garber Field, the Minutemen have never been the same. UMass has only scored one goal on the year, and that was senior Randy Jacobs' game-winner against the Terriers.

Ever since that victory, UMass head coach Sam Koch's team has had no offense, and is still searching for an answer to end the squad's three-game losing streak.

Holy Cross	3
Massachusetts	0

Along the way, the Minutemen lost starting goalkeeper Mark Wolf to injury, and have started freshman Brackie Reyes between the pipes for the last two

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 10

Women's soccer making it look easy

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy liked to complain last season about what his team was doing to his health. The Minutewomen won 16 games last season, but most of them were nail-biters, one-goal games and overtime contests. 1-0 was all too commonplace.

It appeared it would be more of the same this season when the Minutewomen lost the majority of their scoring punch, as leading scorer Kim Eynard graduated.

However, the team (4-0) is doing wonders for Rudy's health this season as they have racked up 11 goals in its four victories (2-1 over Boston College, 5-0 against Rhode Island and 3-0 over both Michigan State and Colordao College), showing some unexpected firepower.

Some of the credit has to go to Rudy, who developed a new offensive system which relies on quick decisions, positioning and skilled play over speed and one-on-one talent.

"The system has been very good so far," Rudy said.

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 10

THIS WEEKEND

September 16 – 19

The Collegian's Guide to Arts & Entertainment in the Five College Area

The Age of Intelligence

This fall Hollywood gets serious

By Jon Lupo ❖ Collegian Staff

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Michelle Pfeiffer and Daniel Day-Lewis star in "The Age of Innocence."

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Alec Baldwin and Nicole Kidman of "Malice."

Serious moviegoers, rejoice! After a loud, boisterous and thoroughly entertaining summer, the fall season is aimed at considerably more serious fare. Sure, they'll be the silly no-brainers (see below) that just want to please, but the bulk of new releases are of a different, more austere caliber. By the looks of it, Hollywood is aspiring to one-up themselves with an autumn jam-packed with A-list stars, stories and directors.

On the other hand, it's perfectly conceivable that all of these movies could suck big time, but hey, let's hope not.

First up is probable Oscar-hogger The Age of Innocence. It's been said before, but who would've thunk that movie-God Martin Scorsese would want to direct a period piece about repressed and forbidden love? Then again, why not? Let's face it, if this man directed Hocus Pocus it'd be amazing. Scorsese steers Michelle Pfieffer, Daniel Day-Lewis and Winona Ryder in a big-bucks version of Edith Wharton's 1920 classic. Pfeiffer's rumored to give the performance of her career (funny, I though she did in Grease 2) and the trailer's been known to give goosebumps the size of Mickey Rourke's ego, so Age looks like the season's highbrow sure bet.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Liam Neeson stars in "Schindler's List."

Age isn't the only sweeping period drama on the schedule. Those kooky folks at Merchant-Ivory have re-teamed with their Howards End co-horts, Anthony Hopkins and Emma Thompson (if it ain't broke . . .), for an adaptation of Kazuo Ishiguro's The Remains of the Day. It's all about a repressed butler and the former housekeeper he pines for. Sorry folks, Helena Bonham-Carter is nowhere to be found in this film, but if it's any consolation, Christopher Reeve picks up the slack. Oh, joy.

M. Butterfly is David Cronenberg's take on the stage hit about a Chinese opera singer (Last Emperor's John Lone) who romances a French diplomat (Jeremy Irons), without letting him know that (woops!) he's a guy. Maybe we don't know all we knew about The Crying Game. Opera and homoeroticism also figure in Farewell My Concubine. Chen Kaige's grand (and Chinese-censored) epic that shared the Palm d'Or at Cannes with another period drama, The Piano. Jane Campion directs Holly Hunter (Best Actress winner) as a mute frontier woman who has the right angle in a love triangle with Sam Neill and Harvey Keitel.

Two big name directors return to the scars of war in Heaven and Earth and Schindler's List. Earth has Oliver Stone returning to the Vietnam War with the story of the 'conflict' through the eyes of a Vietnamese peasant woman. Red hot Tommy Lee Jones and yikes, Debbie Reynolds (?!) co-star. What, Tippi Hendren wasn't available?

Steven Spielberg is helming List, a three-hour, black and white drama about the Holocaust. Liam Neeson stars as the true life hero who saved hundreds from death in a concentration camp.

Turn to MOVIES, page 5

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Julia Roberts of "The Pelican Brief."

—Crowd Pleasers—

If your tastes don't run highbrow, there are plenty of no-brainer flicks that will not require you to think at all. Enjoy.

• Beverly Hillbillies — The director of Wayne's World sticks to televsion. With Jim Varney (of Ernest fame) as Jed.

• Wayne's World 2 — That dynamic duo in a Dutch language version of "Oedipus Rex." Not.

• The Good Son — Macaulay Culkin goes psycho in this Bad Seed-knockoff.

• The Pelican Brief — Julia Roberts and Denzel Washington in this Firm adaptation of John Grisham's bestseller.

• I'll Do Anything — Another attempt at a movie musical. Nick Nolte sings. Really.

• Sister Act 2 — Whoopi's back. Unfortunately.

• Mrs. Doubtfire — Robin Williams is a drag as a female nanny.

• Striking Distance — Bruce Willis as a renegade cop. What a stretch.

• Demolition Man — Sly Stallonne vs. Wesley Snipes in a futuristic action flick.

• Robocop 3 — Why? Why? Why?

• The Three Musketeers — Charlie Sheen is 1/3 of this umpteenth remake.

• Mother's Boys — Jamie Lee Curtis as an evil mommy.

• Cool Running — John Candy in a comedy about the true life story of the Jamaican bobsled team (truly a story that needed to be told).

• Nightmare Before Christmas — Tim Burton's (Batman) dastardly X-mas tale starring stop-motion puppets.

• Return of the Living Dead III — 'Nuff said.

— JON LUPO

Tonight: a double bill of acoustic rock

By JONATHAN RATCLIFF
Collegian Correspondent

Recording artists Heidi Berry and Red House Painters take their live musical acts to Northampton's Iron Horse Music Hall tonight for a double bill of folk-influenced acoustic rock.

Singer/songwriter Heidi Berry's haunting vocals, when one first hears them, are reminiscent of folk legend Joni Mitchell, who Berry claims is an early influence on her music. She also lists Nick Drake, Richard Thompson, and the English folk of Sandy Denny as other sources of inspiration.

Running comparisons, however, do no justice to Berry's music, which is unique and definitely her own.

"I want to be individual and exactly what I am. I think in my character — my personal character — it's like that, and in music I don't care to be aligned totally with anything. My music is very individual, very particular to me," Berry said.

In the folk tradition, Berry's songs are concerned with the aspects of the human condition, relationships, love, and loss. With these topics, she incorporates a contemporary feel, not shying away from utilizing modern recording styles and a variety of instruments along with acoustic guitar.

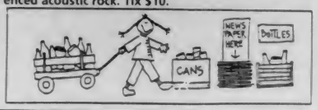
Music publication Melody Maker reviews the recent Berry album: "All the dreamy bits in one handy container. Concentrated, liquid romance."

According to Rolling Stone Magazine, Red House Painters' "music is quiet, intensely atmospheric folk rock with occasional psychedelic touches, played at a hypnotic dirge tempo. It's music that vaguely brings to mind Nick Drake, Neil Young, and, perhaps, the Velvet Underground's 'Pale Blue Eyes'— without sounding much like any of them."

Red House Painters' music, at times, can be likened (if you can envision this) to a touch more morose version of Colorado's The Samples minus the bouncy dance beats. Lead singer/lyricist Mark Kozelek sings of loneliness, solitude, and the problems of relationships; and the often times meditative tempo of the music gives his lyrics time to sink in to the listener.

"I've always enjoyed songs more than riff-oriented music, lyrical songs with acoustic guitars. But I'd never write a song and think it would sound good slowed down — for me it's natural to play at that pace," Kozelek said.

Red House Painters is a San Francisco outfit who had received positive local press for live shows in the Bay area, but had not branched out into the national scene until American Music Club's Mark Eitzel became extremely enthusiastic about their music and aided them in getting signed with 4AD records.



Both Heidi Berry and the Red House Painters have recently released albums under the 4AD label, and their show at the Iron Horse is the second of a nation wide tour they have scheduled together.

Tickets are available in advance at the cost of $8.50 through the Northampton Box Office, or for $10 at the door. The show begins tonight at 7pm., and Iron Horse shows are for all ages.

COURTESY KEVIN WESTENBERG

Heidi Berry will join Red House Painters tonight at the Iron horse at 7 p.m. for a display of folk influenced acoustic rock. Tix $10.

Pearl Street

DANCE CLUB
Featuring The Area's Biggest Dance Floor and Best Light Show!

Wednesday –
GAY NIGHT
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.

Thursday–WHMP
EIGHTEEN & OVER DANCING
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
WHMP's Panana Jack Broadcasting Live

Sept. 16 - Five College Survival Party - Prizes, Giveaways, Etc.
Oct. 7 - Model Search By Elite Modeling of New York
Party on Thursday, Receive a Free Admission Pass For Friday

Friday–
DANCING WITH DJ PETE D.
Playing More Top 40 Music

Sept. 17 - Captain Morgan Night - Prizes, Giveaways
Sept. 24 - Back To School Party, Free admission between 8:00pm and 9:00pm with College I.D.
Listen To WHMP In The Morning For Your Chance To Win An Office Party

Saturday–
The Areas Biggest & Best Saturday Night Dance Party with DJ Pete D.
Playing More Top 40 music

Coming Oct. 2 - The Dating Game
Miller Genuine Draft $2 and Captain Morgan $2.75 all month

LIVE MUSIC

Thurs., Sept.16-9:00pm/18+
CHUCKLEHEAD

Fri., Sept. 17 - 9:00pm
Raggae Dance Party
THE ITALS
THE EQUALITES

Sat., Sept. 18-9pm
Local Band Showcase!
DIESELMEAT
WOMBAT/OUT OUT

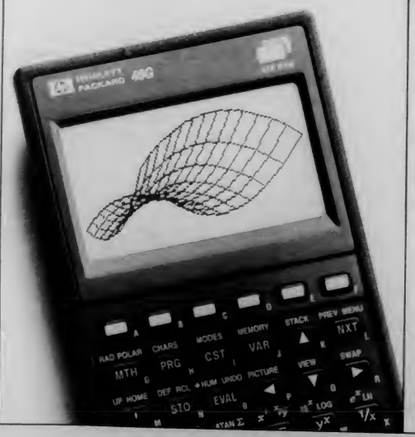
Tues., Sept. 21 - 9:00pm/18+/
THE POSIES
DIG

Thurs., Sept. 23-9:00pm/18+/
Led Zeppelin Tribute
PHYSICAL GRAFFITI

Fri., Sept. 24 - 9:00 pm
RIPPOPOTAMUS
Electric Noodle Factory

Thurs., Sept. 30 - 9:00 pm/18+/
AC/DC Tribute
BACK IN BLACK

Fri., Oct. 1-7:00pm
Male Dance Revue
CALIFORNIA PLAYGIRL CENTERFOLDS
Downstairs-9:00pm
U2 Tribute
ZOO STATION



Tues., Oct.5-9:00pm
JASON & THE SCORCHERS
The Swinging Steaks

Thurs., Oct.7-9:00pm/18+/
THE MACHINE

Tues., Oct.12-9:00pm/18+/
THE SAMPLES

Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office, For The Record in Amherst: Ticket Pro (800) 828-7080
10 Pearl Street Northampton 584-7771

The new 3-D graphing grade-making easy-learning fast-answering budget-pleasing headache-busting HP 48G

Check it out
The new HP 48G graphic calculator gives you a whole lot more for a whole lot less than you think.

Get more
- Push a button, choose from the pull-down menu, and fill in the blanks. Entering data is that easy.
- View 3-D graphs.
- Access over 300 built-in equations.
- Perform algebra and calculus operations on equations before entering values.
- Enter and see equations like they appear on paper.
- Work with different units of measure. The HP 48G will convert them for you. For example, enter inches, centimeters, yards, and feet, together in one equation — it'll convert them.

Get more ... for less
- Compare prices — the HP 48G fits your budget.

Special introductory offer*
When you buy an HP 48G or HP 48GX, you can get free software (plus games!) and a free cable for connecting to your desktop PC. Write programs for the HP 48 using your PC keyboard, or store HP 48 files and programs on your desktop PC.

Pick up a coupon at your college bookstore.

HEWLETT PACKARD

*Offer good while supplies last on purchases made from August 1, 1993 through October 31, 1993. See coupon for terms and conditions.
©Hewlett-Packard Company PG 12306B

WEEKEND HAPPENINGS

The Weekend Happenings calendar is printed each Thursday during the academic year. Groups wishing to have an event published may send a press release containing all necessary information to Lisa Curtis – Arts & Living Editor, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian regrets that due to space constraints not all submissions can be published.

THURSDAY

CONCERT— Chucklehead will rock the house at Pearl Street in Northampton tonight at 8:30 p.m. Wolfgang will open this 18 + show, call 584-7771 for ticket information/reservations.

EXHIBIT— A collection of works by artists Jin Soo Kim, Elliott Erwitt, Bill Arnold and collaborative Independent Curatiors Inc., of New York will be featured at the University Gallery through October 22. The exhibit displays sculpture, black and white photographs and single-channel, international videotapes which reflect life's transience, daily situations between dogs and people, and praises the works of the first generation of women artists to work with certain mediums. The University Gallery is open to the public Tuesday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and weekends 2-5 p.m. Exhibits are free.

DANCE— Internationally renowned, Indian classical dance companies the Jhaveri Sisters Manipuri Dance Troupe and Nrityashree will perform tonight at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The double-bill performance will kick off a three-month celebration of South Asian culture. There will be a free pre-concert lecture about the dance styles at 7 p.m. outside Bowker, on the lawn. Tix: $13, half price with a five-college ID, $8 for children 16 and under. Call 545-2511 for information and reservations.

CONCERT— Fast music for fast times will be all the rage at the Black Sheep Cafe tonight as Maple Ridge Bluegrass does its thing. Stop by between 8 and 11 p.m. for some music and coffee. Call 773-7428 for information and bookings.

EXHIBIT— Residential Arts presents Jocelyn Castro's Mimesis & Metaphor at the Hampden Gallery through October 15. There will be an opening reception today from 5-7 p.m., where Castro will answer questions about her latest embroidery, quilting and fabric collage work. The Gallery is open Monday-Friday 3-7 p.m., Sunday 2-5 p.m.

THEATRE WORKSHOP— Chicano Secret Service will present a workshop at UMass' Curtain theater today between 1:25 and 3:30 p.m. The workshop is in correlation with open auditions being held for Performance Project. Contact Wendy Woodson at the Dance/Theater studio for more information.

RECEPTION— Visions of India, a collection of contemporary Indian paintings by Susmita Bando with contributions from the Beorgana Foster Collection will sponsor a reception today in the Student Union Gallery from 5-7 p.m.

CONCERT— Diane Shure will shake the tent at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton tonight at 7 and 10 p.m. Call 586-8686 for more info, or to purchase $16.50 tickets in advance.

EXHIBIT— "... other languages, other signs ..." The Books of Antonio Fransconi will feature over 50 works containing the artist's distinctive woodblock prints, through October 31 at the Smith College Museum of Art. The museum is open Tuesday-Sunday, noon-4 p.m., Thursday noon-8 p.m.

CONCERT — Heidi Berry, a Sibbery-June Tabor-Natalie Merchant-type, will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton tonight at 7 p.m. Tix are $8.50 in advance.

COURTESY PRETTY POLLY PRODUCTIONS

Chucklehead

"Other Languages, Other Signs" COURTESY SMITH COLLEGE MUSEUM OF ART

FRIDAY

LECTURE — A lecture "The Etruscans and the Classics" will be given by Larissa Bonfante, of New York University. This event is free at Amherst College Stirn Auditorium at 4:30 p.m.

FILM — Sister Act, starring Whoopi Goldberg as a Las Vegas style lounge singer hiding out in a convent, will be shown at Mount Holyoke College Gamble uditorium at 7 and 9 p.m. $2.50 .

THEATER — "Chicano Secret Service," a lecture demonstration, can be seen at Smith College's Wright hall from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Free.

FILM — Brazil: One man's dream in a nightmare society. Admission is $1.75 at the Amherst College Campus Center Theater at 7:30 and 10 p.m.

MUSIC — The Doshisha Glee Club Concert, part of a tour of 150 singers to promote American Japanese friendship, will perform at the Amherst College Buckley Recital Hall at 8 p.m.

MUSIC — Faculty members Linda Laderach (violin), Larry Schipull (piano) will perform works by Pierne, Stravinsky, and Brahms, at Mount Holyoke College's Pratt Auditorium at 8 p.m. Free.

MUSIC — Quetzal, the valley's premier traditionally rooted Latin band, will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall at 7 p.m. Tickets are $7.50.

CONCERT — The Itals, one of reggae's premier vocal trios, have recorded and toured since 1976. Local favorites The Equalites open the show at 9 p.m. in Pearl Street in Northampton.

DANCE — "Wise Men," a concert of dances by three male choreographers who share some of the same issues and philosophies, will take place Friday through Sunday the 18 at Scott Dance Studio in Smith College. Tickets are available at the door for $5 and $4 for students and senior citizens.

SATURDAY

AUDITIONS — Play auditions for Black Comedy will be held in the UMass Campus Center rooms 904-08 from 9 a.m. until 1 a.m.

FILM —Mediterraneo, 1992 Academy Award for best foreign film, is in Italian with subtitles. Showings will be at 7 and 9 p.m. at Mount Holyoke College's Gamble Auditorium. Admission is $2.50.

THEATER — Do the Riot Thing, performed by the Chicano Secret Service, "Aztlan's most dangerous comedy troupe" investigates issues raised by the 1992 L.A. riots. Tickets are $3 for students. The show begins at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

CONCERT — ' cal rockers, Dieselmeat, perform with guests Wombat, among others TBA. The show begins at 9 p.m. $4.

CELEBRATION — The Montague Book Mill is hosting a gathering to celebrate the publishing of Virtuous Citizens/Disruptive Subjects, a book written by Barbara Yngvesson about the law in Greenfield, Leverett, and Turner's Falls. Free.

CONCERT — Yagottwanna, an a cappella trio, is back by popular demand to the Green River Cafe in Greenfield. The three write their own songs, primarily about social issues with an emphasis on the rights of women. The show begins at 9 p.m. Admission is $6.

CONCERT — Chris Smither will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton tonight in support of his new release. The show begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $8.50 in advance.

SUNDAY

OPENING — The Northampton Center for the Arts is pleased to announce the opening of two exhibitions, Paintings by Lisa Houck Leary in the East Gallery and New Works: Paintings by Lisa Whelan in the West Gallery. The reception will be from 3 to 5 p.m.

CONCERT — Laura Klock, professor of Music at UMass is part of a program of music for four horns to begin 8 p.m., in Bezanson Recital Hall. Free.

RECITAL — The Arcadia players under the direction of Meg Irwin-Brandon, will perform "Kings and Tragic Heroes" at Sweeney Concert Hall at Smith College at 12:30 p.m.

RECEPTION — A reception for Interface, a collaborative show that will be displayed in the gallery throughout the month of Sept. at the Montague Book Mill. Organized by Candice Curran, this show combines the words and images of 20 local poets and visual artists. The reception starts at 5 p.m., and at 6 p.m. and there will be a poetry reading and discussion of the collaborative process. FREE.

MUSIC — Joe Belmont and Jim Henry, monsters of guitar pyrotechnics, will perform their originals flavored with jazz, blues, and folk at the Green River Cafe at 8 p.m. $6.

CONCERT — Mouth Music, fusing ancient Celtic language and song styles with all the pulsing underpinnings of Afro Pop, will perform at the Iron Horse Music hall in Northampton. The show begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 in advance.

F-Word goes on tour

'Sleeveless' celebrates feminism

By MELISSA WEINBERGER
Collegian Correspondent

This month marks Sleeveless September as the Northampton Center for the Arts welcomes the self-proclaimed "local political comedy troupe," Sleeveless Theater, to its stage for a medley of performances.

Co-sponsored by the Art's Community and Claudia's Cheesecakes, this fund-raising event showcases four different presentations of the troupe's unique blend of humor and political commentary. Last Sunday night's The F-Word: a fresh and funny look at feminism combined herstory (and the lack of it) and parody into an hour and a half of of insightful entertainment, both teaching and teasing "f-ists" and the attitudes surrounding us.

The F-word opens with the announcement "Betsy Ross sewed a flag, class dismissed", and the audience is introduced to Dorothy, a 1990s engineering major who "is not a feminist but..." Dorothy is transported to Retroland where she is guided by Gloria, the Good Witch of the Left and taunted by Phyills, the Wicked Witch of the Right. Following the Feminist Path, she is led through a short course in women's history until she ultimately uncovers her feminist consciousness enabling her to return to the 1990s.

Other notable skits include a West Side Story spoof where Officer 1990s is ever suspicious of the LIB's (Ladies In Backlash) as they sneak into alleyways to exchange Ms. Magazines and won't shave. As punishment, one of the LIB's is sentenced to a hilarious make-over, complete with silicone, diet drinks, and liposuction.

While Sleeveless Theater has been accused of "preaching to the converted", they present a challenge to themselves as white feminists, as well as to their audience. In the rap number "Why Are We So White?", Wonder Bread, Tapioca Pudding, Cool Whip, and Fluff move awkwardly to the beat of racism and that darn white guilt. A history of the Equal Rights Amendment and its demise follows, as the group highlights the Women's Movement "whitewashing" over its potential diversity in order to play in mainstream politics.

On the whole, Sleeveless Theater takes a highly intelligent, insightful, and hilarious approach to sexist society, enabling feminists to laugh at the world and ourselves.

The group is leaving its base in the Valley for a Southeast tour and then heads out to the West Coast, so make sure to catch them tonight through the 19th. Feminism has never been so f-ing funny.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Sleeveless Theatre

Siamese Dream: a smash

By BRIAN BABINEAU
Collegian Staff

Siamese Dream
Smashing Pumpkins
Virgin Records

Smashing indeed. With their second album, and first on a major record label, the Chicago-based group tears into the modern rock scene, picking up where 1991s Gish left off. That album, which incidentally spent most of the summer spinning on my disc player, created a thrashy, psychedelic tapestry of sound, juxtaposing dreamy, gliding melodies and crunching distortion. Siamese Dream takes pretty much the same formula to make perhaps one of the year's best albums.

Singer/songwriter Billy Corgan freely borrows from some obvious predecessors, combining The Doors druggy, expansive style, someLed Zep riffs, and the glam-rock attitude of Queen. Lyrically, Corgan addresses all sorts of deep angst that twenty-somethings can easily identify with, in a very easy flowing poetic style.

One of the minor flaws of the album is its overproduction, as some of the songs are rumored to have one hundred layers of tracks piled on. This prevents some of the raw sound, and unhinged twists that existed on Gish to erupt with the same intensity here. But this, again, is only a minor flaw.

The album opens with "Cherub Rock", Corgan's venting of frustration about today's alternative music scene. (His attitude can be summed up with the greeting he gave a crowd before a recent show- "Fk Seattle!"). The song, every bit the anthem "Smells Like Teen Spirit" was, is pushed along by Corgan's and James Iha's chugging guitars as the singer screams, "Who wants honey as long as there's money ?", and closes with the repeated cry "Let me out!".

Corgan takes a more straightforward pop approach on "Today", the album's happiest song (which is not saying a lot), wailing that "Today is the happiest day I've ever known/ Can't live for tomorrow." Following this is the seven-minute "Hummer", a song that drifts between spacey, mellow psychedella and crunching guitars with surprising ease, and whose tempo and mood changes make it a personal favorite.

Another striking tune that adds to multi-faceted sound of the Pumpkins is "Disarm." The song is driven by violin and cello orchestration, and Corgan's lyrics are both disturbing and affecting. "Disarm you with a smile/ And leave you like they left me here to wither in denial....the killer in me is the killer in you/ My love I send this smile over to you...". R.E.M.'s Mike Mills sits in

Turn to DREAM, page 7

COURTESY SMASHING PUMPKINS
Smashing Pumpkins

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
PARAMOUNT THEATER
TEARS FOR FEARS
SATURDAY
OCTOBER 2ND
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT BOX OFFICE CALL (413) 734-5874
ALL STRAWBERRY RECORD OUTLETS, NORTHAMPTON TICKET OFFICE
AT (413) 586-8686 OR TICKETPRO PHONE CHARGE AT 1-800-828-7080

"NAUGHTY YET HILARIOUS"
Gross Yet Laughable, Tasteless Yet witty,
Revolting Yet Funny...Words Can Hardly
Describe the FUN STUFF AT JOKE CITY.
Come See For Yourself! JOKE CITY Come See For Yourself!
1,001 laughs in store for you at
233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 549-8117
(in the carriage shops)

INCENSE • SINGLE EARRINGS • COTTON CLOTHING • AREA RUGS • TOYS • MUGS • CHOPSTICKS • LOW PRICES • LAMPSHADES • ETC •
THE MERCANTILE HAS TAPESTRIES! AND COOL POSTERS!
JOURNALS • BAGS • POUCHES • SUNGLASSES • TINS • BOXES • T-SHIRTS •
• CANDLES • SUNGLASSES • STONE PENDANTS • BASKETS • BANDANAS
THE MERCANTILE AMHERST: CARRIAGE SHOPS NORTHAMPTON: 18 CENTER ST. MON-SAT: 10-6 SUN: 12-5 MC/VISA

In BLACK & WHITE
A SPECTRUM OF COLORS
UMASS ARTS COUNCIL puts the message in print for your ENRICHMENT •••• our information services
ART NOTICE: NOTICE ART
•monthly banner showing what's on view in campus galleries
ARTSITINGS: In 5 Campus Settings
•bi-weekly arts calendar
ART WORKS ON CAMPUS:
•Brochure Guide to Public Art sites and Galleries
ART MATTERS: MATTERS OF ART
•Arts Council FY93 Annual Report
Take an Opportunity to become Enlightened
UMASS ARTS COUNCIL 203 Hasbrouck 545-0202

◆ movies

continued from page 1

Ben Kingsley co-stars in what will surely be a healthy Oscar contender.

Wayne Wang (Eat a Bowl of Tea) directs the magnificent Amy Tan bestseller The Joy Luck Club with Oliver Stone producing. The buzz on this film, all about two generations of Chinese women, has been incredible — and so have been the reviews. By the looks of it though, be sure to bring a few boxes of kleenex, or at least a shirt sleeve you don't care about.

Just by rattling off the cast of Billie August's The House of the Spirits, an adaptation of Isabel Allende's 1985 Chilean family saga, could send shivers down your spine. Ready? Try Meryl Streep, Glenn Close, Jeremy Irons, Winona Ryder, Vanessa Redgrave and Antonio Banderas, among others. Classy, but were all the Chilean actors in the world busy? Anyway, this one is sure to rack up those acting Oscar nods.

We're almost into the nineties here, but first a stop at those fabulous seventies: bell bottoms, disco and the Village People. Thankfully, none of those figure in either of the two films, but they can't be far behind. Brian De Palma re-teams with his old Scarface star, Al Pacino, for Carlito's Way. This is an ultraviolent drama that, according to Entertainment Weekly, "chronicles the 1970's barrio scene" — whatever that is. Sean Penn co-stars as Pacino's lawyer, who sports a perm and dyed red hair. Ooh, sounds sexy, Sean. But wasn't Madonna the one who used to change her hair color?

Former Amherst resident Uma Thurman stars in Even Cowgirls Get the Blues, indie maverick Gus Van Sant's (My Own Private Idaho) telling of Tom Robbins' 1976 cult fave. The story goes something like this: Uma plays this hitchiking cow-womyn who has really big thumbs and then takes over a ranch and stars drugging whooping cranes. Yeah, this makes perfect sense.

Blues also stars John Hurt, Lorraine Bracco (What? no Medicine Man 2?), Angie Dickinson and — save us all — Keanu Reeves. Can anybody explain why he keeps getting movie roles? Who the heck is he sleeping with, anyway? Added bonus: k.d. lang did the soundtrack.

As for the contemporary and socially conscious drama genre, you can't get any more current or sensitive than AIDS. Jonathan Demme follows up his Silence of the Lambs triumph with Tom Hanks as a gay lawyer who is fired from his job when he learns he has contracted the disease in Philadelphia. The supporting cast includes Denzel Washington as a homophobic attorney hired to defend Hanks and Antonio Banderas as Hanks' partner. Looks like the politically correct must-see of the year, though I hope it's more than just that.

Robert Altman, not content to just sit back and bask in the glow of The Player, has concocted his most ambitious flick to date: Shortcuts, a three-hour human drama following 22 different characters through suburban life in Southern California. The cast includes Jack Lemmon, Tim Robbins, Madeleine Stowe and Lyle Lovett, as well as has-beens Huey Lewis (sans The News) and Fame graduate Lori Singer (you know, the one with the celio?). Let's pray Altman knows what he's doing, or this could turn out to be a 180-minute sedative.

A lot of people are looking forward to catching Malice, a thriller/whodunit that was partially filmed in Noho and downtown Amherst. Nicole Kidman co-stars with almost has-been Alec Baldwin, Anne Bancroft and former UMass alumn Bill Pullman (Sleepless in Seattle). It seems there's a serial killer on the loose at "a fictional, ivy-covered Northeastern womens' college" (perhaps the P.C. Slasher?). The plot twists are supposed to be incredible and hey, if the movie is crap, at least the scenery will be cool.

Believe it or not, these are only the tip (or is it tips?) of the iceberg. Also on hand is Jeff Bridges and Rosie Perez in Peter Weir's Fearless, Daniel Day-Lewis and Emma Thompson in the IRA drama In the Name of the Father and Richard Linklater's eagerly awaited Slacker follow-up, Dazed and Confused.

Morgan Freeman and Robert De Niro use this time to try on a new hat: directing. Freeman has lined up Bopha!, an apartheid drama starring Danny Glover and the perennially underrated Alfre Woodard. De Niro has A Bronx Tale, a father/son domestic drama. It's been noted that De Niro has been taking his time (some say too long) to complete his debut effort. Let's pray he paid attention to Scorsese (Raging Bull) instead of Irwin Winkler (Guilty by Suspicion).

Tracy Ullman stars in Household Saints, the story of a quirky Italian family, while Ashley Judd (yes, of those Judds) leads the critically acclaimed Ruby in Paradise. Geena Davis heads the low-budget cast of serio-comedy Angie, I Says and Michael Keaton and Nicole Kidman co-star in My Life, a wrenching drama about a man who finds out he's dying and the videotape he makes for his unborn child.

On that cheery note, I'll leave you to ponder the bevy of fine, highbrow entertainment on our horizon. Don't worry, I'll be with you all the way, giving you my snide, self-important critical analysis on each flick. God, I love my job.

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!
NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR
1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
Charlie's tavern since 1978 AMHERST, MASS.
This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95
Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

Amherst Sunshine CAR WASH
381 College Street (Rte. 9 East)
AUTOMATIC WASH/WAX
Open Daily 8:00 am to 5:00 pm
SELF-SERVICE BAYS
Open 24 Hours
Soap/Rinse/Wax • Bubble Brush
Tire Cleaner • Engine De-Greaser
VACUUM CLEANERS
$1 & $5 CHANGER
"OUR ATTENDANTS ARE HAPPY TO ASSIST YOU."

Waiting 'till the last minute to sublet that apartment? Sell that dorm fridge? Place an ad in the Collegian Classifieds QUICK!!
113 Campus Center

Downstairs
a b c d
Posters
Lighting
Bedspreads
Rugs
Bookcases
Chairs
and more good stuff
at Faces
a. Rugs: dhurries, orientals, rags & more. From $7.95 to $69.95
b. Posters: over 1,000 designs. From $3.95 to $30.00
c. Lighting: task lamps, desk, clip-on, halogen & floor styles. From $7.95 to $79.95
d. Folding Bookcase: black or natural. $49.95 also desks, TV carts, tables & more.
northampton • main street • 7 days

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

THE NEWMAN CENTER
WELCOMES YOU!
LORD'S DAY MASSES:
Saturday : 4:30 pm
Sunday: 8:00 am, 9:30 pm, 11:00 am and 7:00 pm
DAILY MASSES:
Monday - Friday : 12:15 pm and 5:15 pm
Saturday: 9:00 am
SACRAMENT of RECONCILIATION:
Saturday: 3:00 to 4:00 pm or upon request.
The Newman Center is located at 472 North Pleasant Street in Amherst, MA 01002, and is open daily from 8:00 am until 10:00 pm.

Joel rips up Boston Garden

Frenetic energy, posterior piano playing excites fans

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

Billy Joel, River of Dreams Tour
Tuesday, Sept. 14
Boston Garden

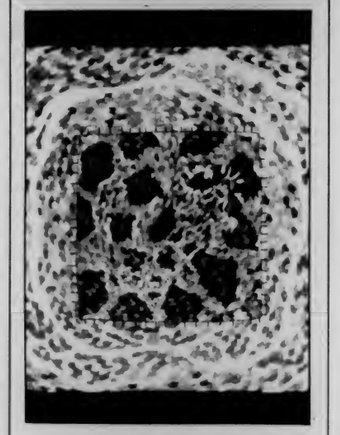
Billy Joel burst onto the stage of the Boston Garden Tuesday night with the momentum provided by two hit singles and a shiny new album, River of Dreams, which hit number one on its first day of release.

Yet the first song performed before a New England audience pointedly failed to capitalize on this success. "A Matter of Trust," from Joel's six-year-old "Bridge" album, kicked off a thrilling 21-song concert which integrated tunes from most stages of the singer's 22-year career.

This was a concert for fans of Joel as a composer and performer, which overlooked most of his mainstream classics (there was no "Just the Way You Are" or "Uptown Girl" to be had), in favor of such Top 40-neglected gems as "Scenes From An Italian Restaurant" and "Only The Good Die Young."

Joel is a brilliant showman, with such wild, frenetic energy that one almost believes that if he were deprived of the right to perform, he would simply explode. Through the relentless two-and-a-half hour show, the singer ran laps around the stage, climbed the scenery, showered the audience with water, and played piano with his posterior. During the song "Big Shot," Joel danced along the edge of the stage, allowing himself to be caught up in a sea of grasping hands, bounced off utility cables and did a backwards roll off his piano. When he finally contained his energy and donned his shades to perform a motionless "Innocent Man," the crowds expioded with cheering that challenged the Garden sound system.

Among the other highlights were Joel's performance of the song "Pressure," in which he bounced between two sets of keyboards like an insane marionette, and a hard-and-fast version of his eighties anthem "My Life," which firmly dispelled any taint left behind by "Bosom Buddies."



In addition to Joel's considerable talents as a songwriter and performer, he is arguably the best rock pianist alive. Never has this been more apparent than in his fierce performance of the Prelude to "Angry Young Man." Kicking away his stool, Joel pounded into the keys with a savage intensity that threatened to reduce the baby grand to rubbie.

Contrast this with his performance of the signature song "Piano Man," in which his gentle stroking of the keys makes every note sing of loss and regret, and what you have is a picture of a modern musical virtuoso.

Of course, no band could match Joel's musical ability or versatility (in addition to piano, the showman played guitar, accordion and harmonica), but the group assembled for this tour come dangerously close. Liberty DeVitto, a veteran of countless Joel tours, is back on drums, looking suspicious and subversive in his jean jacket and Ray-Bans. DeVitto is a treat in himself, a balding, middle-aged smudge who looks like a cross between Steven Wright and an off-duty cop, beating the drums as if he is trying to hurt them. His performance recalls the great days of Russell Javors and Richie Cannata, when Joel's band looked like people you would expect to see talking loudly in Bronx barrooms.

Also returning for this tour is saxophonist Mark Rivera, who sends the wailing solo on "Scenes From an Italian Restaurant" into the stratosphere, and vocalist Crystal Taliafero, who plays a sexy duet with Joel on the 1990 hit "Shameless."

The only caveat is the Garden's terrible acoustic design, which made some of the quieter numbers (such as "Lullaby") echo bewilderingly off the walls. It was precisely this effect, however, which made the final number (a sing-along of "Piano Man") so stirring and unforgettable. Not a bad trade off, really.

COURTESY HAMPDEN GALLERY

This embroidery and paint on canvas entitled, "Diamond Back Rattlesnake" by Jocelyn Castro can be seen at the Hampden Gallery today through Oct. 15 as part of the "Mimesis and Metaphor" exhibit.

BIG GUY LIQUORS
New in Town
35 Montague Rd.
North Amherst Rt 63
COME SEE THE BIG GUY
FULL LINE OF LIQUORS & WINES
ALL TYPES OF BEER
Next to Superior Pizza, Cumberland Farms, Brooks Discount, & Post Office. One Minute From Puffton & Brandywine.
549-3555 BEER BALLS

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...
$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk. 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.
220 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 01002 413-253-2543

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Miller "Genuine Draft"
$10.99 case of bottles
(Quantity Discounts Available)
S.S. Pierce Vodka $8.99 1.75L.
Miller "Lite" Keg Cans $12.99 case
Gallo White Zinfandel $3.69 750ml
Narragansett Lager $7.29 case
$6.99 (cases or more) WOW!!
New! Octoberfest "Fantastic"
Sam Adams or Catamount Mix or Match $9.95 12/pk.
Bacardi Rum $7.99 750ml.
Michael Shea's Amber $3.99 6/pk. bots.
Visa/Mastercard accepted on Keg Deposits
Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)
All Beer plus Deposit Delivery Available

ZANA
Women's Clothing & Accessories
Amherst 413.253.2563 Brattleboro 802.254.4421 Williamstown 413.458.9858

For the Dancer...
Gymnast...
& Fitness Minded
Fun Bodywear!! Great Shoes!!
Dance Stuff '93
We Have All Supplies for Dance Majors
220 N. Pleasnat Street (Rear), Amherst, MA
Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. – 10-5
Thurs. – 10-7
253-5201

◆ dream

continued from page 4

to play piano on "Soma", which starts and ends whisper-quiet, but erupts with volcanic guitar chords in the middle.

The album is anchored by the ebb and flow of noise and quiet like no other. The Pumpkins have spent time listening to their classic favorites on drug hazy afternoons and transformed that experience into startling sound. As Billy Corgan (and countless college students know), songs like "The End" or "The Rain Song" can open up a world of musical possibilities to a listener. The Pumpkins have taken this knowledge and made an album that does much the same.

With all due respect to bands like Nirvana and Pearl Jam, Smashing Pumpkins is poised to become the band of the 1990s. The band has all the ingredients, from a tailor made arena-rock sound to a slightly nutty lead singer. Here's hoping they become big, but not too big (U2 like proportions.) Truly smashing.

Every kick.
Every shot.
Every foul.
Every score.
Collegian Sports is there.
Follow UMass Sports every day in the Collegian.

Real McCoy: a farce

By EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Poor Kim Basinger. Following a recent string of barely mentionable film releases (Cool World anyone?), she was recently handed an eight million dollar settlement for her breach of oral contract to appear in Jennifer Chamber Lynch's Boxing Helena. Well, when it rains, it pours. For those pondering the possibility that her latest release, The Real McCoy, is the definitive action-comedy of the year — "the real McCoy" this isn't.

Aussie director Russell Mulcahy (Ricochet) sets things off to a bad start with an opening bank heist that lacks thrills and suspense. Setting the pace and theme for the rest of the film, this four-minute prologue meanders through what could have been a thrilling entree to the viewer, but instead falls back upon tired camera moves. Must every action film these days ape the Robin Hood arrow's-eye-view gimmick? What McCoy does accomplish is to stage the plot, thrusting cat-burglar Karen McCoy (Basinger) into jail.

Paroled six years later, McCoy returns determined to rekindle a life with her son while dodging the advances of her lecherous parole officer (Gailard Sartain). And in one of those "heck I'm fresh out of ideas" script turns, she has a chance to meet with rookie thief J.T. Bartley (an under-used Val Kilmer), who coincidentally idolizes "the Karen McCoy," and unknowingly sets her down the path toward another bank job master-minded by her disreputable former employer (Terence Stamp).

Perhaps the film's greatest fault is that it desperately tries to infuse a comic vein, yet all the jokes fall completely flat; especially a bit with the police having to continually return to a bank which the thieves have rigged with a faulty alarm.

Attempted comic relief comes via Val Kilmer, but too much is built upon the character's ineptitude. An early failed robbery attempt culminates when Kilmer politely asks convenience store clients to "Please hit the floor." Oh, now isn't that a funny gag.

Great fault should also be noted in Mulcahy, who avoids attracting good performances (except Basinger, who does appear to be working), and instead concentrates on keeping his camera moving. It spins. It zooms. It swivels. It never stops to get its bearings straight. It's as though he knew the script was weak, so if the camera is moving maybe nobody would notice the mammoth lack of substance and story. Sorry, but stylized camera work does not sell a movie.

Hollywood execs surely must have given themselves a good pat on the back when they dreamed up the concept of a female-driven action vehicle, thus stemming ongoing criticism of few roles for women in Hollywood. That's fine, but it's ironic that a film that should showcase Basinger's talents comes across as incredibly misogynistic. Besides Basinger's surprisingly good portrayal of a strong woman coming to terms with her past, not one other female character is painted as anything more than stereotypical. The young woman in Basinger's estranged husband's life is seen as a "shrieking housewife from hell" who barely takes notice when her step-son is kidnapped by the film's heavies. And despite the fact that the script takes time to point out blatant sexism (each male character takes time to admire in full southern drawl that McCoy "sure kept her fig-yah" while in prison), Mulcahy's camera can't seem to avoid lingering over that "fig-yah."

It's the exclamation point on a cinematic sentence steeped in misogyny. D-

COURTESY DEPT. MUSIC & DANCE

Laura Klock will perform in recital with pianist Nadine Shank and members of the Springfield Symphony's horn sectrion on Sunday, Sept. 19 at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall at the University of Massachusetts.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.

Spirit Haus LIQUOR STORE
All Beer Prices Plus Deposit
Catamount Octoberfest $5.99 6pk
Sam Adams Octoberfest $5.69 6pk
Sam Adams Mix-N-Match (Summer Wheat, Dark Wheat & Octoberfest) ..... $20.99 case
Catamount trio & Post Road (Mix-N-Match, not Octoberfest) ..... $20.99 case
BUD, BUD Light, BUD Dry Bottles $6.99 12pk
Meister Braü ..... $3.99 12pk cans
Frank Jones From! Portsmouth, NH ..... $11.99 case
Poland Spring Vodka $8.99 1.75L
Gordon Pepper Vodka $5.99 1L
Southern Comfort $8.99 750ml
Mad Dog 20/20 ..... $1.99
Seagrams and Bartles & James Wine Coolers $2.99 4pk
Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"
Open 9 am - 11 pm
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED
338 College Street/253-5384
One mile East of Amherst Ctr. on Rte. 9

Mike's Westview
Drink Special BUD Dry Bottles $1.25
Thursday Night is BUD Night
BUSCH PITCHERS $4.25
BUD & BUD LIGHT PITCHERS $5.25
COME IN AND WIN FREE CONCERT TICKETS TO LENNY KRAVITZ
FREE HATS & BUD BOOM BOX & T-SHIRTS
Try Something New! 1 16oz. Prime Rib $6.95 Dinner Includes salad and Potato Saturdays 6-9
Friday
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
ROAST BEEF, BAKED HAM, MAC & MEATBALLS, VEAL PARM, STUFFED MUSHROOMS, & AU GRATIN POTATOES, ROAST CHICKEN, CORN ON THE COB, AND ASSORTED SALADS - $1.00

TOTAL FITNESS WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
AEROBICS: Funk, REEBOK STEP, Hi/Low, Boxercise, Yoga
STRENGTH: Keiser Air Power, NAUTILUS, Olympic weights, GRAVITRON, The Treadwall
CARDIO: STAIRMASTERS, LifeCycles • LifeRower, Treadmills • BioCycles, Climb Max • NordicTrack, TrueClimb• VersaClimber
SEMESTER SPECIAL $139 four months
Amherst Athletic Club 460 West St. South Amherst 256-0080

Super Airfares - Hurry Spaces are Limited
From Hartford Round Trip
Wash. DC... $158 | Florida...$226 | Seattle...$318
Los Angeles... $335 | Phoenix... $306 | Chicago...$212
Plus Many Other Destinations • Restrictions apply - call for details
25A Pray St. Amherst CENTRAL TRAVEL 549-4900

SPIN Inc.
Mobile DJ Systems
DJ SERVICE FOR:
Formals • Semi-Formals • Organizational Parties • Dorm Parties • Campus Wide Events
586-6470 12 Years Experience

LENNY KRAVITZ

AS SPECIAL GUEST BLIND MELON

UNIVERSAL LOVE TOUR

SEPTEMBER 29 • 8PM

RESERVED SEATS: $23.50 & LIMITED GOLD CIRCLE SEATING

FACILITY CHARGE INCLUDED IN TICKET PRICE.

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst

PRODUCED BY DELSENER/SLATER ENTERPRISES

TICKETMASTER
FILENE'S • VIDEO PARADISE MOVIES AND MORE VIDEO DIMENSIONS
CHARGE BY PHONE
(203) 525-4500
(413) 733-2500
(617) 931-2000
FOR INFO: (413) 545-0505

TIX AT MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE AND TICKETMASTER. NO SERVICE CHARGE AT BOX OFFICE. TICKETS SUBJECT TO APPLICABLE TICKETMASTER SERVICE CHARGES.
PHONE CHARGES SUBJECT TO AN ADDITIONAL PER ORDER HANDLING FEE. DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY.
BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

Tips for new students

By ADAM SCOTT ROBERTS
Collegian Staff

This is the first in a two-part series.

Welcome to UMass. The moment you've all been waiting for has finally arrived. Such things as getting your driver's license, SAT's, prom and handing in homework are all things of the past. But here's a new equation: high school doesn't equal college.

College is the road that will lead you to your future. In fact, think of UMass as being like the Autobon. There is no speed limit. There are no rules. And you're not the only car on the road. Basically, handling this highway isn't going to be easy.

But then again, whoever said life was easy? So, I decided to lend a little advice to all you new folk out there by making up a list called the Top 20 Things Every Minuteman and Minutewoman should know.

1) First and foremost, Amherst and the surrounding area is widely known as: The Happy Valley; The Valley; P.C. (Politically Correct) Land.

2) UMass-Amherst is one of the most politically active campuses in the country. In practically every brochure on UMass you'll always be able to find Whitmore boasting our multicultural campus. Name any group and they are present at this Shangri-la. Beware of protests and rallies — there are so many that they have to get permission to stand at the Student Union Steps.

3) The buses out here are not known as the "T" as they are in Greater Boston. Instead we have the PVTA a.k.a. "The Four Letters." These buses are convenient and free. They travel throughout the 5-college area and towns. It is definitely worth your while to learn the bus routes because unless you have a car this will be your means of transportation for quite some time.

4) Get to know your T.A. (teaching assistant) because nine out of 10 times they are the ones correcting your exams and papers. The T.A. can be your friend. They are there to help you and they will. Don't be intimidated by them and don't wait until the final to introduce yourself, because it will only be to your disadvantage.

5) Get involved early. Don't wait until it's too late. There are tons of clubs to join. Stroll the Campus Center Concourse and see all the tables. If there isn't a club that you like, start your own. Joining clubs is a great way to meet people with similiar interests. Besides, these extracurricular activities could help build a currently empty resume.

6) Rush a house! Join a fraternity or sorority. The Greek Area is made up of approximately 1200 students. This is a great place to meet people and helps make the University feel a lot smaller. The majority of the "houses" run along or near North Pleasant Street, a.k.a. Frat Row; however, there are more in Fraternity and Sorority Park.

7) Best Places to be Seen: The Hatch, The Blue Wall, and the T.O.C. (Top of the Campus) —all of which are restaurants/cafeterias in the Campus Center.

Stay tuned for more tips in a Collegian near you.

Adam Scott Roberts is a Collegian columnist.

4 Seasons
Thank you for your patronage
The Krupczak Family
Rte.9 • Hadley • 584-8174
Between Burger King & Dunkin Donuts
NEW!! Lower Keg Deposits
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

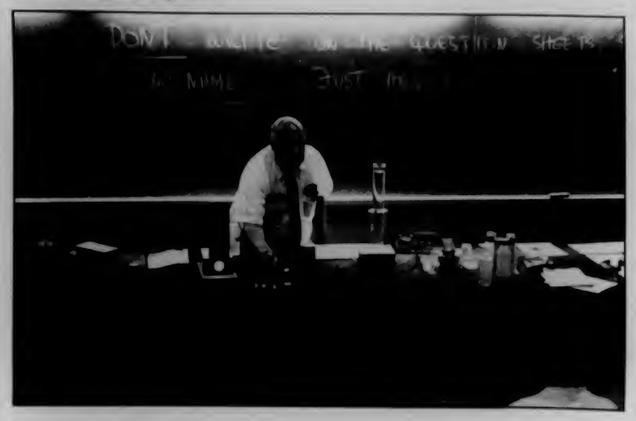
KEGS
1/2 BBL BUSCH $36.99
1/2 BBL Natural Lt. $32.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL BUD, Lt, DRY $40.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL Rolling Rock $44.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL Milwaukees Best $32.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL Michelob & Lt $42.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL M.G.D.-Lite $40.99 + Dep
Largest Keg Inventory in WMASS

BUD DRY 24-12oz. Bar Bott $10.99 + Dep
M.G.D. & M.G.D. Lt 24 Bar Bott $10.99 + Dep
BUSCH & Lt 24-12oz. Cans $9.99 + Dep
NEW! Beer Balls Are Back!!!
BUD, BUD LT. BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep
COORS, LT., GOLD BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep
Killians Red BEER BALL $21.99 + Dep

SMIRNOFF VODKA $13.99 1.75L
MATADOR TEQUILA $6.99 1.0L
4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L
ICE
10 LBS $1.50
50+LBS $5.49
100+ LBS $9.99
BLOCKS $1.25
You Can't Buy It Cheaper
BARCARDI RUM $14.99 1.75L
GO UMASS FOOTBALL
KRONES #98 2 SACKS

MAD DOG 20/20 $1.99 750ML
American Beer 24-12oz. Cans $7.29 + Dep
Andre Champagne $2.99 750ML
KNICKERBOCKER 24-16oz. Bor Bott $9.99 + Dep
BOONES FARM $1.99 750ML
COORS GOLD 24-12oz. Bor Bott $10.99 + Dep
Tired of Stores with Bad Attitudes? At 4 Seasons You'll Be Treated with Gratitude And...
WE DELIVER

Not Responsible For Typographical Errors
Sale Thru 9-23-93
Monday - Saturday 9:00am - 11:00pm
Kegs & Beer Ball Deposits Held Up To 30 Days



Read about the UMass student with only two friends Page 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

60° Friday September 17, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 7

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Electrolyte my fire

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN

Chemistry professor E.E. Turner experiments with electrolytes in front of his UMass class.

Jury indicts UMass prof

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Over a year after investigations began of the alleged financial corruption in the athletic department at the University of Massachusetts, a member of the staff was indicted on Tuesday.

The Hampshire County grand jury indicted Frank Katch, an exercise science professor and former head of the department, on the charge of violating the conflict-of-interest law.

The indictment states Katch, who at the time was the head of the exercise science program, endorsed $168,000 in fitness equipment from Hydra-Fitness Industries, a division of Gydra-Gym Athletics in Belton, Texas, while he was a consultant for the company without accepting competing bids from other companies.

Hydra-Fitness pays its consultants about $200 a month.

The conflict-of-interest laws are designed to prevent a state official from suspending decisions based on the good of the public-to-personal gains.

Katch allegedly broke the law by failing to acknowledge he had personal interest in the company he recommended to the university.

If convicted, Katch could face up to two years in jail and a $3,000 fine.

The university bought the equipment suggested by Katch in 1988 for use in two Body Shops, fitness clubs located in various dorms around campus that students and faculty may use for a small fee.

Katch has been a member of the UMass staff since 1977. He specializes in research on the human body composition as well as fitness and exercise. He has written several books, including the book he uses in Exercise Science 210 called Nutrition, Weight Control, and Exercise.

At one time Katch was a fitness consultant to various National Football League teams and was asked to test a new experimental tennis grip by Wilson.

In 1990, he resigned as chair of the exercise science department, but still continues to teach.

Investigations when the House Post Audit and Oversight Committee subpoenaed over 30,000 financial documents in May 1992 to research allegations of fund misappropriations.

Former athletic director Frank McInerney, former Associate Chancellor and Dean of Physical Education, David Bischoff, associate athletic director Elaine Sortino and the department's business manager, Al Rufe, were all named January 1992 for allegedly billing the university for several thousand dollars in expenses to attend a National Collegiate Athletic Association convention in Anaheim, California.

Irish peace hopes heightened

BOSTON (AP) — If there can be peace in the Middle East, there can be peace in Northern Ireland, said Irish Prime Minister Albert Reynolds.

Reynolds, in the United States to encourage investment in his homeland, said peace talks between the Irish and British governments, which were suspended last November, may soon be resumed.

"There are meetings going on, and soundings going on behind the scenes — which can often be more effective than something out in the open," Reynolds told the Boston Herald for a story published Thursday.

"It has to give you hope," he said about the peace accord between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"That was a very intractable and old, bitter conflict. If you can find a settlement for that, you can find a settlement anywhere," he said.

Last week, Irish Foreign Minister Dick Spring told the British Irish Association that both sides in the 23-year conflict should consider asking the European Community and the United States for help in their own peace process.

Britain, which rules Northern Ireland, has resisted outside intervention in the past and balked at a campaign pledge by President Clinton to send a peace envoy to Northern Ireland.

The Irish Republican Army has waged a violent campaign against British rule, killing 19 people this year. Their Protestant-based opponents have killed 26 people in a bid to cow the province's Catholic minority.

Reynolds, who is on a six-day visit to the United States to encourage investment in Ireland, met Wednesday with Gov. William F. Weld, State Senate President William M. Bulger and House Speaker Charles Flaherty. He later met with Cardinal Bernard F. Law, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston.

"I'm not without hope," Reynolds said. "The extremists on both sides are also saying they have an interest in a cease-fire and a cessation of violence altogether, to let ordinary people get on with their ordinary lives."

President Hooker to marry

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts President Michael Hooker and Rep. Carmen D. Buell, D-Greenfield, announced Wednesday they will be married in December. Both of them are 48 years old and are marrying for the second time.

After a private wedding in Leyden, the couple will hold their reception at the Mullins Center. Hooker will pay for the reception himself. The wedding is scheduled for Dec. 18.

Buell, who is co-chair of the Legislature's Health Committee, is a UMass basketball fan.

The couple met while attending a January UMass basketball game against Cincinnati at the Springfield Civic Center. Buell had been sitting behind Hooker at the game when Rep. Thomas M. Petrolati, D-Ludlow, introduced them.

Hooker, who became president of the UMass five-college system one year ago, said the University has brought the couple together and has helped to solidify their relationship.

Buell said they began dating in February and started getting serious about their relationship at the end of March.

Both Buell and Hooker have graduate degrees from UMass. Buell got her master's degree in regional planning in 1984 and Hooker got his master's

Turn to PRESIDENT, page 6

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

University of Massachusetts President Michael Hooker.

Ex-fugitive starts over, is paying for her crime

By JOHN CURRAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Former fugitive Katherine Ann Power, whose 23 year run from her student radical past ended with a dramatic emergence from hiding, on Thursday began a new life — again.

But there was a familiar note as she spent her first full day in a Suffolk County Jail room, complete with a window on the city she fled so long ago.

Power got a note from Susan Saxe, saying she wanted to meet.

It was Saxe and Power who while students at Brandeis University teamed with three ex-convicts in the robbery of a Boston bank on Sept. 23, 1970. In the holdup, purportedly to fund a revolutionary army, a police officer was killed.

Saxe was captured in 1975 and served about five years in prison. Power, 44, surrendered Wednesday and pleaded guilty to manslaughter and robbery charges.

"Susan Saxe sent a note indicating that she would like to meet sometime in the future. We are working on that," said Power's attorney, Steven Black of Corvallis, Ore. The note was passed between lawyers for the two women.

Power, who is being housed with 34 other women prisoners, was visited by Black and by her husband, Ron Duncan, Thursday. Her parents, with whom she was reunited this week, returned to Colorado from Boston.

"She feels very good about herself and what she's doing. She's not terrorized. She's not upset," Duncan said.

Power will remain in the jail until her Oct. 6 sentencing, said one of her attorneys, Steven Black. Her lawyers expect her to serve five years.

"She's in the general population. They haven't segregated her out. She's not elitist in any way. She considers herself a hard-core offender," said Black, who helped arrange Power's surrender.

But the weeks at Suffolk are not

Turn to FUGITIVE, page 6

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor .....
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor .....
Jewish Affairs Editor .....
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor .....
Women's Issues Editor .....

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanitо
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

This are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, September 17

Meeting: The Muslim Students Association is holding Jumaa Salat at 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 904.

Saturday, September 18

Auditions: The UMass Theatre Guild is holding auditions for its production of Peter Shaffer's Black Comedy at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 904. Any questions, call 545-0415.

Sunday, September 19

Auditions: The UMass Theatre Guild is holding auditions for its production of Peter Shaffer's Black Comedy at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 904. Any questions, call 545-0415.

Study hall: Study hall with free coffee and tea will be held in Berkshire and Worcester Dining Commons from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Study hall is sponsored by

Connecticut lobbies for funds

Wiecker asks tribe to contribute money for stadium

HARTFORD (AP) — The Mashantucket Pequot Indians are among dozens of groups and businesses in Connecticut that Gov. Lowell P. Weicker has asked to invest in a stadium for the New England Patriots football team.

"The tribe expressed a willingness to seriously consider participarting in some significant way. We've expressed that directly to the governor. We're working on it," said Keith J. Stover, a lobbyist for the Pequots.

Stover emphasized that the request was made to a delegation of other major corporations in Connecticut, not just the tribe.

"The Pequots are being treated in precisely the same manner as all other companies in the state. . . the pitch was made to a very large group of investors at the governor's mansion," he said Thursday.

A tribal delegation attended a luncheon Wednesday for 150 corporate and political leaders at Weicker's residence.

"The tribe was invited to the meeting by the governor because they are now obviously one of the major corporate or economic players in the state of Connecticut," Stover said.

Stover said everyone at the luncheon was asked to consider investing in a range of different things, from tickets to skyboxes.

Avice A. Meehan, the governor's press secretary, said the administration had no comment Thursday on a possible role for the tribe in the stadium project.

The tribe employs 6,900 workers at its profitable Foxwoods High Stakes Dingo & Casino in Ledyard.

National Football League rules prohibit the tribe or any other gambling interest from owning a piece of the team. But state officials said nothing prevents the tribe from investing in a public stadium or otherwise supporting the team.

Patriots owner James B. Orthwein has offered the team for sale. And Philadelphia businessman Francis W. Murray is leading an investment group that would like to bring the team to Connecticut. The group has offered $133 million for the team.

Weicker has called the General Assembly to a special session Wednesday to consider authorizing $252 million in bonding to build a 70,000 seat stadium just north of downtown Hartford.

Approval of the bonding would be contingent on the Patriots signing a lease committing them to be a tenant in a new Hartford stadium for 30 years. The Patriots now play at Foxboro Stadium.

Shuttle crew gets testy

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Two spacewalking astronauts in bulky white suits powered up a socket wrench today and tested other tools to help NASA prepare for the important Hubble Space Telescope repair mission.

Discovery crewmen Carl Walz and James Newman wasted no time evaluating equipment and comparing their water tank training on Earth with the real thing. They worked so fast that NASA had to think up additional tasks.

The only snag came near the end, when the astronauts had problems closing the jammed door on a portable tool box.

By the time they got it closed, the planned six-hour walk had stretched to almost seven hours. They capped off the walk by posing for the camera next to a sign saying "Ace HST Tool Testers." NASA dubbed the walk a success.

Some of the astronauts' chores, such as pulling themselves hand over hand along a ledge and wire, were easier in space. Others were tougher. As busy as they stayed, however, they couldn't help stopping to admire the view.

"Boy is that beautiful down there," Walz said as Discovery flaw 104 miles over the Atlantic Ocean toward Africa.

Walz encountered some trouble using the battery-powered ratchet and untwisting bolts mounted along the side of Discovery's cargo bay. He tried several different torques, stances and hand positions and found it extremely difficult to turn a bolt with his feet unrestrained.

"Your body just goes whipping around," Walz said. Newman, meanwhile, slipped into a portable foot restraint designed for Hubble. Locked down by his feet, he swayed slowly backward and forward high over the payload bay.

Later the astronauts swapped jobs and compared experiences, grading each set on an A to F scale and relating their findings to ground controllers. Several tasks received C's and D's and some got A's.

TRAVELING?
WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
• Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
• Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
• Adventure Tours • Language Courses
• International Student & Teacher I.D.
• Work & Study Abroad
• Youth Hostel Memberships
• Car Rental & Leasing
• Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!
FREE 'STUDENT TRAVELS' MAGAZINE!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

Still need 3 credits?
Take the 3-credit recycling class:
Education 397K
Intro to Future Studies
(Registration # 218611)
Learn about:
Recycling, Composting, Waste Management, and our progress toward a sustainable future
Exciting field trips
Interesting guest speakers
Where: Rm. 219 Furcolo
When: Tuesdays 2:30-5

How's your First Aid?
American Red Cross

Local News

U.S. foreign policy discussed by local professors

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Five college professors (from left to right) John Garafano, Michael Klare and Vincent Ferraro discuss President Clinton's foreign policy during Wednesday's lecture.

By MICHAEL SMITH
Collegian Correspondent

On Wednesday night, three area professors offered their respective analyses on the Clinton administration's foreign policy.

The first in a series of lectures offered by the office of Peace and World Security Studies was presented in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College.

John Garofano, a newly appointed five-college professor, was the first to address the audience. In his opening remarks he said the administration had yet to come up with a "coherent assumption" of how the world works and how to deal with it. He said that following massive upheavals in the international arena it takes time to make sense out of the ensuing chaos.

Garofano said the lack of a concrete ideology in foreign policy issues has its benefits as well as its drawbacks. By remaining vague, Clinton avoids the political damage of an unpopular strategy, according to Garafano.

He also said Clinton's lack of foreign policy was to blame for Washington missing its chance to attempt a military solution in Bosnia when it was still possible. Clinton has also been "taking a beating" in the international press for his uncertainty in international affairs.

Vincent Ferraro, of Mount Holyoke College, spoke next and offered three possible hypotheses of what the world might look like in the near-future.

His first hypothesis was a description of a world in which the liberal state has conquered communism, proving the superiority of market capitalism and representative democracy.

In contrast, his second hypothesis illustrated that the liberal state is dead and the politics of ethnicity are of primary importance.

Finally, Ferraro offered his "End of the World" hypothesis which illustrated the dangers of a world where nations with "exclusivist political ideologies" have increasing access to weapons of mass destruction.

The final speaker was Michael Klare, director of PAWSS at Hampshire College. He addressed the topic of United States defense policy, paying special attention to BURP, or the Bottom Up Review Program initiated by Defense Secretary Les Aspin.

The review, Klare said, calls for the United States to be able to "project power into regions of U.S. interest." It also calls for the military to be capable of fighting two MRC's or "major regional conflicts" simultaneously.

Klare said there is doubt in Washington that if the downsizing occurs the military will be able to perform this function.

This strategy, Klare said, hinges on the idea of certain unnamed "rogue states" posing potential threats to U.S. security.

GLB speakers fight ignorance

Bureau to increase education in dorms, classes

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Correspondent

In February 1993, the Governor's Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth released a recommendation for schools to increase programs for awareness of gay and lesbian issues, experiences and contributions.

This year in accordance with the recommendation, the Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Speakers Bureau will go into residence halls, classrooms, sororities and fraternities and the Amherst community to combat homophobia and heterosexism.

Although the University of Massachusetts has provided a safe and accepting environment for diversity, homophobia still thrives on campus and in the community.

"Homophobia is definitely alive at UMass," said Wendy Mataya, the Media Coordinator for the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns. "I cannot walk into a bathroom on campus without seeing some form of hate graffiti. Whenever we put posters up, they are torn down within a day."

"The only way we can end homophobia and homophobic violence is to educate," said Mataya. According to the Program, the Speakers Bureau is one of the most important factors in learning and conbatting homophobia and heterosexism.

Literature from the bureau said people who meet or know someone who is lesbian, gay or bisexual are less likely to engage in homophobic behavior.

The goals of the speakers bureau are: to educate using factual information and personal experiences about lesbians, gay men and bisexuals; to answer questions and contradict myths and stereotypes from trained speakers; to be openly lesbian, gay or bisexual and thus serve as a positive role model for others who may be questioning their sexuality; and to present a model of a positive heterosexual ally.

The Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns also offers services for information, a lending library, a monthly newsletter, cafe, special events and a brown bag lunch series. The center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday in the Crampton House.

Life, fantasy meet at new exhibition

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Have a chance to take a little side trip to Beantown? If so, the World Trade Center in Boston has an offer you cannot refuse — the chance to play with Virtual Realty.

"The Other Side: A Virtual Reality Arena," comes from a collaboration of twelve worldwide companies who deal with technology that ranges from computers to training simulators and laser entertainment.

During its limited engagement at the Trade Center, this show is offering visitors of all ages an experience they will not forget, featuring attractions with names like Mandala, Chameleon and Freedom 6.

These attractions will take visitors through new worlds, let them experience the G-forces of a flight

Turn to REALITY, page 6

Donation buoys SOM, philanthropists honored

By FRANCIS ZERA
Collegian Staff

In honor of Charles and Janet Nirenberg's $1 million donation through the Nirenberg Foundation, the University of Massachusetts will hold a free convocation to inaugurate the Charles and Janet Nirenberg Chair of Business Leadership on Thursday, Sept. 30, at 7:30 p.m. at Bowker Auditorium. Charles Nirenberg is the founder of the Dairy Mart convenience store chain.

The donation is to be used to fund the study of business leadership within the School of Management. The School of Management will recruit a nationally recognized senior faculty member to fill the chair for the fall, 1994 semester.

The endowment will allow the School of Management to focus on the question: what distinguishes those who manage from those who lead?

It further allows for research and teaching to advance the understanding of the qualities necessary for effective leadership.

The convocation's keynote speaker will be best-selling author and UMass/Amherst alumnus Barry Z. Posner. Posner co-authored the business book The Leadership Challenge, which has sold over 300,000 copies and has proven to be one of the most influential books in business publishing history.

Posner will give insight into The Leadership Challenge, as well as discuss his new book, co-authored with James Kouzes, called, Credibility: How Leaders Gain It, Lose It; Why People Demand It. Posner received his Ph.D in organizational behavior from UMass in 1976.

Last April, former Chancellor Richard O'Brien presented Nirenberg with a chancellor's medal for his continued service to the University. Nirenberg attended UMass beginning in 1942, interrupting his studies to serve in World War II.

Dairy Mart was founded in Springfield in 1957, and has grown to be the third-largest convenience store chain in the United States.

"Charlie and Janet Nirenberg's generous gift is an important building block in making UMass a world-class institution. I'm looking forward to other UMass supporters following the Nirenberg lead," said Michael Hooker, president of the state University system.

A boy, a ball, a dream

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN
UMass student Jeremy Larit takes flight on a court at the Southwest horseshoe.

Russians to industrialize

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

The UMass Center for Economic Development will be the model for Russian regional planners as they convert to a market economy.

Representatives from the Pskov region of Russia and Pskov Polytechnic University have been visiting with members of the landscape architecture and regional planning department since last fall to weigh the possibilities of a joint venture.

The officials are trying to devise strategies to spur economic development in the region.

Located in the northwestern Russian, the Pskov region is about the size of Maine and is bordered by Estonia, Latvia and Belarus.

The area, which is rich in culture and tradition, is also unaffected by environmental pollutions that plague much of the former Soviet Union. The population is expected to double within the next decade.

Professor Meir Gross of the landscape architecture and regional planning department is directly involved with the project.

Gross and colleague Julius Fabos visited Pskov for nine days and delivered lectures on a variety of topics.

The presentations discussed computer-aided planning and design, regional economic development and greenway planning.

Gross said the area could develop tourism and high-tech industry within the next couple of years.

The Russian contingency is relying on UMass faculty members to help them develop ways to build with controlled growth, according to Gross. With this development, Gross said the region could become a case study to be for the rest of the country.

Gross also said this incident proves that planning of regions goes beyond state and country borders.

The Center for Regional Planning in Pskov is based on the idea of the UMass Center for Economic Development, the Center for Rural Massachusetts and the METLAND Research Group.

Clinton's plan will cost some Americans more

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton said Thursday some people will have to pay more under his health-care plan to ensure coverage for all Americans.

As Clinton spoke, he was surrounded by people brought to the White House to tell hard-luck stories of health coverage lost or in jeopardy.

"I don't want to pretend that this is all going to be easy, but it seems to me that it's a fair thing to say everyone in America should make some contribution to his or her own health insurance and all employers should make some contribution," Clinton said.

Later, he visited a hardware store to make the same point, but was told by the owner that "small business cannot afford this plan." He answered back that it would have to for its own good.

Clinton started his day listening to people buried in debt or fear because of problems with the nation's health care system.

He said his plan will require workers and employers to share the burden to eliminate health care horrors: people going broke to stay healthy, losing jobs or insurance over illnesses and staying with bad jobs only because they include health insurance.

"Even the millions of Americans who enjoy health care coverage are afraid it won't be there for them next month or next year. They want us to take action to give them the security that all Americans deserve," said Clinton.

Under a white tent in the Rose Garden, Clinton invited 21 of the letter writers to tell their stories.

Cancer victim Suzy Somers read her letter, which told how she lost her health insurance after her ex-husband went bankrupt. Then she added, "Last week, I found another lump on my breast."

Another women, Jean Kazmarck of Glen Ellyn, Ill., read the letter she had written about how she was having trouble getting health insurance because of problems she'd had with her first pregnancy. She wants a second child but is worried about her lack of coverage. "Now we find ourselves stuck," she wrote.

First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, who chaired the president's health care task force, said insurance companies discriminate against people with histories of health problems, forcing many to go without coverage or stay locked into jobs with coverage.

"I could never figure out why insurance companies only wanted to insure people who'd never been sick or never would get sick. I think that eliminates everybody," Mrs. Clinton said.

While Brigitte Burdine of Van Nuys, Calif., talked about her sister's battle with the AIDS virus and medical bills, her HIV-infected niece wandered away from the tent and played on a swing flung over an oak tree near the Oval Office.

Clinton told Burdine that he wants to form huge insurance pools, mitigating the costs of insuring AIDS patients.

"The tough choice is that someone like you in the same pool, because you're young and healthy and strong and unlikely to be sick, might have to pay a little bit more in your insurance premiums so that everybody in the big pool could always be covered and no one could get kicked out," he said.

Clinton's plan would require all businesses to pay 80 percent of workers' premiums. No company would have to pay more than 7.9 percent of payroll for the health coverage, and there would be subsidies for small businesses that would allow some to pay as little of 3.5 percent of payroll.

The subsidies generally would go to firms with 50 or fewer employees and wages averaging $24,000 or less. To get the 3.5 percent rate, the company would have to be paying its workers less than $12,000 on average.

News Arts Crosswords Lunch Sports Comics Horoscope
Everybody reads us.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
545-3500

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

THE DOVE'S NEST
Rt. 116 Sunderland • 665-7969
Open Mon-Sat 6am - 3pm
Sunday 7am - 3pm
THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
French Toast $1.09
w/ Bacon, Ham, or Sausage $2.09
add 2 eggs + 50¢

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
AEROBICS: Funk, REEBOK STEP, Hi/Low, Boxercise, Yoga
STRENGTH: Keiser Air Power, NAUTILUS, Olympic weights, GRAVITRON, The Treadwall
CARDIO: STAIRMASTERS, LifeCycles • LifeRower, Treadmills • BioCycles, Climb Max • NordicTrack, TrueClimb • VersaClimber
SEMESTER SPECIAL
$139 four months
Amherst Athletic Club — 460 West St. — South Amherst 256-0080

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Rush Limbaugh can't do what it takes to fill the void

I was watching the tube the other night when the self-appointed "King of Late Night," Rush Limbaugh himself, came on. Normally, this would be cause for excitement, because in the past I have generally loved nearly every word of what Rush has said.

But that particular night Rush was getting on my nerves; it was the day of the PLO-Israeli treaty, and Rush was making Yasser Arafat jokes. I didn't find him funny.

At that moment I came to a weighty realization: Rush Limbaugh is not the end-all, be-all of the conservative cause.

In fact, he cannot hold a flame to the man who opened doors for him: Morton Downey, Jr.

The comparison between the two men is an interesting one. Both men use the airwaves as a conduit to espouse their conservatism and both are known by the first four letters of their first name. That is where the similarities end.

While neither man holds the distinction of being a lifelong Republican (unlike myself), at least Mort grew up in the political sphere, trying to make a change in the United States. He was the son of an Irish tenor, and as a child he would vacation with the Kennedys in Hyannisport (I know, I know, just bear with me, the pain will be gone momentarily.).

Mort kicked around for awhile, even spending a few years in Biafra helping starving African children. He had a good heart, but for the first few adult years, he was a Democrat (OK, the pain ends here). Then he wised up.

With a manner that makes Rush look docile, Mort ranted and raved from the get-go. His first guest ever, porn star Seka, walked off the show when Mort treated her like the trash she was.

Michael
MORRISSEY

For the next couple of years he enjoyed free rein in magazines, television and in newspapers, and until the embarrassing skinhead incident, Mort was the king.

When Mort left, a new void developed for a few years. No conservative stepped in, and when the liberal media turned on George Bush and decided to knock him out of the White House, there was no patriot to defend him.

Rush had his successful talk show in Sacramento, traded it in for the Excellence in Broadcasting gig in New York City, then decided to go on television during the election.

His attempt to discredit Bill Clinton was too little, too late, and the public did not find out the truth about President Willie until now. But since then, what has Rush done?

When I saw Rush rank on the quest for peace of Israel, I bristled. How could you prefer war and hostility to peace?

Rush, no matter what the ratings say, will never be like Mort. He does not allow anyone on his show to speak ("I am equal time"), yet claims he can find the truth in any situation.

When Mort's show was on, there was always at least one or two liberal Democrats on the panel (Pablumpukers, if you will) plus the assorted wackos in the crowd. The truth was always exposed through discussion, and Mort's loud mouth always carried the day.

Rush didn't even register to vote until he was 35. He has no other interests besides politics (whereas Mort is a Renaissance man) and he tries to tell the American people what they should think. To quote another of my idols, one of the Jerky Boys, let me say this to Rush: "Open your ears, jackass."

Or as Mort would eloquently put it, "I do not claim to be the exclusive voice of the people, but my experience on TV has led me to believe that many of my opinions are shared by a great multitude.

"If the loudmouth approach has done nothing else, it has drawn the audience out of its lethargy. The common man and women have risen. And we must listen."

Listen up, Rush Limbaugh, you are no Morton Downey, Jr.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist

I have only two friends But really, I'm not a loser

Something is not right about this.

I am a sophomore here at the illustrious University of Massachusetts, and am a student in the communication department.

That sounds okay. There is still one problem. I have two friends.

I attend a school with 23,000 other students. Suffice it to say there is enough people to befriend. And yet, I have just two friends.

Andrew
BRYCE

I have known my two friends, who will remain nameless due to the fact they may not be proud of being classified as such, for about 15 months. We met at freshman orientation two summers ago, and they have been two of my best buddies ever since.

Am I supposed to have more friends? Am I supposed to be buddy-buddy with everyone I meet? Am I supposed to hang out with a large group of people?

Before I portray myself as the biggest loser on campus, let me just say, that I do have a lot of acquaintances. I have met many interesting and kind people throughout my young college career.

From those who I have met in the dorms I have lived in, to those who I have worked with, to those I have met at parties. I see these people on different occasions, and acknowledge their presence.

I am not used to this, though. I am used to hanging around a large group of people.

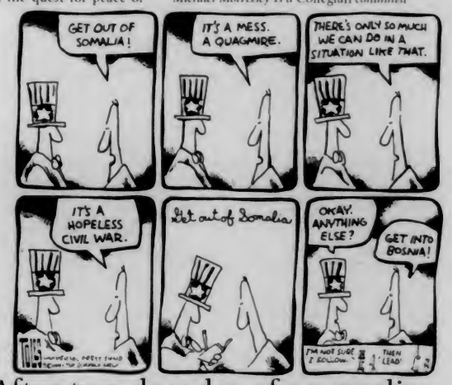
Being from a small town and attending a small high school, I tended to spend my time with a good number of kids.

So, why don't I do this anymore?

Does it have to do with the fact that there are twice as many people here at UMass as there are in my hometown? Probably, since we were together for a long time.

Does it have to do with the fact that I meet so many people on so many different occasions that it is a challenge to get to know all of them on a personal level? I think it does, since there are a large amount of magnetic personalities roaming around this campus I would like to get to know.

I realize that this is only the beginning of my second year at UMass. Being a sophomore, I feel much more comfortable with not only the people I met last year, but also, those whom I've had the pleasure of meeting during the first week of the 1993 fall semester.



It seems as if everything is falling into place. That includes getting MORE acquainted with the acquaintances I have now.

So, to all who think they are losers because they can count their friends on one hand, remember that we attend a school with what seems like a million people.

Acquaintances are easy to find, and given the right circumstances, they could become your friends.

Anyways it is quality, not quantity.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian staff mem-

Department defends reputation

Allow me to clarify one point in what seems to me the generally very fine coverage of the Kerrigan affair by Ms. Vanessa Adelman [Collegian, 10 Sept.].

Perhaps I misspoke or did not emphasize my meaning sufficiently, but what I meant to say, and thought I did say in response to a question, was that I was not at all surprised by the negative reaction to one comment in particular excerpted from the Harper's panel discussion.

I was not at all surprised because I considered that particular comment outrageous (as does everyone to whom I've spoken, no matter their opinions about other parts of the article).

What I found "unfortunate" had nothing to do with Kerrigan directly, but with the effect of such understandable negative reaction on the perception of the English Department, which has deservedly enjoyed the reputation, gained and sustained over the years, of expert and inspiring teaching.

The distinction is an important one, which I would like to make for the record.

Professor Kerrigan is a prolific and distinguished scholar, chiefly of Renaissance literature. To judge from what now must be hundreds of undergraduate and graduate course and teacher evaluations, he is also a fine and effective teacher (though some who only know him through Harper's may be surprised to hear this).

But can a respected scholar and effective teacher believe something outrageous which many understandably find offensive?

Obviously so: and that too is truly unfortunate.

Vincent DiMarco
Chairman
Department of English

After two decades of counseling The EWC needs new priorities

Last week I noticed a flyer inviting the campus community to an "Open House" at the Everywoman's Center. This struck me as ironic because I do not consider the EWC to be a place that is open to serving one of the most critical needs of women on this campus.

I am referring to the need for a place to gather during the evening where all women can come together to strategize, plan for political action and socialize.

As it stands today, campus and community women will find the doors to the EWC closed and locked at 4 p.m., effectively denying access to those of us whose days are filled with classes and work.

The emphasis of the EWC is on handholding therapy, which reflects the cultural orientation of a predominantly white middle-class woman's organization.

This is based on the priorities of the center's director more than anything else.

Despite the fact that many women find therapeutic services useful, without an activist component neither empowerment nor social change will ever be achieved.

Indeed, psychological services can serve to disempower women by encouraging them to simply cope, accepting the reality of the violence they face as a necessary evil.

Based on personal experience, I know that taking action against the political and cultural institutions that perpetrate violence against women is both more constructive and more healing than endless hours of counseling.

Not only should the EWC provide an open and accessible place for women to take their own initiatives, but it must also use its annual Sexual Assault Report to publicize the reality of dangers women face every day.

What does the EWC do to warn new students that they are the most likely to experience date rape? What are they doing to teach women to defend themselves? What are they doing about professors who teach "Overcoming Virginity 101"?

Is it more cost-effective to prevent sexual assault than to simply cope with the consequences?

Perhaps the EWC is so afraid of losing financial backing that they are unwilling to confront the institutions that perpetuate violence against women.

I believe that this is a risk the EWC should be willing to take.

I realize there are also many other issues women in this community would like to see addressed.

The EWC is a 20-year-old organization that has never faced a comprehensive review by women from the community it purports to serve.

Apparently, it is now in the grips of a poverty mentality, ossification and institutional inertia. Hopefully this sad situation can be changed through an open exchange of ideas.

One of the most crippling effects of women's subordination is the notion that we cannot allow for conflict and discord within our ranks.

I believe it is only through such difficult dialogue that constructive changes can be made.

Julia Mahoney
Amherst

■ President

continued from page 1

degree in philosophy in 1972 and his doctorate in 1973.

Buell said she would seek permission from the state Ethics Commission to vote on issues that affect the University, but she also said regardless of the ruling, she would remain a strong advocate for the University.

Hooker said he is aware of the potential for a possible conflict of interest, but he also said conflicts of interest are a normal part of public life and he is not overly concerned.

State Rep. Ellen Story, D-Amherst, is married to the vice president of UMass, Ronald Story. She has said she has not had to deal with the State Ethics Commission and she has only been prevented from voting on the issue of pay increases for state employees.

She also said the marriage of legislators and University administrators is not harmful in anyway and actually has more benefits than drawbacks.

Wire reports and the Daily Hampshire Gazette contributed to this story.

■ Reality

continued from page 3

simulator, sit in a motion-based adventure theater and go crazy with holographic video games.

Another popular attraction at this exhibit is Virtuality, which has two options. Reminiscent of the movie "Lawnmower Man," in order to use this a person dons head gear, called a Visette. You can battle with a friend on a 3-D platform in space in Dactyl Nightmare.

Virtuality creates a competitive environment where two players can not only interact with the virtual world, fighting with imaginary creatures, pivoting their field of vision 360 degrees and determining their direction of travel, but can even interact with each other.

Visitors will be able to enter any of the many 3-D worlds offered by putting on a pair of powered glasses aptly named CrystalEYES. This PC-based system creates high resolution, full color stereoscopic images. Visitors will be able to visit Lombard Street in San Francisco, see the structure of molecules or tour imaginary worlds.

The World Trade Center Boston is one of the largest privately-run convention centers in New England. Over one million visitors from around the globe come to the Trade Center each year.

Tickets for The Other Side are $7. The premier rides and attractions are an additional cost. Hours for the show are Tuesday and Wednesday from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m., Thursday and Friday from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m., Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

■ Fugitive

continued from page 1

expected to be as harsh as they might be, especially given that it is a lockup in a large urban center.

"I would say it's one of the nicest jails I've ever been in," said Black.

Power drove the "switch car," the second escape car used after the bank robbery and killing of Officer Walter Schroeder. The other defendants, including Saxe, all served prison time. William Gilday, who was convicted of shooting Schroeder, is still serving a life term.

Power is being held without bail in a newly built cell. She is allowed two family pictures, a pair of sneakers, sandals and legal papers and was issued the jail uniform of loose-fitting pants and a loose, long-sleeve top, similar to hospital scrubs.

The gourmet cook began her new life with a tuna fish sandwich and a cup of onion soup and by Thursday she asked her lawyer to bring her more mystery books.

One of the books was Comeback, by Dick Francis. Black also brought her The Listening Woman by mystery writer Tony Hillerman.

Power has not been given any duties yet at the jail, although some prisoners are allowed to work in maintenance, cleaning and kitchen jobs, said Erin Keaney, a sheriff's department spokeswoman. Power is a gourmet chef who owned a restaurant and taught cooking classes in Oregon, where she lived since 1977 under the name Alice Metzinger.

Want to earn BIG money?
On a small investment?
It's staring you right in the face.
Collegian Advertising
545-3500
We reach students.
19,000 copies, every day!

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
Dimmitt SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT
MT. FARMS 4 MT. FARMS MALL ROUTE 9, HADLEY 584-9153
Call Theatre For Showtimes
Manhattan Murder Mystery PG
The Fugitive PG-13
The Man Without A Face PG
Boxing Helena R
HAMPSHIRE 8 HAMPSHIRE MALL ROUTE 9, HADLEY 586-7550
Call Theatre For Showtimes
Jurassic Park PG-13
Undercover Blues PG-13
The Real McCoy PG-13
Striking Distance R
In The Line Of Fire R
True Romance R
Free Willy PG

BIG GUY LIQUORS
New in Town
25 Montague Rd.
North Amherst Rt.63
COME SEE THE BIG GUY
FULL LINE OF LIQUORS & WINES
ALL TYPES OF BEER
Next to Superior Pizza, Cumberland Farms, Brooks Discount, & Post Office.
One Minute From Puffton & Brandywine.
549-3555 BEER BALLS

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

EXOTIC FISH & PET WORLD
49 Russell St., Rt. 9
Hadley - At the Village Barn Shops
586-3362
FRESH WATER FISH
Hundreds of Types In Stock
MARINE FISH
The Areas Largest Selection
A FULL SELECTION OF QUALITY DRY GOODS & SUPPLIES FOR YOUR PET ... AT EXCELLENT PRICES!
REPTILES
A Separate Room Full - Don't Miss Seeing Our Own 14' Python!
SMALL ANIMALS & BIRDS
From Parakeets to The Unusual - Some Already Tame!
OPEN SAT, SUN, MON: 10-6
TUES-FRI: 10-9

Arts & Living

Advice for new students

Part II of 'How to be cool' series

By ADAM SCOTT ROBERTS
Collegian Staff

For those of you who missed yesterday's column, this is the second in a two part series about the Top Twenty Things Every Minuteman and Minutewoman Should Know.

8) Best Places for Social Study: The Hatch, The Blue Wall, Newman Center (mainly Greeks), the Tower Library.

9) Things to know about the Tower Library: The 26 story structure is the largest brick library in the world. Biggest lie about the library: the library is sinking and the bricks are popping out.

10) Best Place to Study: The Graduate Room in the Campus Center, School of Business Administration (a.k.a SBA), and Amherst College's Frost Library. You can get work accomplished there and it's open weekend nights unlike the Tower Library. It's just a five-minute walk from town or two stops on the PVTA.

11) Best Opportunity: The 5-College Exchange allows any student taking a minimum of three credits at UMass to take classes at any of the four other private institutions (Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Hampshire and Amherst) free of charge.

Turn to ADVICE, page 8

A premiere full of Malice

Amid the splendor and opulence of the Academy of Music Opera House, a little malice will be played out.

Nothing criminal, of course, Malice, the film that was partially shot in Northampton, Amherst and at Smith College last semester, will hold its regional premiere Friday, September 24 at 8 p.m. at the Opera House, located in Northampton.

The psychological thriller stars Nicole Kidman, Alec Baldwin, UMass alumnus Bill Pullman, "Cheers" star Bebe Neuwirth, Anne Bancroft and George C. Scott.

Castle Rock Entertainment, the film's production company, has agreed to the benefit performance with the grosses going towards the Renovation Fund of the community owned opera house.

All seats are reserved, with tickets selling at $10. There is also a "Big Ticket" $20 admission, which includes both the film and a post-movie cocktail party with hors d'oeuvres on the Academy's historic stage and a behind the scenes peek inside the dressing rooms used by stars since 1892.

The box office is now selling tickets to the event from noon - 5:30 p.m. and 7 - 8:30 p.m. For ticket info call the premiere line at 584-9032.

Mail orders are also being accepted. Checks should be made payable to Academy of Music and mailed to Premiere, 274 Main Street, Northampton, MA 01060. Orders should state number of $10 and/or $20 desired as well as a self-addressed stamped envelope.

— JON LUPO

Smith hosts 'Wise Men'

By BILL LABERIS
Collegian Correspondent

On Friday Sept. 17 and Saturday Sept. 18, the Scott Dance Studio at Smith College in Northampton will host Wise Men, a concert of dances by choreographers Christopher Johnson, Peter Schmitz and Michael Simpson. The evening will attempt to explore a wide range of dance styles while trying to convey a common message felt by the three men.

The idea for Wise Men came about when Simpson decided it would be interesting to collaborate with other men, mostly due to the female majority in Smith's dance department. Though Wise Men will feature both male and female performers, the choreography is predominantly male.

"It's a different energy when men collaborate," said Simpson.

Simpson said Wise Men would be "an opportunity to work through dance with each other." Though the intent of the evening is not political, one topic that will be explored is the role of gay men in the world of dance. Traditionally in dance, the theme of romance between a man and a woman is not only widely used, but also widely accepted.

Wise Men will attempt to expose the viewer to the relatively unused theme of romance between two men.

"People who come to the concert will realize that there are more levels to dance than they might think," Simpson said.

Though the three men have never worked together as a group in the past, Wise Men will contain some dances that are the result of all three men's individual work. Such is the case with the piece entitled Skin, which features Simpson and Johnson dancing to Schmitz's choreography.

Johnson, who's influences include ballet and modern dance, has worked with the Frankfurt Ballet, White Oak Dance Project, Lar Lubovitch Dance Company and Feld Ballet. He will be premiering a ballet entitled Restroom, in which he and Schmitz will combine gay iconography, St. Sebastion and kitsch to the music of Rogers and Hammerstein, as well as Phillip Glass.

Schmitz, whose influences include theatre and improvisation, will contribute two works to the evening. Skin, a complex piece with music by Henryk Gorecki, which was originally cast for a man and woman, has been adapted to be performed by two men. His second piece will be an improvisational number featuring a male singer from Bennington.

Simpson's contributions to Wise Men will come from his thesis, which is now in progress at Smith College. The two excerpts, entitled "Ted's Inversion," and "Tango Suite" are part of the upcoming House of Ruth, Ted and Martha.

The pieces explore the influences of modern dance pioneers Ruth St. Dennis, Ted Shawn and Martha Graham.

Graham is best known in dance circles for her work in Vaudeville, in which she introduced her audiences to exotic dances that were foreign at the time.

"Ted's Inversion" will be a solo featuring readings by actress Meg De Give from Havelock Ellis' book "The Psychology of Sex." "Ted's Inversion" deals with the topic of homosexuality as it is mentioned within the book.

Call 585-3232 for reservations or information between 1-5 p.m. Ticket price is $5 for adults and $4 for seniors and students. Showtime for both nights is 8 p.m.

SEVEN O'S
LIVE COUNTRY MUSIC
EVERY THURSDAY
KARAOKE
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Live Bands & Dancing
EVERY SUNDAY
OPEN MIC
Beers of the Week
$1.25 BUSCH BOTTLES
Next to Cliffside • Minutes from U-MASS
Never a Cover
M-F 3PM to 1AM • Sat & Sun Noon to 1AM
Rt. 116 • Sunderland
665-8788

4 NON BLONDES
THIS TUES!
Budweiser CONCERT SERIES
SEPTEMBER 21 • 7:30PM
MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE (413) 545-0505, AND AT ALL TICKETMASTER OUTLETS INCLUDING FILENE'S, MOVIES & MORE, B.D. MUSIC, VIDEO PARADISE
CALL - FOR -TIX (413) 733-2500 • (617) 931-2000
EVENT DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PROUD TO BE YOUR BUD.
PRODUCED BY JIM KOPLIK/ SHELLY FINKEL/ JOHN SCHER/ METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT

Broadway at a glance

Blood Brothers and Angels lead NYC theatre picks

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian staff

A busy summer on Broadway has kept theatergoers happy. Here is a look at some of the biggest openings.

Angels in America; Millenium Approaches (Walter Kerr Theatre): Tony Kushner's Pulitzer and Tony-winning reflection on gay life in the AIDS age has been greeted by almost unanimous critical acclaim, and hailed as the greatest American play in a generation. Does it live up to the hype? No.

But this roller coaster of comedy, fantasy and melodrama remains an audacious, inventive, even visionary work. The focus of the play is less on the dreaded disease than it is on the people living through it, and the result is like a living AIDS quilt.

Yes, the play is unabashedly pretentious, elitist and esoteric, and yes it seems almost custom-made for the yuppie crowds which seem to frequent it. But in a crazy way it works, and I can't wait for Part Two to arrive in October. B

Blood Brothers (Music Box): The best show on Broadway, and possibly the best British musical of my lifetime, is the story of twin brothers who are separated at birth but united as friends in economically impoverished Liverpool. The musical traces the divergent courses of their lives from early childhood to death, and the result is magical.

Dramatist Willy Russell has constructed a grand musical with grand themes about society, class and love which encompasses achingly real visions of three decades and three people (both the brothers and the woman who becomes caught between them) without faltering.

The composition is brilliance itself: opening at the scene of the brothers' death, the musical then goes back to follow their lives. Despite the knowledge of the play's ending, Russell's work makes the audience fall in love with his characters before addressing any of the problems which will eventually destroy them.

The result is like being lowered into a grave, and the emotional effect is shattering. Russell's score is raw and exciting, with moments of unexpected lyrical beauty, and the performances of this new American cast sometimes excel those of their London predecessors. Absolutely unmissable. A+

Kiss of the Spider Woman (Broadhurst): This Kander and Ebb prison tale is pretty much a joke. The joke being that so many famous and creative people could pool their resources and come up with such a stupid show. The plot: gay sex criminal and prison informant Molina (Brent Carver) tries to finesse secrets out of his revolutionary cellmate (Anthony Crivello) in return for an early release.

Problem: Molina falls in love with his brooding, square-jawed roomie. Other problem: There is a spooky character named the Spider Woman (Chita Rivera) wasting Molina's time by singing long, excisable songs about how she symbolizes death.

Third problem: the plot is implausible to the point of inanity. Why does a warden who routinely kills prisoners just for sport allow Molina to fill his cell with theatrical backdrops and posters, wear silk clothing and eat catered turkey dinners (with real silverware!) just to learn facts so secret that even the show's creators don't know what they are, or what political purpose they serve? D+

Tommy (St. James): The classic Who rock opera about the pinball-playing idiot savant receives its first Broadway staging, as a re-tooled, easy-listening, easy-thinking commercial confection. All references to drug abuse, child abuse or Messianism have been crudely deleted, a happy ending has been added, and the over-orchestrated Pete Townshend score attempts to be "lush" but winds up overwrought.

I had the time of my life. True, this version is likely to anger purists. True, it represents a complete artistic sellout by Townshend. But so what? The music is still powerful (even in the murky new arrangements), the young cast is full of energy and vocal power and the staging is the definition of "much ado about nothing."

People fly, things explode, planes zoom across the stage, machine guns are fired and a giant wall of televisions and movie screens overloads the audience with images. But the excess is inspired, and the result is almost insanely entertaining. B

Long Running Shows: Among Broadway's established hits, some changes are afoot. Jonathan (Gypsy) Hadary is bringing new life to Guys and Dolls, while Miss Saigon, now on a third cast headed by Leila Florentino, is sliding into the half-price line. One show crying for a second look is Les Miserables, now enjoying the return of veterans Chuck Wagner and Craig Schulman. Wagner is a forceful presence and a delicious heavy as Javert, and Schulman, as Valjean, is a master of vocal trickery and furtive glances. With seats now starting at $15, it is certainly the best buy on Broadway.

■ Advice

continued from page 7

Hampshire and Amherst) free of charge. In most cases you'll earn four credits rather than three and the grade will be figured into your G.P.A.

12) The Best Newspaper to Read: The Collegian (you're holding it) has weekly This Weekend sections to keep you up to date on local happenings.

13) Never call yourself a freshman. It's sooo gauche! Rather you are a "first year student." Pretty soon you'll get used to the lingo out here.

14) Worst Thing about Dorms: It can get very loud especially in the towers in Southwest. Purchase a pair or two of ear plugs, you'll be glad you did.

15) The movies are pretty popular throughout the valley, because movies are always around $3 to $4 — with your student ID of course. Membership has its privileges.

16) Best Things To Do On the Weekend: Go to Northampton (a.k.a. NoHo). There you can find great restaurants and shops. Go into town, The Berkshires, Vermont and New Hampshire ski resorts are within close range. Every out of state — or heck in-staters too — must make at least one road trip to Boston.

17) Best Place to Kick Back and Relax on Campus: The benches along the campus pond. You can even feed the ducks and the swan. They'll take the food right out of your hand! Another quiet spot is on the Metawampe Lawn.

18) Good Thing to Know: Like yourself the University also has another newcomer. As of July 1st of this year we've have a new Chancellor, David Scott by way of Michigan State University. He promises to get this university back on track.

19) Whitmore (a.k.a. Whitless) is very bureaucratic. Plan to be given the run around for practically anything.

20) The Twentieth thing that every Minuteman and Minutewoman should know is that Wednesday night was the season premiere of "Beverly Hills 90210". Yes, practically everyone watches this show out here. After all this is the Happy Valley.

Adam Scott Roberts is a Collegian columnist.

CORRECTION

Yesterday's This Weekend calendar listing for the Black Comedy auditions was incorrect. Auditions will be held Saturday Sept. 18 from 7-10 p.m. Please make a note of it. The Collegian regrets the error.

Downstairs

Posters
Lighting
Bedspreads
Rugs
Bookcases
Chairs
and more good stuff

at Faces

a. Rugs: dhurries, orientals, rags & more. From $7.95 to $69.95
b. Posters: over 1,000 designs. From $3.95 to $30.00
c. Lighting: task lamps, desk, clip-on, halogen & floor styles. From $7.95 to $79.95
d. Folding Bookcase: black or natural. $49.95 also desks, TV carts, tables & more.

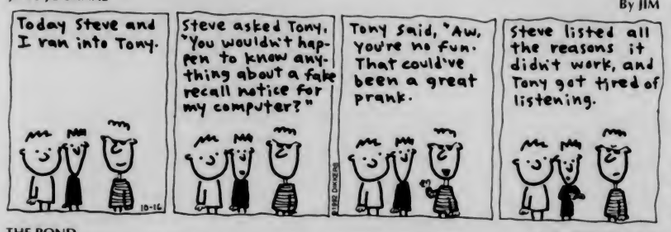
northampton • main street • 7 days

The Collegian.
545-3500.
Call Us!

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days
8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine Starting at $1
Attendant available all day
326 College St. (Rt. 9)
Amherst • 253-5072

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY NUMBERS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE BEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS 9 A.M. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk Ins are Welcome



CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

THE POND By JEREMY THORPE

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

The squid family on vacation

Quote of the Day

"I'm the bad guy? How'd that happen?"
– Michael Douglas as D-FENS in "Falling Down"

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep your diet resolutions, but even more important, put work aside and relax. Constantly thinking about business could dull your sensitivity to others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be patient with a moody friend or romantic partner. A sympathetic ear can work wonders. Certain social plans for this evening could be too expensive for your budget. Mention concerns.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pooled resources can have a powerful influence on an employment or financial matter. You will be able to attain exactly what you need. Go ahead and discuss a salary discrepancy with higher-ups.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your dependability pays huge dividends now. Establish a positive work environment that is conducive to creativity. Refuse to let someone's criticism of your views sour you. Keep your eye on the ball.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be willing to start an organizing committee. Follow your sixth sense regarding a potential love. A friend plays an increasingly important role in your affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Strong opinions may get an equally strong reaction. Fight a tendency toward inertia. Start new projects with enthusiasm. Others are happy to follow your lead.

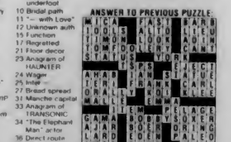
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Teamwork is essential if you want to meet deadlines and increase profits. A financial question must be answered this week. A sense of obligation could involve you in another person's battles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your intellectual interests could interfere with a desire to spend more time outdoors. Count on your mate to help out when the chips are down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your financial worries are more imaginary than real now. Count your blessings! A new understanding helps a partnership succeed better than before.

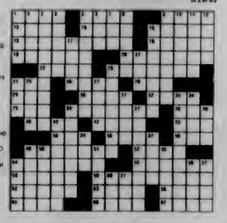
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A busy day lies ahead! Be on the lookout for unusual opportunities. An important personal goal moves within reach. Give serious thought to a change of scenery.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your privacy is very important to you now. Be careful not to mix business with pleasure. You need to spend more time with someone who loves and understands you. Romance is favored.



PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Highly beneficial forces are at work in several areas of your life. Move with caution if invited to invest in something you do not fully understand. Expert advice is worth the cost.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Abates
5 Caspian Sea feeder
9 Bye-bye
13 Daytime TV program
14 Airport transport
15 Heavenly hunter
16 Anagram of SECTARIAN
18 — Fundo, city in S. Brazil
19 Inaccurate
20 Anagram of MINGLER
22 Hon title
23 Encroacher
24 Obstruct
26 Lord in "The Winter's Tale"
28 Four qts.
29 New Haven VIP
30 Corrida cries
32 — were born Georgia —
35 Jose's aunt
36 Anagram of HI RIB TEA
38 Wilder title starter
40 Sailor's direction
42 Architectural border
43 Lobbyist's org.
44 Bottom line
46 Turnpike fee
48 Pig's place
49 Sussex natives
52 Kind of point
54 Anagram of CAVIARE
55 Disturbed the night
56 Lilo Arterian language group
58 Anagram for OPEN ARMED
62 Actor Martin
63 Ameerra a rival
64 Assistant
65 Comfort
66 Bank transaction
67 Crisp cookie

DOWN
1 Jacob's twin
2 Deck boss: superstar
3 Anagram of CALIBRATE
4 Kind of whale
5 Undisclosed
6 Rover inlet
7 Yves' buddy
8 Pines
9 Crush underfoot
10 Bridal path
11 "— with Love"
12 Unknown auth.
15 Function
17 Regretted
21 Floor decor
23 Anagram of HAUNTER
24 Wiggle
25 Intel —
27 Bread spread
31 Manche capital
33 Anagram of TRANSONIC
34 "The Elephant Man" actor
36 Direct route
37 Ship steerer
39 Sundream
41 One way to personalize
45 Personal quirk
47 Ranger precedes
49 Patti LuPone role
50 Dick and Jane
51 Calyx leaf
53 Namesakes of Charles's wife
54 Church part
58 Norse epic
57 Profound
60 Word before Grande or Bravo
61 Harem room

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

5/29/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor.....Adam Goulston
Photo Technician.....Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor.....Jim Ganley
Production.....Tony Morse
Marni E. Helfner

MENU

LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
Fish Munchies
BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
Fish Munchies

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Manicotti in Sauce
BASICS DINNER
Manicotti in Sauce
Roast Turkey

508-543 5640

■ Patriots

continued from Page 12

person who wanted a weekly Redskins column: yeah, forgeddaboutit.

Now to the game itself . . . I'll admit I am in stunned disbelief. The Eagles are 2-0 and atop the NFC East after coming back and beating Green Bay. Philly is not that good. Period.

And I can't explain how Kotite, Randall and company are doing it. Maybe the key is that their opponents cannot figure it out either.

According to my new Pigskin Picks correspondent Bill "Just a bit outside" Balfour, Marlena Cooke, wife of 'Skins' owner Jack Kent Cooke was arrested and charged with DUI down in D.C.

To tell you the truth, Cooke could have been drinking away her sorrows after her husband's franchise lost to Phoenix.

But like the midget with Thornton Melon's wife in the movie Back to School, what was with the drunk on the roof of her convertible? Anyway, go with Randall. Philadelphia 16, Washington 13.

Speaking of the mediocrity in the league, there are 12 clubs with .500 records, and two of the teams without a win were in the playoffs last season (Dallas and Pittsburgh). After hanging tough against the 49ers in the first week, the Steelers were belittled by the Rams.

Barry Foster is a happy running back with his new contract extension. Now that Foster's happy, Steeler fans can get back to celebrating victories. Pittsburgh 21, Cincinnati 6.

Who would have thought that the Saints would be undefeated after two weeks? Certainly not I. After losing Vaughn Dunbar and now Lorenzo Neal in the backfield, New Orleans is relying on the arm of Wade Wilson. In the words of Beavis, "he sucks."

However, Wilson has thrown for a whopping 547 yards and he has amassed a quarterback rating of 104.3, which is the highest in the NFC. This week the Lions travel to the Superdome to put their undefeated record on the line. Don't fret fans, Wilson should disappoint. Detroit 20, New Orleans 16.

I remember telling a friend last weekend that the New England Patriots would hang tough (pardon the Losers on the Block wording) against Detroit. Actually, for a moment there, I thought the tandem of Bledsoe and Brisby would pull another one, excuse me, one out.

Well, this week Rick Mirer and Bledsoe will go head-to-head in the game that has produced the hottest ticket in town. Three lucky Collegian columnists will be on the scene in Foxboro, witnessing the Pats and the Hawks, and I am not one of them. Actually, I'm sure you will read about it next week some time.

Those ugly blue uniforms really make the old Patriot logo seem halfway decent. Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Just like winning for New England fans. The wait is over. New England 27, Seattle 17.

On Monday night, the Broncs and the Chiefs battle it out, with John Elway and Joe Montana at the helm of each team; both Elway and Montana have different histories when it comes to Super Bowls, however.

If Montana plays, Kansas City wins. It is time for redemption for Schottenheimer's boys. Kansas City 24, Denver 20.

Did you see that?

•The Natural Gas Quarterback Efficiency Ratings on NBC. Can you say sellout?

•Emmitt Smith in his Mr. T mode at halftime on Monday night. The fool deserves no pity.

• Lin Elliot. Good riddance.

• The Patriots have the same record as the defending Super Bowl Champions. Enough said.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Women take to the road

Kenny hopes to keep on winning track

By CANDICE FLEMMING
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team will be looking to avenge its earlier loss to Hartford when it takes on the Lady Hawks and St. Francis of New York tomorrow in Hartford, Conn.

UMass lost to Hartford 3-0 in its first match this year. Coach Bonnie Kenny said she feels her team can do a lot better this time now that it has gained some experience with four matches under its belt.

"We can play them better," said Kenny. "They're a good, scrappy team."

If the way the Minutewomen played on Tuesday is any indication, they should fare well. UMass beat Fairfield, 3-1, with game scores of 17-15, 12-15, 15-9 and 15-12. Kenny said she was very pleased with her team's play and was particularly impressed with their defense.

"We passed the ball very well," Kenny said.

UMass was led by freshman Kimberly Minzer who had a team-high 23 kills while adding 11 digs. Sophomore Rachel Sky-Stiskin, a transfer from Penn State, had 19 kills and 7 digs. Freshman Dionne Nash added to her 30-kill performance in last weekend's tournament, in which she was named to the all-tournament team, with 14 kills and 15 digs.

"The difference in the match was the serving and receiving, that really won it for us," said Kenny. "It was a good match for us and we came through."

UMass will be going into the St. Francis match with some confidence knowing that Fairfield already beat St. Francis this year.

However, Kenny said it will still be a tough game. The Minutewomen will have to continue to play good defense and their serve-recieve should be a deciding factor in the match.

"If we play like we did against Fairfield, we should do well," said Kenny.

With the win against Fairfield, the Minutewomen evened their record to 2-2. Their other win came against Central Connecticut last Saturday.

SPORTS NOTICE

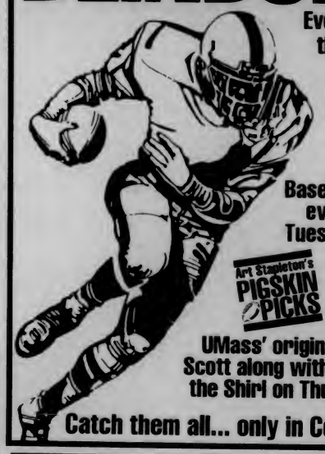
• Entries are still being accepted for flag football, soccer and softball. Play begins Monday, Sept. 20. Stop by the Intramural Office in 215 Boyden for more information.

• Anyone interested in the men's or women's fencing teams, there will be a meeting on Monday at 4 p.m. in Totman Lobby.

Are you artistically inclined?

The Collegian's Editorial/Opinion page is looking for cartoonists!

Contact E.C. Thomas at 113 Campus Center for information.



WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!

NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR
1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
Charlie's tavern AMHERST, MASS. since 1978

This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95

Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

BLINDSIDED

Every Wednesday in the Collegian, read Sean Hayden and Anthony Guido on College Football. and don't miss...
Baseball every Tuesday Michael Morrissey's BEANBALLS
Art Stapleton's PIGSKIN PICKS The boss' NFL highlights each and every Friday
UMass' original David Scott along with Bo and the Shirl on Thursdays The Collegian's Own SCOTT'S SHOTS
Catch them all... only in Collegian Sports!

– Amherst Area –
New Testament Church
invites you to join our
SUNDAY WORSHIP CELEBRATION
at the Amherst Ballet Center
29 Strong Street, Amherst

10am WORSHIP, PRAYER, SHARING
11am TEACHING:
"The Apocalyptic Calling Card: Jesus as The Son of Man"
Call 256-8856 for more information
Cross East Pleasant Street at Butterfield Dorm. ABC is a brown house on the right. Enter through back door.

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...
$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.
220 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 01002 413-253-3543

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

Men's & women's tennis travel to Wheaton

Men hope to make triumphant debut

By TED KOTTLER
Collegian Staff

There are a lot of people eager to catch an earful of what University of Massachusetts tennis coach Judy Dixon has to say. The phone rings off the hook in her tiny, tucked away office on the second floor of Boyden.

It's no matter, Dixon is delighted to spread a wealth of good news regarding her recently rejuvenated program. The women's club is embarking on its second season following a two-year hiatus, while the men are preparing for their first campaign after a similar two-year suspension. Dixon handles a special task by coaching both the men's and women's teams.

You may rest assured of her qualifications; after graduating from the University of Southern California in 1973 (along with Stan Smith, he of the green-and-white adidas), she took charge of the Lady Bulldogs at Yale and then stepped in at Amherst High School to lead its formidable boys' entry.

This afternoon on the Norton, MA campus of Wheaton College, the Minutemen will see their first action in two years, playing under a special co-ed format.

This will be the third match for the women, who are 1-1. There will be two men's singles matches, two women's singles matches, a men's doubles match, a women's doubles match and two mixed doubles matches.

The top men's singles player is Kasper Vaala, a first-year exchange student whom Dixon is ecstatic about.

"It's a real treat to inherit this program and find someone here that's this good," Dixon said. "He and the second and third singles players [Ankur Baishya and Keith Murray] could play almost anywhere else."

Incredibly, Baishya, a freshman, is the only men's team member that Dixon recruited, yet she insists that "it's a very deep team; that's their biggest strength."

Twenty-two candidates groomed their groundstrokes for twelve roster spots, and Dixon sensed considerable parity among most of the hopefuls.

"The bottom nine players on the team are roughly equal, and another six prospects were right there too," Dixon said.

Women are geared up for the Lyons

By DAVE COPELAND
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team will try to extend its winning streak to two this afternoon when the Minutewomen travel to Wheaton to play what head coach Judy Dixon described as a "fun match."

"It's not an overly important match, so it will be a good break for us," Dixon said. "We've had four tough matches in six days, so I've told the women to just go out and have fun [today]."

Dixon had been upset with the team's performance up until Wednesday's loss to Holy Cross, however. The match, according to Dixon, was a heartbreaker which the Minutewomen lost 5-4. In Wednesday's match, Dixon felt the team pulled together and showed the intensity needed to win, despite the loss.

The team started the season at 0-3, due to what Dixon felt was a lack of preparation. Of the top seven players on the team, four had not lifted a racket over the summer.

"That's not the level of commitment I expect at a varsity level," Dixon said.

Adding to the team's woes has been its performance in the singles matches. Mary Edwards, the No. 3 singles player, has been sidelined with a shoulder injury and is not expected back in the lineup until next week.

"We're getting into a hole in our matches during the singles matches. We need to be stronger, especially at the fifth and sixth spots," Dixon said.

But despite the shaky start, Dixon has remained optimistic. She said she has been very impressed with the doubles play. Last year the team didn't win a doubles match the whole season, but in the past two meets, the team has won four.

"This is amazing," said Dixon. "I haven't even set my pairs for the season yet and already they're my shining stars."

Another bright spot on the team has been first-year player Liz Durant. On Wednesday against Holy Cross, Durant won the No. 2 singles match 6-3, 1-6, 6-2, which kept the team in the match until doubles play.

And on Thursday, against Central Connecticut, Durant played another tough, three-set match, beating Jackie Pagoto 7-5, 6-7 (8-6), 6-3.

"She's been great," Dixon said. "You usually don't expect those types of performances from a freshman."

Dixon said the Minutewomen were looking forward to today's match against the Lyons of Wheaton College.

The Collegian needs photographers!
Contact Aram to get involved.
113 Campus Center 545-3500

BE A TEACHER. BE A HERO.
Call 1-800-45-TEACH.

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Judies
New Menu
New Low Prices
$3.99
Lunch Specials
Mon-Fri until 4
With This Ad, Get One Free Popover with Purchase of $3.99 or More. Expires 10/28/93 One Coupon Per Visit

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons -- Free -- Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

Club CCA
Friday 9/17/93
9 pm-1 am
$2.00 Members
$4.00 Nonmembers
Sponsored by the Asian American Students Association

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ATTENTION EMTs
Fire and First Aid unit meeting
Sunday 9/19
Morrill N406
New Members 6:30
Old Members 7:00
Questions? Call Christina 546-5527

AUDITIONS
For the UMass Theatre Guild's production of "Black Comedy." Room 904 CC Sat. 7 pm. Sun. 2 pm and 7 pm.
77 6-0415

College Pizza
Open for lunch
At 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 toppings add $1
549 6073 549 6098

Eurohouse Party

Eurohouse Party III
O.J. Tasos
Friday, Sept. 17, 9 pm
UMass Campus Center 10th Floor
Refreshments - Cash Bar
$3 before 10 pm - $4 after 10 pm
Organized by
Five Colleges European Club

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Need a locker? We have them at OCHO. 428 Student Union

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating oil at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Come join NOW!

UMass Dance Team Auditions
12:00 Sunday 9/19
19th floor JA Tower
Questions? Contact Lorin: 546-1070

Women Ice Hockey Players
Interested in joining a club?
Call CHERI 665-0485 exp. preferred but not required.

AUTO FOR SALE

Chevy Citation 1980 Auto, cruise, runs ok, no rust, $500. 584-7936.

Dodge Aires '82 Station Wagon 99K miles, good condition, $900 Tel. 549-7269. Jo

DARLING KAY-K

I hope Sunday u quench your INSATIABLE thirst 2 THE MAX. I only want 2 see u drinkin' and STROLLIN' in the PURPLE RAIN. I can't give u DIAMONDS and PEARLS, all I can do is just offer u STARFISH AND COFFEE. GO CRAZY, get DELIRIOUS, and have a SCANDALOUS birthday.
EROTICally Yours,
PRINCE
p.s. Sharon and Deb say DUHI and HAPPY 21st!

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Downtown. Quiet, private, $350/mo. inclusive. Lease. 253-4236 9am - 9 pm.

Small Dorm Sized refridgerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Aerosmith Tickets
Call
546-3189
or 546-3866

AEROSMITH TICKETS best offer 549-1274 evenings

Aerosmith/4 Non Blondes
4 Gold circle seats - BO
Mullins Center 9/21
532-8331

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Bureaus. Beautiful, sturdy Must see! $65. 549-4793

Computers. Competitive prices. Assistance/lessons available. 549-6426

Computer 286 M30 with so many software. 549-7577

DOC Martens
Brown Derby Boots
Size 5 Men (7 women)
Brand new worn twice
$80 or b/o for more info. 546-0070 Helen

Dead Tickets Boston All Shows 546-0874

Dorm Refridgerators for sale
Small $30
Large $40
Call 665-4542

IBM Computer -- IBM PS12 Model 50. Color monitor, mach-ce, HDisk, 3 1/2"& 5 1/4 drives $500. 545-6641, 323-5031.

100% Pure Cashmere
595 Shawls; $195 Twin Blankets
5250 Queen 1-800 428-7825 x 303

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

286 IBM Compatible; enhanced key board; monochrome monitor, 20 MB Harddrive; 1 MG RAM; $550 665-0031

Tag Sale 171 Lincoln Ave rain or shine. Furniture, plants, clothes etc. Saturday 9/18 9-4

T.V.'s -- 19" COLOR Cable ready! $95. 549-4793

FOR SALE - AUDIO

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed. aras's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1 206 545-4155 ext. A5001

Childcare for 10 year old boy, in Leverett, Car req, some overnites. 548-9057

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals neded for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538 2035 for more information.

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

MOTORCYCLES

Motorcycle Honda CX500 78 black 27,000 miles. NEW PARTS. $850 Brian 545-2739 days.

1985 Honda Interceptor 700 White runs strong $ 900 b/o 549-4625

Yamaha FZ 600 87
Red/White great shape
asking $1600
Brian 549 5996

MUSICIANS

Guitarist seeks Bass player and drummer to form original heavy heavy rock band.
5 years experience required.
Matt 549-3581

PERSONALS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MELISSA!
Hope you had a GREAT DAY!
Love, Drane and Amy!!

Kay
Happy 21st
Roomie!!!
Tri Sigma
Love Tay

Sarah of Tri-Sigma
Get set to start sailing with us!!!
Love the sisters of Sigma Sigma Sigma

TRI SIGMA
Get psyched for our "New Beginning"
Sigma Love,
Mabel Lee

SARAH
Tonight we'll be Tri-Sigma sisters for ever.
Sigma Love,
Tara

RENTAL PROBLEMS?

Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

RIDE WANTED

Interested in carpooling from Longmeadow or Forestpark area. 567-6237

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo 323-9742

SERVICES

Factfinder Custom Library Research All students PO Box 3242 Amherst MA 01004 3247 549-0312

SITUATION

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

WANTED

I'm looking for a place my dog can run. Must be fenced with no small children. Will pay cash, 2-3 days a week
Mike 256-1960

Looking to Trade
Quality
Phish and Panic tapes
Mike 549-1272

Inside: Men's & Women's Tennis, Volleyball Coverage

Sports

No. 25 UMass not taking Maine lightly

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team and its opponent this weekend, the Black Bears of the University of Maine, are heading into Saturday's game (Orono, Maine Alumni Field, 1 p.m.) on two different sides of the spectrum.

On one side, the Minutemen are coming off a 37-7 rout of Holy Cross. On the other side, you have the Black Bears, who were annihilated by Boston University 45-0.

To say it could be ugly would be an understatement.

Despite the results last weekend, head coach Mike Hodges insists that Maine will be ready come kickoff time.

"They'll come ready to play, there's no question about that," says Hodges, a Maine alumnus ('67). "We anticipate them being fired up.

"I was telling my team, 'how would you feel if you were Maine? You give up 35 points in the first quarter and get beat 45-0 by a team who you thought you were going to beat,'" Hodges said. "I know Jack Cosgrove (Maine head coach) will get his team to use it as a motivating factor for the game."

The Minutemen are coming off an explosive offensive game as they netted 365 yards on the ground. Sophomore Rene Ingoglia led the way with 118 yards on 19 carries. Quarterback Andrew McNeilly, also a sophomore, rushed for 88 yards and threw for 173 yards.

The Minutemen kicking game showed poise against Holy Cross, namely freshmen Eric Oke, who kicked three field goals, including a 46-yarder. Hodges and the rest of the UMass coaching staff said they are very confident in Oke's ability and won't hesitate to use him in tomorrow's game.

The Minutemen will try to avenge the loss to Maine last year, when the Black Bears won 21-13 at McGuirk Stadium. The loss to the Black Bears was detrimental to the Minutemen's chances of receiving a playoff berth.

Hodges said he will not look back on past games nor will he look past Maine.

"The most important game for the UMass football program is the next one," says Hodges. "We're going to to try to play every game that way."

GAME NOTES: The game can be heard on WTTT 1430 AM as well as on WMUA 91.1 FM with Michael Morrissey and Anthony Guido calling the shots.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Freshman tailback Frank Alessio and the No. 25 University of Massachusetts football team invade Orono tomorrow for a contest with the Black Bears of Maine.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The UMass women's soccer team, ranked 8th nationally, are set to take on Rutgers University tomorrow at Richard F. Garber field at noon.

Soccer hosts A-10 foe Rutgers

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

If there is any possibility the Atlantic 10 women's soccer championship race will get interesting this season, it will occur at noon tomorrow on Richard F. Garber Field, when the University of Massachusetts (4-0, 1-0 in the A-10) hosts Rutgers (2-2-1, 1-0-1).

The Minutewomen, ranked No. 8 nationally, are the heavy favorites to capture the A-10 title in the league's first year of play, while the Lady Knights have historically been the league's second best team. Rutgers finished last season ranked No. 13 nationally.

1993 has not been as kind to Rutgers, though. Coach Charlie Duccilli has had to deal with the loss of All-America goalkeeper and current national team member Saski Webber to graduation. Webber, a considerable talent, all by herself could steal half a dozen games a season for Duccilli and without her, Rutgers is struggling.

Wednesday night the Lady Knights took a 2-0 lead into halftime against George Mason University only to see it evaporate as the Lady Patriots scored three times in the second half to shock Rutgers.

"I haven't had that happen to me in a while," Duccilli said. "And I don't want to get used to it."

Unfortunately, that will happen with a young team expecting Webber to check any mistakes.

"It has been harder to replace her than I anticipated," Duccilli said. "Her presence and confidence, while not tangible, brought the team together and relaxed them. We can no longer take things for granted and know that if we get beat she's there to step up and rescue us. When there is a defensive breakdown we pay a little more now attention than in the past."

UMass coach Jim Rudy agrees, "I think their fortunes rose and fell on Webber. They rode her to some good seasons but she is tough to replace."

The Minutewomen will look to press Webber's replacement, either junior Kimberly Myers or freshman Susan Curtis, a resident of Marshfield, MA, in an effort to keep their offensive production rolling.

"Jim Rudy has them very well organized, very controlled and patient," Duccilli said. "They just go through the rolls and wait until they can break a team down."

Duccilli will counter with senior forward Beth Uydess, who has racked up 13 points on five goals and three assists, and Misty Cregar (2 goals).

"Beth is playing very well for us right now and displaying some needed leadership," Duccilli said. "Cregar is feeling more confident now and she scored (Wednesday)."

Senior Briana Scurry will start in net for UMass.

Engin, UMass ready for battle

By MIKE REISS
Collegian Correspondent

The marquee athletes — those special, gifted ones that simply stand out. The Michael Jordans of basketball, the Joe Montanas of football and the Mario Lemieuxs of hockey. They all have an uncanny ability to control a game.

But perhaps even more impressive than their ability to control a game is their ability to make each and every teammate around them better.

University of Massachusetts water polo stalwart Tasan Engin does much of the same as the superstars aforementioned. When the 6-foot-6-inch, 220-pound two-meter man gets the ball (which is very often), the opposing team usually needs more than one defender to at least contain him, let alone shut him down.

"If teams have to focus so much about stopping him, it allows the other kids to get their opportunities," said head coach Russ Yarworth. "By no means are we a one-man team. The other players are just as important."

Such quotes sound a lot like the echo of Chicago Bullscoach Phil Jackson when he speaks of Jordan.

Engin's play last Saturday at the Cambridge Invitational was inspiring, as the senior tallied four goals in each game of the doubleheader. The Minutemen, No. 12 in the country, took both games, the first win was a 14-8 triumph over Harvard, followed by a 16-10 victory over Army.

Harvard and Army are respectable programs, as Harvard is ranked 20th nationally. Both also have a tradition of long-lasting excellence. That is one indication that this team, and Engin, are for real.

"(Last Saturday) is what I hope we'll see the rest of the season," said Yarworth of Engin's high-powered performance.

When speaking of Engin, the statistics just don't tell the story. His mere presence in the water is enough. Much like MJ, Montana and Lemieux, he is a marked man, a constant worry for the opponents.

While Engin has given opponents much to worry about, he's had his share of worries also. In the Haigis Hoopla tournament played earlier this year, he busted up his elbow against a fixture that holds the basket up. The injury required surgery and a metal screw in his eibow. It was doubtful that he would be ready for the season.

But through extensive hard work and a dedication to water polo, Engin shaped himself into form.

"He worked hard with his rehab all summer," said Yarworth.

That persistence had him ready for the season, and on Saturday the injury was a faded memory as he roared out of the gate with authority.

Tomorrow, Engin hopes to lead his troops past the likes of Army, the USMMA and Fordham at the EWPA League Tourney. On Sunday, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is the foe.

A potential 6-0 start would be a positive step towards the team goal of making the Nationals. Last year, the club fell short by one second, a fact that is not lost with this group. "That's where we're drawing our motivation from this year," said Yarworth.

Picks predicts: Patriots prevail

"I'm starting to feel more comfortable. It's kind of something you grow into. You just try to take it week to week." — Drew Bledsoe.

After two weeks have gone by in the NFL, there seems to be a trend developing: the deadly buzzword known as parity. Out of the four teams that made it to the conference championships last year, only Buffalo (2-0) is undefeated. While you may think that two weeks does not make a season, it is critical for a lot of clubs to have even records heading into Week Three.

Art Stapleton's PIGSKIN PICKS

When the Philadelphia Eagles take the field this week at the Vet, Rich Kotite's boys won't have to worry about Mark Rypien and the passing game of the 'Skins. Sure, Washington embarrassed Dallas; fine, but for those of you who called my voice mail and raved about the Hogs from D.C., remember that the pre-season picks were for the entire season.

Just because I picked Washington to win only seven games doesn't mean that they couldn't beat the Cowboys; they did. But the fact that you, the readers, called me over one column makes me wonder if your responses will come more often. For the

Turn to PARTIOTS, Page 10

The Posies will play Pearl Street tomorrow night Page 7

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
62° Monday
September 20, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 8
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Details still unkown on health care

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The first question President Clinton was asked when he created his health care task force in January was how could he deliver medical coverage to all Americans without driving up the deficit.

It may be the last question he answers about the plan.

"You have to give me something to announce" Wednesday, Clinton told reporters when asked about his financing plans late last week.

Just days before Clinton formally unveils his health care plan in a nationally televised address to Congress, final figures on how he would pay for it were among the details still being decided.

How much to raise "sin" taxes? Should he relax the limits on Medicare and Medicaid spending? Should big companies that set up their own health purchasing systems pay a special assessment?

Many items in the fine print of the health plan were still under review. Aides insist the basic structure of the plan and its financing system have long been in place, but allow that some details of the sweeping reform proposal still are evolving — and will continue to change even after it has been presented to Congress.

"It's not written in absolute stone," said Chief of Staff Mack McLarty.

Just over a week after submitting a 246-page draft to Congress, administration officials have made more than 150 changes.

"This is a consultative process," said spokesman Kevin Anderson. "You talk to people, you discuss changes, some of the changes you make."

Even fine-tuning can have a big impact on affected parties.

For example, tobacco and alcohol interests were sweating over "sin taxes." A late draft of the plan called for $105 billion through the year 2000, but left unanswered whether the money would all come from tobacco or include a hit on alcohol.

The Tobacco Institute's Tom Laurie said the "tax rumor du jour" was a 75-cent to 80-cent-a-pack increase in cigarette taxes, but the situation remained fluid over the weekend.

Advocates for the poor and elderly also were closely watching the financing formula, hoping to ease the impact on Medicaid and Medicare. The draft called for a $238 billion reduction in the expected growth of spending for the programs.

White House officials also were rethinking the structure for long term care coverage, moving to keep the benefits an open-ended entitlement for Medicaid recipients in response to worries that their benefits might decrease under the Clinton plan.

Dog Tired

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN
These two hounds took a siesta last week in front of the Student Union.

The people behind the tickets

Parking enforcement is good for you, officers say

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

Although the University of Massachusetts Office of Parking Enforcement is not an overwhelming favorite among students, it believes in serving the campus community to its best ability, according to Field Supervisor Wil Diemand.

"The officers in this type of work don't get much by way of a personality basis, but it has more to do with respect," Diemand said. "They conduct themselves in a mature manner in enforcing the parking rules for students, faculty and the whole community."

The office, which operates out of a trailer complex in Lot 31 behind Lederle Graduate Research Tower, employs eight control officers, including two meter service attendants who each have their own designated "beat" of lots to patrol. The regular hours of duty are usually 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"Sometimes we make an effort to contact someone who, for instance, is parked in a handicapped spot, to see if they have a legal right to it. If we can't, and they have no decal, we have no option but to remove the vehicle," he said.

The office has no control over how much Amherst Towing will charge for a tow, as the company is under contract with the University and the town.

Diemand said there are different policies for different times. For example, rules are relaxed during the beginning of the semester, when new students might be unfamiliar with the parking rules.

"Certainly we loosen the restrictions for certain occasions," he said. "Another thing we like to note is that porfail lots, or E-lots, are available for a grace period to those not registered."

Students often complain that these lots are too far from campus, but Diemand said the Pioneer Valley Transport Authority bus system reaches those locations periodically.

"There is also a waiting list for those who are eligible who want to get closer to the center of campus," Diemand said. "The questionnaires ask the student to make lot preferences. It's much like choosing a living area or roommate."

Some of the officers have different interpretations of the parking squeeze that occurs when student drivers violate campus regulations.

"It's a major problem," said parking attendant Ruth

Turn to PARKING, page 2

Bash that Ball

ED LEONARD / COLLEGIAN
Pete Twarog practices his backhand at the Lower Tennis Courts.

Late night scene in Sarajevo plays out under the rubble

By SAMIR KRILIC
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — It could be an ordinary weekend meal out anywhere — except for the soldiers in uniforms, submachine guns at their feet, mingling with the well-dressed civilian clientele.

Welcome to Sarajevo's version of a night on the town — or, more precisely, under it.

"When you see these people here, for a second you think that war is over," said Malik Dubravik. "But then you see the guns and uniforms, and you realize how wrong you are."

The 27-year-old musician and his friends are among the lucky few with enough money to come to the Bohemians restaurant, which offers wining and dining in the relative safety of a basement.

A young girl played background music on the piano. Behind the notes was the rattle of occasional machine gunfire at the front 400 yards away.

Most people get a monthly government dole of under $3.75. At the Bohemians, a meal and drinks for two cost about $50.

Before the war began almost 18 months ago, Sarajevo was one of Yugoslavia's most vibrant spots. it had more nightclubs, cabarets, discos and fine restaurants per capita than any other city in the former federation.

Now, downtown Sarajevo is a devastated jumble of crumbling buildings, wrecked cars and garbage heaps, whose 360,000 remaining residents listen to the radio daily for the sniper report before deciding whether to go out.

But some nightspots thrive because they're underground, making them safe from shelling. And just about any food or drink is available — on the black market.

For most people, even drinking water is a luxury with electricity powered pumps shut down by power outages.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Mimi Fellner
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1764

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

Two photos on page 4 of the Sept. 17 Collegian were attributed incorrectly. The photos were taken by Matt Kelly. The Collegian regrets the error.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, September 20

Workshop — A free math anxiety reduction workshop will be held from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. in Room 1634 of the Lederle Graduate Research Tower. The session is sponsored by the math department and Counseling and Academic Development Services.

Meeting — The Union Video Center, the University's only student-run cable television center, will hold its first general meeting for new members at 6 p.m. UVC is located in the basement of the Student Union behind the Hatch. For more information, call 545-1336.

Study hall — Study hall, with free coffee and tea, will be held from 8 to 11 p.m. in the Worcester Dining Commons. Study hall is sponsored by Housing Services Residential Education.

Cafe — UMass Hillel is sponsoring Israeli Cafe Night at the Hillel House, 388 N. Pleasant St., Amherst. The event is free.

Tuesday, September 21

Blood drive — The UMass Blood Drive continues today from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the second floor classrooms in the Newman Center.

Training — Sexual harassment awareness training sessions will be held in Campus Center Room 803. Sponsored by the Graduate Employee Organization, the first session will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. and the second will be from 6 to 8 p.m.

Study hall — Study hall, with free coffee and tea provided by Housing Services Residential Education, will be held in Worcester Dining Commons from 8 to 11 p.m.

Wednesday, September 22

Study hall — Study hall, with free coffee and tea provided by Housing Services Residential Education, will be held in Worcester Dining Commons from 8 to 11 p.m.

Party — A Health Care Watch Party will be held in the Hatch at 9 p.m. for all interested in learning about health care. State Sen. Stan Rosenberg and state Rep. Ellen Story will lead discussion. The event is sponsored by MassPIRG, University Democrats and Five-College organizations.

■ parking

continued from page 1

Lee, when she saw a car which she had ticketed the day before was parked in the same space. "There are reasons for all the parking rules — they make it a safer and more efficient campus, and there's no reason for students getting tickets."

"This is a walking campus. If you need to get up earlier to walk or catch the bus, do it."

"When I first started, the situation was really bad," Doreen Kirby said. "Students would pay their fines and simply continue to park anywhere they wanted. It's not as bad this semester, although in an average week I write about 300 tickets."

The officers and Diemand said they do not want to focus on constant violators, but just point out those who don't have decals if there is not enough room.

"I hope the community understands what we're trying to do," Diemand said. "In this type of job, we're not naive. We realize we'll get more negative reports than good ones, but we do get some positive responses."

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton / Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...
$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.
220 N. PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-253-2543

The Collegian.
545-3500.
Call Us!

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days
8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine Starting at $1
Attendant available all day
326 College St. (Rt. 9)
Amherst • 253-5072

FIRST
WALKING
Co-Ed FLEX Co-Ed
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
DISTANCE
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
CHOICE

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Still need 3 credits?
Take the 3-credit recycling class:
Education 397K
Intro to Future Studies
(Registration # 218611)
Learn about:
Recycling, Composting, Waste Management, and our progress toward a sustainable future
Exciting field trips
Interesting guest speakers
Where: Rm. 219 Furcolo
When: Tuesdays 2:30-5

The Collegian.
545-3500.
Call Us!

AIM HIGH
IMPORTANT MEDICAL DISCOVERY FOR FUTURE NURSES: AIR FORCE ROTC.
More and more nursing professionals have made an important medical discovery – opportunities are greatest through Air Force ROTC. A sampling of reasons given in recent Air Force nurse interviews: "...you can move up fast..." And, the facilities are "...more advanced than I'd ever imagined." Plus, "...respect. You're treated like a professional."
Air Force ROTC represents a tremendous way to enter this environment. It prepares you to be a leader, a trained professional in the U. S. Air Force.
With Air Force ROTC, you may be eligible for a two- to three-year scholarship that pays your full college tuition and most textbooks, labs and other fees. And when you graduate, you're an Air Force officer, ready to make the most of your nursing career.
Contact Major Cheryl Koren
545-2437/2451
or visit us on the second floor of Dickinson Hall, right above the Police
AIR FORCE ROTC
Leadership Excellence Starts Here

Fresh, Always Fresh
HOT MAMA'S™
All Natural, Naturally
SUPER NATURAL FOODS
NEW!
ULTIMATE BLACK BEAN BURRITO
+
SMOKN'RED BEAN BURRITO
TRY ONE TODAY AT THE PEOPLE'S MARKET
25¢ OFF WITH THIS COUPON
LIMIT ONE PER CUSTOMER

Local News

Ice breaker

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Boston Bruins center Matt Robbins in action during the team's annual "Black and White" intrasquad scrimmage at the Mullins Center this past Saturday. Besides being the first-ever hockey event at the new facility, it also marked the first time the Bruins have played the game away from their training camp headquarters. The Hartford Whalers come to Mullins on Friday, Sept. 24, to face the New York Islanders in an NHL exhibition game.

Students celebrate Jewish New Year

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Rosh Hashanah drew many Jewish students home for the holiday week. Services for Rosh Hashanah began Wednesday evening at sundown, and were held on campus by Hillel House. Rosh Hashanah celebrates the Jewish New Year, which is the beginning of the days of awe.

The days of awe are a period of 10 days of repentance which lead up to Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

This year's Rosh Hashanah services were led by Rabbi Saul Perlmutter and were held in the Student Union Ballroom. Wednesday night's services were full, but attendance dwindled as students went home for the weekend.

Deborah Charnet, a junior Judaic and Near East studies major and the vice-president of Hillel House, said that many students try to return home for Rosh Hashanah, a holiday centered around the family.

The services begin with the lighting of candles and wine that has been blessed. They also blow the "shofar," a ram's horn blown only at this time of the year, and portions of the Torah are read.

The Tashlich is also known as "the ceremony by the sea." This service begins the ceremonial year and is held at a local river.

Participants usually fill their pockets with bread and then empty them out into the river. This represents the throwing away of the past year's sins, according to Charnet.

Charnet said people generally wear white to signify purity and the new beginning. They also eat round "challah" which symbolizes the earth.

The period of atonement also requires that Jews make things right with any friends they may have slighted. Charnet said it is required that one ask for forgiveness from a friend three times, but if after the third time forgiveness is not granted, a person is automatically absolved.

Charnet said the Israeli-PLO peace resolution had little effect on this year's services, but Perlmutter did speak about the conflicts in Bosnia.

Rosh Hashanah celebrates the lunar year of 5754 as opposed to the calendar year of 1994, which is coming up.

For Jewish students at school, the high holidays are a time to bond with fellow students, Charnet said.

"There's a sense of family and community on campus," Charnet said.

A festive dinner is provided for the students, but it is expensive, according to Charnet.

Looking at indoor sky

Basset hosts afternoon with the stars

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Correspondent

The Basset Planetarium at Amherst College was the site of a free constellation show yesterday afternoon given by the Amherst Area Amateur Astronomers Association.

Tom Whitney, the association's president, discussed astronomical events such as the upcoming full moon on Sept. 30 and the identification of constellations. Whitney also showed slides of structures and phenomena such as nearby galaxies and nebulae.

Using the planetarium to chart the arc of the sun's path through the sky, Whitney said the sun takes a different path during each season. The sun takes a lower arc during the winter, and in the summer the sun takes an overhead path, Whitney said.

Whitney emphasized the historical background of the topics covered, noting that in the days before the use of electric lights the "full moon was the primary source of light in the night sky."

While showing slides of other galaxies, Whitney discussed their incredible size. The Milky Way galaxy contains roughly 280 billion stars, Whitney said.

"It's hard to conceive of, but that's the nature of reality," Whitney said.

The presentation was one in a series of planetarium shows held every Sunday at 3 p.m. between September and April.

The Association conducts observations at 9 p.m. on clear Saturday nights at Amherst College's Wilder Observatory. Every clear Sunday between April and November, solar observations are held on the Amherst Town Common at 1 p.m.

The Basset Planetarium is a useful educational tool, Whitney said.

"We're very fortunate to have a facility like this and be able to open it up to the public for free," Whitney said.

Basset Planetarium is the only planetarium in the Amherst area, and Whitney said he feels that it will probably remain so for some time.

"Chances are that in your lifetimes you will not see a new planetarium built in this area," Whitney said.

Concert to feature gift

New work dedicated to David Sporny

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

An upcoming concert will highlight the world premiere of University of Massachusetts Professor Salvatore Macchia's Sol, La, Si.

The work was dedicated to and written for David Sporny, a UMass music professor, as a belated birthday present.

The piece was written by Macchia for the oboe, marimba, trombone, viola and cello.

He said he designed the work to reflect Sporny's multi-faceted musical personality.

The entire piece is a three-movement work based on three notes — G, A and B — from which the title was derived.

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER
David Sporny

"I tried to wring as many changes from the three notes as possible," Macchia said in a music department press release.

"The many references to the motive that a first time listener can hear throughout Sol, La, Si will help in the understanding of the work's form," he said.

"The many references to the motive that a first time listener can hear throughout Sol, La, Si will help in the understanding of the work's form."
Professor Salvatore Macchia

"I had been thinking about the fact that the trombone was used in a lot in the music ensembles that included a mixture of instruments," Macchia said.

"Many of these works are based on Gregorian chant or cantus firmus," he said.

"Although I didn't have a particular chant I wanted to use, I was reminded of the Reformation composers who were prohibited from using chant tones and instead base their works on notes of scale," he said.

The concert will range from the baroque music to jazz.

It will also feature David Sporny on trombone and Nadine Shank, a music department faculty member, on piano. They will playing works by Loeillet, Small and Sulek.

The recital will conclude with a variety of jazz selections that will be announced.

The free concert will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 28 at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Mud Slinging

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN

Rich Duffy levels the ground in preparation for a new blanket of sod at the Upper Tennis Courts.

WIN $5,000* EVERY DAY FOR DOING WHAT YOU'D DO ANYWAY:

CALL YOUR PARENTS COLLECT.

It's as easy as dialing 1-800-COLLECT,℠ instead of zero, when you make a collect call.

It's the 1-800-COLLECT $5,000 DAILY GIVEAWAY.

Just complete your collect call between August 30 and September 28, and you'll have a chance to share $5,000 with the person whose number you're calling.

Call as often as you like. There are winners every day.

You'll also save up to 44% with 1-800-COLLECT. It's America's Inexpensive Way To Call Someone Collect.℠ Use it every time you make a long distance collect call. That's all there is to it.

Bet you call Mom and Dad more than ever.

Savings vs. AT&T 3 min. operator dialed interstate collect call.

THE 1-800-COLLECT $5,000 DAILY GIVEAWAY

*1-800-COLLECT $5,000 DAILY GIVEAWAY. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. ALL ENTRANTS ARE BOUND BY COMPLETE RULES WHICH ARE AVAILABLE BY CALLING 1-800-RULES4U. FOR EACH DAY FROM 8/30/93 THROUGH 9/28/93 (30 DAYS), 1-800-COLLECT WILL GIVE AWAY A GRAND PRIZE OF $5,000!1. TO ENTER BY MAKING A 1-800-COLLECT CALL: Each time you make a 1-800-COLLECT domestic telephone call (within the U.S. and Puerto Rico) during the promotion period indicated, and the collect calling charges are accepted, you and the individual or company whose name appears on the telephone bill for the number called (hereinafter referred to as Call Recipient) are eligible to be randomly selected as potential winners to share a daily prize of $5,000. Calling day is 12:00 midnight EDT up to the following 12:00 midnight EDT. 2. No purchase or telephone call necessary. TO ENTER BY MAIL: hand print your name, address, zip code and daytime telephone number on a plain piece of 3" x 5" paper and mail in a hand-addressed 4 1/8" x 9 1/2" (#10) envelope, with first class postage affixed, to: 1-800-COLLECT Giveaway, P.O. Box 4396, Blair, NE 68009. IMPORTANT: ON LOWER LEFT HAND CORNER OF MAILING ENVELOPE, YOU MUST PRINT THE SPECIFIC DATE OF THE PRIZE GIVEAWAY (FROM 8/30 through 9/28/93) FOR WHICH YOUR ENTRY IS DESIGNATED. Enter as many times as you wish for as many days as you wish, but each entry must be mailed separately. No mechanically reproduced entries permitted. Entries must be received by 5 business days after prize giveaway date indicated on your mailing envelope to be eligible for that daily prize. 3. SELECTION OF WINNERS: Each daily winner will be randomly selected from among all eligible 1-800-COLLECT telephone call entries and all eligible mail-in entries received for that day's giveaway. Random selection will take place 6 days after the specific prize giveaway date. Odds of winning a prize will depend on the number of eligible 1-800-COLLECT telephone calls completed each day and the time of day the call was made, and on the number of mail-in entries designated for each day's prize award. Odds will vary each day of the promotion based on the above factors. Odds of winning via mail-in entry will be as good as odds of winning via telephone entry. 4. PRIZES: 1 Grand Prize per day of $5,000, divided equally between Caller and Call Recipient. Call Recipient portion of the prize will be awarded to the individual or company whose name appears on the telephone bill for the telephone number called. If potential winner has entered via mail, he/she subsequently will be required to give name, address and telephone number of individual with whom he/she wishes to share prize equally. 5. GENERAL RULES: To be eligible, callers/mail-in entrants must be 16 years or older as of 8/30/93. Sponsor's employees directly involved in the planning and implementation of this promotion and employees of it's advertising and promotion agencies, and their immediate family members and/or those living in same household of each are not eligible for any prize, either as an entrant or designated recipient. Neither potential winner of a daily prize is not eligible, per the above, that entire $5,000 prize will not be awarded. Void where prohibited by law. All federal, state and local taxes are the sole responsibility of winner. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply. Not responsible for malfunctioning or breakdown of telephone systems, for faulty telephone transmission or for lost, late or misdirected entries. In the event that technical difficulties prevent selection of a winner for any daily prize of the promotion, that prize will be awarded on the following day. Random selection of winners will be under the supervision of D.L. Blair, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. By participating in this promotion, entrants agree to be bound by the Official Rules and decisions of the judges. COMPLETE rules are subject to any requirements or limitations that may be imposed by the Federal Communications Commission.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

NAFTA: Fighting the uphill battle against isolationism

This is the first of two columns on the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The North American Free Trade Agreement must be approved, not as a luxury or as a means of boosting the economy, but as a necessity for the survival of the United States as a worldwide economic force.

What will NAFTA actually do? The trade pact would establish the largest free zone of trade in the world, with a population of 360 million and with six trillion dollars to spend, by linking Canada, the United States and Mexico in free trade.

There have been many misconceptions about NAFTA, because on the surface it appears to be a bad idea. If we open free trade with Mexico, where labor laws are not as strong as in this country, won't greedy industrialists simply move down south and put the savings into their own pockets? But NAFTA is not a bad idea, and this will not happen.

Businessman and presidential contender H. Ross Perot famously stated that NAFTA will bring about "a giant sucking sound" as U.S. jobs go south. But most economists on both sides of the political spectrum expect moderate job growth in both the United States and in Mexico with the agreement, because of the economic stimulation of a free market. And the view that poor Mexicans will take the jobs away is ill-formed: skilled labor in the industrial sector in Mexico pays $3.80 an hour, and will equal the U.S. minimum wage within two years. So much for the sucking sound.

In fact, General Motors actually brought back 1,000 jobs from Mexico recently because the company found that Americans could do the work more cost-effectively, than their Mexican counterparts. (As for Perot, even he has sent his son to Mexico looking for places to invest.)

The agreement also contains a provision to prevent

Peter
ORVETTI

massive job losses; tariff rates would automatically resume their current level if imports from Mexico threatened a particular U.S. industry. Those industries that would eventually be phased out are those that are obsolete already — the plants across the country that would shut down with or without NAFTA.

Simply put, the United States needs Mexico. According to the Commerce Department, in June there were only three of our 17 major trading partners where the United States turned a profit: the former Soviet Union, the Republic of South Africa, and Mexico. Annually, the U.S. economy gets seven billion dollars from Mexican consumers — second in U.S. profit only to the other NAFTA partner, Canada.

If NAFTA fails, the next president of Mexico - succeeding Carlos Salinas de Gortari, who converted Mexico from a third-rate nonentity into one of the greatest economic successes in the world today, will be a protectionist, imposing heavy tariffs and in essence extorting the United States.

As for the many side agreements on heightened environmental regulations and labor laws in Mexico, they would be forgotten. The effect on both economies would be disastrous, as well as the effect on Mexican laborers and the environment. Also, all good Americans could forget their dream of the United States ever catching up with Japan.

NAFTA itself guarantees more jobs in the United States and an end to the lingering recession - not a temporary placebo, but as a permanent policy. The United States cannot afford to be isolationist anymore. The world is no longer made up of trade barriers, and if we refuse to join in, we will be defeated. Proof comes in the support of NAFTA: it is both right and left, Republican and Democratic. This is not an issue of politics, it is an issue of survival.

NAFTA is just the beginning of the establishment of free trade throughout both of the Americas. Next week, why this should happen — and why it will make the Americas the strongest economy in the world.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

A strong shoulder to lean on

Last weekend I remember telling my roommate I wished I could plant my feet firmly on the ground and stop the constant spinning in my head long enough to realize where I was going in my life. We both laughed, but he knew I was serious.

The next morning I got a phone call from my father — my grandfather had had a massive heart attack. It couldn't have gotten any worse.

Arthur
STAPLETON JR.

I heard a song off of Right Here, Right Now, Van Halen's live two-disc set. It was this line from "Give to Live" which Sammy Hagar belted out that explained my feelings on my life at that moment: "I can see that you've got fire in your eyes, and pain inside your heart/So many things have come and torn your world apart, but don't ever give up."

There I was, trying to deal with the shock of possibly losing someone who had always been my friend, not just my grandfather. Though in shock, I knew the next thing I had to do was get everything settled here in Amherst so if I needed to make the trek home to New Jersey, I could.

My roommate and I hopped in his car and drove down to the Collegian to get ready for one of the toughest weeks of my life. We turned on the radio and the first tune to grace the airwaves was "Stairway to Heaven." I felt like crying because I knew God was sending me a message.

With my family hundreds of miles away, I could only turn to my friends for comfort. Over the previous month, my life had been in such emotional turmoil that I didn't know who would be able to help. I found that someone that morning.

While allowing me a shoulder to cry on, she made me realize that Pop-Pop (that's what I've called my grandfather all my life) and I will always have the memories of each other.

I felt comfortable balling my eyes out in front of her, revealing all of my insecurity, doubt and frustration. After our conversation, I knew she would understand the situation. At least I had hoped she would.

I found my "comfort zone" where I didn't expect it; sure, we were close friends, but I have a lot of close friends. After this experience, our relationship changed. We never had a friendship with strings attached because we both didn't want it that way.

And now friendship is too shallow a word for what we have. It was more like an understanding. I spent two nights this past week pouring my emotions out to this woman; we sat outside for hours, just dealing with my situation. I finally was able to deal with ours.

By coping with the circumstances around Pop's heart attack, I was able to live with other things, like our friendship. I always worried that because our relationship wasn't physical we could never be affectionate with each other. After this week, I realized I was wrong. We know how much we mean to each other. She will always be there for me no matter what and the same goes for me.

While you are reading this column, I still don't know how this saga with Poppy is going to end. As of press-time he was hanging in there in a coma with serious brain damage. According to the doctors, chances of recovery are slim, but my family and I have accepted this.

So I sit here praying for the best, knowing who to call if i need to get back into that comfort zone.

You could say I'm hangin' in there, too.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

The Wisconsin late show moves to Amherst, Mass.

Dave Letterman and I are tight. This is because we have so much in common. We both have different stations and times (OK, so I'm just in a different time zone). As you may have guessed, I'm a transfer here at Zoo Station. And while UMass didn't shell out 14 million a year to get me to come here, they did provide a lovely cinder block cell with a great view of Southwest's quad/saloon/circus.

A.J.
STEWART

Although Dave may have good reason to heave insults at NBC — anyone who claims "stupid dog tricks" as intellectual property deserves some — its problems are minor compared to those encountered at my last gig as a student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

First, here's an open note to those who think UMass is too liberal. Liberalism, along with first cousins socialism and communism, was conceived in a Madison coffee house after a bearded professor guzzled a few too many cappucinos.

UW was the second university nationwide to have a gay and lesbian fraternity, following that hotbed of conservatism, Berkley. Gay couples are considered families for university housing. Queer Nation dressed a statue of Abe Lincoln in drag. While this was amusing to say the least, it was not extraordinary.

The campus gained a great measure of free publicity (every college president's dream) in the '60s when anti- war demonstrations set off a bomb in the Math and Engineering Building, killing three people and destroying thousands in property. But hey, at least it wasn't Vietcong that died. Like minded "thinkers" now run university departments and have routes to Canada planned out, just in case. It still seems like 1969 at the U. of Wisconsin.

Before I sound too much like Rush Limbaugh, I want to make it clear that I'm not the prototypical young Republican. In truth, I'm one of the more liberal people in my state (OK so it's New Hampshire), and I did vote for (gulp) Clinton. I also strongly support women's rights and am concerned about the environment. And while I don't condone or encourage the use of illicit drugs, I do vaguely recall smoking a fat one on the stairs of the state capitol, a very leftish thing to do.

Still, even I couldn't stomach my professors, one a socialist trying to promote world government and another who was the faculty advisor to both Amnesty International and, you guessed it, Queer Nation. Quick PC disclaimer: there may be nothing wrong with these groups per se. The problem is the depressing uniformity of the mind set and the philosophical underpinnings shared by the great majority who make up UW's campus.

I never met anyone from the NRA, The John Birch Society or even the Parent's Music Resource Center. I did meet three guys trying to make Octoberfest a national holiday, though. I signed their petition and so should you. That's my political announcement for today.

I've already heard some complaints about UMass. A common gripe is there are too many people here. Wisconsin had 43,000 students, and there were many more dropouts hanging out making the number seem much greater. They smoked, drank and slept way past one in the afternoon, making them indistinguishable from the student body. At UMass, I get the individualized attention a recovering UW-Madison political Science major needs. You just don't know what overcrowded is until you've been to a 78 keg party.

But just like Letterman's old show, there was plenty to like about Wisconsin, and colleges in general. The fact that students can avoid dysfunctional parents for months at a time is a definite plus. And there are plenty of cool (uh-huh, uh-huh) people at both schools. But all in all, I'm glad to be away from the land of cheese, cows and Old Milwaukee. Different channel, different time zone, same old show. College is still about doing stupid things for credit and pleasure, and not much has changed.

The transition to UMass is complete. Now Dave and I can kick back and enjoy a fine beverage. I just hope that crazy stalker of his doesn't follow him here.

A.J. Stewart is a UMass student.

PUZZLE OF THE DAY: What is missing from this page?
ANSWER: Letters!!!
If you'd like to take issue with anything that appears on the page, address your letters of angry disagreement or back-patting support to the staff down here at the Ed/Op desk (113 Campus Center Basement).
Don't just sit there grumbling, write us (up to 50 lines, typed and double-spaced). You too could experience the thrill of seeing your thoughts in black and white.

ADD A NEW CHAPTER TO YOUR LIFE!

SORORITY OPEN RUSH
FALL 1993
To All Sophomores, Juniors, & Transfer * Women,
Welcome Back In The Fall Semester.
This is the Schedule for Fall 1993 Rush.
Start Rushing Now !

Alpha Chi Omega
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 7:00 pm
Tuesday, Spetember 21, 1993 - 8:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - 6:00 pm

Alpha Epsilon Phi
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 7-9:00 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 7-9:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - 7-9:00 pm

Chi Omega
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 7-9:30 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 7-9:30 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - NO RUSH !!

Delta Zeta
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 7-8:30 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 6-8:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - NO RUSH !!

Iota Gamma Upsilon
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 6-8:00 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 6-8:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - 6-8:00 pm

Kappa Kappa Gamma
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 5:30-7:00 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 5:30-7:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - 5:30-7:00 pm

Sigma Delta Tau
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 8-10:00 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 7-9:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - 8-10:00 pm

Sigma Kappa
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 5-7:00 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - 7-9:00 pm
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - NO RUSH !!

Sigma Sigma Sigma
Monday, September 20, 1993 - 5:45-7:00 pm
Tuesday, September 21, 1993 - NO RUSH !!
Wednesday, September 22, 1993 - 6-7:30 pm

For additional information call Greek Affairs at 545-2711
or contact Kimberly Miller at 549-1407.
Have a great semester !

Kimberly Miller
VP Membership Panhellenic Council

 Unfortunately due to panhellenic rules, freshmen women are not able to rush this semester. Watch for formal rush coming this spring!

Arts & Living

The Posies deliver a bouquet of charm

New album boasts genuine melodies

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

As the days which were summer wane, while the nippier fall days wax, now comes your opportunity to pick a perfect little handful of flowers before the soil grows encrusted with frost.

Enter the Posies, Seattle's sweetly scented quartet of classic songsters. Treading the path of slick predecessors like Big Star and Teenage Fanclub, the Posies music is polished, smooth and tight as your favorite Speedos (which hopefully you never take outside.)

While Seattle has built and exhausted itself on the grate and grind of Nirvana, Alice in Chains and a long line of wannabe's, the Posies have slipped through the cracks, churning out scintillating melodies not the least bit grungy.

Their third album, Frosting on the Beater, released this past spring, showcased 12 melodious and tightly structured pop tunes which flowed together with uncanny cohesiveness. The Posies did not attempt to dub over tracks, distort their voices or computerize their instruments. It was back to the basics with a welcome charm and rhythm.

Unfortunately, the Posies run the risk of being characterized as an MTV band. After receiving extensive airplay of the "Dream All Day" video, and the whole MTV treatment, their clean-cut, slow-motion gyrations helped the Posies to greater exposure in the indie/mainstream market. While Frosting has become a college favorite, one must wonder whether the MTV vote helped them along their

Turn to POSIES, page 8

The Posies COURTESY DENNIS KEELEY

Get Involved!
with campus health issues
SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Meeting: WEDNESDAY, September 22
Where: UHS Room 304
Time: 5:00 - 6:00 P.M.

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!

NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR
1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets

Charlie's tavern since 1976

This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95

Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
MONGOOSE MOUNTAIN BIKES ON SALE!
Rockadile was $490 - now $449.95
IBOC comp 1992 was $700 - now $519.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
319 Pleasant St
Northampton
586-3810

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

THE FRATERNITY WITH A COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE
FALL 1993 OPEN RUSH
September 20, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29 8-10 P.M.
418 North Pleasant St. 549-6385
ALL UNIVERSITY MEN WELCOME

- LIFE LONG FRIENSHIPS
- STRONG ATHLETICS - OLYMPIC WEIGHT ROOM
- CONVENIENT LOCATION

RUSH PIKE
FALL '93

- UNPARALELLED SOCIAL LIFE
- STRESSED ACADEMICS - Two Computers - Course Files
- EXCELLENT MEAL PLAN

■ Posies

continued from page 7

way. Indeed they would not be the first band to benefit. Hopefully, however, the Posies will not be characterized as sellouts; they're just too genuine.

When the Posies play Pearl Street this Tuesday night, expect an energetic and pleasing performance from four young and talented musicians. With guitarist and vocalistJon Auer at the helm, tunes like the sarcastic "Flavor of the Month" and the powerful "Definite Door" will be churned out with vigor and conviction.

The lyrics of the Posies are firstly, discernible and secondly, intelligent. Auer then delivers them strongly yet with composure. Set to the guitar-driven backdrop for a sound anything but flowery.

The Posies will be one of the Valley's bigger shows this fall. So take time to stop and smell the flowers before they're crushed by the grungy winter.

The Posies play Pearl Street Tuesday Sept. 21 at 9 p.m. Opening acts have yet to be announced.

First-year student hits the Annex

"You're from California? Do you surf? Is your girlfriend a blond?"

"First things first. My name is Jeff. Pleased to meet you. No, I don't surf, but my sister is blonde."

Massachusetts — distant, especially coming from California — where I must expand my lucidity through adaptability to diverse educational means and where I am putting myself through one heckuva (excuse me: wicked) reverse "cultural shock" because I have never been around so many white people in my life. (I come from an enriching, culturally diverse area.)

Jeff

COOKER

Yes, I am from California, and I am a freshman — a double whammy at that!

It is my first year in college, and I have thus spent a great deal of time sleeping, eating, hanging out, spending money (until I realized I am not on vacation and should do without all the UMass souvenirs), noticing that stars actually hover over this state and spending time at the Textbook Annex.

Textbook Annex? I have been there five times so far — including three times in one day. That's five checks. I have been to that profit scraping division of the University Store more than I have been to my own empty mailbox.

What is it with the line outside the Annex? It's longer than the line for Space Mountain (if you go to Disneyland on a rainy day). When I arrived at the front of the line, I saw what resembled the stuffing inside the egg rolls we tried to eat at the D.C. Backpacks, bags, jackets and umbrellas were scattered all over the floor. I thought, "What if my stuff gets stolen?" Then I realized I was in Massachusetts and that type of incident doesn't frequently happen here.

I left my backpack and entered the sauna to search for my books. Just when I expected the man inside to hand me a towel, he only checked to see if I had baggage with me. After scrambling through hordes of books to find at least one USED, I wound up with three USED out of 15 by the time I reached my fifth and final time in the sweat-stimulating Annex.

So, I wrote a bad check, and I was outta there. (Okay, so I had to call my California bank to transfer the money. Alright! Alright! I should get a BayBank account.)

I was an expert by the time I left the Annex, for the last time. I knew I had to put all that pertinent information on my check, and if I wanted a bag for my books, I knew where the bags were.

Power to the Textbook Annex, though. They bought out my freshman year, and they did it well — especially after I saw a flyer on the wall leading to the bookstore that advertised one of my books for half the price. Power to the wall. First things first. Power to my freshman year. It's the first time you'll ever read that.

Jeff Cooker is a Collegian staff member.

Auditions For

Not Ready For Bedtime Players

Everything You Thought You Knew About Sex... And More! NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS

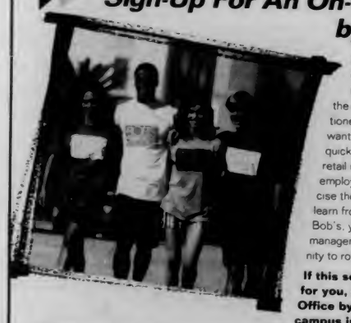
September 22 1993
8:30 PM
Campus Center Rm. 803

For more information call the Health Education Division and ask for Nancy 549-2671 x181.

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND. FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

TRAVELING?

WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
• Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
• Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
• Adventure Tours • Language Courses
• International Student & Teacher ID
• Work & Study Abroad
• Youth Hostel Memberships
• Car Rental & Leasing
• Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!



FREE "STUDENT TRAVELS" MAGAZINE!

Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

WRNX 100.9 FM
MONDAY NIGHT COACH'S CORNER
TALK Football with Mike Hodges
• T - Shirts
• Appetizers
• Buffet
Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
CNN WTTT AM 1430

300 pr jeans
200+ Sweaters
Lots & Lots of Stuff
NEW AT HEART CONSIGNMENT SHOPPE
Post Office Box 81
11 Main Street
Belchertown, MA 01007
Owner Joy Chambers 413-323-9225

You'll Be In Fashion Using Your Degree
Sign-Up For An On-Campus Interview by October 13th

Bob's Stores, a division of the Melville Corporation, provides a dominant selection of brand name casual clothing and footwear for the entire family. Bob's is a company that is positioned for growth! We are looking for people who want to be part of a fast-paced environment where quick decision making is the norm. Bob's unique retail methods and company atmosphere give our employees the opportunity to use their talent, exercise their common sense, and develop their ability to learn from mistakes. As a Management Trainee with Bob's, you'll experience the benefits of a 12-week management training program that offers the opportunity to rotate through every area of our store.

If this sounds like the perfect career choice for you, submit your resume to the Placement Office by October 13th. Bob's will be on campus interviewing November 9th.

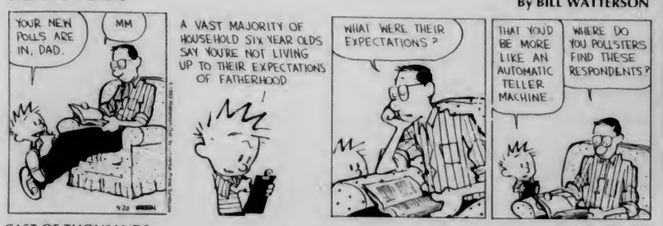
Great Benefits
Bob's offers a benefit package that includes tuition reimbursement, merchandise discounts, comprehensive medical, dental, life, disability, retirement plans and much more.

See What The Excitement Is All About!

BOB'S STORES
Everyone's Favorite Store!
A Subsidiary of Melville Corporation

160 Corporate Court, Menden, CT 06450-8313
An equal opportunity employer.

What Do Aerobics And Strength Training Have In Common?



• Nautilus
• Free Weights
• Aerobics Classes
• Step Classes
• Stairmasters
• Lifecycles
• Recumbant Bikes
• Crossrobics
• Quinton Treadmill
• Rowing Machine
• Saunas
• Student Discounts

Northampton Nautilus
216 N. King St. • Northampton
584-4975
Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm
Sat. 8am-5pm • Sun. 9am-4pm

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Well, look who's excited to see you back from being declawed."

Quote of the Day

"Don't just do something, Dudley, stand there!"

– "The Rocky & Bullwinkle Show"

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone who has aided you in the past may be able to help again. You reach a crucial decision and move closer to a long-term goal. Be friendly to your colleagues.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep a low profile until you see how the land lies today. Communications about the future are best avoided. An older person who enters your life now could be a good match.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid experimenting; stick to what has worked in the past. Let your colleagues get to know you on a deeper level. When the stars come out, romance will soar to new heights.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A lack of up-to-date information could frustrate your efforts. Do not act alone; seek guidance. Strengthen your personal relationships through timely talks and letters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Success comes easily if you are dealing with a younger person. Networking provides important information. Keeping an aura of mystery about you will help spark romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain the training or equipment you need to boost productivity. A sublime romance may not last as long as you think. Get your feet back on the ground.

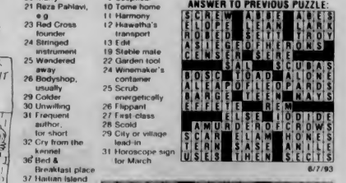
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): This is no time to be frivolous. Other people are counting on you to keep your promises. Resist jumping to hasty conclusions. Withhold judgment until you have all the facts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone who seems too good to be true merits further investigation. Postpone signing legal documents and pay close attention to any fine print. Romance turns serious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A great day for business trips. Give prior commitments precedence over spur-of-the-moment invitation. A newcomer takes to you in a big way. Garden with romance.

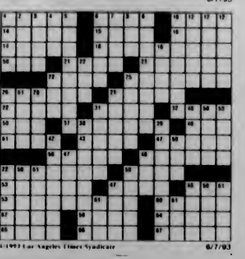
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone's indecision could have you climbing the walls. Talk things over with a trusted friend who has the right qualifications to advise you. Spend an evening at home with your family.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be thinking too far ahead when what you need to do is concentrate on the present. A project could become boring. Use your creativity to bring variety to whatever you do.



PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be careful not to put the cart before the horse. Reputation and publicity are not the same thing. Nurture a relationship that dates back to your childhood.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Wall Street purchase
6 Doting
10 Shoestring
14 Playwright Gelbart
15 Buckeye State
16 Shiite cleric
17 Ascend
18 Harlequin's sweetheart
20 Marry
21 Reza Pahlavi, e.g.
23 Red Cross founder
24 Stringed instrument
25 Wandered away
26 Bodyshop, usually
29 Colder
30 Unwilling
31 Frequent author, for short
32 Cry from the kennel
36 Bed & Breakfast place
37 Haitian island
40 Regret
41 Racetrack placements
43 Wharf
44 Majestic
46 More accurate
48 Goulish
49 Petitions
52 Guitar clamp
53 Invent
54 Poet Angelou
55 Cribbage accessory
58 Abuser
60 Spyri's Swiss miss
62 A single time
63 Inlet
64 Begins an engagement
65 Symbol of slimness
66 Lambs' mothers
67 Egyptian statesman

DOWN
1 Cabbage dish
2 Long-eared creature
3 Dry
4 Trains: Abbr.
5 One of the senses
6 Word with plane or point
7 Oops!
8 Nothing
9 Sceptical
10 Tome home
11 Harmony
12 Hiawatha's transport
13 Edit
19 Stable mate
22 Garden tool
24 Winemaker's container
25 Scrub energetically
26 Flippant
27 Fast-class
28 Scold
29 City or village lead-in
31 Horoscope sign for March
33 Therefore
34 Hawaiian picnic
35 Move quickly
38 Lavishness
39 Plains Indians
42 One way to eat clams
45 Salt
47 Assay
48 Musician Charles
49 Mummer
50 Supine
51 Nez
52 Troubles
54 Budge
55 Paris colored
56 Poet Milay
57 Essence
59 Pull along
61 Clean air agcy

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

6/7/93

6/7/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Christina Rothwell
Copy Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Photo Technician.....Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor.....Mike Carvalho
Production.....Tara Dixon, Jamie Bearse, Lisa Jezowski

MENU

LUNCH
Tri-County Sandwich
Pizza

BASICS LUNCH
Black-Eyed Peas
Pizza

DINNER
Chicken Fajitas
Meatloaf & Gravy

BASICS DINNER
Tofu or Chicken Fajitas
Garbanzo Veggie Stew

■ Ingoglia

continued from page 12

rely on the arm of quarterback Andrew McNeilly to drive up and down the field. The running attack accounted for 365 of the 538 total offensive yards against the Crusaders. The game with the Black Bears, however, was a different story.

Even though UMass dominated on the ground with Ingoglia and freshman tailback Frank Alessio (six carries, 43 yards, one touchdown), the fourth quarter seemed like a change in philosophy for the Minuteman offense.

With under eight minutes to go in the contest and trailing by four points, McNeilly (18 of 38 passing for 169 yards) attempted one fewer throw (17 attempts), than all of his completions for the game and failed to get the team into the end zone.

Maine head coach Jack Cosgrove said that he was not surprised the Minutemen passed as much as they did in the second half.

"They can say the same thing about some of our play calls," said Cosgrove. "It is just the way football goes. They obviously had a plan that they felt would work; things have jumped up and smacked us in the face sometimes too.

"UMass is trying to be a balanced offense; you can't get one-dimensional."

■ track

continued from page 12

The final point difference between UMass and Northeastern was 13 points.

"I expected a closer meet, probably five or six points," O'Brien said. "I'm very pleased."

Ted Towse and Mark Buffone both crossed the finish line at 26:33 to place 12th and 13th respectively and round out the top five for the Minutemen.

The Minutemen will host Boston University and Vermont this Saturday behind Totman Gymnasium.

BEANBALLS
The Collegian's Michael Morrissey brings you all the Major League action

Oh, man! That's gonna smart!

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

OPEN 24 HOURS
cousins MARKET
Downtown Amherst
TIE. Pleasant St. (Next to The Pub) 549-3500
♦ Full Line of Deli Meats, Cheeses & Salads
♦ Fresh FRUITS & VEGETABLES!!!
♦ Largest Selection of Juices
♦ Cigarettes - all brands $1.90
♦ Fresh Grinders & Sandwiches Made to Order
Parking Available
SUB, SODA, SALAD & CHIPS ONLY $3.75
SOLELE ROLL SANDWICH ONLY $1.50

Mental Health Groups Fall 1993

The following groups will be offered by the Mental Health Division of UHS this Fall:

Adult Children of Alcoholics: Tuesdays 3:30-5
8 week structured support group. Begins mid-October.
Pre-group interview required.

Feeding the Hungry Self: Tuesdays 3:30-5
Support/therapy group for women with disordered eating.
Women can make either a semester or year-long commitment
Pre-group interview required.

Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Support Group: Tuesdays 3:30-4:45
On-going, drop-in group. No pre-group interview. Group begins October 5. Check-in at 127 Hills North on day of the group.

Self-Esteem Group: Wednesdays 3:30-5
10 week structured group. Begins early October.
Pre-group interview required.

Panic Disorder Group: Thursdays 3:30-5
6 week structured group. Begins mid-October.
Pre-group interview required

For further information about all the groups or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

SUPER STOP & SHOP
VIDEO CENTER

JOIN US FOR BACK TO SCHOOL MIDNIGHT MADNESS
All movie and video game rentals
69¢
Plus A FREE PRIZE with each rental*
Saturday, September 25, 1993 between 11 PM and Midnight ONLY
* One per customer to the first 100 customers

HADLEY SUPER STOP & SHOP
456 Russell Street
Hadley, MA

★NOW SHOWING★
THE BODYGUARD
Starring Kevin Costner and Whitney Houston
"An Entertaining, Suspenseful, Romantic Thriller."
-Jack Garner, GANNETT NEWSPAPERS

WARNER HOME VIDEO
1992 Warner Bros. 1993 Warner Home Video

■ soccer

continued from page 12

and I had a break away," Siljanovski said. "I missed those the past three games. This one, I capitalized on it."

Siljanovski's strike gave UMass a convincing 3-0 lead at the intermission. The half was extremely physical, with both teams having several heated exchanges. URI had more cards at the half than shots, 5-4.

The Minutemen remained composed throughout the second half, scoring three more goals, accounting for the final margin. Goalie Brackie Reyes made several spectacular stops as he notched his first collegiate shutout for the hosts.

"You don't want to single anybody out," Koch said. "We had a great practice on Thursday, and part of the reason is because the second team pushes the first team so much. Without the second team, we wouldn't be playing as well as we are on the field. That's what makes it happen."

Although the nifty Randy Jacobs didn't get into the scoring column, he was a presence to be reckoned with all day, as the visitors tried to bottle him up, crunching him with elbow after elbow.

"If they're going to come hard at me like that, it's going to open opportunities for the other forwards and my other teammates," Jacobs said. "That's fine with me as long as they put it in the back of the net."

And the slump?

"It's great to have a big win like this," Jacobs said. "We're out of our slump and on our way."

■ football

continued from page 12

game after the Holy Cross beating, looked to the aerial game as quarterback Andrew McNeilly completed 17 passes on 38 attempts for 169 yards.

Sophomore Rene Ingoglia led the Minutemen's rushing attack with 157 yards on 23 carries.

UMass heads to Boston University next Saturday for it's game with the Terriers. The battle is at 1 p.m. at Nickerson Field.

MATHER CAREER CENTER PRESENTS
School and College Senior Meetings

September 20
5:00 pm
Marcus Auditorium
ENGINEERING

September 21
4:00 pm
SBA 120
ART & HUMANITIES

September 22
4:00 pm
Thompson 106
SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCI

September 27
7:00 pm
Hasbrouck 20
NATURAL SCIENCES & MATH

October 6
4:00 pm
Marcus Auditorium
FOOD & NATURAL RESOURCES

FRANCE AUSTRALIA RUSSIA ENGLAND INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS
BOSTON UNIVERSITY
Strictly World Class
Global Internships and Language/Liberal Arts Programs

For program details complete the coupon below and mail it to:
Boston University International Programs
232 Bay State Road, Box Q, Boston, MA 02215 • 617/353-9888
An equal opportunity, affirmative action institution
ENGLAND ISRAEL ITALY NIGER SPAIN U.S.A.

Please rank as 1,2, and 3 the programs in which you are most interested.
You will receive information on all of our international programs
Internship Programs: ☐ London, England ☐ Paris, France ☐ Madrid, Spain ☐ Sydney, Australia ☐ Moscow, Russia ☐ Washington, D.C.
Language and Liberal Arts Programs: ☐ Belize ☐ Niamey, Niger ☐ Grenoble, France ☐ Oxford, England ☐ Haifa, Israel ☐ Padova, Italy ☐ Madrid, Spain ☐ Quito, Ecuador
I am interested in other programs/countries: _____
I would like to receive information about your semester/summer programs (circle one).
Name _____
Street _____ City _____
State _____ Zip _____ Phone (___) _____
College or University _____
Current Status: ☐Fr ☐So ☐Jr ☐Sr If you prefer, call 617/353-9888.

TOTAL FITNESS WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
AEROBICS: Funk, REEBOK STEP, Hi/Low, Boxercise, Yoga
STRENGTH: Keiser Air Power, NAUTILUS, Olympic weights, GRAVITRON, The Treadwall
CARDIO: STAIRMASTERS, LifeCycles • LifeRower, Treadmills • BioCycles, Climb Max • NordicTrack, TrueClimb• VersaClimber
SEMESTER SPECIAL
$139 four months
Amherst Athletic Club | 460 West St. | South Amherst 256-0080

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons -- Free -- Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention: get involvedwith campus health issues and the University Health Center... Stop by the Student Health Advisory Board's next meeting on Wednesday 9/22 at 5pm in room 302 at the Health Center

College Pizza
Open for Lunch
at 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 Toppings Add $1.00
549-6073 549-6098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

AUTO FOR SALE

1982 Toyota Corolla-Tercel
Sun roof, hatchback, 5-speed
Many new parts-runs well $700
256-8734

Purchasing a Used Car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Aerosmith/4 Non Blondes
4 Gold circle seats -- BO
Mullins Center 9/21
532-8331

Aerosmith -Good seats Cheap 1-800-867-2468 Free Delivery

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Brother WP 3400 WordProcessor, Disc Privided. $150 Leave Msg. 546-0301

Bureaus. Beautiful, sturdy Must see! $65. 549-4793

Computers. Competitive prices. Assistance/lessons available. 549-6426

Computer 286 M30 with so many software. 549-7577

DOC Martens
Brown Derby Boots
Size 5 Men (7 women)
Brand new-worn twice
$80 or b/o for more info, 546-0070 Helen

Dead Tickets Boston All Shows 546-0874

Dorm Refridgerators for sale
Small $30
Large $40
Call 665-4542

Gift Certificate- for Monro Muffler/Brake. Worth $50, will sell for Best Offer. Fix your Car for Cheap!!! Call Lisa 253-9977. If no one is home leave message with name, number and offer.

MT. Bike w/ U lock. Good Condition. $100. Leave Msg. 546-0301

100% Pure Cashmere
$95 Shawls, $195 Twin Blankets
$250 Queen 1-800-428-7825 x 303

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

FOR SALE - AUDIO

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Att: Excellent Income for home assembly work. Info 1-504-646-1700 Dept. MA-1307

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month + World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

House cleaner -Leverett, Experienced, References 548-9688, Cheryl

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals neded for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college-level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information.

$287.50 Sell 50 hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol related college T shirts and make $287.50. All shirts 100% Guarantees. A Risk Free Program. 22 Designs Available. Call now for Free Catalog. 1-800-304-3309.

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

MOTORCYCLES

1985 Honda Interceptor 700 White-runs strong $ 900 b/o 549-4625

Yamaha FZ 600 87
Red/White great shape
asking $1600
Brian 549-5996

PERSONALS

Congratulations Michelle and EGU!
Good Luck with the Wedding plans!
Love, Sonia

Happy 19th birthday to luis the one who is so special to me. Love Andrea

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo 323-9742

Women's soccer, women's volleyball and women's track in tomorrow's Collegian

Sports

Football falls short against Black Bears

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

ORONO, Maine — The University of Massachusetts football team that showed up in Orono, Maine last Saturday to play the Black Bears was undoubtedly a different team than the Minutemen squad who crushed Holy Cross two weekends ago.

The Minutemen, who beat the Crusaders of Holy Cross by 30 points last week, lost to the Maine Black Bears 17-13 this past Saturday afternoon.

Massachusetts	13
Maine	17

Despite it being only the second game of the young season, and despite the fact that the very average Black Bears team defeated the Minutemen last year, 21-13, the result of the Maine-UMass game can be labeled an upset.

The Black Bears, who were pummeled at the hands of Boston University the previous weekend 45-0, prevailed over UMass in a game marred by penalties and mistakes. The Minutemen were penalized on 11 plays for a loss of 76 yards, while the Black Bears had 7 penalties (64 yards).

The Minutemen had their chances to win, but failed to do so in the crucial moments of the game. Missing touchdown passes, jumping offsides, failing to reach the end zone in scoring position, defensive mishaps. Case in point: the beginning of the fourth quarter, when the Minutemen had first and goal.

After John Johnson (11 yards on 9 attempts) was stuffed twice, and quarterback Andrew McNeilly gained two yards on a carry, the Minutemen had to settle for a 20 yard field goal by freshman Eric Oke.

"It was a lot of things, and it was the whole team," said Doug Berry, offensive coordinator. "It wasn't limited to one phase of the offense or the kicking team, or the defense. We just weren't ready. We weren't committed to detail today."

"I think we lost our poise out there," Hodges said. "We had far too many penalties, at key times. They were ridiculous penalties. You can't play that way. You put yourself in a hole, and it's hard to be consistent offensively and stop people defensively.

"[Maine] played really well. [Quarterback] Colon did a great job. They did a nice job defensively changing up on us. They stayed patient, waited for their chance, and they got it."

The Minutemen took a 7-0 lead 2:12 into the second quarter after a 1 yard touchdown run by redshirt freshman Frank Alessio, with Oke kicking the point after touchdown. Maine kicker Tom Dadmun then booted a 30 yarder in the closing seconds of the second quarter for the 7-3 score at the half.

STEVEN PADULLA / COLLEGIAN

The offensive line of the University of Massachusetts football team created plenty of holes for Rene Ingoglia (number 19), similar to the ones last week (pictured). However, the best career day for Ingoglia was not enough as the Minutemen fell 17-13.

UMass scored first in the second half when Oke kicked a 28 yard field goal. The Black Bears tied the score at 10 when freshman tailback Bob Jameson ran four yards for the touchdown, and Dadmun converted the extra point.

With 4:25 into the fourth quarter, the Minutemen regained the lead on the 20 yard field goal by Oke. But, it was Maine who made the big play at the end, when Colon completed a 32-yard pass to Kenny Squires for the touchdown. Dadmun booted the extra point, giving the Black Bears the lead for good.

The Minutemen, praised for their explosive ground

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 11

Ingoglia a force in losing effort

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

ORONO, Maine — Sophomore fullback Rene Ingoglia of the University of Massachusetts football team was the silver streak that lined the dark cloud which still hangs over the squad's 17-13 loss to the University of Maine last Saturday.

It was tough for UMass head coach Mike Hodges to address the career day for his fullback (23 carries, 157 yards) considering the disappointment after the loss, but it had to be expected that the questions would come.

"I don't know, he's [Ingoglia] just a heck of a football player, I tell you what," Hodges said. "He's a banger. He's a real football player and he comes to play.

"Rene's physically tough, he's mentally tough and we just shot ourselves down too many times. That's all. And Maine made some big plays against us."

Ingoglia's career high had been 148 yards on 33 carries.

According to Hodges, one of the biggest plays by the Black Bear defense came with 10:38 left in the contest. After exchanging turnovers in consecutive plays near the end of the third quarter, the Minutemen started on the Maine 28 yard line and proceeded to move down the field to the goal line for four shots at the end zone.

On third-and-goal from the one foot line, Maine inside linebacker Ross Fichthorn stuffed UMass tailback John Johnson, preventing a touchdown for the Minutemen and forcing an Eric Oke 20-yard field goal. Oke's second field goal gave UMass a 13-10 lead that the Minutemen would relinquish on the very next series.

UMass reached the goal line on two separate series the entire game, and Ingoglia, who was such an important weapon in getting the team there, only carried the ball once in six downs.

Johnson (nine carries, 11 yards) was the go-to-guy for the Minutemen inside the five-yard line, and he could not produce positive yardage in three different opportunities. In Johnson's three runs at the end zone, he lost two yards.

Last week against Holy Cross, UMass did not

Turn to INGOGLIA, page 10

Soccer snaps scoreless streak

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Correspondent

They had heard enough of the dreaded "s" word.

After getting blanked in its previous three games, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team was on a mission Saturday. And that mission was to snap out of this funk, this rut, this slump that it found itself buried in.

Rhode Island	0
Massachusetts	6

An opportunistic offense and a stonewall defense proved to be an effective combination, as the Minutemen steamrolled over Rhode Island, 6-0, in a quick, aggressively played contest at Richard F. Garber Field.

When the fog horn sounded to signal the end of the game, and the Minutemen could finally celebrate, the burden was off their shoulders.

"This is probably the biggest game I've had here," said Sam Koch, UMass head coach. "If we didn't win today, it was going to be real, real hard to turn it around. This was the first Atlantic 10 game, and we're 1-0 in the Atlantic 10. That's what really matters."

The victory boosts UMass to 2-3 overall, while URI falls to 1-4.

Freshman Dave Siljanovski netted a hat trick, leading the UMass offense which accumulated 18 shots. Todd Kylish, Ted Priestly and Joe Jacobson scored the other Minuteman goals.

"A full team effort all over the field," Koch said.

Already up 2-0, Siljanovski scored the first of his three goals with 41 seconds left in the first half.

"Steve Scott gave me a great pass right in the middle,

GORDON FENWICK / COLLEGIAN

Freshman Dave Siljanovski is congratulated by his teammates on the UMass men's soccer team after one of his three goals on Saturday in the 6-0 victory over Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island.

Turn to SOCCER, page 11

Men's track places second in season debut

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Correspondent

Despite an occasional mist and a swarm of pesky bees, the University of Massachusetts men's cross country team opened its season Saturday with victories over Northeastern University and the University of Maine and a second place finish to nationally ranked Iona.

Iona finished first with a total of 30 points followed by UMass (47) and Northeastern (60). Maine rounded out the four team meet with 88 points.

Sophomore Ethan Nedeau completed the five mile course with a time of 26:10 to finish fifth overall and first for the Minutemen. Nedeau finished two seconds behind his brother Erik, who runs for Northeastern.

Jonathan Way, a freshman competing in his first meet for UMass, ran a strong race to finish eighth overall in 26:20. Senior co-captain Kevin Greenhalgh sprinted past Iona's Ed Bourke in the race's final 50 yards to claim ninth place overall in 26:21.

Prior to Saturday's meet UMass head coach Ken O'Brien said he was concerned about having not seen the majority of his team in action, but after the action, he said he was satisfied with what he saw.

"I'm very happy," said O'Brien. "The kids responded well."

O'Brien said he was also pleased with the overall race the Minutemen ran.

"They got out in very good position and held on well in the end," O'Brien said.

O'Brien also looked at the race with Northeastern as a barometer for his squad.

"If we compete favorably with Northeastern, we'll be off to a good start," he said prior to Saturday's race.

Turn to TRACK, page 10

The Mullins Center raises the ire of Springfield Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
61° Tuesday
September 21, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 9
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Conference on race set for next Tuesday

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

On September 28 and 29, University of Massachusetts President Michael Hooker will sponsor a conference for students and faculty from all five UMass campuses to exchange ideas on how to deal with racial issues on campus. The event will be highlighted by the keynote address of the conference given by comedian Bill Cosby.

Over 500 people are expected to attend the event which will be held in the Campus Center.

Director of Human Relations Grant Ingle said the conference, which is entitled "Strategies for Combating Racism & Promoting Civility," grew out of a similar conference held last year at UMass-Lowell called, "Strategies for Combating Racism and Promoting Pluralism in Higher Education."

"Last year we attended a conference at UMass-Lowell which was excellent but not enough people attended," Ingle said. "Then the idea emerged that if we could get the president of UMass [Amherst] to sponsor the event more people would come. President Hooker thought it was a good idea and last November a committee was appointed to come up with a name.

"This is the first time we have ever had a conference of the five colleges here at UMass, and I think it is significant that the subject of the conference is race," he said.

Ingle said the conference, which will feature 46 workshops, will provide basic "nuts and bolts" information about dealing with racial intolerance.

"[The conference] will provide basic pragmatic information on how to handle racial incidents," Ingle said. "The purpose of the conference is to get people together and to share information. The beauty of this is that it is a great way for us to share resourses in this time of budget cuts."

There will be 100 students and faculty from UMass-Amherst, Ingle said. He also said students and faculty from every background will be represented at the conference. Students had to submit an application by the mid-August deadline to be invited. Invitations to the conference were awarded on a first come first serve basis, Ingle said.

Ingle said he thinks the conference will help bring speakers from other universities to UMass.

"I expect two things to happen as a result of this conference," he said. "I expect that if people from other universities have some interesting speakers we could have them speak at UMass and we could have some of our speakers go to other colleges as a trade. That way we could get speakers for minimal or no cost. Second, I would like to present a series of workshops from the conference on alternate Wednesdays in the Campus Center for students."

School conflict resolved

Amherst-NAACP agree to study racial concerns

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

At a joint press conference yesterday, the Amherst Regional School Committee and the Amherst branch of the NAACP announced plans to "work together" to solve conflicts between the two groups.

Last year a lawsuit was filed by the NAACP against the school committee charging disproportionate enrollments of students of color and raising concerns about discipline practices at the Junior and Senior High Schools.

The press conference announced resolutions to form a study committee to review instructional grouping and make recommendations to the school committee.

The mandate of this study group will include addressing the grouping system's impact on students of color and considering alternatives to the present system.

This committee will be appointed jointly by the school committee and the NAACP Executive Board.

They will also co-sponsor a series of public forums on the Issue of Instructional grouping which will take place throughout the late fall and winter.

Finally, they will initiate discussions on the topic of disciplinary action throughout the school system and review there impact on students of color.

According to the two bodies, the agreement will be entered as a consent judgement in federal court.

According to the press release, the two groups said they believe the agreement best serves the interests of all groups in the community.

The release also said they can use their collective energies and resources to work together to resolve the instructional grouping issue.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Juan Caban

"Both the school system and the NAACP are working together to look at the issue," Juan Caban, vice-president of the Amherst branch of the NAACP, said.

Caban said the conference went "very well" and mentioned that he was pleased about the forums and hoped the two groups can "share information."

Gaza Muslims resist treaty

By NEIL MacFARQUHAR
Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip — The Marj Al-Zahour Mosque Singers took to the stage in camouflage fatigues during a purported sports rally organized by the Islamic fundamentalist group Hamas on a broiling afternoon.

"Today we are fighting with stones and knives," the 10 boys sang. "Tomorrow we will fight with pistols and machine guns."

The 8,000 spectators chanted approval, and roared when the poets, politicians and prayer leaders called for attacks against Israel and for tearing up the PLO's peace treaty with the Jewish state.

Palestinian factions are grinding for the fight to prove they can control the Gaza Strip. Some hope to undermine the pact's establishment of gradual self-rule in the Gaza and West Bank.

"Trying to fight the plan now is like trying to tell a starving man that a delicious platter of food is riddled with poison, especially since a friend brought it," said Abu Mohammed, an organizer for the Islamic Resistance Movement, or Hamas.

"Now most people are happy. But when they confront reality it will be the hour for the Muslims," he said.

PLO chairman Yasser Arafat and his backers promise better times in Gaza through a huge injection of aid, plus a strong police force to restrain dissenters.

The PLO cancelled all public rallies, saying they were disruptive in light of the recent moves.

Any government trying to establish control and inaugurate development for the 800,000 Gazans faces enormous problems. The 80,000 residents permitted to work in Israel has been slashed to about 20,000 due to security fears, and Gulf remittances dried up because the PLO supported Iraq during the Gulf War.

The economic hardships of the past two years have largely destroyed the feeling of solidarity and shared sacrifice built up by the intefadeh, the 6-year-old uprising against the occupation.

"People are celebrating because they think they won't have to pay taxes, insure their cars or pay municipal fees. People think they can just grab a bag and collect money," said Salah Abdul Shafi, an economist who distributes European financial aid.

"This will create big problems for the coming government," he said.

An initial $3 billion in aid is projected.

Turn to GAZA, page 19

The Big E returns to Springfield bigger and better than ever

By FRANCIS ZERA
Collegian Staff

The 72nd annual Eastern States Exposition, better known as the Big E, opened last Wednesday in West Springfield for its annual 12-day run.

The Big E is the largest agricultural exposition in the Northeast, according to Big E Communications Manager Catherine Pappas. The fair dates back to 1916, when it was a showcase for the Eastern National Dairy Show. Despite a century-long trend towards urbanization, the Big E has kept its agricultural roots, said Pappas.

Although agriculture is the main focus, the fair caters to a wide variety of interests. According to Pappas, the Big E features a full circus, and can boast as the only fair in the Northeast with its own big top.

Several big-name performers will be on the Miller Genuine Draft Stage, from country stars Diamond Rio on Sept. 21 and 22 to Neil Sedaka on Sept. 25-26, The Drifters on Sept. 15-20 and the Fabulous Thunderbirds playing their rock and blues on Sept. 23-24.

Other Big E attractions include the "U.S. Space Camp Expo," open from Sept. 15-26, which "depicts what it is like to attend a NASA space camp," said Pappas. The exhibit features a genuine space suit for fairgoers to try on and be photographed in, as well as two simulators, one for a space-walk and the other allowing one to "fly" a jet aircraft.

But the agricultural events are the "backbone of the Big E," Pappas stated. There are competitions for livestock, produce, and crafts held continually. The 71st Eastern States Exposition Horse Show, which is A-rated by the American Horse Association, will be held at various times throughout the Big E's 12-day run.

New this year are barn tours, "The Original," of Templeton, California. The organization's tours of the livestock

Turn to BIG E, page 6

Just like riding a bike

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

A University of Massachusetts student laughs after apparently falling off his ten-speed.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan I. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Jos Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Night Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

GLB Forum is printed as a public service each Tuesday. Typed submissions may be sent to the Collegian, c/o the GLB Issues Editor, 113 Campus Center.

Tuesday, September 21

Infosocial — The Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance will be holding an infosocial from 7 to 9 p.m. in Campus Center Room 905.

Wednesday, September 22

Brown Bag Series — James Woods, assistant professor of communication at the College of Staten Island/SUNY and author of The Corporate Closet: The Professional Lives of Gay Men in America, will speak about "Sexuality in the Workplace: Lesbians, Gay Men, and the Myth of the Asexual Professional." The lecture will be held in Campus Center Room 805 from noon to 1:30, and will be followed by a faculty seminar at 3 p.m. in Hasbrouck Hall Room 113.

Poetry reading — The Lesbian and Bisexual Woman's Poetry reading will feature local poets Nina Crow Newington, Toni Brown, Liz Friedman and Carol Brown. The reading starts at 8 p.m. in UMass Hampden Theatre, Southwest.

Friday, September 24

Dance — The Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance will be holding a dance from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. in the South Side Room in Hampden, Southwest. Security will be provided, and the Rainbow Patrol will be in the area.

Saturday, September 25

Cafe — GLB Cafe night, featuring local folk singers Justina and Joyce, will begin at 8:30 p.m. in UMass Hampden Theater, Southwest. Admission is $3 for UMass students, and $5 for the general public.

Monday, September 27

Open House — Open House at the Program for Gay, Lesbian Bisexual Concerns will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Program for GLB Concern's Office, Crampton House, Southwest.

Two heads are better than one

WORCESTER (AP) — This mutant is no ninja.

But a tragile two-headed, five-legged snapping turtle dubbed "Darrell and Darrell" has survived its third birthday, according to New England Science Center officials.

"Mutations in nature are more common than we realize," said Zoo Supervisor Don Winans.

But because most mutations aren't helpful to the animal, such mutants rarely survive long enough for scientists to observe them, he said.

"We are pleased that we have been able to help out two-headed snapper reach its third birthday," Winan said.

A Grafton family that had been waiting for a batch of snapping turtle eggs on their property to hatch spotted the two-headed turtle just after birth and took it to the Tufts Wildlife Clinic in Grafton.

The clinic then brought it to the science center.

It weighed one-fourth of an ounce at that time, but has grown in three years to 4.5 ounces. Observation and X-rays show it has two heads, one shell, one set of internal organs, and a fifth, undeveloped leg that extends between the two heads.

The turtle can't hold or tear food, so caretakers must shred its meals. Darrell and Darrell also struggle for control of the body, making movement difficult. Such conditions make it impossible for the snapper to live in the wild.

Collegian
113 Campus Center

Police ticket sweep angers local motorists

EASTHAMPTON (AP) — Some residents of this budget-pinched town are accusing police of writing dozens of parking tickets to punish taxpayers for voting down a raise for officers.

Two formal complaints have been filed following the unsanctioned sweep Sept. 2-3 by four officers who issued 150 tickets, police Chief Robert Redfern said Monday. He has ordered a departmental inquiry with help from investigators of the Hampshire County district attorney's office.

"They were really on a rampage all over town doing this," said Shirley Slavas, who lives in an affected neighborhood. "We heard they had said: 'We are going to teach the citizens of Easthampton a lesson for not giving us a raise.'"

The two complaints were filed Sept. 8 with the police department by her husband, Albert, and son, Douglas. The son received two $10 tickets and the husband, a single one, according to Mrs. Slavas. Both were ticketed in front ot the duplex house that the family shares.

The father claims that one policeman, Officer Frederick Petersen, pushed him away as he approached to ask why the tickets were being issued. They say two other officers snubbed appeals for an explanation of the tickets.

Residents on the dead-end street, Ridgewood Terrace, were ticketed for failing to park parallel to the curb. They say they have parked at a slant for years, without objections from police, because the street is curved.

"I just thought it was totally wrong. My grandfather who lives next door has been parking that way for some 40. . . years," said Jason Salls, a resident who was ticketed twice during the sweep.

"People came out of their houses and were discussing it for hours. Everyone was saying. . . they were just trying to get money because they didn't get their raises," he added.

Other residents made that accusation at a meeting of town selectmen earlier this month.

Police Chief Robert Redfern rejected the contention that officers were waging a vendetta against town residents.

Discovery astronauts pave way for blockbuster flights

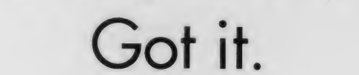
By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts packed up on Monday for the shuttle's first landing in the Florida darkness, after a mission that paved the way for upcoming blockbuster flights: the repair of the Hubble Space Telescope and encounters with Russia's Mir space station.

They tried out spacewalk tools and flight positions for the Hubble mission in December. They also tested navigation aids for next year's shuttle fly-around of Mir and an actual docking with Mir the year after that.

"We've accomplished a lot of great things, I think, for the country and for NASA," spaceman Carl Walz said during a space to ground news conference. "There really haven't been any low points so far. ... It is a dream come true."

Discovery was due to land at Kennedy Space Center at 5:28 a.m. CDT Tuesday, nine days after taking off on the satellite-delivery and multimission-rehearsal flight. The backup landing opportunity was one orbit later at 7:03 a.m. EDT, a few minutes before sunrise. A space shuttle has never landed before in darkness at Kennedy. Shuttles have touched down in the dark five times at Edwards Air Force Base in California.



The five man crew spent Monday wrapping up experiments and stowing equipment. One of the last chores was to fly Discovery in a position similar to what Endeavour will fly during the Hubble repair mission. NASA wanted to measure the amount of fuel used and thermal conditions.

Although Discovery was lighter now than when it left Sept. 12, the crew was loaded down with tips of all sorts for future shuttle crews.

Walz and his spacewalking partner, James Newman, determined that foot restraints are essential when trying to tighten and untighten bolts, a big part of the Hubble repair job. They also found it difficult floating around with a bulky foot platform strapped to their suits.

Both were tired after their seven-hour spacewalk Thursday.

Weather?

Got it.

Lunch?

Chicken Pucks
The dreaded Scrod
Cavatelli supreme

Taken care of.

Scores?

No problem.

COLLEGIAN

What you want.

Local News

Wet 'n wild

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN

A handful of University of Massachusetts students, on their way to lecture trudge through some heavy rain on the pathway between Bartlett and Tobin Hall.

Mullins maddening Springfield leaders

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The group running the William D. Mullins Center has put on such a good show that the mayor of Springfield and the Civic Center in that city are calling for a refund.

Ogden Entertainment Services, because of their unusual contract with UMass, are drawing the ire of the Civic Center and Mayor Robert Markel.

Ogden has landed acts such as Metallica, Ice Capades, the Harlem Globetrotters, and the Hartford Whalers and Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, all in the last seven months. Tonight, the Mullins Center hosts the rock group Aerosmith.

In an article in the August 15 Sunday Republican, Civic Center general manager Michael Graney said the Mullins Center has an unfair advantage.

The Republican reported that Graney estimated the Civic Center's loss at $70,000 this year, due to Ogden landing acts such as Metallica and Stars on Ice, acts which Centre Management attempted to sign.

Markel has also reportedly taken swipes at the Mullins Center, saying in the Republican article it was a facility which did not have to worry about profit and loss.

"The state has agreed to provide some operating subsidies up there. The result is they have some freedom to make some deals... It enables them to be more competitive," Markel was quoted as saying.

Esckilsen said he scoffs at the notion that he and his company do not have to worry about losing money.

"[Graney] is inferring that the building can withstand a loss, and that's not true," Esckilsen said. "Obviously, the UMass system is in a difficult situation. The system has undergone significant budget cuts recently so we don't want to increase the deficit.

"Our goal is to provide for the university and its programs first, and also to try to reduce the deficit. What they said couldn't be further from the truth," he said.

Multicultural Resolution Team prepared to solve conflicts

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Students helping students, that is what will be occurring when the new Multicultural Conflict Resolution Team is up and running.

An offshoot of the Ombuds Office, this mediation team is a group of student volunteers representing the diverse student student body on the University of Massachusetts campus striving to resolve conflicts before they get out of hand, said Leah Wing, an Ombuds staff member and one of the group's coordinators.

During the spring 1993 semester, Ombuds advertised for students who were interested in helping mediate conflicts, specifically those with multicultural dimensions. Through advertisements, word of mouth and flyers posted around campus, the office was hoping to reach a wide variety of students.

Originally the Ombuds office was hoping for 16 volunteers, but had over 30 applicants. After interviewing the group, there are 24 team members.

"We have a wide variety of people from different backgrounds," said Wing of the group which consists of 12 white people, 12 people of color, 13 women

Turn to TEAM, page 16

Boston Church of Christ is back

Group has been banned at a number of universities

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Correspondent

Although the Boston Church of Christ was thought to be a dying organization in Amherst, anonymous sources are stating that the group is doing "underground recruiting" that began again in the spring semester of '93.

Sources that wish to remain anonymous said the Church is trying to recruit them on campus. One source said she was asked to attend a movie in the campus center and was given a flyer.

"We are worried about any group that used manipulation as a tool."

– Dean Paul Vasconcellos

Another student said she was almost harassed and had her "religious faith" questioned by a student while she was walking in southwest on a Friday night. The approach is standard: a friendly hello, an invite to go to play volleyball or go bowling and then a slight slip or mention of bible study.

The Churches of Christ are an American denomination that traces its roots to the early 1700's, and a preacher called Alexander Campbell. Campbell formed "The Restoration Movement", that church members would pattern their lives and worship the church and the New Testament.

After 150 years, membership in the churches grew to be over 2,500,000 who were dismissed from a local church near Eastern Illinois State College and traveled to Lexington, Massachusetts taking over the Lexington Church of Christ. Membership then grew large enough to rent out the Boston Garden, and the Church moved to Boston and called themselves the Boston Church of Christ.

The Boston Church of Christ is one of the only religious groups which is actively banned by universities including Harvard, MIT, Boston University, Boston College, Northeastern and Framingham State because of its "cult like" influences.

Here in Amherst, they are not affiliated with the Boston Church, but rather with the Springfield Church of Christ. On campus, they go by the "Upside Down Club".

Robert Thornburg, Dean of Marsh Chapel at Boston University and an expert in the Boston Church of Christ said the group is "a destructive mind controlling religious group that does not enhance, rather than controls the individual, and usually the giving of money goes along with it. Usually the disciple isolates from friends and family.

According to literature from Dean Thornburg, the BCC is conservative in nature, and maintains little or no cooperation with other religious organizations. The Churches of Christ have been said to have used high pressure and manipulative techniques in their religious recruitment. The group uses complete control of the members lives, and prohibits independent thinking.

Once a prospect becomes a "disciple" their responsibility as a disciple is to recruit new members, according to Thornburg. Disciples are only social with other members and while dating is encouraged, it can only occur within the church.

If a disciple leaves the church, they are plagued by harassment, phone calls, and some members are followed.

The Dean of Students office and the Vice Chancellor's office present concerns with the presence of the group simply because of their manipulative techniques.

"We are worried about any group that used manipulation as a tool," said Dean Paul Vasconcellos.

"The reason why we haven't banned the group here at UMass is because we haven't had the extreme problems that BC and BU have had in the past," said Mary Ellen Sailer, who works in the Office of Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs. "As an administration, we aren't comfortable in banning a group because it isn't fair to the students and the group. However, if a student is concerned with harrassment we would deal with the problem accordingly."

Biographers must detach from subjects

By JENNIFER C. EDWARDS
Collegian Correspondent

Gail Hornstein, director of the women's center at Mount Holyoke College, gave a lecture in the form of a paper.

Entitled "The Ethics of Feminine Biography" and written in the first person, it may be included as a pretace to her upcoming biography on Freida Fraum-Reiker.

Hornstein went into detail about the problems biographers have with detachment from their subjects, since a biographer has to come to know his/her subject.

She said it was difficult to be accurate and faithful to the subject while growing close enough to want to protect the subject.

She said there is differences between fiction and non-fiction and how the public responds to them.

"Biographers are the ones we trust [to tell the truth]," said Hornstein.

Hornstein spoke about the moral and ethical behavior of biographers, sighting as an example Anne Sexton's biographer Middlebrook.

She then gave some guidelines for ethical biographical writing — one is to never say things in print what one would not say to the person's face.

Hornstein discussed the challenge of taking into account the feelings of her deceased subject as well as those of the people who supplied her with information to write her book.

As many of her informants will be reading the book, Hornstein said she does not want to offend them, but she also wants to present Fraum-Reiker's life as accurately as she can.

Turn to BIOGRAPHERS, page 4

Until there's a...

24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...

There's us...

$29.95 professional resumé package

kinko's the copy center

Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes #10. One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.

220 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 01002 413-253-2543

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS

YES COMPUTERS

STUDENT MAC RENTALS FROM $75 PER MONTH

BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE

REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES

MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS

LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING

AUTHORIZED RESELLER

585•0007

NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

■ biographer

continued from page 3

As research for her book, Hornstein said she interviewed JoAnn Greenberg, author of "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden" and former patient of Fraum-Reiker.

According to Hornstein, Greenberg allowed her to go through her personal papers, including several letters. The use of these letters in her book became an ethical issue for Hornstein.

She connected this to Middlebrook's use of tapes from therapy sessions in her biography of Anne Sexton.

Hornstein repeatedly said her point is that biographers owe it to their subjects to tell their lives as they happened.

Save a tree. Recycle this Collegian.

"Every Day Clinique®"

The season's best bonus, yours at no extra charge with a Clinique® purchase of $13.50 at Steiger's!

The seven helpers in your latest "Every Day Clinique" bonus at Steiger's includes all three steps in Clinique's famous skin care system ... Clinique good looks were never so easy!
Your bonus includes: Facial Soap Mild, with its own travel dish, Clarifying Lotion 2 and a special travel size of Clinique's famous Dramatically Different Moisture Lotion.
You also get these lookmakers: Watermelon Re-Moisturizing Lipstick, a dash of pink cheer for lips; NewClover/Fig Powder Blusher Duo, a double treat of color for cheeks; and a special long Blusher Brush.
All packed in a sleek, white, re-usable caddy organizer...yours at no extra charge with a Clinique purchase of $13.50 or more at Steiger's! One bonus to a customer.
The Clinique Counter. All Steiger Stores.
ALLERGY TESTED 100% FRAGRANCE FREE

For a fast, free skin analysis, come and meet the CLINIQUE® COMPUTER
Programmed by a group of leading dermatologists, it asks eight essential questions and analyzes the answers to determine skin type and the proper products and procedures. Then a sequence of three minutes in the morning, another three at night, results in better looking skin!

CLINIQUE

CLINIQUE

CLINIQUE clarifying lotion 2

Steiger's A Century of Style

Hampshire Mall Monday-Saturday 10-9; Sunday 12-5; Holyoke Mall Monday-Saturday 10-9:30; Sunday 12-6

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Sailor learns secret to life

Last Sunday was very windy and too cold to go swimming. I went anyway. 3 p.m. found this writer standing alone on the overturned hull of my catamaran, numb from the waist down (and the neck up), looking around at a deserted lake for another person stupid enough to be out sailing on such an afternoon. Of course, everyone else appeared to be smart enough to be sitting in front of the tube, drinking hot cocoa.

Francis ZERA

Hypothermia is an interesting experience. Not that I'm recommending it, mind you, but it provides an interesting perspective on life and immediacy. Like if I don't get warm RIGHT NOW, I'll probably die, which would be a real bummer of a thing to do.

My life didn't flash before my eyes, as my brain was too numb to allow me to even shout for help, let alone flash memories around. So I calmly (calm being a forced state of mind right about then) set about the task of righting the boat, which eventually proved impossible to do alone, as the mast tip was stuck in the bottom, 28 feet below.

To make a very long story short, eventually someone came along (a pair of similarly deranged catamaran sailors), righted my boat, towed me to shore, and basically saved my skinny butt.

So to the point. The aforementioned experience, besides being good story to trade for a beer at Mike's Westview, also taught me a valuable lesson. No, it's not the safety thing, I had a life jacket on. The lesson didn't even hit me until I was in some dry clothes several hours later, waiting for the feeling to come back to my arms and legs enough so that I could actually feel the cuts and bruises that I could see.

All that really matters is being alive. Period. Standing out there in the cold wind, I didn't think about grades, making the rent, or whether or not I had enough extra money in the budget to buy my date a rose, or whether I even had a girlfriend, or family and friends for that matter. What mattered was getting warm, to stop shivering so I could actually do something to get myself dry, to be able to continue breathing, to have feeling in my nerves.

Once I was sitting in my truck with all the dry clothes on that I could find and the heater blasting away, I started to experience this incredible high. I don't think it was that Clint Eastwood-type "I defied death" high, but just the feeling that it was really something special to be alive and breathing, that warm and dry were luxuries to be savored.

So from this point on, whenever I feel like whining about life's little inconvenient problems, I believe I'll try to remember that hour or so on the lake, and everything will look to be just fine. See you on the lake next weekend.

Francis Zera is a Collegian staff member.

EWC's progress and services

I am writing on behalf of the Everywoman's Center to clarify several misconceptions Julia Mahoney [Collegian, 17 Sept.] apparently holds regarding EWC's priorities.

Priorities for EWC are established by a multicultural "management team" made up of the director, assistant director and five program coordinators, with input from all EWC staff, including over 100 graduate and undergraduate students and volunteers from EWC's Advisory Board.

The Advisory Board is made up of students, faculty, staff and community women from the five colleges and surrounding communities. Priorities are based on an ongoing assessment of community needs.

We are proud of the services we provide and the progress we are making in becoming a multicultural organization. For example, with the restoration of the Women of Color Program, over 40 percent of the professional staff and the majority of the paid student staff are women of color.

The Counseling Services Program Mahoney focuses on is one of five direct services within EWC, all of which are grounded in the philosophy of empowering women and providing culturally and lingulstically appropriate services to all the diverse populations of Hampshire County.

Other EWC programs and services include information and referral, 24 hour rape crisis services, including legal and medical advocacy, workshops, trainings and community organizing on issues of violence against women and advocacy and programming for women of color.

EWC does close to the public at 4 p.m. because our space is then used for groups, meetings and trainings. Space can also be used by campus and community groups on a space available basis. We have been advocating for accessible and adequate space for over a decade, and invite the community to support us in this endeavor.

We have always actively sought input from the University and community through our Advisory Board, and feedback from the 15,000 women each year who use our services.

Carol Wallace
Director, EWC

What Yugoslavia means

The situation in the former-Yugoslavia is sickening. Sadly, most college students I've encountered have been apathetic to the thousands suffering. I ask myself why no one cares, but the only conclusion I can come up with is that no one gets it.

"Bosnia-Herzegovina, what's that?" said the ignorant college student to the army draft board. If World War III sounds far-fetched to you, read on .

Brian C. O'NEIL

I'm no expert, but here's the story in a nut shell. In 1918 a group of six countries unified to form Yugoslavia (which literally means the people of south slav). Those countries were Bosnia-Herzegovina, Slovenia, Croatia, Serbia, Montenegro, and Mecedonia.

After World War II, Yugoslavia became a communist regime under the control of of a dictator named Marsal Josip Tito. Tito set up the governmemt so that only he could lead, (as dictators tend to do), keeping Yugoslavia separate from the U.S.S.R. .

In 1981 Tito died leaving the country in mourning with no leader and a serious power vacuum. Do you see where this is going yet?

After ten years of economic and social collapse some of the regions decided it was time to break away from communism and form independent nations.

The first two of these, Slovenia and Croatia, were able to gain recognition from the European Community and the United states. This was highly contested by the Pro-communist Yugoslavian government which was dominated by Serbians.

Serbian president,Slobodan Milosevic looking for support of the people activated century old nationalistic hatreds. Propaganda was issued envisioning a dream of a Greater Serbia which would control much of the land of the other five republics.

I'm getting to the best part here. The Pro-communist Serbians now at this very moment control what was the Yugoslavian National Army (YNA). Pretty scary, huh?

Well now what is happening is the I.C, the US and the United Nations have decided that they don't want a major ground war in Europe. It would be bad for trade, tourism, etc. So what do they do? They have the UN impose an arms embargo, preventing the legitimate governments from buying arms. While at the same time the Pro-communist Serbians have total control of the Yugoslavian National Army.

Well now what would you do if you were the Serbians? Of course, take everything by force.

Guess what? People right now are being systematically raped, murdered, tortured and driven from their land. They aren't going to forget. There will be a war. I don't want to fight in a war for Bosnians, they don't want us to fight their war for them.

I have only one thing to say to all those flower pushing hippies who say don't lift the arms embargo. Get a clue!

Brian C. O'Neill is a Collegian staff member.

Mission Enhancement proposal has no regard for communities

Over the summer, President Hooker convinced the Board of Trustees to allow him to take two percent off the top of the UMass system budget, approximately $4.5 million, for what he called "Mission Enhancement." Departments, programs and organizations at the university were encouraged to write proposals for projects to be funded from these Mission Enhancement Funds.

One such proposal came from the Undergraduate Student Government Association (SGA) administration of David Nuñez and Al Lizana. The SGA proposal called for the creation of a $100,000 "RSO-Initiated Diversity and Enrichment Fund." Two or more RSO's could plan some sort of multicultural programming together and then apply to the "RSO-Initiated Diversity and Enrichment Fund" for money to support it.

The requests made to the fund would be reviewed by the Student Committee which, in the original draft, had representatives from each of the communities of color, the gay lesbian and bisexual (GLB) community, and the Jewish community.

Shortly before the final draft was due in the Chancellor's Office, it became known that the SGA had decided to eliminate seats for the GLB community and the Jewish community. The GLB community responded with outrage that was met by the SGA with waffling, followed by a rigid refusal to put seats for the GLB or Jewish communities back on the Student Committee.

The SGA leadership has been unable to offer a consistent rationale for the elimination of the seats for the GLB and Jewish communities, so we are left with the conclusion that the motivation was simple homophobia and anti-Semitism on the part of the Undergraduate Student Government Association leadership.

Facing this situation, the Lesbian Bisexual and Gay Alliance (LBGA), the undergraduate sister organization of our organization, wrote its own Mission Enhancement proposal. The LBGA proposal is just like the SGA proposal except that it includes seats for the GLB community and the Jewish community, and it stipulates that the Student Committee must be at least 50 percent women.

With these two proposals submitted to the campus administration, it is now the task of those in Whitmore, ultimately Chancellor Scott, to choose between these two proposals.

The choice is clear; there is the proposal that excludes GLB people, Jews, and has no regard for gender balance — and there is the proposal that includes GLB, Jews, and requires gender parity. Otherwise the proposals are the same.

We, on behalf of the Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization, fully support the LBGA's proposal and we urge Chancellor Scott to do the same.

Christopher Arabadjis, Co-Speaker
Laurel Shortell, Co-Speaker
GLB Graduate Student Organization

The SGA has misused its power

The Student Government Association has taken it upon themselves to create a "multicultural" committee to dispense grants from the University's Mission Enhancement Fund. This committee will give these grants to various groups on campus.

However, in forming its committee, the SGA has overlooked various segments of the University's community — namely lesbian, gay and bisexual students. If the SGA truly wants to represent the various cultures and committees at UMass, it must do more than simply pay lip service to multiculuralism. Queers and other groups with distinct cultures must be represented on this committee in order for it to have any sort of legitimacy.

In overlooking the queer community, the SGA has not only misused its power, but done a great disservice to the University community. I, for one, am appalled and dismayed.

Wendy Mataya
Southwest

■ Big E

continued from page 1

barns are held daily between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., and are designed to "take the mystery out of agriculture," Pappas said. The tour guides "aspire to reopen communication between the 'city dweller', the livestock industry, and the fair itself," according to Pappas.

Other attractions include the "Avenue of States," consisting of replicas of all six New England States' statehouses, which contain samplings of the individual state's "commerce, agriculture, industry, and natural resources," Pappas said.

The Storrowtown Village Museum is a re-created 19th-century village, with costumed "re-enactors" as guides. The museum depicts day-to-day village life in the 1800s, and offers several special events as well.

Also new this year is a weekend shuttle bus from the Holyoke Mall at Ingleside, every hour on-the-hour beginning at 8 a.m., with the last bus leaving the Big E at 10:30 p.m.. This is an addition to the weekend shuttles from Enfield, Connecticut and the West Springfield and Agawam high schools and the weekday service from downtown Springfield.

The Big E runs from Sept. 15-26. For further information, dates and times, the Big E provides a recorded information line, available 24 hours a day, at 787-0271.

State minority programs aid Blacks, ignore Hispanics

BOSTON (AP) — A new study finds that most state programs to benefit minorities are aimed at Blacks, even though Hispanics are the largest minority in Massachusetts.

The study calls on the state to spend $5.25 million on programs to aid Hispanics, who comprise nearly 5 percent of the state's population. According to the 1990 census, 37 percent of Hispanics in Massachusetts live below the poverty level, compared with 25 percent of Hispanics nationwide.

"We feel that all the minority programs are currently designed and staffed as if the minority population were almost exclusively African American," said Deborah A. Ramirez, a Northeastern University law professor and chairwoman of the 28-member Hispanic American Advisory Committee.

"We need a blueprint that moves this community forward," Ramirez told the Globe. "The numbers are there, and you just can't escape it."

The Globe said Monday it got a copy of the report, which is scheduled to be presented Wednesday to Gov. Weld.

Weld appointed the commission, which held hearings in Boston, Brockton, Chelsea, Lawrence, Springfield and Worcester during four months of research.

Commission members were told that problems facing Hispanics include high unemployment, limited education, discrimination, substance abuse and government cuts to programs assisting the poor.

AT&T can help you save money whether you live on campus, off campus, or somewhere in between.

Choose AT&T and save.

No matter where you choose to live, you can save money on your long distance phone bill with AT&T. On campus, your administration offers AT&T ACCESS® Service Long Distance savings. Off campus, choose AT&T as your long distance carrier and save with AT&T Savings Options. Either way, you'll save money no matter how your calling needs change. It's all part of The i Plan.™ The personalized plan designed to fit the way you call.

THE i PLAN™

To sign up, stop by our booth on campus or call 1 800 654-0471, Ext. 4119.

© 1993 AT&T

AT&T

"I was riding along on my cool mountain bike, when I suddenly decided that I didn't really want to ride a bike any more and that I would really like a guitar. I put an ad in the Collegian, and someone called the first day to buy my bike. And, when I was looking through the Collegian classifieds, I saw the guitar of my dreams. I sold my bike and went to buy the guitar. Thank you Collegian!"

Collegian classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500

THE NEWMAN CENTER WELCOMES YOU !

LORD'S DAY MASSES:

Saturday : 4:30 pm
Sunday: 8 :00 a.m. 9:30 pm, 11:00 am and 7:00 pm

DAILY MASSES:

Monday - Friday : 12:15 pm and 5:15 pm
Saturday: 9:00 am

SACRAMENT of RECONCILIATION:

Saturday: 3:00 to 4:00 pm or upon request.

The Newman Center is located at 472 North Pleasant Street in Amherst, MA 01002, and is open daily from 8:00 am until 10:00 pm.

Arts & Living

A journey through the eye of the needle

By BROOKE MACDONALD
Collegian Correspondent

Mimesis and Metaphor
Jocelyn Castro
Hampden Gallery

As the new semester commences our local artists begin to emerge out of the woodwork again. Last Thursday, Jocelyn Castro, a UMass' Art Education graduate student, presented her talent to Amherst in a stunning exhibit of fine embroidery and fabric work. On display at the Hampden Gallery, her work is art that all can enjoy, even those previously unexposed to the works that an apt hand in fabric can create.

I approached this showing without any preconceived expectations, for fabric work is an art form for which I generally do not hold a deep appreciation for. However, as I walked through the exhibit, I found my eyes growing wider with unexpected interest and newfound respect.

Entitled, Mimesis and Metaphor, these works display her exploration and representation of nature and of the human condition through the eye of the needle. Two large, painted quilts, various embroidered designs and a collection of paper and fabric collages make up the show in bold colors and fluid lines.

Previously a painter, Ms. Castro turned to the medium of fabric and thread when she grew tired of paint. Remembering the childhood pleasure of experimenting with her grandmother's loose scraps of fabric, lace and ribbons, she creates a stilling display and true love for her work. This show is the beginning of her work in fiber.

Ms. Castro describes it as reflecting "the beginning of the creation of a personal mythology, a system of symbols derived from [her] environment and the natural world around [her].".

Her series of embroideries are eye delighting images of natural forms. Included in these are two depictions of the female body, expressed in a raw, sensual light. The contrast of cool flesh color to fiery background was especially intriguing and left impressed upon the mind images of the power, warmth and endless facets women hold.

Also in the embroidery collection was a particularly captivating one made up of four butterfly portraits. The detail these held in line and shade seemed to lift them outside of their frame and into the air.

So fluid were her stitches they appeared at first to be the gentle stroke of brush upon canvas. All of the works of embroidery held a mesmerizing intimacy, one of pageant coloring and liquid forms.

The other works comprised in the exhibit, the quilts and the collages, were beautifully done as well. The talent of the artist showed evident in these. However, with her acute craft and feel for the needle, the appeal of these works would have been heightened if she had incorporated her stitching skill into them with a greater prominence. I enjoyed them, yet there seemed something unfinished about them.

The artist herself states that "[she] loves the small scale of the work which creates a sense of intimacy and fosters introspection." With this in mind it is surprising not to see more of it in works, that due to their size, would draw even nearer to the viewer/art affinity with detailed and delicate strokes of stitching.

This observation was the only factor clouding my complete enjoyment. They are effective and beautiful pieces, entirely worth seeing. Overall, it is a loving and skilled display, one that fascinated and surprised me, as I'm sure it did many others. Those of any level of art knowledge or affection will find appeal in these works and appreciate the artists passion and craft.

Mimesis and Metaphor will be on display until October 15 at the Hampden Gallery, located in Southwest Residential Area. The gallery is open from 3 to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays. It is sponsored partially by the UMass Arts Council and the Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund. For more information contact (413) 545-2804.

British student enjoys UMass mania

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

This is the first in a series of columns about international students studying on exchange at UMass.

Clad in colorful sweats and running shoes, her manner as easy and comfortable as her clothes, you would not think by merely looking at her that Patricia Maloney is half a world from home.

Half a World Away

Maloney is a junior from Solihull, in the West Midlands, Great Britian, who is studying here at UMass via a year-long exchange program through Swansea University in South Wales. Her work here will contribute to a Bachelors Degree with honors in Philosophy and American Studies.

The field of American Studies captured Maloney's interest when she discovered the study abroad program at her University.

"I couldn't believe that they would let me come to America for a year. I'm a restless person and I like to travel," Maloney asserts. Regarding most of the (numerous) places which she has visited in Europe as "touristy," she further emphasizes that time spent here will be a more effective way to explore herself in light of her new environment.

"I've never really been off the main track," Maloney says, referring to the geographical distance between continents. She has enjoyed roaming the country, noting the diversity that, despite the absence of language barriers, the U.S. maintains among states.

"Each state is like a little country in its own, I suppose because America is so big," she explains.

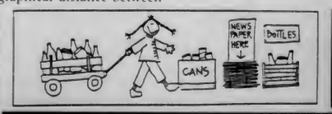
Of campus life, this energetic student appreciates the open friendliness of peers who may, at times seem "young." She has thus far met many folks who have either been to England or who know someone who has visited, yet rarely ceases to hear compliments on her "awesome accent."

UMass weekends bring to light some pointed differences between the social scenes of the two nations. Having been invited to a party by her roommate almost immediately, Maloney quickly acknowledged the huge role that drinking plays in the lives of many students.

Maloney feels that drinking is a focus here, and that people drink for the sole purpose of getting drunk and breaking "petty" rules that enforce a strict social attitude about alcohol in this country.

"It's that temptation, isn't it? To break the rules," she reasons, concluding that harsh laws practically drive students to drink.

One of the things that she misses most from home is Saturday nights spent in a favorite, local pub (and virtual second home according to Maloney) with old friends. Their routine differs in that consuming alcohol is only a small factor in the socializing of the night, and that walking to and from a variety of locations to see who is out is common.



When she is not perfecting her "social studies,"

Turn to STUDENT, page 8

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment with Tainted Bitter Band
Classic Rock Acoustic Trio
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos
only $2.00
9:30 10:30
THE PUB IN AMHERST
CELEBRATES 25 YEARS 1968 • 1993
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET

Need A Roommate?
They're clean, quiet, and won't hog the bathroom!
Call Dave's...
We know what we're talking about when it comes to reptile roommates of any kind. We can help with food, supplies, homes (cages), as well as selecting lizards, snakes (including Boas and Ball Pythons) and more. Sorry, no advice on human roommates!
Farm Raised Iguanas
DAVE'S SODA & PET CITY
The Supermarket for Pet Lovers!
$24.95 with this ad
Expires 10/21/93
HADLEY
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
584-7511
SC

Harness the power of the written word.
Write for the Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-0719

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!
NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR 1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
Charlie's tavern AMHERST, MASS. since 1978
This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95
Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

The good and the bad: summer movie letdowns

•A magical Secret Garden enchants

By CHRISTINA ORWICZ
Collegian Correspondent

Mary Lennox doesn't know how to cry when we first meet her in The Secret Garden. She has grown to be a hard, spoiled, and unfeeling girl at the ripe age of ten because of her parents negligence, regardless of their wealth. She grows up in India amongst a lavish community of British colonists, but when she is displaced form there, she finds no more love at Mistlethread Manor, an enormous Gothic castle located on the Moors in England.

Reminiscent of a gothic romance, Mary has plenty of forbidden passageways to roam through, and, more importantly, forbidden secrets to find as she tromps the halls of her new gargantuan home. Since she is basically left with no one to play with, nothing to do, let alone anyone to show her any compassion, she decides to find out why she was never told her aunt was an identical twin with her mother, or that she died ten years ago, and who, or what, is making that terrible moaning somewhere in Mistlethread.

With an acclaimed director like Agnieska Holland, it is difficult to think how The Secret Garden wouldn't turn out beautifully. Holland's use of close-ups and point-of-view shots, particularly in the case of Mary, allows the viewer to see the situation from the character's perspective.

One shot that sticks in my mind is of Mary hiding under a bed during an earthquake in India, the viewer seeing the tassels of the bed shaking violently. The use of lighting contrasting shadow and light punctuates the grandeur of Mistlethread as well as the dramatic action.

Holland manages to use the camera in a way that gives the film a quality which can only be described as near majestic. Leaves float, swings gracefully sway, ewes prance on seemingly endless fields of rolling countryside, fog lurks around Mistlethread Manor making The Secret Garden, if nothing else, a series of beautifully painted pictures.

The most important contribution Holland makes to this film, however, is the fine line of humor and gravity of situations that she is known for playing with in other of her films, particularly Europa Europa.

When the lord of the house, or rather castle, arrives home to find Mary having run the fortress amuck, Mrs. Madlock (Maggie Smith), as keeper of the house, takes the scolding she has received so seriously that she, on the verge of nervous breakdown, decides to resign from the position, having failed her duties. As much as we sympathize with Mrs. Madlock's true inability to handle Mary, we can only laugh at the way she feels it is the end of the world, and that she has been a complete failure.

Kate Maberly does an excellent job of playing Mary, a hardened, but very intelligent girl of ten who has the inner strength, and finally at Mistlethread, a bit of attention, to make things grow. She makes things grow for herself as well as others.

Much of the sentiment in The Secret Garden is by now cliche (i.e. sappy). It was originally a children's book, written in the nineteenth century. Children are forced to deal with unreasonable adults, good triumphs over bad, and the ever-smarter child shows the adults "the way". (Although, as much of this movie is about nineteenth-century mores and systems, the family of Mistlethread screams twentieth-century dysfunction.)

Thanks to Maberly's performance, most traces of melodrama are left out, playing the role genuinely, not as adults would expect a ten year-old girl to act. The Secret Garden does run on the sappy side, but if you're going to see sap, it should at least be well-done sap. B+

• Lame jokes plague witless Blues

By RYAN THOMAS
Collegian Correspondent

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kathleen Turner of "Undercover Blues"

Okay, Undercover Blues is not an astonishing, mind-rattling opus. But that's not to say it can't be tolerated — by some. The movie, directed by Herbert Ross (Steel Magnolias), seems to have missed most of its intentions, and just sort of, well, gotten up on the wrong side of the bed. Ross tries much too hard to pack together an abundance of humor and suspense, resulting in trite gags, and amorphous acting that is lacking, especially in the lead characters.

The story is set in New Orleans. Retired CIA agents Jeff and Jane Blue are called back from their dreamy lives as parents of a new baby girl to carry out one last mission. They are to seek out an evil Czechoslovakian femme fatale (played by Fiona Shaw) and retrieve the highly dangerous plastique explosives she has stolen from the U.S. Army. They must coerce her to return to her homeland on her own will, so the Czechoslovakian police can arrest her and keep her out of America for good. All of this while keeping the brouhaha unnoticed by the New Orleans police.

Simple enough plot, right?

Well, it might have been with the right direction and the right actors. Dennis Quaid (Innerspace) plays Jeff Blue, a character who is written as a wise-cracking, perennially optimistic, playfully hip agent. Everything is a joke to this man, but sadly enough, these jokes leave the moviegoer dumbfounded.

In one scene when Quaid tosses a bothersome mugger into an alligator pit, most of the audience gasped rather than laughed. His one-liners are delivered in an irritating childish manner.

Kathleen Turner plays Jane Blue, a karate-chopping wife and mother who, to cut right to the point, is a plain old bore. A large portion of Turner's role is centered around her sex appeal. While Turner may not have myriads of wrinkles, this trait wasn't explored as much as it could've been. It's as if Turner left her emotion at home.

But luckingly, there are some positive aspects of Blues. The best is a ditsy undercover New Orleans detective played by Larry Miller (Pretty Woman). Miller is able to carry some of the film's more ridiculous jokes and lame predictability.

Also good is a mugger played by Stanley Tucci. He's the type of guy who always gets his man, or at least dies trying. And you can probably figure out why he keeps popping up in every scene screenwriter Ian Abran could fit him into. Tucci intent on hurting Quaid, his prime nemesis. Tucci really does create a loveable character out his mugger performance and I found it worked well with the audience.

So, if you've got an hour and a halt to kill, already seen every "Selnfeld" episode, Undercover Blues might just fill the boredom. C-

■ student

continued from page 7

Maloney enjoys her classes which are, for the most part, more interactive than the straight lectures at home. And while course grades at Swansea U. may be based on one project completed gradually over a semester or even year, Maloney finds that the many small assignments given to determine a grade are helpful yet surprising.

"You know, these little tests that keep popping up here and there" she laughs.

Certainly Maloney will find that during the next few months, America will show her a host of "little tests," all of which she will undoubtedly learn from and take back home with her.

IF YOU HAVEN'T YET, NOW IS THE TIME!

▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Register now through September 21 for over 200 evening credit courses and noncredit workshops.

University of Massachusetts Amherst
Division of Continuing Education
Goodell Building
545-2414

A quality education at affordable prices

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Mental Health Groups Fall 1993

The following groups will be offered by the Mental Health Division of UHS this Fall:

Adult Children of Alcoholics: Tuesdays 3:30-5
8 week structured support group. Begins mid-October.
Pre-group interview required.

Feeding the Hungry Self: Tuesdays 3:30-5
Support/therapy group for women with disordered eating.
Women can make either a semester or year-long commitment.
Pre-group interview required.

Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Support Group: Tuesdays 3:30-4:45
On-going, drop-in group. No pre-group interview. Group begins October 5. Check-in at 127 Hills North on day of the group.

Self-Esteem Group: Wednesdays 3:30-5
10 week structured group. Begins early October.
Pre-group interview required.

Panic Disorder Group: Thursdays 3:30-5
6 week structured group. Begins mid-October.
Pre-group interview required.

For further information about all the groups or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

DEANS LIST

One of the University's highest priorities is its commitment to provide opportunities for academic growth. I am pleased, therefore, to recognize those of you who earned Dean's List status for the Spring Semester of 1993.

This level of achievement ('3.5 or higher semester average with twelve or more graded credits') is attained by fewer than 20% of the undergraduate student body. Such outstanding performance is a source of pride to the faculty, staff, your student colleagues, and, of course, your parents.

Thank you for the credit you bring to the University through your achievement.

David K. Scott, Chancellor

PRESS RELEASES

ADDITIONS/OMISSIONS

REMINDER: ONLY GRADED CREDITS ARE CALCULATED IN DETERMINING DEAN'S LIST ELIGIBILITY. PASS/FAIL CREDITS ARE NOT INCLUDED.

(H) INDICATES HONORS PROGRAM

ARTS & SCIENCES - HUMANITIES & FINE ARTS

ABBE,DAKKAN,
ABE,YUKO M,
ABRAMS,NICOLE L,
ADAMS,SHELSIE K,
ADELMAN,VANESSA,
ALBOUY VAUGHAN,MICHELE R,
ALLEN,EILEEN R,
ALLEN,HEATHER,
ALLEN,JENNA,
(H) ALSOP,PAMELA S,
ANDELMAN,KIRSTEN H,
ANDERSON,KATHERINE E,
ANDIC,NICOLAS,
(H) ANDRESEN,JOSHUA P,
ANGELIS,JULIE A,
ASELTINE,JONATHAN H,
ATKINSON,ELISE S,
AYCOCK,EDWARD M,
BACHINI,MELISSA G,
BACLAWSKI,ALEC J,
BACON,GREGORY R,
BACON,JENNIFER A,
BAKER,HILARY J,
BAKER,MISHIARA D,
BALDWIN,CHRISTOPHER J,
(H) BALTADONIS,DOREEN L,
BANAS,ROBIN S,
BARCA,LINDA,
BARTL,JENNIFER L,
(H) BATES,TODD C,
BAYLISS,MICHELLE D,
BAYUK,JONATHAN L,
BECKER,SARAH A,
BEIN,KRISTY L,
BERGER,ALANA C,
BEVINS,WENDY L,
BEWIS,LAURA J,
BILLINGS,ELLIOT M,
BLAIS,ARMAND J,
BLANCHARD,DEBRA L,
(H) BLANCHFIELD,DAVID B,
BLEAKNEY,SARAH W,
BLUMENTHAL,DANIEL A,
(H) BLUNT,JENNIFER L,
BOISVERT,NICOLE M,
BORENSTEIN,JEREMY M,
BOSID,PATRICIA C,
BOSSELAERS,SANDRA J,
BOURRET,TODD J,
BOUTILIER,ROBERT K,
BOYD,DWAYNE M,
BOYD,SUSAN,
BRADSHAW,APRIL L,
BRAXTON,BRANDON E,
BRISSON,LESLEIGH A,
BRONSON,TNEDA M,
BRONSTEIN,JULIE M,
BROWN,SCOTT D,
BROWNE,PATRICK T,
BURKE,NICOLE M,
BURNS,JOSEPH M,
BUSH,EUGENIA M,
BUSWICK,KATHERINE J,
BUTLER,JOHN F,
CAMPBELL,KEITH J,
CAMPBELL,SEAN D,
CANEDI,CARA M,
CANNISTRARO,BARBARA A,
(H) CANNON,MEGAN C,
CANTRELL,CYNTHIA A,
CAPONE,KELLI M,
CAREY,CAMERON M,
CARLSON,SUSANN E,
(H) CASEY,KEVIN,
CAZAVELAN,WENDY A,
CHARLES,CHARLENE Y,
CHEEVER,ELIZABETH A,
(H) CHIASSON,DEANNA M,
CHISHOLM,KATHLEEN F,
CHISM,KEIRA L,
CHO,KELLY,
CHOI,YOUNG D,
CHUMSAE,LESLIE ANN,
CIARAMETARO,LAURIE M,
CLEARY,JEFFERSON,
CLEGG,JUSTINE C,
CLOUTER,JEFFREY S,
COHEN,ALYSSA B,
COHEN,GALDIS A,
COLEMAN,PAUL R,
COLON,JOANNA,
COMEAU,MADELINE E,
CONAGHAN,KERRY L,
CONFDEY,COLIN R,
CONLIN,CHAD W,
CONNORS,MARGARET S,
(H) COON,SHAUN S,
CORCORAN,CAROL L,
CORDORY,ROBERT W,
(H) COREY,AMY M,
COSTELLO,JOANNE M,
COWAN,ROBERT B,
COX,BRIAN E,
CREAMER,ROBERT A,
CRESPIN,DIANE J,
CRIPE,LESLIE J,
(H) CRONIN,PATRICIA M,
CROSSLAND,CHAD A,
(H) CROUSE,MICHELLE E,
CUNHA,ANGELA D,
CURTIN,NICOLE C,
CURTIN,SHAUN M,
CURTIS,JOHN A,
(H) DAIGRE,ERIC S,
DAMORE,ANDREA,
DASSATTI,DEREK J,
DAVEY,SUSAN E,
(H) DAVIS,CHRISTINE J,
DAWSIN,BRIAN J,
(H) DEDOSTIS,MARY MICHELLE,
(H) DEGEORGES,PAUL J,
DEGROFF,JASON L,
DELANEY,JOSHUA B,
(H) DELANEY,SARA L,
DELUCA,CARMINE V,
(H) DEMPSEY,JOHN B,
DENN,SHARON K,
DENNERLINE,TORSTEN,
DENSMORE,WILLIAM E,
DERUSHA,JEANINE M,
DESORMIERS,JOSEPH A,
(H) DICICCO,MARK,
DIDIEP,ZOE E,
DITULLIO,LISA M,
DOHERTY,CASEY B,
DONADIO,LISA,
DONAHUE,JOHN J,
DONOVAN,STEPHEN R,
(H) DORGAN,GREGORY P,
DOTOMIN,MARGARET L,
DOUGHERTY,GAYLE M,
DOUGLAS,ERIC M,
DOWLING,PAUL M,
DURAND,BERTRAND J,
(H) EAGAN,JULIANNE E,
EARLY,BETH A,
EASTMAN,HEATHER M,
EDMONSTON,CHRISTINE R,
EHRENZWEIG,LIAM P,
EILERT,KATHERINE R,
ELLISON,SIDRA R,
(H) ELMQUIST,MICHELLE M,
(H) EWALD,LIANA J,
EZER GWOZDZ,ELIZABETH V,
FABISZEWSKI,LAURIE J,
FALABELLA,LAURA A,
(H) FEDOR,HELENA M,
(H) FEINSTEIN,AMY,
FERNANDEZ,CRISTINA Y,
FERNANDEZ,PETER E,
FERREIRA,ROBERT A,
(H) FERRIS,BRANDON P,
FESPERMAN,SHANNON G,
FINN,MEGAN M,
FINNEGAN,KEVIN L,
FITZGERALD,KATHLEEN K,
FLYNN,JOHN J,
FOGEL,MELISSA L,
FORBES,SCOTT B,
FORGETTE,JEANMARIE L,
FORGIONE,MELISSA J,
FOULSHAM,DANIEL J,
FOWLES,ERIKA L,
(H) FRANTZ,JONATHAN M,
FRIEDMAN,AMY L,
FRYE,JENNIFER M,
FURIA,KAREN L,
FURTADO,MARGARET A,
GALLUZZO,JOHN J,
GALVIN,ANDREW D,
GARBO,DENISE,
GARDNER,AMY R,
GARDNER,SARAH K,
(H) GARDNER,WILLIAM B,
GATES,LACEY J,
GAVEL,TRACY E,
(H) GEOGHEGAN,ANNE C,
(H) GEORGE,JASON,
(H) GIAMMATTEI,THERESA J,
GIBSON,LINDSAY H,
GILIBERTO,MARJORIE J,
GILMAN,DONNA M,
GILMORE,LESLIE E,
GINGRAS,DAVID W,
GLOVER,BRET W,
(H) GOLD,JOSHUA R,
GOLDSTEIN,BETH L,
GOODMAN,DAVID R,
(H) GORDON,JENNIFER A,
GORDON,PHYLLIS A,
GORMLEY,BRIAN P,
GOSSELIN,DAVID A,
GRADY,ALISON J,
GRADY,BRIAN E,
GRADY,ROBERT E,
GRAHAM,AMY C,
GRANT,ANGEL L,
GREEN,SUNDOVE,
GREENE,KEITH J,
GREENE,ROISIN M,
GRIFALCONI,CARL J,
GRIFFIN,AMY L,
GRUNES,ELIZABETH A,
(H) GUIDERA,MATTHEW H,
(H) GUILLEMIN,JULIE M,
GUZIK,KEITH W,
HA,CHAN UK,
(H) HABERT,ERICA M,
HALLIGAN,DAVID M,
HAMPSON,CARRIE L,
HANLEY,COLIN W,
HANSON,JANE,
HARRIS,STEVE P,
(H) HAWKINS,JENNIFER D,
HAYDEN,SEAN P,
HAYES,SEAN D,
HEATH,SARAH L,
(H) HEIKO,JETHRO,
HEINEMAN,THOMAS M,
HENDRICKSON,JILL C,
HENNES,ANNE M,
HENRY,DENISE S,
HENSON,SUSAN C,
HETTINGER,HEARI,
HICKEY,EMILY T,
HILDITCH,SHAUN P,
HILTPOLD,HEATHER L,
HIOS,NICOLE L,
HORLBECK,KARIN I,
HORNER,MICHAEL A,
(H) HOSLEY,DARIENNE J,
HOULE,BRENDA M,
(H) HOUSE,BRETT M,
HOWARD,DEBORAH W,
HOWARD,RAYMOND A,
HOWE,LAURI L,
HOWES,MAY P,
HOYER ELLEFSEN,RICHARD M,
HUMPHRIES,EDWARD W,
(H) HUNTER,NATASHA B,
HUNTER,RUSSELL A,
HYMAN,JASON J,
HYMAN,GARY S,
IMOR,MICHELE A,
INNIS,JENNIFER E,
IRVING,DAVID D,
JACKSON,MICHELLE LEE,
JACQUES,KIMBERLEE,
JELESCHEFF,SCOTT C,
JENKINS,DAVID H,
JENSEN,JENNIFER A,
JOHNSON,JEAN E,
JOHNSON,LORRAINE M,
JOHNSON,SARAH H,
JUBINVILLE,JENNIFER K,
(H) JURICH,JOSCELYN S,
KAPLAN,MATTHEW D,
KEADY,DOUGLAS J,
KEIRSTEAD,JANET L,
KELLY,SEAN P,
KELSON,ROBERT M,
KENDREW,DONALD I,
KENYON,MATTHEW D,
KERSTEIN,MYRON I,
KHORSHED,FAHMIDA,
(H) KJENDAL,KARL H,
KLEINDIENST,ROBERT P,
KONRAD,MOIRA R,
KORD,ANTHONY,
KOSARAS,BALAZS B,
KRAFT,ERIK P,
KRAMER,STACEY M,
(H) KRAUS,ANDREW N,
KRAVETS,SUSIE M,
KUMHARDT,JOHN W,
LABEDZ,RICHARD G,
LAKE,GUY S,
LAMADELEINE,LISA N,
LANCE,JOHN M,
LANE,CHRISTINA R,
(H) LANZA,TERI L,
LATTANZI,NICOLE A,
LAUFFER,KATHERINE G,
LEARY,RUSSELL J,
LEE,CHRISTINE,
LEE,STEVEN S,
LEFEVRE,JUSTIN C,
LEUNG,TOMMY C,
LEVINSON,AMY M,
LILLY,MARIAH,
LINDELL,STACEY E,
LINSKEY,MICHAEL R,
LIPHAM,MICHAEL J,
LLOYD,PAMELA M,
LOEWENTHAL,BARBARA M,
LOMBARDI,MICHAEL J,
(H) LOMBARDO,CHARLES J,
LUONG,MAI T,
LYON,KIMBERLY,
MAAS,DEBRA L,
MACALLISTER,CRAIG M,
MACAULEY,MELISSA W,
MACKAY,AMY C,
MACLEOD,KRISTIN,
(H) MACLIN,CHRISTOPHER T,
MAGYAR,KATHERINE M,
MAHONEY,SEAN P,
MAINE,JENNIFER A,
MAIORE,KATHRYN F,
MALDONADO,ROSA M,
(H) MALINOWK,ROBERT J,
MALONE,MATTHEW F,
(H) MANCHESTER,BETH A,
MARINO,EMILY A,
(H) MARTIN,HEIDI L,
MARTIN,KEVIN R,
MARTIN,RENE P,
MARTIN,STEPHANIE L,
MARTINOUS,JAMES S,
MASSARO,MICHAEL J,
(H) MASSEY,DAVID B,
MATHEWS,KARIE L,
MATULEWICZ,STEVEN W,
MATUSKO,LAUREN M,
MAYO,AARON R,
MCALLISTER,ELLEN M,
MCCABE,KEVIN F,
MCCAFFERTY,SEONA M,
(H) MCCANN,HEIDI N,
MCCARTHY,DONNA M,
MCCLOSKEY,CAROL A,
MCCOY,CARRIE S,
MCCOY,MARTHA A,
(H) MCCUROY,HEATHER K,
MCGONAGLE,CHRISTINE L,
MCGRAVEY,PATRICK A,
MCGUIGAN,SEAN P,
MCGUIRE,MAUREEN,
(H) MCKAY,KATE A,
MCKEEN,GABRIEL F,
(H) MCKEEVER,JAMES A,
(H) MCLEAN,CHRISTINE E,
MCNAIL,MOLLY E,
MCQUAIDE,JOHN E,
MEDANIC,RACHEL D,
MEEK,TRACE Q,
MELGAREJO,TANAGRA M,
MELLEY,NEAL F,
MELNICK,TAMARA L,
MENSOIAN,CHRISTOPHER M,
MERCIER,CHRISTOPHER J,
MESSIER,CYNTHEA,
(H) MICHAELS,JONATHAN,
MICHENER,CAROL,
(H) MILLARD,ANGELA C,
MINER,KRISTIN B,
MITCHELL,JENNIFER E,
MITCHELL,SABRA V,
MOE,KRISTINA Y,
MOALDY,AMY M,
MONAHAN,TRACY L,
MONTALVO,EDWIN J,
MONTEIONE,MELISSA A,
(H) MUMPER,DAVID C,
(H) MURPHY,CHRISTINE A,
(H) MURPHY,ERIKA H,
MURPHY,JENNIFER B,
MURPHY,PAMELA J,
NADEL,HEIDI A,
(H) NAPOLI,MICHELLE A,
NEUMANN,REBECCA M,
NEUNDER,GRETA L,
NICHOLS,GREGORY G,
NOLAN,MICHAEL J,
NOONE,TRACI M,
NORRIS,KELLY,
NOVEMBRE,THOMAS C,
NUNES,ANTHONY A,
O DONNELL,DAVID P,
(H) OBRIEN,MICHAEL R,
OCONNELL,CHRISTOPHER W,
OCONNELL,GEORGE E,III
(H) OCONNOR,CRAIG R,
OEUR,SOLDNG DARA,
OLSEN,DOUGLAS A,
OLSON,CAITLIN R,
OLSON,JULIEANN M,
OLSON,KATHERINE E,
OLSON,KERRY C,
ONEILL,KATHLEEN E,
ONEILL,KATHLEEN M,
ONORATO,SUZANNE M,
(H) OROWAY,HOLLY E,
(H) ORTMEIER,CHRISTINA M,
OSBORN,HILLARY E,
OSTIGUY,BENJAMIN J,
OWENS,ALYSSA M,
PAKENHAM,CATHERINE D,
PALIN,STEFANIE L,
PALUMBO,JULIE A,
PANOFF,SHARON G,
PATRICK,LIZA D,
PATTERSON,JEREMIAH G,
(H) PEARCE,CHRISTIANNA H,
PECKHAM,ELIZABETH A,
PERFILIO,JENNIFER E,
PERLMUTTER,SHERRY B,
PETERS,JOSHUA S,
PIETERSE,DAVID L,
PIMENTEL,JOSEPH A,
PIPES,BRIAN T,
PISTILLI,LIA M,
PLOUFFE,ERICA C,
PLOURDE,JENNIFER A,
(H) POLLINGER,JOHN J,
POMPEI,JESSE K,
(H) POPSON,GLENN R,
PORTEUS,KATHERINE J,
POSTIGO,LIESEL,
POWELL,AMY B,
PRELL,CHRISTINA L,
PRENDERGAST,AMY R,
PRESTIFILIPPO,ROSEMARY M,
PRESTON,MARK D,
PROVINES,STEPHANIE L,
PURDY,DAVID J,
PUTNAM,ADAM J,
QUATTRUCCI,DAVID P,
RABKIN,ELIZABETH L,
RADFORD,AMY L,
RANDOLPH,MARGARET A,
(H) RDCLIFF-FREEBERN,JULIE ANN,
REID,MOLLY,
(H) RENSENBRINK,MARGARET,
RESNICK,RICHARD J,
RICH,PETER B,
RICHANE,LAURA G,
RIGNEY,RICHARD B,
RITTER,JESSE D,
ROBBINS,BARRETT L,
ROBBINS,MICHELLE M,
ROBERPT,ERICA L,
ROBERTO,SCOTT M,
ROBERTS,ERIK L,
ROCHE,EMILY M,
RODRIGUEZ,JUAN P,
ROMANO,NANCY J,
ROSENBERG,MATTHEW B,
ROSENBERG,STEPHANIE L,
ROSS,ROBERT D,
ROSTEDT,SARAH L,
ROWLAND,LAUREN,
ROY,PATRICIA A,
RUBENHOLD,HALLIE D,
RUDOLPH,AMY E,
RUSSELL,DIANA L,
RUTHWICZ,ANDREA K,
RYAN,TIMOTHY E,
SAGIE,EYAL,
SAKASH,MICHAEL B,
SANDBERG,KERRI D,
SANTALA,MELISSA K,
SARANITA,BERNICE A,
(H) SARRE,JONATHAN T,
SCHEEL,LAURA V,
SCHIAFFA,DEANNA M,
SCHIELA,KATHRYN E,
(H) SCHLAPPI,ZACHARY A,
SCHMIDT,PETER D,
SCHNEIDER,ALAN M,
SCHWARTZ,AIMEE C,
(H) SCHWARTZ,ALLISON J,
(H) SCOTT,SAMUEL W,
SENDROFF,ADAM M,
SENECHAL,ANNA K,
SEPULVEDA,JOHN J,
SHAFROFF,SARAH J,
SHANNON,EMILY,
SHARRON,PAMELA J,
SHOREY,KATHERINE J,
SHUFE,MALCOLM C,III
SIDEN,RYAN D,
SILVA,ANTONY P,
SILVA,JENNIFER L,
(H) SIMEONIDES,ALEXANDRA E,
(H) SIMPSON,FRANKLIN L,
SIPOWICZ,STACEY J,
SKEELS,HEATHER E,
SKILLING,ROGER A,
(H) SLAP,ANDREW L,
SLOAT,DAVID L,
SLOVICK,MATTHEW P,
SMITH,MICHAEL T,
SMITH,WINSTON ANTHONY,
(H) SPADY,JAMES D,
SPARKS,KYDI M,
SPARLING,STEVE S,
STEVENS,AMY L,
STEVENSON,EMILY J,
SULLIVAN,KARA A,
SULLIVAN,KRISTIN J,
SULLIVAN,TARA M,
TABERNER,AIMEE L,
TAGUE,AUDREY A,
TAVARES,MATTHEW A,
TAVERNIER,MICHELLE M,
(H) TENDRICH,LISA Y,
TENNARO,KATHRYN E,
THAYER,JOSHUA D,
THEBERGE,GREGORY W,
THISTLE,TIMOTHY H,
THOMAS,CHERYL M,
THOMAS,ELISA C,
THOMPSON,KATIE E,
THULIN,ERIKA A,
TIERNEY,BRIAN E,
TIMBERLAKE,KRISTA,
TOLPA,JENNIFER L,
TOMPKINS,BEVERLY M,
TOROW,JOANNA B,
TOWER,JOSHUA H,
TOWNES,MARGARET M,
TOWNSEND,THOMAS H,
TRAMONTOZZI,DELIO,
TRIPP,JENNIFER L,
TROSKO,ERIC J,
TUTTLE,RICHARD J,
UNGERMANN,LESLIE M,
VAJDA,ESZTER N,
VALLANCOURT,CHRISTOPHER M,
VAN CURA,MARJORIE C,
VELSOR,MARGARET I,
VERRASTRO,MICHAEL J,
VINCENT,LISA A,
(H) VIZZARI,GINA M,
WAGNER CARR,KEVIN C,
(H) WALSH,MEGHAN J,
WANNAMAKER,JESSYKA,
(H) WARNEMUIS,JENNIFER,
WARRINER,MELISSA,
WATSON,MATTHEW J,
WATSON,SHANNON G,
WAUGH,MATT C,
WEBB JOHNSON,ADRIAN C,
WEBBER,MICHAEL J,
WEBSTER,MATTHEW J,
(H) WEINMANN,LEON U,
(H) WESLEY,DEREK M,
WESSEL,ROSEMARY L,
WESTCOTT,ANTHONY W,
WESTON,AMY C,
WETMORE,REBEKAH H,
WETZEL,DANIEL C,
WHALEN,THOMAS J,
WHITE,KIMBERLY J,
WHITTAKER,LEE C,
WILDES,WILLIAM S,
WILES,FRANK E,
WILLIS,KENNETH G,
WILSON,JAMES D,
WINCHELL,JOHN C,
WING,PAULA A,
WOLF,JOSEPH,
WONG,JEFFREY,
WOOD,JENNIFER R,
WOOD,KEVIN V,
WOODBURY,MATTHEW B,
(H) WOODS,S CHRISTOPHER,
YAFFEE,LYNN M,
YEOMANS,ALLYSON A,
YUSOF,ZURINA,
ZACAROLA,CHRISTINE M,
ZALGENAS,ROBERT B,
ZEGER,SAHRI D,
ZENG,CHARLENE S,
ZIDLE,MEGAN B,
ZIMA,LAURA M,

ARTS & SCIENCES - NATURAL SCIENCES & MATHEMATICS

ACKNER,READE S,
AGARD,JEFFREY S,
AREND,DAVID M,
ARIN,KORAY T,
(H) BAKER,TERESA C,
BAKER,TINA L,
BARIS,REBECCA S,
BARTELMANN,MONIKA S,
BASTEK,JASON,
(H) BEAL,KERRI L,
(H) BEAN,JAMES M,
BENNETT,DOUGLAS F,
(H) BENOIT,CHRISTOPHER C,
(H) BENSON,JULIE L,
BERGMAN,HEATHER K,
BISHOP,KELLY K,
BLOOM,TODD E,
BORNEMANN,ELEANOR A,
BOYLE,CHARLES W,
BRISSON,STUART J,
BROWN,JANNELL M,
BUI,KIM H,
(H) BUNTING,HEATHER L,
BURLING,BRADFORD S,
CAMIRE,JONATHAN H,
CAMPBELL,DOREEN B,
(H) CARDOSO,MARID J,
CAREY,JULIANA M,
(H) CARROLL,MATTHEW A,
CASHIN,JAMES F,
CHAMPERLAND,PAM A,
CHEUNG,SANDY,
(H) CHISHOLM,JOHN D,
CIASCHINI,MATTHEW,
CLARK,SEAN P,
COLICA,ANTHONY J,
DULLEY,PAULA M,
CONNOLLY,BRIAN,
CONNOLLY,TAMMY L,
COUGHLIN,PETER B,
(H) COURTNEY,BENJAMIN A,
CRAWFORD,JOHN R,
(H) DAVIS,ERIN E,
DAVIS,JONATHAN,
(H) DE,ARUP,
(H) DELKER,THOMAS P,
DENIS,MARIA C,
DEPALMA,MELISSA A,
DESMARAIS,DENNIS M,JR
DESOUZA,JENNIFER M,
(H) DORSEY,KAREN A,
(H) DOYLE,JAMES K,
DUFRESNE,SCOTT D,
(H) DUPKA,ALEXANDRA M,
ELLIS,STEPHEN J,
ENEROTH,CHRISTER,
(H) EVANS,MATTHEW J,
FELOGUS,STEVEN H,
FELOSTEIN,ADAM M,
FRANK,JOEL E,
(H) FREEMAN,MARK S,
FREEMAN,MELISSA L,
(H) FRIEDMAN,STEPHEN H,
GAFFNEY,SHARON M,
GALLANI,SHANNON B,
GALLIGANI,LAURIE L,
(H) GENDELMAN,EVGEN,
(H) GLASS,REBECCA C,
GOLDMAN,PALKO S,
GOMERSAL,AMY E,
(H) GRAMER,ROBERT L,
(H) GRAVES,PETER F,
GREAVES,TARA E,
GRIFFIN,JAMES F,
HAGHAYEGHI,NILOUFAR,
HARLING,TAMARA R,
HARRINGTON,KIMBERLY S,
HATCH,MATTHEW C,
HAUGSJAA,KJELDY A,
HAYMAN,LIAM A,
(H) HEFFERNAN,JULIE A,
HERNANDEZ,JERRY,
(H) HIRVONEN,CHRISTINE A,
(H) HO,HOI HUNG,
HOD,LIAT,
HOLDSWORTH,CLAY H,
HOLMES,PRESTON H,
HOLMGREN,LISA M,
HOLMQUIST,BRETT,
HORAN,SETH B,
HOROWITZ,MICHAEL J,
HROLICKA,LORI A,
(H) HUNDLEY,PETER B,
HURLEY,ELIZABETH M,
INDRAYAN,RAHUL,
ISZARD-COWEY,RICHARD J,
JACOBS,HEATHER,
JAMES,MARY L,
(H) JANIEC,DOROTA J,
JOHNSTON,S L,
JONES,CHRISTOPHER L,
JORGENSEN,JEREMY Z,
KAMEJORO,KJELL,
(H) KATZ,LISA A,
(H) KAWAF,TAREEF,
KERR CLIFTON E,II
KERWOOD,GREGORY O,
KIGHT,HEATHER M,
KINSEY,JANICE H,
KNAPCZYK,JEREMY,
(H) KRIVOPAL,MARK B,
(H) LAFLAMME,KRISTEN D,
LAKE,KELLY A,
LALLY,MICHAEL,
(H) LANE,STEPHEN K,
LANJUIN,SOPHIE M,
(H) LAUS,DAVID E,
LEMPERT,AMY B,
LENG,CHARAN,
LEUNG,KA C,
LIM,CHARLENE K,
LIMA,ROBERT M,JR
LIN,CHIA-CHING A,
(H) LIVERMORE,CAROL,
LOCKLIN,SCOTT C,
LYONS,JOSHUA C,
MANNING,BRENDAN D,
(H) MARINUS,LUCINDA M,
MARKUS,JEFFREY F,
MARYAKHIN,DAVID,
MATSUMOTO,JOJI,
(H) MCCLURE,CHRISTOPHER D,
(H) MCGREW,PATRICK F,
(H) MCRAE,MARY F,
(H) MEGNA,LISA A,
MEHTA,RAJNI L,
MELIS,ERWIN A,
MELIS,WENDY J,
MELLO,BROOKE,
(H) METMARIS,GREGORY,
MILLA,FEDERICO,
MILLER,BRETT A,
MILLER,D ANDREW,
MINER,TERI L,
MOCKLIN,KEVIN A,
(H) MOESER,JAMISON T,
MOLLER,WENDI L,
(H) MOODIE,JENNIFER D,
MORRISON,ALAN R,
MUNROE,HEATHER A,
MUNROE,LISA A,
MUNSON,PETER S,
MURGU,ELENA,
NGUYEN,DAN S,
(H) NISENBAUM,MICHELLE,
NNYAMAH,CHINYERE L,
OBRIEN,NEIL P,
OBRIEN,THOMAS F,JR .
OCASIO,JOSE H,
ORTHWEIN,GEORGE E,
OUKO,LILLIAN A,
PARKER,ERIK J,
PATEL,SONALEE R,
PAYAO,MATTHEW,
PLAGE,BEVERLY D,
POTTER,RUSSELL W,
PROTEAU,MICHAEL A,
QUINN,SHARON M,
REDDT,RODPA M,
REDMOND,MELISSA A,
(H) REMINGTON,WENDY E,
REPPUCCI,TANIA,
REVEIT,TRACY L,
RISEMAN,SARAH F,
(H) ROBINSON,DOUGLAS M, ROSSETII,LINA,
ROUGEMONT,JAMES P,
ROY,CORINNE J,
RUDDERS,DAVID B,
RUDDERS,JONATHAN E,
(H) RUKSTALIS,JOHN M,
RUTLE,THOMAS D,
SANDERSON,MARIE S,
SANNELLA,MARIA I,
SANTIAGO,MANUEL A III,
SCALLY,KEITH W,
SCHMILL,MATTHEW D,
(H) SCHNITZLER-MICAELA A,
SEIMOUN,MAMAK,
SELIGMAN,SETH E,
SHEA,GREGORY M,
SISITSKY,ALISON K,
SLOCOMBE,AMANDA F,
SPITZAK,SHARON E,
STEENBRUGGEN,JOHN C,
(H) STEINBERG,JESSE M,
SWENSON,JOEL T,
(H) TABIBI,SHAHRZAD,
TAGLIANI,MATTHEW R,
TEMESVARI,KATHARINE M,
TENG,SZU-RU,
THACH,PHUONG,
THOMAS,CHRISTOPHER L,
THORNTON,ANDREW J,
TOHLINE,CHRISTOPHER B,
TRAVIS,MELISSA A,
TURNER,GEOFFREY P,
TURNER,GWYNNE,
TZELLAS,ANDREW,
TZELLAS,NIA,
(H) VARGHESE,SHERY M,
VELAZQUEZ,LEONARDO J,
(H) VIAU,MARGARET O,
YOGI,ANGELA J,
WEISSBLUM,EMILY R,
WESTBERG,KRISTA S,

WETMORE,PATRICK J.
WHITE,JAMES P.
(H) WHITTAKER,ALLYSON J.
WILDA,KRISTA M.
WINCHELL,JENNIFER M.
WRIGHT,SUZANNE J.
XIAO,HONG.
(H) YANKELEV,HAYA.
YARROWS,JULIANNE M.
(H) YORID,DAVID S.
YORK,MARY L.
ZECEVIC,MAJA.
ZEGAROWSKI,VICTORIA L.
(H) ZERVAS,SOPHIA J.
ZUCCO,RANDY J.

ARTS & SCIENCES - SOCIAL & BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES

AASRUD,MICHELLE.
ABRAHAMS,STEPHANIE H.
ABRAMSON,EDEN M.
ACCIMONE,DEBORAH A.
ACQUAVIVA,LORI J.
ADAM,MEG B.
ALBERT,PATRICIA G.
ALMEIDA,MARK J.
ANAPOL,ROBIN D.
ANTICO,PAUL A.
ARNOLD,DANIEL R.
ASTOLFI,PAUL J.
ATAYA,ROSEMARIE L.
BAILS,STACIE L.
BAIN,WENDY.
(H) BAIR ASATAR P.
BAKER,KARIN L.
(H) BALDWIN,BRYAN M.
(H) BARLOW,TAMMY L.
BARRETT,CHRISTOPHER J.
BARRY,PAULA J.
BATISTA,ANDREA L.
BATT,KAREN E.
BEAN,CATHERINE E.
BEAULAC,DAVID J.JR
BECK,WENDY E.
BECKER,BONNIE M.
BECOTTE,JOANNE M.
BEGLEY,CHARLOTTE N.
BELKNAP,JOSHUA P.
BELLAS,JEFFREY W.
BELLEW,JASON A.
(H) BELSITO,PETER J.
(H) BELTPE,CHRISTINE.
BENBENEK,JULIE A.
BENFIELD,RODD J.
BENOIT,MELISSA A.
BERMAN,CARA B.
BERNSTEIN,MICHELLE A.
BIBBINS,EMILY I.
BLAIR,DONNA M.
BLANCHARD,LISA M.
BOAST,SARAH M.
BORGESEN,CATHY A.
BORR,THOMAS H.
BORSELLO,JILL S.
BOSS,EMILY C.
BOSTWICK,MICHAEL P.
BOUDREAU,BRIAN S.
BOUDREAU,FRANCIS X.
BREDIMUS,KENDRA M.
BRENNER,JASON.
BRITTON,KEVIN T.
BROOKS,RACHEL E.
BROSNIHAN,KRISTIN A.
BROWADY,CHRISTOPHER E.
(H) BROWER,LIANA N.
(H) BROWN,KATHLEEN C.
BUDA,NICOLE M.
BURNS,MARTHA T.
BURWICK,RONALD S.
BUSWICK,GEOFFREY E.
(H) BUTCHER,DANITA M.
(H) BUTLER,DONNA M.
BUTTLER,JENNIFER.
CAMERON,JULIE A.
(H) CANALI,KRISTOPHER G.
CAPOBIANCO,THERESA K.
CARRON,ANDREA L.
CAREY,SHAWN R.
CARLSON,KRISTIAN G.
CASCO,STEVEN J
CAVANAGH,TRACEY E.
CHAN,FIONA S.
CHAPMAN,JENNIFER E.
CHIASSON,NICOLE L.
COFFEY,JEREMY B.
COHEN,ROSEANN.
(H) COISMAN,JAY A.
COLEMAN,JULIE P.
COLLEARY,TAMMI M.
COLLINS,JOY E.
CONDIT,KELLY A.
(H) CONNORS,MEAGHAN L.
CONRAD,KATHLEEN J.
COOK,ABBEY L.
COOK,JEFFREY S.
COOLIDGE,MATTHEW F.
COREY,REBECCA G.
CORMIER,DIANE M.
COULTER,SUZANNE C.
COYLE,KIM P.
CRAIG,JENNIFER S.
CRIVELLI,JOHN G.
CROSS,ELIZABETH F.
(H) CULGIN,SARAH A.
(H) CULLITON,MARY F.
CURRUL,KATHLEEN E.
CUSTER,REBECCA M.
CZUPRYNA,DONNA L.
DAROINSKI,RACHEL A.
DAVID,CHRISTOPHER J.
DAVIS,MICHAEL J.
DAWES,JASON S.
DE BELLIS,KATHERINE R.
DEBETTENCOURT,RAYNA M.
DECOSTE,ANGELIQUE L.
DEFALCO,PATRICK J.
(H) DEL COLLE,JENNIFER O.
DELISLE,DAVID R.
DEPARI,JEANNE A.
(H) DESILVA,MELANIE R.
DEVER,LAURA J.
DEYOUNG,CASSANDRA.
DI ANGELA M.
DIETEL,KIMBERLY A.
DILORENZO,MICHAEL EDWARD
DIPIERRO,DEBBIE L.
DOERFLER,JOANNA M.
DOERR,KRISTIN M.
DOERR,SHEILA J.
DOLAT,JOSEPH V.
DONDIS,HEATHER S.
DONOGHUE,PATRICIA A.
DORKIN,SHERI E.
(H) DORMAN,DANA L.
DOYLE,MICHAEL P.
DRAGO,DENISE C.
(H) DRAKE,DEBRA L.
DRURY,BARBARA L.
(H) DUFF,ALICIA M.
DUFFY,PATRICIA E.
(H) DUNHAM,COLLEEN E.
DUNN,PETER I.
DUSTMAN,D TYLER.
DWORETZ,REBECCA M.
EARLE,KRIS K.
EARLEY,CHRISTINE A.
EARLEY,JOHN W.
EDWARDS,KIMBERLY C.
EISENBERG,STEPHANIE O.
ELLISTON,MARSHA C.
EMERSON,JOSEPH J.
ENEGESS,ROBIN E.
ENGDEN,LISA R.
ENOS,JENNIFER L.
ERICKSON,DAVID R.
ESPERANZA,BRENDA.
ESTELA,JESSICA E.
EVANS,TIFFANY L.
(H) FADDEN,STEVEN P
(H) FANTASIA,RENE A
FEELY,LYDIA B.
(H) FERREIRA,DEBORA O.
FITZGERALD,MICHAEL J.
(H) FLETCHER,KRISTIN M.
FLOM,JOANNE R.
FLYNN,JASON W.
FLYNT,WILLIAM J.
FOLEY,JACQUELINE J.
FORBES,MATTHEW G.
FORMAN,LISA R.
FORRISTER,LINDA D.
FORTIN,ANNETTE L.
FRIED,GABRIEL F.
FUREY,THERESA L.
GAFFEY,PHILIP F.
GALIPEAU,NICOLLE B.
(H) GALLANT,LISA O.
GALLIGANI,THOMAS F.
GANNON,TYLER C.
GARF,ROBERT.
GATES,JOSHUA G.
GAUTHIER,UNA L.
GILES,DARYL F.
GILBERT,ANDREW P.
GIORGI,CHRISTIAN A.
(H) GIOVANNINI,JOAN M.
GLASS,DAVID G.
GLEASON,KATHERINE C.
GOBIN,DIANNE.
GOLDMAN,KERI A.
GOLDWASSER,ILANA G.
GORDON,SCOTT J.
GORDON,WENDY B.
GOSSELIN,CHRISTOPHER M.
GRAHAM,JEFFREY P.
GRAVES,ANNA K.
GREEN,CYNTHIA R.
(H) GREEN,DAVID M.
GRIFFIN,JEFFREY T.
GROSSACK,EMILY S.
GUERTIN,MATTHEW R.
(H) GULLA,JENNIFER M.
GUNTER,FRANCINE A.
GURKA,SHARON A.
HALLISEY,KIMBERLY A.
HAND,JAIME A.
HANSEN,JUSTINE E.
HARDY,TANIA LYNN.
(H) HARRIS,JOHN B.
HARRIS,STACEY.
HARRIS,TAMARA M.
HARRISON,PAULINE C.
HASTINGS,JENNIFER L.
HEBERT,LISA M.
HEIDBRINK,KIMBERLY S.
HELLMUTH,HOLLY C.
HENNESSY,KATHLEEN L.
HERMIDA,ESTEBAN G.
HERNANDEZ,DAMARIS A.
HESS,MARIANNE.
HIGGINSON,MALAIKA L.
(H) HIRATA,MONA L.
HOGAN,REBECCA L.
HOHLER,DANIEL C.
HOLBROOK,JENNIFER E.
HOLLANDER,JESSICA L.
HOLLENDER,MANDA.
HUTCHIN,KRISTINE L.
HWANG,ANGELA S.
HYDE,JAMES G.
IVAS,LAURA E.
JACOBY,KAREN R.
JONES,WILLIAM B.
(H) KAHN,JULIE S.
(H) KAMERIK,KRISTEN L.
KANEDA,TOSHIKO.
KANTER,ADAM S.
KAPLAN,SEBASTIAN G.
KARLOWITZ,SCOTT M.
KATSOULIS,KRISTA D.
KEATING,LEO O.
KEATS,ADAM F.
(H) KEEGAN,KRISTY L.
KEELAN,KATHLEEN M.
KEENAN,SHERRY J.
KELLEHER,CATHERINE A.
KEMPNER,MARTHA E.
KEMPTON,DONALD G.
KENNEDY,JULIE A.
KEUNG,MAU L.
KIM,JAMES J.
(H) KIMBALL,ANGELA C.
KING,BRIAN C.
KLEIN,DONALD T.
KLEINMANN,PETER G.
KNIGHT,EILEEN A.
KNIGHTLY,PATRICK J.
KNOWLES,GEORGE J.
KONERU,APARNA.
KONIG,MOIRA J.
KONTSAS,DESPINA.
(H) KOWALSKI,TANYA E.
KRANTWISS,DEBORAH E.
KREIMER,PETER.
KRINTZMAN,DOUGLAS A.
KYROUZ,WILLIAM J.III
LAFRANCE,RICHARD E.
LAM,BIC N.
LAM,KAR BOE.
LAND,JOANNE M.
LANGLAIS,DERYK Y.
LANNIN,JOYCE E.
LAPERRIERE,LORI B.
(H) LAPPALAINEN,JENNIFER J.
LAWLESS,KARYN A.
LAWRENCE,DANIEL P.
(H) LAZILI,PAULA M.
LEA,TRICIA J.
LEBOFF,ERIC S.
LEE,JENNIFER.
LEMON,STEPHENIE C.
LEOPOLD,SARAH J.
LEPAGE,DANIEL P.
LEWIS,KIMBERLY J.
LEWIS,KRISTIN M.
LHEUREUX,NICOLE A.
LI,WAI LIM LAMBDA.
LILJEBLAD,KIM M.
LINDELL,STEPHEN G.
LIPTON,LEDA M.
LISI,GREGORY A.
LO,PUI KI.
LOOSTIAN,MELINDA.
LOPES,CARLOS A.
LOUGHLIN,KRISTIN A.
LUCEY,PAMELA A.
(H) MACDOUGALL,JESSICA R.
MACEACHERN,LAURA L.
MACGOVERN,STEPHEN A.
MAHDI,ALI A.
MAHONEY,JOHN E.
MALM,ERIC C.
MANHART,ANTHONY J.
MANIAS,ALEXANDROS.
MANNING,DAVID A.
MARINI,DANIEL A.
MARTIN,LORI A.
MARTINIELLO,ERIC B.
MASSE,LEDA E.
MASTERSON,SUZANNE.
MATHEY,JAMIE B.
MAZZETTA,ALISON J.
MCCLENNING,KRISTEN L.
MCCONNELL,PAMELA J.
MCCORMICK,ELIZABETH A.
MCDONALD,A. HEATHER.
MCEWEN,MICHAEL F.
MCGONAGLE,DARA E.
MCGOWAN,GAIL M.
MCINERNEY,JILL E.
MCINTYRE,SUSANNA M.
MCLAUGHLIN,ELIZABETH M.
MCMANUS,AMY F.
MEDINA,DINO E.
MEDOFF,ADAM B.
MELORTH,MAUREEN M.
(H) MENDES,CIDALIA A.
MERLIN,HELEN M.
METER,JOSEPH J.
MICCICHE,CHRISTOPHER J.
MICHAUD,CELINE M.
(H) MILDREN,REUBEN A.
MILLER,JUSTIN D.
MILLER,KIMBERLY L.
(H) MILLETT,MOLLY E.
MILLIE,JENNIFER E.
MIRANDA,NANCY.
MOLTA,LAURA J.
(H) MONAHAN,SHANNON C.
(H) MONTANARI,KENDRA L.
MONTGOMERY,JAMES J.
MOONEY,MAUREEN B.
MORAN,ERIN C.
MORETT,MELISSA A.
MORGAN,KIMBERLY A.
MORRISON,LAURA J.
MORRISSEY,MICHAEL P.
MOYER,BRENDEN E.
MOZDZEN,KRISTIN L.
MUISE,PAULA J.
(H) MURRAY,LAURA A.
MURRAY,MICHAEL M.
MYNTTINEN,MATTHEW G.
(H) NADEAU,MARISA J.
NASH,JASON E.
NEAL,MELINDA E.
NEALY,JENNIFER.
NELSON,JONATHAN R.
(H) NELSON,SUSAN Y.
NESSMAN,KEVIN M.
NEVENS,AMBER B.
NEWHALL,BETH K.
(H) NOLAN,DANIEL D.
NOREAU,RAYMOND L.
NORMAN,BRIAN L.
NYHAN,VERONICA R.
NYKDRMYK,KARI M.
NYLANDER,HEATHER V.
OBRIEN,CAITLYN M.
OBRIEN,SEAN M.
OCONNOR,STEPHEN R.
ODOM,HEATHER E.
ODONALD,ARTHUR J.
ODONNELL,HEATHER M.
OKEEFE,MAUREEN N.
OLIVERO,NICOLE M.
OLMSTEAD,CYNTHIA A.
OMALLEY,SEAN D.
(H) ORENBERG,JENNIFER S.
OTAKI,YURIKO.
(H) PAITARIS,MELANIE A.
(H) PALAZZOLO,VITA A.
PALUCH,ULJANA P.
PARENT,SUZANNE M.
PARENTI,CHRISTINA M.
PASCIUTO,NANCY A.
PAVLOVICH,DIANA E.
PEADCOK,BRADLEY M.
PEDALINO,JASON P.
PELOQUIN,MICHELE L.
PERRY,LINDA M.
PERRY,SCOTT M.
PETERSON,KRISTIN M.
PETERSON,ROBIN C.
PETRUCCI,NOAH J.
PHARMER,PAUL O.III
PIERCE,CHERYL A.
(H) POSTER,MICHAEL S.
POWER,PAUL V.
PROULX,PAMELA A.
QUIRK,DONNA.
RADIYOMY,SANDRA A.
RAMSEY,GABRIEL M.
RAMSEY,SEAN M.
RANKIN,DELENE M.
REDGATE,CHRISTINE A.
REICHERT,THERESA M.
REMOLD,JULIE M.
RESNICK,REBEKAH E.
RICHAROS,CHARLES A.
RICHAROS,FEMI S.
(H) RICHAROS,REBECCA J.
RIE,MARC D.
(H) RISEBERG,DOUGLAS T.
RIVERS,STEVEN P.
ROBBINS,RUSS E.
(H) ROBERTS,ALISON E.
(H) ROBIE,HEATHER C.
ROBITAILLE,LYNN M.
ROGERS,DEBORAH A.
ROSARIO,MARISOL.
ROSENLUND,STEPHANIE.
ROSENTHAL,BETH M.
ROWELL,JAMES L.
(H) ROTEMBERG,HERNAN.
RUSCIO,JOHN P.
RUSH,DONNA A.
RUSSELL,DESIREE J.
RUSSELL,REID L.
SACCOCIA,REGINA C.
SAJDAK,JEFFREI M.
SANOS,HOLLI K.
SANTOLUCITO,THOMAS J.
SARMIENTO,CAMILO.
(H) SARONSON,MATTHEW O.
SASLOW,RANDI F.
SATTERFIELD,KATHERINE A.
SCAMMONS,LINDA A.
SCATTERGOOD,EMILY O.
SCHAEFER,WILLIAM J.
SCHENCK,DARREN P.
SCHMIDT,JOSEPH W.
SCHNEIDER,WILLIAM A.
SCIBILIA,JENNIFER A.
SEITZ,JENNIFER L.
SELIGMAN,NAOMI B.
(H) SEZAK,ALAN M.
SFARA,MATTHEW I.
SHADRICK,CHRISTOPHER O.
SHANNON,COURTNEY E.
SHARLOW,MARYBETH M.
SHEA,JILL S.
SHEFFER,SLOANE A.
SHERMAN,SUSAN M.
(H) SHULMAN,BRIAN L.
SHULMAN,SARA.
SILVA,ANA LISA.
SILVA,COLIN E.
(H) SILVA,ELENA M.
SILVERMAN,DAVID E.
SILVESTRIADIS,DIMOSTHENIS.
SLEGER,LAURA M.
SLIWA,TRACY L.
SMITH,COURTNEY L.
SMITH,JASON S.
(H) SMITH,KATHERINE.
SMITH,STEPHANIE L.
(H) SORENSEN,KRISTIN I.
SOUSA,LILIA C.
SPADACCINI,MARIE C.
SPANG,KELLY A.
SPELLIOS,PETER A.
(H) STARKIS,ALISHA V.
STEINER,SARAH C.
STERN,LEA.
STOLPER,MICHELE O.
STONE,ERIK N.
STRAUS,ALICIA J.
STROHL,JEFFREY.
STRYSKO,JENNIFER L.
STUART,SAMUEL J.
SU,FELIX L.
SUEKSAGAN,JULIA C.
SUTHERLAND,TODD R.
SWANSON,CHRISTINE L.
SWEENER,DAVID P.
SWEET,MICHAEL C.
(H) TANCREDI,JENNIFER M.
(H) TANNENBAUM,LISA B.
TARNOR,DEBRA L.
(H) THARP,DIANE L.
THEAUX,HEATHER M.
THOMAS,KIMBERLY A.
(H) THOMAS,VICTORIA C.
(H) THOMPSON,CHELSEA R.
TITUS,JEFFREY S.
TOKOWICZ,NATASHA.
TOMASKY,STEPHANIE N.
(H) TOPHAM,MELINDA M.
TOPIOL,SARA J.
(H) TORRES,ROXABELLA O.
TRABISH,BRIAN M.
TREMBLAY,DANA.
TROMBLEY,ALEJANDRA C.
TROTMAN,ANNE M.
VAINSTOCK,IRINA.
VALENTINI,ANGELO.
VANLAUWE,AMY M.
VAUTOUR,DONNA M.
VEREMEY,JULIE L.
VIO,PATRICIA A.
VITTORINI,JASON R.
VONER,TRISHA M.
(H) WAGNER,STACY E.
WALSH,AMANDA J.
WALSH,DAVID R.
WALSH,MEREDITH A.
WALT,KATRINA M.
WEAVER,MARK R.
(H) WEHLE,DANIT.
WELCH,CASSANDRA E.
WELCH,SEAN P.
WENSLEY,ERIC S.
WERNER,JEFFREY T.
WESTORP,MICHAEL C.
WHITE,JAIME N.
WHITE,RICHARD J.
(H) WHITMORE,RACHEL A.
WHITMORE,JENNIFER L.
(H) WISHNICK,HILLARY M.
WOLAVER,SARAH L.
XING,YAN.
TAMEEN,ISHITA.
ZACCONE,TRACEY A.
ZAKAK,MARIEANNE V.
ZALOSH,MICHAEL O.
ZARCONE,CASSANDRA M.
ZIELINSKI,ALEXIS L.

ARTS & SCIENCES - UNDECLARED

(H) ABELLI,DONNA M.
ADAMS,SARAH A.
ALLAN,STACEY M.
ALTWERGER,JOSHUA O.
APPEL,EMILY A.
ARONOWITZ,LOUIS R.
ASERME,Y.JULIE A.
ASSA,MARC S.
AU YEUNG,MAN YEE.
AUSLANDER,JESSICA A.
AUTH,PATRICK J.
BAILEY,MARYANNE.
BARUCCI,CHRISTOPHER J.
BATTISTI,STEPHEN M.
BAYARO,MARIA T.
BELL,SARAH J.
(H) BERENSON,ANDREW M.
BERGMAN,JEFFREY M.
BILODEAU,BRIAN R.
BITRAN,LIVNA E.
BLANEY,BONNIE K.
BLAZIS,DONNA J.
BOBBERG,CHRISTINE.
BOCHNAK,ROBERT S.
BOWERS,KENNETH J.
BRANCH,KRISTEN E.
BRONSHVATG,ANNA.
BROOKS,DAMIEN Y.
BROWN,MARY E.
BROWN,VALARIE C.
BRUNELLE,JOSEPH W.
BURKE,LAWRENCE J.
BURTON,JENNIFER L.
BYRNES,MATTHEW J.
CAFFELLE,MICHAEL J.
CAHN,MONIQUE E.
CALABRESE,CRAIG R.
CARACCIOLO,NANCY.
CARMEL,MARY O.
CARPARELLI,LISA L.
CASARJIAN,AMANDA N.
CHAN,TAN.
CHAO,SHIANG S.
CHEN,SIN-FU STEVEN.
CHENG,TSUI MEI.
CHRISTOPHER,ASHLEY F.
CORBETT,MILLARY J.
COREY,KEITH G.II
CORMIER,MICHELLE A.
CORNONI,MELISSA C.
CRAIG,KATHRIN P.
CULLUM,REBECCA M.
CZEPIEL,TERESA A.
DAHDUL,ZAMIRA.
DARLING,JEFFREY B.
(H) DAVIES,JOHANNAH M.
DEBIASIO,SUSAN J.
DEFFEL,SEAN P.
DEFRANZO,GINA M.
DELGUERCIO,GINA M.
DENETTE,DANIELLE A.
DEPALMA,JEREMY M.
DESNOYERS,WILLIAM J.
DEVINCENZO,MELISSA J.
DEWITT,JENNIFER R.
DIETRICH,MARTIN W.
DORPEN,TIMOTHY K.
DUOLEY,FRANCESCA M.
DUNN,LAURA S.
EDWARDS,RAFIQUE F.
ELVOVE,AMY S.
ELY,APRIL J.
ELYSEE,PIERRE A.
ENRIGHT,KEITH P.
EPSTEIN,JONATHAN H.
ERNST,AMY L.
FAREWELL,JEAN M.
FARIA,KIM M.
FERRANTE,MARGARET C.
FLYNN,KERRI A.
FOSTER,GAIL P.
FREDRICSON,KARA M.
FUSSTEIG,LYNNE S.
(H) GIROHARRY,MATTHEW A.
GOBEIL,RICHARD A.JR
GOLDMAN,NATALIE A.
GOLDSTEIN,ALICIA J.
GOLOTHWAIT,JOCELYN A.
GRAGLIA,H ROBERT.
GREENBERG,DAVID A.
GREENE,JENNIFER S.
GRIFFITH,JESSICA R.
GRINBERG,ALEKSANDRA S.
GUERIN,STEPHEN J.
GUISE,KIMBERLY S.
GUTHRIE,MICHAEL F.
HAGUE,DEVIN O.
HALATIN,LUCY H.
HANLEY,KRISTEN M.
(H) HANNEMANN,ALETHEA.S.
HARRIS,ROBERT E.
HAU,EDMOND H.
HEMINGWAY,JENNIFER B.
HILDRETH,CARRIE R.
HILLER,DENA B.
HIRSCHFELDER,BROOKE O.
HODGSON,KENNETH W.III
HOFFMAN,DEBORAH E.
HOLDSWORTH,SUSAN J.
HOLENA,DANIEL N.
HONIKMAN,JULIE L.
HOOVER,SUSAN E.
HOWLAND,MARIAH C.
HUSSEY,ALISON E.
IMOUYE,KARA E.
ITO,FUMIKO.
JACKSON,CHRISTINE M.
JACOBS,TIMOTHY J.
JACOBSON,JENNIFER A.
JOHNSON,BRIAN E.
JOHNSON,KARIN E.
JONES,STEPHANY G.
KABACK,SUZANNE.
KANSANEN,JORMA K.
KAYLOR,SCOTT O.
KEANE,STEPHEN A.
KETTELL,JENNIFER A.
KLEIMOLA,JASON P.
KOUSTENIS,DIANE.
(H) KRAUS,AMANDA.
KRUKOFSKY,DAMLIA S.
KUPIEC,SHARON A.
KYLE,KELLY R.
LANGFORD,JOSEPH W.
(H) LARSON,A SARAH.
(H) LAVERDURE,REBECCA A.
LINCOLN,ELIZABETH E.
LITTO,JASON L.
LOWE,NICHOLAS J.
LUMB,ANDREW T.
LYONS,BETHANY C.
MACDONALD,AMY B.
MACDONALD,BROOKE E.
MACKENZIE,MELISSA C.
MACLEOD,LISA A.
MAHER,CHRISTOPHER M.
MAHLKE,JASON C.
MALDONADO,JUSTINA A.
MANEGRE,CHARITY E.
MARCUS,MERYL S.
MARRIOTT,RYAN A.
MARTIN,DONNA L.
MATTHEWS,REBECCA S.
MAY,ALEXANDER P.
MCBRIDE,CHRISTOPHER A.
MCMAHON,KATHLEEN J.
METELSKI,KERRY M.
MICHALEK,JON D.
MICHAUD,CHRISTOPHER M.
MILLS,JEFFREY M.
MIROVICH,RACHEL E.
MORSE,SUZANNE N.
MOUHIEEDDINE,MOSTAFA.
MUCHA,NICOLE S.
MULLAN,JENNIFER V.
NGUYEN,MY HUE T.
NGUYEN,TAN D.
NIETUPSKI,JASON M.
NOVICK,ROBYN P.
OBRIEN,TRACEY A.
OCONNELL,KIMBERLY S.
OLSON,SARA.
ONEILL,NANCY E.
ORNSTEIN,SHARON B.
ORRIZZI,ANGELINA M.
OYITT,KELLY L.
PAJER,NICOLE L.
PALIN,ANNA L.
PAPASSO,PETER S.
PARY,TAEJIN.
PERLES,JANET M.
PFROMMER,JULIA G.
PHAM,BINH T.
PHILLIPS,BROCK A.
PHILLIPS,JESSE C.
PICCO,MICHAEL M.
PLATT,DANIEL T.
POWER,ELIZABETH R.
PUDELKO,KAREN M.
RABINER,RACHEL M.
(H) RAPAPORT,LORI B.
REDFERN,HEATHER L.
REMINGTON,MARY E.
RETI,ANDREA J.
REYNOLDS,JONATHAN P.
RHODES,TOM A.
RIDDINGTON,LEIF C.
RITTER,JOANNA C.
ROBINSON,BENJAMIN I.
ROGALA,JENNIFER L.
ROSSELLI,SUZANNE M.
ROTH,MARCUS A.
ROUNTREE,AMY S.
RYAN TONGE,DACHA M.
SANTIAGO BEZARES,NORMA I.
SANTO,CHRISTOPHER J.
SANTORO,CARLA M.
SCHARFF,CHRISTOPHER W.
SCHNEIDER,JUDITH A.
SCHWARTZFARB,AMOS L.
SCORZA,CHRISTOPHER C.
(H) SEARS,SHARON E.
SELL,JENNIFER L.
SHABI,OLUWABUKOLA F.
SHAPIRO,ROBERT L.
SHIN,HYE KAN.
SIAMOS,TOLY A.
SILLS,JAMIE B.
SILVA,JUDITH A.
SILVER,JANINE M.
SINDONI,ARMAND R.
SMITH,AMY M.
(H) SMITH,JUSTIN.
SPEARS,JESSAMYN C.
SPITTLER,SUSAN T.
ST AMAND,STEPHANIE A.
STRINGER,SUSANA.
SUPETTE,JOELLE M.
SUSEN,ANDREW P.
SZAFRAN,MARILYN A.
TAMARA,YUMI.
TANG,SIU YI.
(H) TANNER,JENNIFER L.
TASSONE,ANGELA.
TAYLOR,ROBERT A.
TEEHAN,KATHLEEN L.
TERBAN,MELISSA O.
TEWKSBURY,CAM K.
THEA,THOMAS.
TILDEN,NATHAN A.
TORRES,SHIRLEY.
TRADER,TIFFANY R.
TROTTIER,LEO A.
TUTTLE,SAMUEL A.
UMGAR,ESTHER A.
VENUTI,DONNA J.
VESELY,ALEXANDRIA F.
VISCO,KEITH A.
YO,FRANCOIS O.
VOLOSHEN,TANYA A.
WALDEN,H DAVID.
WALTERS,MELISSA J.
WARD,DANIEL T.
WARREN,MICHAEL J.
WATSON,COLLIN C.
WEINER,KAREN V.
WERNAU,PAUL M.
WHITE,KRISTIN A.
WILDE,JOHN F.
WINTER,JENNIFER A.
WISEMAN,RACHAEL H.
WOOD,MARIA O.
WYSHAK,KORI M.
YASOHAMA,WATARU.
ZAMARRIPA,ANNA M.
ZAZOFF,REBECCA L.

BACHELORS DEGREE WITH INDIVIDUAL CONCENTRATION

ALCE,OBED.
BABSON,RANDY S.
BECKER,ROSS S.
BENNETT,LISA J.
BIANCHI,DONNA J.
BORNSTEIN,JODI L.
BRAGG,RICHARD W.
BRIGGS,AMY.
CARLIN,ANDREA R.
CASTILLO,CESAR T.
COLEMAN,COLLEEN T.
DAHLGREN,ERIC C.
DALEY,STACEY L.
ELISON,RAPHAEL A.
FINNEY,JILL S.
FORGHAN,MONIQUE A.
(H) FOTI,SUZANNE L.
FREEMAN,CRISTINA P.
GAGE,JAMES E.
GARRISON,STEPHEN A.
GEEP,RUSSELL C.
GENTILE,TANIA D.
GOODMAN,CARRIE R.
GREENFIELD,LISA P.
HANLEY,KATHERINE A.
HARRIS,KEVIN B.
HIGGINS,ERIKA K.
KEARNEY,RICHARD M.
LANGMAN,ROSALIND M.
LEPKOWSKI,KAREN M.
(H) MANSEAU,SEAN W.
MOYER,ALISA K.
(H) MYERS,SANDRA A.
NISSENBAUM,DANIEL A.
ONEILL,MARIANNE.
ORTIZ,NILDA I.
PERLMUTTER,PAULA L.
(H) PITTS,USHA E.
POWELL,JASON M.
(H) PROKOPY,JOSHUA J.
RENAUD,JOHN C.JR
SCHAFROTH,INGRID M.
SCHIFFER,ANDREW P.
SCHILO,ELISE S.
SCOTT,PHILLIPA.
SMITH,AMY D.
SULLIVAN,SUSAN M.
(H) THOMPSON,KRISTIN M.
TOWNSEND,MARK H.
(H) UPTON,AMY M.
(H) VAN APSDALE,DANIEL M.
VASSILIADIS,RENA.
(H) WALKER,SULEYKEN O.
WASSERMAN,DAVID F.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

AHLBERG,ANDREAS K.
AUSTIN,STEPHEN F.
BACCHETTA,MATTHEW D.
BALLWAY,STEVEN.
BENOIT,DAVID.
BENOIT,LAURIE A.
BERTONI,ROBERT E.
BESANA,SVEVA.
BOYLE,MARIA H.
BRAND,ALEXANDER C.
BRESLOW,ABIGAIL.
COLCORO,DOROTHY MONKIEWICZ.
COLLETT WILLEY,PAMELA B.
DUGGAN,LYNNE B.
DZUGAN,WILLIAM S.
EDGE,ELLEN.
FINNERTY,KATHRYN A.
FLETCHER,SARAH D.
FLYNN,RONALD.
FREORICKSON,TODD A.
FRIEDMAN,MIRIAM R.
GEARY,RALPH E.
GUARNERA,STEFANI.
HELLMAN,CHARLOTTE E.
JACKSON,RICHARD C.
JENKS,JOHN J.
KNIGHT,THOMAS R.
LAMEY,TIMOTHY P.
LEFTWICH,RONALD.
LEVRAULT,BRUCE.
LEVY,HEIDI L.
LINDSTROM,DEAN R.
LOESCHER,PETER M.
MADJID,KATHARINE A.
MAHER,SUSANNE M.
MALCOLM,JANICE A.
MARK,SANDRA E.
MARUGG,KATHLEEN L.
MCCAHON,CYNTHIA D.
MCEWAN,JON S.
MCKAY,AMY E.
MCLEAN,DIANNA M.
MILAN,TERRENCE D.
MORLEY,KENNETH V.
OCONNOR,BETH ANN.
ORTIZ,FRANCISCO.
PARKER,PATRICIA J.
PIERCE,CARIN A.
RINALDI,SIMONE P.
ROMAN,CHRISTOPHER J.
RUBINO,CHARLES A.
SHARRON,MARGARET E.
SOMERS,MICHELE L.
SPELKE,JONATHAN E.
SULLIVAN,KATHRYN K.
WARREN,LINDA J.
WILSON,ELISABETH B.

EDUCATION

ARRUDA,KARA M.
BAKER,ALLISON K.
BERTRAND,ROSANNA M.
BOHRER,CYNTHIA A.
BURFORD,CHARAN M.
CAHALL,CRAIG A.
CALISH,JENNIFER.
(H) CANAVAN,MAURA B.
CASEY,SUSAN M.
CMOQUETTE,COLINDA M.
COZZA,LISA A.
DANA,JENNIFER M.
DRAPKIN,KELLEY.
FISK,KELLIE D.
FOLLICK,STEPHANIE F.
FRIZZLE,KERRY L.
GAINES,RACHEL A.
GAVINI,SHARON L.
GIRARD,ELISABETH M.
GOLDENBERG,JEFFREY A.
GRAVES,MELISSA S.
GROLNIC,LINDA B.
GROVER,MALENE E.
HENDERSON,DANIEL S.
HRABEC,LARISSA K.
IADOVELLI,LYNN M.
JOHNSON,JOHN.
(H) KEANE,LORA L.
KOTULA,MIRANDA R.
LIVERNOIS,MICHELLE L.
LORD,ALICE B.
MAURHOFF,MARGARET L.
MCGRANN,HEATHER L.
MONGEON,DAWN E.
MURRAY,NOREEN M.
OBRIEN,KATHLEEN E.
ODONOGHUE,DEBORAH J.
PICCIOLI,JENNIFER V.
PREMONT,JOYCE C.
QUINN,HEATHER S.
(H) RAYNER,KIMBERLEY L.
ROBBINS,RACHEL A.
SCHGENROCK,TRISTIN.
SHAPIRO,STACI-JOYE.
SIDEL,BETH A.
STATHOPOULOS,VIKI M.
SULLIVAN,HONORE.
TOLAND,JANE E.
VEYOCK,RUTH E.
WHEELOCK,LEAH E.
WOFFORD,LAURA A.
ZAMARRIPA,LISA MARIE.
BRONBERG, SUSAN B.
CAPRARO, PETER J
CARROLL, CATHERINE M.
DIFAULT, SUSAN D.
GRAZIO, CINDY P.
LAROSE, LUANNE M.
MCDONNELL, FILEEN M.
MONOPOLI, ELIZABETH
MURPHY, JEREMY J.
OLEARY, PAUL S.
REIK, JEFFREY M.
SHMULSKY, SOLVEGI
SHOW, ANN MARIE

ENGINEERING

ABUSHAAR,RAKAN F.
AHAD,FARHAD.
ALICEA,YESSIKA.
ANDROSKI,MATTHEW J.
BARON,BRIAN P.
BATTISTI,PETER M.
BAZIN,TODD J.
BEISNER,JENNIFER L.
(H) BERGENDAHL,JASON R.
BERLIK,AMY C.
BIELUNIS,ALAN J.
BILLIPS,DAVID M.
(H) BLANCHARD,LYNNETTE A.
BOCK,DARRIN K.
BONFANTINO,PAUL J.
BORSKI,JUSTIN C.
BOSKI,JILL M.
BRENNAN,ROBERT T.
BRITTON,DAVID M.
(H) BROWN,MICHAEL J.
BUCALA,JANICE A.
BURQUE,DAVID J.
BUTLER,M RAYMOND.
(H) CAIL,BRIAN J.
CANDIANO,GASTON R.
CANNIZZARO,CHRISTOPHER M.
(H) CARLSON,CYNTHIA H.
CHACON,SERGIO.
CHAMPNEY,JOHN P.
CHAN,MICHAEL.
CHARLTON,CHRISTOPHER C.
CHASSE,KEVIN M.
CHONG,KOK FUI.
CIAMPOLI,APRIL A.
CLAPP,BRETT H.
CLARY,JENNIFER A.
COLLINS,LISA M.
CORMIER,CHRISTOPHER G.
(H) CORONELLA,JOHN S.
COSTA,GEORGE L.
DA CRUZ,ANTONIO J.
DAVENPORT,SCOTT E.
DENIS,NIKOLAOS A.
DENTREMONT,PATRICK A.
DESIMONE,DAVID M.
(H) DETERMAN,JAMES F.
DHALLIWAL,MANJIT S.
DIBIASIO,MICHAEL V.
DIDTTE,HELEN S.
DONAVI,MICHAEL J.
DORTSS,ASHLEY P.
DUSSAULT,PETER J.
ECONOMOPOULOS,CHRISTOS P.
EDBERG,WILLIAM M.
ELDER,CARL R.
EMIG,JEFFREY T.
ERWIN,BRIAN M.
ESHGHIPOUR,MARYAM.
FAUGNO,CULLEN N.
FEDELE,STACEY L.
FEDERYICH,HOLLY B.
FITZPATRICK,DANIEL R.
FOO,KEAN F.
FORNEY,DAVID A.
GAETA,DOUGLAS E.
GAGNON,STEVE J.
GARDINER,MAUREEN P.
GARDNER,ROBERT K.
GARRITT,CHRISTOPHER W.
GENOVA,DAVID E.
GERRIOR,NICOLE A.
GILBERT,ANDREW.
GILLIGAN,KEVIN M.
GOLDBERG,GEOFFREY H.
(H) GOLDSTEIN,MATTHEW.
GRAHAM,MICHAEL O.
GRANT,JASON.
GREENE,DANIEL B.
GREEP,HEIDI L.
GUIMOND,KELLY B.
HALLEN,JEFFREY D.
HALLORAN,WILLIAM J.
HANSSEN,

DH DUFF,ALICIA M.
DH DUMBA,ALEXANDRA M.
DH DURHAM,COLLEEN E.
DH EAGAN,JULIANNE E.
DH ELMAN,KIMBERLY J.
DH EVANS,MATTHEW J.
DH EWALD,LIANA J.
DH FABERMAN,STEPHEN H.
DH FADDEN,STEVEN P.
DH FANTASIA,RENE A.
DH FEDER,HELENA M.
DH FEINSTEIN,AMY
DH FERREIRA,DEBORA D.
DH FERRIS,BRANDON P.
DH FINLAYSON,JULIE K.
DH FITZPATRICK,TIMOTHY B.
DH FLEMING,ADRIENNE.
DH FLETCHER,KRISTIN H.
DH FLOM,JOANNE R.
IH FOTI,SUZANNE L.
DH FRANTZ,JONATHAN M.
DH FREEMAN,MARK S.
DH FRIEDMAN,STEPHEN H.
IH FUNG,KAREY ANDRA.
DH GALLANT,LISA D.
DH GALLANT,SHANNON B.
DH GARDNER,WILLIAM B.
DH GENDELMAN,EVGEN.
DH GEOGHEGAN,ANNE C.
IH GEORGE,JASON.
DH GERBER,KRISTIN J.
DH GIAMMATTEI,THERESA J.
DH GIOVANNINI,JOAN M.

DH GIROHARDY,MATTHEW A.
DH GLASS,REBECCA C.
GOLD,EMILY R.
DH GOLD,JOSHUA R.
DH GOLDSTEIN,MATTHEW.
DH GORDON,JENNIFER A.
DH GRAMER,ROBERT L.
DH GRAVES,PETER F.
DH GREEN,DAVID M.
DH GRIFFIN,ANDREA S.
DH GUIDERA,MATTHEW H.
DH GUILLEMIN,JULIE M.
DH GULLA,JENNIFER M.
DH HABERT,ERICA M.
DH HANNEMANN,ALETHEA B.
DH HARRIS,JOHN B.
DH HARRIS,PENNY B.
DH HAWKINS,JENNIFER D.
DH HAYES,CATHERINE J.
DH HEFFERNAN,JULIE A.
DH HEIKO,JEYHRO.
IH HIRATA,MONA L.
DH HIRVONEN,CHRISTINE A.
DH HO,HOI HUNG.
DH HOSLEY,DARIENNE J.
DH HOUSE,BRETT M.
DH HOWELL,KEIV J.
DH HUNTER,NATASHA B.
DH HURLBUT,PETER R.
DH HURLEY,SARA E.
DH INGLEDUE,JANIS L.
JACKSON,ERIN N.
DH JANIEC,DOROTA J.

DH JODOIN,JULIE A.
DH JOSLIN,TAMMY L.
IH JURICH,JOSCELYN S.
DH KAHN,JULIE S.
DH KAMERIK,KRISTEN L.
DH KATZ,LISA A.
DH KAWAF,TADEEF.
DH KEANE,LORA L.
DH KEDIAN,KRISTY L.
DH KHAN,ATIF R.
DH KIMBALL,ANGELA C.
DH KJENDAL,KARL H.
DH KOCH,STEPHANIE L.
DH KONIECZNY,TERESA A.
DH KOWALSKI,TANYA E.
DH KRAUS,AMANDA.
DH KRAUS,ANDREW N.
KREJMAS,GREGORY J.
DH KRENDEL,DAVID B.
DH KRIYOPAL,MARK B.
DH KUC,MONICA A.
DH LAFLAMME,KRISTEN D.
DH LANE,STEPHEN K
IH LANZA,YERI L.
DH LAPPA,AIMEN JENNIFER J.
DH LARSON,A SARAH.
DH LAUS,DAVID E.
DH LAUTER,ROBBIE S.
IH LAVERDURE,REBECCA A.
LAWRENCE,DOUGLASS C.
DH LAZILI,PAULA M.
DH LEE,CHAN YUIN.
DH LINGO,JESSE D.

DH LIPSKY,TIMOTHY R.
DH LIVERMORE,CAROL.
DH LODGE,MICHAEL W.
IH LOMBARDO,CHARLES J.
DH LONG,ELIZABETH A.
UH LONSKE,JONATHAN W.
DH MACDONALD,WILLARD S.
DH MACDUGALL,JESSICA R.
DH MACLIN,CHRISTOPHER T.
DH MALIONEK,ROBERT J.
DH MANCHESTER,BETH A.
IH MANSEAU,SEAN W.
DH MARINUS,LUCINDA M.
DH MARTIN,HEIDI L.
DH MASSEY,DAVID B.
MATHEW,AJAI.
DH MAYER,CATHERINE J.
DH MCCANN,HEIDI N.
DH MCCLEAN,MICHAEL D.
IH MCCLURE,CHRISTOPHER D.
DH MCCUE,KATHLEEN M.
DH MCCURDY,HEATHER K.
DH MCGLYNN,MICHAEL W.
DH MCGREW,PATRICK F.
IH MCKAY,KATE A.
DH MCKEEVER,JAMES A.
DH MCLEAN,CHRISTINE E.
DH MCRAE,MARY F.
DH MEGNA,LISA A.
DH MELIUS,SANDRA K.
DH MENDES,CIDALIA A.
DH METARIS,GREGORY.
DH MICHAELS,JONATHAN.

IH MILDREN,REUBEN A.
DH MILLARD,ANGELA C.
DH MILLER,DAVID D.
DH MILLETT,MOLLY E.
DH MINKOS,JOSEPH M.
DH MOESER,JAMISON T.
DH MOGOLESKO,DANIELLE E.
IH MONAHAN,SHANNON C.
IH MONTANARI,KENDRA L.
DH MOODIE,GEOFFREY D.
DH MOODIE,JENNIFER D.
DH MOOLENAAR,ANDREA S.
DH MUMPER,DAVID C.
DH MUNRO,JENNIFER A.
DH MURADALI,ZUHARA.
IH MURPHY,CHRISTINE A.
DH MURPHY,DIANA LYNN.
DH MURPHY,ERIKA M.
DH MURRAY,LAURA A.
DH MYERS,SANDRA A.
DH NADEAU,MARISA J.
DH NAPOLI,MICHELLE A.
DH NELSON,AMY T.
DH NELSON,SUSAN V.
DH NIEBENBAUM,MICHELLE.
DH NOLAN,DANIEL D.
DH OBRIEN,MICHAEL R.
DH OCONNOR,CRAIG R.
DH ORDWAY,HOLLY E.
DH ORENBERG,JENNIFER B.
DH ORTMEIER,CHRISTINA M.
DH PAITARIS,MELANIE A.
DH PALAZZOLO,VITA A.

DH PALTER,JOSHUA E.
PARROT,CHRYSAL E.
IH PEARCE,CHRISTIANNA H.
DH PECK,DONNIE C.
DH PETERS,JENNIFER L.
IH PITTS,USHA E.
DH POLLINGER,JOHN J.
DH POPSON,GLENN R.
DH POSTER,MICHAEL B.
IH PROKOPI,JOSHUA J.
DH RAPAPORT,LORI B.
IH RATNER,KIMBERLEY L.
DH REDCLIFF-FREEBERN,JULIE ANN.
DH REMINGTON,WENDY E.
DH RENSENBRINK,MARGARET.
DH RICHARD,GARY J.
DH RICHARDS,REBECCA J.
DH RISEBERG,DOUGLAS T.
DH ROBERTS,ALISON E.
DH ROBIE,HEATHER C.
DH ROBINSON,DOUGLAS M.
DH ROSENTHAL,BETH M.
DH ROZEMBERG,HERNAN.
DH RUKSTALIS,JOHN M.
DH SARGNSON,MATTHEW D.
DH SARVE,JONATHAN T.
IH SCHLAPPI,ZACHARY A.
DH SCHNITZLER,MICAELA A.
DH SCHWARTZ,ALLISON J.
DH SCIONTI,JENNIFER L.
DH SCOTT,SAMUEL W.
DH SEARS,SHARON R.
DH SEZAK,ALAN M.

DH SHIRK,AARON R.
DH SHULMAN,BRIAN L.
DH SILVA,ELENA M.
DH SIMEONIDES,ALEXANDRA E.
DH SIMPSON,FRANKLIN L.
DH SLACK,JULIE E.
DH SLAP,ANDREW L.
DH SMALL,JENNIFER L.
DH SMITH,JUSTIN.
IH SMITH,KATHERINE.

DH SMITH,MATTHEW E.
DH SNOW,KEVIN B.
DH SORENSEN,KRISTIN I.
DH SPADY,JAMES O.
DH SPEICHER,DEBRA J.
DH SPIDER,RACHEL.
DH SPINELLI,JAMES P,JR
IH ST JEAN,SHAWN K.
DH STANFORD,EMILY J.
DH STARKIS,ALISHA Y.

DH STEINBERG,JESSE M.
DH SULLIVAN,NICOLE D.
DH TABIBI,SHAHRZAD.
DH TANCREDI,JENNIFER M.
DH TANNENBAUM,LISA B.
DH TANNER,JENNIFER L.
DH TAURAS,NINA M.
DH TENDRICH,LISA Y.
DH THARP,DIANE L.
DH THOMAS,VICTORIA C.

DH THOMPSON,CHELSEA R.
DH THOMPSON,KRISTIN M.
DH TOPHAM,MELINDA M.
DH TORRES,BONABELLA S.
IH UPTON,AMY M.
DH VAN ARSDALE,DANIEL M.
DH VAN ATTEN,CHRISTOPHER E.
DH VARGHESE,SHERY M.
DH VIAU,MARGARET D.
DH VIZZARI,GINA M.

DH VOLDMAN,JOEL.
DH WAGNER,STACY E.
IH WALKER,BULEYKEN D.
IH WALSH,MEGHAN J.
DH WARNEHUIS,JENNIFER.
DH WEHLE,DANIT.
DH WEINMANN,LEON U.
DH WEDLEY,DEREK M.
DH WHITMER,RACHEL A.
DH WHITTAKER,ALLYSON J.

DH WISHNICK,HILLARY M.
DH WOODS,D CHRISTOPHER.
DH YANKELEV,HAYA.
DH YORIS,DAVID S.
DH ZELMAN,SUZANNE J.
DH ZERVAS,SOPHIA J.
DH ZIEGLER,SUSAN E.

INTERDEPARTMENTAL OR EXCHANGE

AGARWAL,PAPUL.
AGRAWAL,NITIN.
BLOOMFIELD,ANNE KATHERINE.
BONSANG,YVES FRANCOIS-MARIE.
BOWLING,MARK.
BOYD-MAUNSEL,DOMINIC.
BRUNET,JEAN-MICHEL.
BUSH,HEIDI J.
CAICEDO,ANA LUCIA.
CANADINE,IAN.

CHAMPAGNE,ROCH.
CHARALAMBOUS,FLORA.
CLARKE,JAMES RICHARD.
DAVIDSON,SALLY.
DORHOFER,DIANA M.
DUSENBURY,ANGELA.
EKEBLAD,ANNA SOFIA.
FERGUSON,ALLISON.
GROSS,REBECCA.
GUSTAFSSON,ULLA MIA.

HASLER,HALEY.
HAWES,MICHAEL.
MILLIARD,KERRIE.
HODCROFT,MELANIE DAWN.
INGRAM,PETER JOHN.
JOSEPH,ANNA.
KENNA,VOIRREY KAREN.
KIBBY,MATTHEW LEE.
LOCKHART-BRITTON,STUART.
LOPEZ,SONIA BARRON.

LOWE,STEVEN JOHN.
MACDONALD,LORNA E.
MARKHAM,AMANDA JANE.
MILLER,MELISSA L.
MORITZ,ANDREA MARIA.
NIEM,ULRICH.
ONOE,HIROKO.
OSHIMA,MAKIKO.
PIKE,ANDREW DEREK.
POMPUSHKO,NINEL.

PORTELA GONZALEZ,MARIA M.
PRIME,MATTHEW R.
SAKAI,KADRI.
SHINDORI,ARISA.
SMITH,CAROLINE ANN.
SMOUT,KATHRYN ANN.
SOREL,DOMINIQUE.
SULLY,KATIE JESSICA.
SURDOVA,VICTORIA YURIEVNA.
TANAKA,RYOTARO.

TAYLOR,KARYN S.
THOMPSON,CATHERINE MARY.
TORRES,LAURA.
WADELL,CARL HANNES.
WALTON,JOHN EDWARD.
YAMADA,MIYUKI.
YAMAMOTO,JANE.
ZELMAN,CAROL.

MANAGEMENT

AGOSTINO,MICHAEL J.
AHRENHOLZ,NIKKI B.
ALBERT,DANIEL P.
ALESSI,ANTHONY C.
ALEX,PENELOPE E.
ALIE,JASON D.
ALLARD,ANDREA L.
ALPER,JODI M.
ALTHERR,THOMAS H.
ALTONSY,BRIAN J.
AMAN,REBECCA M.
AVERY,JAMES.
BAKER,MATTHEW J.
BAKUTIS,COLLEEN A.
BALDI,JILL E.
BALLIRO,ANN D.
BAPTISTE,MARCUS J.
BARAN,ANDY H.
BARBARY,MICHELLE D.
BARI,TODD B.
BARR,LISA B.
BASS,DAVID A.
(H) BECKER,MARC A.
BEEMAN,CHARLOTTE E.
BELAND,CARRIE A.
BELLE,LARA C.
BEN ARI,AVIV.
BENNETT,DOROTHY L.
BERG,JACQUELINE O.
BERMAN,MARK R.
BIENIA,MARY R.
(H) BILWAKESH,SHUBHA.
BIJINAS,AMY B.
BLACK,HOWARD P,JR
BLASETTI,TERESA M.
BOGUSZEWSKI,PAULA M.
BOLAND,STEVEN M.
BOOKFOR,ROBYN M.
BORAKS,JEREMY A.
BORDEN,MATTHEW D.
BORST,JEFFREY S.
BOURQUE,MARK J.
(H) BRADLEY,NANCY L.
BRAICA,MARY E.
BROOKMAN,MICHAEL W.
BROWN,GREGORY R.
BROWN,RICHARD G.
BRUNO,DAVID A.
BURCH,ALYSHA L.
BURDULIS,MONICA L.
BURKE,THOMAS J.
BURNS,RONALD O.
BUXTON,ERIC P.
CALCASOLA,RICHARD L.
CALDERON,LUIS F.
CAREY,SHANNON L.
(H) CARPENTER,NEIL P.
CASEY,SUSAN L.
(H) CASTELLANO,DANIEL K.
CAVANAUGH,ALISON.
(H) CEMBURA,SHARLEEN A.
CERRAHOGLU,BURAK.

CHAM,YEESUM.
CHAN,FUNG-YEE CLAUDIA.
(H) CHEETHAM,DAVID S.
CHIANG,CHIA Y.
CHIN,CHRISTINE R.
CHIN,TONY N.
CHIPLE,COLONIE T.
CHIU,ERIC W.
CHOUINARD,PAULINE I.
CHRISTIE,BRIAN A.
CHUI,CHI MING.
CIEPLIK,NATALIE A.
CLARK,ANDREW D.
CLELAND,MELISSA V.
CLINTON,LISL S.
COOK,TIMOTHY E.
CORBIN,GLOMIL M.
CORRIGAN,KEVIN P.
COSTACOU,STAMATINA.
COSTELLO,JOSEPH M.
COTE BRADFORD J.
CRAPSER,REBECCA A.
CROTEAU,BRIAN T.
CUMMINS,AMY L.
CUTTER,CHRISTOPHER O.
DAIGNEAU,MICHAEL F.
DANI,RITESH N.
(H) DANIELSON,THOMAS J.
DAVIS,STEVEN C.
DELLEO,JEFFREY M.
DELOIA,JULIANN.
DEMED,GINA B.
DEVER,SEAN O.
DEVINE,REBECCA F.
DIANA,DAVID M.
DIORIO,PATRICIA A.
DIPIETRANTONIO,BRUNO.
DIROBERTO,MICHELE L.
DONAHUE,MEIGHAN A.
(H) DONARUMA,JOHN J.
DOOLEY,STEVEN F.
DOWD,TRACY L.
DOWLING,GREGORY P.
DOYER,LAURIE B.
DRAGOON,GAILE H.
(H) DUBRULE,MICHELLE M.
DYMENT,MATTHEW J.
ELLIS,LAURIE A.
EPPICH,RHYS A.
ERICKSON,JASON C.
ETTAMARNA,JAMES P.
(H) FABERMAN,STEPHEN H.
FARBER,AMY M.
FIGUEIREDO,JOHN.
FINGER,JEFFREY K.
(H) FINLAYSON,JULIE K.
FITZGIBBON,DIANE M.
(H) FITZPATRICK,TIMOTHY B.
FLETCHER,KRISTIN R.
FLURI,MARY G.
FORBES,MICHAEL J.
FORD,JULIE A.

FOREN,CYNTHIA A.
FORTSCH,KATHLEEN M.
FOTOS,KAREN K.
FRATOLILLO,MATTHEW D.
FRIEDMAN,ERICA G.
FRITTS,CHRISTOPHER M.
(H) FUNG,KAREY ANDRA.
FUREY,ANNE M.
FURLONG,DOUGLAS J.
GELB,JAY H.
GELINA,ANDREW S.
GEORGE,MICHAEL T.
GLAUSER,SAMANTHA H.
GOLDEN,JOSHUA I.
GONTHIER,MARIE A.
GOODMAN,BRIAN P.
GORDON,KEVIN P.
GRAY,JEANNE C.
GREENE,CHARLENE M.
GUARNERA,LAURA M.
GUTHENBERG,KAREN.
HACKERMAN,JASON S.
HADFIELD,HEATHER A.
HAMM,ELIZABETH L.
HAMMER,JEANETTE L.
HAMMOCK,MICHELLE L.
HASHEM,MATTHEW S.
HELD,MARIA S.
HERNANDEZ,CARLOS A.
HIDENATA,NORA.
HIRSCHEN,RICHARD A.
HO,HIU H.
HOFFSTEIN,PHILIP A.
HORKAN,SUSAN J.
HORTON,RICHARD P.
HOVEL,ELIZABETH A.
HOWERTON,RONNY E.
HUDAK,BRENDA A.
HUGO,ANDREW H.
HUI,CHUI F.
(H) HURLEY,SARA E.
HUTCHINS,STEVEN W.
(H) INGLEDUE,JANIS L.
JANSON,ALAN M.
JASEK,ROGER P.
JENSEN,KARIN A.
JEPPE,LYNDA J.
KEEFE,KRISTIN M.
KEELER,JOHN D.
KEENE,STEFAN L.
KELLY,GREGORY M.
KELLY,JOHN R,III
KENNEDY,ALISON.
KEUNG,YUK P.
(H) KHAN,ATIF R.
KIM,JIEUN.
KING,SHANNON.
KINWEEN,KELLY M.
KNELL,PAULA J.
KOZAKEWICZ,MICHAEL L.
KRACHT,TORSTEN M.
(H) KRENDEL,DAVID B.

(H) KUC,MONICA A.
LABONTE,KATHERINE L.
LACOMBE,KELLY A.
LAHNI,KARINA A.
LAWLER,SHELLEY A.
LEE,CECILIA SIU KWAN.
LEE,WENDY S.
LEIFER,SCOTT P.
LESPERANCE,BRETT J.
LEVINE,RACHEL H.
LIANG,KARIN.
LIM,ENG L.
LIM,YEW C.
(H) LINGO,JESSE S.
(H) LIPSKY,TIMOTHY R.
LOHRI,PETER P.
(H) LONG,ELIZABETH A.
(H) LONSKE,JONATHAN W.
LUCEY,JOANN L.
LUVIANO,JOHN J.III
MACDONALD,MICHAELA M.
MACKAY,PATRICIA A.
MACWILLIAMS,HEIDI L.
MAGNUSON,LAURIE K.
MAHONEY,STEPHEN M.
MALAMUT,JODI L.
MARGOLIS,MICHAEL A.
MARLOW,CRAIG D.
MARSHAK,DAVID B.
MARTIN,EARL T.
MATTHEW,THOMAS B.
MAYKOWITZ,CINDY.
MCKIERNAN,KEVIN T.
MCMANUS,CAROLINE M.
MELAVIN,LAUREN A.
MELNICK,MICHAEL D.
MIAN,UMAR J.
MILLER,BRIDGET E.
MILLER,HEATHER C.
(H) MINKOS,JOSEPH M.
MISIASZEK,CASANDRA L.
MITCHELL,STEVEN K.
MODICA,JEFFREY M.
(H) MOGOLESKO,DANIELLE E.
MOK,RITA H.
MOLLENAUER,ELIZABETH C.
MONAGHAN,TARA.
MORGONE,STEPHEN J.
MORRELL,JILL S.
MULLEN,BRIAN O.
MULLEN,KRISTA M.
(H) MURADALI,ZUHARA.
MURPHY,KERRI A.
MURPHY,LANE.
MURRAY,ROBERT S.
MYKONIATIS,GEORGE.
NAUGHTON,KELLI A.
NELSON,KIMBERLY O.
NEYLON,EILEEN C.
NIM,THIN T.
OLIVIERI,DAVID J.
ORENSTEIN,ARI B.

(H) PALIEW,JOSHUA E.
PANZANO,GIULIO A.
PARZIALE,JONATHAN L.
PEREIRA,MELANIE A.
PETRALIA,MARK J.
PINARC,MICHAEL D.
PLACE,ROBIN S.
PODLESNY,JENNIFER A.
POHNER,LAURENCE J,JR
PORSAVAGE,JENNY S.
PUDLO,CRAIG A.
PUOPOLO,MATTHEW T.
PURI,ROHINI.
QUAN,WILLIAM.
QUINT,TAMARA N.
RANKIN,SCOTT M.
REED,JASON G.
(H) RICHARD,GARY J.
RITONDO,CHRISTOPHER T.
ROCHE,LINDA E.
ROGALSKI,JAMES M.
RONAYNE,BRENDAN M.
RONCONE,MICHAEL O.
ROPER,COLLEEN M.
ROSENBAUM,LAURA E.
ROWE,LAURA B.
RUSSO,KAREN E.
RUTHFIELD,MARK G.
SAAD,OMAR R.
SAART,JASON W.
SABER,ERIC O.
SACKS,PAUL M.
SAIN,SAMEER S.
SALINETTI,JEFFREY A.
SCHIFF,IRMA R.
SCHMIDT,EUNICE A.
(H) SCIONTI,JENNIFER L.
SEDELNICK,STACEY L.
SEXTON,ANDREA.
SHEA,CHRISTOPHER D.
SHEEHAN,LORI B.
SHEEHAN,MARK J.
SHELLMER,ELIZABETH E.
SHIELDS,DEREK J.
SHUN,JUDITH T.
SHURTLEFF,JAMES F.
SILVA,LISA M.
SILVERMAN,ADAM K.
SKOLETSKY,LISA B.
(H) SLACK,JULIE E.
SLOTNICK,JOGI L.
SMELSTOR,JOSEPH J,IV
(H) SMITH,MATTHEW E.
SMITH,MICHAEL R.
(H) SNOW,KEVIN G.
SOBIESKI,FRANCIS G.
SOEDA,DEXTER T.
SPACONE,KRISTINA M.
SPARKMAN,DOREEN A.
(H) SPINELLI,JAMES P,JR
(H) ST JEAN,SHAWN K.
STACHOWSKI,JENNIFER M.

STAPEL,MICHELLE E.
STASIO,GEOFFREY.
STEBBINS,KARA J.
STEWART,BENJAMIN M.
STOLFO,JENNENE M.
STORK,RYAN D.
STOWE,DANIEL K.
SULLIVAN,KRISTEN.
SUSANTO,HANDAYA.
SYKES,SCOTT B.
TALBOTT,JAMES P.
THAYER,ROBYN T.
THEA,YOULAING.
THEODORE,MARGARET M.
THOMPSON,VICTORIA B.
TILDEN,PAMELA J.
TIMMINS,PAUL J.
TODD STEPHENS,ALLISON M.
TOLPA,WENDY L.
TOOMEY,KATHLEEN E.
TOWNSEND,PETER S.
TRAN,THANH.
TUFTS,DAMIEN L.
VADGAMA,RAKESH P.
VALUTKEVICH,MARK S.
VILIOTT,ERIC J.
WAGNER,JOHN B.
WAHLSTROM,TODD W.
WALSH,THOMAS C.
WANG,YU CHEN.
WATSON,JENNIFER L.
WEISSLEDER,ADAM D.
WHITE,DAVID C.
WHITE,JONATHAN G.
WHITE,KYLA J.
WIDDISON,PAULA E.
WILLIAMS,LAURA B.
WING,JOANN K.
WIRTJES,JILL S.
WOLCOTT,JENNIFER L.
WOLSTENHOLME,JAMES W.
WONG,WINNIE.
WRIGHT,STEPHANIE C.
WU,ANLI.
WYSOCKI,LAWRENCE J.
YACKER,MARK B.
YIM,IVAN C.
YOUNG,CHRISTINE K.
YOUNG,JASON D.
ZARE,BAHMAN.
ZHANG,JIMIN J.
ZHENG,LING.
ZUMBRUSKI,MICHELLE L.

NURSING

ALLEN,DAVID J.
BAMFORD,CATHERINE B.
BERNARDIN,MICHELLE M.
BRASS,CLAUDIA J.
BROMLEY,TINA M.
CHAIT,ESTEE S.
CHAPMAN-ALDERMAN,SEBRENA.

CHAVARRY,KRISTEN H.
COOPER,JILL S.
(H) CORDWELL,STACEY M.
CORREIA,LOUISE.
COTSOPOIDIS,DEANA M.
CUSHING,MARY R.
DELISA,REBECCA A.

DOYLE,CAROLINE M.
DURMO,SHARYL E.
DUROCHER,COLLEEN M.
(H) FLEMING,ADRIENNE.
(H) GERBER,KRISTIN J.
HANDLEY,BRIAN M.
HARRIS,KERRY M.

HART,CHRISTINE A.
HEIL,JILL E.
IKENBERRY,KELLI M.
JONES,BRENDA K.
KOS,DIANE C.
LAMUSTA,JENNIFER H.
(H) LAUTER,ROSSIE S.

LAVALLEY,WUBIN M.
LEETE,LUCY B.
LOBO,KATHERINE E.
MACNEAL,JON E.
MCCONNELL,CHRISTINA J.
MCKEE,KAREN M.
MCVEIGH,ANN E.

(H) MELIUS,SANDRA K.
MILASZEWSKI,KERRY M.
MOLITO,ERIN N.
MOLLOY,CHRISTINE J.
MORGAN,MEREDITH F.
MOULTON,JENNIFER A.
MUCCI,TAMMY L.

NELSON,JENNIFER L.
OLIVEIRA,LORI A.
OSTERHOUT,JODI L.

PIEROTTI,DANIELLE M.
REARDON,CAITLIN M.
REED,MARY ANN.

RICHARDS,JENNIFER A.
RITTER,KIMBERLY J.
ROSER,JENNIFER I.

SCHULZ,JENNIFER L.
SHEHAN,MELISSA A.
SMITH,LISA M.

SPENCER,SUSAN J.
ST CLAIR,KIMBERLY E.
TALBOT,MAURICE W.

TARANTO,TAMI L.
TEFFT,AMY V.
WOHL,JANICE R.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

AARONSON,TRACEY J.
AMBROSE,RENEE M.
BAUM,ERICA B.
BENOIT,BENJAMIN K.
BORKHUIS,MICHELLE A.
BOUDREAU,JEAN PAUL.
BROWN,TRISTA A.
BURNHAM,ZACHARY D.
CABRALIS,SHERLAN.
CARRON,JAMES R.
CARUSO,DREA.
CELLUCCI,MELISSA M.
CLEMENTE,DIANA.

COURCHAINE,ADAM J.
CURRAN,ELIZABETH A.
CURTIN,PHILIP D.
DEARDORFF,SEAN E.
DERUISSEAU,KEITH C.
DOYLE,CHRISTINE M.
DOYLE,PAUL J.
FARMER,CHRISTOPHER HURLEY.
FINKELMAN,ERICA F.
FITZPATRICK,KIMBERLY A.
FLAHERTY,BRIAN F.
FORFA,EDWARD A.
FOTI,JOHN M.

GILLOGLY,MICHAEL T.
GRAVELLE,DENISE C.
HALLAL,KEITH R.
HANNULA,CINDY A.
HART,TANYA J.
INGRASSIA,KERI L.
JOHNSON,KERRI J.
KALINOWSKI,ELIZABETH A.
KELLER,HEIDI L.
KERMET,STEPHANIE E.
KIERNER,REBECCA L.
KRONFELD,ERICA L.
LAMB,DEBORAH J.

MADDEN,CRISTIN.
MAGUIRE,MELANIE D.
MALDARI,MONICA M.
MANGAN,DOUGLAS B.
MARCANTONIO,ANDREW J.
MARTIN,MELISSA J.
MARTINO,STEPHANIE.
MARYLAND,JULIE A.
MCCABE,JON A.
MICKELSON,LISA J.
MORRIS,BRETT J.
MURPHY,LYNDA T.
MUZA,CHERIE L.

OCALLAGHAN,BRIAN M.
OCONNOR,CHRISTOPHER.
OMALLEY,DANIEL S.
PARIS,STEPHEN D.
PELUSO,JOSEPH R.,JR
PHELAN,KATHERINE E.
REILLY,KATHLEEN M.
ROBERTS,SANDOR M.
ROSEBUSH,CAREY A.
RUSSELL,TAMARA L.
SANPHY,SHERYL L.
SCHILLING,PATRICK J.
SCHWARTZ,ADAM O.
SHPITBOI,WARREN M.

STILLER,SCOTT G.
SYLVANOWICZ,DAVID E.
TOMLINSON,DEREK M.
TRUNK,AMY K.
TWER,JOSEPH R.
WEBB,RUSSELL A.
WICKS,PAMELA L.
WILKINS,PAULA L.

PUBLIC HEALTH

BARKMAN,WENDY L.
BIGELOW,ELIZABETH J.
BRUNIG,DENISE R.
BURKE,CHRISTINE A.
CARTER,FAITH J.
CHMURA,JOANNE M.

CONNELLY,JULIE A.
DUNCAN,SAMANTHA J.
DWINELL,SHANNON M.
GOLA,SARAH A.
HAJJAR,DAVID J.
HASTINGS,SARA E.

HOTZ,KATHERINE G.
(H) JOODIN,JULIE A.
JOHNSTON,HEATHER-ANN C.
(H) KONIECZNY,TERESA A.
LEDOUX,MICHELLE T.
MAHER,WENDY A.

MARREC,JODY L.
MCLAUGHLIN,KELLEY M.
MELLO,JENNIFER J.
METHE,CHERI R.
PALMER,ROBIN E.
PERROTTA,BETH A.

PISANI,SUSAN J.
RAPAGLIA,KRISTIN M.
REMILLARD,PAULA J.
ROY,JENNIFER F.
RUCHALSKI,LYNNE M.
SILVIA,MELISSA L.

(H) SPEICHER,DEBRA J.
(H) STANFORD,EMILY J.
TURGEON,MEREDITH A.
TURNER,CRYSTAL O.
WADEL,CHRISTINE M.
ZABAWA,ANDREA L.

UNIVERSITY WITHOUT WALLS

FLETCHER,TOBIE L.
FOSTER,GERALD L.
HAMPTON,HERMAN E.

JAMAIE,THOMAS V.
KENNEDY,WILLIAM J.
LACASSE,LAURENCE L.

MCCARTHY,PHILIP E,JR
PEED,CAROL A.
POWERS,DAVID S.

SHANLEY FITZSIMMONS,E. GAYLE.
SHRAISON,STEPHEN J.

WHALEN,GERALDINE M.
WIGHTMAN,MARK A.

UNDECLARED

BRAINERD,TATIANA J.
CARLTON,CHRISTOPHER F.
GOLD,EMILY R.
JACKSON,ERIN N.
KREJMAS,GREGORY J.
LAWRENCE,DOUGLASS C.
MATHEW,AJAI.
PARROT,CHRYSAL E.

Hung up

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

(From left to right) Devin DeMarco (Communications/Film, '96), AnneMarie Peavey (Communications, '96) and Jonathan Sayegh (Chinese, '95) hang up advertisements for their respective student clubs.

Prisoner's spirit still strong after 14 years

By KATHY WILHELM
Associated Press

BEIJING — Older, a bit battered in body, unprepared for life on the outside — China's longest-held political prisoner confessed to those weaknesses Monday in his first interviews since his release.

But flashes of irreverent wit and vows of unrepentance showed that Wei Jingsheng's spirit had survived 14 and a half years in the Chinese gulag, most of it in solitary confinement.

"I can't take part in political activity," he said, noting that he was still on parole. "Parole — that's false release," he punned; the first part of the word "parole" sounds the same as "false" in Chinese.

Wei, 43, was released from prison Sept. 14, but instead of coming directly home with police to a guesthouse in the Beijing suburbs.

Confusing signals filtered through his family: first they said he was at the guesthouse of his own choice, then they said he was anxious to come home.

Wei finally returned to his father's small Beijing apartment on Monday evening and began patiently answering the questions of foreign journalists, while dozens of neighbors gathered outside in the darkness to watch the comings and goings.

Yes, Wei insisted, he willingly delayed his homecoming to rest and get used to freedom slowly. Yes, he still stands by his old calls for democracy.

Yes, he supports Beijing's bid to hold the 2000 Olympic Games.

And maybe authorities have used him by releasing just before Thursday's International Olympic Committee vote on the venue for the 2000 Games.

Opponents of Beijing's bid have cited the Communist government's suppression of dissent, and no one symbolized that better than Wei, who was sentenced in 1975 to 15 years in prison because of his essays in favor of multi-party democracy and his criticism of senior leader Deng Xiaoping.

He also was charged with telling military secrets to a foreigner; Wei said the information was widely known.

"I don't know if I've been used," Wei said of the timing of his release, six months before his term would have ended anyway. "But I can tell everyone, I don't like being used by others."

Someone asked, could he have refused to leave prison to avoid that? Wei laughed incredulously.

His sister, Wei Lingling, injected softly, "Anyway, one's happy to be freed anytime." He gave her a smile and agreed.

Wei was not especially famous when he was arrested in 1979, and repeatedly expressed surprise Monday at the excitement caused by his release.

He had been a soldier and then an electrician, and was one of dozens of youths who mimeographed underground political journals in 1978 and posted essays on a Beijing wall that was dubbed Democracy Wall.

But Wei was one of the first to be arrested and imprisoned, acts that shocked Western governments who regarded Deng as a reformer. The forcefulness of Wei's writings and the length of his term made him an international symbol of Chinese yearnings for democracy.

"I have absolutely no regrets," Wei said, even though he said harsh prison conditions caused him to lose more than half his teeth and develop a heart ailment. He said he sometimes feels dizzy and has heart palpitations.

"From the first day I never regretted it. What I did was for the good of the whole nation, the good of the people. I think it was worth it. I was ready to make even greater sacrifices."

Wei said he needs to take stock of the political changes before deciding whether to resume speaking out. Also, he noted, while under parole he is barred from political activities.

- IMPORTANT IMMUNIZATION INFORMATION -

Before you pick up the phone and call us... ...PLEASE READ BELOW

Never received our Health Questionnaire packet in the mail?

If you have not received a Health Questionnaire, you still have 30 days to complete your immunization records. You can pick up the Health Questionnaire form at the University Health Services Medical Records Desk or at the Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00).

How much will it cost? Is it covered by my student insurance?

There is a $20 Nursing fee for these appointments. There is no charge for a Tetanus-Diphtheria booster. If you are a Massachusetts resident, there is no charge for an MMR (Measles, Mumps,& Rubella) booster. Out-of-state residents must pay a charge of $30 for an MMR (Measles, Mumps, & Rubella) booster. Your Basic Health Fee and Supplemental Insurance does not cover the cost of these clinics.

How do I get my immunization record?

You should contact your family doctor, your medical clinic from home, or your high school to complete your missing immunization requirements.

Can I get the needed shots at Health Services?

Health Services will be holding Immunization Clinics on Friday, September 24 and Friday, October 1. To make an appointment, call our main appointment desk at 549-2671 ext. 101 or ext. 102.

Will I be administratively withdrawn or be assessed a late fee?

All entering students must meet the state requirements for immunizations If you remain incomplete after the October 1 Immunization Clinic is held, you will be assessed a late fee fine of $25. Continued non-compliance will prevent you from registering for your next semester classes, and you may face administrative withdrawal from the University after the pre-registration period.

Other questions?

Come in to see us at the Health Services Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00) or call us at 549-2671 ext. 275. Please be patient with the phone...our lines get pretty busy.

University Health Services

Fresh, Always Fresh — HOT MAMA'S — All natural, Naturally

SUPER NATURAL FOODS

NEW!

ULTIMATE BLACK BEAN BURRITO
+
SMOKN'RED BEAN BURRITO

TRY ONE TODAY AT THE PEOPLE'S MARKET
25¢ OFF WITH THIS COUPON
LIMIT ONE PER CUSTOMER

TWISTERS TAVERN — "Where the Music Comes Alive"

MON.	Coming Soon Open Mic Night
TUES.	SETTIE & ORAL GROOVE
WED.	The Crossing & Give Away Night
THURS.	Disco Hell
FRI.	More Dancing w/DJ Bob
SAT.	Mark Thomas & Joy Boyle

Call 253-2663 For More Information

TRY TWISTERS FOR CASUAL DINNER
STARTING AT $4.00

MBTA University takes fast track to education

By JON MARCUS
Associated Press

FRANKLIN — Professor Bob Anzenberger considered it an accomplishment that he didn't fall down in front of his students Monday.

Standing upright was one of the challenges aboard the 7:45 a.m. train as it rolled toward Boston.

"These days, you have to teach people while they're moving," Azenberger confided to his students after warning them about exams, homework and abrupt turns. "But nothing quite prepared me for this."

The class, run jointly by the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority and Dean Junior College in Franklin, is meant for businessmen and women who have no time for a day or evening course.

"I try to use my time productively," said Marie Scalia of Franklin, a mother who works as an executive secretary at the Gillette Co. "You can't get too much more productive than this."

Dean found general support for the idea in a January survey of 300 regular commuters on the route. Responses ranged from "Why didn't somebody think of this before?" to "Leave me alone, it's my only chance to sleep."

Many of those passengers who didn't sign up for the $330, three credit course gawked sleepily Monday at Anzenberger's portable microphone and flip charts and expressed approval.

"We live in a society where every second, unfortunately, is filled," said one, Barbi Pearl of Norwood.

"Who knows, " said Rich Bongiorno, the assistant conductor. "Maybe we'll have MBTA University."

The 10 enrolled students threw their coats into the overhead racks and took out their textbooks, visibly resisting the urge to stare at the scenery that passed at 60 mph. Anzenberger provided outlines to minimize the need for takIng notes. Still, the class was forced to pause about once every nine minutes as the train arrived at stations, and when the conductor bellowed out the names of stops.

The 55 minute course is slated to meet three times a week until Dec. 13. The students do their homework on the ride home. A midterm workshop and final exams will be held at the Dean campus.

Joy Evans, Dean's director of continuing education, said the college has been looking for new markets as the number of traditional students shrinks.

"You need to go where the people are," she said. "I don't think education is behind the ivy walls any longer."

Other schools have taught class on commuter routes. Adelphi University offered a two-year master's degree on Metro North and Long Island Rail Road trains in the New York area between 1971 an 1986, for example.

The students on the 7:45 to Boston said they are seeking the credentials that could help them get ahead in an intensely competitive job market.

"I just want to make sure I'm in line for the promotions that come up," said Denise Auclair of Woonsocket, R.I., who works for the fast growing manufacturer of Samuel Adams Beer.

Mayoral race tightens

Candidates battle to be Boston's boss

By JANET KERLIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — With a tight finish expected, Boston's eight mayoral candidates planned get-out-to-vote drives for Tuesday's nonpartisan preliminary election.

Opinion polls show a two-teir race with four candidates in a virtual dead heat at the top. They are: acting Mayor Tom Menino; Suffolk County Sheriff Bob Rufo; state Rep. James Brett, (D-Dorchester); and City Councilor Rosaria Salerno.

They are followed by Councilor Bruce Bolling, television journalist Christopher Lydon, former Police Commissioner Francis "Mickey" Roache and Republican attorney Diane Moriarty.

The candidates made a last minute pitch for the undecided vote Monday night, giving five-minute speeches at the traditional pre-election rally in the city's Dorchester neighborhood.

Even as he listened to the candidates, 22-year old Graham Morrison said he still hadn't made up his mind.

"I won't know 'til I walk in," said Morrison, who considers himself well-informed. At his job as a Suffolk Superior Court clerk, "We talk politics all day."

Morrison's reaction to their speeches: "I thought they all sounded stupid."

The scene for the rally was outdoors at Adams Corner, where the neighborhood's pubs, hardware store, deli and convenience store were swathed in red, white and blue bunting.

Many in the crowd of 1,500 held political signs for mayoral and city council candidates, making the corner look like a national political convention.

Hoisting his sign for council candidate Richard Ianella above the others, Tim Teehan said, "The competition here is unbelievable."

Theatrics abounded. A wave of Brett supporters walked down a hilly street by candlelight. Four Rufo supporters, each wearing a letter of his name lit up his name in white lights, on their red sweatshirts.

A 20ish looking man in a baseball cap walked around with a tray of baked goods. "Scones," he said. "for Menino," and looking embarrassed, he melted into the crowd.

Finally, Elvis appeared on a rooftop, bearing a Brett sign.

The crowd reveled in the crisp evening air, but the weather was predicted to turn rainy and not top 62 degrees on election day.

"Bad weather is predicted, which will keep folks at home unless a candidate's political organization pulls them out," said George Bachrach, a former state senator and political analyst. "The person best equipped to do that can pull off an upset."

State and local officials were predicting a high turnout despite the weather forecast, due to voter interest in the contest for the seat last held by Raymond Flynn, now U.S. Ambassador to the Vatican.

"I just anticipate that all those political organizations for those candidates will turn out a good number of voters," said John Donovan Sr., the city's chief registrar of votes.

Donovan predicted that 49-to-52 percent of the city's 225,196 registered voters would go to the polls in the election, which will narrow the race for mayor to two candidates.

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

婦女健康討論會

婦女健康協會由關心此事的學生、校園社區成員及校醫院于一九九二年秋成立。其宗旨在于收集有關資料,以了解麻州大學婦女對婦女保健方面的需要,以及校醫院對這些需要的滿足程度。今年該協會將進行大量書面調查,同時還將組織若幹研討小組(專題小組),由文化背景、宗教信仰不同的婦女參加研討。今年秋季將計劃組織總共十個專題研討小組。

組織專題研討小組的目的是收集資料,了解婦女們感到關切的保健事宜,以便定義婦女保健服務項目,取得校醫院提供該種服務的效果的反饋信息。婦女健康協會將利用收集到的資料評估現有的學校婦女保健服務項目,并提出相應建議。

爲了便于翻譯,討論過程要録音。録音將予以嚴格保密。討論中涉及的一切人名翻譯時都將略去。此外,這些討論將得到懂雙語的工作人員的協助。

您的參與對上述研討至爲重要。我們希望您能接受邀請,爲麻州大學婦女保健提供保貴建議。

我們希望能在講中文的婦女討論會上見到您。

時間: 一九九三年九月二十三日,晚六點三十分至八點
地點: North Village Apartments H-2

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

THE WOMENS' HEALTH COMMITTEE WAS ESTABLISHED IN FALL 1992 BY CONCERNED STUDENTS, CAMPUS COMMUNITY MEMBERS AND UHS STAFF TO COLLECT INFORMATION ON THE HEALTH CARE NEEDS OF WOMEN AT UMASS AND THE EXTENT TO WHICH THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE MEETS THOSE NEEDS. SEVERAL SMALL DISCUSSION GROUPS AMONG A WIDE RANGE OF WOMEN FROM VARIOUS CULTURAL AND ETHNIC BACKGROUNDS HAVE BEEN SCHEDULED THIS FALL.

THE FOCUS GROUPS WILL BE AUDIOTAPED FOR TRANSCRIPTION PURPOSES AND KEPT STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. ANY NAMES MENTIONED WILL BE DELETED FROM THE TRANSCRIPT. BILINGUAL MODERATORS WILL ASSIST WITH THE DISCUSSIONS.

PLEASE HELP US CREATE A VISION FOR WOMENS' HEALTH AT UMASS BY ATTENDING THE DISCUSSION FOR CHINESE-SPEAKING WOMEN ON THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 23, 1993, 6:30-8 PM, NORTH VILLAGE APARTMENTS H-2. CALL HEALTH EDUCATION AT 549-2671 EXT. 181 FOR MORE INFO.

REACH FOR THE POWER. TEACH.

UMass Legal Services call for an appointment 545-1995

FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students!

Cash Paid For Books

Top Dollar Paid for Clean Books

- Hardbacks and Paperbacks
- Fiction and Non-Fiction
- Volume Purchasing Quality Paperbacks

Westerns • Science Fiction • Military
Harlequins • Mystery • Non-Fiction

- Libraries & Collections Wanted

Please: No Texts; No Junk
Call: 665-1103

team

continued from page 3

and 11 men - all of whom come from a variety of religious, economic and academic backgrounds.

With a positive nod from both the past and present Chancellors, the team came back to school a week earlier and went through a vigorous training session.

The students were involved with a five day training session that lasted for eight hours a day. These training sessions included three days of conflict resolution and two days of oppression training. Some of the activities ranged from an open discussion about each other's differences, to team building games to establish trust among the students.

"They got tired. It was intensive training," Wing said. "There was a certain comraderie happening."

In order for the mediation team to step in, a conflict has to be referred to the Ombuds office. Then, after both parties agree to be involved, a team of mediators intervene. These confidential sessions will help the disputers reach their own agreement.

The Ombuds staff member will provide supervision to the students, and help assist in the follow-up process.

Tom Coish, is one of those diverse students on the team which ranges from the ages of 19 to 43.

A staff attorney at Legal Services and a UMass graduate student of Labor Studies, Coish became involved with the group because he feels the issues of multicultural and racial conflicts are very big on the UMass campus. He also wanted to get training on how to handle these situations, many of which end up at Legal Services.

He said it was very interesting to go through the training and watch the group evolve into a "true team."

The mediation team will meet every month for follow-up training until the end of the 1994 spring semester, when Ombuds will be looking for more students interested in becoming involved. This two-year experimental pilot project's goal is to have a conflict clinic on the campus, while trying to be pro-active in the community.

The Ombuds Office said they are committed to the prevention of disputes and to the peaceful resolution of conflict.

Are you artistically inclined?

The Collegian's Editorial/Opinion page is looking for cartoonists!

Contact E.C. Thomas at 113 Campus Center for information.

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

TUESDAY
SHARK NIGHT
- Singles Pool Tournament -

- $2.00 Entrance Fee
- Free Pizza Slices
- Play For Cash
- Sign Up: 7:00 - 7:45
- 20 oz. Drafts: 1.95

WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH

University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

haircuts always $10

Bucci
a hair space
25 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST | 256-0733

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.

All Bridgestone Mountain Bikes ON SALE!

MB-4 was $750 now $679.95
MB-6 was $449.95 now $399.95
Road bikes also on sale

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
319 Pleasant St
Northampton
586-3810

TRAVELING?

WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:

- Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
- Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
- Adventure Tours • Language Courses
- International Student & Teacher I.D.
- Work & Study Abroad
- Youth Hostel Memberships
- Car Rental & Leasing
- Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!

FREE "STUDENT TRAVELS" MAGAZINE!

Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

Special student savings right now

With this, you can save for years.

That penny jar on your dresser

With these, you can save right now.

Apple Macintosh Color Classic™ 4/80. Built-in 10" Color Monitor and Apple Keyboard II.

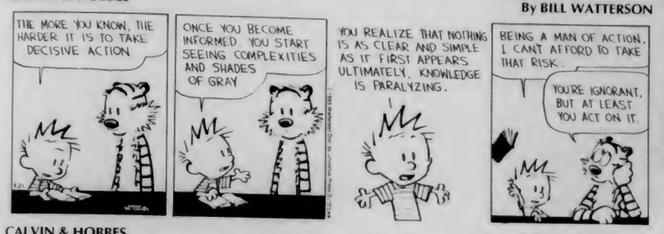
Apple PowerBook™ 145B 4/80. Built-in Keyboard & 10" Backlit Super Twist Monochrome Display.

Apple Macintosh LC III 4/80. Apple Basic Color Monitor and Apple Keyboard II.

Apple Macintosh Centris™ 610 4/80. Apple Basic Color Monitor and Apple Extended Keyboard II.

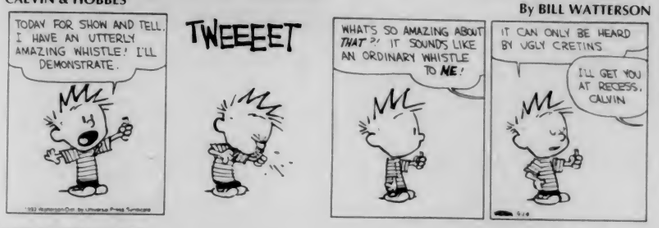
Now, you can get substantial savings on these Macintosh® personal computers. You can also get special student financing with the Apple® Computer Loan℠ — to make owning a Mac® even easier. To see just how affordable a Macintosh can be, visit your Apple Campus Reseller today. And discover the power more college students choose. The power of Macintosh. The power to be your best.®

UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center 545-2619



Visit with Apple Representatives on the concourse Monday Sept. 20 and Tuesday Sept. 21

© 1993 Apple Computer Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Mac, Macintosh and The power to be your best are registered trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. Macintosh Centris and PowerBook are trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. Classic is a registered trademark licensed to Apple Computer Inc.



CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

THE POND By JEREMY THORPE

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Well, the defendant and I had made this deal in which we both prospered....One of those 'you-scratch-me-behind-my-ears-I'll-scratch-you-behind-yours' arrangements."

Quote of the Day

"Would you care for some more couscous?"
– overheard

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Move ahead with a new business idea, you could have competition? Do not be shy about asking for loans, or even a raise. Someone's marriage plans will change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): New understanding between parent and child makes things easier. Dividends come from innovative handling of cash and credit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will be greatly influenced by someone you meet today. Do not give up on an ascension. You could find the financial backing you need while socializing this weekend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Deception is possible. Postpone signing legal papers until you have investigated someone's claims. A long-distance move could enhance a relationship. Romance soars.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Ignore someone who tries to get you angry today. You will gain more by keeping your emotions under control. Your best chance of mending a broken relationship will come in a quiet setting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): By being a bit more adaptable, your life will become far more pleasant. If today is your birthday, do something special to celebrate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Negotiate with important people in person. A creative project will succeed. If you need a financial favor, approach a close friend or longtime neighbor. Stop trying to second guess your partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Romance keeps you guessing. Allow family members more personal freedom. Someone is desperate for your knowledge but may be unwilling to pay for it. Protect your resources.

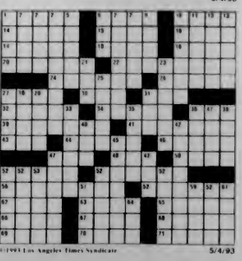
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A mistake you find is so unbelievable you almost laugh about it. You can correct it! When faced with a difficult choice, your intuition tells you exactly what to do. Follow through.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A close friend will do a good deed to make up for recent failure. Look your best tonight. You may prefer hosting a small gathering at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get a golden opportunity to finish some work. Expect a career board and the stars that goes with it. An unscrupulous person may try to use you. Be on your guard.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If you suspect that you are dealing with unreliable people, be assertive. Show more patience with a teenager who is struggling with becoming an adult.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Chico's brother
6 Workers' safety org.
10 Silent one
14 On the qui vive
15 Nearsy bit
16 "Whatever wants..."
17 Hawley — Tariff Act: 1930
18 Actor Neeson
19 Seed covering
20 Football player, at times
22 Extend
24 Trophies, in Devon
26 Descartes et al
27 Long for
30 Mighty weapon, to Bulwer Lytton
31 Davis Cup unit
32 Place for fun in the sun
34 Revoke, as a legacy
36 "— Kapital"
39 Twist
41 Get possession of
43 Draft letters
44 Willing
46 "Age of Bronze" creator
47 Good times
48 Gas Comb. form
50 Shipshape
51 Small plug
54 That identical one
56 Legal document
58 Decanter
62 Having wings
63 Eat
65 Corruptible
66 A Turner
67 Repaid
68 Uneven
69 God of war
70 Formerly, formerly
71 Revenue, in Lille

DOWN
1 Type of fastener
2 — matter
3 Classic cars
4 Lookout
5 Mink's cousin
6 Fuel
7 Subsidy
8 Harkens
9 Powder and shot, for short
10 Red wine
11 Navigational aid
12 Carroll character
13 Soda fountain offerings
21 Van Winkle or Tom
23 Vibration
25 Former Asian pact
27 Rudiments
28 Corp. big wheels
29 Andersen or Brinker
31 Sun exhortation
33 Actor Dennis
35 Rapiers' relatives
36 — ranch
37 "Norma" highlight
38 Dispatched
40 Luxury autos
42 Colleague
45 Prattles
47 Extremists
49 Fun and games Abbr
51 Milan's La —
57 Kind of bear
53 Silly
54 Blood of the gods
55 Wimbledon winner Rod
57 Entr' —
59 Auth. unknown
60 Speedy
61 Rival of S Grant
64 Soaking

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	H	O	P		P	L	A	S	T		B	A	T	H
H	O	B	O		C	O	U	T	H		A	R	I	A
A	V	E	R		D	O	G	A	T		N	E	E	L
R	E	S	T	S		S	U	R	R	D	G	A	T	E
P	R	E	L	U	D	E	S		E	D	O
			A	G	E	N	T	S		D	R	A	W	L
C	O	G	N	A	C		A	M		M	A	N	A
A	I	R	D	R	O	P		S	A	I	L	O	R	S
M	M		P	E	L		I	L	E		K	E	G	S
P	E	N	T	A		A	W	N		N	O	W
			A	R	T		T	E	E	N	I	E	S	T
C	H	I	C	K	A	D	E	E		A	S	T	I	R
H	E	C	K		T	A	R	D	S		T	U	N	E
O	R	E		A	R	A	B	S		O	D	E	A
W	O	R	E		R	E	L	I	E	T		N	E	W

5/4/93

©1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 5/4/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor.....John Winchell
Photo Technician.....Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor.....Michele Bakis
Production.....Mike Carvalho, Sean Ramsey, Susan Nasberg

MENU

LUNCH
Grilled Ham and Cheese Sandwich
BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Cheese on Branola

DINNER
Baked Ziti
Quarter Pound Burger
BASICS DINNER
Vegetable Gumbo Casserole

Sweet shooter

GORDON FENWICK / COLLEGIAN

Freshman Dave Siljanovski of the UMass men's soccer team was named Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week for his performance against Rhode Island. The forward scored a hat trick in the 6-0 victory.

■ soccer

continued from page 20

field hockey ball around as she was at kicking a soccer ball (something she can do equally well with either foot). After Lakeland won the state field hockey championship her senior year, the recruiting process grew interesting.

Michigan called her for field hockey and she almost answered, Cornell wanted her for soccer and there was UMass.

"It was very difficult to choose between the sports," Kocher said. "But I finally decided that I liked soccer best and then I realized I didn't need to go to the Ivy League to get a good education."

Since then Kocher has started every game for Rudy.

"Her freshman year was real solid," Rudy said. "And last season she went from being a solid player to a good player and this season she is even better.

"Right now she is strong in every area of her game," Rudy said. "If we had to play her, we would have to keep her from getting forward. We would have to keep the attack away from her and if she got the ball, we would have to send two people after her, one to just slow her down, before she set up the attack."

Kocher agrees her abilities have improved, "I am a lot more confident. I read the other team much better now. I know when to stop and when to delay and wait for them to make a mistake, instead of making a mistake myself."

Mistakes are part of playing defense in soccer. A defender can dominate an attacker for 89 minutes, but if the forward beats the defender just once a game, it can be the difference between victory and defeat.

"If you let that get to you it can be a mental drain," Kocher said. "It's tough because you can't have a mental lapse, even for just ten seconds."

But what about being a difficult to appreciate defender and never getting the recognition you earn? What about always seeing some shifty goal scorer get all the cheers? If it came down to a national championship game, with UMass playing eight-time defending champion North Carolina, would Kocher rather score the game winning, overtime goal or help pitch a shutout?

"I guess I'd just want to win," she answered. "If (North Carolina Player of the Year) Mia Hamm didn't score because of me, I would be psyched, even if the goal scorer got all of the attention. Even if no one but my teammates realized I played great."

Even if her play is sometimes difficult for even a top coach to appreciate.

Kocher and her teammates can be noticed today on Garber Field at 2 p.m., when they face Temple.

■ beanballs

continued from page 20

the Eagles football team. But enough about Philly, the emphasis here is on what Montreal has done with the questionable talent they have.

Many people, rotissierie fans in particular, will argue about the "stars" that the Expos have, due to a plethora of stats they have run up in past (meaningless) Septembers. They name Larry Walker. Delino DeShields. Marquis Grissom. Moises Alou. Dennis Martinez. John Wetteland.

All of these players have one thing in common: they each have a chink in their armor, whether it be their past, their present or their future. Start with Walker. He never played the game of baseball until he was about 16 years old, and he is still learning.

Although a legitimate power hitter, Walker doesn't strike fear in the hearts of National League pitchers. By comparison, I can think of three Phillies (John Kruk, Darren Daulton, Lenny Dykstra) which opposing pitchers fear more than the Expos' best slugger.

DeShields and Grissom clump together because they came up to the big leagues together. DeShields and Grissom are both players known for pestering opponents with their speed after they get on, and they both get on base a lot. But at a position where cross-country rival Roberto Alomar gets the acclaim and Jose Lind is more well-known than him, you can't say superstar when talking about DeShields.

Moises Alou is the manager's son, another great outfielder the Expos have in their stable. Alou is not one who can turn the divisional chase in Montreal's favor because . . . he broke his leg. Sorry, that's all folks.

Before his rebirth in Montreal, Dennis Martinez was best known in Baltimore as a guy with an alcohol problem and a lot of wasted talent.

Martinez is off the bottle and is a legitimate superstar and a role model in his home country Nicaragua. At the end of his career, he really has done it all. He's thrown a perfect game and has been a consistent winner for at least four years now.

In fact, he sort of reminds me of another right-hander known as much for his personality as his ability. His name was Orel Hershiser and he was the best in baseball in 1988. Both pitchers have the respect of their teammates and their opponents.

Both are mature pitchers who use brains to fool batters, and both are considered their team's leader.

In fact, the Expos are very comparable to the 1988 World Champion Dodgers. Look at the corners of the infield for both teams. Jeff Hamilton and Franklin Stubbs don't ring any bells? Well, Sean Berry and Mike Lansing (at third) and Greg Colbrunn and John Vanderwal (at first) probably won't either.

The Dodgers hit .248 in 1988, while the Expos are at .256 and both teams' ERAs were about a half a run better than their opponents (the Expos are .42 better as of Monday).

Look at the possible matchup. In 1988, many people thought the Mets would carry through to the World Series for the second time in three years. The A's were beginning their own dynasty in the American League.

Today, in the National League division, the Braves look like the pick to repeat and head to the Serie and in the AL we have a defending national champion (Toronto Blue Jays) that shows every sign of repeating in its division. None of these three teams may be in the playoffs, but a message to Toronto and Atlanta: if the time comes, don't overlook these Expos. Don't forget 1988, it was only a few years ago. Besides, Daniel LaRusso proved in The Karate Kid that you don't need two legs to kick butt.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

Every kick. Every shot.
Every foul. Every score.
Collegian Sports is there.
Follow UMass Sports every day in the Collegian.

■ Gaza

continued from page 1

"Arafat does not have much time. He cannot tell people you have to wait five years for a better standard of living. They want it withing six months," Abdul-Shafi said.

From his four-room cement shack in Beach Refugee Camp, 41-year-old Awad Ismael Al-Najjar and 17 family members look over a garbage dump toward the strip of Israeli coast that once belonged to his family.

"What can we get better? At most we will get the charity of a new two-bedroom house," said Al-Najjar, whose 19-year-old son died by blowing himself up outside an Israeli police station last week.

"What I understand from this agreement is that I have no right to get back my land."

The 200,000 Palestinians who fled the 1948 fighting that created Israel have tripled. They make Gaza one of the most densely populated places on earth.

The autonomy agreement says a permanent solution should be found within five years, but the demands of these refugees for their land is likely to never be met.

If Arafat fails to woo them, it could be his downfall and destroy the peace plan. Thus U.S., Israeli and Arab officials have all been stressing the need for generous development aid.

Arafat supporters in Gaza admit it will be hard, especially since the occupation has turned authority into a synonym for evil.

"We have not had our own government or national authority for 5,000 years," said Sami Abu Samhadaneh, the 31-year-old top PLO representative in Gaza.

PLO officials said they will keep order by creating jobs and stressing that the world will judge the Palestinians by their success in Gaza.

IF IT AIN'T BROKE, WE DON'T FIX IT℠
MONRO
MONRO MUFFLER BRAKE
MUFFLERS • BRAKES • SHOCKS • SPRINGS • ALIGNMENTS • TIRES • FRONT WHEEL DRIVE EXPERTS

40,000 Mile Guarantee
All-Season Steel Belted Radial
GRENADIER
$37.95
List $50.95 P155/80 R13
Tough steel belts for strength & control.
Great traction in any weather.

whitewall size	list price	our price
P165/80 R13	53.95	41.95
P175/80 R13	55.95	41.95
P185/80 R13	57.95	43.95
P185/75 R14	58.95	45.95
P195/75 R14	61.95	47.95
P205/75 R14	64.95	49.95
P215/75 R14	68.95	53.95
P205/75 R15	66.95	50.95
P215/75 R15	69.95	54.95
P235/75 R15	76.95	59.95

COUPON SPECIALS!
MONRO MUFFLER/BRAKE
FREE! Brake Inspection & 10% off any brake repair Lifetime guaranteed brake shoes & pads!*
We'll inspect your entire brake system for free! If any repairs are needed, we'll take 10% off our everyday low price. We only make repairs with your permission. The inspection is absolutely free, with no obligation on your part. Not valid with any other offer. *See manager for details.
Coupon valid thru 10/16/93 4614

MONRO MUFFLER/BRAKE
2-Wheel Alignment $23.88*
4-Wheel Alignment $49.88*
*Parts extra if needed. We adjust caster, camber, & toe. Inspect steering & front-end. Available for most vehicles. Please call for appointment.
Coupon valid thru 10/16/93 4615

HADLEY 360 Russell St. 586-0892
NORTHAMPTON 326 King St. 586-3266
CHICOPEE 461 Memorial Dr. 594-9161
WILBRAHAM 1971 Boston Road 543-8027
W. SPRINGFIELD 777 Riverdale St. 739-3860
90 Days same as cash! See store manager for complete details.
HOURS: Mon. Tues. Thur. Fri. 7:30 am - 8:00 pm. Wed. 7:30 am - 6:00 pm. Sat. 7:30 am -4:00 pm

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons – Free – Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

HEY YOU GUYS! UPC Productions has a General Committee Meeting tonight, 9/21 at 6 pm in the Commonwealth Room (Earthfoods). If you love concerts, you'll love us! Come find out about Little Ed, Belly, and Robert Cray. Everyone is welcome!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention: get involvedwith campus health issues and the University Health Center... Stop by the Student Health Advisory Board's next meeting on Wednesday 9/22 at 5pm in room 302 at the Health Center

College Pizza
Open for Lunch
at 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 Toppings Add $1.00
549-6073 549-6098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Pre-Vet AnSci Club
First Meeting
Tue Sept 21 Paige 202
Free Pizza

AUTO FOR SALE

Ford LTD 1984 95K miles $750 582-0477

1982 Toyota Corolla Tercel
Sun roof, hatchback, 5-speed
Many new parts-runs well $700
256-8734

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Aerosmith -Good seats Cheap 1-800-867-2468 Free Delivery

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Brother WP 3400 WordProcessor. Disc Privided. $150 Leave Msg. 546-0301

Bureaus. Beautiful, sturdy Mustsee! $55. 549-4793

Color TV 13" $59 18" $79 BW $25. Student Fridge $39/bo. Reymund 549-6547

Computers. Competitive prices. Assistance/lessons available. 549-6426

DOC Martens
Brown Derby Boots
Size 6 Men (8 women)
Brand new-worn twice
$80 or b/o for more info. 546-0070 Helen

Gift Certificate- for Monro Muffler/Brake. Worth $50, will sell for Best Offer. Fix your Car for Cheep!!! Call Lisa 253-9977. If no one is home leave message with name, number and offer.

GUITAR - stl strg. Washburn acoustic w/case like new $150 James 253-2989

MT. Bike w/ U lock. Good Condition. $100. Leave Msg. 546-0301

100% Pure Cashmere
$95 Shawls, $195 Twin Blankets
$250 Queen 1-800-428-7825 x 303

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

FOR SALE - AUDIO

Stereo Equipment: Used/reconditioned/Guaranteed, area's largest selection. Buy/sell/trade everything from basic to audiophile/professional equipment.
Stereo/Video Exchange 256-0941

FRATERNITY FORUM

Nationally Sponsored Fraternity Fair 11:00 am - 5 pm Hamden Build SW - Campus Pond. Learn what the Greek System offers. Academics, Community Service, Athletics, Social Life, Leadership, Family.

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Att: Excellent Income for home assembly work. Info 1-504-646-1700 Dept. MA-1307

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month +World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling!

1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Housecleaner - Leverett Experienced, References. 548-9688, Cheryl

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals neded for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college-level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information.

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions, great benefits. Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

LOST

Lost my watch at Chucklehead
HELP! Joe 546-4408

MEET THE GREEKS

Open Your Mind -- Dispell the myths about Greek Life
Tue: 7 pm, 8 pm for man, Chadbourne and Field
Wed: 7pm, 8 pm at Coolidge, JQA, Patterson, and Pierpont
BE THERE!!

MOTORCYCLES

1985 Honda Interceptor 700 White-runs strong - $900 b/o 549-4625

Yamaha FZ 600 87
Red/White great shape
asking $1800
Brian 549-5996

PERSONALS

Happy Birthday Melissa
Twenty Years Old
Only one more year
And we can go Uptown!
Love Your Favorite Young Roomate Trace

Valerie Moloney from Chadbourne
Have a terrific semester!

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo 323-9742

SERVICES

Factfinder Custom Library Research. All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

Need a Locker? We have them at OCHO 428 Student Union

SORORITY RUSH

Open Rush Times For Today:
Alpha Chi Omega - 8 pm
Alpha Epsilon Phi - 7-9 pm
Chi Omega - 7-9:30 pm
Delta Zeta - 6-8:00 pm
Iota Gamma Epsilon - 6-8:00 pm
Kappa Kappa Gamma - 5:30 -7pm
Sigma Delta Tau - 7-9 pm
Sigma Kappa - 7 - 9pm
Sigma Sigma Sigma - NO RUSH

TURKISH STUDENTS

Turkish Student Association will hold its first meeting on September 23 at Campus Center Room 803 between 8 pm and 10 pm. All returning and new students welcome!

WANTED

Used,
One-unit
TV
w/
VCR
Please
Call
546-1119

Blindsided with Anthony Guido... coming tomorrow in Collegian Sports

Sports

Kocher a hidden jewel for women's soccer

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Junior Heidi Kocher clears a ball from the Massachusetts defensive end

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Four summers ago, on the sidelines of a regional development camp, University of Massachusetts Coach Jim Rudy pointed out Heidi Kocher, then a high school junior, to a rival coach.

Rudy had noticed Kocher the spring before and was impressed with what he calls her "efficiency of play," one of those difficult to define abilities which Rudy looks for in players. On that sideline Rudy asked the coach what he thought of young Kocher.

"I haven't seen anything out of her yet," the coach said.

Rudy, who was expecting glowing praise, nearly gagged at the proclamation and asked the coach to watch, and watch closely, how Kocher played. Rudy said he'd report back in 15 minutes.

A quarter of an hour later, the coach was a believer.

"Geez Jim, you really do your homework," the coach said. "She's great. She had ten opportunities and came up with the ball ten times."

"It's not homework," Rudy replied. "I just watch closely."

You have to watch closely to realize how good Massachusetts' junior defender is. Kocher's play can be overshadowed and abilities such as "efficiency of play" rarely make either headlines or highlight films, but after 15 minutes of careful viewing, Kocher's play begins to stand out.

"Her play is neither overt nor obvious, it doesn't call a lot of attention to her," Rudy said. "But real aficionados recognize that she is a great player."

Simply put, Kocher does very little wrong out on the field. She does not get faked out. She does not get outmuscled or outrun. She is never outsmarted or outpositioned. She is a defender's defender.

"I love having Heidi out there in front of me," UMass goalkeeper Briana Scurry said. "She is very composed, she sits and waits until the defender makes an error then she pounces on her."

Scurry is quick to mention a moment from UMass' 3-0 victory over Michigan State earlier this season, when Kocher saved a goal and Scurry's shutout.

"The ball was crossed from the right wing and it was behind me," Scurry, who has allowed only one goal all season, said. "This girl was charging to the net and she was in, it was a sure goal, but Heidi read it all the way, used her speed to get back into the play and stepped in front of the girl at the last second to clear the ball. She saved that one."

At Lakeland H.S. in Putnam Valley, N.Y. she was just as good at knocking a

Turn to SOCCER, page 18

Women's X-C off to great start

By DANA ABIZAID
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's cross-country team surged to its first victory of the season over the visiting squads from the University of Connecticut and the University of Maine in Saturday afternoon's meet.

UMass finished with 25 points followed by UConn who amassed 31 points while Maine was totally out of contention with 73 points. Only the Minutewomen and the Lady Huskies placed runners in the top 10 finishers.

The Minutewomen, ranked No. 1 in the Atlantic 10, placed six runners in the top 10. Melissa Langevin, who was named A-10 Rookie of the Week, finished first for UMass and second overall behind Katie O'Toole of UConn.

Kelly Liljeblad finished fourth, Katie Greenia fifth, Kim Liljeblad sixth, Julie Moreau eighth and Jen Waegner 10th for a UMass squad that, according to UMass head coach Julie LaFreniere, can only improve.

"Our co-captains Kelly and Kim Liljeblad are still not at full strength because of injuries," LaFreniere said. "We are not at where we are capable of being, but I am pleased with the team right now. We ran well and we ran hard."

LaFreniere said she was very impressed with Moreau. "Julie ran how she is capable of running," said LaFreniere. "She was very concentrated and focused. That is something we talked about as a team all week."

Greenia, a freshman, ran much faster than LaFreniere anticipated.

"Katie has come along quicker than expected this season," LaFreniere said.

LaFreniere also said she was impressed with Waegner and Kristin Donaldson.

"Kristin had been feeling ill lately but she did a nice job," LaFreniere said. "It has taken Jen over a year to develop but she has made great improvement."

Although UMass was not ranked in the top five by New England Runner magazine, the Minutewomen have already beaten the University of Rhode Island and UConn, who were ranked third and fourth respectively.

"If we can remain healthy and injury-free, the future looks great," LaFreniere said.

The Minutewomen host Boston University, the University of Vermont and the University of New Hampshire this weekend.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The University of Massachusetts women's cross country team won its first home meet of the season over the weekend. The Minutewomen are ranked first in the Atlantic 10.

Expos, Phils in wild grapple for NL East

Michael Morrissey's BEANBALLS

Welcome to Beanballs. The otherwise forgettable movie "Ladybugs," which I saw last Saturday, gave me a great line which I think applies to the Montreal Expos.

"We've got about as much chance of winning as a one-legged man in a butt-kicking contest," was the line, uttered by the inestimable Rodney Dangerfield, but it could have been uttered by anyone in Major League Baseball in assessing the Expos' chances.

Montreal was dead as a doornail (13 games out) at the middle of August, before they reeled off 17 of 19 to close within the Phabulous Phillies. In fact, most people were looking at the St. Louis Cardinals in the second half of the season as the team to challenge Philadelphia.

Well, panic has set in in CheeseSteakVille, with the only thing taking the Phillies off the minds of paranoid fans is the remarkable start of

Turn to BEANBALLS, page 18

Volleyball finding success early

Minutewomen debut tonight in Cage vs. Holy Cross

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

After sweeping a tri-match this past weekend in Hartford, Conn., the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team is poised to bring the excitement of collegiate volleyball back to UMass with its home opener tonight at the Curry Hicks Cage (7 p.m.).

The Minutewomen opened last weekend by defeating Hartford and avenging a decisive 3-0 loss to the Lady Hawks the first game of the season. This time around UMass had the upper hand, defeating Hartford 3-1, faltering only in the third game by blowing a 12-4 lead and dropping the game 15-12.

One standout was Kimberly Mizner who collected a team high 17 kills and 23 digs during the four game match. The team then disposed of the weaker St. Francis of New York with little trouble 15-5, 15-6, and 15-6 for a clean sweep. Dionne Nash contributed to the victory with a powerful consistant attack, collecting 12 kills, putting both Nash and Mizner each above 70 kills for the season (71 and 73 respectively).

While UMass coach Bonnie Kenny said she thinks the team is comprised of a good nucleus of players; according to her, their recent streak of success has been rather "unexpected."

"Emotionally we played extremely well," said Kenny. "We wanted to avenge our loss [to Hartford]."

In addition to the fact that the young team gets a little more seasoned with every game, Susan Maga has returned to the lineup after missing the first three matches. Her help has been valuable to the team, which has put together a string of four consecutive wins.

Without Maga the team, which consists of only eight women, had been having a tough time with their schedule. UMass had to play matches back-to-back with only one substitute. According to Kenny the team is now done with back to back matches, and has only one more tournament so things should be "a little easier."

The Minutewomen host Holy Cross tonight at the Cage in their home opener. Admission is free. Although Kenny has never seen Holy Cross play, from the information she has gathered on them she expects a good match. The team is looking forward to playing in front of a UMass crowd, and is hoping for support from the student body.

"We need support and people to come down to the games," said Nash.

Also looming in the near future for UMass is a big game this weekend when the Minutewomen will face their first Atlantic 10 team, Rhode Island, this weekend at the URI tournament. URI is picked to finish second in the A-10 behind George Wahington according to a coaches poll released before the season began.

While the team's recent success has established that they are capable of winning, the A-10 competition is a step above most of the teams they have faced.

Kenny pointed out that the tournament this weekend tournament will be a "big test" and that it will "put everything into perspective."

UMass professor garners teaching award Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Wednesday
September 21, 1993
69°
Volume CIII Issue 10
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Watch out!

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
More construction, this time in the form of tree removal, outside the campus center.

Clinton signs nat'l service bill

Students able to earn tuition through public service

By ROBERT NAYLOR JR.
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Promising it will help the nation "strengthen the cords that bind us together," President Clinton signed legislation Tuesday allowing students to trade public service work for college tuition money.

The law, a watered down version of Clinton's initial plan, gives as many as 100,000 youths tuition money, modest stipends, health insurance and child care in exchange for community service.

The president, who promised during last year's campaign to press for such a program, said he had "harbored this dream for years." He dubbed the first new program of his administration "AmeriCorps" and appointed Eli Segal, his chief lobbyist for the legislation, as the program's new head.

Clinton used two historic pens to sign the legislation during a carefully choreographed campaign-style rally on the South Lawn of the White House. One was used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to create the Civilian Conservation Corps and the other by President John F. Kennedy to set up the Peace Corps.

He was backed by members of youth conservation groups from Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C.

More than 1,000 people involved in various community service programs crowded under a massive white tent to watch the bill signing. Overhead, gray skies threatened more of the showers that had soaked the nation's capital overnight.

The president received a raucous welcome when he arrived for the rally with a rock band blaring his campaign anthem, "Don't Stop (Thinking About Tomorrow)."

Saying he saw the "wreckage, the insanity, the lost human potential" in the nation's communities while campaigning last year, Clinton expressed hope that AmeriCorps will represent "a series of challenges, to help us rebuild our troubled but wonderful land."

The new law will allow students who complete two years of community service work to earn $4,725 a year to apply toward college tuition or service loans. Participants also would earn living allowances of at least $7,400 a year and health-care and child day care benefits.

The first programs could be up and running by the middle of next year.

The plan allows 20,000 participants in 1994, which is a higher total than ever achieved by the Peace Corps. In the second year, 33,000 students could be involved and by the third year 47,000 would be in the program.

Spending would be limited to $300 million in the first year of the program, $500 million in the second year and $700 million in the final year.

A public corporation with a board of directors will run the program, with the help of new state commissions.

SGA, RSOs in dispute over seats

By DEBORAH WHITE
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association met with members of the University's multicultural community last night to tackle a controversy that has arisen in response to an SGA-initiated proposal for Mission Enhancement funds.

This summer the UMass Board of Trustees approved a suggestion by President Michael Hooker that 2 percent, approximately $4.5 million, be taken out of the total UMass system budget to create a Mission Enhancement Fund. This would be used to fund UMass programs dealing with teaching and learning, issues of multiculturalism, economic development, and situations unique to each individual campus.

On Aug. 28, the SGA began to work on a Registered Student Organization Initiated Diversity and Enrichment Fund. The SGA proposed that approximately $120,000 be put into a fund for multicultural programs. RSOs would have to apply to a student committee to receive money from this fund.

In an early draft of the SGA proposal, this student committee was made up of representatives from various multicultural communities. Tempers flared last week when members of the Jewish and lesbian, gay and bisexual communities learned that their seats on this committee had been eliminated in the final draft of the SGA's proposal.

On Sept. 15, a meeting was held between the SGA and diversity community members. LBGA members said they felt they should be represented on a committee making decisions on multicultural funding.

"It was all a misunderstanding," said SGA member Lynn Robitaille.

"The reason the Jewish and LBGA were not included in the final draft was because the proposal came out of the Office of Third World Affairs, not the SGA," Robitaille said. "It is not the mission of the Office of Third World Affairs to guarantee involvement of any community but the ALANA community."

No compromise was reached in that meeting. The final proposal out of the Office of Third World Affairs was submitted to the Chancellor's Office Sept. 16. That same day, the LBGA submitted a similar proposal to the chancellor with seats for the Jewish and LBG communities. The LBGA also asked that 50 percent of the committee be made up of women and the fund be set up through the Student Activities Organization.

Campus reaction was mixed. The Graduate

Turn to SGA, page 6

Lani Guinier first in diverse ALANA lecture series lineup

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"I am pleased that she has accepted our offer to come up here," said Nelson Acosta, coordinator of the Office of Third World Affairs, about the Sept. 23 visit of Lani Guinier, the University of Pennsylvania law professor who was in the middle of this country's biggest political debate.

Sponsored by the Office of Third World Affairs, this is the first of the ALANA (African-American, Latino, Asian, and Native American students) lecture series this semester.

"It's important to hear her message," said Acosta. "It's important that we get in tune with leaders like her. . . to broaden the possibilities of civil rights in this country."

Guinier first came into the nation's spotlight as President Bill Clinton's nominee for the position of assistant attorney general for civil rights.

She served as special assistant to the Carter Administration's Chief Justice Department's civil rights division and, for seven years was a highly successful litigator for the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund. Guinier was considered by many the most qualified person for the job.

After sharing her views about empowering people of color, Guinier was attacked by conservatives and was unable to react per order of the White House. On June 3, President

Turn to LECTURE, page 2

Former student guilty, to serve life sentence

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Two Latin Kings gang members were sentenced to life in prison without parole after being convicted in the slaying of a 16-year-old Springfield boy who made fun of a gang member's signature beads.

A Hampden Superior Court jury returned the guilty verdicts Tuesday in its second day of deliberations. The jury of seven men and five women was chosen in Lawrence and brought to Springfield for the trial.

Alex Delgado, 22, of New Haven, Conn., was convicted of being an accessory to murder. Prosecutors said he ordered the death of Arnaldo Estaras last September.

Hector Arriaga, 21, of Hartford, Conn., was convicted of first degree murder. Prosecutors charged he shot the boy to death in the North End of Springfield after the victim made derogatory remarks about the colors of the beads worn by Latin Kings members.

[Delgado was a UMass student at the time of his arrest.]

Judge Constance Sweeney issued the mandatory life sentences without parole.

"I think it certainly sends a clear message about gangs, about violence, about people who get involved and injure other people," said William Bennett, District Attorney of Hampden County. "We have to crack down as hard as we can on these gangs."

The trial has "wiped out" the leadership of the Latin Kings in Springfield and Holyoke, Bennett said.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors.....Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor.....Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor.....Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

The man pictured on the front page of yesterday's Collegian was misidentified. He is Reynolds Winslow, president for the Amherst branch of the NAACP.

In yesterday's front page story about the upcoming conference to be held at UMass; the conference is for the five UMass campuses only.

The Collegian regrets the errors.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, September 22

Health Care Watch Party — Anyone interested in learning about health care is invited to join a discussion led by state Sen. Stan Rosenberg and state Rep. Ellen Story at 9 p.m. in the Hatch. The event is sponsored by MassPIRG, University Democrats and Five-College Area organizations.

Study hall — Study hall, with free coffee and tea, will be held tonight in Berkshire and Worcester Dining Commons from 8 to 11 p.m. Housing Services Residential Education and Dining Services sponsor study hall every Sunday through Wednesday.

Thursday, September 23

Meeting — The Wildlife Society is holding its first meeting at 7 p.m. in Holdsworth 203. Everyone is welcome.

Friday, September 24

Service — Kol Nidrei Service will be held at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Service is free, and is sponsored by UMass Hillel.

■ lecture

continued from page 1

Clinton withdrew her nomination.

Acosta said the nation did not get to hear her ideas before making the judgement that she was not qualified. By having her speak at UMass, students and faculty alike are "being given the opportunity to listen to those ideas and to understand what was so controversial with this woman."

The ALANA lecture series will be sponsoring such speakers as the chairman of the Black Caucus, a Japanese man who was an administrator at Yale University and Ben "Nighthorse" Campbell, the first Native American U.S. Senator.

"These will be people that not only ALANA students benefit from, but everyone," explained Acosta.

The Office of Third World Affairs hopes the ALANA series will reach a stronger diversity and will promote a broader range of ideas for the campus community. While doing this, Acosta said he hopes the ALANA community will be able to recognize that it shares common ground.

"A diversity that doesn't put down people of color, but empowers them," Acosta said.

Guinier will speak at the UMass Fine Arts Center on Thursday, Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are free, and available at the FAC box office.

Get Involved!
with campus health issues
SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Meeting: WEDNESDAY, September 22
Where: UHS Room 304
Time: 5:00 - 6:00 P.M.

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Undergraduate Rights & Responsibilities

ATTENTION OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS

The 1993-94 Rights and Responsibilities booklet is now available upon request at the:
Campus Center Information Desk
Dean of Students Office (227 Whitmore)
Information Data Bank (2nd floor lobby Whitmore)

THE BOOKLET INCLUDES INFORMATION ON:
Academic Regulations
Code of Student Conduct
Mediation Program
Sexual Harassment Policy
Grading System
Picketing Code
And much more...

ALL STUDENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR KNOWING THE REGULATIONS AND POLICIES IN THIS BOOKLET

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

What Did You Do Last Winter? This Year... JOIN THE

UMASS SKI CLUB
BE A PART OF THE TRADITION
GENERAL INFORMATION MEETING

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 26
7:00 PM
CAMPUS CENTER RM 163-C

ALL LEVELS OF SKIERS WELCOME!
WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?
JOIN US NOW!

430 Student Union • 545-3437

Local News

Reiner named Mass. Professor of the Year

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Correspondent

Microbiology professor Albey Reiner, who has taught the best-attended course at the University of Massachusetts since 1977, has been named the Massachusetts Professor of the Year by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

Reiner has taught the most popular course on campus, "Biology of Cancer" since 1977, and later introduced AIDS into the course title.

More than 15,000 students have taken the course, and 528 are currently enrolled. Reiner has been teaching at the University since 1971, and received a Distinguished Teaching Award from the University in 1977.

"Albey has a real gift for teaching," said Leonard Norkin, chair of the microbiology department. "He has a sense of how to communicate and affects an enormous amount of students."

Reiner received his bachelor's degree from Princeton University in 1962, his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1964, and his doctorate from Harvard University in 1968.

He also completed post-doctoral work at Hebrew University Medical School and at the University of California at Berkeley. He was a Fulbright Fellow at Oxford University in 1963.

"He can take a complex, complicated subject and narrow it down to the essentials and put it on the students level," said Mary Deane Sorcinelli, director for the Center for Teaching.

"He can take a lecture of 500 students, and make it feel like he is talking to a seminar of 10," Sorcinelli said. "It's nice to have contact with people," Reiner said. "If you have contact with one person or 550 at once, it is a pleasure."

"I like the people out here. I love to teach — it is an emotion that comes from my heart," Reiner said. "It is wonderful to get paid for doing something you love to do."

Reiner is also the dean and the director of the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration program, and has offered workshops with the Cancer Counseling Center of Amherst since 1987.

This summer, Reiner taught middle school students from Springfield and Holyoke in the Summer Science Exploration Program at Hampshire College.

He also conducts seminars on AIDS and cancer for high school biology teachers. When asked where he finds the time for all of his activities, Reiner said, "You always have time to do something you love."

"There is something about him that makes you want to listen," said Tina Stevens, a junior sociology major. "He is very fair, very natural and is always willing to listen to you."

The criteria of the award includes: an extraordinary commitment to teaching; service to the institution and the profession; balance of achievement in teaching, scholarship, evidence of impact and involvement with the students; evidence of achievement by former students and strength and support from current and former students.

"He turns off the lights before every class and lets everyone relax before he begins," said Carrie Riccio, a junior sociology major. "When the lights come up, you are quiet, attentive, and you are waiting to hear him speak."

A little water never hurt anybody

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN
Edison Kim does not shy away from mother nature's attempt to keep students out of Southwest.

Health 101: Clinton plan nets student audience

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

As the country anxiously watches the Clinton administration unveil its health care plan, students will be joining together to discuss the plan and learn more about health care reform.

The University Democrats and MassPIRG are sponsoring a watch on Wednesday in the Hatch at 9 p.m. to help educate students about the effects of health care reform and what Clinton's plan will mean.

"The purpose is to educate students about health care reform," said Elissa Henderson, coordinator of the watch. "It will affect everyone."

Students will watch Clinton's speech on television and afterward will open discussion to questions and observations. Informational hand-outs will be provided, including graphs to illustrate what the Clinton plan will mean and the impact it may have on students' lives.

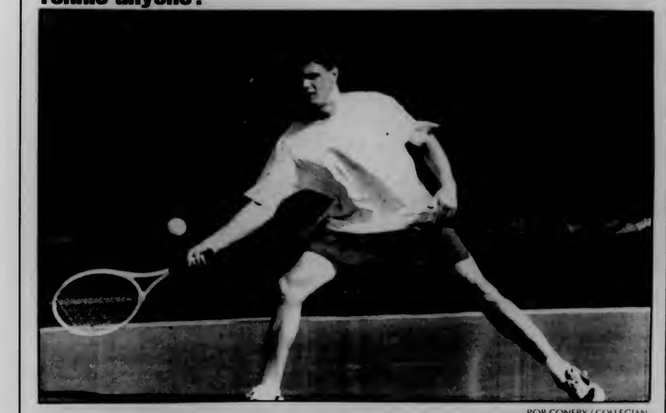
Henderson said the information she obtained to be distributed came from contacting the Democratic National Committee.

Sen. Stan Rosenberg and Rep. Ellen Story will attend the watch and participate in discussion after Clinton's presentation.

Both Rosenberg and Story will be moderators.

Rosenberg has attended similar events sponsored by the University Democrats in the past, and said the club has done "a very good job organizing forums" in previous years.

"It is quite stimulating," he said, to hear students' perspectives and analysis on different issues.



Wellesley, Clark, Northeastern and UMass, the four colleges that form the College Democrats of Massachusetts, will be hosting watches.

Henderson said a member of the Public Health Department or Health Services may be present to further enhance the discussion.

Students of any party affiliation may attend the watch free of charge. Democrats are the sponsor, but Henderson said the event is "nonpartisan."

"Health care reform is everyone's concern," she said.

Tennis anyone?

ROB CONERY / COLLEGIAN
Paul Mertenez takes a swing at the revamped upper tennis courts near Boyden.

Former head of CCEBMS passes away

Everard Osbourne, a retired microcomputer maintenance manager at UMass, died on Saturday at Mercy Hospital.

Osbourne worked at the University for 27 years and previously worked at the Eastern States Farmers Exchange (now known as Agway) before retiring in 1990.

He served as a director for the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and Other Minority Students at the University. He was a member of the UMass and Five-College Credit Union, its loan committee and the Squires.

Osborne was born in Boston, was an Army veteran of World War II, and lived in Springfield for 61 years. He graduated from the High School of Commerce and Springfield Technical Community College.

A worshipper at St. John's Congregational Church, Osborne was a former member of its Excelsior group.

Osborne leaves his wife, the former Phyliss C. King; two sons, Jay and Scott; and a daughter, Hillary; all of Springfield.

The funeral will be held today in St. John's, with the burial at Oak Grove Cemetery.

Contributions can be made to St. John's church or to the American Cancer Society in Holyoke.

TRACY MONAHAN

GREAT BURGERS HOT DOGS SHAKES DRAGON FRIES
FRENCH FRIES PHILLY STEAKS GRINDERS CHICKEN FINGERS FISH ONION RINGS FLOATS
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
QUARTER POUND BURGERS
100 % FRESH LEAN GROUND BEEF
ROUTE 9
RAIL TRAIL
HAMPSHIRE MALL
PETE'S on the Rail Trail the MECCA of the Bike Path
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY
FRIED CLAMS SOFT SERVE SUNDAES FROZEN YOGURT

SGA

continued from page 1

Student Senate officially supported the SGA proposal but strongly recommended that the Jewish and LBGA seats be reinstated. Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Thomas Robinson said Chancellor David Scott was disturbed by the dissention among members of the diversity community, and will allow the SGA more time to work on a proposal.

Manuel Aguilar, public chair of the SGA, said the SGA's original proposal wasn't intentionally exclusive. "The SGA was under strict time constraints," he said. "Now that we have been given more time, the SGA has taken the initiative in setting up a meeting with other RSOs to come up with a unified proposal."

Aguilar also said that last night's meeting was not in response to pressure from the LBGA or administration, but rather to make use of the additional time available. LBGA member Ali Davis said, "As I understand it, the SGA came to us and proposed they amend their original proposal to include the changes suggested by the LBGA and to move the origins of this proposal from the Office of Third World Affairs to the SGA."

A second meeting was held later last night with the SGA and members of concerned RSOs. Facilitated by Javier Cevallos, secretary of the faculty senate, the meeting was intended to create a dialogue between the RSOs involved in the dispute. The meeting was closed to the press.

Robitaille said the earlier meeting would begin a process of forming unity among all concerned members.

"This proposal, as the only student-initiated proposal, could be earth-shattering in its benefits to the RSOs. This meeting could build better relationships between campus communities," she said.

"Tonight's meeting shows genuine interest and inclusiveness on their part," Davis said. "They want to integrate the two propositions for the greater good."

Representatives of UMass Hillel House could not be reached for comment.

SPELL IT OUT
1-800
O-P-E-R
A-T-O-R
There's no lower price for a collect call℠
For long distance calls from public phones.
You don't have to be an Economics major to see that AT&T's new 1 800-OPERATOR service is lower priced than anyone else's standard operator service rates for long distance collect calls. Use it from any phone on or off campus. When you call, just spell it out.
Dial 1 800-OPERATOR (1 800 673-7286).
AT&T
Pending tariff effectiveness. © 1993 AT&T

ONLY 6 YEARS, 3 MONTHS AND 9 DAYS UNTIL THE YEAR 2000
...and you'll still be able to read it in The Collegian.
CELEBRATING 25 YEARS OF DAILY PUBLICATION

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days 8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine Starting at $1
Attendant available all day
326 College St. (Rt. 9) Amherst • 253-5072

Northhampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Why is it 'happy as a clam'? Are clams really happy?

Today's important question is this: How happy is a clam? Or, more precisely: How do we know that clams are actually happy? I think it fair to inform you that, as a highly professional and responsible journalist, I will only explore the most important issues facing modern American society.

Hence, today we will tackle the gravely pertinent "happy as a clam" topic. Please come along and learn. And if you have heart trouble, consider going on an easier ride.

You've said to people, "Oh, I'm happy as a clam." We all have. Be honest about this. But do we know what we're really saying?

My New American Desk Encyclopedia told me this: "CLAM, the general name given to many two-shelled BIVALVE mollusks. Giant clams on coral reefs may reach a diameter of 1.2 meters (4 feet) and weigh .25 tons." That's a LOT of clam, folks. You could have a whole beach party clam-bake with just one of those babies. Of course, you'd need a shovel and a chain saw to serve it to the party-goers. The upshot, however, is that you'd have two excellent snow-sleds for the following winter.

But that's beside the point. What I'm intrigued by is the word "mollusk." It's a delightful word. My Webster's dictionary informs me that a mollusk is "any of a group of invertebrates, as oysters, snails, squids, etc., characterized by a soft body often enclosed in a shell." Okay, knowing this, I suppose I'd be happiest as a clam. Oysters are just plain stinky and disgusting, snails leave slimy trails wherever they go, and if I were a squid I'd constantly be getting stuck in my own suckers and ripping out eyeballs and chunks of skin. So yes, I'd rather be a clam.

Mark Tyler
WENHAM

And think about it: does "happy as a squid" sound better? In the course of casual conversation, I don't think so. Certainly clam is better than a more general "my mother is happy as a mollusk."

But we haven't yet figured out this complex question: Why is someone as happy as a clam? Why not happy as a squirrel? They seem like chipper little guys. In fact, the more I think about clams, the more I'm convinced they're really pretty gross and in no way should represent happiness.

What does a clam have to be happy about, really? They look like big phlegm loogies with a short, hard black straw at one end, and they spend their lives buried in dark, smelly marine muck before they're ruthlessly dug up, thrown in a basket and then dropped in boiling water a few hours later. Then, after being scalded to death, they suffer the final insult of being dipped in a melted stick of cow pus and eaten by people who wash them down with cheap domestic beer.

This is happy?

Okay. What we're beginning to deduce here is that we've been lying to ourselves for many years. The phrase "happy as a clam" is a big crock. Would anyone really want to be happy as a clam? Would you want to spend your life in smelly muck and look like an oozing loogie in a shell?

I may have touched a sore spot for some people with this investigation. If you are one of the people in the world who loves clams and their supposed sense of zen peace, I apologize for ruining your perception of these most misunderstood mollusks.

Now that I've done this complex investigation, I feel that it's actually an insult to tell someone that they're happy as a clam. I'm sorry, but it's a simple natural fact: You can't look like brownish phlegm and be happy.

However, if you tell someone that they look tasty as a clam, that's a different matter entirely because that's a subjective call. Personally, if someone told me that I looked tasty as a clam, I'd give them a good swat to the head. Tell me I look tasty as Cheez Whiz, however, and we've got some sensuous things to discuss.

Mark Tyler Wenham is at UMass student.

LBGA writes second proposal to reflect original understanding

This past July, President Hooker announced the mission enhancement project; a system-wide initiative designed to help compensate for the dramatic budget short fall.

In August, student leaders were informed they could submit mission enhancement proposals to the president's office. Shortly thereafter, the Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance was informed that the SGA was to submit such a proposal.

Originally, LBGA understood that the SGA's proposal included the creation of a multi-cultural committee to oversee the allocation of mission enhancement funds. These funds would be allocated to groups attempting to organize around issues of diversity and pluralism.

The original drafts forwarded to the LBGA and other interested parties gave every indication that this was the case. The original proposal mandated that the committee be composed of several representatives of the ALANA community, the GLB community and the Jewish community. This proposed structure reflected what we understood to be the multi-cultural nature of the initiative.

On September 13, it was brought to the attention of the LBGA, that the structure of the proposed committee had been altered to exclude seats specified for the GLB and Jewish communities. Believing this to be contrary to the interests of multi-culturalism, LBGA began to engage in what would become a series of dialogues with SGA leadership.

Through this series of dialogues, the SGA leadership contended that the proposal was fundamentally an ALANA initiative, and that it had originated in the office of Third World Affairs. This contention alarmed the LBGA Steering committee, considering this was not at all evident during the process. After a contradictory pattern of communication, LBGA was informed that the proposal would be submitted without the seats for the GLB and Jewish communities.

In light of these events, LBGA voted to develop and submit its own mission enhancement proposal, designed to reflect the multi-cultural nature we originally understood to be the purpose of the SGA proposal.

This second proposal is in no way meant to detract from the SGA initiative, but is intended to ensure that all multi-cultural groups, and specifically the GLB and Jewish communities are represented in the mission enhancement process. In addition, the LBGA proposal mandates that fifty percent of the committee must be comprised of women.

The LBGA regrets that this matter could not be resolved in another manner, and has urged the Student Government Leadership to call an immediate forum to discuss the nature of multi-culturalism and the multi-cultural agenda of the student government.

Matt Malone
The LBGA Steering committee

Pageant degrades women

What has 51 heads and gives women scholarship money because they can twirl batons and look sexy in bathing suits? Yep, you got it — the Miss America Pageant.

Every year the Miss America Pageant gives thousands of dollars to college women who display their education in slutty gowns as they sing off-key songs. Hello, as a woman and a college student, I find this very repulsive.

Stacy
MALONE

If these women are college-educated what in the hell are they doing on a stage strutting around to pick up some extra cash for school? Isn't that a form of prostitution?

Let's see, if you're a woman and you have a pretty face, wear a bathing suit, tap dance, and say you will save the world, the Miss America Pageant will give you a few grand? They'll give you money for college if you strip yourself of your self respect and parade around like a sex object on a stage in front of an audience of thousands — how respectable of them!

I've heard the "Well they have to be smart too" argument, but that just doesn't buy me. If they are so smart, they can get a scholarship from an organization which respects women and doesn't degrade them.

The pageant spends more time parading women across the stage in bathing suits than they do asking them intellectual questions. No one cares how a bunch of pretty faces wants to house the homeless and save the world, they want to know their waist and bust size. These women get paid for displaying their bodies. That is Prostitution with a capital P in my book.

The saddest part of all this is that Miss America is supposed to be a role model for young women in America. How did that happen?

Reality check. The Miss America Pageant teaches the wrong values to young women. It tells them their looks are more important than their minds and the more beautiful they are the more they will be respected. Wrong.

The Miss America Pageant's hostess, Kathy Lee, is a role model for young women to respect and idealize? My, that is scary.

Now let's see what lessons Kathy Lee taught the young women of America as the hostess of the Miss America Pageant. She taught them to: change dresses after every commercial, only talk about the ambitions of their husbands, starch their hair, cement their faces with makeup and smile really, really big. That is not what being a woman is all about.

Being a woman is not about how beautiful and fake you can on be the outside, it is about self respect and who you are on the inside.

Stacy Malone is a Collegian columnist.

Ignorance hinders SGA relations

Dominant culture in the United States exhibits racism, sexism and homophobia at both an institutional and a personal level. It perpetrates control by indirectly coercing resisting subaltern communities to conform to its standards of morality and values. This is done by creating conditions in which subaltern communities replicate patterns of oppressive behavior. Examples include widespread racism in the GLB community and homophobia in the ALANA community. Consequently, it becomes almost impossible for the ALANA and GLB communities to have a dialogue, to foster understanding, and build coalitions across lines of race, gender and sexual orientation.

Once again dominant culture succeeds by employing the age-old concept of "divide and conquer." In the meantime, those who are straddling both identities, namely people of color who are gay, are left out in the cold, forced to choose between competing identities.

Disappointingly, the University seems to be a microcosm of the macrocosm, for the SGA [Mission Enhancement] proposal, though well thought out, omits seats for members of the GLB and Jewish communities. As educators of this campus, we believe that funding events sponsored by cultural RSOs is an important educative experience, often more effective than the intellectual abstraction of the classroom. Sexual orientation and religious background are important components of culture. A truly multicultural proposal should include representatives from the GLB and Jewish communities. Furthermore, there are 10 percent ALANA students on this campus of which theoretically 10 percent should be gay, lesbian or bisexual. This means there are almost 200 GLB students of color.

It has been suggested that the SGA designate seats for GLB students from the ALANA community. This provides institutional recognition for those whose dual identities have been effectively ignored by both the GLB and ALANA communities. Furthermore, it places the burden on both communities to rectify their past denial and actively seek out GLB students of color.

We urge the SGA to include seats for the Jewish community and GLB students of color, and hope the administration supports their worthy effort.

Shyamala Ivatury, President
Graduate Student Senate

ESPN

continued from page 12

midnight on a Sunday, that might mean 10,000 students and that's difficult with only 17,000 on campus," he added. "UMass has a reputation of having one of the finest basketball crowds in the nation and we need that reputation fulfilled."

It was less than three years ago that ESPN first broadcast UMass basketball at a midnight game from the boisterous Curry Hicks Cage. Now the network is coming to show the Minutemen just practice, something which is not lost on Calipari.

"This is a big deal, a great opportunity for us," he said. "It shows that although we might not be at North Carolina's or Kentucky's level right now, we aren't far behind and we're fighting to get there."

The Minutemen were 24-7 last season and captured their second straight Atlantic 10 Championship before being eliminated in the second round of the NCAA Tournament.

The Collegian
your daily source for News, Sports, Arts and Editorials.

Mental Health Groups
Fall 1993

The following groups will be offered by the Mental Health Division of UHS this Fall:

- Adult Children of Alcoholics: Tuesdays 3:30-5
  8 week structured support group. Begins mid-October.
  Pre-group interview required.
- Feeding the Hungry Self: Tuesdays 3:30-5
  Support/therapy group for women with disordered eating.
  Women can make either a semester or year-long commitment.
  Pre-group interview required.
- Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Support Group: Tuesdays 3:30-4:45
  On-going, drop-in group. No pre-group interview. Group begins October 5. Check-in at 127 Hills North on day of the group.
- Self-Esteem Group: Wednesdays 3:30-5
  10 week structured group. Begins early October.
  Pre-group interview required.
- Panic Disorder Group: Thursdays 3:30-5
  6 week structured group. Begins mid-October.
  Pre-group interview required.

For further information about all the groups or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

The leaves they are a changin'

Have you wished someone a happy first day of autumn yet?

Correction for DEANS LIST 9/21/93

DEANS LIST INFO

The Deans List was based on grades received by Aug. 10, 1993. If you had a grade change after that date (including making up an "Incomplete" or had a missing or late grade recorded after that date), and believe you now qualify for Deans List status, please fill out a form available at the Information Data Bank, 2nd floor lobby counter, Whitmore, attach verification, and return the form as indicated.

Tell your parents you need to expand your horizons
by sensitizing yourself to the myths, mores and history of a culture foreign to your own.

(By the time they figure out what's up, you'll already be there.)

Next semester, get out of town with Beaver College. You can intern in London, ponder Peace Studies in Austria, cycle to class in Oxford or sun yourself in Mexico (while studying Spanish, of course). You can even linger at a cafe in Vienna or tour a Greek isle. We also have a wide variety of integrated university programs in the U.K. and Ireland. For over 30 years Beaver has been sending students abroad for the experience of their life. Now it's time for yours. Call us today for more information.

Study Abroad with Beaver College.
1.800.755.5607

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Northhampton Bowl
College Night

Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Arts & Living

Film Society to hold initial meeting tonight

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Do you remember the last time you suffered an insatiable craving to see some obscure or favorite film and just couldn't seem to find it?

Maybe you were in the mood for something a bit off the beaten track, a foreign or student-produced flick that, to your artistic dismay, never materialized. If you are feeling glum at the simple recollection of this fruitless search, the University Film Society promises an end to the drought of quality reelage in the valley.

Just barely a week-old registered student organization, the University Film Society is setting forth to accommodate students in four ways, according to Society secretary Drew Tolman.

The first of the group's tasks is to promote and support student-produced films, to display a wealth of local talent.

The film society will also serve as a resource for film-related opportunities on campus, to offer academic and extracurricular support, share information concerning internships in the industry, and to promote films being shown around town.

Tolman and her cohorts also hope to present screenings of obscure, "artsy" movies that may lie just outside of mainstream viewing. The organization will also show popular, well-known flicks for fund-raising purposes.

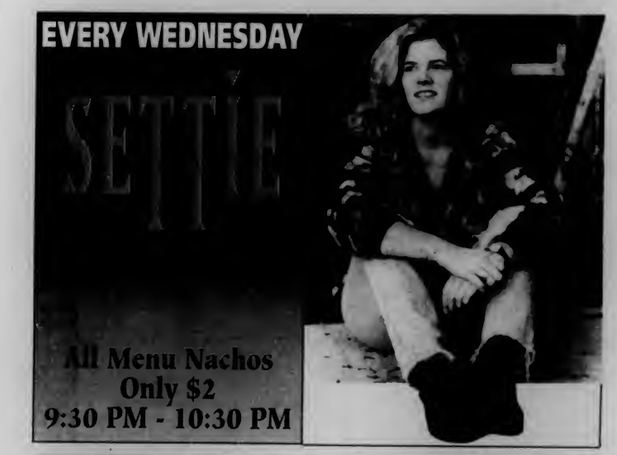
Finally, the University Film Society will sponsor field trips to local theatres and film festivals in Boston and nearby locations, as well as film archival museums like that of Harvard University.

The film society was created last spring by a group of students who saw a great need for more publicity for the thriving film culture in the valley that was active yet hidden. UMass graduate Joyce Lannon started with the idea that an organization for students interested in all aspects of film would help to develop and publicize the many resources available.

"Does anybody even know that there is a film class in the German Department," Tolman says, "or that the New England Film Festival is organized here?"

Whatever your preference, the University Film Society is sure to present a world of famous one-liners, heart-wrenching love scenes, hair-raising surprises and bizarre twists that draw us to the theatre or plop us in front of the VCR time after time.

The University Film Society will hold a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in room 811, Campus Center. For more information contact Drew Tolman 549-2978.



Mike's Westview
This Week's Guest Bartenders Are:
SUSAN HUBBARD & SHERRY DEMETRI
YOU COULD WIN
• $25 gift Certificate to Mike's •
• $15 gift certificate to Big Guy Liquors •
• A Large pizza from Pinocchios •
• 2 week membership to the gym •
KEEP YOUR TIPS
Thursday is KILLIAN'S NIGHT - Pints $1.75
Drink of the Week:
Vodka & Grapefruit Juice – $1.75
& MGD Bottles – $1.25
FREE HATS, T-SHIRTS, & CD'S

Recycle this Collegian.

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

The Collegian
is always looking for new writers!
Contact one of our Editors to get involved.
Women's Issues • News • Arts & Living • Sports • Black Affars • Multicultural Affairs • Third World Affairs • Editorial/Opinion • Jewish Affairs • GLB Issues

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
All Bridgestone Mountain Bikes ON SALE!
MB-4 was $750 now $679.95
MB-6 was $449.95 now $399.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
319 Pleasant St
Northampton
586-3810

THE 25 YEARS PUB
CELEBRATES 1968 • 1993 IN·AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St Northampton, MA 584-2232
50 Congress St Boston, MA (617)722-0043
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...
$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.
220 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 01002
413-253-2543

New self-whelp book uses inventive satire

The fast track is great for the greyhound. But what of the basset?

COURTESY TIMES BOOKS

Illustrations by New Yorker artist Daniel Shanahan dot the pages of Heeling your Inner Dog.

By JEDEDIAH CURTIS
Collegian Correspondent

Heeling your Inner Dog
Nicole Gregory & Judith Stone
Times Books

If your Inner Dog is wounded, heel yourself. With the help of a new book called Heeling Your Inner Dog, by Nicole Gregory and Judith Stone, it's easier than you think. No matter if the pain you're feeling is the result of an overbearing mother, a negligent father, or just a cruel, cold world, this book will help make you feel bright-eyed and bushy-tailed.

You'll be happy to hear that this work meets with the approval of the estimable literary critics Penn and Teller, who endorse it on the back cover. And if reading isn't quite your thing, you can just look at the pictures; they're the charming work of Daniel Shanahan of the New Yorker.

The premise of Heeling Your Inner Dog is that every one of us has our own Inner Dog who needs to be treated with love and compassion if we are to reach our potential for happiness. According to the authors, this Inner Dog should be consulted before making a decision of any kind.

For example, the book offers this advice: "Before you make a purchase at a store, look carefully at the portrait of your Inner Dog. Ask yourself, 'Does my Inner Dog really need these items?' If not, resolve to meet its real needs — for food, a nap, a bath, a hug, some validation. Leave the items and walk away. Explain to the salesperson and any annoyed customers behind you, 'Sorry, I changed my mind. My Dog needs nurturing, and you can't help.'"

While this book is cleverly written, and often amusing, it grows tiring quickly. You can only read so many puns on the word "dog" before you lose interest.

Heeling Your Inner Dog is a great parody of the slew of self-help books that have cropped up recently, but it's not worth its $12 price tag. Of course, the customers who it may very well attract are those former yuppies who helped to start the self-help craze in the first place.

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY. BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

TIME OUT

Bud Night Tonight

FREE HATS, T-SHIRTS, ETC.
ALSO, BUD BOOM BOX
WILL BE GIVEN AWAY!

Get Here Early!

37 N. Pleasant St.

Harness the power of the written word.
Write for the Collegian.
113 Campus Center
545-0719

Northampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Auditions For
Not Ready For Bedtime Players
September 22 1993
8:30 PM
Campus Center Rm. 803
For more information call the Health Education Division and ask for Nancy 549-2671 x181.

Ennave BreathWorks
BreathingSpace
Join us for an introduction to rebirthing. We will use our breath to reduce stress, release judgements of ourselves and others, and to experience our true nature, which is joy and love.
7-9 PM Tuesdays
Begins September 28, 1993
Amherst, Massachusetts
with David P. Carney, M.S.W.
Donations welcome. Attend any class or weekly. Individual and couples Breathworks sessions are also available by appointment. Please call for further information and directions. 413/253-2902.

COMPUTERS
Recycled for our times.
Hundreds Available
Warranteed
IBM Brand
Model AT 286 2MB Ram. 52 MB Drive. 14" Color Monitor. Keyboard - $550
Model AT 286 1MB Ram. 20 MB Drive. 14" Color Monitor. Keyboard - $395
Model XT 8088 640K Ram. 10 MB Drive. 14" Color Monitor. Keyboard - $310
Model 3270 8088 640K Ram. 10 MB Drive 14" Color Monitor. Keyboard - $275
Rentals Available Printers from $95
Call 253-7510

THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
Hours: MON-WED 5-1 Thurs-Sunday 1:30-1
Every Monday — GRATEFUL DEAD NIGHT! No Cover-$4.00 Rolling Rock Pitchers-Bands,Tapes
Every Wednesday — GAY NIGHT! The Area's ONLY 18+ Gay Night-No Covers/College ID (21+)
Every Thursday — UMASS NIGHT! No Cover w/UMASS ID. Great Drink Specials. Come experience 7000 watts of High Energy Dance Music
Every Saturday — The Area's Biggest Dance Night Come Party with 6000 of your Closest Friends!! Come Early to Avoid the Lines!! Cheap Drinks!!
Live Performances
Sept. 24 Operation Mindcrime Queensryche Tribute
Oct. 10 Brother Cane
Oct. 22 John Valby-Dr. DIRTY
Oct. 31 Halloween ThrashBash III with PRO-PAIN
• 18+ Always
• 3 Minutes from UMASS
• Call to book your team/organization's/private party! Halloween or XMass. We can hold over 600 people in the club.
• We are looking for UMASS Bands to participate in a National Showcase Competition.
Rt. 9 Hadley • 413-586-4463 • Ticketmaster

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

婦女健康討論會

婦女健康協會由關心此事的學生、校園社區成員及校醫院于一九九二年秋成立。其宗旨在于收集有關資料,以了解麻州大學婦女對婦女保健方面的需要,以及校醫院對這些需要的滿足程度。今年該協會將進行大量面面調查,同時還將組織若幹研討小組(專題小組),由文化背景、宗教信仰不同的婦女參加研討。今年秋季將計劃組織總共十個專題研討小組。

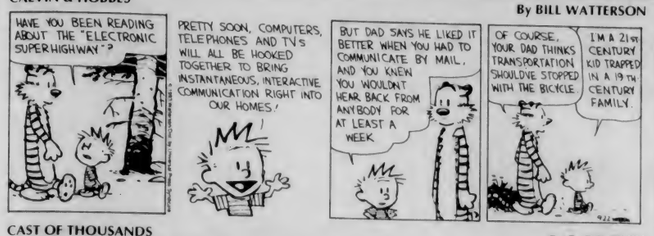
組織專題研討小組的目的是收集資料,了解婦女們感到關切的保健事宜,以便定義婦女保健服務項目,取得校醫院提供該種服務的效果的反饋信息。婦女健康協會將利用收集到的資料評估現有的學校婦女保健服務項目,并提出相應建議。

爲了便于翻譯,討論過程要録音。録音將予以嚴格保密。討論中涉及的一切人名翻譯時都將略去。此外,這些討論將得到懂雙語的工作人員的協助。

您的參與對上述研討至爲重要。我們希望您能接受邀請,爲麻州大學婦女保健提供保貴建議。

我們希望能在講中文的婦女討論會上見到您。

時間: 一九九三年九月二十三日,晚六點三十分至八點
地點: North Village Apartments H-2



WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

THE WOMENS' HEALTH COMMITTEE WAS ESTABLISHED IN FALL 1992 BY CONCERNED STUDENTS, CAMPUS COMMUNITY MEMBERS AND UHS STAFF TO COLLECT INFORMATION ON THE HEALTH CARE NEEDS OF WOMEN AT UMASS AND THE EXTENT TO WHICH THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE MEETS THOSE NEEDS. SEVERAL SMALL DISCUSSION GROUPS AMONG A WIDE RANGE OF WOMEN FROM VARIOUS CULTURAL AND ETHNIC BACKGROUNDS HAVE BEEN SCHEDULED THIS FALL.

THE FOCUS GROUPS WILL BE AUDIOTAPED FOR TRANSCRIPTION PURPOSES AND KEPT STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. ANY NAMES MENTIONED WILL BE DELETED FROM THE TRANSCRIPT. BILINGUAL MODERATORS WILL ASSIST WITH THE DISCUSSIONS.

PLEASE HELP US CREATE A VISION FOR WOMENS' HEALTH AT UMASS BY ATTENDING THE DISCUSSION FOR CHINESE-SPEAKING WOMEN ON THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 23, 1993, 6:30-8 PM, NORTH VILLAGE APARTMENTS H-2. CALL HEALTH EDUCATION AT 549-2671 EXT. 181 FOR MORE INFO.

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

CAST OF THOUSANDS — By B. DEUTSCH

VIRTUAL REALITY — By MARK WARNAT

VIRTUAL REALITY — By MARK WARNAT

THE POND — By JEREMY THORPE

DR. SCIENTIFIC — By BEN COURTNEY

AND NOW FOR SOMETHING COMPLETELY STUPID — By TROY L. MERRICK

Quote of the Day

"There's no such thing as bad boys, just boys with bad haircuts."

– Sam Malone

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be affectionate. Showing more sensitivity to a loved one's needs is the key to happiness this weekend. Take a list when going shopping or you could return home with "bargains" you do not need.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Not a good time to act impulsively. Learn the difference between true love and infatuation. The great outdoors beckons this afternoon. A picnic or swim enhances romance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Outdoor activities such as fishing and backpacking hold much appeal this weekend. Try to get more exercise. A clouded mind could send a thoughtless one the window.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can solve a problem if you really want to. Make intelligent conversation and let family members do things at their own pace. Keep your political opinions to yourself at social gatherings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take the lead where domestic issues are concerned. Do not pass up an opportunity to bring family members closer together. Only communication improves, nastiness will subside.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Words of love bring joy to a sorrowing heart. Sports activity or home entertainment inspires cheerful conversation. The mail brings good career news.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An attempt to sweep a problem under the rug will backfire. Brainstorm a solution with close chums rather than try to tidy solo. Entertaining at home will regenerate some important relationships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Trust your ear for bargains. Resisting your "wish list" could lead to an exciting revelation. Break five-year-old habits and learn. Laughter and song will boost your mood overnight.

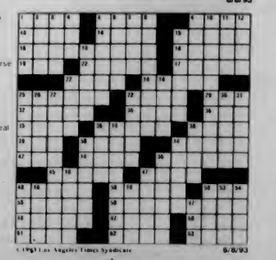
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are gifted at bringing talented or animated people together. Use your special contacts to help someone influential. A unsatisfactory romantic situation starts to improve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A routine journey could turn out to be a trip down lover's lane. Be careful not to go overboard when you meet an attractive newcomer. You need some time to get acquainted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You radiate a special glow that other people cannot resist. In your mind, you know what is right. Someone who is sympathetic to your plans helps you reach a long-sought goal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Rest and relaxation will let you recharge your batteries. Don't overwhelm yourself by seeking disappears. Go ahead and start a challenging project.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Famous — cookie maker
5 Apparel
9 Open
13 Highway unit
14 Cosmetic ingredient
15 — and tau-a
16 Corn/bean mixture
18 Heavens
19 Pindar poem
20 Savoir-faire
21 Minister's house
22 Farm building
23 Grieve
25 Designers' identifications
28 Fly like an eagle
29 Sweet potato
32 Book of maps
33 Lawyers: Abbr
34 — Magnon
35 Fight
36 Spas
38 Engine parts
39 Dollar bill
40 Routine
41 Sott drinks
42 Confederate soldier, for short
43 Road sign
44 Avid
45 Comic or horse
47 "— in full"
48 Ultimate
50 Boorish
52 Forlorn
55 — Oakley tree pass
56 Fried cornmeal cake
58 Fad
59 Italian noble family
60 Manuscript enclosure: Abbr.
61 Tennis divisions
62 Sandra and Ruby
63 God of love

DOWN
1 Too
2 Tennyson poem
3 "— upon a time..."
4 Dry, as wine
5 Crocs
6 French actor Delon
7 Singer Diana
8 Giant
9 Sacred table
10 Cornmeal bread
11 God of war
12 Seldom seen
15 Thighbones
17 October birthstone
22 "— the Clock"
24 Mare's morsels
25 Toil
26 Make good
27 Texas's state flower
28 Satisfies
30 Provided weapons
31 Like a forest carpet
36 Wild pig
37 Fastened
38 Certain student
40 Dad a Scottish dance
41 Brittle
44 Incisions
46 Twinges
47 Glue
48 Singer Domino
49 Concerning Lat.
51 Hoax
52 Box
53 Lhasa —
54 Tints
57 Hire

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	H	A	R	E	F	O	N	D	L	A	C	E
L	A	R	R	Y	O	H	I	O	I	M	A	M
A	R	I	S	E	C	O	L	U	M	B	I	A
W	E	B	S	H	A	M	B	A	R	T	O	N
		V	I	S	T	A		S	T	A	T	E
G	A	R	A	G	E	I	C	E
L	O	A	T	H	A	N	O	N	Y	E	L	P
A	M	E	N	D	S	T	U	D	A	M	U	E
R	E	T	S		P	I	E	R		R	E	G	A	L
		T	R	U	E	R		R	A	G	O	U	T
A	P	E	A	L	S		C	A	P	O		P	E	G
T	O	R	M	E	N	T	O	R		H	E	I	D	I
O	N	C	E		C	O	V	E		O	P	E	N	S
R	E	E	D		L	E	W	E	S		S	A	D	A

8/8/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Sean Hayden
Copy Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Photo Technician.....Matt Simoneau
Production Supervisor.....Jim Ganley
Production.....Michael Harris, Sarah Davis

MENU

LUNCH
Bagel Dog
Fishburger

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Chille
Fishburger

DINNER
Savory Baked Chicken
Beef Bourguignon

BASICS DINNER
Korean BBQ Tofu
Savory Baked Chicken

minutemen

continued from page 12

conference is St. Joseph's, according to Koch. The Hawks are 0-1 in the A-10, but are 4-2-1 overall.

Massachusetts, with a 1-0 conference record, is in second behind its opponent on Saturday here at Richard F. Garber Field, Rutgers University (2-0 A-10, 4-1 overall).

Rose

continued from page 12

UMass. She spent three weeks this summer touring South Africa with the Senior England team. After a one-week break, she rejoined the team to compete in Amsterdam for the Champions Trophy.

Rose's summer experience with the national team makes her a likely member of the Great Britain team at the 1994 World Cup in Dublin, Ireland.

"Hilary understands defense and the mechanics of her position. The kids have confidence in her," said Hixon. "When you have confidence in your goalie, you can mark tight and play an aggressive kind of defense."

Rose and the Minutewomen take their three-game winning streak to New Haven, Conn., this afternoon to battle the Elis of Yale.

WIN FREE TUITION!!!!

for

Spring 1994 Semester

Tuition Scholarship Raffle

sponsored by

The University of Massachusetts

STudent Alumni Relations Society

(STARS)

The winning ticket will be drawn at Homecoming Saturday, October 23

All proceeds to benefit the activities and programs of the STudent Alumni Relations Society

Tickets $5.00 each Winner Need Not be Present to Win

Tickets on Sale in The Alumni Office
First Floor, Memorial Hall
Now through October 23

Raffle open to current undergraduates only. There will be no outright cash award; credit for Spring 1994 tuition and fees will be awarded to a maximum of $5,000. If you receive Financial Aid, this credit will be factored into your award.

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖

The Best Chinese Buffet

MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE

WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY

Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!

No. 2 No. 2

NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS

☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.

Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR
1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets

Charlie's tavern AMHERST, MASS. since 1978

This Week Drink Specials

Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95

Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight

1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family

Wednesday - October 6
6 p.m.-8 p.m.
UHS - Room 304

I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?

I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?

I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?

If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.

For more information, please call
549-2671, Clinic IV - ext. 233 or 234.

TEST YOUR DETECTOR

A Sound You Can Live With!

National Fire Protection Association

NFPA

- IMPORTANT IMMUNIZATION INFORMATION -

Before you pick up the phone and call us...
...PLEASE READ BELOW

Never received our Health Questionnaire packet in the mail?

If you have not received a Health Questionnaire, you still have 30 days to complete your immunization records. You can pick up the Health Questionnaire form at the University Health Services Medical Records Desk or at the Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00).

How much will it cost? Is it covered by my student insurance?

There is a $20 Nursing fee for these appointments. There is no charge for a Tetanus-Diphtheria booster. If you are a Massachusetts resident, there is no charge for an MMR (Measles, Mumps,& Rubella) booster. Out-of-state residents must pay a charge of $30 for an MMR (Measles, Mumps, & Rubella) booster. Your Basic Health Fee and Supplemental Insurance does not cover the cost of these clinics.

How do I get my immunization record?

You should contact your family doctor, your medical clinic from home, or your high school to complete your missing immunization requirements.

Can I get the needed shots at Health Services?

Health Services will be holding Immunization Clinics on Friday, September 24 and Friday, October 1. To make an appointment, call our main appointment desk at 549-2671 ext. 101 or ext. 102.

Will I be administratively withdrawn or be assessed a late fee?

All entering students must meet the state requirements for immunizations If you remain incomplete after the October 1 Immunization Clinic is held, you will be assessed a late fee fine of $25. Continued non-compliance will prevent you from registering for your next semester classes, and you may face administrative withdrawal from the University after the pre-registration period.

Other questions?

Come in to see us at the Health Services Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00) or call us at 549-2671 ext. 275. Please be patient with the phone...our lines get pretty busy.

University Health Services

gridiron

continued from page 12

First of all, down in Gator country, Florida was able to outlast Tennessee 41-34 behind Rhett. Volunteers' QB Heath Shuler is simply incredible. He may end up being the best complete quarterback in the land by the end of the season. Florida has never lost a home game under Steve Spurrier.

Out at Stanford, the Cardinal put together an unbelievable comeback against favored Colorado. The heartless Buffs folded in the fourth quarter as Cardinal QB Steve Stenstrom gunned them down with two late touchdowns, 41-37. Coach Bill Walsh has a knack for the dramatic comeback; ask Lou Holtz about that. I'm sure the Irish haven't forgotten last year and they come calling Oct. 2. Go Stanford.

Syracuse can't possibly be serious. The Orange complain all week about their low ranking (meaningless at this point) and then go out and tie unranked Texas. Overrated Marvin Graves should worry about wins, being he deserves no shot at the Heisman.

Good-bye Boston College, it was nice having you around. Maybe the basketball team will be better, right.

As for this week, look for a reeling Colorado team to be mauled by Miami, as the Hurricanes sweep through Boulder. An angry Michigan team will try to rack up 70 points on Houston, they do have the weapons.

One of them is Tyrone Wheatley and he is my front runner for the Heisman trophy. Wheatley can do it all; he may be a tougher and more complete version of Rocket Ismail. Shuler and Rhett may be better pros than both Wheatley and Ward. However, if Charlie Ward has FSU undefeated, he will win it. Ask Gino Toretta. Marshall Faulk can make all this secondary if he realizes that he should be the best player in college football today.

Anthony Guido is a Collegian staff member.

OUTSTANDING TEACHER AWARD

COLLEGE OF FOOD AND NATURAL RESOURCES
students and faculty invited to submit nominations for the 1993-94 award

NOMINATION FORMS ARE AVAILABLE IN ROOM 113 STOCKBRIDGE HALL OR IN DEPARTMENTAL OFFICES

Faculty in the following departments are eligible for nomination:

Consumer Studies • Entomology • Food Science
Forestry and Wildlife Management
Hotel. Restaurant and Travel Administration
Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning
Plant and Soil Sciences • Plant Pathology
Resource Economics • Sport Studies
Veterinary and Animal Sciences

JUDICIAL HEARING BOARD

WANTS YOU TO BE A MEMBER

If You. . .

- Are Interested in Campus Leadership
- Wish to Improve Your Communication and Listening Skills
- Are a Full Time Student
- Have at Least a 2.0 G.P.A.
- Are Not on Judicial Sanction

Apply To Be A Hearing Board Member
Training Held October 5 & 6 From 7-10 pm
At the Campus Center

Applications Available At:
Residential Cluster Offices &
The Dean of Students Office • 227 Whitmore
Student Attorney General's Office

Application Deadline: 5:00 pm
October 1, 1993

Any Questions????? Contact:
Paul Vasconcellos, Assistant Dean of Students
Shomwa Shamapande, Judicial Affairs Assistant
Jennifer Cooper, Judicial Affairs Assistant
At the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore Phone # 545-2684

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Bridge Lessons – Free – Wed 6-8 pm 8 Weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginning Wed 9/22 6 pm Blue Wall Campus Center.

Five Colleges European Club Meeting
Thursday 9/23/93 7:30 pm
UMass Campus Center Rm 911
Info: 545-3875

The Wildlife Society
Come and Join
EVERYONE WELCOME
9/23 at 7 pm
Holdsworth 203

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention: get involvedwith campus health issues and the University Health Center... Stop by the Student Health Advisory Board's next meeting on Wednesday 9/22 at 5pm in room 302 at the Health Center

College Pizza
Open for Lunch
at 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 Toppings Add $1.00
549-6073 549-6098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

AUTO FOR SALE

Ford LTD 1984 95K miles $750 582-0477

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Brother WP 3400 Word Processor. Disc Privided. $150 Leave Msg. 546-0301

Bureaus. Beautiful, sturdy Must see! $55. 549-4793

Color TV 13" $59 18" $79 BW $25. Student Fridge $39/bo. Raymund 549-6547

GUITAR - stl.strg. Washburn acoustic w/case like new $150: James 253-3989

Mountain Bike Parts
For Sale
1. Joe Murray project 2 rigid fork DB chromoly, great cond. 1 inch steerer $50/bo
2. Specialized shoulder holder frame pack - fits inside seat/top tube $5
3. B&L Killer Loop sunglasses orange iridium lenses, nylon frames brand new $40/bo. Call John at 546-5179

MT. Bike w/ U lock. Good Condition. $100. Leave Msg. 546-0301

100% Pure Cashmere
$95 Shawls, $195 Twin Blankets
$250 Queen 1-800-428-7825 x 303

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8100

UsedMACS for sale Goodprices. Free instruction. Call 256-1076

FOUND

Attention New Students – Personal items left at the New Students Program this summer may be picked up at the New Students Office 304 Admissions Center

Hey - did you lose something? I found your black kitten 9-16-93 outside Putton. Call Shannon for info. 549-1100

GOALIES

ATTENTION GOALIES
We are looking for a goalie for the upcoming intramural ice hockey season.
If interested call
Matt 546-4820
or Chris 546-0880

G. DEAD TICKETS

Will trade Thursday Boston for Wednesday. Call 549-8869

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in cannenes. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Att: Excellent income for home assembly work. Info 1-504-646-1700 Dept. MA-1307

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month + World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling!

1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

House cleaner - Leverett Experienced, References, 549-9688, Cheryl

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college-level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information.

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

LOST

Lost Eyeglasses
Green frames
Lobi Sat. Night
Near Southwest
If found please call 6-4805

MEET THE GREEKS

Open Your Mind - - Dispell the myths about Greek Life
Tue- 7 pm, 8 pm for men, Chadbourne and Field
Wed. 7pm, 8 pm at Coolidge, JQA, Patterson, and Pierpont
BE THERE!!

MOTORCYCLES

1985 Honda Interceptor 700 White runs strong $ 900 b/o 549 4625

Yamaha FZ 600 87
Red/White great shape
asking $1600
Brian 549-5996

PERSONALS

MA
If you don't feed your pup
He'll run away
Love You
RJ

Pebbles! Hey, and I'm social! Nanu and Poli-e

RIDE WANTED

Interested in carpooling from Longmeadow or Forestpark area. Ed 567-6237

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo.323-9742

SERVICES

Factfinder Custom Library Research All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

Have you been ripped off by a retailer? Contact the Legal Services Center regarding your rights as a consumer. 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SORORITY RUSH

Open Rush Times For Today:
Alpha Chi Omega - 8 pm
Alpha Epsilon Phi - 7:9 pm
Chi Omega - NO RUSH
Delta Zeta - NO RUSH
Iota Gamma Epsilon - 6-8:00 pm
Kappa Kappa Gamma - 5:30 -7pm
Sigma Delta Tau -8 - 10 pm
Sigma Kappa - NO RUSH
Sigma Sigma Sigma - 6 - 7:30 pm

TURKISH STUDENTS

Turkish Student Association will hold its first meeting on September 23 at Campus Center Room 803 between 8 pm and 10 pm. All returning and new students welcome!

WANTED

Couch Needed
Big, Comfortable
Will pay cash
Jim 253-9479

Used,
One-unit
TV
w/
VCR
Please
Call
546-1119

Volleyball wins home opener over Holy Cross, story on Thursday

Sports

Minutewomen blank Owls to stay undefeated

STEVEN PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team, ranked eighth in the nation, clubbed A-10 rival Temple yesterday at Garber Field.

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

In the shadow of the Curry Hicks Cage, home of many a memorable battle between the University of Massachusetts and Temple basketball teams, the two school's women's soccer programs played a forgettable, one-sided game in a cold fall rain.

Temple	0
Massachusetts	4

Massachusetts (5-0-1, 2-0-1 in the Atlantic 10) dominated the Owls in every facet of the game en route to a 4-0 victory. Forward Nicole Roberts scored twice, sweeper Paula Wilkins added a goal and an assist and midfielder Rebecca Myers scored once.

Minutewoman goalkeeper Briana Scurry made seven saves in chalking up her fifth straight shutout, lowering her goals against average to mere 0.15.

"It feels really good out there," Scurry said. "Our defensive system is working really well and our defenders are playing well. When I get out on the field I feel confident, not cocky, just confident that the other team is not going to score."

"Bri is playing very well," said UMass coach Jim Rudy, "and while she isn't facing a lot of challenges and good opportunities each game, she is up for the challenges. One goal in six games, that's excellent."

UMass, ranked No. 8 nationally for the second straight week, got on the board in the 32nd minute off of a corner kick. Wilkins served the ball to the goal mouth, it filtered through a crowd and deflected off of Myers' stomach into the net.

Three minutes later, Roberts, who leads the team with seven goals, drilled a shot, from 20-yards out, to the right of diving Temple goalkeeper Katie Gallagher.

In the 50th minute, Wilkins scored herself as she hooked a corner kick toward the left goal post. Gallagher tried to bat the ball down but it went off of her arm and into the net.

Roberts rounded out the Minutewomen goal-scoring in the 76th minute. Against a Temple offside trap, Myers collected a pass and was in alone from 15 feet on Gallagher. The Temple keeper was able to break Myers up but was caught out of the net. Myers collected the ball on the goalline, a few feet outside of the left post. She laid a soft cross to Colleen Milliken, who knocked the ball down, where Roberts pounced on it and shot into the open net.

The Minutewomen will travel to California this weekend where they will face St. Mary's and fourth-ranked Santa Clara.

Sunshine state dominating the college gridiron

BLINDSIDED
Anthony Gaido on College Football

As the season begins to heat up, the pretenders are stepping aside and the great talent is shining everywhere, mostly in the state of Florida.

Any talk of college football has to start with Florida State. Charlie Ward to Tamarick Vanover is a great passing combination and half of the time the FSU defense, led by standout linebacker Derrick Brooks, outscores the opposing team's offense. Unfortunately, some NFL teams wouldn't make it through this schedule undefeated.

That throws the national title up for grabs. The Florida Gators are loaded, with Erric Rhett running the ball and wideout Willie Jackson catching it.

Miami is always a threat, but they have lost 15 starters to graduation. Frank Costa is average at best so it might finally be payback time for the boys in Tallahassee and Syracuse this year.

That brings me to Arizona, my surprise team of the season. They have started with three straight wins and are primed to crack the top 10. The Wildcats' "Desert Swarm" defense may be the best in the land.

There were a couple of shootouts this past weekend that were the best two games of the year thus far, outside of Notre Dame-Michigan.

Turn to GRIDIRON, page 11

Midnight Madness on ESPN

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

ESPN's television lights will brighten up the Halloween sky outside the Mullins Center as the Total Sports Network will broadcast live the University of Massachusetts basketball team's annual "Midnight Madness" practice on Monday, Nov. 1.

Massachusetts will be featured, along with defending national champion North Carolina and Kentucky, on the one-hour show, which will begin at 12:30 a.m.

"It is very special for this program and this University to be thought of in the same breath as North Carolina and Kentucky," UMass coach John Calipari said. "It shows we are a national program, not a regional program and not a small-time program but a national program on national television."

The NCAA mandates that basketball practice may not begin until Nov. 1. Colleges traditionally have begun practice at 12:01 a.m. that morning, to generate enthusiasm for the team. This will be UMass' fifth annual midnight practice.

"We'll come out at 12:01 as usual and ESPN will begin broadcasting 30 minutes later," UMass assistant coach John Robic said. "We'll have some special stuff this year since it will be on television."

This will be the first time the practice, which consists of team introductions, an intersquad scrimmage and a slam dunk competition, will be held in the Mullins Center. Calipari wants the 9,493-seat arena packed for the television audience.

"The image and perception of our basketball program will be carried nationally," Calipari said. "As will the image and perception of our student body, which I consider to be one of the finest in the country."

"We need 10,000 people in there and with it being

Turn to ESPN, page 6

Rose blossoms for field hockey

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

With the departure of last year's standout goalie Philippa Scott from the University of Massachusetts field hockey team, the starting job for the 1993 season was up for grabs.

The success that UMass head coach Pam Hixon had with Scott, a native of Great Britain, prompted her to look across the Atlantic again. She appears to have gotten a steal in freshman Hilary Rose.

"We got really lucky. We were looking for a goaltender, a starter, someone who could step right in there and do it," said Hixon. "Hilary emerged to be the best of the group that was out there.."

Rose has started all four games for the Minutewomen, who are ranked eighth in the country, posting a 3-1 record. After giving up a goal in the first half of the season opener against Northwestern, Rose has been unscored upon in her last seven halves. Her superb play earned her last week's Atlantic 10 Defensive Player of the Week honors.

"It is nice to be recognized," said Rose, who spent the last three years away from school working as an accountant. "It was the defense in front of me that was stopping the balls coming through. The defensive player of the week should go to the whole defense, really."

Rose brings an impressive field hockey resume to

Turn to ROSE, page 10

Minutemen set for test, face New Hampshire

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

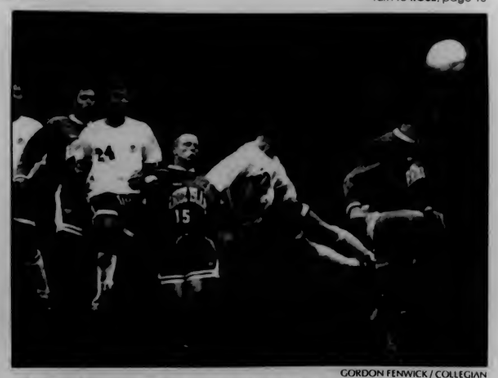
After its 6-0 shellacking of Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island last Saturday, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team could do nothing but celebrate the fact that the squad stopped its three-game scoreless skid.

However, the Minutemen must be wary heading into today's contest with the third-ranked team in New England, the University of New Hampshire (4-0). First off, the physical battle against the Rams over the weekend cost UMass one of its starting midfielders.

Sam Koch's squad will not have the services of senior Justin Edelman, UMass' second-leading scorer last season, after he was injured in the victory over Rhody. Sophomore Brad Miller, another facet of the UMass midfield, is also doubtful for today's game with a bad calf muscle, according to Koch.

Koch said he has two options for replacing Edelman; one is putting freshman forward and A-10 Rookie of the Week Dave Siljanovski in his spot.

The other option, according to Koch, if Miller cannot go, is add senior Ted Priestly to the mix of midfielders/forwards.



Goalkeeper Mark Wolf, who has been sidelined for three games with an injury, began practicing on Monday and Koch said if he is 100 percent, he will start against UNH.

Koch said after Saturday's victory that although every game is important, the A-10 race is what counts for the Minutemen.

• • • • •

Looking at the standings after one week of action, the surprise team in the

Turn to MINUTEMEN, page 10

GORDON FENWICK / COLLEGIAN

Senior Ted Priestly, seen here trying to put a head on the ball last weekend against Rhode Island, and the rest of the Minuteman soccer team battles New Hampshire today at 3:30 p.m.

Jon Lupo reviews Martin Scorsese's new film This Weekend, Page 6

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

68° Thursday
September 23, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 11

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Health care plan unveiled

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposing a massive makeover of the nation's health care system, President Clinton said Wednesday, "We have a moment in history" to enact a guarantee of lifelong medical care for every American regardless of income or well being.

Clinton previewed his proposal to Democratic and Republican leaders at the White House before delivering a nationally broadcast speech to Congress on the outlines of this proposal.

"There is almost unanimous consensus that the cost of continuing on the present course is greater than the cost of change," the president told lawmakers.

Clinton said there was a "spirit of genuine searching and determination" among Democrats and Republicans alike.

"This is a good beginning," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said. "I would hope in the next six to eight, 10 months we'll have a bill." Some Republicans, though, grumbled that government was taking on more than it could handle.

Polls show most Americans believe the system needs to be fixed but uncertain about ways to change it. A half-dozen rival plans already have sprung up.

The product of eight months on work under the direction of Hillary Rodham Clinton, the administration's plan is based on the premise it can extend health coverage to the 37 million uninsured and at the same time shrink the nation's $900 billion medical bill.

Health care costs are rising at more than twice the rate of other prices and represent one-seventh of all U.S. spending.

Clinton's plan for the first time would require all employers to pay 80 percent of the average health premium for their workers. Employees would pay the rest. Small businesses and low-income workers would get subsidies.

Giant insurance-purchasing pools called health alliances would be created in each state to negotiate with doctors, hospitals and insurers. Consumers would buy their coverage through the alliances.

The plan would vastly expand the government's power to control health costs if competition alone doesn't work. Critics question whether the controls would squeeze out quality, too.

Growth in the government's two biggest health programs, Medicare and Medicaid, would be slowed by $238 billion over five years, through many in Congress say it is politically unrealistic to cut that deeply on care for the elderly and the poor.

There are questions about how Clinton would pay for the program. He's certain to seek a sizeable boost in cigarette taxes but its unclear how big. Also possible is a tax on corporations that opt out of the health alliances and set up their own programs.

There's formidable opposition from powerful groups representing small businesses, insurance companies, drug manufacturers, hospitals and doctors.

UDems host student forum with Rosenberg, Story

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Sitting in chairs on the floor or even standing, student watched President Clinton unveil his health care proposal on wide screen television in the Hatch.

About 74 students participated in the watch sponsored by the University Democrats and Masspirg last evening, including students from Mt. Holyoke and Smith College.

The watch was a chance for students to see the President's address together and to then participate in a discussion.

"The turnout was great," the Democrats' president,

Turn to FORUM, page 6

MATT KAHN/ COLLEGIAN

State Representative Ellen Story and State Senator Stan Rosenberg (right) participate in a discussion of President Clinton's health care bill at the Hatch last night.

Working for the future

MATT KAHN/ COLLEGIAN

A machine drills a hole near Draper Hall to start a digging job which will result in a new steam-pipe project at UMass.

Mass. schools cost most

State's colleges far above average

By JON MARCUS
Associated Press

BOSTON — Massachusetts is home not only to some of the most prestigious colleges and universities in America, but also the priciest.

The average four-year private university or college in the Bay State costs $19,396 for tuition, room and board, according to the College Board and the Association of Independent Colleges and Universities in Massachusetts. That compares with a national average of $15,818.

Tuition and fees alone have nearly doubled in the last eight years at Massachusetts private colleges. But years of increases to make up for budget shortfalls have also made the state's public university tuition third-costliest in the nation, behind Vermont and Pennsylvania.

Tuition, room and board at the flagship University of Massachusetts at Amherst cost $9,295, compared with a national average for public universities of $6,207.

The high cost "is reflective of the

Turn to SCHOOLS, page 8

Yeltsin gains strength in clash, opposition still held in building

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin's bid to control Russia gained strength Wednesday, buoyed by support from the army and cheering crowds. His hard-line opposition sat barricaded in parliament.

Bonfires burned for a second night outside the Russian parliament building, where as many as 5,000 anti-Yeltsin demonstrators ringed the building to protest his suspension of parliament Tuesday. Protesters waved red Soviet flags and stockpiled rocks, pipes and Molotov cocktails.

Despite appeals by Yeltsin's opponents for a nationwide strike, there were no reports of protests elsewhere.

Hundreds of people applauded and shouted "We support you!" when Yeltsin and his military commanders made an impromptu visit to Moscow's downtown Pushkin Square.

"He should have done this a long time ago," said Alexander Kuznetsov, 47, who sells photographs to tourists in the square. "The Russian people have put up with a lot, and the parliament is just resorting to hooligan tactics."

Turn to YELTSIN, page 8

Demjanjuk heads to U.S. while some remain bitter

By NEIL MacFARQUHAR
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ann Spicer stood a few rows behind John Demjanjuk's airline seat and slapped the blue tattoo inside her left arm, her identification number from the Auschwitz concentration camp.

"He has his life, his family and will be allowed to see his grandchildren. My children don't know what it means to have grandparents," she said, horror and sadness mingling in her face as she stared at him.

The outbursts prompted the Demjanjuk family to keep him in a protective cocoon throughout his flight from israel early Wednesday, blocking access from reporters. And he wore a bulletproof vest.

"He feels that he is guilty of nothing, that he has been convicted of nothing, so it bothers him," said John Jr., 28. Demjanjuk, who spent seven-and-a-half years in Israel jails, arrived in the United States to an uncertain future.

israel's Supreme Court overturned his conviction and death sentence on war crimes charges that alleged he was a brutal Nazi concentration camp guard known as Ivan the Terrible. Demjanjuk maintained he was a victim of mistaken identity. The court said there was enough doubt to overturn the conviction.

The 73-year-old Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk is no longer a citizen of any nation. He was allowed into the United States pending a federal appellate review of his case.

"For John Demjanjuk it will never really be over," said Ed Nishnic, Demjanjuk's 36-year-old son-in-law and the family spokesman.

A decision is in the review by the sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals could take a month.

Attorney General Janet Reno has vowed to pursue Demjanjuk's deportation on grounds that he had concealed helping the Nazis. The Justice Department plans no action until Demjanjuk completes his appeals through the sixth circuit, spokesman Carl Stern said Wednesday.

The process could take months or even years.

"My blood is coagulating," said Mrs. Spicer, a Los Angeles resident who was a toddler when she was deported to Auschwitz in Nazi occupied Poland in 1944.

"It's been so many years but the wound is still open. There isn't a day in my life that I don't remember," Mrs. Spicer said.

"Murderer!" 70-year-old Moses Korotki screamed when Demjanjuk stepped aboard.

"He's a killer, he's a celebrity," Korotki said, tears welling in his eyes as he recalled his ordeal in the Mathausen concentration camp.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors.....Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor.....Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor.....Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Police Log

Compiled by Vanessa Adelman from University police reports

Tuesday, September 14

• Tuesday night Student Security reported an individual firing an air gun from the third floor window of Wheeler. Police identified the individual and he will be summonsed to Court for a show-case hearing.

Wednesday, September, 15

• Campus staff reported two speakers stolen from the Flagstone Cafe where they had been set up for a function. Their estimated value is $1,000.

• An individual reported that racial remarks were made to him while he was in the men's room in Thompson Hall. He furnished a description of the subject but Police did not find the individual.

Friday, September 17, 1993

• An individual reported that he was assaulted and robbed at 2:12 a.m. of $120 on No. Pleasant St. by three male subjects. He was punched and kicked while he was on the ground. The incident is under investigation.

Saturday, September 18

• An individual from D'Angelos was schemed out of two sandwiches at Moore Dorm Saturday night.

• Christopher P. Newell, 20, of South Hamilton, Mass, was arrested on charges of assault and battery after a fight on John Adams Rd.

Monday, September 20

• Campus staff reported a weapon in a student's room in Chadbourne Dorm. Police investigated and confiscated a fake replica of a .45 caliber gun.

Write for the Collegian.

There are many different opportunities available. Contact one of our Editors for more information.

FOR 26 WAYS to help SAVE the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.

Recycle this Collegian.

"NAUGHTY YET HILARIOUS"
Gross Yet Laughable, Tasteless Yet witty, Revolting Yet Funny...Words Can Hardly Describe the FUN STUFF AT JOKE CITY.
Come See For Yourself! JOKE CITY Come See For Yourself!
1,001 laughs in store for you at
233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 549-8117
(in the carriage shops)

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!!
NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS
☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
Monday - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
Tuesday - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
Wednesday - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR 1/4pd. Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Thursday - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
Charlie's tavern AMHERST, MASS. since 1978
This Week Drink Specials
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95
Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V.
MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

Amherst College Campus Center presents

September 26	John Wesley Harding
October 3	Rory Block
October 17	Patty Larkin with special guest Jim Henry in Buckley Recital Hall
October 16	Bob Mould with special guest Erica Wheeler
October 29	Judybats
November 14	The Story
December 5	Knots and Crosses with special guest The Nields

for more information: (413)542-5773. All shows begin at 8pm in the Campus Center Frontroom unless otherwise noted. Advance tickets availalvle at the Campus Center Office, For The Record in Amherst, and the Northampton Box Office (1-800-THE TICK). Tickets also available at the door.

Thank you for your patronage The Krupczak Family
4 Seasons
Rte.9 • Hadley • 584-8174
between Burger King & Dunkin Donuts
NEW!! Lower Keg Deposits
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

KEGS	BUD DRY 24-12oz. Bor Bott	MALIBU RUM	MAD DOG 20/20
1/2 BBL BUSCH $36.99	$10.99 + Dep	$8.99 750ML	$1.99 750ML
1/2 BBL Natural Lt. $32.99 + Dep	M.G.D. & M.G.D. Lt 12pk botts $6.99 + Dep	MATADOR TEQUILA $6.99 1.0L	American Beer 24-12oz. Cans $7.29 + Dep
1/2 BBL BUD, Lt, DRY $40.99 + Dep	BUSCH & Lt 24-12oz. Cans $9.99 + Dep	4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L	Andre Champagne $2.99 750ML
1/2 BBL Rolling Rock $44.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL Michelob Dark $42.99 + Dep	ICE 10 LBS $1.50 50+LBS $5.49 100+ LBS $9.99 BLOCKS $1.25 You Can't Buy It Cheaper	KNICKERBOCKER 24-16oz. Bor Bott $9.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL Milwaukees Best $32.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL Lowenbrau Dark $42.99 + Dep		BOONES FARM $1.99 750ML
1/2 BBL Michelob & Lt $42.99 + Dep	BUD, BUD LT. BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep	JIM BEAM $7.99 750ML	COORS GOLD 24-12oz. Bor Bott $10.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL M.G.D.-Lite $40.99 + Dep	COORS, LT., GOLD BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep	GO UMASS FOOTBALL	Tired of Stores with Bad Attitudes? At 4 Seasons You'll Be Treated with Gratitude And...
Largest Keg Inventory in WMASS	1/2 BBL Lowenbrau $42.99 + Dep	CRUSH B.U.!!!	WE DELIVER

Not Responsible For Typographical Errors
Sale Thru 9-30-93
Monday - Saturday 9:00am - 11:00pm
Kegs & Beer Ball Deposits Held Up To 30 Days

Local News

News from other "U's"

compiled by Tracy Monahan

What a way to get a date!

The sisters of Delta Phi Epsilon at Keene State College awoke to find a flasher outside the window of their sorority house. According to the sisters, a man wearing jeans, no shirt and a red bandanna wrapped around his face, began fondling himself outside their house.

The women were unaware of what the man was doing until one of them went outside to say something to him. They called the police who are currently investigating the case. Maybe this guy should try one of those 1-900 numbers next time.

Can I see some I.D. please?

A 19-year-old University of Arizona student was arrested for using a false driver's license to obtain liquor at the local Circle K convenience store. The arresting officer saw the suspect through the store window and said he did not look to be of age. Upon confrontation, the suspect admitted the I.D. was false.

Police said there were several noticeable defects on the license. For instance, the state seal said "State of Orgasm" rather than "State of Oregon." Now there's an I.D. that was definitely worth the cash.

Naked people on the concourse

Students at Kent State University were astonished to find workers from a local company Strippers Elite, Inc. perusing their student center. The entertainers were parading around in their work clothes.

The company was protesting the university's decision to ban the business's advertisements from the Kent State telephone directory. They said they were upset because the directory advertises beer distributors, abortion clinics and video with pornographic films.

One of the protesters carried a sign that read "Don't strip us of our rights." UMass should try booking that protest for a noontime rally on the Student Union steps.

Smokeless is the wave of the future

In a familiar move, Kent State University also proposed to ban smoking from all campus buildings. The smoke-free policy was proposed to trustees at a meeting last week. It would prohibit smoking in all buildings across the campus, including some residence halls and outside stadiums.

If the policy is accepted or the existing policy is revised, the ban will go into effect next semester. The move will force students and faculty outdoors to smoke. Only one more week until UMass also goes smoke-free.

Is stalking illegal in Arizona?

A former University of Arizona student was arrested when police found her in a stairwell, covered in soot, screaming in German and pounding on the walls. She told police that she was rehearsing for a play and had just arrived from Germany.

A graduate student in the same building told police that the woman was standing outside his office screaming in "demonic voices" and yelling for him to "meet his maker."

He also told police that the woman has been harassing him for 10 months, since they'd met at a social gathering. Maybe she watches too much Letterman.

Social ills discussed at rally

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

About 50 people gathered on the steps of the Student Union yesterday fighting against social injustices in a rally sponsored by the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance, the Radical Student Union, MassPIRG and the American Freedom Foundation.

Jean Russell, marketing coordinator of food services, spoke about Lani Guinier's visit to the University of Massachusetts campus tonight. She said she was disappointed with the fact that Guinier was not allowed to speak in front of a judiciary committee to express her own views on civil rights.

"I think it is past time in this country that all citizens become more concerned. That we certainly show our concern . . . and at the very least insist that a nomination for this position be immediately forthcoming," said Russell.

Javier Cevallos, a UMass Spanish professor and secretary of the faculty senate, spoke about the Strategies for Combatting Racism conference of which he is the Amherst campus steering committee chairman.

Matt Malone, political chair for the LBGA, discussed the group's proposal for multiculturalism at the university through President Hooker's "mission enhancement" fund. He said an agreement was reached by the LBGA and the Student Government Association on Tuesday night.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
UMass political science senior Aimee Poliatis stopped in Wednesday's rain to get a glimpse of the soggy rally.

MassPIRG representatives spoke out about the state's move to cut funding and also about student rights.

Chad Lenchner, president of the RSU spoke about the administration, the slight progress the country has

Turn to RALLY, page 7

More gays needed in workplace

Lecturer details problems homosexuals face at work

By MARNI E. HELFNER
Collegian Staff

James Woods, assistant professor of communication at the College of Staten Island/SUNY, spoke on the future needs of gay, lesbian and bisexual students in the workplace.

The lecture, "Sexuality in the Workplace: Lesbian, Gay Men and the Myth of the Asexual Professional," was based on a study done by Wood.

The information in the lecture was obtained from Woods' book, The Corporate Closet: The Professional Lives of Gay Men in America.

Woods' study looked at gay men in the corporate world and the problems they faced everyday. He broke down the men he interviewed into three categories: counterfeiting, integrating and avoidance.

Counterfeiting men have a "false heterosexual identity," often facing ethical dilemmas, encountering an unreal social world and suffering severe performance anxiety.

On the other end of the spectrum falls the men who are classified as "integrating." These men readily acknowledge their homosexuality or bisexuality but are often faced with discrimination and tokenism issues.

In between the extremes are the "avoidance." These men "steer completely clear of sexuality," resulting in social withdrawal and the loss of important mentoral relationships and friendships within the work community.

"He made me consider a lot of issues that I hadn't emphasized before, and one of the main reasons is that I'm a student and I haven't encountered a lot of the discrimination in being bisexual and working," said one student who chose to remain anonymous.

"GLB Studies needs to look at the issues in the workplace, business environment and the larger economy," Darrin Shaffer, a University of Massachusetts graduate student in economics, said.

Students said the study did not focus on the effects of being gay in a blue-collar workplace, lesbian issues or the participants in the study.

"I enjoyed the lecture; people pushed me on some of the weaknesses of the study — the ethnicity of the participants, the working class and other issues — it was definitely a learning experience," Woods said.

Woods also said working for major companies and being out of the closet could have positive or negative affects on the working environment.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
James Woods

SGA lobbies trustees for student legal rights

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) is lobbying the University of Massachusetts board of trustees to restore litigation rights to the UMass Legal Services Office (LSO), SGA Speaker Matt Pavesi said.

The LSO provides free legal services to UMass students. Currently, the principal duties of the LSO are to provide legal advice and to refer students to lawyers in Amherst. Pavesi said the LSO also had the power to litigate on the behalf of students before 1987, when the board of trustees stripped the LSO of its litigation power.

Pavesi said the LSO lost its litigation rights as a result of the Yvette Henry case. Henry was a Black woman who sued the University on the grounds that her civil rights were violated.

"Yvette Henry was a Southwest resident who was wrongly charged with arson," Pavesi said. "An FBI investigation found that it was actually one of the janitors that did it. Through the LSO, she sucessfully sued the University on the grounds that her civil rights had been violated. After that case, the board of trustees decided to take litigation rights away from the LSO on the grounds that University employees can not sue the state."

Pavesi said if the SGA cannot convince the board of trustees to restore litigation rights to the LSO, they will appeal to the Massachusetts legislature. Currently, there is a bill sponsored by State Representative Ellen Story and State Senator Stan Rosenberg aiming to restore the LSO's litigation powers. UMass President Michael K. Hooker also supports limited litigation powers for the LSO, Pavesi said.

Pavesi said UMass students need to lobby their state senators and representatives if they want to have the option of having the LSO represent them in court.

"Students need to call their state representatives and senators and tell them to support the restoration of litigation rights to the LSO," Pavesi said. "We also need to put pressure on the board of trustees. The students, parents, and alumni have the strongest voice on campus."

Pavesi said because the LSO does not have litigation power, many students are unable to afford a lawyer.

"Unfortunately, students are being taken advantage of," he said. "Two years ago an auto body mechanic in town was overcharging foreign students. Right now all the LSO can do is refer students to lawyers in town. But most students can not afford lawyers because they charge $100 per hour."

SGA Public Relations Director Manuel Aguilar said the board of trustees is unaware of the importance of having affordable legal representation available to students. He also said the board is trying to avoid dealing with student's legal problems.

"The fact that the LSO does not have litigation rights is an example of how out of touch the board of trustees is with the students needs," Aguilar said.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Editorial Policy

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes and encourages columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the entire Five College area. The following are some important guidelines to consider when submitting material to the page:

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear the writer's name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editor's discretion. Letters or columns written under a psuedonym will not be accepted.

All submissions must be typed and double-spaced to be considered for publication. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

Letters should not exceed 50 typed, double-spaced lines. Columns should not exceed 70 typed, double-spaced lines. Letters and columns of unreasonable length will not be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will not be printed. Responses to or criticisms of columns or other Collegian articles are restricted to letter form. Any exceptions to this guideline will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. All submissions become property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual artist or writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, its staff or the Editorial staff.

Seeking a space of their own

Something's wrong here. I've been here two semesters and as far as I know there are only four other out gay people of color on this campus. Now I could be wrong but if you tigure there are twenty thousand people at UMass, and people of color make up six percent of the population, then there are 1,200 gay people of color at this school. Hell, the calculations prove I'm wrong. But because such a small number of us are out there is no evidence to the contrary.

The stigma of being gay and a member of the ALANA communities is ten times worse than being gay and white. Blacks have been portrayed as "super lovers," and in my neighborhood (the south side of Brooklyn) the prevailing attitude is that a black man's job is "to conquer every piece of pussy that he can."

Besides this there are the taunts and so called friends that cut you off when (and if) you tell them, and there are very few oriented gay support groups. Because of this I know that there are a lot of us who are reluctant to admit what we are to ourselves let alone others. This is understandable for people who already have a friend base, but it is even more so for freshman who are building one.

As I've said, I grew up in New York so I've seen and heard a lot of things: bars with hundreds of whites and a smattering of blacks; gay clubs with hundreds of blacks and a smattering of whites; black drag queens and G.L.Y.N.Y. (Gay and Lesbian Youth of New York) meetings, so I feel that I can handle the ultra-liberal and PC UMass campus.

However, for others who come from not so liberal places, UMass may be a bit overwhelming. For this reason it is necessary for all of the ethnic organizations to actively encourage their gay members to come out.

This can be accomplished by organizations setting up safe space where homophobic remarks are discouraged and not tolerated, and by providing resources such as books, periodicals and peer support. Or perhaps all the ethnic organizations could chip in and provide for one big area of safe space containing all of these elements.

Why, you might ask, should organizations outside of the LBGA and its sister programs do this? Because apparently ALANA community members do not feel they belong (if they did they would be there already), and to some degree they are right. The LBGA can address my needs as a gay man but not as a black gay man. Until ALANA community members feel comfortable being integrated into the larger LBGA community other organizations need to address their needs . . . AND THAT MEANS YOU!

Ali Davis
Co-chair for diversity, LBGA

A slice of a young man's life

The haze was draped over the room like a shroud, the softly swirling fog disturbed only by the breath of the few that sat haunched on their stools. A pool table stood in the far corner, and was continually circled by the two silouettes which mumbled and coughed between the crack of the cue ball. Music droned loudly from some unknown source, but nobody seemed to notice.

A young man walked through the heavy oaken door, letting in the stabs of bright light that highlighted the dust only for a moment before the door shut behind him. He slowly walked towards the bar and swung his leg over a stool.

Nathan
CRICK

"Whataya have?" asked the voice of the aged bartender, his wrinkled black face looking on patiently.

"He'll have a beer," grunted the fat, unshaven man who sat beside the customer.

"Excuse me?" said the young man, a bit surprised.

"You're a man, aren't you? You'll have a beer," grunted the fat man again, taking a large swig of his drink.

The man shrugged. "Well, I guess. . ."

"You gonna listen to that old fool?" demanded a gaunt looking man with long, stringy hair who sat at the corner of the bar reading a book. "You gonna do what he says just because he thinks he owns this stinking bar? Get what you want. Don't listen to that damn codger."

The young man shrugged. "All I want is a draft."

The fat man made a gutteral chuckle.

The gaunt fellow threw his hands in the air. "You got no backbone, fella? You just some worthless peon waiting for people to tell you what to do? Order what you want, for Christ sakes."

The bartender looked on quietly. "Whataya have?"

"Well hell, just give me a gin and tonic then."

"Give the man a beer," growled the fat man. "I ain't drinkin' next to no woman. You want me to keep comin' in this place, you give the man a beer," he said, glaring into the eyes of the bartender.

"Don't be a follower, my friend. Stick with what you had," the gaunt man said, stirring his bloody mary.

The young man sighed and looked up at the bartender, and back down at his hands. The song on the jukebox came to an end, the quiet broken only by the crack of the pool table.

"I told you what I wanted, ' the young man said. "Hold the lime, please."

The fat man looked over at him and spat on the floor. "Goddamn hippies. Bunch of women," he croaked, getting up off of his chair. "See ya round, Frank," he said to the bartender. "Or maybe I won't."

"Good riddance!" called the gaunt man as the door shut. "It's about time we got rid of him. I hate those kind of people. Worthless fools like him are the ones who rule the world, ya know? Oh, such glorious revolution," he laughed. "Oh, how's your drink?"

"It's all right," he shrugged, and looked over at the bartender who had walked down to serve a couple of women on the other end. "Hey, I hope I didn't hurt your business."

The old bartender looked back and shrugged. "Don't worry. He'll be back," he paused. "Everything comes back eventually. You get used to it," he said, turning away.

For a moment the young man looked to the corner of the bar and noticed one of the silouettes returning to the pool table. A second later, the jukebox roared to life, and then retreated back into its raucous drone.

"Buy those young ladies some drinks for me, Frank!" called the gaunt man. "Martinis. On me." The bartender nodded and eventually placed two martinis in front of the two women, who smiled and toasted the gaunt man sitting across the bar from them.

The young man got up from his stool and threw down a couple of dollars. "Thanks for the gin," he called to the bartender as he walked towards the exit. The music played on behind him. The crack of the silouettes continued like a pendulum. He opened the door and walked out, leaving his drink behind him in the bar to grow old.

Nathan Crick is a Collegian columnist.

SGA encourages student voice

The undergraduate Student Government Association invites you, the undergrads, to make yourself heard. We offer a wide range of activites that deal with anything from committee participation within the Student Senate to monetary and state issues to issues that effect campus policy such as Academic Dishonesty and the Athletic council which are both considered Univeristy-wide Committees.

The SGA is making a conscious effort to interact with the undergraduate population in order to convey the issues of this campusto the adminstrators and professors on the campus who, at times, control the fate of many here on campus.

Manuel Aguilar, Chair
Public Relations

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

Quick quiz o' the week: What do you get when you mix a politician and a Hooker? Answer: A number of potentially scandalous things, but in this case a wedding.

You mean you haven't gotten your wedding invitation yet? Our own President Michael (T.J.) Hooker is tying the knot with state representative Carmen Buell of Greenfield, and the entire University of Massachusetts-Amherst family is invited. Har,har,har.

In all seriousness, Hooker told a moving story in the paper about his meeting up with Buell at a UMass basketball game last January. He said the two's "relationship began to get closer" at the end of March. Let me ask you, what do you interpret that as?

At any rate, the couple is getting married in December and plan to hold the reception at the Mullins Center. No news on whether the honeymoon will be spent at the Hadley Farm.

This poses a number of dilemmas for us reporter types in the basement. How do you refer to the wife of a Hooker? Is the headline "State rep marries Hooker" appropriate?

Maybe something good will come out of it; after all, Hooker will probably spend more time in western Mass now that he has a fiancee there. His office is in Boston, so that he can brown-nose the rest of the state politicians easier.

One final trick on Hooker: you may be surprised to see this wealthy 48 year-old president marrying a Democrat. Then again, you may not.

Hooker is friends with our nation's president, and he has spent about the last 10 New Years with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton down at a resort for something called Renaissance Weekend. It's a 12-step type love

Michael
MORRISSEY

fest where Democrats try to solve the world's problems by holding conferences. Yay. . .

Yes, there is still construction going on and after compiling this top five list, this space's collaborator promises not to mention construction again this year.

Top Five New Buildings Built At UMass in the Past Eon:

1. The Mullins Center.
2. The Polymer Research Center (course, that's not done yet).
3. . . . Um, did we say the Mullins Center yet?
4. Does the hockey rink next to the Mullins Center count?
5. (Tie.) All the crummy buildings we have to live, learn, eat, and pay our bills in now.

This author would like to apologize for a grave oversight in Notes from two weeks ago involving the newly-repaved tennis courts. We were a little too quick to condemn an honest effort by the tennis team to open the courts to all. A heartfelt apology is neccessary.

Unfortunately, when you shoot with a shotgun, you are bound to hit an unwanted target now and then. Good luck to the teams and to Judy Dixon, who's doing double-duty as men and women's tennis coach. Keep those courts unlocked.

And finally, a word on fraternities: the first weekend of the year always brings about wild rumors from every direction. But the best had to be from the men at Pi Kappa Alpha, who claimed alum Ken Ober and MTV would be in the house two Fridays ago.

This space thinks the intention may have been to lure naive freshmen women, but the only extra people they brought were naive seniors like this author, who should have known better. Incidently, a good time was had by all, and we hear Mr. Ober is dropping by this weekend.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

You don't think about the statistics until you are one

This summer I decided to accept a job at a New York City accounting firm, in pursuit of a more glamourous summer than the one my Gap job had provided. I learned quite quickly in order to work in a "real" job, one needs "real" clothes. So my mother and I headed off to the mall. After picking to some business type clothing, I entered into the dressing room.

After trying on several outfits, all of which did not fit right, I decided they must have changed the sizing systems while I was away at school, since my old size did not fit anymore. My mother gently suggested that perhaps I had "outgrown" my old size. She didn't have to say any more, I understood what she meant.

As I stared at myself in the dressing room, I learned something that I had subconsciously ignored for the past six months. I had put on the "college fifteen." At that moment I decided I was going to lose the weight no matter what the costs.

My new resolve led me to a diet, a healthy eating plan balanced with a decent amount of exercise. After about five weeks, I lost a considerable amount of weight, and I basically took off the "extra fifteen." But after that point, I decided I wanted to lose some more weight, so I decided to keep dieting. But I rationalized, if I want to lose more weight, than I should start eating a little bit less and exercising a little bit more.

Fueled by compliments by family and friends,it was easy to rationalize. So I cut down my caloric intake once again, and began exercising more and more. And a funny thing happened: towards the middle of July, I began to get really sick. I was tired all the time, and I always had horrible stomach pains. My parents began to get really worried, but at first they attributed my illness to my job, figuring the commute was draining my energy. But as time progressed, there were many days when I was too sick to go to work.

Stephanie
EISENBERG

My mom decided my diet was probably what was making me so ill, so she began watching what I ate. At this point, I was terrified of food, and convinced the extra calories would put back the extra weight I had worked so hard to lose. I began eating even less, and began lying to my mom about what I ate. I got away with lying but, I couldn't hide the fact that I was sick. So early one Saturday morning, it was off to the doctor we went.

I'll never forget the look on my parent's faces as the doctor diagnosed me. His words still ring in my ears. "Starvation diet, she's starving herself in order to lose weight. It's quite common in women her age." Starvation diet? Me? I wasn't starving myself, I was just trying to lose weight. Right?

Unfortunately, as I later learned, more than fifty percent of all college women have or have had eating disorders. There is a tremendous pressure on women to be thin. The latest chic look in models is the waif or half starved look. These negative images flood our society and send the message to all women, that if you are not thin, well forget it.

It is important for all people to be healthy and in shape, but most of all to have a positive body image. There is nothing wrong with shedding some extra pounds, but the important thing is to do it sensibly. You can't be happy with yourself if you are too sick to get out of bed. We must move away from society's waif-like role models, and instead focus on more positive influences. When fifty percent of all college women have some form of an eating disorder, it's time for a change.

As for me, well a lot has changed since that doctors visit. The doctor put me on a healthy eating plan and promised me I wouldn't gain weight if I followed it. So far, he's been right but unfortunately there are some things even he couldn't change. I'm still afraid to eat, I never want to gain back the weight I lost. I never thought I'd be afraid of food but I am, and every day it's a struggle to eat normally. I'm much happier now that I did lose that weight, I just wish I had done it more sensibly.

Before this summer I had often heard about the statistics about college women and eating disorders. I just never thought I'd be among them.

Stephanie Eisenberg is a Collegian columnist.

When you have every right to stare

Forget what your Mom told you. It really can be polite to stare.

I once tentatively approached what could have been a heated debate with my friend about staring.

"I've got to stop this habit I have of staring at everyone," I remarked.

"Why?" he replied. "I stare all the time, because people suck and they should be stared at," he replied.

If you feel a need to stare - ask yourself why. "Why do I need to stare?"

While I hold steadfast to the notion that only some people suck, I was forced to rethink whether I actually have a right to stare at people.

According to Webster's, to stare is "to look fixedly with open eyes."

For example, those two Goth kids I saw loping through downtown Amherst in their all black, we're-so-morbid-and-no one-understands-us get-ups. I had a right to look fixedly at them. They didn't really even look back, they just stayed in character and kept their heads down. Clearly they wanted to be stared at. They were cute, they gave me a chuckle.

And that girl I saw in the Franklin D.C. wearing the Daisy Duke shorts even though it was 50 degrees and raining outside, I stared at her. She had nice legs and I thought it was pretty cool that she didn't have goosebumps. I guess she was dressing out of function and not just to make every guy whose periphery she entered check her out. Hmmm. . . maybe I had no right to stare at her.

If your answer is "Well. . . I think this person is worth using my glance on," then go for it.

Adam
GOULSTON

There was also the guy at my gym who kept one of those little Playskool 2 lb. weights in either hand while he rode the Lifecycle. To him, I'm so sorry. I didn't mean to stare. He even gave me kind of "what are you lookin' at?" glance in return. I probably deserved that.

But he looked so silly. I mean, he didn't even lift them up. He was exercising like a geek. Now I'm no Arnold by any stretch of the imagination, but at least I can look kind of cool when I workout. This guy looked like Homer Simpson wielding the remote control. So maybe I did have a right to stare.

But that girl with the Skittles; her I had no right to stare at. I understand she just needed to taste the rainbow and it was none of my business.

People don't all suck, and it's not why you should be staring.

I realize walking through the Campus Center, everyone's checking everyone else out. You think someone looks hot, ugly, you think you know them, you like their shirt, their shoes or perhaps their knees. It's only natural, you have a right to look at them. Just don't get a complex if they look back.

Inform your subject thoroughly. Try this approach. . .

"Hi, I'm Adam. I was staring at you because you're spilling beer all over your coed naked lacrosse shirt and Girbauds.

"I was concerned that the beer smell would cover up the gallon and a half of Drakkar you're wearing and the ladies wouldn't go to bed with you. Just looking out for you man. Bye." Remember to personalize.

Staring's OK, just remember your focus and your intent. And if someone sucks, that's also a good reason.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

Charmed life of the clam

In response to Mark Tyler Wenham's editorial on Wednesday (Are Clams Happy?), I would have to say that it was a wise man that coined the phrase "Happy as a clam."

With no intentions of starting a clam debate or making too much of the subject, I would like to raise certain points overlooked by the author.

A clam leads a life which is fairly stress-free. You and I have to get up for school or work, clams get up whenever they want. You and I have to deal with our parents, clams don't even talk to their parents. If a clam is hungry he simply opens his mouth and waits. If a clam wants to go somewhere he simply opens his mouth and waits. Pretty much whenever a clam wants anything he just opens his mouth and waits.

An envious lifestyle to many.

J. Eustace
Amherst

Peace proposal is new chapter in same old story

Ah, peace. What a wonderful word. During my lifetime, growing up in Israel, practicing bomb and attack drills, serving in the Army and finally wearing a gas mask in a sealed up room while Iraq hurled missiles at my city, "peace" has been merely a word, not a reality.

Ever since I became politically aware I have campaigned for peace. I've been to dozens of peace demonstrations (and assaulted by Israeli fascists). I have spent time in prison for refusing to be a soldier in the occupied territories of the West Bank and Gaza. So the question is, am I happy? Isn't it great what's going on back home? This is my answer:

The dominant ideology of the Israeli state is Zionism. This means Jews from anywhere on the planet have the right to settle in any part of the holy land of Israel, subject to the state's military capacity at the time.

The anthem of the Likud party, the main opposition party, includes the words: "Two banks of the Jordan — this one is ours and so is the other one." The Labour party, traditionally the party of moderate and practical Zionism, was responsible for the expulsion of 650,000 Palestinians from their homeland during 1948-49.

The refugee problem has been dealt with militarily since then, i.e. shooting at the refugees as they attempt to return (check out Israeli historian Benny Morris' book for all the facts, documented with Israeli state archive files).

Current Prime Minister Rabin was in fact the commanding officer in the operation that expelled the inhabitants of Lod and Ramle in 1948, despite the fact that they had not tried to participate in the war.

Charles
LENCHER

Rabin has not changed his colors. In 1967 he masterminded a war that brought the Sinai, the Gaza Strip, the West Bank, and the Syrian Golan Heights under Israeli occupation. Just a few months ago Rabin successfully drove half a million Lebanese villagers from their homes by bombing their villages. An attempt to say to the inhabitants of South Lebanon, "submit or leave." The Palestinians didn't even have that choice.

The Labour party is still being pragmatic. Just as it has made a deal with Jordan's King Abdullah in 1947 to divide up the West Bank and prevent the Palestinians from having a state of their own, now they wish to make a similar deal with Yassar Arafat. This is nothing but a modern day "Vietnamization" program, where Arafat gets to rule a fraction of the Palestinian homeland in exchange for fighting Israel's enemies, those "crazy and irrational" Muslims, who still think they should be allowed to gain full rights over land that was stolen from them by force.

This agreement will not bring peace. It may reduce the costs of the Israeli state and improve the international situation, vis-a-vis what the U.S. wants.

The big losers will be the Palestinians, as usual. Once again they will be in the position of "damned if they do, damned if they don't." We all want peace. The United States public must be told that peace will be achieved only after the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people are restored, when justice is made, when refugees return to their land, when there is a viable, independent Palestinian state. This state must have a leader at its helm, not one forced into submission by his enemies and turned into a mercenary against his own people. Also, the Israeli state alongside the Palestinian must become smaller, less militaristic, and understand that they are one people among many in the Middle East who must be respected.

Readers may ask, Why should we care? There are two answers. First, it is a moral question — Should Israel continue to prosper in the home of displaced Palestinians, while the latter simply decay in foreign lands? And secondly, When there is a war again, a more terrible war than any previous war the region has seen, who will foot the bill? That's right, you — the U.S. taxpayer.

Charles Lencher is a UMass student.

Breaking the myth boys don't cry

I'd like to respond to Arthur Stapleton's column [Collegian, Sept. 20].

Two weekends ago, my paternal grandmother passed away, from lung cancer.

She was a friend too.

I hope things are faring better for your grandfather.

What really struck me was seeing a man talk about being vulnerable, feeling feelings and even (gasp!) crying.

As an avid cryer myself and as someone recovering from "I am a rock" male conditioning, it was good to see those words in the paper.

Maybe if there were more men talking about their feelings and crying, we wouldn't need to behave as violently and apprehensively as we sometimes do.

Ben Zerman
Belchertown

To all of my esteemed and beautiful columnists:

We will be having an Ed/Op staff meeting on Tuesday the 28 of September, at 6:30 p.m. in the Collegian offices.

This is a mandatory meeting for all weekly and bi-weekly columnists, it shouldn't take long — we promise.

Be warned that the Editorial Goddess will be quite miffed if you are not there — and will spend the majority of Tuesday night pondering what to do with your miserable existence. Assuredly, it will have something to do with clams.

P.S. Clothes are optional.

[I'm kidding — about the clothes, kids.]

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS

248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2

- Eff., 1, 2, &3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $420 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

judies

New Menu
New Low Prices
$3.99
Lunch Specials
Mon-Fri until 4

With This Ad, Get One Free Popover with Purchase of $3.99 or More.

Expires 10/28/93
One Coupon Per Person Per Visit

It's Back to School Time

10% off with Student I.D.
Not valid with other discounts
Does not apply to oil changes
Discount valid only at time of purchase
offer expires 10/3/93

Free Midas Shuttle to Campus

MIDAS

MUFFLERS BRAKES SHOCKS STRUTS
COMPUTERIZED ALIGNMENT
RTE. 9/HADLEY
586-9991
Near Hampshire Mall

■ forum

continued from page 1

Mike DeRop, a sophomore Political Science major, said.

Following Clinton's address, Senator Stan Rosenberg (D), Representative Ellen Story (D), and the director of Health Services, Bernie Melibe moderated a discussion.

Rep Story began by sharing her enthusiasm for Clinton's presentation.

"I think this was an absolutely brilliant speech," Story said.

To all those students interested in pursuing medical professions, Rosenberg asked what the possible impacts may be to health profession fields in the future if the plan is passed.

Students also presented questions and concerns which one of the moderators tried to answer.

"In the first 100 days, everyone was quick to criticize,DeRop said, "but I think everything is falling into place."

A counterpoint was also provided to students by Mary Wentworth, an Amherst town activist supporting a single payer health plan.

Unlike Clinton's plan, a single payer plan would provide a progressive structure of paying where the rich would pay more than the poor.

Melibe said the university is working on the quality of care provided when asked by a student if Clinton's health care package would have any effect on Health Services.

"You can have the best system in the world," she said, "but if you can't get to it, it's not worth much."

Matt Pavesi, Speaker of the Student Government Association, said the turnout of students was "excellent."

"It shows that students are not the apathetic fools everyone thinks we are," he said.

Story said the watch was a "great idea".

"I think with an important event such as this," she said, "it is wonderful to bring in people to experience it together."

Abandoned Property Auction • October 3

The Division of Public Safety will conduct a public auction of abandoned property on Sunday, October 3 and 10 am at Grinnell Arena near Lot 64. Viewing will be from 9-10 am on the day of the sale.

The auction sale of abandoned property is in accordance with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 75-32A as amended.

The abandoned property includes approximately 70 bicycles and miscellaneous items. All items will be sold as is. Identification will be required on all personal or business checks. All property must be removed by the buyer immediately after sale.

Paid Advertisement by Department of Public Safety

What Did You Do Last Winter? This Year... JOIN THE

UMASS SKI CLUB
BE A PART OF THE TRADITION
GENERAL INFORMATION MEETING

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 26
7:00 PM
CAMPUS CENTER RM 163-C

ALL LEVELS OF SKIERS WELCOME!
WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?
JOIN US NOW!

430 Student Union • 545-3437

Golden Key
National Honor Society

All Members Meeting!
Monday, September 27
7:00 pm
Campus Center Room 904
Update on 1992-1993 Activities
Planning for 1993-1994

For More Information Call:
Gladys Rodriguez
Dean of Students Office
545-2684

■ rally

continued from page 3

made and Clinton's proposed community service package for college students.

He said that Clinton's proposal is basically "two years of servitude" for the lower income students who want to obtain a higher education.

"Don't trust leaders," Lenchner said.

Reynolds Winslow, president of the Amherst regional NAACP and director of the Minority Engineering Program joined the rally to encourage students to become involved with the change of social injustices. He said by working together changes can be made in the situation on campus and in the country.

Francis Crowe of the American Friends Service Committee spoke about her group's campaign to stop the screening of "Boxing Helena" at the Mountain Farms Movie Theater.

"With the violence that is being inflicted on women in our society today, we don't need images like that out there to give people ideas," she said.

Crowe performed a symbolic gesture about the "senseless spending" on weapons in the United States. She held up a can filled with BB pellets, each representing a tonnage of weapons owned by the U.S.

AFF leader, Martin Jones, concluded the rally by saying that more gatherings will be planned in the near future.

Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center

THE NEWMAN CENTER WELCOMES YOU !

LORD'S DAY MASSES:
Saturday : 4:30 pm
Sunday: 8:00 am, 9:30 am, 11:00 am and 7:00 pm

DAILY MASSES:
Monday - Friday : 12:15 pm and 5:15 pm
Saturday: 9:00 am

SACRAMENT of RECONCILIATION:
Saturday: 3:00 to 4:00 pm or upon request.

The Newman Center is located at 472 North Pleasant Street in Amherst, MA 01002, and is open daily from 8:00 am until 10:00 pm.

Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center

STAIRMASTER

AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low

Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

BayBank Gives Students A Great Package At A Great Price.

The BayBank Student Value Package.®
Save time and money with a great banking package specially designed for students. The Student Value Package features:

- ❑ Checking and companion Savings
- ❑ The BayBank Card with X Press Check™
- ❑ Unlimited BayBank X Press 24® transactions
- ❑ Overdraft Protection of up to $250¹
- ❑ A BayBank Credit Card with a $500 credit line²
- ❑ Free CheckView®

Plus there's no normal monthly service charge if you're under 19. If you're 19 or older, your package price is just $5 a month which includes eight checks.³ And the annual fee for a BayBank Credit Card is just $21.⁴

Get A Great Rate And Establish A Good Credit History With A BayBank Visa® Or MasterCard®.

Use The BayBank Card To Get Cash At Over 750 BayBank X Press 24® Banking Machines - Many On College Campuses. And With X Press Check You Can Use Your BayBank Card Like A Check Anywhere MasterCard Is Accepted.

Open your BayBank Student Value Package today!
Visit your nearest BayBank office or call 1-800-BAY-FAST.®

Full-service offices and banking hours: Amherst: 75 East Pleasant Street (Monday - Thursday, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.; Friday, 10:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.; Saturday, 10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.) Northampton: 297 King Street (Monday - Wednesday, 9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.; Thursday and Friday, 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.; Saturday, 9:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.)

BayBank

Member FDIC Equal Opportunity Lender
¹To qualify for X Press Check. Reserve Credit overdraft protection, and a BayBank Credit Card you must be 18 or older and have no adverse credit history.
²Other charges for transactions at BayBank X Press 24 CASH® from BayBank ATMs, and designated point of sale terminals, are additional. A $.75 per check fee applies to each check after the eighth. You must provide proof of current student status, e.g., school I.D.
³Visa and MasterCard. A.P.R. - 14.4%, adjusted monthly, with a $21 annual fee. Rate as of September, 1993. Please call 1-800-BAY-FAST for current rate information.

Regency Hairstylists 253-9526
189 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA

Have Your Hair Cut And Receive A Free Tanning Visit
Haircuts $13 to $15
Drying Included

Expires 11/15/93

R&P Liquors
Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade
253-9742
505 West Street • South Amherst

SPIN Inc.
Mobile DJ Systems
DJ SERVICE FOR:
Formals • Semi-Formals •
Organizational Parties • Dorm Parties
• Campus Wide Events
586-6470 ☆ $25 off with this ad on your next party ☆

Until there's a...

24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...

There's us...

$29.95 professional resumé package

kinko's the copy center

Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.

220 N. PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-253-2543

■ schools

continued from page 1

fact that living and operating costs in New England, particularly the Boston metropolitan area, are among the highest in the nation," said Clare Cotton, president of AICUM.

Brandeis University in Waltham costs $25,415 this year for tuition, room and board, making it America's third-costliest school. Officials there stressed they will spend more than $21 million this year on financial aid.

"Obviously this university is concerned about the cost of higher education and continues to search out every possible means for controlling increases," Brandeis President Samuel Thier said Tuesday.

Officials emphasized that the annual increase in the cost of Massachusetts colleges was in line with the national average. In both cases, undergraduate tuition at four-year private colleges rose 6 percent.

■ schools

continued from page 1

"We would not like and do not intend to use any force," Yeltsin said. "We want everything to go peacefully, without blood."

Defense Minister Pavel Grachev said the military "unequivocally supports the president as commander-in-chief." In an apparent show of force, the army held troop exercises in several cities.

Calvin Klein

191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-2013

J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN

22 Masonic St. Northampton 586-6336

Open 7 days · Thursday nights in Northampton

JUDICIAL HEARING BOARD

WANTS YOU TO BE A MEMBER

If You. . .

• Are Interested in Campus Leadership
• Wish to Improve Your Communication and Listening Skills
• Are a Full Time Student
• Have at Least a 2.0 G.P.A.
• Are Not on Judicial Sanction

Apply To Be A Hearing Board Member
Training Held October 5 & 6 From 7-10 pm
At the Campus Center

Applications Available At:
Residential Cluster Offices &
The Dean of Students Office • 227 Whitmore
Student Attorney General's Office

Application Deadline: 5:00 pm
October 1, 1993

Any Questions????? Contact:
Paul Vasconcellos, Assistant Dean of Students
Shomwa Shamapande, Judicial Affairs Assistant
Jennifer Cooper, Judicial Affairs Assistant
At the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore Phone # 545-2684

Go Minutemen!

LIQUORS 44

BEER WINE LIQUORS

SAM ADAMS OCTOBERFEST $4.99 + DEP. 6 PK. BOTTLES

ROLLING ROCK $12.99 + DEP. CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES

BUD DRY $10.99 + DEP. CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES

LIONSHEAD $7.49 CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BOTTLES + DEP

BECKS $8.49 12 PK. BOTTLES + DEP.

WINE OF THE MONTH

CONCHA Y TORO $3.99 750ml
CABERNET SAUVIGNON, MERLOT, CHARDONNAY
100% VARIETALS FROM CHILI

GALLO LIVINGSTON CELLARS $6.49 3.0L
ALL FLAVORS

GALLO $3.29 750ml
WHITE ZINFANDEL

MOUTON CADET $5.99 750ml
RED BORDEUX

BLOSSOM HILL $6.99 1.5L
CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON

COSSACK VODKA $7.49 1.75L AFTER REBATE
SALE 9.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00

FLEISCHMANN'S GIN $11.49 1.75L

MALIBU RUM $8.99 750ml

JOHNNIE WALKER RED SCOTCH $24.99 1.75L

KENNEDY'S BLENDED WHISKEY $7.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE
SALE 9.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00

not responsible for typographical errors

OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday

• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS 9/23/93 THRU WEDS. 9/29/93

Full Redemption Center

STAIRMASTER

AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low

Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill

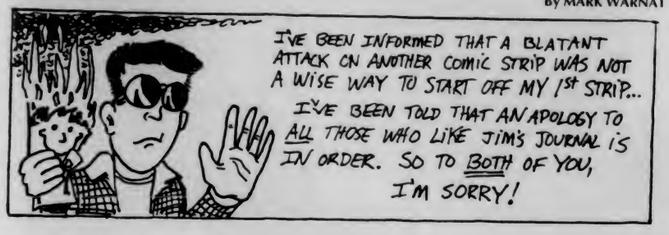
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Northhampton Bowl

NIFTY FIFTIES

9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

PSYCHIC EYES By ED SUTHERLAND

PSYCHIC EYES #2
OH! WHAT A HEADACHE!
AHH HA!...
HA, HA, HA!
I AM KNOWN AS "DAE-MON" LET ME BE THE FIRST TO WELCOME YOU...
TO HELL!
HAVE A NICE STAY, SUCKERS!!!
BUT I DO HEY... UNH!
AAAA

Untapped potential for intramurals

By JORMA KANSANEN
Collegian Correspondent

Through the hours of the weekly grind and quest for personal achievement, students use sports to escape from textbooks, term papers, and other academic pressures. Going to McGuirk Stadium, Totman Field or the Mullins Center to cheer on UMass teams is a great release of energy, but these options aren't always available. There is an often untapped resource to fill those needs, the intramural program.

"It is a basic desire," said director Franklin C. Wright. "To have fun in a sport, [students] need to know it is available to them."

"Intramurals can be competitive," assistant Kristie Delbrugge said. "Although they don't want to play at the varsity level, they enjoy the competition."

In addition to over twenty different men's, women's, and co-recreational activities, the intramural office offers the opportunity of employment, in the office or in the field officiating the games.

The most popular sports include flag football and soccer in the fall, basketball and ice hockey in the winter, and softball in the spring. A complete list of all intramural activities is available at the intramural office.

Not everybody can be Lou Roe or Mario Perry but the intramural program offers all students a chance to compete. The objective of the program is to offer students a healthy alternative to idle time and getting in trouble. Interested students should go down to the intramural office at Boyden 215, or contact by phone at 545-2693/545-0022.

■ Crofts

continued from page 12

will have to look to both the past and the future in order to right its sinking ship.

The sport of boxing has always been a sport which can be carried by its superstars. Think about it, boxing was always most popular when its top fighters were exciting and charismatic.

Muhammed Ali, who thrilled many with his crazy antics outside the ring and mesmerizing skill inside the ring, was one fighter who carried boxing to another level. Mike Tyson, whose breathtaking skill in the ring was only surpassed by his enigmatic personality outside of it, was another.

Ali and Tyson might not have cleaned up all of boxing's problems, but they did get many people to overlook the sport's sins. Now it is up to today's biggest names like Riddick Bowe, Terry Norris and Roy Jones to realize they are exactly that, the biggest names. It is time for them to show off their skills against the best, to show that boxing is not a dead sport.

Just take a look at Bowe, the current heavyweight champion. He is 230+ pounds of dynamite both skill-wise and personality-wise, but the public does not truly realize it because of his first two title defenses. Bowe fought two bums whose boxing skills resembled those of two hairdressers. It is time for Bowe and the other big names to step forward for their sport, because if they do not, it will continue to suffer in anonymity.

Television is another avenue boxing is going to have to repave if it hopes to improve its current standing in the public's eye. Pay-per-view television is okay for the biggest fights, but the ever-dwindling network market is going to have to be revived if the sport ever hopes to recapture its lost popularity. Before any of this occurs, however, boxing is going to have to realize that it is a sport which is in serious trouble. If not, then just like a staggered fighter who doesn't know it, boxing could very well go down for the count.

Jeff Crofts is a Collegian columnist.

■ volleyball

continued from page 12

to an end score of 15-11. Sky figured big in all the games throughout the night, collecting eight digs. She seemed to know where the ball was going and was right on top of it.

"Rachel Sky was phenomonal in the backcourt," praised Kenny, "which was good for transition to offense."

The second game featured some excellent blocking by the Minutewomen, particularly by Sky and Dionne Nash. UMass, which has a considerably shorter team than Holy Cross, managed to out-block them two to one (UMass collecting eight, HC with only four).

With UMass serving so well, HC was having trouble getting the ball over the net, and when they did manage an attack it was often stuffed. This combination managed to keep HC off pace, and they couldn't seem to regroup in time to be a threat to UMass.

The energy that the team generated seemed to make them play above what a freshman group would be capable of. Kenny pointed out "the nervous energy" and true "chemistry" the team seemed to use to win their games.

■ polo

continued from page 12

In its first six games, UMass has outscored the opposition a whopping 103-41. While one's first instinct is to marvel at the goals scored, it is the goals against average that will eventually prove critical to the team's success. Giving up roughly seven goals a game is simply phenomenal.

Yarworth said he is leaning towards Alex Mujica as his starting goalie. Mujica accumulated 14 saves, starting two games between the pipes (Army, MIT).

The goal scoring was well-spread over the weekend for UMass, as 15 different players found the back of the net. Javier Gonzalez (13 goals) and Tsan Engin (nine goals) sparked the charge.

YOM KIPPUR
Services held in the Student Union Ballroom
Friday, September 25
7pm Kol Nidrei
Saturday, September 26
10am service
3pm Book of Jonah
4pm Tshuvah Exercises
5:30pm Ne'ilah
L'shana Tovah

The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Counseling Collective Invites You to Join Us!
At Our Open House
Monday, September 27, at 319 Whitmore. Joins us anytime between noon and 2pm. For more information call Paul at 545-2684 or Lydia at 545-2337.

James H. McManus 256-6889
Hrs: Sun. - Thur. 6am - 3am
Fri. & Sat. 24 Hours
FREE! Breakfast or Lunch
Buy 1 Breakfast or Lunch at Regular Price and Receive the Second 1 of Equal or Lesser Value FREE. (Min. Purchase $3.55)
Buy 1 Dinner Get 2nd Dinner 1/2 Price
Buy 1 Dinner at Regular Price and Receive the Second 1 of Equal or Lesser Value at Half Price.
RTE. 9 • CAMPUS PLAZA • HADLEY

Old blue eyes says:
"Recycle this Collegian, baby, or witchcraft will happen to you!"

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Bud Dry $10.99 case bar bots. (Quantity Discounts Available)
S.S. Pierce Vodka $8.99 1.75L.
Miller "lite" 16oz Cans $12.99 case
Gallo White Zinfandel $3.69 750ml
Narragansett Lager $7.29 case
$6.99 (10 cases or more) WOW!!
New! Octoberfest "Fantastic"
Sam Adams or Catamount
Mix or Match $9.95 12/pk.
Rolling Rock $6.99 12/pk. bots.
Pilsner Urquell $5.69 6/pk.
All Beer plus Deposit
Visa/Mastercard accepted on Keg Deposits • Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)
Delivery Available

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL OF AMERICA
If You Are Over 18, and Would Like to Earn Full Time Income Working Part Time
Be a Bartender
• Day/Evening 1 Week
• Local/National Placement
• Limited Openings Remain for Oct, Nov, Dec Classes
• Make Your Move Now & Learn a Recession Proof Trade
Pop the Cork on a New Career
1655 Main St.
Suite 202 • Springfield
CALL TODAY! 747-9888
MC/VISA/AE

NEW INDIA RESTAURANT
Authentic Indian Cuisine
Specializing in lamb, chicken, beef, fresh vegetables & tandori delights
10% Discount w/Student ID
Lunch Specials $4.25 from Dinner Specials $6.95 from
All You Can Eat Luncheon Buffet $6.95 12 courses on Sat. & Sun.
Where you can order mild, medium & hot
Call ahead for take-out orders
Open 7 days for lunch & dinner
Lunch: Mon.-Sun. 11-3
Dinner: Sun.-Thurs. 3-10:30 • Fri.-Sat. 3-11
17 Kellogg Ave, Amherst • 253-4200

■ shots

continued from page 12

• It was nice to see women's volleyball in The Cage. A few kills, a few digs and another W for a young, talented team with a very confident and convincing coach in Bonnie Kenny.

• Safe bet this weekend is that Mike Hodges has the boys ready for the Puppies from Boston University. Silber loses another one.

• In the Bronx, fans are running onto the field. In Amherst, UMass women's soccer coach Jim Rudy goes into the stands for a portion of the game. Imagine sitting in Section 321 at Foxboro Stadium and King of the Hill Bill Parcells plops down next to you.

"You think I should bench Leonard Russell, pal?"

"You want a beer, Bill? No sense worrying about the team until we get Marshall Faulk."

"Good point. Got any Captain Morgan?"

• There's been a cry from our women (woman) reader(s) for an equivalent to the Cravat King contest. After consulting Gloria Steinem we've developed the Scrunchy Queen battle. The cloth-covered elastic bands that serve dual purpose as bracelets and hair-holders are now being judged on the same merits as men's neckwear.

Our first entrant Tracy "Racey" Monahan gets points for the smooth transition from hair to wrist in one easy motion. Points were deducted for the bland color selection.

Note: The NCAA now confirms that this space has officially and undeniably achieved GENDER EQUITY. (Scott's really lost it now, he's talking scrunchy. He's even fooling the cameraman. What does that mean?)

• Early Coach of the Year considerations to UMass water polo honcho Russ Yarworth for his comment at the sports luncheon yesterday. When asked by Mike Hodges how he deals with facing four Top 20 teams in one weekend (which Yarworth's team does this weekend), Yarworth provided this gem.

"A six pack," he laughed.

Now we know Yar's true worth - a good laugh.

• The Shirl was wondering what the Celts are going to do with another guard in the form of Chris Corchiani.

"If Parish goes down, they'll have a guard jumping center," said the All-Knowing One.

The Shirl, baking your cookies just the way you like 'em and picking the winners to boot.

• Does Dan Dierdorf's mother listen to him? Doubt it.

• As difficult as it may be to admit, a good majority of this campus tolerates all other sports as a way of passing the time until hoops begins.

• Heard there was some blood at the Black and White and Blue game over at Mullins last weekend. Pre-pre-season hockey and the fists are already flying. Ya-hoo.

• Keep your feet in bounds and your eyes on the Mets.

David Scott is a Collegian columnist.

Mental Health Groups
Fall 1993
The following groups will be offered by the Mental Health Division of UHS this Fall:

Adult Children of Alcoholics: Tuesdays 3:30-5
8 week structured support group. Begins mid-October.
Pre-group interview required.

Feeding the Hungry Self: Tuesdays 3:30-5
Support/therapy group for women with disordered eating.
Women can make either a semester or year-long commitment.
Pre-group interview required.

Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Support Group: Tuesdays 3:30-4:45
On-going, drop-in group. No pre-group interview. Group begins October 5. Check-in at 127 Hills North on day of the group.

Self-Esteem Group: Wednesdays 3:30-5
10 week structured group. Begins early October.
Pre-group interview required.

Panic Disorder Group: Thursdays 3:30-5
6 week structured group. Begins mid-October.
Pre-group interview required

For further information about all the groups or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
WE NOW HAVE INDOOR TENNIS & BASKETBALL !!
The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446
90 Gatehouse Road
"Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center"
• PVTA bus route to Rolling Green •
• pool • aerobics • aqua-aerobics •
• steps • nautilus • racquetball •
• free weights • jacuzzi • sauna •
• massage • bikes • tennis •
• rowers • treadmills •
Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($169) & get a free HFC T-Shirt!

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Five Colleges European Club Meeting
Thursday 9/23/93 7:30 pm
UMass Campus Center Rm 911
Info: 545-3875

Play What You Want to Play
Say What You Want to Say
Be What You Want to Be
Take a WOCH on the Wild Side
Become a DJ NO EXPERIENCE or talent needed. Come to the first WOCH meeting Sunday, Sept. 26, 7:30 Orchard Hill/Grayson classroom

The Wildlife Society
Come and Join
EVERYONE WELCOME
9/23 at 7 pm
Holdsworth 203

UMass Ice Skating Club Meeting
Thursday Sept. 23
7 pm Brooks Lounge
Beginners Welcome!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

College Pizza
Open for Lunch
at 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 Toppings Add $1.00
549-6073 549-6098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

AUTO FOR SALE

Ford LTD 1984 95K miles $750 582-0477

Honda Civic 82 runs great $750 367-9433

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Apple Imagewriter II like new all cord extra ribbon and paper $150 549-6708

Color TV 13" $59 18" $79 BW $25. Student Fridge $39/bo. Raymund 549-8547

GUITAR - etl.strg. Washburn acoustic w/case like new $150 James 253-3989

Mountain Bike Parts
For Sale
1. Joe Murray project 2 rigid fork DB chromoly, great cond. 1 inch steerer $50/bo
2. Specialized shoulder holder frame pack - fits inside seat/top tube $5
3. B&L Killer Loop sunglasses orange iridium lenses, nylon frames brand new $40/bo. Call John at 546-5179

MT. Bike – Mongoose Hilltopper. Many new parts. $250 or BO. Mike at 253-2847

1993 Mongoose Hilltopper Purchased in June includes receipts and manuals also comes with Girvin Flexstem and other extras. $350 or BO call Scott at 549-4959

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

Used MACS for sale. Goodprices. Free instruction. Call 256-1076

Univega 12 spd $120.00 or BO
IBM 386 SX PC Call for info, Jen 617-581-6946

FOUND

Attention New Students – Personal items left at the New Students Program this summer may be picked up at the New Students Office 304 Admissions Center.

Hey - did you lose something? I found your black kitten 9-16-93 outside Pufton. Call Shannon for info. 549-1100

GOALIES

ATTENTION GOALIES
We are looking for a goalie for the upcoming intramural ice hockey season.
If interested call
Matt 546-4820
or Chris 546-0880

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Att: Excellent income for home assembly work. Info 1-504-646-1700 Dept. MA-1307

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month + World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Excellent Extra Income Now!
Envelope stuffing - $600-$800 every week. Free details: SASE to International Inc.
1375 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling!
1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Is Spanish your second language?
English/Spanish Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college-level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information.

Sales Help Wanted
The Salvation Army
Is opening a store
in Amherst – please call
Send Resume to
Judith A. Fell
984 W. Columbus Ave
Springfield, MA 01105

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation, Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

LOST

Address book, green 8X5", v. important Reward Call Nathan: 253-7646

Lost Eyeglasses
Green Frames
Lost Sat. Night
Near Southwest
If found please call 6-4805

Lost Driver's License – Birthdate 11/28 REWARD 256-3480

MOTORCYCLES

Yamaha FZ 600 87
Red/White great shape
asking $1600
Brian 549-5996

PERSONALS

Happy 22nd Birthday
Oliver Campbell
Now you owe me!
Love, GeeGee

Spring Break 7 Nights from $299 Includes: Air, Hotel, Transfers, Parties and more! Nassau, Paradise Island, Cancun, Jamaca, San Juan. Organize a small group -- earn a free trip plus commissions!
1-800-GET-SUN-1

RIDE WANTED

Interested in carpooling from Longmeadow or Forestpark area. Ed 567-6237

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo 323-9742

SERVICES

Bodywork/massage Introductory special $30.00 or 2 for $50.00. 18 years experience. Have table will travel. Steve LaFleur 367-9433

Factfinder Custom Library Research. All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

SORORITY RUSH

Open Rush Times For Today:
Alpha Chi Omega - 8 pm
Alpha Epsilon Phi - 5-7 pm
Chi Omega - 5 - 7:30 pm
Delta Zeta - 7 - 9 pm
Iota Gamma Epsilon - NO RUSH
Kappa Kappa Gamma - NO RUSH
Sigma Delta Tau - NO RUSH
Sigma Kappa - 8 - 10 pm
Sigma Sigma Sigma - 7 - 8 pm

TURKISH STUDENTS

Turkish Student Association will hold its first meeting on September 23 at Campus Center Room 803 between 8 pm and 10 pm. All returning and new students welcome!

WANTED

Couch Needed
Big, Comfortable
Will pay cash
Jim 253-9479

Used,
One unit
TV
w/
VCR
Please
Call
546-1119

Intramural sports aren't just for athletes, they're for people like you Page 10

Sports

No. 8 Minutewomen too powerful for Yale

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

It's a simple philosophy — simple, but well-founded.

It's a philosophy that the No. 8 ranked University of Massachusetts field hockey team has been living by so far this season: If your opponent doesn't score, they can't beat you.

Yale	0
Massachusetts	2

The Minutewomen (4-1) practiced what they preached Wednesday afternoon and the result was a 2-0 victory over Yale University. The win was Massachusetts' fourth in a row and all four have come by way of the shutout. Their only loss was a 1-0 defeat at the hands of Northwestern in the season opener.

While the shutout indicates a strong defensive performance by the Minutewomen, the story of this game was the dominant play of the Massachusetts offense, particularly the play of forwards Jenn Salisbury, Danielle Borges and Tara Jelley.

"It was a total offensive effort," said Minutewomen coach Pam Hixon. "We were on offense for close to 65 minutes. I was really pleased with the play of our forwards."

Massachusetts and Yale played a scoreless first half, despite the fact the Minutewomen had 33 shots on goal, a fact that was not lost on Hixon.

"I was a little worried at the half that we would get tight and nervous about not scoring," Hixon said. "But I knew as long as we didn't make any mistakes, we'd get our scores."

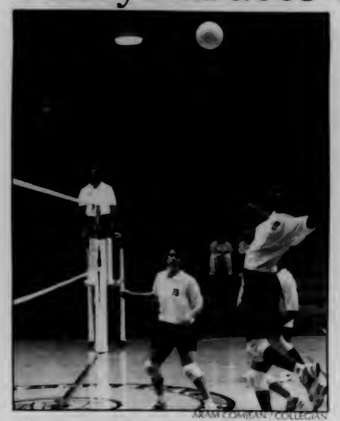
Junior sweeper Natalie Hart, who was selected as the Atlantic 10 Offensive Player of the Week, made Hixon a prophet when she took a pass from Holly Hockenbrock and Salisbury on a penalty corner and drove it past Yale goalkeeper Janell Kellman at 46:16 to put the Minutewomen on top 1-0.

Salisbury tallied the second and final Massachusetts goal at 53:54 when she pushed a shot past Kellman in the middle of a scramble in front of the Yale net.

Hixon also singled out the play of senior right midfielder Sherri Doiron.

"Sherri played the entire game at right midfield," Hixon said. "She played the best game I've seen her play in the four years she has been here."

The stats for this game are overwhelming. Massachusetts had 50 shots on goal, compared to eight for Yale. The Minutewomen also held a 19-3 advantage in penalty corners and the Elis did not take their first corner until Massachusetts had established the two-goal lead.



Kellman was busy all day. She stopped 25 shots, which was very respectable. Freshman goalie Hilary Rose saved just six in lowering her goals-against average to a microscopic 0.20.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Junior Colleen Duffy and the rest of the UMass field hockey team ran its winning streak to five yesterday by beating the Elis of Yale.

Volleyball aces Cross in Cage

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team rolled on, defeating Holy Cross in three sets in its home opener at the Cage.

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team made a triumphant return Tuesday night, defeating Holy Cross 3-0 in its home opener. The first game was a close 15-11, but the Minutewomen controlled play for the rest of the night with the last two games ending 15-5 and 15-3.

UMass (5-2) played before a boisterous crowd of just over 200 at the Curry Hicks Cage, which according to UMass coach Bonnie Kenny, was a good sized crowd, especially considering it was "a rainy night, and [the game was] competing with a concert [Aerosmith at the Mullins Arena]."

It did not take long for the crowd to become acquainted with the new women's team, getting more and more involved with the game with every point. The excitement both on and off the court made for an intense game.

In the first game the Minutewomen jumped out to an early 9-4 lead, but faltered for a short time as Holy Cross (4-5) managed to tie it up 9-9. At this point, the Minutewomen regrouped and seized control of play, and kept it for the remainder of the night.

Texas native Kimberly Mizner served up a handful of aces for the lead; she would collect seven for the night along with 11 kills to make her the leader in these two categories.

A diving play by Rachel Sky saved UMass on the 14th point. The Minutewomen then served the game

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 10

Madness, Pats top Shots list

Why can't the Patriots have fans that run onto the field and cause "do overs?" Then the crossbar incident wouldn't have counted. Inevitably the next try would have hit the upright.

• The Drew England Patriots and You . . . Inventing New Ways to Lose.

The Collegian's Own SCOTT'S SHOTS

• ESPN. Midnight Madness. Dean Smith. Rick Pitino. Mullins Center. You have arrived at your destination, Mr. Calipari.

How do you think ole pal Jim Calhoun over at UConn feels about Cal's Pals splitting air time with the 'Cats and Tarheels? My, how the mighty have fallen.

• Took a walk over to visit the Old Lady we call The Cage the other day. She's doing fine thank you, but does have some regrets.

"You mean Marcus Camby and Tyrone Weeks and Donta Bright will never play a real, live game inside my walls?"

"Sorry, just enjoy their pick-up games."

"I will. But just imagine the paint those nice boys could peel off my ceiling."

Imagine, indeed.

Turn to SHOTS, page 11

Blow after blow keeps the boxing world reeling

Boxing is in tough shape right now.

Heavyweight Ray Mercer gets arrested for supposedly bribing Jesse Ferguson during their bout last year. Promoter Bob Arum needs a quick replacement for a match, so he picks a fat slob out of the crowd to fight heavyweight Tommy Morrison, only the owner of the best left hook in boxing. In the most anticipated fight of the year, Pernell Whitaker out-everythings Julio Caesar Chavez, yet only gets a draw in a horribly scored decision.

When Jeff takes ass, you're bound to get caught in the CROFTSFIRE

These are just three incidents out of many that have given boxing something it can ill afford: another black eye. Boxing has always been a sport which has been frowned upon by the public.

Obviously, the violent aspect of the sport is the major reason for the turnoff. However, it is not the only one. Mob ties, drug use, and other improprieties have found their way into boxing.

Now it is fairly evident that the sport of boxing is going to have to do a number of things if it hopes to reverse its current downward slide. It

Turn to CROFTS, page 10

Water polo to be tested

Minutemen to face four ranked squads

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

Combining depth and versatility, the University of Massachusetts water polo team showed little sympathy to its four opponents this past weekend.

Tuning up for next week's critical weekend set when they will face four Top 20 teams, the Minutemen walked all over Army (20-12), Fordham (20-7), USMMA (17-2) and MIT (16-2) with relative ease.

"I really don't think we've been tested yet," said head coach Russ Yarworth. "That's what this [upcoming] weekend is all about."

UMass, now 6-0, moved up to No. 11 in the nation. This week's action should indicate how accurate that ranking is, as the opposition includes high-powered Princeton (No. 13), Bucknell (No. 17), Pacific (No. 5) and Navy (No. 12).

"I'm excited," said Yarworth. "I'm looking forward to it."

Falling behind to Army 7-5 at the half in its opening game, UMass came out with a rejuvenated offense following the intermission. A 15-5 second half explosion propelled the undefeated unit to a 20-12 triumph. But Yarworth wasn't particularly pleased with the effort.

"It shows our depth," noted Yarworth. "But it worries me a little bit that we're not coming out to play. In the second half they realized it was time to play polo, and they blew Army out of the pool. You can't do that."

Turn to POLO, page 10

THIS WEEKEND

September 23–26
The Collegian's Guide to Arts & Entertainment in the Five C[illegible]ege Area [illegible]d the P[illegible]er Valley

Folk–Pop comes to The Valley

By Dana Forrar
Collegian Staff

Livingston Taylor has been entertaining audiences for a quarter of a century now and still is playing over 100 shows a year. The Iron Horse is proud to present him this Friday and Saturday, Sept. 24 and 25, for two shows that will fill your heart and ears with mirth.

At a young age, Livingston was always bothering brother James to teach him a new chord, a new sound. Since then, Livingston has taken a different route in embracing folk as his main musical love. His heartfelt lyrics and velvety voice give Livingston an envious and simple style so well played live. Each of his songs is a work of art that has passed many stages and assumed its own life.

"Why write 20 mediocre songs when what we need is one great one? I figure I owe it to humanity not to curse them with another silly waste of time," he said.

At a Livingston Taylor show you will find him do a little of everything. He is equally adept at playing the piano, banjo and guitar, and his side show of his quick wit and laid back demeanor both disarms and entertains an audience. His relaxed countenance and pleasant demeanor whisk you away from the setting and bring you into his living room where he'll tell you about his dog, Diesel, as his wife Maggie sits among the audience and watches.

Livingston comes to the valley for the first time in a year and a half in support of his brand new album, Our Turn to Dance, released on Vanguard Records. With these new songs he brings a wide repertoire of songs to entertain.

In the past he has covered Pete Seeger's Dance with Me, If I Only Had A Brain, which you will find yourself whistling along at the show and humming all night, as well as doing crowd favorites Grandma's Hands, Railroad Bill, and especially, No Easy Way to Break Someone's Heart. But the set always changes as he [illegible] told me, "I haven't had a set list since 1972."

Fellow folk artist Don White will be opening the show. In the past Livingston has worked with Jonathan Edwards, Nanci Griffith and brother James.

If the course load has you bogged down, if the other half has you depressed, if you're in search of a great date idea, then let Livingston bring you a smile. He is truly a must-see feel-good entertainer.

Tickets are available at the Northampton Box Office for $15 in advance and $16.50 at the door the night of the show. Doors open at 5:30 for dinner and White will take the stage between 7 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Livingston Taylor

Jonathan Edwards

By Dana Forrar
Collegian Staff
and Jeff Trulson
Collegian Correspondent

The man who originated 'unplugged' is coming to the valley this weekend. John Wesley Harding and his guitar are coming to Amherst College this Sunday to broaden our minds and dazzle our ears in support of his newest release, Pett Levels: the Summer EP.

Harding's singing/songwriting has been widely appreciated, shunning commercialism as is evident as he plays the Amherst College Frontroom, a small, quaint arena perfect for Harding's talent and comical antics. Harding is quick on his feet with some witty or political remark, reminiscent of Billy Bragg and most of the singer/songwriter protest Brits. However, Harding takes it a step further by playing his folk-pop alone, unplugged.

In the past he has covered such songs as Prince's Kiss and Madonna's Like A Prayer and has given them his own touch, but rarely, if at all, will he play these in concert. In fact, he seems to have a tight set list, leaving little room for request. He once wrote, "[they'll] never be played again, no matter how loud you shout."

But Harding knows his crowd-pleasers, playing his hits People's Drug, Person You Are, Kill the Messenger, Devil in Me, and if you're lucky, July 13, 1985. In playing the Iron Horse this summer with Peter Morton, he asked repeatedly for requests, the crowd yelling back in acquiescence and fervor.

Harding's folk-pop sound is similar in style to Elvis Costello's earlier work. Harding's voice holding a close gritty British accent. His lyrics are often witty: "I got a sweetheart I call her honey/ and I've also got a wife," as well as touching and poignant.

"I put my forehead to the door/ I heard the famous sound of infidelity/ Looks like I loved and lost once more/ but all is fair in love and war, supposedly."

Writing and singing of love and politics keeps Harding to topics of real true life experience. He writes of fidelity and honesty with a passion. "What's the point of a headful of something/ when you've got a heartful of nothing."

When you see a John Wesley Harding show, you know you've seen his best, he's given his all, often doing several encores. His nimble fingers and able voice will entertain you, his lyrics will make you laugh, always makes you think. His show will be a pleasant confirmation of what you may have heard on tape or CD, or better yet, an introduction to a truly great entertainer.

Harding recalls Steinbeck, "there you have something the deep chords beating, beating, while the melody runs on the strings like little footsteps . . . and each wished they could pick a guitar, because it is a gracious thing."

Tickets are available to Harding and his gracious guitar at For The Record, the Northampton Box Office and Amherst College Campus Center, room 103, at the price of $7 for Amherst College students, and $12 for everyone else. Doors open at 7:15 and the show will begin at 7:30. Tickets are general admission, and there is limited seating, so get your tickets soon.

Classic Aerosmith gives electrifying performance

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

With his unmistakable, unbridled energy and hilarious antics, Steven Tyler held the Mullins Center audience captive for a non-stop two hour Aerosmith show Tuesday night.

From the opening rap off their new album Get a Grip, to spastic renditions of their older classics "Walk this Way," and "Dream On," Aerosmith kept the audience bouncing, swaying and singing at the top of their lungs. "Mama Kin" inspired kooky new dance steps from the audience, as they smoothly slipped out from their neat rows and into the aisles.

Adorned in his usual opulent manner — jeweled top hat, lace collared tails and shades — Tyler led the band in original style but Joe Perry led in instrument mastery. Legs apart and head bent forward, Perry assumed the time honored, stoic stance of the musician at work. He even had his own solo — vocal solo, that is — rocking the house with his bluesy "Stop Messin' Around."

Perry took time out to reminisce. He told the crowd where he first got paid for his guitar work — a frat house at UMass! Of course, he did say payment came in the form of beer and five bucks. Joey Kramer was not to be outdone, however. His drum solo thundered through the house, while his kit moved in a half circle around the stage.

The only negative to the show was the heavy feedback that screeched through "Living on the Edge," but that didn't stop Aerosmith from a rocking encore of "Sweet Emotion."

Aerosmith, the veteran rock n' rollers, didn't disappoint the leather wearing audience of all ages. The show staples were all there from the fans blowing Perry's hair back, to the fog machines, to the swirling light show. What a show.

Opening for Aerosmith was 4 Non Blondes, lead by the very vocal Linda Perry. Blondes are best known for their recent hit "What's Up," which is subjected to relentless airplay. Despite this, Perry's live rendition of the song sent shivers down spines. Her voice is a roaring, momentous event in itself. 4 Non Blondes displayed a lot of promise, but of course even her head thrashing energy seemed tame next to Tyler's unbridled enthusiasm.

It was a shame that the night had to end, but Aerosmith clearly showed they have "What it Takes" to rock another 20 years.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Aerosmith rocked the Mullins Center Tuesday night.

Grammer's new role gets cheers

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

When they tore the set down after eleven successful seasons of "Cheers," only the good doctor remained.

"Frasier" is a spinoff television sitcom starring Kelsey Grammer in which he resumes his role as Frasier Crane, the high strung psychiatrist.

Other than Frasier, there are no ties to Cheers. Gone are Lillith, Frasier's former wife, and son Frederick. Frasier has given up his Boston psychiatric practice to become Seattle's newest radio personality. He hosts a show where the disturbed and depressed of Washington State can call Dr. Crane with their problems.

Frasier's new lease on life turns into a nightmare when his brother announces that he can no longer live with their father (John Mahoney) and passes him on to Frasier.

Rather than dealing with his father's numerous medical ailments, Frasier hires a live-in nurse (Jane Leeves).

Although it is a far cry from "Cheers," Frasier has potential. Mahoney is excellent, contributing blunt one-liners that kept the audience laughing. Leeves is strong in her role as the zany nurse. Both are successful in driving Frasier crazy.

"Frasier" adds more depth to the already strong NBC Thursday night, that includes "Seinfeld," "Wings," and "Mad About You."

Grammer has continued his success despite his numerous personal problems that have included drug charges and the painful break up of his marriage. Judging from his on screen performances and off-screen enthusiasm it hasn't hurt his acting at all.

"Cheers" may be gone but it appears that Dr. Crane could hang around for a while.

Hadley Coin-op Laundromat
206 Russell St./Rt. 9 Hadley
OPEN 7 DAYS 7AM - 11PM
Single Load Washers $1.00
Double Load Washers $1.50
Located next to the Hadley Pub & Campus Pizza
ONE FREE WASH w/coupon
Hadley Coin-op Laundromat
Located next to Hadley Pub
VALID 9/25/93 9AM-5PM
ONE COUPON PER CUSTOMER

THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
Every Monday GRATEFUL DEAD NIGHT! No Cover-$4.00 Rolling Rock Pitchers-Bands, Tapes
Every Wednesday GAY NIGHT! The Area's ONLY 18+ Gay Night-No Covers! College ID (21+)
Every Thursday UMASS NIGHT!
Every Saturday The Area's Biggest Dance Night
Live Performances
Sept. 24 Operation Mindcrime Queensryche Tribute
Oct. 10 Brother Cane
Oct. 22 John Valby-Dr. DIRTY
Oct. 31 Halloween ThrashBash III with PRO-PAIN
• 18+ Always • 3 Minutes from UMASS • Call to book your team/organization's/private party! Halloween or XMass. We can hold over 600 people in the club. • We are looking for UMASS Bands to participate in a National Showcase Competition.
Rt. 9 Hadley • 413-586-4463 • Ticketmaster

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
MONGOOSE MOUNTAIN BIKES ON SALE!
Rockadile was $490 - now $449.95
IBOC comp 1992 was $700 - now $519.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
319 Pleasant St Northampton 586-3810

THE SPA HOT TUBS TANS
175 University Drive 253-7727 Next to Price Chopper
Introductory Tanning 8 Visits For $29.00

THIS SATURDAY! comedy CONNECTION CHICOPEE
All Ages All Shows
Peanut the Woozle Walter the Crank and Jose Jalepeno on a stick
Only 20 min. from the U. Mass campuss
JEFF DUNHAM
TOMMY DAVIDSON "In Living Color" Oct. 9
BOBCAT GOLDTHWAIT "Police Academy" Oct. 16
Memorial Dr., Chicopee 413•593•5222

Need A Roommate?
They're clean, quiet, and won't hog the bathroom!
Call Dave's...
We know what we're talking about when it comes to reptile roommates of any kind. We can help with food, supplies, homes (cages), as well as selecting lizards, snakes (including Boas and Ball Pythons) and more. Sorry, no advice on human roommates!
Farm Raised Iguanas
$24.95 with this ad Expires 10/21/93
DAVE'S SODA & PET CITY
The Supermarket for Pet Lovers!
HADLEY MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL 584-7511 SC

DEANS LIST CORRECTION

The following names were accidentally deleted from the 9/21/93 Dean's list for the Arts & Sciences Undeclared section. The Collegian apologizes for this error. (H) indicates honors.

COADY, DANIEL R.
COCHRAN, DAVID A.
(H) COHEN, STEVEN L.
CONBOY, HEATHER M.
CONLEY, BRIAN M.
COOK, ELIZABETH H.

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PEP GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
PARAMOUNT THEATER
TEARS FOR FEARS
SATURDAY OCTOBER 2ND
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT BOX OFFICE CALL: (413) 734-5874
ALL STRAWBERRY RECORD OUTLETS; NORTHAMPTON TICKET OFFICE AT (413) 586-8686 OR TICKETPRO PHONE CHARGE AT 1-800-828-7040

WEEKEND HAPPENINGS

The Weekend Happenings calendar is printed each Thursday during the academic year. Groups wishing to have an event published may send a press release containing all necessary information to Lisa Curtis – Arts & Living Editor, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian regrets that due to space constraints not all submissions can be published.

THURSDAY

LECTURE — "The Development of Studio Furniture in Post-World War II America" will be given by Edward S. Cooke, Jr. the Charles F. Montgomery Associate Professor of American Decorative Arts at Yale University. Cooke has published extensively on both historical and contemporary furniture. His lecture is at 7:30 p.m. in the A.P.E. Gallery on the third floor of Thornes Market in Northampton. This event is FREE.

CONCERT — The Art Steele Blues Band will perform at Dave's Other Place in Chicopee.

CONCERT — The Story plus Ellis Paul will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton. Showtime is 7 p.m. Tickets are $10.50 in advance and are available through the Northampton Box office at 586-8686.

ART OPENING — Fictions of the Self: The Portrait in Contemporary Photography will open with a reception at the Herter Art Gallery in Herter Hall from 5 - 7 p.m.

THEATER — Moveable Feast Theater presents The Octette Bridge Club at the Church of the Apostles, 58 Daniel Shays Highway in Belchertown. Performances are Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

EXHIBIT — The opening reception of Killing the Metaphor — The Art of Mythmaking, an exhibit containing sculptures, drawings and prints by Michael Kuch, will be held from 6-8 p.m. at the R. Michelson Galleries. The exhibit will be on display until Oct. 15.

CONCERT — Physical Graffiti, a Led Zeppelin tribute band will perform at Pearl Street in Northampton at 9 p.m. This is an 18+ show.

FILM — Die drei von der Tankstelle ("Three from the Gas Station) a German film made in 1930, will be shown at the Amherst College Center Theater at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

COURTESY JUDITH LEYSTER
Man Offering Money to a Young Woman

COURTESY FLASH GROUP
Physical Graffiti

FRIDAY

MUSIC — Peter Blanchette plays the Arch-Guitar (a cross between guitar and lute that he helped to design) and has a genius from removing the stuffy formality from classical music. He will be joined by Boston Band Arch-Guitarist Peter Michellini for an evening of heavenly duets at the Montague Book Mill. The show begins at 8 p.m. and admission is $5.

CONCERT — Yep! will perform with Bark Like A Dog at the Bay State. This 21+ show begins at 9:30 p.m.

CONCERT — Livingston Taylor will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall Friday and Saturday. Call 586-8686 for tickets. THEATER — Dark Cowgirls and Prairie Queens, a compelling dramatization of the lives of seven Black women who emerge from the American West during the period from 1800 to 1890, will be performed by the Carpetbag Theatre Friday and Saturday in UMass' Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 for students.

CONCERT — Local favorites, Rippopotamus, will return from Boston to play at Pearl Street nightclub in Northampton at 9 p.m.

HOCKEY — Hartford Whalers vs. NY Islanders play at the UMass Mullins Center. Call 5-0505 for more information.

FILM — The Audrey Hepburn Weekend: Charade celebrates the talent of one of Hollywood's best loved stars. Hepburn stars with Cary Grant in this elegant thriller at Mount Holyoke College's Gamble Auditorium. Admission is $2.50 and the showings are at both 7 and 9:15 p.m.

FILM — The American Museum of Natural History's Margaret Mease Film and Video Festival, is a touring program, and can be seen at Mount Holyoke College at 7 p.m. Call 58-2793 for more information.

FILM — The Muppet Movie, the cinematic masterpiece with the smooshy-faced cast that includes Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and Fozzie Bear can be seen at the Amherst College Campus Center Theater at 7 and 10 p.m. Admission is $1.75.

SATURDAY

FESTIVAL — First Annual Young Filmmakers Festival will be held at the Montague Book Mill at 7 p.m. This festival is also serving as a fundraiser for the Selby Eddy Five College Film Fund. Admission is $3.

FOLKTALES — Cric? Crac!, a collection of black folk tales from Haiti, Senegal and the southern United States, is performed in the delightful spirit of Story Theatre in Bowker Auditorium at 2 p.m. Tickets are $3 for students.

CONCERT — Little Jimmy & The Bad Boys, a rock and blues band with Jim Kaminsky, the original lead guitarist of FAT, will play the Green River Cafe in Greenfield at 9 p.m. Admission is $5.

MUSIC — Royal Regiments on Parade, Great Britains's best pipers, drummers and dancers in a spectacular tribute to their queen, can be seen at the UMass Mullins Center at 7:0 p.m. Tickets are $18.25 and $15.25.

PARTY — "KASS Dance Party", sponsored by the Korean American Students of Smith, begins at 9 p.m. in The Gamut, Mendenhall CPA at Smith College. Admission is $5.

FUNDRAISER — "Swingin' in Sweetser," a buffet dinner in Sweetser park under a big tent provided by the Amherst Jaycees will include music by the Jeff Homes Swing band. This event is a fundraiser for renovations of the fountain in Sweetser Park in Amherst. The dinner begins at 6 p.m. and tickets for the evening are $10 available in advance at The Black Sheep, Global Trader and Blair, Cutting & Smith. Tickets will also be available the evening of the party.

SUNDAY

CONCERT — Andrei Ryabov & Micahel Marcus will perform at the Green River Cafe in Greenfield at 8 p.m. Admission is $5. Ryabov is a jazz guitarist from St. Petersburg, Russia who has played with many internationally known musicians including Dave Brubeck and Joe Pass. Marcus is an area bassist.

CONCERT— Jim Henry, touted as one of the finest singer/songwriters on the scene today brings his "glorious guitar work" and his new CD release to the Black Sheep Deli in Amherst at 8 p.m.

CONCERT — The Sankt Annae Youth Choir from Copenhagen, Denmark will perform in John M. Greene Hall at Smith College at 3 p.m. This event is free.

CONCERT — Back from a national tour this award winning bluegrass band, Ben Demerath and Sugarbeat will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton. The show begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $15.

EXHIBIT — Mimesis and Metaphor — Jocelyn Castro, an exhibit of embroidery, quilting and fabric collage, will be on exhibit in the Hampden Gallery until Oct. 15. Hampden is located at the top of the horseshoe off University Drive in Southwest. Gallery Hours are Monday through Friday 3 - 7 p.m. and Sunday 2 - 5 p.m.

PICNIC — The Pioneer Valley Folklore Society hosts its monthly Song and Story Sweep and Picnic. All are invited to come participate. This event begins at 4 p.m. at the Montague Book Mill and is free.

Shiny, happy Posies play sugar daddies

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

Posies
Pearl Street
Sept. 21, 1993

Ever suck on a Sugar Daddy and think how incredibly hard it is to really get your teeth into it, all the while noticing how intensely sweet it is, almost too sweet to take? But you hang in there and usually it gets soft enough to chew without bonding your molars and prying free your fillings.

The Posies are the Sugar Daddies of "alternative" music. Their Tuesday night show was sickly sweet, almost too sweet. But luckily there was a tough side and it went down very easily.

Unfortunately, thanks to the inadequate preparation on the part of the club and the dismal opening act, the good part of the show took a while to get to.

It's hard to understand how a club as established as Pearl Street still insists on keeping roughly two-thirds of the floor-space for one of its biggest shows of the season covered with chairs and for the most part useless tables. The remaining floor space was barely adequate to accommodate the crowd which actually wanted to stand up and move to the music.

As opening act Dig described it, "It's like we're on TV and you're there at home, watching on the sofa." Ironically enough, it would be Dig's act which actually needed a sofa.

Taking elements of Nirvana (the Nevermind period), Dinosaur Jr. and a cast of thousands, throwing them into a blender and subtracting most of the talent would best describe Dig. Relying on simple chord progressions and flat lyrics, Dig stumbled through a set of plodding and thoroughly underwhelming songs. Dig is a disjunct mess. By the way, if their stageshow is any indication, avoid their new album as well.

With faces of angels and music to match, all that was missing from the Posies set was the lyrics and the bouncing ball. After watching the dirge of Dig, this was a welcome relief. The Posies can play their instruments, they do know how to play their instruments and they are pleasant to listen to.

Buoyed by the energy created from their first song, "Definite Door," the Seattle foursome tore into an energetic and happy set, that is if the viewer could get footing amidst the chairs and tables to actually see the band.

The sound mix proved rather odd. One could actually hear the vocals and not go into cardiac arrest from the overamplified bass and percussion. And the vocals were worth hearing. Sharp, distinct and more than a little sweet, John Auer and Ken Stringfellow provided a harmonious vocal/guitar combination, sort of like Nelson (you remember - the pretty boys that Beavis and Butthead made fun of) but good.

"Door" with its power and composed energy segued to "Solar Sister," both tunes off their latest release, Frosting on the Beater. Later in the set, numerous other tunes off Frosting, including "Flavor of the Month" and the hit "Dream All Day" would also be heard in almost perfect replication of the polished album's sound.

During their playful banter with the crowd, Auer and Stringfellow would also address the abuse their hometown Seattle's taken, "Seattle's not that bad," and expound on their love of Northampton and similar areas. "Bricks and chicks, that's what we like about college towns."

The Posies introduced a bright jet of sunlight into the prototypical dark and stormy night. By not deviating from the sweet (and just a bit chewy) formula of their albums, their show was just the right amount of sugary satisfaction.

"Every Day Clinique®"

The season's best bonus, yours at no extra charge with a Clinique® purchase of $13.50 at Steiger's!

The seven helpers in your latest "Every Day Clinique" bonus at Steiger's includes all three steps in Clinique's famous skin care system ... Clinique good looks were never so easy!
Your bonus includes: Facial Soap Mild, with its own travel dish.
Clarifying Lotion 2, and a special travel size of Clinique's famous Dramatically Different Moisture Lotion.
You also get these lookmakers: Watermelon Re-Moisturizing Lipstick, a dash of pink cheer for lips; New Clover/Fig Powder Blusher Duo, a double treat of color for cheeks; and a special long Blusher Brush.
All packed in a sleek, white, re-usable caddy organizer...yours at no extra charge with a Clinique purchase of $13.50 or more at Steiger's!
One bonus to a customer.
The Clinique Counter
All Steiger Stores
ALLERGY TESTED
100% FRAGRANCE FREE

For a fast, free skin analysis, come and meet the CLINIQUE® COMPUTER
Programmed by a group of leading dermatologists, it asks eight essential questions and analyzes the answers to determine skin type and the proper products and procedures. Then a sequence of three minutes in the morning, another three at night, results in better looking skin!

CLINIQUE

Hampshire Mall Monday-Saturday 10-9, Sunday 12-5; Holyoke Mall Monday-Saturday 10-9:30, Sunday 12-6

Revitalized Dead to rock Boston

Grab your buds and fire up the Microbus, the Grateful Dead are coming to Boston! Jerry & co. will perform the first of six sold-out shows this Friday night at the Garden.

The band, who will come to Boston after a stint at Madison Square Garden, will play Friday through Thursday breaking only on Monday night.

According to the math wizards at TicketPro, some 75,000 people (roughly the population of Somerville, Mass) will have seen the Dead do their thing by the time they roll out of town on Thursday.

Some local Deadheads will be grateful indeed for the nearby venue after road trips that have taken them as far away as Maryland, Indiana and even Eugene, Oregon.

One fan who wished not to be identified, (we'll call him Deadthroat) said that concert-goers can expect to see "something hot." After seeing shows this past summer, he said he believes "Vince is coming along on keyboards and Bobby's voice is sounding great."

"Expect to hear new tunes over the six nights," Deadthroat said. The Dead have reportedly been playing some new songs for encores this tour like "Liberty," and a new interpretation of "I Fought the Law."

As for lodging, Boston is again "a real treat." Since Beantown is largely a college town, chances are you can bed down with somebody or somebody's friend.

Deadthroat recommends that those going to see the Dead should check out the Commonwealth Brewery before the show, because its a great bar right next to the Garden.

This is the first time the Dead have returned to Boston since September of 1991 when Bruce Hornsby played with the group.

So if Butterfield seems to have a tie-dyed aura of anticipation about it, or you smell patchouli on the wind, don't be surprised dude, the Dead's in town.

— MIKE EINHORN

ZANNA
Women's Shoes, Clothing & Accessories
Zanna • 187 North Pleasant Street • Amherst
413.253.2563
Open Thursdays 'til 8 p.m.

COLLEGE CA$H
FIND OUT WHERE YOU QUALIFY
☑ No proof of need required.
☑ No GPA required.
☑ No age required.
MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE$.
CONTINUOUSLY UPDATED FILE OF $OURCE$.
UNIQUE CODE MATCHING $YSTEM.
For FREE Information & Application, write to:
LOCATOR $ERVICE$
P.O. Box 1020
Waltham, MA 02254-1020
Department SC-
or Call (617) 558-5520

THE INEXPENSIVE ALTERNATIVE
RADIAL RETREADS
Full Warranty • Safe • Free Road Hazard • Economical
30,000 mi. Tread Life • 90 Day Replacement Guarantee
AS LOW AS $19.95

GUARANTEED USED TIRES
TOP QUALITY FULL WARRANTY
13" 9.95
14" 12.95
15" 14.95
HADLEY TIRE AND BRAKE CENTER
439 Russell St., Hadley
253-9911 or 253-9054

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS
YES COMPUTERS
STUDENT MAC RENTALS
FROM $75 PER MONTH
BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING
585•0007
NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

CAREER CENTER NEWS

Need experience before you enter the job market? Get a co-op or internship before you graduate

It can be easy!

1. Submit a completed application with an unofficial transcript
2. Call back after 2 working days to see if it's been approved
3. Sign up to attend Welcome to Field Experience, where you'll find out all the details.

Start now! Applications are available at the Career Center, in either the Curry Hicks Building, Room 16 or the Mather Building in the lobby. Call 545-2226 if you have any questions.

Special Presentation
for
EE, CSE, ME, COINS majors

NASA is coming to campus to talk about co-op opportunities!

When: Wednesday, September 29 at noon
Where: 303 E Lab

Look for more special events in upcoming weeks!
For more information call the Career Center Info Line at 545-2224.
Located in Fraternity/Sorority park, on the Orchard Hill bus line.

Plain folks like us read the Collegian everyday.

Undergraduate Rights & Responsibilities

ATTENTION
OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS

The 1993-94 Rights and Responsibilities booklet is now available upon request at the:
Campus Center Information Desk
Dean of Students Office (227 Whitmore)
Information Data Bank (2nd floor lobby Whitmore)

THE BOOKLET INCLUDES INFORMATION ON:
Academic Regulations
Code of Student Conduct
Mediation Program
Sexual Harassment Policy
Grading System
Picketing Code
And much more...

ALL STUDENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR KNOWING THE REGULATIONS AND POLICIES IN THIS BOOKLET

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Scorsese's Innocence depicts euphoric struggle

COURTESY PHILIP CARUSO

Michelle Pfeiffer as Countess Ellen Olenska and Daniel Day-Lewis as Newland Archer share a clandestine moment in Columbia Pictures' "The Age of Innocence."

By JON LUPO
Collegian Staff

Martin Scorsese's Age of Innocence is, in a word, euphoric.

In one of the year's most exquisite and wrenching love stories, Innocence captures the strict social mores of 1870's New York aristocracy with amazing period detail. The clothes and settings may be antiquities, but the message is contemporary: in a world ruled by appearance and splintered by hypocrisy, love must struggle to survive.

Scorsese has fashioned both a visual feast and a literary triumph. Edith Wharton's 1920 Pulitzer-Prize winning thinly disguised indictment of American class structure has met its match in Scorsese's brilliant and relentlessly faithful adaptation.

In both voice-over, words written on the screen and pure imagery, Scorsese pummels us with Wharton's prickly, passionate prose. While in the end the effect is more of a literary event than an emotional one, Innocence has already made its point. In this world of strategically planned dinner parties, where the color of one's dress could mean social ruin, how could love conquer all?

Daniel Day-Lewis (The Last of the Mohicans) plays Newland Archer, a very proper young socialite who is engaged to the seemingly oblivious May Welland (Winona Ryder). Theirs is a perfect union, embodying the character of old New York with its autocracy of family lineage and "unblemished" social stature.

Yet when May's cousin, Countess Ellen Olenska (Michelle Pfieffer) returns to New York, Newland is immediately captivated with her. She is fleeing a bad marriage, and with questions of her fidelity swirling about her, a scandal ensues. But Newland is more taken with Ellen's straightforward, honest nature — a definite departure in a time

Turn to INNOCENCE, page 7

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton / Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

PHONE 549-3555
$50 First Prize Contest
BIG GUY LIQUORS
Design a Logo For BIG GUY LIQUORS T-Shirts
All Designs in by October 8th. Front or Back or Both.
25 Montage Rd., North Amherst

STAIRMASTER
AEROBICS
Low Impact
Step
Hi/Low
Nautilus
Free Weights
Cybex
Lifecycles
Biocycles
Treadmill
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080

Peer Assistance Information and Referral Hotline

To support students experiencing harassment and other forms of intimidation

Applications available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, and must be recieved by 5:00 pm, October 8th.

Training Sessions for Fall 1993 will begin Thursday October 14th at 5:00pm and will continue on a weekly basis at that day and time.

Questions?? Contact Amy Ostiguy, Coordinator of the Peer Assistance Hotline or Paul Vasconcellos, Assistant Dean of Students Phone #: 545-2684

MAKE YOURSELF HEARD

The Student Government Association is holding elections for the Undergraduate Student Senate on October 6th, 1993. Students interested in running for Senator must take out nomination papers by September 28th, 1993.

Senate seats are available in all five residential areas, as well as the Commuter Area and the Greek Area. Students can pick up nomination papers at the Student Government Office, 420 Student Union.

IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTIONS CONCERNING ELECTIONS OR HOW TO GET INVOLVED IN THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION, PLEASE CONTACT:

CAM TEWKSBURY, ELECTIONS COORDINATOR, AT 545-0341.

◆ Innocence

continued from page 6

where communication meant calculated glances. In the words of Wharton herself, "a real thing was never said, done, or even thought."

As in many of Scorsese's films, the camera becomes not only a lens in which to view the characters but a character in and of itself. It is interesting to note that in a universe so rigid and confining, the only free thing in Innocence is the camera. Gliding fluidly through the impeccably manicured decors, lingering on the perfectly prepared food and the character's elegant costumes, it becomes a bittersweet metaphor for the freedom Newland knows he can never have.

With such a diverse and rich resume, Daniel Day-Lewis has proved one of Britain's best actors — sort of a rarified Gary Oldman. From such early roles as a gay punk in contemporary England (My Beautiful Launderette) to his Oscar-winning turn as a courageous disabled Irishman (My Left Foot), Day-Lewis is a subtle chameleon, investing each role with complex fervor.

In Innocence, Daniel Day-Lewis gives one of his most intricate performances. Newland is not a terribly aware fellow, but when he meets Ellen, the passion he feels for her taps far beneath the constructed layers of Newland's social identity. Throughout this subtle transformation, Day-Lewis continually challenges himself, resulting in a performance that's one of his best.

As the free-spirit confined by her own inability to conform, Michelle Pfieffer portrays Ellen in a performance that more than once recalls her superior work in Dangerous Liaisons. In that film, Pfieffer played a woman who betrayed all she believed in for a love that eventually cost her life.

There are traces of Pfieffer's earnest innocence here, yet, since five years have passed since Liaisons, both the actress and the performance have matured. Pfieffer invests a certain eloquent helplessness in Ellen, one that is paralleled with Newland's situation. Both are tangled in a cultural catch-22, trapped in the very society in which they are dependent on for their survival.

Like Pfieffer, Winona Ryder has grown up. By the evidence of her wonderfully developed performance in Innocence, it's more than enough to help forget her embarrassingly affected turn and clunky accent in Coppola's overheated version of Bram Stoker's Dracula. In fact, it's a complete transformation.

Ryder has the toughest role in Innocence, because it all depends on convincing the audience of her blissful naivete, only to reveal that she is not as stupid as she seems. Ryder's May is a cultured perfection of her world, raised by her mother and grandmother as the ideal woman for her society. Her love for Newland is real, or at least she's convinced herself it is, and in the end, nothing will stop her.

One would think that with the emotional web Scorsese has spun, Innocence would fall easy prey to melodrama. Quite the opposite, since the emotional climax comes half an hour before the film ends, the conclusion eschews broad tragic notions in favor of a subtle, though equally stinging realization.

You may not be physically moved by the conclusion, it lacks the thunderous romantic-tragic nature of Wuthering Heights or Dangerous Liaisons. However, Innocence isn't interested in wearing its heart-strings on its sleeve.

The Age of Innocence is superior filmmaking, another reason why Scorsese is clearly America's greatest living director. Innocence truly captures another time through Scorsese's expert looking glass, yet the real drama is seeing how much of that glass is really a mirror. A

- IMPORTANT IMMUNIZATION INFORMATION -

Before you pick up the phone and call us... ...PLEASE READ BELOW

Never received our Health Questionnaire packet in the mail?

If you have not received a Health Questionnaire, you still have 30 days to complete your immunization records. You can pick up the Health Questionnaire form at the University Health Services Medical Records Desk or at the Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00).

How much will it cost? Is it covered by my student insurance?

There is a $20 Nursing fee for these appointments. There is no charge for a Tetanus-Diphtheria booster. If you are a Massachusetts resident, there is no charge for an MMR (Measles, Mumps,& Rubella) booster. Out-of-state residents must pay a charge of $30 for an MMR (Measles, Mumps, & Rubella) booster. Your Basic Health Fee and Supplemental Insurance does not cover the cost of these clinics.

How do I get my immunization record?

You should contact your family doctor, your medical clinic from home, or your high school to complete your missing immunization requirements.

Can I get the needed shots at Health Services?

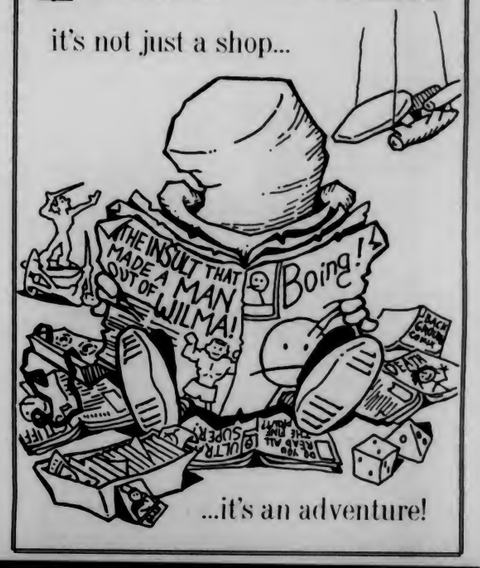
Health Services will be holding Immunization Clinics on Friday, September 24 and Friday, October 1. To make an appointment, call our main appointment desk at 549-2671 ext. 101 or ext. 102.

Will I be administratively withdrawn or be assessed a late fee?

All entering students must meet the state requirements for immunizations If you remain incomplete after the October 1 Immunization Clinic is held, you will be assessed a late fee fine of $25. Continued non-compliance will prevent you from registering for your next semester classes, and you may face administrative withdrawal from the University after the pre-registration period.

Other questions?

Come in to see us at the Health Services Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00) or call us at 549-2671 ext. 275. Please be patient with the phone...our lines get pretty busy.



University Health Services

SHOWCASE
COMICS • GAMES • CARDS

AMHERST
Phone 253-2900
48 North Pleasant Street
Downtown
under D'Angelos Subs

HADLEY
Phone 586-8711
Hampshire Mall
Route 9
next to movie theatre

it's not just a shop...

...it's an adventure!

LENNY KRAVITZ

UNIVERSAL LOVE TOUR
SEPTEMBER 29 • 8PM
RESERVED SEATS: $23.50 & LIMITED GOLD CIRCLE SEATING
FACILITY CHARGE INCLUDED IN TICKET PRICE.
MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
TICKETMASTER
FILENE'S - VIDEO PARADISE
MOVIES AND MORE
VIDEO DIMENSIONS
CHARGE BY PHONE: (203) 525-4800 (617) 232-2000 (617) 931-2000
FOR INFO: (413) 545-0808
TIX AT MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE AND TICKETMASTER. NO SERVICE CHARGE AT BOX OFFICE. TICKETS SUBJECT TO APPLICABLE TICKETMASTER SERVICE CHARGES. PHONE CHARGES SUBJECT TO AN ADDITIONAL PER ORDER HANDLING FEE. DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE.
PRODUCED BY DELSENER/SLATER ENTERPRISES

Compare & $AVE at Scott's

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon-Sat 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

NEW LOWER KEG DEPOSITS

Budweiser
Bud Light & Bud Dry
½ Kegs $39.99

No Permit Needed To Purchase Kegs

Michelob ½ Kegs $41.99
& Michelob Light
LOWEST KEG PRICES IN TOWN!

Busch & Busch Light
24-12 oz cans $9.99 + dep

Coors Extra Gold
24-12 oz bar bottles
$10.99 + dep

Bacardi Rum 750 ml $7.99

Cluny Scotch 1.75 ml $14.99

Robert Mondavi Woodbridge
White Zinfandel, Sauvignon Blanc, Chenin Blanc, Zinfandel
$6.99 1.5 L

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!

Tele-check for your personal check.

6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst

We now have all Mass Lottery games!

QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

Free for life.

(Offer expires only when you do.)

Get an AT&T Universal MasterCard and you'll be eternally grateful.
Because it's more than just a credit card that's free of annual fees forever.
It's also an AT&T Calling Card that currently gives you a 10% discount on already competitive AT&T Calling Card rates. It's all part of The i Plan.℠

To apply, come by our booth on campus or call
1 800 438-8627.

THE i PLAN℠

AT&T

© 1993 AT&T

Pearl Street

DANCE CLUB
Featuring The Area's Biggest Dance Floor and Best Light Show!

▼ Wednesday ▲
GAY NIGHT
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.

• Thursday-WHMP •
EIGHTEEN & OVER DANCING
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
WHMP's Panana Jack Broadcasting Live
Oct. 7 - Model Search By Elite Modeling of New York
Party on Thursday, Receive a Free Admission Pass For Friday

• Friday •
DANCING WITH DJ PETE D.
Playing More Top 40 Music
Sept. 24 - Back To School Party. Free admission between 8:00pm and 9:00pm with College I.D.
Listen To WHMP In The Morning For Your Chance To Win An Office Party

• Saturday •
The Areas Biggest & Best
SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE PARTY
with DJ Pete D.
Playing More Top 40 music
Dine in Select Area Restaurant's Receive Free Admission to the Dance Club.
Coming Oct. 2 - The Dating Game
Miller Genuine Draft $2 and Captain Morgan $2.75 all month

LIVE MUSIC

Thurs., Sept. 23-9:00pm/18+
Led Zeppelin Tribute
PHYSICAL GRAFFITI

Fri., Sept. 24 - 9:30 pm
RIPPOPOTAMUS
Electric Noodle Factory

Thurs., Sept. 30 - 9:00 pm/18+
AC/DC Tribute
BACK IN BLACK

Fri., Oct. 1-7:00pm
Male Dance Revue
CALIFORNIA PLAYGIRL CENTERFOLDS
Downstairs-9:00pm
U2 Tribute
ZOO STATION

Sat., Oct. 2-9:00pm
THE SIGHS

Tues., Oct. 5-9:00pm
JASON & THE SCORCHERS
The Swinging Steaks

Thurs., Oct. 7-9:00pm/18+
Pink Floyd Tribute
THE MACHINE

Fri., Oct. 8-9:00pm
THE BIG BAD BOLLOCKS

Sun., Oct. 10-7:30pm
OTTMAR LIEBERT & LUNA NEGRA

Tues., Oct. 12-9:00pm/18+
THE SAMPLES

Tues., Oct. 19 - 9:00pm/18+
GURU'S JAZZMATAZZ

Mon., Oct. 25 - 9:00pm/18+
TRIBE CALLED QUEST
De La Soul

Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office, For The Record in Amherst, Ticket Pro
(Box) 586-7660
10 Pearl Street Northampton
584-4771

Board of Governors tackle high cookie prices Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

73° Friday, September 24, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 12

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Former Clinton nominee addresses issues at FAC

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"The Meaning of Race in America - Don't Ask, Don't Tell," was the subject as Lani Guinier presented the first speech in the ALANA Speakers Forum Series at the Fine Arts Center last night.

After arriving almost 45 minutes late due to plane delays, Guinier amused the crowd estimated at 1,000 by telling how a man offered her ride to the airport thinking she was Zoe Baird.

Guinier began her speech sharing her views about President Clinton's decision to withdraw her nomination for assistant attorney general for civil rights saying that while the President trusted her as a person, he could not trust her working with his administration.

She mentioned a statement Clinton made after withdrawing her nomination in which he said that if she needed money, he would write her a personal check with no questions asked.

"In his eyes, I could a cash check. I couldn't hold check," said Guinier. She explained to "hold check" is a term that Philadelphia teenagers use meaning to "have influence."

Guinier said this country is not against the individual achievement of African-American's, in fact this society encourages it.

"But when it comes to discussing race," Guinier said, "our policy comes close to the one of gays in the military, don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue."

Guiner pointed out her nomination and her not being able to speak at the public hearing symbolized the state of denial about civil rights in America.

She insisted that discussions concerning civil rights and exploring remedies in racial exclusion must happen in this nation.

Guinier also discussed about how the media handle her nomination and perverted her writings in law journals. She said the press called her a "Quota Queen," saying she was "race-obsessed and anti-democratic" because she spoke out about racism and civil rights in this country.

She pointed out that there is "simply not enough diversity in the gatekeeping and decision making" sector in society. Guinier also said the "diversity" in Clinton's cabinet "is not about looks." Some of the people who are in the cabinet are acting on political motives.

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN
Lani Guinier

"Diversity means more than a photo opportunity," she said.

Guinier touched upon an idea about "cumulative voting," in which a person is allocated 12 votes to be given to any or all of the candidates running in an election.

She said this type of system would encourage voters to form cross-cultural alliances. If they wanted a certain person to win, then all of the votes can go toward that person, or they could distribute the votes amongst all of the politicians.

"I call cumulative voting a win, win solution, a positive sum," Guinier said.

Guinier's nomination was withdrawn this summer by Clinton after opposition from conservatives.

Ending the speech, Guinier challenged those who attended to join in a national discussion about racism and to challenge the policy makers of this country.

Guinier is a law professor at the University of Pennsylvania. She was a special assistant to the Carter admisistration.

Faculty looks at harassment

By FRANCIS ZERA
Collegian Staff

The Faculty Senate heard the recommendations of the Graduate Student Senate regarding sexual and other forms of harassment yesterday afternoon.

The recommendations, read by GSS President Shyamala Ivatury, involve the institution of a task force consisting of students, faculty and staff to study the problems of harassment on campus.

Once the task force is in place, the GSS would like to see a set of policies and guidelines instituted by the University aimed at "explicating policies for students and allowing them to recognize acts of harassment," said Ivatury.

"Since the onus of responsibility for proof of harassment is on the victim, potential victims, namely students, should be made aware of what constitutes harassment and what grievance procedures are available," she said.

The GSS wants the administration to ensure all charges of harassment are upheld and maintained in the records of the guilty party. They also asked that this information be reviewed when this person comes up for a promotion or tenure.

Workshops on harassment were recommended, as well as the suggestion that all new faculty members be mandated by contractual agreement to attend the workshops. The GSS recommended the widespread circulation of the harassment policy, once it is drafted.

In responding to a question as to his response to the GSS' recommendations, Chancellor David K. Scott responded that he would like to see a group set up to "create policies and guidelines on consensual relations" between faculty and students, on a "fast timeline."

Scott said he "personally believes in guidelines" concerning consensual relations, but added that he would prefer a consensus from the campus community to generate the policy.

The GSS would like to see a policy instituted "by the end of this semester," said Ivatury. She said the GSS plans to push the administration hard on the issue, with an official letter to Chancellor Scott, petitions and a report on sexual harassment by the Graduate Women's Network as evidence of the campus community's desire to implement such a policy.

Personally, Ivatury would like to see "no direct professor-student relations," especially when the involved student is enrolled in the professor's class. But a broad policy banning all such relations would be "unenforceable," she said.

Violent climate surrounds arrival of Haitian president

By JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

Haiti's political climate is worsening on the eve of the return of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. The assassination of Aristide's followers by alleged civilians and police failure to provide security for the legitimate government, has left the international community wondering what will happen on Oct. 30.

Violence in the streets of the capital is escalating. According to the New York Times, international human rights investigators have found several men decapitated after last week-end's "heavy police and army patrols in which local leaders were threatened."

Aristide called the head of the police and the army "assassins." He also called for the restoration of the international embargo. The U.N. Security Council has not decided on the issue but there were indications that such action can be taken.

Violence is not the only problem waiting for Aristide. Groups have organized activities in honor of former dictator François Duvalier. The events received

Turn to HAITI, page 4

Departments co-sponsor minority leadership forum

By MARNI E. HELFNER
Collegian Staff

The department of communication disorders, the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations, and the School of Public Health are co-sponsoring an open forum on Minority Leadership on Monday, September 27, 1993.

Various speakers from the community will be speaking on an array of topics with Dr. Orlando Taylor, dean of the graduate school of Howard University, as the keynote speaker.

Dr. Taylor will be speaking during the morning, as well as moderating during a panel session which will discuss the importance of mentoring, survival skills, and leadership responsibilities in a predominantly majority work setting.

Students are encouraged to contact the Office of Communication Disorders and register early, as space is limited.

"The intent of the forum is to

Turn to MINORITY, page 4

Apartheid comes one step closer to resolution

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Parliament voted Thursday to allow Blacks a role in governing South Africa for the first time, and angry White right-wing lawmakers warned the decision could lead to civil war.

"This makes permanent peace impossible," said Ferdi Hatzenberg, leader of the White Conservative Party, who led his followers in walking out of Parliament after the vote. "We have lost a golden opportunity for peace."

The vote creates a Transitional Executive Council, comprised of representatives from the 26 Black and White parties that have participated in the talks on ending apartheid.

The body will be a watchdog of the government, with some veto powers. It will help oversee the holding of the country's first multiracial election April 27.

The African National Congress hailed the vote as "a major victory for the forces of peace and democracy."

"For the first time in the history of our country, the racist Parliament has approved a bill which is responsible to the will and aspirations of the majority," the ANC said in a statement.

By giving Blacks a role in government, the bill set the stage for ANC leader Nelson Mandela to endorse the lifting of remaining international economic sanctions against South Africa.

The move was expected Friday during Mandela's visit to the United Nations in New York.

In Washington, President Clinton applauded the "historic step" and promised to provide voter education and training "to create a level playing field" for all the parties in the upcoming campaign.

The dominant White chamber of Parliament, led by President F.W. de Klerk's National Party, voted 107-36 to create a power-sharing council, agreed upon this month at talks with the ANC and other groups.

The Indian and mixed-race chambers of Parliament approved the bill with no dissent.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Soak up some local culture
write for Collegian Arts
talk to Lisa or Emily
113 Campus Center

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.

Feeling trapped?
Break loose.
Write for the Collegian

- WANTED -

Assistant Business Mgr.

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...

We are looking for :
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHMORES
with good communication skills.

Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, October 6, 1993 12:00pm.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person, to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, September 24

Film festival — The American Museum of Natural History's Margaret Mead Festival begins at 7 p.m. at Mount Holyoke College, Dwight Hall 101.

Meeting — UMass comedy troupe Mission: IMPROVABLE will hold its first meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804. Sponsored by Student Valley Productions, the troupe is open to new people of all levels of experience.

Service — UMass Hillel is sponsoring Kol Nidrei Service at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. The service is free.

Saturday, September 25

Film festival — The American Museum of Natural History's Margaret Mead Festival begins at 9 a.m. at Mount Holyoke College, Dwight Hall 101. Programs will be held at 9 a.m., 1 p.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Reception — The Muslim Student Association is hosting a Five College Welcome Reception Potluck Dinner from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center Room 917. Call 546-5855 or 549-0898 for more information.

Services — Yom Kippur services, sponsored by UMass Hillel, begin at 10 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Services are free.

Yeltsin calls for early elections

Moscow leader said he is committed to democracy

By LARRY RYCKMAN
Associated Press

Moscow President Boris Yeltsin on Thursday called for early presidential elections for next June, amid growing signs of government impatience with hardliners barricaded inside the parliament building.

Yeltsin ordered Interior Ministry police to "secure" public safety after accusing his opponents of distributing dozens of guns to anti Yeltsin demonstrators.

Yeltsin ordered parliamentary elections in December after disbanding parliament Tuesday, which plunged Russia into political crisis. Yeltsin had also said he would call presidential elections but gave no date, leading to accusations from critics that he was trying to establish a dictatorship.

In an attempt to reassure Russians that he is committed to democracy, Yeltsin announced Thursday that a presidential election would be held six months after the new parliament is chosen. The June 10 election would come two years ahead of schedule.

It was unclear if Yeltsin, elected in 1991 for a five-year term, would run again, although it is widely believed he wants a second term. Yelstin had said in the past he would not seek re-election, but aides said he may run again.

Thursday's announcement is unlikely to end Yeltsin's confrontation with reform opponents who want to remove him from power. The two sides have clashed for 18 months over economic reform and who should rule the country: the president or parliament.

However, Yeltsin's foes seemed increasingly isolated and desperate. The international community, the military, and much of the Russian public have backed Yelstin since he dissolved the Soviet era parliament, which is dominated by former Communists.

Parliamentary hard-liners said they would order presidential elections within three months, asserting Yeltsin had no authority to order an election. They said parliamentary elections could follow the election of a new president.

Lawmakers ordered the president on Thursday to "surrender to legitimate authorities or leave the country."

The political stalemate has paralyzed the government and crippled the economy. Reflecting the political turmoil, the Russian ruble plunged 18 percent Thursday to a record low, trading for 1,000 rubles to the dollar.

Anti-Yeltsin leaders remained barricaded in the parliament headquarters, known as the White House, with more than 1,000 of their supporters outside the building for a third day. Small bands formed self defense units and about a dozen carried rifles.

Todays Issue of the Collegian is brought to you by the letters Q, F and by the number 7

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE

All Beer Prices Plus Deposit
BUD, BUD Light, Bud Dry Bottles $6.99 12pk
Catamount trio & Post Road
(Mix-N-Match Not October fest) ..... $17.99 case
Le Garde $4.99 6pk
Black Dog $1.95 22oz
Genny Cream ..... $4.99 12pk cans
Beck Light & Dark $4.70 6pk

Bacardi Rum ..... $8.49 750 ml
Majorska Vodka $4.99 750ml
Gordon Pepper Vodka $5.99 1L

Sutter Home White Zin 2 for $7.99
La Villa - Chard/Pinot Grigio $8.49 1.5L

Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"

Open 9 am - 11 pm
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED
RTE 9E 338 College Street/253-5384
One mile East of Amherst Ctr. on Rte. 9

Local News

On Golden Pond

SARAH JOHNSON / COLLEGIAN
Emily Aceredo, a junior STPEC major, chills under a tree near the campus pond.

Meeting for harmony

Committee reviews Black-Jewish ties

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Correspondent

The upkeep of positive ties between the campus' Black and Jewish communities was addressed last night at the semester's first meeting of the Black-Jewish Relations Committee.

"We'd like to continue trying to foster better relations between the two communities," said committee co-chair Dan Henderson.

"I want to stress that the Black-Jewish Relations Committee isn't just a committee to spring into action when controversies arise," he said. "We want to keep fostering positive relations on a continuing basis."

During yesterday's meeting committee co-chair's Emily Gold and Henderson indicated that one of the Committee's primary goals for the upcoming year will be to increase campus awareness of the group.

Committee members also expressed a desire to communicate and plan events with other student groups on campus.

"What would be great is if we could also have other groups on campus come with us with an idea for an event," Gold said.

The Committee was formed in the fall of 1991 to facilitate communication and understanding between the Black and Jewish communities on campus. The Committee has helped to organize events such as the joint Hanukkah-Kwanza celebration held in 1991.

Along with several other student groups the Committee helped in the planning of the Multicultural Passover Seder's held in April 1992 and 1993.

The Committee also has hosted speakers and panel discussions with UMass professors. A panel discussion with professor's James Young and John Bracey was held in April of 1992.

The Committee hopes to again assist in the organization and presentation of a multicultural Seder. Another joint Hanukkah/Kwanza celebration is also in the works for this December. The Committee plans to again co-host speakers and panel discussions this year.

The Committee plans to hold weekly meetings and co-chair's Henderson and Gold indicated that it always welcomes ideas for programs and events.

Graduates gain seat on Board of Governors

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

The Board of Governor's have a new face in the crowd; For the first time since Fall of 1990, a seat representing the Graduate Student Senate has been filled by Darren Shaffer.

"Due to grievances with the Board, the GSS walked out on the Board in the fall of 1990. Now, we feel it is a time for us to participate again," said Shaffer.

In 1990 the GSS withdrew from the Board because of the elimination of two LBGA seats.

"I am pleased at the renewed participation of the Graduate Student Senate on the board," said Chairman George Fitzgerald. During Governor's comments, a general feeling of enthusiasm was displayed by the board at the return of GSS.

Along with the arrival of the new GSS seat, Shaffer presented a motion for the Graduate Student Senate to move administrative offices.

So far this semester, the BOG has sponsored many student activities. A promotion by 99.3 WHMP was brought to the steps of the student union by the BOG, along with popcorn being served to 4,000 students during orientation.

The main concern for the evening was the rise in prices of food services in the Campus Center. In the Blue Wall, prices of the gourmet cookies were raised to 65 cents, along with soda machines being raised to 75 cents.

According to the board, there was no justification made for the hike on soda by the director of cash operations, and a motion for an investigation to lower the price was passed. An investigation for lowering the price of Blue Wall cookies was also passed, with a motion to hear a defense from the manager of the Blue Wall.

As the BOG held their third meeting of the semester, nominations were held for Vice-president, however, the seat was not filled due to lack of participation by the board.

Participation by the BOG was sparse with nine governors missing, and only 12 participating. Also, there are still open seats on the board that need to be held by Southwest, Sylvan, Stockbridge and a governor at large.

Fitzgerald encourages all University students to get involved with the BOG.

"It is unfortunate that more students don't get involved with the BOG. It is a wonderful vehicle for student voices to be heard from all areas of campus," he said.

"All students interested in being on the BOG should contact their area governor," said Fitzgerald.

National Deaf Awareness Week gives the deaf a language and culture of their own

By JESSICA LEAPER
Collegian Correspondent

"Deaf people want to say 'We have our own language, our own culture.' We want to let people know there is nothing wrong with being deaf," said Mary Essex of the New England Telephone Company concerning the objective of this week's celebration of National Deaf Awareness Week.

Essex and her signing interpreter spent Sept. 22 informing UMass students about the technology her company provides to the disabled.

This week was sponsored locally by the Massachusetts Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing. Information and display booths similar to those on campus have been placed over the state, including at the Big E in Springfield, MA. There have also been lectures and workshops to educate both the deaf and hearing communities alike on this year's theme.

The theme is "DEAFinitely Without Limits." It expresses what the public needs to be aware of with the deaf community and its culture.

According to Corinne Brennan-Dore, Coordinator of Deaf Services at the University, there are only 15 declared hearing impaired and deaf students on campus. This makes it difficult to define a deaf culture on a mainly hearing campus.

Despite the small percentage of deaf on campus does not diminish their individual needs. Disability services provides sign language interpreters, closed captioned televisions, safety devices (fire alarms) with lights and telecommunication devices for the deaf (TTY).

The TTY's that are provided by New England Telephone Company allow the deaf to communicate over the phone to anybody. With the technology available for the deaf, there is very little from which one is excluded.

Since one in ten people are deaf this realistic image of the deaf was another focus for the week.

"Cognitively deaf are equal. They require special abductations but we all do. It [Deaf Awareness Week] opens people's eyes to the deaf and hearing impaired," said Dick Jordan, an audiologist with the Willie Ross School for Deaf in Longmeadow, MA.

The week will conclude here at UMass with the Hands Club booth in Campus Center. They will have sign-ups for informal sign language classes. This will provide students an opportunity to learn the language that the deaf use to communicate.

"There should be no limits to a person because they are deaf. Support services, community accessibility and technology is there but it needs to be spread more into the public," Brennan-Dore said.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Mary Essex of New England Telephone demonstrates a display screen.

New title dons OCHO office

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

If you stop by the Off Campus Housing Office this semester you may find that not only does it have a new name, but it has a variety of services available.

Sources say, OCHO was renamed Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center by the Board of Trustees because they felt commuter students did not know about the other services that OCHO offers.

According to Sylvia Lake, a graduate intern at the Center, the service for which it is most widely known is listings of available off campus housing.

"The knew name is a mouthful," Lake said. "OCHO is a much easier name to remember, but the new name is a great change because it better reflects what we can do."

Lake directs the house sharing program which is a service for students who want to live off campus. The program allows students to exchange some type of work for rent while living in someone's home.

The Pioneer Valley Oil Cooperative is another service many students do not know exists, Lake said. This service lets students pay less monthly for oil.

Other services the Center offers are voter registration, application for child care, human service internships and of course their database of rental listings.

Joanne Levinson, the director of the Center, is working with the Commuter Area Government, to be able to offer even more to off campus residents.

According to Levinson, some of the services she is trying to promote are energy conservation workshops, and a program dealing with tenant-housing rights.

"Students don't think about living in a larger community outside of the University once they move off campus," Levinson said. "These programs will try to better the intigration between the students and the community."

Levinson said some of the programs may even be available to the entire community.

The Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center is located on the fourth floor of the Student Union

■ minority

continued from page 1

introduce students to minority leaders on campus who are in leadership roles and to find out first hand from them some of the special and unique problems that they may encounter because of their minority status," said Charlena Seymour, a professor in the communication disorders department and creator of the forum.

The second purpose is to provide students with the opportunity to discuss leadership styles with minority leaders, Seymour said.

"Another purpose is to provide all students with an opportunity to improve their leadership skills by taking special workshops that will be offered in the afternoon," she said. "These seminars will be presented by invited minority and non-minority faculty on campus who are experts in their area of presentation."

■ Haiti

continued from page 1

protection from "uniformed police equipped with automatic weapons."

A new political party named the Rally of Democrats for the Republic, demonstrated on Tuesday outside the U.S. Embassy. The group, holding Duvalier's flag, "pledged to fight the return of the President," said the New York Times correspondent in Haiti. .

If Aristide is able to succesfully secure power, he will be in charge of the poorest country in the Americas. According to the Organization of American States, the country ranks last in literacy, income per capita and life expectancy.

Aristide, a preacher of Liberation Theory, has said that he will solve Haiti's problems by reorganizing the army and the police force. Meanwhile, he waits for the plane that will fly him back to power on Oct. 30.

Details of health plan revealed

Clinton gives specifics to uninsured Americans

BY CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If you've been skating by without health insurance to make payments on your BMW, the Clinton health plan could mean some big new bills. If you've been unable to get coverage because your child has a serious illness, you could be in for some big help.

President Clinton says "the vast majority" of Americans would pay the same or less for benefits that would be as good or better than most enjoy now. And everybody would win because they would never worry again about losing health coverage, he says.

There would be individual winners and losers by the millions if and when the nation switched to Clinton's Health Security Plan.

Most of the 37 million uninsured Americans would be winners. A good many are workers whose employers would have to start paying most of the health premiums for them and their families.

Nancy Scola of Towers Perrin, a major benefits consulting company, said workers with "wonderful benefits who pay hardly anything for them now are going to be the financial losers."

By forcing insurers to take all comers, without regard to their age or health, Clinton would drive up insurance rates for the young and healthy, while lowering them for older, sicker folks.

Here are some possible scenarios suggested by Marilyn Moon, a health economist for the Urban Institute. She developed the figures with support from the Kaiser Family Foundation.

The people are fictitious. The figures are based on the White House estimate that the average policy would cost $4,200 for a family and $1,800 for an individual.

Want to earn BIG money?

On a small investment?

It's staring you right in the face.

Collegian Advertising 545-3500

We reach students. 19,000 copies, every day!

The Campus Center Student Union Board of Governors B.O.G.

is hiring 4 students for various positions, vending, office and programming. Flexible hours available- between 3-12 hours a week.

Applications available at 817CC. Applications due by Thurs. Sept. 30. Interviews week of Oct 4th.

Read It... Remember It... Recycle It...

The Collegian

The Collegian. 545-3500. Call Us!

Until there's a...

24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...

There's us...

$29.95 professional resumé package

kinko's the copy center

JOHN PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 01002 413-253-2543

CURRENT AND FORMER OUT-OF-STATE STUDENTS MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR BENEFITS

Current and former students of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst may be entitled to certain benefits as the result of a legal settlement concerning the Spring 1990 tuition surcharge for out-of-state students.

BENEFITS FOR ELIGIBLE STUDENTS ARE AS FOLLOWS:
For students who paid the Spring 1990 tuition surcharge and are still enrolled at the University, the surcharge will be applied:

a. as payment of any other past due amounts;
b. as a credit against the student's bill for the next semester or for generally applicable graduation fees and associated charges;
c. as a refund, if a student indicates in writing his or her intention not to enroll in the next semester or not to graduate.

For students who paid the Spring 1990 tuition surcharge and are no longer enrolled at the University, the surcharge will be applied to any past due amounts. If there is no balance outstanding, the surcharge will be refunded.

For students who did not pay the Spring 1990 tuition surcharge, a release form must be completed so no further action will be taken to collect the surcharge. These students will be able to obtain any transcripts, diplomas, and other privileges that may have been withheld because of non-payment of the surcharge.

If non-payment of the surcharge has been referred to a credit reporting agency, the University will inform that agency that the student was in no way at fault for the non-payment.

To receive the above benefits, eligible students must return a completed release form within 180 days if a refund is requested, or as soon as possible before the start of the next semester if a refund credit is to be applied in the upcoming semester.

Most of the students who are eligible have already received notification from the University that they are entitled to the benefits described here.

For more information contact: Bursar's Office
225 Whitmore
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts 01003
(413) 545-2368

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

A love shack dies and a honky-tonk truck stop is born

Everything was going great. I'd moved into my dorm room on Sunday with the rest of the transfers. Having arrived before my roommate, I took the liberty of choosing the good bed, bureau etc. I also started decorating, putting up posters, tacking up pictures, painting curse words on the walls using bleach, the usual hassle.

Sunday passed without an appearance from my roommate. Then Monday came and went without event. After Tuesday passed, I was beginning to feel lucky. Maybe housing would give me a double all to myself. Stranger things have happened (see Lyle Lovett and Julia Roberts).

I began making preparations for A.J.'s House of Love. I removed the mattresses from their frames and put them side by side, creating a spacious queen size bed. I bought some scented candles and found my John Coltrane albums. I even ordered Greg Brady's psychedelic beads to grace my loveshack's entrance. This I thought, could be a great year.

And then, my roommate arrived.

To protect his identity, we shall refer to him as Roscoe. It was Thursday when Roscoe made his appearance, just when I was starting to think he wasn't going to come. I must admit that giving up the love palace was difficult. But Roscoe was a friendly sort, and after a few hours I was feeling guilty for wishing he was homeless.

He seemed to be the perfect roommate at first, someone sent by the housing matchmakers who could actually get along with me. He's 6'11" and I'm 7'1". We're both political science majors, and both 21. Roscoe seemed so perfect I believed he was Dormculius, the Greek god of roommates. But alas, this notion was dispelled soon enough. Roscoe had this problem.

A.J. STEWART

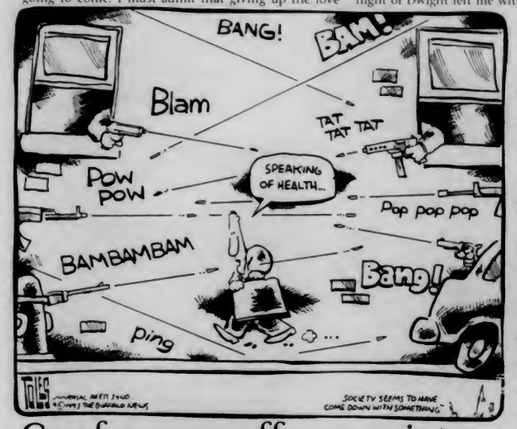
He listened to country music.

Yes, that was my room with the Dwight Yoakam blaring. Songs glorifying truck stops filled the air. If you came by you could hear fiddles and banjos that try to break your little sweet potato heart.

Roscoe discovered the magic of country after being jilted by a woman. And in my effort to become more open minded, I gave the music a chance. But one night of Dwight left me with one conclusion: country is music to inbreed to.

Every listen brought an irresistible urge to hurl myself from a window. I tried to compromise.



"Listen to the Eagles," I pleaded. "Or James Taylor, or Neil Young if you want to get in the fetal position and wallow." But these efforts did not work. Roscoe did not heed my cry for help. He pushed that banjo bleating on me until I snapped.

I took back possession of my stereo. Yes, I retrieved my poor molested stereo that he forced to twang against its will. I dug up the sound track to Halloween II, playing the song, "Murder Montage: still he kills" repeatedly until Roscoe got the message. This is not the Grand Ole Opry.

In truth, Roscoe isn't such a bad guy. Yes, inside his Southern body beats a kind heart. He's the kind of guy you wouldn't mind waiting for a bus with. You'd have fun drinking a case with him. He knows secrets of dental hygiene that I'll never know. And he'd be a great companion on a safari.

But most of all, Roscoe has taught me an important lesson: roommates would be great, if you didn't have to live with them.

A.J. Stewart is a UMass student.

Causes are fashionable

There is something I've noticed over the past couple of years that really bugs me: the simple red AIDS ribbons.

First, I must say I don't think AIDS awareness is bad, quite the contrary. But it seems every actor, musician and celebrity wears a red ribbon to the various awards shows. I don't have any problems with the ribbon itself. But it's become "chic" to wear them. When everyone wears one because it's "in vogue", it takes away from the true supporters and ultimately the cause itself.

Edward HURLEY

In the beginning the ribbons did a lot to heighten AIDS awareness; because they stuck out this prompted discussion about their significance. However, they lose their impact when everyone wears them. Its fine for a celebrity to support a cause, but not as a fashion accessory or as a publicity device.

The AIDS ribbons are becoming part of a growing trend: causes are fashionable. Celebrities jump on the bandwagon of every new cause. Do these people really believe in these causes? Does that matter? I've noticed the people who truly believe them stick out. True conviction can't be faked, it's true conviction that really inspires people.

Elizabeth Taylor is an example of someone with strong convictions, who has done much to heighten AIDS awareness. She is sincere in her crusade against the disease, which has done much to rally support for it. The same could be said about Madonna, who has gallantly championed the cause of AIDS awareness, long before it was popular to do so.

However, other celebrities participated in rallies and other activities for causes for no other reason but to have their names publicized. It's certainly a good source of publicity for a celebrity, and endears them in the eyes of the public.

Some would argue there is a symbiotic relationship between the celebrities and the causes. The causes receive publicity because of the public's unrelenting fascination with celebrities, while the celebrities get the exposure associated with the causes. But it boils down to a question of sincerity. If a celebrity truly believes in a cause, they should do all they can do to help it. With true convictions publicity isn't the objective, so work is done in private, as well as the public eye.

So the next time you watch an awards show or hear about a celebrity benefit, take a minute to contemplate the participants' true intentions.

Edward Hurley is a UMass student.

Conference offers variety from five UMass campuses

I wanted to thank you for your front page story [Collegian Sept. 21] regarding the upcoming five campus conference Strategies for Combating Racism and Promoting Civility and and also to clarify a few mistaken impressions it conveyed.

Most importantly, this is a five campus conference, not a five college conference. It is also the first five campus conference ever held, and even more significant because of its focus on racism.

The conference is sponsored by the University President's Office and was planned by a large steering committee representing all five campuses.

The planning process was challenging due to the sheer size of our five campus system (roughly 65,000 faculty, students and staff), the need to develop a conference agenda meeting the expressed needs of five very different campuses, and the fact that the campuses had never before collaborated on such a large event.

The conference also needed to be attractive enough so that members of the other four campuses would be willing to travel to Amherst for two entire days.

The result has been over 46 pragmatic workshops led by a diverse group of presenters from .all five campuses.

The Campus Center provided the largest, most economical conference site of any of the campuses, allowing for about 500 participants.

Subtracting almost 150 presenters, panelists and workshop leaders from this total left about 350 slots to be divided among the five campuses and a small number of state and community college participants.

At UMass/Amherst, which had been allotted just over 150 participant slots, more than 400 people applied to attend the conference.

Campus steering committee members selected applications in an effort to assure wide representation by faculty, undergraduates, graduate students, professional staff and classified staff from across the campus. One fifth of the Amherst campus participants are students.

Since a similar conference held by UMass/Lowell last October drew only a small audience, steering committee members were frankly surprised to learn that each of the five campuses was overwhelmed with applications.

In an effort to make the conference presentations more widely accessible, audiotapes will be made available for every session, videotapes will be made of large sessions, and each of the campuses is exploring ways of repeating popular presentations for a broader audience during the remainder of the school year.

The steering committee hope that this first conference will set the stage for annual five campus conferences as well as other educational programs on the individual campuses addressing this important topic.

Grant Ingle
Office of Human Relations

Kerrigan responds to allegations

My remarks in Harper's have prompted some wild surmises about my conduct and beliefs. Let me lay some of them to rest.

I in no way condone sexual harassment; I rather believe that every step should be taken to identify it, stop it, and punish it.

Whatever relationships I may have had with students were consensual, and occurred long before I came to this campus in 1988. I have never had relationships with students while they were enrolled in my courses.

Indeed, I think our campus would be wise to adopt a policy similar to that of the University of Virginia, which forbids relationships between professors and students they are currently teaching.

Professor William Kerrigan

This page is for you.
You.
The page just sits here, waiting for you to step out of the role of passive consumer, sucking in all the information thrown at you throughout the day.
This page wants you to take action.
It's here to make you angry, to inspire you, to disturb you, to inflame your passions until you must do something.
And then we want you tell us about it.
What are you thinking? That this is a dumb way to fill space?
Perhaps. But we never frivolously waste space on this page. Anyone can look like an idiot on this page, but only if they're sincere.
Give it to us, straight from your head, your heart, your hands.
But hey — give it to us in 50 lines or less. And type it so we don't get eyestrain.
And if you have what it takes to speak your mind, make sure everyone knows who you are.
Thanks.

Arts & Living

Kidder explores aging

Pulitzer recipient releases new book

By EDWARD HURLEY
Collegian Correspondent

Pulitzer-prize winning author Tracy Kidder tackles the difficult subject of aging in his new book, Old Friends. The book studies the goings on at the Lisa Manor Nursing Home, in Northampton. Kidder uses the nursing home as a place to study and demystify the subject of aging.

Kidder specifically focuses on two roommates, Joe and Lou, and chronicles their lives as well as the lives of the other residents through the course of a year. In a recent interview with the Collegian, Kidder commented on the book, as well as the subject of aging in general.

Kidder originally got the idea to write the book from his editor, Richard Todd. But University of Massachusetts professor, Seth Goldsmith, aided Kidder in locating Lisa Manor.

Kidder was reluctant at first to write about a nursing home, fearing it would be "boring." But he found it to be a worthwhile experience, even describing it as "great," and "fascinating." He especially enjoyed how humorous the residents were at times.

When asked about the difficulties in writing a book about the elderly in a positive manner, he was firm that he "wrote it as he saw it." He portrayed the residents as they were, without "romanticizing old age." He didn't want to "sugar coat" growing old, but portray it in a realistic manner.

Kidder stressed that the residents were mature enough in their identities to not change their behavior to make a more favorable impression for the book.

Kidder was quick to emphasize that Lisa Manor Nursing Home was a "good nursing home" and that not all are as well-run as Lisa Manor. He said repeatedly that he is especially concerned about recent reports of deterioration in the quality of care of Lisa Manor. He also voiced concern about the state of nursing homes in general.

"The number of staff members is important," stated Kidder. "The fewer the staff members the less attention each resident receives." He said that for some residents the staff members are their only human contact. He thinks that a nursing home can't be "run for profit and pleasure," and people must be the primary concern.

Kidder expressed concern with the perception of old age. He states that "we have negative stereotypes" concerning the elderly and that society "understates the problems of the elderly." Their health problems can be quite bad, yet old age can be a worthwhile experience, said Kidder. He goes on to state that the elderly is too diverse a group to make generalizations about.

Old Friends isn't the first time Kidder wrote about life in an institutionalized setting. He observed a fifth-grade class in Holyoke and wrote a book about it called Among Schoolchildren. In 1982 he won the Pulitzer Prize for his book titled Soul of a New Machine, which dealt with the computer industry.

In Old Friends, Kidder tackles the difficult task of observing people who are experiencing the twilight of their lives in a nursing home. He dispels some misconceptions commonly held about aging, which effects everyone in some way.

New release from Yo Yo

By EMMANUEL FORDJOUR
Collegian Correspondent

Sons of Soul
Tony Toni Tone
Wing Records

This is a slammin' track featuring certain hits, "If I Had No Loot" and "Anniversary." The 15 tracks give you a very good buy for your money. This track also has phat slow jams. "Slow Wine" is top of the line when it comes to slow jams. Tony Toni Tone has done it again. 4

Manny's Music Reviews

You Better Ask Somebody
Yo Yo
East West Records

You Better Ask Somebody is a first rate, hard core rap production — the West Coast has produced another success in hard core rap. Yo Yo is at the forefront of female rappers. "The Bonnie and Clyde Theme" is a jam that you will be hearing across radio stations. "IBWin' WiT MY CREWin'" is another track that's pumpin'. Ice Cube makes a guest appearance on this track. 4

Home on the Range
LaTour
Smash Records

You may remember LaTour for his hit "Blue" in the dance club scene of the movie Basic Instinct. Techno lovers will really enjoy this track. It features "Following You" and "Hypnomania." These two jams are almost guaranteed to get you in a dancing mood. 3

RATINGS: 1 — Butt, 2 — O.K., 3 — Good, 4 — Very Good, 5 — Excellent

Hyped Helena couldn't act its way out of a box

By EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Much controversy has followed director Jennifer Chambers Lynch's first cinematic offering, Boxing Helena. Boasting a concept reportedly so "hot," Helena caused Kim Basinger, who initially signed for the lead, to balk at the scripted nudity and deal with an eight million dollar lawsuit. Even Madonna found the chance at personifying the "Venus de Milo" too risky career-wise, and graciously declined. To quote Shakespeare, the finished product is "much ado about nothing."

Steeped in Freudian themes, Boxing Helena tells the story of a young surgeon (Julian Sands) pursued by nightmares of his dominating mother, and haunted by obsessive love for a past "one night stand" (Sherilyn Fenn). Following a tragic hit-and-run that robs Helena of her legs, Sands seizes the opportunity to care for the rejecting Helena in an attempt to garner her love. When she uses her remaining appendages to push his affections away, Sands ups the ante and takes her arms away as well, leaving Helena trapped in a large, Gothic mansion completely devoted to his care. As for his recently deceased mother, shades of Psycho ensue.

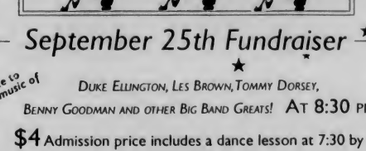
It's a project rich in debt as Lynch borrows from a myriad of sources, fashioning a bizarre marriage of Gothic horror and Cinemax After Dark. (Think of it as Bob Guccione's Misery?) Lynch even delves into father David Lynch's recent cinema techniques of filling the screen with haunting yet empty visuals, propelling the story nowhere. Thankfully, cinematographer Fred Byers keeps the proceedings nice to look at, especially capturing the dark shadows that loom throughout Sand's estate while contradicting the beautiful fountains and gardens that spread out from his domestic penitentiary.

Contradictions abound in the film as the performances seek no middle ground; they are either very good or oppressively awful. While Sands is ingratiating as the tormented doc (his delivery of "Hel-enna. Why don't youuu love meee!" every few minutes is comparable to fingernails on chalkboard), Sherilyn Fenn manages to give a thoughtful performance despite scriptural weaknesses.

Fenn's Helena has an ice cold demeanor, rejecting the love that surrounds her and grasping at the physical gifts and "one night stands" thrust at her. She sees what she wants and takes it, booting her current beau Ray (Bill Paxton) from her bed with a "You bore me," or Interrupting Sand's upper-class gala by strolling in his fountain sans evening gown.



A fiercely independent woman who finds herself suddenly needing much care, Fenn rejects pathos and continues to spar with Sands. Her personality never fully seeks redemption, and slivers of her iron-clad former ways still wage out as she strives to regain some of what has been stripped of her. If she can't fight with her hands, she certainly strikes with words which reverberate on screen and off. It's a daring performance, but well taken.

Even the supporting class is uneven, with Art Garfunkel giving a small but good performance as Sand's cautioning colleague. Contrasting that, the talented Bill Paxton (One False Move) never fully grasps his role as Helena's jealous "flavor of the month" and Kurtwood Smith (Fortress) just doesn't seem to be on screen. (Do roughly six lines constitute a performance?)

Though not a complete failure, Lynch's first effort shows need for fine tuning in future films. If she'd drop the high gloss, Harlequin Romance meets Blue Velvet exterior, Helena's story is a decent one. Fenn truly gives life to this personality, showing a heart in the darkness, retaining faults.

Unfortunately the film does stumble in its cop-out ending and even more curlous, the sight of Helena without limbs is not as tragic or shocking as it should be. Borrowing from the Bard again, it may not be a tale told by an idiot but Boxing Helena "is full of sound and fury... signifying nothing." C

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Lunncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

From Ballroom to Bop!
Saturday Night Dance
Swing Swing Swing
Waltz
Rumba
Cha Cha Cha
"Two Step"
Tango
Fox Trot

September 25th Fundraiser
Dance to the music of Duke Ellington, Les Brown, Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman and other Big Band Greats! At 8:30 PM
$4 Admission price includes a dance lesson at 7:30 by Jacqueline Maidana
Call 584-7099
At the University of Massachusetts
Campus Center Auditorium

Lenny Kravitz & BLind MeLon

Lenny Kravitz
11.99 CD
7.99 cass

Are You Gonna Go My Way

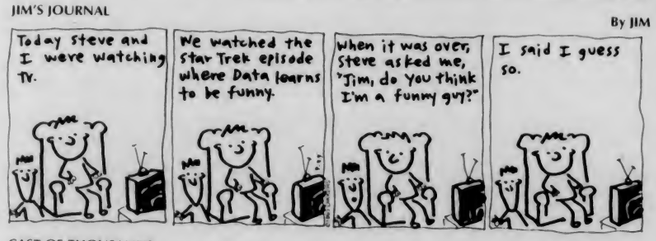
Blind Melon

BLind MeLon
11.99 CD
7.99 cass

Appearing live
at Mullens Center
U Mass, Sept. 29

get them on sale.

Sale ends 9/30



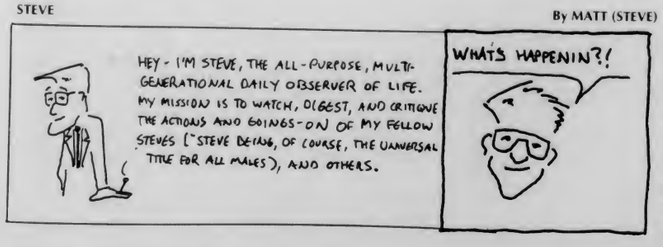
Strawberries
MUSIC AND VIDEO STORES

AUBURN, 390 Southbridge St.	(508)832-5761
FRAMINGHAM, 50 Worcester Rd.	(508)879-7310
HADLEY, Route 9, Campus Plaza	(413)256-3160
HOLYOKE, 2275 Northampton St.	(413)536-2222
LEOMINSTER, Market Basket Shpg. Ctr	(508)537-6894
PITTSFIELD, 241 North Street	(413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd.	(413)543-1517
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave.	(413)737-4128
SHREWSBURY, White City Shpg. Ctr	(508)757-3443
SUDBURY, 435 Boston Post Rd.	(508)443-8933
WESTBORO, Speedway Plaza	(508)366-0017
WORCESTER, 10 Front St.	(508)755-4783
WORCESTER, Webster Square	(508)831-3535

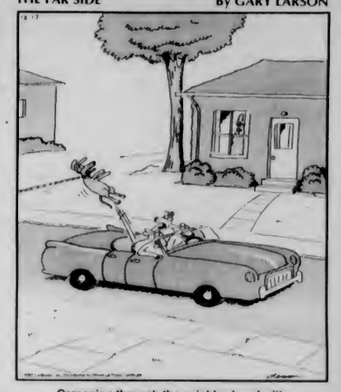
CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH



THE POND By JEREMY THORPE



CUTTER'S WORLD By CUTTER

STEVE By MATT (STEVE)

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

Careening through the neighborhood with reckless abandon, none of them suspected that Tuffy was still tied up.

Quote of the Day

"Oh! My nose!"

– Marsha Brady

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although others are easier to get along with now, you should work on your own as much as possible. Keep lines of communication open in relationships.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A special project could require you to put in some overtime. A candid chat with your mate leads to better understanding. Spend more time alone with the one who means the most to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Working at a steady pace leads to greater achievements. Try to predict new trends. Someone you are attracted to may have valuable ideas. Enjoy being the social butterfly tonight!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Listen to an older person's advice even if it seems out of sync with your own ideas. A telephone call will confirm an important date, saving you both embarrassment and cash.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasize the practical! See people and situations as they really are. Someone special shows renewed interest in you or your ideas. Supervise projects personally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trust your instincts and give free rein to your creativity. Quiet conditions at work make today the ideal time to start an artistic project.

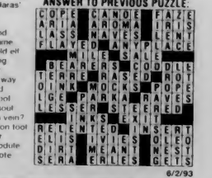
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The pieces of a puzzle begin to fall into place. Loved ones are more affectionate than in recent days. Social outings prove enjoyable if you stay within your budget.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone very attractive responds to you in an interesting way. Do not feel guilty about spending more time on personal matters. Others will understand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Clean-up chores go quickly if family members join in. A letter or phone call brings welcome financial news. Stress the need for a practical approach is trying to overhaul your budget.

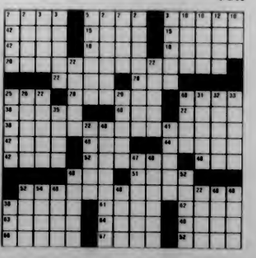
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A great day for clinching business deals and selling things. Distant developments work in your favor. You could make a substantial profit. Show more discretion when answering questions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An important meeting or date escapes your thoughts. Loving words, kisses and hugs should not wait. Your encouragement could have great impact on a teen-ager.



PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Listen attentively now and you may uncover an important omission in a plan. As you fill in the blanks, you see that the future is yours! Jot down original ideas.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Brewer's supply
5 Floral support
9 Shoulder warmer
14 Concept
15 La Scala production
16 Frolic
17 Bagel for one
18 Placed
19 Game rite
20 Stevenson pirate story
23 Facts
24 Water service
25 Bert to Ernie
28 Wise man
30 Wooden shoe
34 Be patient
36 Lawyers' org.
37 Move like molasses
38 Early TV childrens show
42 Gaelic
43 Hunter Sebastian
44 He played Charlie Chan
45 Consider
46 Dr. Seuss character
49 Formerly called
50 Actor Chaney
51 Cockneys' roll call replies
53 Spoils sort of Sesame Street
60 Bad guy
61 Hebrides isle
62 French cheese
63 Cut in two
64 Spring or stream starter
65 Author Ferber
66 Birch family tree
67 Erstwhile mates
68 Wan sorry

DOWN
1 Trumpeter Al
2 Aroma
3 Soccer great
4 Dieter's dinner
5 Military greeting
6 Formal headwear
7 Singer Adams
8 Winnipeg's province
9 Resell tickets for huge profit
10 The O'Haras' home
11 Giving
12 — a hand
13 Time frame
21 A jolly old elf
22 Wrapping material
25 I led the way
26 Informed
27 Minor goof
29 Selfish soul
30 It's all in vein?
31 Navigation tool
32 Fresh air
33 Stone nodule
35 Social note
39 Blood of the gods
40 Lunch hour
41 Failure of a fellow
47 — weenie
48 Church instruments
50 California cager
52 Dignified
53 Spoken
54 Won over
55 Sheltered nook
56 Deception
57 Indic language
58 Movie, in Madrid
59 Cabbage unit
60 Tea

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

6/2/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Vanessa Adelman
Photo Technician ..... Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor ..... Sandy Bogage
Production ..... Toni Morse
Marni E. Helfner

MENU

LUNCH
Rotini w/ Meat
Grilled Chicken
BASICS LUNCH
Rotini w/ Tofu
Grilled Chicken

DINNER
Roast Beef / Au Jus
Shrimp and Scallops
BASICS DINNER
Split Pea-Veggie Stew
Shrimp and Scallops

THE BODY SHOPS ARE OPEN!!

Coolidge 12th Floor / Washington 19th Floor
Totman Gym Rm 8
Webster / Gorman / & Lewis Dorms

YOUR FULL MEMBERSHIP INCLUDES
@ TOTMAN, COOLIDGE & WASHINGTON
LifeFITNESS® STAIRCLIMBERS & STATIONARY BIKES
LANDICE® TREADMILLS
CONCEPT II® ROWERS
NORDICTRACK® Club 900 X-COUNTRY SKIERS
12-18 NAUTILUS® and HYDRAULIC WEIGHT MACHINES

@ WEBSTER / GORMAN / & LEWIS
COMPLETE SETS OF FREE WEIGHTS

USE ALL FACILITIES WITH JUST ONE MEMBERSHIP!!
SORRY, NO AEROBICS CLASSES AT THIS TIME

YOUR COST
$50/Semester - $90/Year
Pay by Check, Money Order or Cash

ALL ARE SUPERVISED BY QUALIFIED STAFF
FULL REFUND POLICY IN EFFECT FOR 2 WEEKS WITH RECEIPT & MEMBERSHIP STICKER ONLY

TO GET CURRENT OPEN HOURS
CALL THE BODY SHOPS AT THE FOLLOWING TELEPHONE NUMBERS

TOTMAN GYM ROOM 6	TELEPHONE 545-6075
COOLIDGE TOWER 12 TH FLOOR	TELEPHONE 545-3914
WASHINGTON TOWER 19 TH FLOOR	TELEPHONE 545-3912
HILLTOP FREE WEIGHT CENTER (WEBSTER RESIDENCE HALL)	TELEPHONE 545-2805
CROSSAN FREE WEIGHT CENTER (GORMAN RESIDENCE HALL)	TELEPHONE 545-2937
LEWIS FREE WEIGHT CENTER (LEWIS RESIDENCE HALL)	TELEPHONE 545-3961

■ picks

continued from page 12

impersonation of The Count from Sesame Street, let's take a look at the fantastic finishes in the Browns-Raiders, the Eagles-Redskins, and the Chargers-Oilers.

Being the straightforward guy I am, I'll just say that San Diego will not make the playoffs if it has to rely on the leg of John Carney every single week for the total offensive punch. I guess you can also call me The Master of the Obvious.

But hey, the 'Skins sure could use a leader right now, couldn't they? Losing in the waning moments of a game they had in the W column. Like I said last time, the Eagles are not that good.

Before you start the whining, I'll also say that Randall Cunningham obviously is, even though he plays as well in the playoffs as John Elway does in the Super Bowls.

Since we are pondering queries in this space today, here is one for ya: how can Art "If I was a turtle, I'd crawl up in my" Shell (after last week's embarrassment) justify taking a safety with over a minute left in the game? Eric Metcalf returned 50 yards which gave the Browns a shot in Raiders territory.

Now to this week and the marquee match-up between Cincinnati and Seattle, which I hear may be played as the doubleheader game after Massachusetts-Boston U. at Nickerson Field.

Chris Warren made the Patriots defense look like a dairy product from Switzerland, and he should do the same with Cincinnati.

If Warren and Rick Mirer can get on, Ken Griffey Jr. will hit a three-run dinger in the bottom of the ninth for the victory. What do you mean there's a football franchise in Seattle?

As Beavis and Butt-head would say, "Everyone in Seattle is cool. Yeah, huh, huh." Seattle 3, Cincinnati 2.

The New Orleans Saints are 3-0. Whoop-di-do. So they didn't lose last week. But as predicted, Wade Wilson flopped, completing only 11 of 22 for a measly 99 yards in the air.

However, the Saint express will be derailed by Steve Young and San Francisco at 4 p.m. on Sunday. For those of you who read this column two semesters ago, the Niners are OVERRATED.

But it doesn't matter, they are more than enough for the Saints. San Francisco 17, New Orleans 10.

Finally, the game of the weekend is in Orchard Park, with the Dolphins and the Bills battling it out for AFC East supremacy. My other Picks correspondent, Bill "Just a bit high" Balfour says that Dan Marino is the single reason why the TV ratings were down last weekend. Of course, Miami was off.

I think that people were just confused and didn't know where in the world Marino was. If you were one of these people, Super Dan will be celebrating in the locker room this Sunday. Miami 24, Buffalo 17.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Counseling Collective Invites You to Join Us!

At Our OPEN HOUSE

Monday, September 27, at 319 Whitmore. Joins us anytime between noon and 2pm. For more information call Paul at 545-2684 or Lydia at 545-2337.

The Mercantile
Mon-Sat: 10-6 Sun: 12-5 Thurs & Fri til 9
Northampton 18 Center St 584-1205
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-1396

Minutemen hope to rebound

By ANTHONY GUIDO
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team has to once again rebound from a tough outing, this weekend it's against Atlantic 10 power Rutgers (5-1,3-0 A-10) on Saturday afternoon at Garber Field. The Minutemen are coming off a 5-1 loss at the University of New Hampshire Wednesday night.

UMass (2-4) played UNH well in the first half, but the Wildcats were able to put up three unanswered goals in the second half, spoiling the return of UMass senior goalie Mark Wolf, who had 11 saves.

The Minuteman offense went stagnant again putting only eight shots on goal. The lone goal was scored by senior Randy Jacobs off a nice pass from captain Todd Kylish.

Kylish remains undaunted, "It's a long season, no need to panic now."

The Minutemen were unable to build on last Saturday's 6-0 drubbing of Rhode Island. Now they must regain confidence to improve on their 1-0 A-10 record, not an easy task against the Scarlet Knights.

Rutgers is coming in red-hot with five straight wins. Keeper Kori Hunter has given up only two goals in the streak, including four shutouts. He has an impressive 1.00 goals against average.

The offense is led by Hamisi Amani-Dove, who has eight points — all three of his goals have been game-winners. Brian Sentowski and Michael Shaw have scored three times each as well. Last season Sam Koch's team went to Rutgers a decided underdog and pulled out a surprising 3-3 tie. An edge for UMass this season may be an injured Scarlet Knight defense.

Backs Jeff Zaun, the backbone of the team, and Todd Deneault were pronounced "doubtful" as of press time. Zaun has only played in one game this season, sidelined with a chronic back injury. Deneault is a highly regarded freshman on the back line.

These two losses may open things up downfield for Minutemen Jacobs, Edelman and freshmen sensation Dave Siljanovski, scoreless against UNH after netting a hat trick last Saturday against URI.

UMass assistant coach Rob Donnenwirth has said that the team "can't get too high or low in the beginning of the season."

■ cross country

continued from page 12

"Vermont has a tough 1-2 punch," he said. "If we run a notch better than last Saturday we can beat Vermont."

At last week's meet, UMass took 12 of the top 23 places, with sophomore Ethan Nedeau finishing fifth overall and first for the Minutemen. O'Brien said he considers Nedeau to be a top threat. "Last week's race would lead me to believe that we have a large amount of ability on this team," O'Brien said. "Our number seven runner last week could be our number two this week."

O'Brien also said his freshmen runners are surprising him on a regular basis. Jonathan Way led the freshman group with an eighth place overall finish and Chris Povolny finished in 15th place.

O'Brien said he hopes the tough competition will give him a clearer picture of his team in time for the Atlantic 10 and New England Championships in late October.

"Right now we need to convince two or three guys that they want to be No. 1," O'Brien said.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.
A Public Service of This Publication
Earth Share

■ preview

continued from page 12

The vaunted UMass defense will have its hands full, to say the least, and although it has only given up 24 points this season, Saturday will be a true test.

"We'll probably switch [defenses] on and off to try to keep them on their toes," said cornerback Tony Williams. "We are wary about their runners, they run low to the ground. We just have to worry about their athletic ability and be ready to play."

One way for UMass to counter BU's red-gun offense is to chew up time on the ground with its own offense, and Hodges said that is the plan.

Game Notes: The AstroTurf at Nickerson will give UMass its first exposure of a non-grass field since last year's game at Richmond . . . BU head coach Dan Allen (0-3) has yet to beat UMass . . . This is the best start for the Terriers since 1984, when they won the YanCon . . . The game can be heard on WTTT (1430 AM) with Jim Degnim and Mike Fagerson and WMUA (91.1 FM) with Sean Hayden and Paul Cacciatore.

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

TRAVELING?
WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
- Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
- Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
- Adventure Tours • Language Courses
- International Student & Teacher I.D.
- Work & Study Abroad
- Youth Hostel Memberships
- Car Rental & Leasing
- Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!

FREE "STUDENT TRAVELS" MAGAZINE!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Shotokan Karate Club
Totm Lobby - 1st Meeting 9/27 7 pm
For info call Brian 549-7609
New Members Welcome

ANNOUNCEMENTS

College Pizza
Open for Lunch
at 11 Sat. and Sun.
Fall Special:
Small Cheese $3.50
Large Cheese $5.99
1 or 2 Toppings Add $1.00
549-6073 549-8098

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

AUTO FOR SALE

Ford LTD 1984 95K miles $750 582-0477

Honda Civic 82 runs great $750 367-9433

1966 Chevy Nova II California car 283 engine powerglide great body $4800 or B.O. 665-3630

1980 Buick Century Dark blue new tires. Great. Great winter car. $1000 or B/O Caroline at ACI 549-0701

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

Room Free in 4 room apartment – two blocks from downtown Noho. 15 Min. from UMass. Nice, sunny room. $180 + live with 3 relaxed students Call Pat 585-9188

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Airline Ticket
Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0186

Apple Imagewriter II like new all cord extra ribbon and paper $150 549-6708

Bebay for Super NES
540
Call 256-4532
After 10 pm

MT. Bike – Mongoose Hilltopper. Many new parts. $250 or BO. Mike at 253-2847

1993 Mongoose Hilltopper Purchased in June includes receipts and manuals also comes with Girvin Flexstem and other extras. $350 or BO call Scott at 549 4959

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

TAG SALE – Saturday – Waterbed w/ bureaus, lamps, sofa/bed, carpets, stereo, cabinet, beds, yard tools, lots more. 9 Maplewood in Hadley (Near UM horse farm) or call 549-5013

Univega 12 spd $120.00 or BO
IBM 386 SX PC Call for info. Jen 617-581-6946

Women's Lacrosse Stick
Excellent Condition
Call Amy 546-3540

FOUND

Hey - did you lose something? I found your black kitten 9-16-93 outside Pulton. Call Shannon for info. 549-1100

GOALIES

ATTENTION GOALIES
We are looking for a goalie for the upcoming intramural ice hockey season.
If interested call
Matt 546-4820
or Chris 546-0880

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Att: Excellent Income for home assembly work. Info 1-504-646-1700 Dept. MA-1307

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month + World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

EMT needed for unique living situation near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

Is Spanish your second language? English/Spanish Bilinguals needed for language processing study at UMass a minimum of two years college-level Spanish is preferred.
You will be modestly reimbursed for your participation.
Call 538-2035 for more information.

Sales Help Wanted
The Salvation Army
Is opening a store
In Amherst – please call
Send Resume to
Judith A. Fell
984 W. Columbus Ave
Springfield, MA 01105

$287.50 Sell 50 hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol-related college t-shirts and make $287.50. All shirts guaranteed. A risk-free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

HOUSEMATE

EMT needed for unique living situation. Near UMass. Must be familiar with COPD and handicapped needs. By appointment only 582-1880

LOST

Address book, green 8X5", v. important Reward Call Nathan: 253-7646

Casio Digital Diary Computer pocket size lost around Mahar auditorium. Please return important tel. nos. lost! Call 546-7335

Lost Eyeglasses
Green Frames
Lost Sat. Night
Near Southwest
If found please call 6-4805

Lost Driver's License – Birthdate 11/28 REWARD 256-3480

PERSONALS

EYE HEART EWE, HONEY!!
Happy two years
You're crate.
EM

Spring Break 7 Nights from $299 Includes: Air, Hotel, Transfers, Parties and more! Nassau, Paradise Island, Cancun, Jamaica, San Juan. Organize a small group – earn a free trip plus commissions!
1-800-GET-SUN-1

RIDE WANTED

Interested in carpooling from Longmeadow or Forestpark area. Ed 567-6237

ROOMMATE WANTED

Share a large country apartment in Belchertown. Male or Female. 1 dog there now. Month to month lease. Huge room. Storage. Quiet. 250/mo 323-9742

SERVICES

Bodywork/massage Introductory special $30.00 or 2 for $50.00. 18 years experience. Have table will travel. Steve LaFleur 367-9433

Factfinder Custom Library Research. All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SORORITY RUSH

Open Rush Times For Today:
Alpha Chi Omega - NO RUSH
Alpha Epsilon Chi - NO RUSH
Chi Omega - NO RUSH
Delta Zeta - NO RUSH
Iota Gamma Upsilon - NO RUSH
Kappa Kappa Gamma - 6 - 7:30 pm
Sigma Delta Tau - 4 - 6 pm
Sigma Kappa - NO RUSH
Sigma Sigma Sigma - NO RUSH

WANTED

Couch Needed
Big, Comfortable
Will pay cash
Jim 253-9479

Men's soccer: lost to UNH on Wednesday, face Rutgers Saturday

Sports

Football tries to bounce back versus BU

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team last week lost to a team which earlier lost a game 45-0. This week, they play the team which won 45-0.

If they were down on themselves after the upset to Maine, the Minutemen (1-1) have to get up — fast — for their game against Boston University (Saturday, 1 p.m., Nickerson Field). If not, they could witness a BU blowout first-hand.

Although they said this week they are confident, the Minutemen are going against a tough Terrier (2-0) squad which defeated Maine and Holy Cross going away. In Wednesday's Boston Globe, former Boston College head coach Jack Bicknell said quarterback Robert Dougherty is not unlike Doug Flutie.

"I'd say that I will go along with Mr. Bicknell," said UMass head coach Mike Hodges. "He's outstanding. He's got a great arm, he's very accurate, he's obviously got a great command of w. at they're doing offensively, and when something bad does happen, he can turn it into something good with his scrambling ability."

"He's the real thing, and we're going to have to play very, very, very well in order to control him," he said. "We're not gonna stop him, we'll try to control him."

Dougherty, a junior college transfer from Visalia, Calif., followed Terrier record-holder Stan Greene to Boston from the west coast. After two games, he has already won the YanCon Player of the Week, the ECAC Player of the Week, and the Coca-Cola Gold Helmet award. The 5-foot-10, 172-pound junior is well on his way to breaking Greene's passing records at BU, just like he did at the College of the Sequoias.

If throwing for 300 yards is not enough, Zack Burwell at running back can give BU yardage on the ground as well. His 179 yards in a 44-18 win over Holy Cross was good enough for YanCon Offensive Player of the Week, and after two games, the senior is averaging 7.4 yards per carry.

Turn to PREVIEW, page 11

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Fullback Miles Robinson and the rest of the Massachusetts football team travels to Boston tomorrow to take on the Terriers of Boston University.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Senior co-captain Tracy Barclay leads the UMass field hockey team up against No. 7 Temple and No. 17 Rutgers this weekend at Totman Field. Today's game starts at 3 p.m. and tomorrow's at 1 p.m.

Minutewomen to open A-10

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

The schedule-makers have a warped sense of humor.

After last Wednesday's 3-0 victory over Providence College, the University of Massachusetts field hockey had an entire week to prepare for a Yale University squad that it easily disposed of 2-0.

Now, the Minutewomen have only one day to get ready for back-to-back games against the No. 7 and No. 17 ranked teams in the nation in Temple and Rutgers, both of whom represent the biggest challenges to the Massachusetts stranglehold on supremacy in the Atlantic 10.

"I think the fact we're playing back-to-back conference games makes this weekend very important," Minutewomen coach Pam Hixon said. "But most important is tomorrow, and then when tomorrow is over, Saturday will be most important."

Tomorrow is today when the 7th-ranked Temple Owls visit Totman field for a 3 p.m. contest with Massachusetts. The Owls come sporting a 4-3 record with all three blemishes coming at the hands of top 10 opponents.

Leading the charge for Temple are forwards Crystal Carr and Debbie Utz. Carr, a junior, is described by Hixon as an extremely dangerous and fast player whose skills have caught up with her speed. Utz leads the Owls with 14 points (six goals, two assists).

"We're going to try and keep them from getting the ball," Hixon said. "But when they do get the ball, we're going to put immediate pressure on them."

Rutgers, 5-1 heading into yesterday's game against LaSalle, is more of an unknown quantity. They only lost 1-0 against top-ranked Penn State, but other than that, not a lot is known about the No. 17 team in the country.

"Rutgers is very much improved from last year," Hixon said. "But I haven't received any scouting reports on them yet because we're focusing on Temple. After Temple, we'll focus on Rutgers."

This is the time of the year when the games get interesting, according to Hixon. The ante is upped because all the A-10 teams are jockeying for position for the conference championships that start in early November.

"This kind of sets the stage for the conference championship," Hixon said. "When we all play each other, the results are important because of the placement for the Atlantic 10 tournament."

"Both games will be extremely physical," Hixon said. "We're expecting war on both days."

No. 8 women's soccer heads west

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy will find out if his team is for real this weekend as it travels to Moraga, Calif., for the Saint Mary's College Fall Soccer Classic.

On Friday, the Minutewomen will face St. Mary's. On Sunday they will face No. 4 Santa Clara.

Rudy is hoping the team which has streaked to a 5-0-1 start by using a stifling defense (5 shutouts) and a potent offense, will be able to keep it up against top competition.

"We'll see this weekend," Rudy said. "Santa Clara is fourth in the country and they have already beaten our regional rivals (Connecticut, 4-1, Hartford, 2-0). And St. Mary's is always a tough team. It will be major challenge for us to win two this weekend."

The fourth team in the tournament will be top-ranked North Carolina.

"I feel honored to host a tournament of this magnitude," St. Mary coach Randy Farris said. "I think this is the premiere soccer tournament in the nation this season."

Santa Clara (6-1) is lead by a pair of freshman attackers, Mikka Hansen, who has six goals and an assist and Erin Martinez, who has scored three goals and six assists.

"The freshmen have come in and done a nice job," Rudy said. "They are dangerous and we will have to keep an eye on them."

Keeping that eye will be the tough UMass defense. The D, which consists of backs Heidi Kocher, Amy Trunk and Paula Wilkins have been solid in front of goalkeeper Briana Scurry. The group has recorded five straight shutouts and has allowed only one goal all season.

St. Mary's (2-3) has had an up and down season so far, posting a 2-3 record. The Gaels have made the NCAA Tournament 5 of the last 6 seasons but this year have already dropped games to Central Florida, Florida International and California-Santa Barbara.

The Gaels are lead offensively by Laurie Hokerson, who has five goals. Martha Westernoff has scored twice.

UMass defeated St. Mary's 4-0 last season in Amherst but Rudy said the game was closer than it appears.

"We scored four times in 15 minutes but besides that it was an even game," Rudy said. "We are not looking past this team at all."

Cross country hopes to keep track

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's cross country team looks to continue its strong start this Saturday when it hosts Boston University and the University of Vermont.

All three teams enter the race ranked in the New England Division I cross country poll. BU is ranked second followed by UMass in the eighth spot with Vermont at 10th.

Head coach Ken O'Brien believes BU to be a team deserving of a national ranking and is expecting the Terriers to do what is necessary to win.

"They'll run a laid back race and finish strong," O'Brien said.

Last week, UMass ran an aggressive race and finished second to nationally-ranked Iona and O'Brien said he believes that with a similar effort this week, BU can be caught.

"If we run close to BU, I've got to be optimistic that we can catch them," he said.

UVM enters the race with four of its top five runners returning from last year's team that defeated UMass by four points.

O'Brien likens the UVM squad to the Northeastern University team that UMass defeated last week by 13 points.

Turn to CROSS COUNTRY, page 11

'Picks' looks at Week 4

"The answer is ... four?" — Thornton Mellon in Back to School.

Overall record: 3-2

Yes, it is time to play the numbers game on the gridiron as we look back at Week 3's action before I turn my attention to this Sunday in the world of pigskin. Last week, I wrote that the Patriots would finally win one. Well, how many points did they fall short of winning? Check the opening. Like I always say, I'm not perfect.

Art Stapleton's PIGSKIN PICKS

But my new Pigskin Picks correspondent, Mike Reiss "Lightning" says he hasn't given up on New England just yet.

"I'm sick of everyone getting down on the Pats," said Reiss. "They're a good team."

All right, Mikey. No more knocks on the Patriots this week. I'll leave that to Scott's Shots.

Here's another question to ponder: How many teams are 3-0 in the NFL? I think you know the answer. So now that I'm doing my best

Turn to PICKS, page 10

The biggest pumpkin you have ever seen Page 8

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

70° Monday September 27, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 13

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Say cheese

ED LEONARD / COLLEGIAN

A group of local cows pose for their picture, in the hope that they will become famous in the pages of the Collegian.

Thousands show support for Yeltsin

By JULIA RUBIN
Associated Press

MOSCOW — Thousands of Russians cheered Boris Yeltsin at a concert on Red Square on Sunday and at least 10,000 people marched in the biggest demonstration of support for the president since he disbanded parliament five days ago.

Across town, hard-liners who have defied Yeltsin by refusing to leave the parliament building dug in their heels.

"If need be, we will stay here for a year," said parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov, leader of about 100 lawmakers who remain holed up in the building, known as the White House.

Yeltsin, accompanied by Defense Minister Pavel Grachev and Moscow Mayour Yuri Luzhkov, waded into surging crowds on Red Square for a free concert by the Washington-based National Symphony Orchestra and its conductor, former dissident Mstislav Rostropovich.

The president waved and smiled, then took his place at the front of the crowd. He cracked a smile again when ear-blasting cannons went off during Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

An announcer urged "faith in the president and in Russia's future," and the crowd responded "Hurrah! Hurrah!"

A longtime backer of Yeltsin, Rostropovich has said he wanted the concert to give Russians hope and confidence during the transition to a post Soviet democracy.

"Yeltsin is one of us and he must succeed," said Nina Shtanina, a 60 year old pensioner who arrived on Red Square at 8 a.m., four hours early, to get a good view of Rostropovich. Temperatures were near freezing.

"I took part in the Second World War, and if we won that fight, we can win this one," she said.

Later, pro-Yeltsin demonstrators chanting "Yeltsin! Yeltsin!" linked arms and marched down broad Tverskaya Street — Gorky Street in Soviet times. Amail Bakd headed the procession.

Marchers carried Russian flags, pictures of the president and placards with slogans such as "Shame on the White House," "Boris, You're Right Again" and "Elections are the Will of the People."

Yeltsin has set new parliamentary elections for December and says presidential elections could be held in June. The hard-line Congress wants simultaneous parliamentary and presidential elections in March.

Khasbulatov's parliamaent, elected in Soviet times, opposed the president's free market reforms, saying they were causing undue hardship. Lawmakers also whittled away at Yeltsin's presidential powers.

Turn to YELTSIN, page 2

Crew emerges from Biosphere

Eight who lived in 'mini-earth' for two years return

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press

ORACLE, Ariz. — Biosphere 2's crew emerged Sunday from a two year experiment in self-sufficiency, filling their lungs with fresh air and waving to some 2,500 reporters and cheering well wishers.

"They said it couldn't be done," said crew member Mark Nelson. "But here we are — healthy, happy."

The event, dubbed "re-entry" by Biosphere operators, blended NASA style techno speak with the trappings of a Hollywood media event.

Festivities began with an early-morning concert and a speech by chimpanzee researcher Jane Goodall.

Operators say the crew set a record for living inside an essentially closed structure — designed as a mini-earth with rain forest, ocean, savannah and farm.

But the dome has been opened more than a dozen times, first for crew member Jane Poynter to get surgery after injuring her finger and later for import of thousands of small items, including seeds, sleeping pills, mousetraps, and makeup. Outside air was pumped in once and pure oxygen was added twice to balance the atmosphere.

After testing and upgrading equipment, operators of the $150 million private, for-profit enterprise plan to reseal the dome with a second crew early next year for a one-year stay.

The four man, four woman crew that left Biosphere on Sunday ranged in age from 29 to 69. All are single and agreed to just one restriction on their social life — no pregnancies. They have refused to discuss possible romances or arguments.

In their remarks, they didn't reveal many personal details of life under the glass-domed 3.15-acre world, or speak concretely of plans. But most spoke fondly of the world they were leaving.

"I certainly had a big lump in my throat as I walked around Biosphere 2 this morning," said crew member Sally Silverstone of Walthamstow, England. "I milked the goats for the last time, fed the chickens for the last time, I saw the sunrise on the space frame in my apart-

Turn to BIOSPHERE, page 2

Mae Jemison to address campus on education

By MICHELE MONTEIRO
Collegian Staff

Dr. Mae Jemison, the first African-American female astronaut to go into space, will soar to new heights this evening when she addresses her audience at Bowker Auditorum. Dr. Jemison, will speak on the importance of education in the 21st Century.

For Jemison, space exploration was the culmination of lifelong dreams and hard work. A native of Decatur, Ala., Jemison was raised with an older brother and sister in Chicago, where she was a student in the public school system.

At 16, Jemison entered Stanford University on scholarship where she graduated with a bachelor's of science degree in chemical engineering and fulfilled the requirements for an associate bachelor's degree in African and African American Studies.

Jemison continued her education and earned a doctorate in medicine from Cornell University in 1981. Her talents and strong knowledge of medicine led her to Thailand, rural Kenya, Cuba, Sierra Leone and to Liberia where she managed a health care system from 1983-1985.

Jemison speaks Swahili, Japanese and Russian in addition to English.

In 1987, at age 32, Jemison was named the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) first Black female candidate.

Only the best scientists, mathematicians and pilots in the country are chosen to become astronauts.

She was one of 15 candidates chosen from 2,000 applicants. Jemison, however is not the only African American who has gone into space.

Guion Bluford, the first African American in space, Fred Gregory, Charlie Bolden, Winston Scott and the late Ronald McNair, the astronaut who died in the 1986 space shuttle Challenger explosion, are also a part of the small list of African Americans considered for space travel. These four men are the only African American candidates among NASA's 88.

After completion of a year long training and evaluation program in 1988, Jemison was assigned as mission specialist to STS-47 Space Lab-J, a cooperative mission between the United States and

Turn to JEMISON, page 2

COURTESY DOD

Dr. Mae Jemison, the first African-American woman in space.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, September 27

Workshop — A math anxiety reduction workshop will be held from 4:30 to 6 p.m. in Room 1634 of the Lederle Graduate Research Tower. Sponsored by the math department and Counseling and Academic Services, the sessions will be led by math professor Doris Stockton and counseling psychologist Donald Banks.

Blood drive — A blood drive will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101.

Open house — The Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns is hosting an open house from 4 to 6 p.m. Students, faculty and staff from the Five Colleges and the community are invited to tour the program office located in Southwest adjacent to the parking lot between Prince and Crampton House. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call 545-4825.

Lecture — Professor Dan Clawson will speak on "Soft Money in the 1992 Election" at 4 p.m. in W32 Machmer Hall. The lecture is part of the Social and Demographic Research Institute Research in Progress Seminar Series.

Wednesday, September 29

Service — UMass Hillel is sponsoring a Sukkot Service at 7 p.m. at the Hillel House Inner Courtyard, 388 N. Pleasant St.

Meeting — MassPIRG is holding a general interest meeting for interested students at 6 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101. Plans and strategies for campus and national projects will be determined at this meeting.

■ Jemison

continued from page 1

Japan in 1989. There she conducted life sciences and materials processing experiments.

On September 12, 1992, Jemison blasted into space aboard the space shuttle Endeavor along with NASA's first husband and wife team Mark Lee and Jan Davis, and Japan's first astronaut, chemist Mamoru Mohiri.

She conducted 44 experiments, including one involving the fertilization of frogs. The purpose of the experiment was to examine the effect of the absence of gravity upon an embryo. NASA is still determining the results of the experiment.

In March 1993, Jemison left NASA in to pursue personal interests. She is currently establishing a company which will attempt to improve health care in western Africa.

Jemison also teaches at Dartmouth College as a Montgomery Fellow. She said the career change came from a desire to work with those "who have been traditionally left out."

Although Jemison is no longer with NASA, she wants to get the message across to all Americans, especially African Americans, that space exploration "is going to happen" and is within one's reach.

Dr. Mae Jemison will speak tonight at 8 p.m. at Bowker Auditorium.

■ Yeltsin

continued from page 1

"This is the moment you have to be decisive and support Yeltsin because he's a democrat," said Anton Beneslavsky, a 10 year-old student marching in the crowd. "If the Communists return they'll destroy the economy again, and freedom, and peace."

Outside the White House, Yeltsin's rebellious vice president, Alexander Rutskoi, urged 3,000 to 4,000 anti-Yeltsin demonstrators "to stand till the end." Rutskoi has condemned Yeltsin's actions as unconstitutional and declared himself president.

■ biosphere

continued from page 1

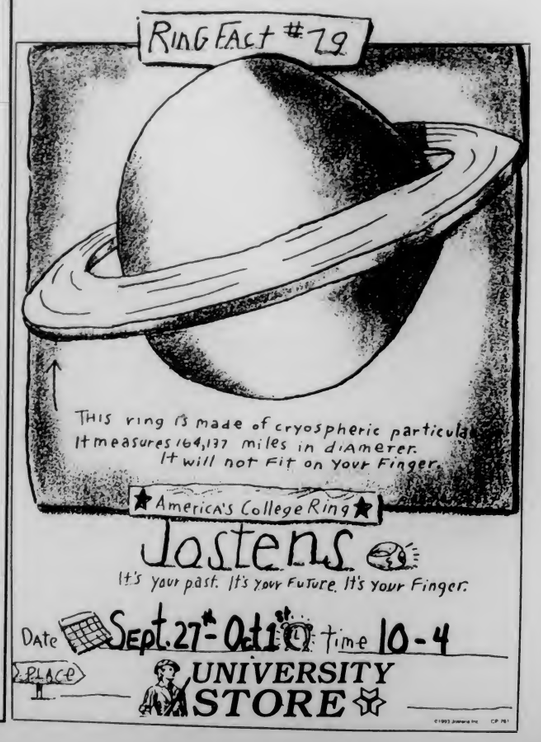
ment for the last time."

Crew members lost an average of 13.65 percent of their body weight on diet heavy on such items as sweet potatoes, rice, peanuts, bananas and wheat. They occasionally had an egg, chicken or goat meat and coffee.

During their stay, the crew produced just 80 percent of its food, depending for the rest on beans and grain intended as seed and on a three-month supply of dome-grown food stocked inside before closure. Low crop yields were blamed on cloudy weather and pests.

The previous records for people in a closed system were a stay of six months by a group of Soviets in a closed Earth environment and a one-year stay by Soviet cosmonauts' aboard the Mir space station.

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.



- WANTED -

Assistant Business Mgr.

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...

We are looking for :
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills.

Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, October 6, 1993 12:00pm.

Local News

The Hanson brothers?

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Not quite, but the New York Islanders and the Hartford Whalers did square off in a NHL preseason game Friday night in the Mullins Center.

Services for Yom Kippur a big success

By JAMIE D. BEARSE
Collegian Staff

Falling on the heels of the Israeli-Palestinian Peace Accord, the Yom Kippur services this weekend symbolized new hopes for a brighter future between the two long-time enemies.

Teshuvah, meaning "the turning" or change in Hebrew, was referred to often in the Sabbath's services led by Rabbi Saul Perlmutter in terms of individual introspection and in hopes of future peace.

"If we believe in the whole message of Yom Kippur which is that people can change," Perlmutter said, "then we must grant the possibility that Arafat could change his ways."

According to Perlmutter, some are still distrusting the Accord. Sophomore liberal arts major Isaac Erenfel said, "It's nothing big, but I hope our governments work things out, people from both sides are already friends."

"You don't have to be Jewish to understand the importance of peace between people of different ethnicities," said Aviv Ben-Ari, a junior history major.

In tradition of Yom Kippur, both Erenfeld and Ben-Ari fasted from sun down to sun down.

"Fasting shows your submission to God for all your sins," Erenfeld said. "It makes you feel good."

Many students who took part in the services said they were pleased to have Yom Kippur fall on a Saturday this year because they avoided feeling obligated to attend classes.

"It was very special to avoid the noise in between classes during our services," Perlmutter said. "Due to the solitude of the services, people were able to make new friends and discuss what they like in their lives and what they would like to change to make a better future for the whole community."

Commemorations continue on Wednesday when the Jewish community celebrates Succot which represents the time when Jews left slavery in Egypt.

New method of birth control uses hormone for prevention

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Choices available to women for birth control are expanding with the introduction of a three-month contraceptive.

Depo-Provera is an injection given every three months to prevent pregnancy through the use of a synthetic hormone similar to progesterone, naturally found in the body.

The effective rate is over 99 percent.

Depo-Provera was first proposed in the 1970s for use throughout the United States, but it was stalled by the Federal Drug Administration for over two decades.

In October 1992, the FDA approved the contraceptive and it became available to consumers in January 1993 through the pharmaceutical company Upjohn, located in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Kaye Bennett, a representative of Upjohn, said Depo-Provera has been available throughout the world since the late 1960s. She estimates that approximately 90 countries are using the contraceptive.

The drug was postponed in the United States because of concerns that Depo-Provera may cause cancer, particularly breast cancer.

An international study done by the World Health Organization sites no increase in breast cancer from the use of Depo-Provera.

When Upjohn submitted the drug for approval, it claimed the risk of cancer due to Depo-Provera is minimal, if at all.

However, women with a history of breast cancer in the family should consider another form of contraception.

There are concerns that Depo-Provera does contribute to osteoporosis, a condition where bones become weaker. As part of the FDA approval of Depo-Provera, Upjohn must do a study to determine what effects the artificial hormones have on bone density.

"We're in the final stages of developing a protocol," Bennett said, which would entail a five year study with a two year follow up as required by the FDA.

Depo-Provera is a 150 mg shot given either in the buttocks or the back on the arm, depending on the preference of the woman. The shot must first be given within five days after a woman's menstrual cycle starts and is effective immediately as a contraceptive.

The synthetic hormones stop ovulation through the rising levels of progesterone which signals the body to stop releasing mature eggs.

The shot actually induces tiny crystals within a water-based solution into the muscle where the injection was given. Over time, the hormones leave the crystals and enter the body.

The hormone levels decrease over the three month period, requiring a woman to receive another shot. If the shot is given past 14 weeks, the woman should have a pregnancy test because protection of Depo-Provera may have been depleted.

Common side effects from the injection are: weight gains, menstrual irregularities, tiredness, weakness, dizziness, head aches, nervousness and abdominal pains.

Nina Mulligan, a counselor at the Family Planning Counsel of Western Massachusetts in Northampton, said the most common side effect she sees is irregular bleeding.

After a year, periods will stop for about half the women using Depo-Provera. A regular menstrual cycle will resume a couple months after discontinuing the injections.

If Depo-Provera is unsatisfactory, a woman just has to ignore her next shot.

Depo-Provera is a median option between daily doses with the birth control pill and a five year implant with Norplant.

Turn to BIRTH CONTROL, page 6

Objectivity in science needs new standards

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

Objectivity should not be confused with complete disinterest or "value neutrality," according to a Philosophy professor from the University of Delaware, who delivered her lecture on Thursday night. The lecture was entitled "Strong Objectivity: A Contribution from Feminism" was given at Mount Holyoke College.

Sandra Harding, the author of Whose Knowledge? Whose Science?: Thinking from Women's Lives and The "Racial" Economy of Science: Toward A Democratic Future, focused her lecture on the varying concepts of objectivity in science.

Harding compared her version of "strong objectivity" to the more the traditional idea of objectivity, which she said requires the researcher to "remain detached [from] and disinterested [in the subject]."

"Conventional objectivity argues that all values deteriorate objectivity and that all values should be eliminated [from research]," Harding said.

"We need to develop new kinds of standards for objectivity besides the ones that have been used."

The Scientific Method, for example, puts a great emphasis on rationality, a characteristic stereotypically associated with men, and does not guarantee that prejudices are "screened out" of research according to Harding.

"The Scientific Method is only used to identify how scientists differ in ideas," said Harding. "It can not identity beliefs that scientists have in

Turn to HARDING, page 4

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

University of Delaware professor of philosophy Sandra Harding spoke on objectivity at Mount Holyoke College.

■ Harding

continued from page 3

common like racism or sexism."

Harding said the conventional idea of objectivity has been used to keep women out of science fields.

"It [traditional objectivity] has been used to exclude important parts of science," said Harding. It has kept out feminists with the claim that "[their] work is not objective."

Harding said democratic social values have a positive effect on science and therefore should be included when doing scientific research.

"If we want to maximize objectivity we need to start thinking from marginal lives," Harding said.

Starting research from the standpoint of women, people of color or non-Western people gives a perspective "which enables us to get a more objective account of how society works," said Harding.

Harding's theory, called "strong objectivity," is based on the need to "confront and change hegemonist forms of knowledge."

"We have to learn to think from the standpoints of others," said Harding. "We need to try to situate our accounts outside the dominant thought [in order to be truly objective]," Harding said.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.

The Collegian. 545-3500. Call Us!

BASICALLY BICYCLES
QUALITY BICYCLES AT AFFORDABLE PRICES!
ATB & HYBRID BIKES $200 & Up
SAVE ON HELMETS, RACKS, LOCKS!
FREE DELIVERY ON NEW BIKES
40 AVENUE A - TURNER FALLS, MA
MC/VISA accepted
PHONE: 863-3556

WRNX 100.9 FM
MONDAY NIGHT COACH'S CORNER
TALK Football with Mike Hodges
• T - Shirts
• Appetizers
• Buffet
Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
CNN WTTT AM 1430

TELEVISION NEWS
at the Union Video Center
Aspiring Broadcast Journalists:
Express Yourself
U.V.C.'S
UMASS UPDATE
is seeking:
• News Anchors •
• Filed Reporters •
• Writers •
• Technical Crew •
Our First Meeting Is:
TONIGHT at 7:00 pm
at the U.V.C. in the Student Union
545-1336

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT THE HATCH?
HATCH FOOD
NEW Taco Bell
Foot Long Hot & Cold Grinders
Foot Long Steak Grinders (at the grill)
New Salad Bar Choices
• now open 'til 8:00pm.
Deli Sandwiches
• now available 'til 9:00pm.
AND COMING SOON ...
Oriental Stir Fry
To Order!
HATCH BAR
Pool Tables
Large Screen TV
16oz. Draft Beers
FREE Popcorn
THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
Miller Genuine Draft
$1.25
AND COMING OCTOBER 6th AND 7th
The 2nd Annual Octoberfest!
Sam Adams Octoberfest Beer on Draft!
Beer Mugs and More!
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Misconceptions, fears cloud the debate over NAFTA

This is the second of two columns on the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Within a decade, there very well may be free trade from Alaska to Argentina, with only a few small exceptions in between. Besides the economic strength gained with free trade in North America, this bi-continental trade would not only be good for the United States; it would create the strongest economy in the world out of twenty nations, helping not just Americans but also the citizens of some of the poorer nations of Latin America.

When Americans think of Latin America, they see banana republics, weekly coups, and inflation running at three thousand percent. But this is a Latin America of the past. Now, the nations of South and Central America are the new "economic tigers" of the world, the best hopes for the future.

In the past three years alone, European, Japanese, and American investors have more than quadrupled their investment in the region, from $24 billion to one hundred billion. The ten strongest nations in the area are now fertile for American export - South America was the only region where the U.S. had a trade surplus last year, of six billion dollars.

Through privatization of industry, removal of trade regulation, tax cuts, assistance in investment, and producing for export, nations like Chile, Argentina, and Venezuela have burst onto the world's economic scene. Free trade on both continents would dwarf Japan and Europe and make the Americas the economic leader of the next century.

Peter
ORVETTI

David Rockefeller, chairman of the Rockefeller Group, predicts that, "by the year 2000 the Western Hemisphere will have an entire free trade area." The reason Latin America has been ignored, says Rockefeller, is that for half a century, Latin America was largely protectionist and anti-American, and had a bad economy. But now recovered and excelling, Latin America is the untapped resource of economic growth for the Americas.

For example, Argentina, where the gross national product grows at nine percent a year. Or Panama, where inflation hardly exists and the GNP grows at eight percent a year. Or Chile, with an astounding ten percent growth and only 4.6 percent unemployment. And then there are Colombia and Venezuela, with large stores of oil, coal, and natural gas. These nations are actually doing better than the U.S., where growth is only 2.1 percent and inflation hovers around seven.

Most of these nations have free trade with one another — part of the reason for their success. It is true there are some bad cases, like Brazil with thirty percent inflation, and Nicaragua, where the abrupt changeover from a fairly successful socialist government to a rather bland centrist one has left a full 45 percent of Nicaraguans unemployed.

All in all, Latin America's economy is something of a miracle, one the U.S. would be foolish to ignore. With our own economy in slow collapse, we cannot afford to remain aloof from the changing world, where free trade and international economy is the key to success.

Free trade is perhaps all that can salvage America's economy. Labor opposes it because they fear for their jobs, although free trade will make more jobs — 200,000 by NAFTA alone, perhaps millions by bi-continental free trade. Protectionists oppose it because they fear change in our economic traditions. Ross Perot opposes it because he doesn't understand it. It is now time for these people to learn about it, and for the U.S. to act on it.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

ReGo's got to get real

About two weeks ago, Vice President Al Gore was tap dancing as fast as he could pressing his "Re-inventing government" program, also known as ReGo. A press conference with Bill Clinton in front of forklifts full of government regulations, Larry King Live, smashing ashtrays on Letterman, C-SPAN. Over and over in this phantamagoria, he presented ReGo as the panacea to all problems in government through streamlining, accountability and common sense.

Eric
LINDHOLM

Of course its been tried before, a fact that Gore addressed in a Wahington Post article titled "This Time We Mean Business." He listed three reasons to the self-posed question of "Why is this administration going to succeed where its predecessors have failed?" First, says Gore, and most importantly, people are "fed up with government's performance." Mind-boggling. People's distaste for government has grown steadily for decades but apparently now people are really fed up. (Could it be because the Clinton administration is in power?)

Also, how is public opinion going to force Congress to stop spending? It's a known axiom in America that people hate Congress but love their Congressman — only real accountability or term limits can stop Congressional spending. When he was trying to hammer out his budget, Clinton promised everything but the kitchen sink to wavering Democrats. One thing saved for another year as a result of this back-scratching is the helium reserve in Texas. The cost of saving this billion-dollar reserve of gas for World War I blimps is over $1,000 million a year.

Second, "this president is serious about delivering real change in Washington." Real change? Even if all of Gore's recommendations come to light, it is estimated that it will curtail government spending over five years by a whopping 1 percent. And "this president" can only fulfill half the plan by executive order — the rest is up to Congress. (See above.)

Third, says the VP, "federal employees have been the principal source of ideas for the changes recommended." That's comforting. Surely, a government employee is willing to offer a plan with real pain, perhaps one that will eliminate his/her job.

The reason Gore is flapping his arms so hard to get ReGo on everyone's mind is that he wants America to think of the coming expansion of the federal government as its "re-invention." At very few points in ReGo does Gore detail the elimination of government programs; instead he uses specious words like "decentralize" and "consolidation."

If Gore is really serious about re-inventing government and renewing America's hope and faith in Washington, he should take a step towards eliminating one of the costliest, and most useless, positions in town: the Vice Presidency. According to "The Government Racket" by Martin Gross, the VP has 26 employees in three offices, more than one limousine, a Secret-Service driver and access to a Boeing 707 which, upon his presence turns into Air Force Two.

Gore's home is a Victorian mansion kept by a $50,000 a year housekeeper and a crew who care for the grounds. Finally, there is the $160,000 salary and a $90,000 entertainment allowance. All told, the Vice Presidency, costs American taxpayers about $5 million a year. That's quite a bit of cash for a man whose duties include composing "Top 10" lists for his Letterman gig.

Eric Lindholm is a UMass graduate student.

SGA responds to its hasty critics

The Mission Enhancement Proposal every one has been talking about was drawn up, researched and submitted in four days over this past summer. This time-line was given to the Student Government Association by University President Michael Hooker, in an effort to bypass student input.

The editorials, "Misison Enhancement Proposal has no regard for communities" and "The SGA has misused its power" [Collegian, Sept. 21] were a misrepresentation of the facts and reactions not based on thought analysis. We must understand the facts of the issue based on their intentions.

The SGA fully supports the struggle to combat homophobia, anti-semitism and racism everywhere on campus, including within the GLB communitites and the SGA. We urge all communities to do the same. We are not denying that the GLB and Jewish community seats were not institutionalized, but rather, were presented within the Mission Enhancement Proposal as at-large sets.

This proposal was, and still is, an ALANA proposal. The proposal, in its rough stages, was a diversity document geared toward the ALANA communities out of the Office of Third World Affairs with the intentions of being all inclusive, but maintaining our focus of ALANA concerns.

With the implementation of those at-large seats came the notion of networking the communities and creating communial respect and finding a common goal. As for the issue of representation, we the undergrads can blame no one but ourselves for not getting involved and making ourselves heard, either within our respective communities or within the SGA as a whole.

At the time this was an ALANA centered proposal initiated by the Office of the Third World Affairs via the Undergradute SGA. In light of the recent controversy the Administration has given us the opportunity to revamp our proposal and restructure it without losing our focus of diversity within the ALANA communities.

With this opportunity came a sense of cohesion between the groups who were upset and a satisfactory resolution to the problem has been agreed upon. As far as the GLB communities are concerned, had there been a representative involved in Student Government on any level then maybe such a discrepancy would not have occurred. No one can represent the GLB concerns better than the GLB communities.

The true fight is in Boston and Whitmore against rising tuition and fees and better student activities here on campus and not amongst ourselves.

Manuel Aguilar, Chair
Senate Public Relations Committee

Thanks officer, I feel safer now

Several nights ago, I was joined in my room by two officers of the UMass Police Department. After they kicked my friend out of the room, frisked me and read me my rights, they informed me that they received a report that I had a weapon in the room.

At first I had no idea what they were talking about until I remembered I had a fake toy gun. I pointed them in the direction of where they could find it (they would not let me move while they had their hands on their real guns).

They weren't too happy with me having it, but they informed me it was, in fact, legal to own. The cop then told me if he saw me with it he would shoot first and ask questions later. Thanks officer, I feel safer now.

Evidently, these two cops weren't satisfied with their cache, so they asked me if I had any more dangerous weapons. I told them there was a knife in the jar of peanut butter. Under close scrutiny, they decided that too was virtually harmless.

Still unsatisfied, the two protectors of law and order pressed on, looking for perhaps an assault rifle I had hidden under my bed, or maybe a rocket launcher. They then found something far more dangerous than they could ever imagine: my bong.

"Are you a dope-head?"

"No officer, I'm a student, I can't afford it."

Their search continued. In total they took my bong, a pipe, a pair of tweezers with resin on them, and my toy gun. Though they told me I could get the gun back, I would just have to go to the station then bring it directly off campus. They also took a patch that said, "Police" on it. He told me he didn't want me going around imitating a police officer (that is my secret desire).

Finally satisfied with throwing my stuff all over the room, the officers departed for a well deserved coffee and donut. UMass may rest easier.

Well, it was my roommate that ratted on me for the toy gun. Evidently, snooping through my stuff is a pastime of his; you never know what happens while you're away at class. He moved out the next day, I thought he was cool, he knew about my bong and didn't care about that.

What's the moral of this story? Confront people. If my roommate asked me what I was doing with a gun I would have shown him it was not real, then this whole mess would never have happened. This doesn't go for just guns too, if you have any problem with anybody, talk with them about it and maybe there isn't a problem at all.

Stephen Korpi
Central

■ birth control

continued from page 3

"The birth control pill is by far the most common method," Mulligan said.

Bennett said Upjohn sells Depo-Provera to family planning clinics at $22.40. "It is very close in price to the birth control pill," she said.

Mulligan said Depo-Provera is available to women on a sliding scale fee according to one's income. She said the price range is between $20 to $40 for one shot lasting three months. The birth control pill at the clinic is offered at $8 for one cycle.

Health Services also offers Depo-Provera once a woman fulfills the general requirements for receiving any prescription contraceptive.

Depo-Provera is offered at $33.50.

Gloria DiFulvio, a health educator said not too many women at the University are using Depo-Provera.

"The main reason [not a lot of women are using Depo-Provera] is it is not known that it is here," she said.

Tool talk

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN

Richard Snape, David Sorois and Bob Sousy (left to right) of Morris Roofing patch up a leaky roof on the John Adams Tower.

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton / Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

The Campus Center
Student Union
Board of Governors
B.O.G.
Is hiring 4 students for various positions: vending, office and programming. Flexible hours available- between 3-12 hours a week.
Applications available at 817CC.
Applications due by Thurs. Sept. 30.
Interviews week of Oct 4th.

300 pr jeans
200+ Sweaters
Lots & Lots of Stuff
NEW AT HEART
CONSIGNMENT SHOPPE
Post Office Box 81
11 Main Street
Belchertown, MA 01007
Owner Joy Chambers 413-323-9225

- IMPORTANT
IMMUNIZATION INFORMATION -

Before you pick up the phone and call us...
...PLEASE READ BELOW

Never received our Health Questionnaire packet in the mail?

If you have not received a Health Questionnaire, you still have 30 days to complete your immunization records. You can pick up the Health Questionnaire form at the University Health Services Medical Records Desk or at the Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00).

How much will it cost? Is it covered by my student insurance?

There is a $20 Nursing fee for these appointments. There is no charge for a Tetanus-Diphtheria booster. If you are a Massachusetts resident, there is no charge for an MMR (Measles, Mumps,& Rubella) booster. Out-of-state residents must pay a charge of $30 for an MMR (Measles, Mumps, & Rubella) booster. Your Basic Health Fee and Supplemental Insurance does not cover the cost of these clinics.

How do I get my immunization record?

You should contact your family doctor, your medical clinic from home, or your high school to complete your missing immunization requirements.

Can I get the needed shots at Health Services?

Health Services will be holding Immunization Clinics on Friday, September 24 and Friday, October 1. To make an appointment, call our main appointment desk at 549-2671 ext. 101 or ext. 102.

Will I be administratively withdrawn or be assessed a late fee?

All entering students must meet the state requirements for immunizations If you remain incomplete after the October 1 Immunization Clinic is held, you will be assessed a late fee fine of $25. Continued non-compliance will prevent you from registering for your next semester classes, and you may face administrative withdrawal from the University after the pre-registration period.

Other questions?

Come in to see us at the Health Services Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00) or call us at 549-2671 ext. 275. Please be patient with the phone...our lines get pretty busy.

University Health Services

COME WATCH MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL ON OUR
NEW BIG SCREEN T.V.!
Charlies tavern Since 1974
NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS ☞ 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
MONDAY - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks / TUESDAY - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
WEDNESDAY - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR 1/4 # Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
THURSDAY - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
DRINK SPECIALS!! DRINK SPECIALS!! DRINK SPECIALS!!
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95
Kamikaze Shots - $1.75
Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V. • MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

Need A Roommate?
They're clean, quiet, and won't hog the bathroom!
Call Dave's...
We know what we're talking about when it comes to reptile roommates of any kind. We can help with food, supplies, homes (cages), as well as selecting lizards, snakes (including Boas and Ball Pythons) and more. Sorry, no advice on human roommates!
Farm Raised Iguanas
$24.95 with this ad
Expires 10/21/93
DAVE'S SODA & PET CITY
The Supermarket for Pet Lovers!
HADLEY
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
584-7511
SC

Arts & Living

French Sr. samples U.S.

French exchange student Philippe Rigollaud is sampling a taste of America. Having spent the majority of a one-year study abroad program here at UMass, this loquacious Hotel and Restaurant Management major has got American living down to an art.

Having obtained the French equivalent of a Bachelors degree in H.R.T.A./ Culinary Arts, Rigollaud is using his time in the U.S. to focus on the American food industry and its business practices, and to find out more about the culture behind the cuisine.

Half A World Away
by Emily Marino

Rigollaud asserts above all that the number of overweight Americans seems considerably larger than the that of the French, a phenomenon that Rigollaud attributes to the variety and availability of food in the States, found everywhere from street corners to the beach.

Rigollaud is a native of La Test de Buch (which translates, oddly enough, to "woodenhead,") in Southwestern France, a city that he refers to as "the California of France." The avid surfer spends much time hiking and climbing mountains in the States, to compensate for the fact that he is far from the beautiful beaches at home that he describes excitedly.

Friendly and genuinely interested in others, Rigollaud combats stereotypes of snotty French folks who treat Americans apathetically, by talking extensively and getting to know many UMass students.

"Right away I try to set a different atmosphere," he says, adding that it usually takes a while before someone will open up enough to discuss negative experiences in France. Boasting of the beauty of his own city, Rigollaud worries that many Americans have only seen or heard of Paris or the French Riviera, and base judgements on non-typical incidents of snobbery.

Although he misses his friends and home, he loves the American social life that allows him to meet new people, see great concerts and shows and most of all "to create."

Displaying a copper necklace that he made at the UMass Craft Center, Rigollaud claims that even just an hour devoted to arts and crafts help to break up the afternoon, and allow him to relax.

Rigollaud studied English for six years, but claims that his one year of studying American was to little avail.

"I tried to learn, but I was very bad in American," he chuckles, "It makes a big difference, the American [language]."

One of his most memorable experiences is the one time Rigollaud dreamt in English, an indication that he was truly grasping the language. Visiting a linguist friend at a State University of New York campus, he woke up one morning with full recollection of his dream, which had been dreamt in English.

He remembers running down the stairs and yelling, "I had my first American dream!"

Since then, Rigollaud has acquired a relentless desire to keep acquiring information about American culture.

"You discover things every day, even after nine months," he marvels. "You meet new people and see new places, and I am still learing the language."

In light of his busy, varied pursuit of America, it seems that Rigollaud is well on his way to achieving more than one of those debatable idealistic, American dreams that he was shouting about.

Emily Marino is a Collegian columnist.

The brown house is not on frat row after all

First Things First
by Jeff Coker

"Hey Jeff! Are you going up to the Brown House tonight?" one of my dorm buddies asked.

"Yeah, I'm going," I said.

First things first. I was ignorant as to what the Brown House was, much less where it was located. Regardless, I made plans to party there. I figured we would walk along Frat Row until we got there. It didn't occur to me that the fact that we were walking in the opposite direction of the crowds may have been a clue that my plan was not exactly fool-proof.

"Jeff, where are all the parties?" one of the girls asked. They all followed with questioning eyes.

"They're along Frat Row," I said.

"Is that where the Brown Dorm is?" another asked.

"Look Smithsonians," I said, "the Brown House is coming up."

Needless to say, we never actually found the Brown House, although from what I later learned, we were only around the corner of this greatly anticipated party haven.

This is all part of the first year student's learning experience. If most of you disagree with me and you are freshpeople, then I am the one with the social disability.

At home, in California, parties are distinct. I have been to college parties many-a-time in the past and they are all different; it depends on the crowd.

I should have based my actions as any normal first-year student would. I should have said in a ga-ga-goo-goo baby voice, "I am just a freshmin. I do not know whath's goin' on."

However, it is nothing to worry about. The only difference is that we are attending college parties while we are college students. We have more reason to be there.

First things first. We are the reason, are we not, fellow first-year students, that these bashes are so well-attended? It is the first time you'll ever read that.

Jeff Coker is a Collegian columnist

Correction

"Revitalized Dead to play Boston," printed in the Thursday, Sept. 22 issue of the Collegian was written by Michael Smith, not Michael Einhorn. The Collegian regrets the error.

MAKE YOURSELF HEARD

The Student Government Association is holding elections for the Undergraduate Student Senate on October 6th, 1993. Students interested in running for Senator must take out nomination papers by September 28th, 1993.

Senate seats are available in all five residential areas, as well as the Commuter Area and the Greek Area. Students can pick up nomination papers at the Student Government Office, 420 Student Union.

IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTIONS CONCERNING ELECTIONS OR HOW TO GET INVOLVED IN THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION, PLEASE CONTACT:

CAM TEWKSBURY, ELECTIONS COORDINATOR, AT 545-0341.

The BIG E
Eastern States Expo

This view of the Midway at the Big E evokes memories of yesteryear.

Edward Dvorchak's giant pumpkin weighed in at 516.8 lbs.

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

The 72nd annual Eastern States Exposition, "the Big E," came to a close yesterday after 12 days of non-stop fun. In addition to the estimated $47 million of revenues and the 3,300 jobs the 1993 Big E is credited with generating, there were countless entertainment options for fairgoers.

The Avenue of the States, the only place where you can visit and learn about the agriculture, commerce, natural resources and industries of all six New England states in a single day, is one of the main attractions of the fair.

The state buildings, which line the avenue, are replicas of each state's capitol building. While the wait for a baked potato in the Maine Building was second only to a ride on Disney World's Space Mountain, Rhode Island's clam cake line had a better turnover with equally tasty rewards.

The Massachusetts Building had displays by everyone from the Division of Law Enforcement to the State Lottery, which provided on-line betting for the convenience of those who wished to take a chance on a Mass. Lottery game.

The Massachusetts Turnpike Commission was on hand to distribute promotional material, including the informative, "MassPike in Bloom," for flower lovers who may want to consider a leisurely drive down the 135 mile turnpike to peruse the always changing landscape. (Autumn brings New England Aster, Goldenrod, Gringed Gentian, Boneset and Little Bluestem Grass to the Pike — just to name a few.

Mariah Harding watches the equestrian competition.

Other attractions at the Big E include Farm-a-Rama, where fairgoers found horticulture and agriculture exhibits, prizewinning produce, demonstrations by area farmers, growers and youth groups and animals of all kinds.

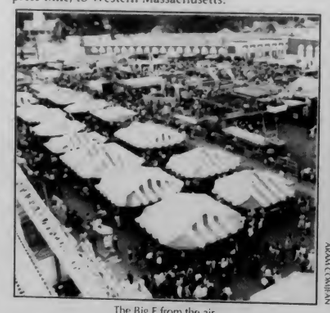
In Farm-a-Rama's glass enclosed incubator, children and adults, stopped to watch the fluffy baby chicks break out of their shells, eat and dance through the sawdust. Over 2,200 eggs were hatched during the 12 days of the Big E.

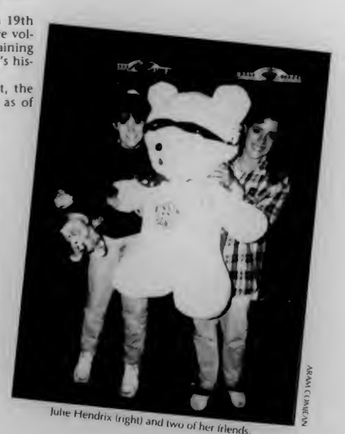
A humongous surprise was the 516.8 lb pumpkin grown by Edward Dvorchak of Springfield, Mass. which won first prize and eclipsed a seven-year-old record at the Giant Pumpkin and Squash Weigh-Off. This hulking vegetable, adorned with its hard earned ribbon, greeted visitors to the Farm-a-Rama building.

Sept. 20 at the Big E brought creative cooks from all over New England to compete in the "Create Your Best Spam Recipe Contest." Contestants were asked to create an original hot or cold dish using at least one 12-ounce can of Spam, Less Salt Spam or Spam Lite. Wayne Miller of Salem, NH was the far and away winner with Spam Rolls, "similar in taste to egg rolls," according Big E Communications Manager, Catherine Pappas.

More traditional sights included the re-creation of a 19th century New England village, "Storrowton Village" where volunteers dressed in Early American garb, gave tours explaining the traditions, customs and crafts of 1800s New England's history.

While not the most cosmopolitan of entertainment, the Eastern States Exposition attracted 807,914 fairgoers, as of press time, to Western Massachusetts.





Neil Sedaka entertains the crowd with his elegant song stylings.

This mother pig is backed into a corner by young, hungry piglets.

UMass student Annette Lis finds her friend Rob Muckenthaler at the Lost People sign.

The Big E from the air.

Julie Hendrix (right) and two of her friends.

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

STEVE By MATT (STEVE)

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

DR SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"That's a lie, Morty! ... Mom says you might have got the brains in the family, but I got the looks!"

Quote of the Day

"One should always seek a peaceful settlement of differences."
– University President Michael Hooker

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Gossip or confusion about a project could send it to the surface now. Remain calm and avoid doing battle. Once the dust settles, your star will shine brighter than ever.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Conflicts or errors could escalate. Double-check your work and be courteous to your co-workers. A compromise can keep those molehills from turning into mountains.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Timing is the key to success in business. It would be unwise to push ahead at this moment. Maintain a slow and steady pace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Matters related to business or the law demand prompt attention. Learn sympathetically to someone's problems but avoid making promises that could be difficult to fulfill.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An out-of-town visitor could alter your plans for the day. Welcome the change of pace. This afternoon, a leisurely diversion could cause some resentment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Clearing away the clutter at work will improve both your surroundings and your efficiency. It may be time to make some hard decisions about a close relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let go of the past and happiness will be yours in abundance. You can be proud of what you have accomplished during hard times. Your mate and supporting are your staunchest allies.

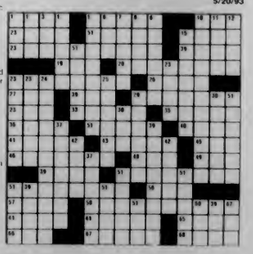
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A family member could be touchy now. Diplomacy helps you sail through a difficult situation. A secret alliance fills the gap left by a temporary rift.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Caution will help you avert a crisis. Follow up tips regarding stocks and bonds and you could run a spark into a romantic evening puts you in a mellow mood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Comparison shopping helps cut expenses. Broaden your knowledge if you are dieting. Correspondence requires prompt attention. Old contacts play a role in your meeting new friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Productivity rises when you set priorities and stick to them. Important questions are answered. Be more attentive to a parent or a child. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Approach those in authority about a big project. Obtaining public support for a pet cause could be easier than you think. Ask influential people for their backing and advice.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Island in the West Indies
5 Vanity
10 Lit. Nobelist 1948
13 Omani
14 King of Judea
15 Chew the fat
16 Wall's wonderful world
18 Aviation: Comb. form
19 USNA grad
20 Sharp downturn
22 Value
26 Word with come and go
27 Part of ABA
28 Media giant's ints.
29 Byrd or Halsey
32 Grape
33 Painter of "Olympia"
35 Net
36 Pop singer from Nigeria
38 Carson's successor et al
40 General Bradley
41 — Gay: historic plane
43 Berger of the screen
45 Arm of the UN
46 Mark for an offender
48 Fish eating bird
49 — care center
50 City S. of Kiev
51 High-ranking campus officials
53 Kind of ballot
56 Tuck's "close" companion
57 Bot. prin.
58 National park in Florida
63 Defeat
64 Stage show
65 Archeological find
66 Theory
67 Show disdain
68 Acting award

DOWN
1 Heel
2 Swiss canton
3 College degs.
4 Capp character
5 — education
6 Fam. member
7 Angry
8 Title in Toledo
9 Whirled
10 Egyptian attractions
11 Ganges garment
12 School on the Thames
15 Site of a famous Italian abbey
17 Provide with weapons
21 Makes a getaway
22 Maltreated
23 Stately court dance
24 Showcase for Spanish artists
25 Most levelheaded
29 Sorry one
30 Noah's landfall
31 Artist Neiman et al
34 Wind dir.
37 Gold or silver
39 More robust
42 Islands off Galway
44 Smithy's surface
47 Buries
51 Cause annoyance
52 MOMA offering
53 French trench
54 George and Ira, for short
55 Uniform
59 Bemoan
60 Twosome
61 One, in Frankfurt
62 Ship's curved plank

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/20/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor.....Art Stapleton, Jr.
Photo Technician.....Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor.....Mike Carvalho
Production.....Susan Nasberg
Tara Dixon

MENU

LUNCH
Duchess Meat Pie
Clam Roll
BASICS LUNCH
Salad Pocket
Clam Roll

DINNER
Zesty Basil Chicken
Roast Pork
BASICS DINNER
Curried Chick Peas
Zesty Basil Chicken

Cross country squads stay on road to success

• Women trounce weekend opponents

By DANA ABIZAID
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's cross country team continued its winning ways Saturday afternoon by routing the University of Vermont, Boston University, and the University of New Hampshire on its own three mile course.

UMass placed six runners in the top 10. The lopsided final was UMass 24, UVM 65, BU 67, and UNH 76.

Leading the pack for the Minutewomen was freshman standout Melissa Langevin who was again named the A-10 Rookie of the Week. She finished second overall to BU's Antje Siems.

Kristin Diggs ran her first race of the season and finished fourth while Kelly Liljeblad (fifth), Katie Greenia (sixth), Jen Waegner (seventh) and Kim Liljelbad (tenth) helped vault UMass to an easy victory.

Langevin was experiencing tendinitis in her knees all week but that didn't hinder her performance Saturday.

"I was a little tired this week and the tendinitis was bothering me but I spent time in the whirlpool and that helped me out," Langevin said. "Today the knee felt good."

UMass head coach Julie LaFreniere said she was surprised the race wasn't closer. With the recent UMass injuries and illnesses, she said she had thought BU and UVM would pose more of a problem for her ailing squad.

"Mellssa has the tendinitis, Kelly is coming back from her knee injury, Katie has been feeling like garbage lately and Kristin Diggs had been ill until today," said LaFreniere.

"Kerry Aker who usually finishes in the top 10 for us has had a respiratory problem that is just starting to clear up."

LaFreniere said she doesn't expect the team to be at full strength until the end of October but feels they can win the A-10 Championships right now.

"We are ranked number three in New England behind Providence and Dartmouth," she said. "Today we ran through a lot of physical problems and I'm excited about how we looked. We basically shut out Vermont but we still have a lot of work to do."

The squad doesn't compete again until the Paul Short Invitaional in Pennsylvania October 9 but,according to Coach LaFraniere, they will be practicing hard for the next two weeks.

• Men solid in weekend victory over NE foes

By MICHAEL R. DILORENZO
Collegian Correspondent

The race does not always go to the swiftest.

Bolstered by five runners placing in the 6-10 slots, the University of Massachusetts men's cross country team earned a solid victory over Vermont and Boston University in a tri-meet at UMass.

The Minutemen needed only to outscore UVM (40-49) as BU's fifth runner did not complete the race; the top five finishers are needed to score the meet.

UMass, which ran its record to 4-1, was led for the second straight week by sophomore Ethan Nedeau who placed sixth in a time of 25:57. BU's Eric Hallman won the race in 25:26.

UMass head coach Ken O'Brien said he was both surprised and expectant of such strong performances by Nedeau.

"In one respect, it's a surprise," said O'Brien. "As a transfer from Lake Superior State, he was out of activity for a year, which can affect a runner. But he was a good high-school runner in Maine, so we knew he had that ability."

Rounding out the top ten for the Minutemen was freshman Matthew Behl (seventh) followed by senior Kevin Greenalgh (eighth), junior Theodore Towse (ninth) and freshman Jonathan Way (tenth). O'Brien noted that with this team, placing five runners in the top ten is no surprise.

"We knew depth would by our strong point this year," said O'Brien. "We have six or seven guys capable of running with other teams' third men. It's a solid team that doesn't have ups and downs."

UMass is out of action until October 9, when the Minutemen travel to Bethlehem, PA, for the Paul Short Invitational. O'Brien said he expects the meet to be very competitive because it is known as the finest In the East.

"We can expect to see seven or eight of the top 15 teams in the country there," said O'Brien. "Since it's the site of the NCAAs, teams come east to acquaint themselves with the course.

"This is our first meet at this distance [10,000 meters instead of the standard five-mile course] and against such a large field. With such a young team, it will be like re-inventing the wheel."

■ football

continued from page 12

The second special teams disaster occurred with 10 minutes left in the half. On fourth and 10 standing in his own end zone, Riemer fielded a snap that bounced in front of him, saw no room to punt, and tried to scamper for a first down.

He was tackled well short, and BU scored on the first play after taking over on downs, another Burwell trap up the middle for a 21-0 Terrier lead with 9:29 left in the half.

"I really don't know what happened," Riemer said. "They got to a couple of them. It wasn't just a low snap, I may have rushed it a little bit."

It was not simply the UMass punting team which faltered. Boston University's Mike Morello was booming high spiral after high spiral, pinning UMass deep in its own territory.

Minuteman kick and punt returners fumbled the ball a total of four times on the day, and although all were recovered by UMass, it emphasized the fact that BU was winning the special teams battle.

Although the Minutemen could not get anything right after the first two quarters, the team did not give up. They came out in the third and scored in 35 seconds to cut the lead to 21-7. Eric Thimas took an Andrew McNeilly pass for a 46-yard catch and run that gave UMass a glimmer of hope.

The Minutemen came on defensively, and sacked Dougherty six times on the day (they could have had five more but for his awesome scrambling ability). His counterpart could not get the UMass offense going, though.

The team was 1-for-15 on third down conversions, and although the sophomore QB was 11-for-22, he only gained 127 yards through the air and looked shellshocked after the loss.

A key interception in the end zone, McNeilly's first of the season, to start the fourth all but buried the Minutemen. BU tacked on a fourth TD on a 34-yard picture-perfect pass from Dougherty to Myers, and Silas Burke recorded a safety by tackling Burwell in the end zone for the final points.

Golden Key
National Honor Society
All Members Meeting!
Monday, September 27
7:00 pm
Campus Center Room 904
Update on 1992-1993 Activities
Planning for 1993-1994
For More Information Call:
Gladys Rodriguez
Dean of Students Office
545-2684

TRAVELING?
WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
• Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
• Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
• Adventure Tours • Language Courses
• International Student & Teacher I.D.
• Work & Study Abroad
• Youth Hostel Memberships
• Car Rental & Leasing
• Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!
FREE "STUDENT TRAVELS" MAGAZINE!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

RUSH ΒΘΒ
The only fraternity on campus that lets you haze yourself!
- Beta Theta Beta -
103 Campus Center

$99.00!!!
WALKING Co-Ed FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA Co-Ed DISTANCE
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
$99.00!!!

Thinking of Applying to Law School?
ON WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29 AT 7:30
AT AMHERST COLLEGE
in Front Room
Campus Center
The Admissions Deans at UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO LAW SCHOOL
HARVARD LAW SCHOOL
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW
YALE LAW SCHOOL
will discuss the application and admissions process, and answer your questions. Seniors, juniors, and sophomores welcome.

■ mishaps

continued from page 12

four point loss at the hands of the mediocre Black Bears, 17-13.

The game with Boston University this past Saturday was no different. Errors made by the Minutemen, namely the special teams, led to their second consecutive loss.

What was different, though, was that the Terriers are a much stronger team than Maine, and it showed as they trounced the Minutemen by 19 points.

The Minutemen began the downfall in the middle of the first quarter. On fourth and ten on their own 15 yard line, freshman Justin Reimer's punt was blocked by BU's Carlton Myers, then recovered by Pablo Rodriguez for a Terrier touchdown.

Early in the second quarter, on fourth and ten on their own 12 yard line, Reimer tried to get the punt off. Due to a bad snap by long snapper Jon Kromenhoek, Reimer was forced to run the ball, and was stuffed for a four yard loss. That led to a one play, 8 yard TD by BU standout tailback Zack Burwell (21 carries for 79 yards). Time elapsed on the Terrier TD drive — five seconds.

"On special teams, we just hand-delivered fourteen points to (the Terriers)," said UMass head coach Mike Hodges.

The blame, however, cannot be placed on the shoulders of the freshman punter alone. The bad snap on the second Minutemen misfortune and the small amount of time Reimer had to punt the first time must also be considered.

At the crucial points of the game, the Minutemen, in all facets, failed to produce. The offense was ineffective, as it converted one of fifteen third down conversions.

On the positive side, the defense had a steady performance, led by its powerful pass rush. Many times during the game, Terrier QB Robert Dougherty (19-28, 200 yards) was forced to scramble. The Minutemen managed to sack the junior college transfer six times, but, in some cases, failed to execute as Dougherty scrambled away.

■ field hockey

continued from page 12

encing a letdown after the previous day's upset. Rutgers opened up the scoring as Heather Jones beat UMass goalie Hilary Rose on a penalty corner, giving the Lady Knights a 1-0 lead.

It only took 21 seconds for the Minutewomen to respond. Jenn Salisbury provided the equalizer. After taking a pass from Kyle Rothenberger, Salisbury manuvered by two defenders and shot it past Rutgers goalie Rebecca Donahue to tie the game at 1-1.

"Today we needed a little bit of a wake up call. Maybe [the first Rutgers goal] that was it." Hixon said. "To have a goal immediately after they score totally deflates your opponents."

After a Natalie Hart goal at the end of the first half gave the Minutewomen a 2-1 lead, UMass completely blew the game wide open. Danielle Borges and Hockenbrock both scored their first goals of the season less than two minutes into the second half. Natalie Hart added her second of the game on a penalty stroke to close out the scoring.

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We offer...
...quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
...courteous, friendly, professional staff.
...reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
...a comprehensive contact lens service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

OLD NEWSPAPERS
5 FEET
SAVES
ONE TREE

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
TREK USA MOUNTAIN BIKES ON SALE!
Trek 7000 was $700.00 now $629.95
Trek 930 was $539.95 now $499.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
EST 1971
319 Pleasant St.
Northampton, MA
586-3810
800-464-3810
TREK USA

Amherst Ballet Centre
29 Strong Street
10-week Adult Courses
Oct. 4 - Dec. 16
Beginner Ballet
Mon. & /or Thursday
6:30 - 7:30pm
Grahm Modern Technique
Tues. 7:00 - 8:30pm
Jazz Dance
Thurs. 7:30 - 8:30pm
549-1555 for registration

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...
$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.
220 N. PLEASANT ST
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-253-2543

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993
Sponsored by University Health Services
Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.
Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.
Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.
For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Shotoken Karate Club Totm Lobby - 1st Meeting 9/27 7 pm For Info call Brian 549-7609 New Members Welcome

Spectrum General Meeting Literary magazine seeks students to produce 1993-1994 publication. Staffs are art, poetry, prose, photography. Also seeking new treasurer, production editor, poetry editor. Those interested should bring informal resume to meeting. 8pm Thurs. 9/30 Room 165-169 Campus Center basement.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions! Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

Indecent Proposal at the CCA Sept. 30th 5 pm at $2.00 7,9,11 pm at $3.00 Sponsored by NEAG

Interested in helping start a new spirit-lead Christian Fellowship? Called Chi Alpha? Meet in the Hatch at 7pm Wed. Sept., 29 or call Diane at 66455.

Interested in a Wrestling Team? Like the thrill of systematically conquering an opponent until the ref slaps the mat? So do I! I'm looking for serious individuals to form a club team. Call Troy at 546-1613

The Not Ready For Bedtime Players, a safer sex, drug and alcohol education theatre troupe, will be holding an audition for men only on 9/27, wed. eve at 7 pm in CC room 904. We are sex positive, GLB friendly, and stress education. Being shameless and liking bananas are bonuses.

AUTO FOR SALE

Ford LTD 1984 95K miles $750 582-0477

1966 Chevy Nove II California car 283 engine powerglide great body $4800 or B.O. 665-3630

1978 Olds Cutlass -- only 60 K miles. Must sell fast – $250. 586-9416

1980 Buick Century Derk blue new tires. Great. Great winter car. $1000 or B/O Caroline at ACI 549-0701

FOR RENT

Room Free in 4 room apartment - two blocks from downtown Noho. 15 Min. from UMass. Nice, sunny room. $180 + live with 3 relaxed students Call Pat 585-9188

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Airline Ticket Boston to Denver one way $100 Rob at 582-0188

Apple Imagewriter II like new all cord extra ribbon and paper $150 549-6708

Bobsy for Super NES $40 Call 256-4532 After 10 pm

Basically Bicycles Quality bikes for less 863-3555

DOC Martens 3-hole black UK size 5 Hardly worn! $65 Call Julie 546-0271

Dresser, large $15, Mens suit, very nice, jacket size 40 $15, Internal fram Mountainsmith Backpack $100 Wool Overcoat $15 549-3601

Motorcycle - 1980 - Honda CB400T almost completely restored. Runs perfect $500 or best 549-7605

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

Univege 12 spd $120.00 or BO IBM 386 SX PC Call for info. Jen 617-581-6946

XLG Dorm Fridge $20 Call Joe 538-8689

Women's Lacrosse Stick Excellent Condition Call Amy 546-3540

GOALIES

ATTENTION GOALIES We are looking for a goalie for the upcoming intramural ice hockey season. If interested call Matt 546-4820 or Chris 546-0880

HELP WANTED

Alaska Employment Fisheries earn up to $2000-$4000+/mo. fishing on vessels or in canneries. Many companies provide transportation and room + board for more information call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month + World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

Sales Help Wanted The Salvation Army Is opening a store In Amherst – please call Send Reaume to Judith A. Fell 984 W. Columbus Ave Springfield, MA 01105

$287.50 Sell 50 hilarious, outrageous and often alcohol-related college t-shirts and make $287.50. All shirts guaranteed. A risk-free program. 22 designs avail. Call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

LOST

Address book, green 8X5", v. important Reward Call Nathan: 253-7648

Casio Digital Diary Computer pocket size lost around Mahar auditorium. Please return important tel. nos. lost! Call 548-7335

MATT ROSENBURG

Hey C.
Happy 22nd Birthday!
I love you.
Kay

MUSICIANS

Drummer Wented 549-1981

PERSONALS

Dingleberry #1
Ruff!
Love
Dingleberry #2

Hey Tofu Burger
I'm glad you're
Late Night Show
Move here!
Love,
Chick Pea

Spring Break 7 Nights from $299 Includes: Air, Hotel, Transfers, Parties and more! Nassau, Paradise Island, Cancun, Jamaica, San Juan, Organize a small group -- earn a free trip plus commissions! 1-800-GET-SUN-1

SERVICES

Beat a Speeding Ticket. Former Highway Patrolman tells how. 1-800-377-4662

Factfinder Custom Library Research, All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchas home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM! Join TODAY!

SORORITY RUSH

Open Rush Times For Today:
Alpha Chi Omega - NO RUSH
Alpha Epsilon Chi - NO RUSH
Chi Omega - 7 - 9 pm
Delta Zeta - 7 - 9 pm
Iota Gamma Upsilon - 6 - 8 pm
Kappa Kappa Gamma - NO RUSH
Sigma Delta Tau - 7 - 9 PM
Sigma Kappa - 7 - 9 PM
Sigma Sigma Sigma - 6 - 8 PM

Men's and women's cross country teams win weekend meets Page 10

Sports

Minutemen lose second straight, fall to BU

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

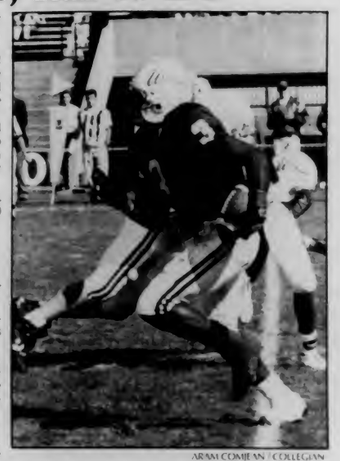
BOSTON — The University of Massachusetts football team put itself in a deeper hole in the Yankee Conference last Saturday, giving up 14 first quarter points and bowing to Boston University 28-9 at Nickerson Field.

The Minutemen (1-2, 0-2 in YanCon) had a poor day on special teams, allowing one punt to be blocked for a touchdown and giving up another one after punter Justin Riemer had to field a poor snap and try to run out of his end zone.

Massachusetts	9
Boston University	28

"You can't spot a good football team 14 points, and that's a good football team," said UMass head coach Mike Hodges. "We put ourselves in a hole and it's an incredible hole to try to get out of down 21-0. We had two ridiculous plays in our kicking game, but I was proud of their effort in the second half."

The Minutemen first broke down at 6:38 in the first quarter after a three-plays-and-out drive. Riemer was punting from the UMass 15, and Carlton Myers stormed in untouched from the left and blocked the ball. Pablo Rodriguez fell on it in the end zone to put BU (3-0, 2-0 in YanCon) up 7-0.



UMass was unable to do anything with the poor field position they had in the first half. They had only two drives start outside their own 13-yard line, and two drives started within their own 5-yard line.

On the other hand, the Terriers had good field position, and highly-touted quarterback Robert Dougherty (19 of 28, 200 yards) led BU 47 yards in six plays for the second BU score, an 11-yard trap by Zack Burwell, who went in unmolested.

"I think our run offense is underrated," said Burwell (two TDs, 21 carries for 75 yards). "We all can get the job done. They concentrated on our four receivers and Rob, and they forget about us back there and that's fine with me. Before you know it, we'll get off a nice run."

The BU offense, known as the Red Gun, employed four and sometimes five receivers and forced UMass to go to a scheme of six men in the secondary. Although the team did relatively well, the Terriers had too many options in their arsenal for UMass to stop.

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 10

ARAM ECHMEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts football team lost its second consecutive contest, this time to Boston University at Nickerson Field in Boston on Saturday.

Mishaps and turnovers lead to another UM loss

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — Concern must be settling in the minds of the University of Massachusetts football team.

Despite it being only three games into the season, and only two into Yankee Conference play, the Minutemen, judging by their performances during the last two weeks, have a lot of maturing to do on the football field.

Mistakes, mistakes and more mistakes have dominated the Minutemen's storyline for the past two games. During last week's game against Maine, the Minutemen committed many mishaps that led to a

Turn to MISHAPS, page 11

Minutewomen roll over Temple and Rutgers

ARAM ECHMEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team won two big games over Atlantic 10 rivals who are nationally ranked this past weekend, No. 7 Temple and No. 17 Rutgers.

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team sent a message this weekend to the Atlantic 10 as well as the rest of the country: do not take the Minutewomen lightly.

The No. 8 Minutewomen (6-1, 2-0 in the A-10) continued their winning ways, upsetting No. 7 Temple (3-0) and routing No. 17 Rutgers (5-1).

UMass 3, Temple 0
UMass 5, Rutgers 1

Rivalry alone makes a UMass versus Temple match-up a big game, but the magnitude of the No. 7 versus No. 8 teams made Friday afternoon's contest a marquee event.

The first half featured back and forth offensive flurries, as neither team could capitalize on a scoring oppuftunity. The Minutewomen defense led by the excellent play of Kyri Sparks, Natalie Hart and Andrea Cabral kept the Owl offense in check.

With a little over a minute remaining in the first half, Hart blasted a shot past Temple goalie Lori Brenner off of a Minutewomen penalty corner, giving UMass a 1-0 lead and momentum going into halftime.

"If you score in the last five minutes of a half, it's huge," said UMass head coach Pam Hixon. "You can come out in the second half, a little more confident, a little more comfortable and really settle into your game."

In the second half, the Minutewomen took complete control of the game. Tara Jelley continued her torrid offensive pace netting two second half goals to secure the victory.

"We've got the first conference win under our belt. We've got confidence to emerge as a leader in the conference," Hixon said. "That really sets the stage for us."

Rutgers came in fielding its best team in recent years. The Lady Knights were ranked No. 17 with a 6-1 record with their only defeat coming at the hands of No. 1 Penn State.

In the early going it seemed as if the Minutewomen might have been experi-

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

Women's soccer leaves California with a loss

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team lost its first game of the season yesterday, when Santa Clara's Margaret Krawiec scored in the first overtime period to give the Broncos a 1-0 victory in Moranga, Ca.

UMass 0, Santa Clara 1
UMass 2, St. Mary's 1

Massachusetts (6-1-1), ranked No. 8 nationally, defeated St. Mary's 2-1 on Saturday but a combination of 90-degree heat and a talented Bronco midfield proved too much yesterday.

"Santa Clara is a good team, a very good team," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "They were better. We played real well early and we were cracking for the first 35 minutes, but they got a grasp of the game and controlled the play."

With just 20 seconds remaining in the first overtime period, Krawiec knocked down a clearing pass at the top of the UMass penalty box. After one touch, she drove the ball to the right side of a diving Briana Scurry.

"She made the steal and just drove it," Rudy said. "Bri made a nice effort but she couldn't get there."

Santa Clara (7-2) proved it deserved the No. 4 ranking on Friday when it nearly defeated No. 1 North Carolina. The Broncos led 2-0 at halftime but Carolina, which has not lost since Connecticut beat them in a downpour in 1989, came back to score three in the second.

"I'm very impressed with Santa Clara," Rudy said. "They have a very talented side and their midfielders are excellent. They controlled the middle of the field on us and that makes it tough to win."

On Friday, UMass came out flat against St. Mary's and suffered, according to Rudy from jet lag and the 95-degree heat of San Francisco.

"Saint Mary's was on and we weren't," Rudy said. "We hit the wall after 15 minutes and just were out of gas."

The Gaels (2-5) ended Scurry's five game shutout streak in the 22nd minute when Dee Dee Robertson converted a penalty kick. The Minutewomen scored in the 35th minute when Courtney Smith made a long cross from the right wing to the top of the box. There Melissa Mitchell one timed it into the left corner of the net.

"That was a beautiful goal," Rudy said. "Courtney's cross was very good and Mitchell was making the perfect run and just bombed that one in."

In the 48th minute, Roberts collected a Rebecca Myers pass 35 yards out and proceeded to beat four Gael defenders before burying a shot from 18 yards out.

STEVEN PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Melissa Mitchell and the Minutewomen soccer team came back from the West Coast with its only blemish on the season. The defeat came at the hands of Santa Clara.

Prof. Anwar Syed speaks out on the Middle East peace plan Page 8

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
71° Tuesday
September 28, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 14
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Jemison addresses UMass

By MICHELE MONTEIRO
Collegian Staff

Dr. Mae Jemison, an honored guest of the Distinguished Visitor Progam, spoke at Bowker Auditorium last evening to about 250 people on "The Sky's the Limit: One Woman's Journey to the Stars."

Entering the stage to a standing ovation, Jemison, the first African American female launched into space, greeted her listeners with both warmth and nervousness. She said that she enjoyed speaking on college campuses because she was constantly challenged.

Jemison began her lecture by saying she had come not only to speak about herself, but also about the direction in which humanity was heading. The focus of her lecture was the stress upon both informal and formal education.

"Education is something that we all have to seek. It is a lifelong process that makes us easy to lead, difficult to drive, easy to be governed, difficult to be enslaved," she said. The desire to know and discover more about the universe motivated Jemison to become an astronaut. "I could see myself in space when I dreamed of the stars," Jemison said.

Jemison said that images sent through the media, homes, and surrounding social environments are the "strongest forms" of education that need to be re-evaluated. She said we continue to learn each time we receive a new image.

Jemison said that she didn't let negative images of herself as an African-American female from Chicago hinder her from becoming an astronaut. Her strong support base of parents, family and close friends spurred her on.

REBECCA PETERSON

Mae Jemison, the first African American woman in space, spoke to the campus last night at Bowker Auditorium.

When asked about how it felt to soar into space, Jemison said that physiologically, it was very difficult because her body had to adjust to traveling through space.

Psychologically, Jemison said that space travel was "exhilarating." She said that she was "elated."

"I could look back down at the Earth and felt perfectly at peace," Jemison said.

Clinton says he is prepared to send troops

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Clinton told the United Nations Monday that American people will support sending U.S. troops to keep peace around the world only if new missions are sharply limited.

"The United Nations must know when to say no," he declared.

Noting that he is the first president born after creation of the United Nations, Clinton insisted on new rules for "new times" as he outlined his foreign policy views with a mixture of caution and high purpose.

Clinton is prepared to send as many as 25,000 American troops to Bosnia if peace terms can be worked out, and he defended keeping 4,700 U.S. peacekeepers in Somalia. He told the representatives of more than 100 nations that the U.N. must limit its involvement in international fighting, beginning "by bringing the rigors of military and political analysis to every U.N. peace mission."

He also proposed a network of nuclear arms restraints, including a worldwide ban on stockpiling of weapons-grade uranium. And he hinted he might abandon his three-month old ban on underground weapons blasts if China resumed its

Turn to CLINTON, page 4

Minority Forum meets
Discusses racial leadership issues

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

Orlando Taylor, interim dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Howard University, described the ways minorities are at a disadvantage in the assumption of leader-oriented characteristics and responsibilities in his keynote address preceding the minority leadership forum in the Campus Center yesterday.

"Even the term 'minority' disempowers people," he said. "It says that someone or something is defined as on the periphery—on the outside of the center of thought. It defines people both quantitatively and qualitatively."

David Schimmel, co-chair of the Chancellor's Commission of Civility on Human Relations, began the forum by noting the conference's intent to begin a pattern of diverse groups reaching out to all communities and to find a common ground.

"And where there is none, we need to be able to grasp the differences," he said. "We need to promote a civil way of addressing problems."

Following Schimmel was Stephen Gehlbach, dean of the School of Public Health, who felt that the expertise of leaders currently on campus can benefit the University in the years to come.

"This is the beginning of a major movement on this campus," he said. "We want UMass to be a center of minority leadership, and we need to be more than reactive."

Taylor began his speech with a story about a lion and a man. The lion, he said, is the biggest and most ferocious creature in the forest, yet when he encounters man, he always loses. That, Taylor said, is because man writes the story.

He related that to minorities needing to write their own story of leadership; to not clone other forerunner models.

"We need to play to our own strengths," he said. "What leadership style does UMass emphasize? Is it

Turn to FORUM, page 6

MATT KAHN

Dr. Orlando Taylor spoke to the campus community last night.

Media 101: Luring the press

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Wondering why some public organizations receive all the attention from the mass media? For those trying to break the glass wall around media coverage, take the advice of Liane Brandon, a professor in the School of Education, who spoke on "Mass Media: Leadership & Image" during yesterday's Minority Leadership Conference.

Brandon went through the steps that a group or even an individual can take to assure positive publicity concerning their particular cause.

Turn to MEDIA, page 4

Boris Yeltsin demands support from lawmakers

By DEBORAH SEWARD
Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin ruled out any compromise Monday with hard line lawmakers barricaded in parliament, their resistance weakening along with their support.

With hot water, electricity and telephones cut off and hundreds of flak jacketed riot police surrounding them, the rebels were suffering defections from their ranks and a swindling of public supporters outside the building.

Police kept a tight cordon around the demonstrators, first restricting and then easing access to the parliament's grounds.

Speaking confidently on national TV, Yeltsin rejected proposals for simultaneous presidential and parliamentary election in December, with presidential balloting six months later. He said compromise was "doubly dangerous" and could lead to conflict.

"No. I am not making such compromise with any organs any more. I am categorically against it," Yeltsin said in a TV interview from inside the Kremlin.

The lawmakers appealed to Russia's armed forces to revolt and oust Yeltsin, but the army stood firmly with the president.

The crowd of anti-Yeltsin demonstrators manning the barricades outside the parliament building, or Russian White House, dwindled early Monday to about 200 people — the fewest in a week - but grew to about 2,000 by day's end.

Police kept a tight cordon around the demonstrators, first restricting and then easing access to the parliament's grounds.

In the morning, some lawmakers had a tough time reentering parliament, in contrast to previous days. At one point, police threw one hard-liner over a barricade after he tried to break through the cordon.

The police pressure took its toll on the jittery lawmakers, many of whom have slept little in recent nights.

Although Yeltsin repeatedly has promised the building would not be stormed, parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov claimed the building's defenders had prevented an attack early Monday.

"It is possible that another attempt will be made tonight," he told the lawmakers.

Koon and Powell are set free

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES -- Police officer Laurence Powell had already spent his first night in prison for the Rodney King beating and Sgt. Stacey Koon was just surrendering when a judge suddenly allowed them to go free Monday.

Both men had faced a deadline of noon Monday for checking into the Dublin Federal Prison Camp, a converted military barracks without bars or fences 40 miles east of San Francisco.

Powell, described by his lawyer as terrified, surrendered at the prison Sunday afternoon; Koon arrived at around 11:30 a.m. Monday, around the time Davies issued his ruling, and had not been processed yet.

"If Powell and Koon elect to, they may walk out of the prison," said U.S. Marshal Craig Meacham in Los Angeles. "I expect they are going to make a U-turn and get out of there as fast as they can." It couldn't immediately be determined when they would go free.

Attorney William Kopeny, representing the two, said he would file an emergency request with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor to allow the men to remain free on bail while they appeal their convictions and sentences to a federal appellate court.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, September 28

Infosocial — An infosocial will be held at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 904-908. The social will last a half hour, and then participants can attend Bill Cosby's speech or Elizabeth Lapovsky Kennedy's lecture.

Reading — Elizabeth Lapovsky Kennedy will give a dramatic reading of her book, Boots of Leather, Slippers of Gold at 7:30 p.m. Hasbrouck room 126. The book is about the Buffalo lesbian community in the 1950s.

Training — The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Speakers Bureau New Members Training will be from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Program for GLB Concerns Office, Crampton House.

Wednesday, September 29

Lecture — Elizabeth Lapovsky Kennedy will speak about "Constructing an Ethnohistory of the Buffalo Lesbian Community: Reflexivity, Dialogue and Politics" from 12 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 902. Kennedy is the author of Boots of Leather, Slippers of Gold, and a professor of American studies and women studies at State University of New York at Buffalo.

Rap group — The Bisexual Rap Group will meet today. Call the LBGA office at 545-0154 for meeting time.

Thursday, September 30

Caucus — The LBGA political caucus will meet at 8 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

Meeting — New and returning members of the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Speakers Bureau must attend an orientation meeting from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the Program for GLB Concerns Office, Crampton House.

Friday, October 1

Social — The GLB Graduate Student Organization will hold a social in the Graduate Lounge from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday, October 4

Meeting — The Lesbian Bisexual Women's Union will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

For Everyone's Information

Submit your FYI to the Collegian and tell the world what they need to know. P.S. Type it.

Beta Theta Beta

Everybody's favorite social organization will be meeting tonight and every weeknight this semester in room 105. Members only.

Sarah Lawrence College at Oxford

Qualified undergraduates are invited to apply for a year of study at Oxford. Individual tutorials with Oxford faculty, Oxford University lectures, and full affiliation with an Oxford college immerse students in Oxford's rich education tradition.

For information contact:
Sarah Lawrence College at Oxford
Box UMAO
Sarah Lawrence College
1 Mead Way
Bronxville, NY 10708-5999

- IMPORTANT
IMMUNIZATION INFORMATION -

Before you pick up the phone and call us...
...PLEASE READ BELOW

Never received our Health Questionnaire packet in the mail?

If you have not received a Health Questionnaire, you still have 30 days to complete your immunization records. You can pick up the Health Questionnaire form at the University Health Services Medical Records Desk or at the Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00).

How much will it cost? Is it covered by my student insurance?

There is a $20 Nursing fee for these appointments. There is no charge for a Tetanus-Diphtheria booster. If you are a Massachusetts resident, there is no charge for an MMR (Measles, Mumps,& Rubella) booster. Out-of-state residents must pay a charge of $30 for an MMR (Measles, Mumps, & Rubella) booster. Your Basic Health Fee and Supplemental Insurance does not cover the cost of these clinics.

How do I get my immunization record?

You should contact your family doctor, your medical clinic from home, or your high school to complete your missing immunization requirements.

Can I get the needed shots at Health Services?

Health Services will be holding Immunization Clinics on Friday, September 24 and Friday, October 1. To make an appointment, call our main appointment desk at 549-2671 ext. 101 or ext. 102.

Will I be administratively withdrawn or be assessed a late fee?

All entering students must meet the state requirements for immunizations If you remain incomplete after the October 1 Immunization Clinic is held, you will be assessed a late fee fine of $25. Continued non-compliance will prevent you from registering for your next semester classes, and you may face administrative withdrawal from the University after the pre-registration period.

Other questions?

Come in to see us at the Health Services Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00) or call us at 549-2671 ext. 275. Please be patient with the phone...our lines get pretty busy.

University Health Services

Collegian Classifieds
113 C.C.
Basement

If You Are An Ambitious, Organized Freshman or Sophomore,

THE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

is Looking for You!

We are currently accepting applications for

Executive Advertising Representatives

Applications due Thursday, September 30

A Car is Required for this Particular Opening

Local News

SGA requests funds from Pres. Hooker

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association has asked University of Massachusetts President Michael K. Hooker to allocate $120,000 for cultural Registered Student Organizations in an effort to promote pluralism and diversity on campus.

Undergraduate Student Speaker Matt Pavesi said Hooker has set aside two percent of the $11 million the five UMass campuses receive from the Massachusetts legislature for multicultural campus programs. The SGA will find out if Hooker and his staff accept the proposal in about one week, Pavesi said.

Pavesi also said cultural student organizations, which receive 72 percent of the student government's funding for RSOs, have been hit hard by recent budget cuts.

Undergraduate SGA President David Nuñez said if the funding is approved, all RSOs will be able to receive the money if it is going to be used to work with another student organization to promote multiculturalism.

"All RSOs can petition to receive the money," he said. "Even two RSOs who do not have anything to do with multiculturalism such as the LBGA and the ski club can get the money if they are working together to promote diversity."

Speaker Pavesi said President Nuñez plans to appoint a 12 person committee to help him review the RSO's petitions for money. The committee would include one representative from each African, Latino, Asian and Native American group.

Pavesi said the increase in funding for cultural organizations on campus has become necessary because of the increase in tuition and fees. He also said in the past the "conservative" Student Government has neglected cultural groups and contributed to the decline of several cultural RSOs.

"The problem is partly because of tuition and fees skyrocketing and partly because of the conservative Student Government [in office] from 1989 to 1991," he said. "UMass has low retention of people of color, because many of them can not afford to come here. If the price of UMass keeps going up, inner city kids will not come to UMass and we will not have a diversified school. I believe education is a right, and we need to make UMass accessible to all students of the commonwealth.

"In the '60s and '70s cultural RSOs were very powerful. But by the time I was a freshman the student government was a white mans club, and some of the multicultural groups just died out as a result," he said.

Pavesi said if the funds are approved by President Hooker, the Student Government would begin funding multicultural events by mid-October.

"If the money is approved we will start right away," he said. "We will be able to fund a lot of good programs which will educate the student body as a whole on AIANA and other diversity issues."

A piece of yesteryear

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN
A Chevy pick-up shows its age in a driveway near Amherst.

Affirmative Action discussed; leadership strategies sought

By COLLEEN CRONIN
Collegian Correspondent

The hexagon of leadership involves several important characteristics needed to be a leader: optimism, commitment, imagination, double vision, knowledge and seasonal experience.

This hexagon was used by Fred Tillis, director of the Fine Arts Center and the associate chancellor at the University of Massachusetts, as a basis for his lecture, "Cultural Diversity in Arts and Affirmative Action". The event, held yesterday in the Campus Center, was part of the Minority Leadership Forum.

Tillis said the ideals of affirmative action date back to 1863 when the Emancipation Proclamation became law. In 1963, there was a second reconstruction, and in the future affirmative action will continue to be a hot topic, he said.

There must be a constant struggle by minority leaders to maintain vigilance and stay imaginative, Tillis said.

"Imagination itself is power, if you know how to use it," Tillis said.

He also urged people of color and women not to accept the standard one-sided view of life. He said people can become enslaved by one simple body of knowledge. Instead, he suggested, the minority leaders of today must have multiple visions of life in order to have a positive impact on society.

Tillis cited several important minority leadership styles applicable to affirmative action in modern society. He discussed former Harvard University professor Derrick Bell, who quit his job because Harvard did not hire a minority woman lawyer.

Tillis said Bell was a minority leader acting for change. Along with quitting his job, Bell wrote a book, "Faces at the Bottom of the Well: Permanence of Racism," which Tillis said minority leaders could learn from.

"Imagination itself is power, if you know how to use it."

– Dr. Fred Tillis
director of the Fine Arts Center

Tillis said certain actions must be taken in order to assure cultural diversity in the arts. He said institutions like the University of Massachusetts must start and continue to recruit people of color and women. These institutions must also, according to Tillis, make minorities feel comfortable in their surroundings.

Tillis also cited another author, Arthur Schlesinger Jr. who wrote "The Disuniting of America." He said Schlesinger believes that separate ethnic groups with their own identities could lead to racial segregation.

Tillis, however, had a more positive view.

"As a tree grows and spreads limbs, they are not always neat, but it is growth," Tillis said.

Gender dilemma examined

By KATHLEEN M. COUPLAND
Collegian Correspondent

Paola Bacchetta, who has worked extensively with Hindu women, addressed the gender dilemma of the Hindu Nation at Mount Holyoke College yesterday.

Her recent studies have concentrated on the Construction of Identities in the Hindu Nationalist Discourse: the Rastyaswayardseraksargh and the Rastra Sevika Samiti.

Hitler's Germany was a model for the Hindu Nation, Bacchette said, because "race pride at its highest has been manifested there." The RSS, whose male sector was started in 1925 and the female sector in 1936, has grown to encompass 2.5 million men and 1 million women. Located in 46 countries, including the United States, this group has been involved in the murder of Muslums, as well as the indirect supression of women, Bacchetta said.

Women in the Hindu Nation are currently being given more privledges, because of their influence being used to recrute men to the RSS movement, Bacchetta said. Women are sent to the slums to educate other women, and as a result RSS looks more appealing to men, Bacchetta said. Once the male sector of the RSS is large enough, she said she believes that the Hindu women will lose their rights.

When Bacchetta was asked about her relations while researching the RSS women, she replied they were nice on a personal level, until they realized that she could not be recruted. She stated that she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown by the time her research was complete.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Paola Bacchetta spoke on the Hindu Nation.

GLBA outlines plan

Programs to benefit GLB community

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Correspondent

The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Association (GLBA) held an open house yesterday afternoon at Crampton to provide information on the Program of Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns for the campus community and the pioneer valley.

"We have the open house so people will have a chance to meet various staff members and get to know some of the particular programs that we sponsor," said Felice Yeskel, director of the program.

The main purpose of the open house is to get people involved in volunteer opportunities, such as working as a publicist, Yeskel said. The program concentrates on the educational aspects of the GLBA. They also coordinate the Speakers Bureau and the Brown Bag Meetings, said graduate intern Dvora Zipkin.

"I think it's very important for the programs office to open itself up for the community, to give students who aren't out a chance to maybe come and see what's going on," said Melanie DeSilva, a senior STPEC major. "The publicity of the open house creates visibility for the gay community, and I think that if people come and see what the office has to offer, they will find a lot of the stereotypes and misconceptions about queer people are ridiculous."

DeSilva said she used the open house as an opportunity to introduce her father to the people she works with. She also wanted to help him better deal with her coming out of the closet. DeSilva, who said she is a bisexual, wanted to help him clear up any misconceptions he might have had concerning her work or lifestyle.

"Basically, the open house is important," one student said, "because it serves to inform the lesbian, gay, bisexual students and staff members of the existence of the programs office and the functioning services it provides."

The open house is an annual event. It was the only one this semester, but another will be scheduled for the beginning of next semester, said Yeskel.

The GLBA will hold their political caucus at the LGBA office, which is located on the second floor of the Student Union. The caucus will be held Thurday at 8 p.m. and all are welcome to attend.

■ Clinton

continued from page 1

testing program.

"The United Nations simply cannot become engaged in every one of the world's conflicts," Clinton said.

He said, the United Nations must have "the technical means to run a modern world class peacekeeping operation." He offered to pay within the next few weeks a $400 million U.S. debt for peacekeeping, but he also said the United States was paying too heavy a load. A senior U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the idea was tio scale back form 30.4 percent to 25 percent and have Germany and Japan make up the difference.

Clinton said the United Nations must "weed out waste" and he suggested the appointment of an inspector general to investigate any abuses.

■ media

continued from page 1

She advises groups to be organized, to basically "get your act together." Brandon said that nothing is worse than having four people stepping all over each other, calling the same reporters. For those who are P.R. for the organization, remember that nothing is "off the record" when talking to a reporter.

Brandon also told the audience to choose their issues carefully and start locally. The professor pointed out that in a small town, local papers are more likely to be more open about a story than a newspaper like the Boston Globe, which handles hundreds of stories a day.

"There's nothing wrong with being the big fish in a little pond," said Brandon.

Brandon said one should read newspapers and look for a reporter that is likely to be sympathetic to your particular cause.

Making a chart listing all of the media outlets, when you contact them, the person you speak to and a few notes about the conversation could also benefit an organization in the long run, Brandon said. This becomes true when the reporter does contact you, because now all of the information is right in front of you.

Brandon pointed out the media's role concerning how serious an organization is taken. She said the more attention a group is receiving, the more clout it musters.

According to Brandon, though, there three words to assure the organization will receive that attention, "organize, educate and aggravate."

The Campus Center Student Union
Board of Governors
B.O.G.

Is hiring 4 students for various positions: vending, office and programming. Flexible hours available-between 3-12 hours a week.
Applications available at 817CC.
Applications due by Thurs. Sept. 30.
Interviews week of Oct 4th.

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS
YES COMPUTERS
STUDENT MAC RENTALS
$75/mo
BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE
REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES
MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS
LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING
585•0007
AUTHORIZED RESELLER
NORTHAMPTON • 30 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...

$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and laser on disk, 25 copies on fine rag paper, 25 matching blank sheets and 25 envelopes. If you have your own copy paper at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.
220 N. PLEASANT ST
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-253-2543

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family
Wednesday - October 6
6 p.m.-8 p.m.
UHS - Room 304
I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?
If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call
549-2671, Clinic IV - ext. 233 or 234.

Collegian Classifieds
113 C.C.
Basement

THE NEWMAN CENTER WELCOMES YOU!
LORD'S DAY MASSES:
Saturday : 4:30 pm
Sunday 8:00 am, 9:30 am, 11:00 am and 7:00 pm
DAILY MASSES:
Monday - Friday : 12:15 pm and 5:15 pm
Saturday: 9:00 am
SACRAMENT of RECONCILIATION:
Saturday: 3:00 to 4:00 pm or upon request.
The Newman Center is located at 472 North Pleasant Street in Amherst, MA 01002, and is open daily from 8:00 am until 10:00 pm.

Amherst Ballet Centre
29 Strong Street
10-week Adult Courses
Oct. 4 - Dec. 16
Beginner Ballet
Mon. &/or Thursday 6:30 - 7:30pm
Grahm Modern Technique
Tues. 7:00 - 8:30pm
Jazz Dance
Thurs. 7:30 - 8:30pm
549-1555 for registration

- WANTED -
Assistant Business Mgr.
EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...
We are looking for :
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills.
Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, October 6, 1993 12:00pm.

IF IT AIN'T BROKE, WE DON'T FIX IT℠
MONRO
MONRO MUFFLER BRAKE
MUFFLERS • BRAKES • SHOCKS • SPRINGS • ALIGNMENTS • TIRES • FRONT WHEEL DRIVE EXPERTS
40,000 Mile Guarantee
All-Season Steel Belted Radial
GRENADIER
$37.95
Tough steel belts for strength & control. Great traction in any weather.

whitewall size	list price	our price
P165/80 R13	53.95	41.95
P175/80 R13	55.95	41.95
P185/80 R13	57.95	43.95
P185/75 R14	58.95	45.95
P195/75 R14	61.95	47.95
P205/75 R14	64.95	49.95
P215/75 R14	68.95	53.95
P205/75 R15	66.95	50.95
P215/75 R15	69.95	54.95
P225/75 R15	76.95	59.95

Worldwide Lifetime Guaranteed
Mufflers!
25% off
Manufacturer's list price
COUPON SPECIAL!
MONRO MUFFLER/BRAKE
Oil, Lube & Filter
$14.88 Plus Tax
Includes up to 5 quarts Kendall motor oil, new Kendall oil filter, chassis lube & free undercar inspection. Available for most vehicles. Please call for an appointment.
Coupon valid thru 10-16-93 4613
HADLEY 360 Russell St. 586-0892
NORTHAMPTON 326 King St 586-3266
CHICOPEE 461 Memorial Dr. 594-9161
WILBRAHAM 1971 Boston Road 543-8027
W. SPRINGFIELD 777 Riverdale St. 739-3860
90 Days same as cash! See store manager for complete details
HOURS Mon Tues Thur Fri 7:30 am 8:00 pm Wed 7:30 am 6:00 pm Sat 7:30 am 4:00 pm

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Greekism: judgements and stereotypes plague a system

Four years ago I made one of the finest decisions I've ever made in my life, I became a member of a fraternity. And while most people are happy letting me live my own life, there are others out there who feel it is their responsibility to chastise me for the choices I've made.

I am tired of having to validate my lifestyle through explanations to the so-called "guardians" of Political Correctness who reside here in the Valley of Double Standards. These self-appointed warriors, who cry out against the social injustices done to those of different backgrounds and who champion tolerance of variety, are the very same who so readily seek to condemn when the issue strays from their preordained definitions of what is right and what is wrong.

These defenders of the faith would have you think they know me well. They would argue that the day I decided to join the establishment was the very same day I decided to stop growing and instead chose to regress into the status of an obvious meathead. Now I, and others like me, are responsible for most of the evils in the world. But they are wrong. They know nothing about me at all.

Now if the guardians took the time to get to know me, to find out who and what I am about, then they might find themselves surprised to discover that we're not so different. But they don't.

And why not? Because it is a far easier task to merely sit high upon their thrones of righteousness while casting down judgments derived from long standing myths. Myths the media so loves to feed.

For too long now association with the Greek system has been misunderstood and falsely labelled. Thanks to films like "Animal House" and "Revenge of the Nerds," bad stereotypes have been perpetuated against Fraternities and Sororities and those not involved with or educated about the system eat them up like candy.

Cutter
GARCIA

You don't read about the charity services or the positives associated with being Greek. No one cares that Greeks raise most of the money which keeps the Newman Center open or that it was Greeks who participated in the Amherst town clean up. How many of the guardians were there for those events? Not many. They were probably busy brushing up on their pompousness.

The only thing you will hear about is the one house in Hoboken who was busted for selling drugs on campus. And why will the guardians and editors deem this as being newsworthy? Because people love their myths and are more than willing to shell out their 35 cents to reinforce them.

Good news is good — but bad news sells papers.

The houses which make up the Greek area here are filled with unique individuals from various walks of life. We are as similar to each other as we choose to be and as different from each other as we are born. There are 1,200 people involved with the Greek area here. 1,200 individuals, yet the guardians and the media present us as being nothing more than lemmings and clones.

Some of us are good and some of us are bad, just like the other people out there who don't wear letters. If one man commits a crime — are all men criminals? If one woman refuses to fight — are all women weak? No, of course not! Why? Because the lumping of everyone together to fit a certain characterization is both lazy and foolish; it's an "-ism" — collectivism.

So the guardians find themselves in a Catch 22 when dealing with the Greeks because they hate "-isms" and spend much of their time and energy trying to abolish them; sexism, racism, classism. Yet they have one sacred "-ism" which they clutch to their chests and refuse to let go of — Greekism. Somehow, this one is okay and it makes them feel better about themselves. It validates their righteousness.

I will not apologize for my involvement with the Greek area. Instead, I will sing its praises and implore others to discover the wonders that so many of us have found there. I have made friends I never would have known in any other lifetime. People with whom I would never have spoken to because they come from circles so far removed from my own. I have made friends for a lifetime.

And for that, I am a better person.

They told us back in high school that this was what college was all about, expanding your horizons, improving your lot and learning about yourself.

The guardians must've been absent that day.

Cutter Garcia is a Collegian columnist.

War is closer than we think

This week President Clinton (Slick Willie) will be revealing to Congress a plan to deploy 25,000 troops to former Yugoslavia. What does this mean to Joe average American? It means the United States is once again willing to fight in a war most of us don't understand; a war that is not cut and dry.

Brian
O'NEIL

The Clinton Administration wants the democratically elected Bosnian government to sign the peace plan, and accept the idea of poverty that it will bring. If the Bosnians surrender to the plan, they will be rewarding the regime in Belgrade and will be accepting the division of their country along ethnic homogeneous borders.

If they sign the agreement, the U.S. army, along with NATO troops, will enforce this wonderful plan.

What brought the situation in Bosnia to this point? The United Nations imposed an arms embargo on the former Yugoslavia that has prevented the Bosnian government from protecting itself. The idea behind the embargo was to prevent more fighting. That might work, but the situation is one where one side already has a large arsenal and the other has none.

The Bosnian government has a very small arsenal. One of the warring factions in Bosnia, the Bosnian-Serbians, have a huge arsenal because they are being supported by the Serbians in Yugoslavia, who have the fifth largest army in Europe. The other warring faction, the Bosnian-Croatians, have the support of Croatia which also has a large armament.

This has been going on for 17 months now and most of Bosnia has been carved up by the Bosnian-Croats and the Bosnian-Serbs. The United Nations has designed a peace plan to let the Bosnian-Croats and the Bosnian-Serbs have the land they grabbed from the Bosnian government without taking into account the idea of justice.

If the Clinton Administration goes through with the plan to deploy the troops what will be their goal? Who is the enemy? What will Russia do if the U.S. army declares war on their allies the Serbians?

The Clinton Administration has a tough political situation on their hands. If they were to lift the arms embargo it would allow the Bosnians to defend themselves. They still have time to come out of this clean. They must also be very cautious of the Serbians because if they were to decide to continue their campaign of ethnic cleansing in other regions of the former Yugoslavia they could no doubt draw into the war other surrounding nations such as Greece, Turkey, Albania, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Germany.

If the American public doesn't become more interested in what's going on around the world, politicians will be making all our decisions for us, and soon we will be fighting in another bloody war.

Brian O'Neill is a Collegian staff member.

Road of a true adventurer

I've been told that everyone spends at least one summer contemplating whether or not to go back to school come fall. They all thought they knew what they wanted and bounded down the path way of life with shoes of ambition and a bag full of dreams. But a year or two later they found themselves lying in an empty field somewhere off the road, gazing at the stars and feeling a little like the one that flickers in and out of the darkness.

E.C.
THOMAS

I used to think these people just didn't have enough passion in their dreams, until I found myself fallen in the same field and wishing the answers I looked for would shower upon me in the shape of a moonbeam named "Eureka!"

No such luck.

During the semester, when we felt tired and hopeless, an old friend and I used to joke about packing up our things and leaving that night for California. Without even thinking, just drop everything and leave it all behind. Off to better, brighter and more exciting things.

Only we did think, mostly about how we had no money, but also about exactly what we'd be leaving behind. All of a sudden our adventure became more costly than just dollars and cents.

I discovered this summer that when you feel you aren't leaving anything or anyone absolutely important behind, the thought runs away with you like a lover at midnight. Within five minutes, your making arrangements. Within ten, your deciding if you want to say any good-byes. Within 15, your trying to understand why this thought that seemed so insane yesterday, make perfect sense today.

Then just when you've thought you've reached a decision about the nothingness your leaving behind — you look inside yourself and realize the only things you're really leaving are the things you don't want to face — your fears.

Holding your hot, little Baybank card in one hand, Visa card in the other, honesty hits home: they'll be right by your side all the way to somewhere.

I used to envy those who had taken off to find their dreams. Now I see that most of them just wanted out. I used to think I was a coward for not being spontaneous enough to pack up my things and leave, but I've now realized the cowards are those who leave without unpacking their fears.

A true adventurer is someone who stays to face the fears of years past, months present and days ahead. UMass isn't exactly wonderland — and its easy to blame it for the things that go wrong in your life. But in truth, work is work, school is school and people are people, and not too much will change from place to place.

The trick is to learn what sort of happiness each has for you, and if its what you want — go for it, if it's wrong — change it. If you don't know, maybe you weren't meant to.

E.C. Thomas is a Collegian columnist.

Animal House: it's only a movie

Granted "Animal House" was a funny movie and has become a college classic, but the truth is that film has been one of the most detrimental things to Greek systems throughout the country.

The movie's portrayal of hazing, vandalism, irresponsibility and alcohol abuse have become synonymous with fraternities.

It's time the UMass community realized that there is no Delta house on this or any other campus. Fraternities are definitely social organizations. But there is much core to a fraternity, than just its social life.

A fraternity is a group of men working together to achieve certain goals in academics, athletics and community service.

A fraternity allows a student to learn a great sense of leadership and responsibility as each organization is run completely by undergraduate brothers.

Fraternities also offer a huge outreach with their many chapters and thousands of alumni nationwide.

Contrary to popular belief, Greeks consistently get higher grades than non-Greeks at UMass, as well as nationally.

There are also many other advantages to brotherhood that cannot be described on paper.

Hopefully this article can dispel some of the "Animal House" comparisons and encourage more students to find out what the UMass Greek system can do for them.

Jon Camire
Sigma Phi Epsilon

Hillel voices its support for SGA

The Hillel Council would like to respond to the recent dialogue concerning the Mission Enhancement Fund. The Hillel Council feels that in light of the issues surrounding the Mission Enhancement Proposal submitted by the Student Government Assocation, neither the SGA nor its president David Nuñez or Trustee Al Lizana, are anti-Semitic.

They have continuously demonstrated their support of our programs, and we have every confidence that in the future they will continue to support our endeavors, which foster cultural awareness and understanding.

Alan Weinfeld
Hillel

Listen up kids!

We have an Ed/Op staff meeting tonight — yes tonight, Tuesday, at 6:30 p.m., in the Collegian offices.

All of you (weekly and bi-weekly columnists) must be there. It won't take long. We promise.

For those of you still pondering whether or not you are a columnist, check the schedule at the Ed/Op desk.

If you cannot come . . . forget it. I know you know better.

The Ed/Op Goddess'

TRAVELING?

WE CAN HELP YOU WITH:
• Low Student-Teacher-Youth Airfares
• Low Domestic Airfares • AMTRAK
• Adventure Tours • Language Courses
• International Student & Teacher I.D.
• Work & Study Abroad
• Youth Hostel Memberships
• Car Rental & Leasing
• Eurail & Britrail Passes issued on the spot!

FREE 'STUDENT TRAVELS' MAGAZINE!

Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
256-1261

For Everyone's Information

Submit your FYI to the Collegian and tell the world what they need to know. P.S. Type it.

IF YOU AIN'T ATE AT DOROTHY AND LEEROY'S ALSO YOU JUST AIN'T ATE!
Create Your Own Sandwich!
Everything Homemade!
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
LUNCH $4.49 • DINNER $6.49
Vegetarian Dishes • Sweet Potato Pie • Soups • Pasta • Fried and Baked Chicken • Smothered Pork Chops • Chicken Fried Steak • BBQ Beef • Seafood • Meatloaf • Peach Cobbler • Salad
Rt 9 Near Pizza Hut 256-0118

■ forum

continued from page 1

broad enough to capture the necessary diversity?"

His description of how minorities, including African-Americans, could be found in the definition of a leader itself.

"A good leader is made up of many constituents," he said. "The need to be able to accept other cultures, to not have just sensitivity but also knowledge of them and to know the preferred leadership styles of a particular institution or organization as well as one's own styles."

He elaborated on some of the obstacles standing in the way of many African-Americans, Hispanics, Asian-Americans, and others in their pursuits of college-level administrative positions.

"Tonto-ism, or the 'illusion of inclusion,' is the first form of this," he said. "They offer all kinds of important-sounding positions and command, but when the real power is exercised, it's often absent of color and feminism."

A female in the audience agreed, muttering, "Assistant chancellor," an example of such a position.

"A second is the double standard on expectations and standards," Taylor said. "If a white man made a decision without contacting the board first, he'd be seen as creative and as taking the initiative. If the same is done by a black man, he would be fired or impeached."

His further examples delved deeper into the stress that minorities experience when trying to both express themselves and work effectively.

"African-American leaders are torn between the balance of institutional messages and the personal-cultural mission," he said. "If they adhere to the institutional one, they will be seen as 'selling out,' but if they conform more to the cultural ties, they'll be fired."

Nods and murmurs of agreement could be seen and heard throughout the speech. Taylor cited Alfred Tennison's poem about Odysseus and stressed that mankind, minorities included, must continuously search for the finality it knows it will never find.

"Truth with a capital 'T' can only be obtained when truths with small 't's' are brought to the table by different people, be it race or gender," he said. "Truth should allow for many small truths to exist."

Free for life.

(Offer expires only when you do.)

Get an AT&T Universal MasterCard and you'll be eternally grateful.
Because it's more than just a credit card that's free of annual fees forever.
It's also an AT&T Calling Card that currently gives you a 10% discount on already competitive AT&T Calling Card rates. It's all part of The i Plan.℠

Special student offer. To apply, come by our booth on campus or call 1 800 438-8627.

THE i PLAN℠ AT&T

CONTACT LENS CARE

AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.

•••

Offering a broad array of contact lenses with a large in house inventory.

•••

The new daily wear disposable and frequent replacement contact lenses are now available.

•••

All fittings are done by our eye doctors with experience in contact lens care and solving contact lens problems.

•••

Emphasis is placed on your ocular health and professional service.

uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM

Convenient hours and convenient on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

Arts & Living

Pre-fab Willis flick is dead in the water

By EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Looking to make a Bruce Willis action packed movie? It's easy!

First take one extensive shock absorber-defying car chase; call that your prologue. (Hey, screeching tires and shattered glass pulls the audience in.) For the bulk of your film, aim for saccharine soaked melodrama; a cop with a drinking problem, a recently deceased father and a "river full of bodies" usually pump the empathy factor up a few notches.

At a loss for a climax? It never hurts to borrow from slasher flicks, thereby allowing yourself a killer, who keeps returning from what should have been an imminent doom. If these instructions are followed, the finished product should resemble Willis' latest formula flick Striking Distance.

Directed by Rowdy Herrington (Road House), Distance details the sorrow of renegade cop Tom Hardy (now there's a stretch for Willis), who has lost his father and his badge in the line of duty. Hardy, an outcast for informing on a fellow cop (Robert Pastorelli), is assigned to the Pittsburgh River Rescue Department and partnered with Sarah Jessica Parker.

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES
Bruce Willis and Sarah Jessica Parker.

Hardy continues to pursue a murder investigation, dodging attacks by former cop buddies which inspire him to suspect members of the police force. The rest boils down to a watery climax set aboard dueling speedboats, a direct lift from the more superior Patriot Games.

If there is anything innovative about Distance, its Herrington's decision to film in his hometown of Pittsburgh, thus sparing the viewer the smog and sun drenched haze surrounding Los Angeles cop thrillers. The architecture of the Steel City streets and adjacent waterways is the real star here, taking more twists and turns than the film itself. The jutting buildings and disjointed skyline lend a dangerously romantic essence to the film's atmosphere, much like the role Chicago played in The Fugitive.

Too bad the same can't be said about the scripted proceedings. Stars Willis, Dennis Farina and Tom Sizemore all lack bite in their roles as members of an extended family with long arms in the police business. Willis' idea of capturing the remorseful, alcoholic Hardy is to skip the Gillette for what seems like weeks and mutter obscenities to his superiors. His performance lacks the wise guy charisma displayed in the Die Hard films which, coincidentally, thrust him into the action arena.

In her first foray into the action genre, Sarah Jessica Parker fares considerably better and shirks the "token female" stereotype often found in mayhem flicks. It's refreshing that her Jo Cristman does not run either the "helpless housewife" or "kick ass superheroine" gambit. She simply plays a woman, balancing police work with a life with her daughter.

Unfortunately, Parker's performance isn't enough of a recommendation for a film fashioned out of so many other formula pictures. Like past thrillers, the sociopathic villain has to have his quirky faults. This one circles his victim with a toy police car and then phones in his killings played against the song "Little Red Riding Hood." There is no reason for this except to inspire the viewers to suspect a cop; as if Willis's allegations throughout the movie don't already accomplish that goal.

And the identity of the killer is supposed to be a surprise twist, but when an actor, that is given fourth billing in the credits, disappears after five minutes, it's easy to guess who the true culprit is.

Grabbing a stock critical cliche, Distance is not very striking. C-

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

TUESDAY
SHARK NIGHT
- Singles Pool Tournament -

• $2.00 Entrance Fee
• Free Pizza Slices
• Play For Cash
• Sign Up: 7:00 - 7:45
• 20 oz. Drafts: 1.95

WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH

University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549 4040

Grand Opening September 30th

BandyWinkle

Natural Resources for Body & Soul

Among all the Amherst pizza parlors and Chinese restaurants... a real honest to goodness store, selling great stuff is opening. BandyWinkle is a "green store".

We offer a wide range of the finest European & American natural skin care/beauty care lines. From bath/shower gels, soaps, shampoos, facial cleansers, toners, moisturizers, body lotions, to cosmetics. All natural, NO animal testing, no chemicals, no preservatives, and all that nasty stuff... (nasty for Mother Earth and nasty for your skin). YOU GUYS OUT THERE, if you're inclined to buy gifts for girlfriends, mothers or wives... we also offer a fantastic selection of over 60 designs in T SHIRTS (great and small) featuring the finest artwork focusing on environmental awareness, the rainforest, animals, conservation etc. Please come by and give us your support. A percentage of profits are donated to environmental organizations. The more the sales, the more the profits, the more we can give to EARTH and all creatures great and small... the 4 legged, 2 legged, winged, finny, and furry.

BandyWinkle
9 East Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA
549-1988

(Next to the Mercantile and the Raw Carrot)
Hours: Tues-Sat 12-6 PM

P.S. Hours will be extended as soon as sales warrant or as soon as my partner can get moved to Amherst... whichever occurs first!

Peer Assistance Information and Referral Hotline

To support students experiencing harassment and other forms of intimidation

Applications available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, and must be recieved by 5:00 pm, October 8th.

Training Sessions for Fall 1993 will begin Thursday October 14th at 5:00pm and will continue on a weekly basis at that day and time.

Questions?? Contact Amy Ostiguy, Coordinator of the Peer Assistance Hotline or Paul Vasconcellos, Assistant Dean of Students Phone #: 545-2684

HUNGRY? THIRSTY? BORED? COME TO TWISTERS Tavern

Now Serving Casual Dinner & Appetizers
Mon. – Fri. 4-8 • Sat. 11:30-8
Friday - 99¢ Wings 4-7pm

MONDAY - Open Mic Night
TUESDAY - Settie & Oral Groove
WEDNESDAY - Raffle Night – T-Shirts & Prizes
THURSDAY & FRIDAY - Disco Hell w/DJ BOB
SATURDAY - Accoustic Rock & Roll

Third World Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Peace plan discussed

Professor Anwar Syed shares his view

By JUAN J. CHACÓN QUIRÓS
Collegian Staff

Anwar Syed is a UMass Professor of Political Science. He teaches Politics in the Third World. Next semester he will be teaching Politics in the Middle East (PolSci 333). In an effort to clarify the current peace process in the Middle East, Mr. Syed agreed to share some of his views.

How is the current situation different to the past?

First, the Soviet Union is gone. There's no great superpower hostile to the U.S. Israel's role, as our agent in the region has diminished. It is more than capable to take care of itself. The American public is no longer worried about Israel's security.

Third World Affairs INTERVIEW

Second, with the Persian Gulf War Arabs fought Arabs. The idea of Arab solidarity has suffered. Each country is for itself; it's a negative sign for the Palestinians. There's less Arab support for the PLO and Israel is in a weaker position.

Thirdly, the Intifada hasn't, by itself, being enough to break Israel's will; but during the last few years politics has been merging with Islam. Saudi Arabia and Kuwait are fundamentalist regimes. They implement Islamic law, but they are the right kind of Islamic Fundamentalists in the sense that they are with us [United States]. The Islamic Fundamentalists in Gaza and the West Bank are against Israel. Israel knows that if they reach power, they will be much more nastier than the PLO.

All this aspects put together has made this time the right time for mutual concessions. In top of this, Israel doesn't know what to do with all the Palestinians... granting them citizenship will change the Jewish character of the Israeli state.

How is the peace process going to continue?

This is going to take time. After Gaza and Jericho have become autonomous, there will be negotiations for the rest of the West Bank. Israel will be in charge of their foreign policy and of their military, but the Palestinians will like to go beyond autonomy. We are talking of a process of peace that will go forward slowly and take five or more years.

What is the possibility for peace with the other Arab countries?

The problems with Jordan are almost minimal. There are no disputes right now. The disputes are with Syria and Lebanon.

One possibility will be that the Israelis leave their homes in the Golan Heights and give them back to Syria. There's no peace treaty with Syria without the return of the Golan Heights. However, I've heard the idea that Jews remain there but acquire Syrian citizenship. If there can be half a million Arabs citizens of Israel, why can't a few hundred Jews be citizens of Syria?

As for Lebanon, if its government is strengthen and it is able to control the fundamentalists, then the problem is mitigated. Then, Israel can withdraw.

So, there's a good chance for peace in the future...

I think that there's room for a settlement. If you are an Israeli you can look at it in a long term perspective, let's say twenty years. Let's say peace and diplomatic relations are established between Israel and Arab countries. What will come after? It will be a trade. Just imagine what great opportunities can come from a trade. Israel can take a share of that market. It can send advisors, open its universities.

There will be opportunities for investment: Arabs investing in Israel. Israelis investing in Arab countries. I think that both can profit immensely.

Is there room for a Palestinian State?

That is going to be the most difficult thing for the Israelis to agree to. In the old days, a Palestinian State could have made an alliance with the Soviet Union, and allow the Soviet Union to station forces and missiles....The United States policymakers were against the idea of a Palestinian State.

At that time the PLO was pro-Soviet, partly because they had no choice. The Israelis are less hostile to this idea, but they don't know if the Palestinians will let the Iraqis or the Iranians establish a military presence nextdoor to Israel. If foreign policy and defense in the West Bank were left to Jordan...and in Gaza to Egypt, Israel's fears will be greatly reduced.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Prof. Anwar Syed

The decline of ideologies

By JUAN J. CHACÓN QUIRÓS
Collegian Staff

ANALYSIS

A country's ruler once said, "The Developing World is the most promising land on Earth." Twenty years later things don't look as promising.

The end of the East-West conflict has given space to the North-South disparities. During the "cold years," the two superpowers were supposed to be the source of all the problems of the Developing World: for some the United States imperialistic behavior, for others the Soviet Union spreading communism all over the world.

Undoubtedly, these two countries were causing (and still are) many of the problems in the Developing World, but they were also providing "answers" based on their antagonistic ideologies.

Central America experienced high rates of economic growth between 1950 and 1980. In the United States Foreign Service, economic growth is said to be the cure against communism. The '80s were a decade of civil war in Central America, with communist "guerrillas" in El Salvador and Guatemala, and a communist government in Nicaragua.

How could 30 years of economic growth lead to a civil war? The United States blamed the Soviet Union for this; then the Soviet Union collapse helped bring peace to the region. Naturally, the United States claimed victory and decided that the region's problems were over.

Today, Central America has not recovered: poverty, human rights violations, political uncertainty, widening gaps between the few rich and the numerous poor. You don't need an ideology to see these problems, all you need is ethics. The Soviet experiment was ousted by the people of Nicaragua; they know better than us that it didn't work.

The failure to address the real problems of Central America will cause another crisis (and its cost for the US taxpayer) five, ten or twenty years from now. In Central America, as in many other regions of the Developing World, both the United States and the Soviet Union failed to answer the problems affecting the people; instead they used our countries as the battle ground to prove which idelogy was stronger.

As we approach the year 2000 a new world order is in fashion. The United Nations is suppose to head the world into the next century. Will it be capable to give answers to the people of the Developing World? What ideology will the United Nations embrace?

The United Nations has been sponsoring government restructuring in the Developing World but has failed to reshape its own institutions. It's not uncommon to find U.N. officials in developing countries driving expensive cars or living in fancy houses as part of their "mission." As the U.N. presence in the world grows, its financial obligations increase; it's time to embrace efficiency.

At the political level, the United Nations needs to give more power to the Developing World. If the United Nations is going to be the key player in the world, the Security Council (the policy maker of the world) should be reformed. New countries deserve to be included as permanent members, perhaps India or Brazil. If the Developing World is not awarded veto powers, the faith of the developing world will be left once again to other powers.

The General Assembly will never have real influence unless it can override a veto by the Security Council. When the Developing World is able to choose its own destiny, the people will begin to receive the answers they have waited for so long.

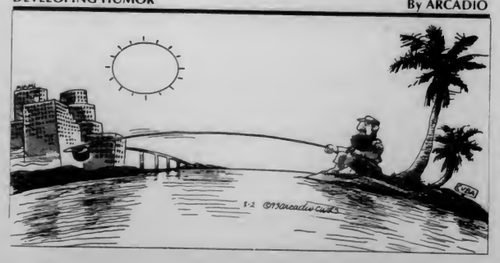
The developing world is in need for leadership. Foreign ideologies are not to be followed: underdevelopment can also be a state of mind. The only thing in common we all have as citizens of the developing world is the fight against widespread poverty. Hopefully, the United Nations will stand by our side in this fight.

The U.N. Human Development Report 1993 provides us with some comfort: "the real threat in the next few decades is that global poverty will begin to travel, without a passport, in many unpleasant forms: drugs, diseases, terrorism, migration. Poverty anywhere is a threat to prosperity everywhere."

The day we decide to fight this war, the prediction of the ruler will come true. Poverty doesn't follow any ideology.

GOING PLACES? A community calendar

Thursday, September 30: South Asian Ethnic Food Night, designed to celebrate cultural diversity at the Dining Commons 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.



Monday, October 4: Alejandro Portes from John Hopkins University will speak about "The New Second Generation of Cuban-Americans, at Smith College.

Thursday, October 7: Movie Alicia en el Pais de las Maravillas, by multiple award-winning Cuban film maker Daniel Torres. Location to be announced.

Through October 24: Visions of India, contemporary Indian paintings by Susmita Bando and Folk Art from the Georgana Foster Collection. Exhibit is being held in the Student Union Art Gallery Monday through Friday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Through November 30: Mexican Textiles: Line and Color, traditional textile art from the 1940s to the present at Mount Holyoke College Art Museum Tuesday to Friday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m, Saturday to Sunday 1 p.m. 5 p.m.

DEVELOPING HUMOR By ARCADIO

Welcome all!

By JUAN J. CHACÓN QUIRÓS
Collegian Staff

As a proud citizen of Costa Rica and the Developing World, I feel comfortable enough to say Welcome! I'm the Third World Affairs editor.

The goal of this page is to serve the "Third World" community in the Five College area. We also are committed to informing the rest of the campus members about the issues that concern our community.

You are all invited to participate in the page. You are the main reason for the existence of this page; make good use of it! If you have articles, comics, pictures, news, activities or anything else that concerns the Developing World, please bring it down to the office. The page will be a forum for different views; the aim is to promote dialogue and analysis within the community.

There's room for all of us, regardless of nationality, race, political affiliation or religious beliefs. You can write about all the beautiful people and the rich culture of the Developing World. Never forget people like Gandhi, Desmond Tutu or Bolivar; they are all related to us. Remember the friendly smiles, the great food and all the traditions that all our countries share. There's concern among many of us that our roots are being forgotten; there are numerous reasons for being proud of your origin.

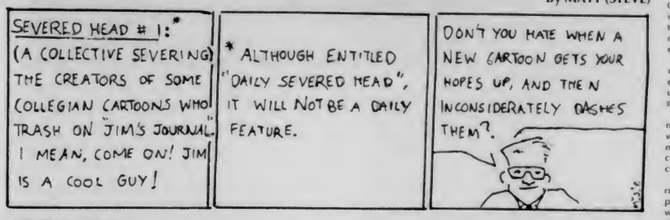
If you have any ideas or concerns, let them out. Once again, Welcome!

Attention

The Third World Affairs Page is looking for reporters and photographers.

If you are interested in joining the Third World Affairs staff, please contact Juan at the Collegian.
113 Campus Center. 545-0719.

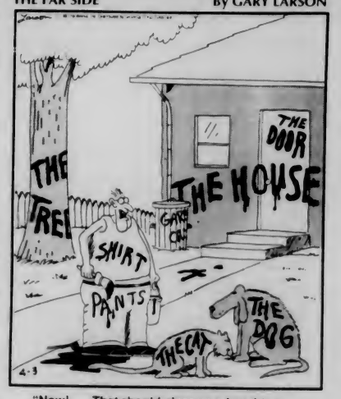
CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

STEVE By MATT (STEVE)



CUTTER'S WORLD By CUTTER

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Now! . . . That should clear up a few things around here."

Quote of the Day

"So where do you zoologists hail from anyway?"
– UNH Alum C/O '85

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Important career gains can be made now. Shun the limelight while you gather behind-the-scenes information. A compromise helps heal a rift between you and your loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be especially tactful with a young person going through a difficult time. A public argument could terminate a long-term relationship. Work out any differences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Concentrate on the necessary and important work while playing down the minor and insignificant. Learning more about stocks, bonds, and real estate will pay off.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do not foist changes on yourself or others at this time. There may be some unexpected snags in a work project that you must finish today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are really clicking now. You know just what to say and do in both career matters and romance. A festive event could have lucky job overtones. A cordial chat turns out just right.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A lack of cooperation could test your patience. Do not let anger tear down what you have built. An enduring alliance holds special rewards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work brings uncertainties or puzzling developments. Stay focused, and you will stay on track with your purpose.

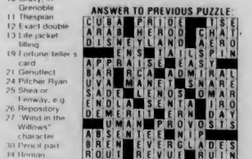
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Maintaining a quiet, steady pace at work will help fend off job frustrations. Take a long look at an increasingly rocky relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Whether you are at home or at work today, you will have a lot of energy and get things done with ease. Romance heats up. Be honest if you feel things are moving too swiftly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid "underground" activities at work today. A troublemaker could lead you astray. Being independent and responsible will get things done the way you want.

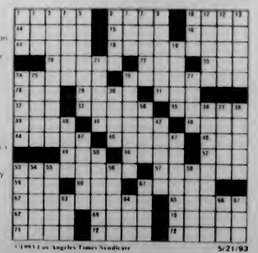
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A lucky day lies ahead. Unexpected developments work in your favor. Make this a time of self-discovery. Merge your mind and heart into a dynamic duo.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A duty or project you undertake today could be a launching pad to greater rewards. The love bug bites tonight.



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Michael Jackson hit
6 Jezebel's god
10 Nicholson or Lemmon
14 See 71 Across
15 Farmers' D.C. voice
16 Los Angeles campus: Abbr.
17 Parlor
18 Diminutive + cease = shielder
20 Fortunate
22 Reviewer Lindstrom
23 Yoko —
24 Table linen item
26 Headliner + journey = sci-fi series
28 Granada gold
29 Aerie
31 Also
32 Floral wear
33 Climb aboard
35 Diamond protectors
39 Actress Bancroft
41 Entices
43 Extreme
44 J. F. Cooper character Bumppo
46 Reveals
48 Marble ingredient
49 Dan
51 Ancient Teuton
52 Typical hospital Abbr.
53 Dip + court attire + oat-bone wax
57 Abbreviated blouse
59 Fermented brew
60 Scooby —
61 Crooked
62 Palm building + tempest = campaign
65 Faye Dunaway role on TV
68 Bullets, e.g.
69 Individual
70 Invigorate again
71 A Supreme
72 Wooden nails
73 "Love Story" author

DOWN
1 Name tags, for short
2 Farrow
3 Dance + indicate = kind of pen
4 Actress Aimee
5 Doing the hand
6 Like a bee
7 Rail word
8 Take as one's own
9 Dogie catcher
10 Gravy, in Grenoble
11 Thespian
12 Exact double
13 Life jacket filling
19 Fortune teller's card
21 Genuflect
24 Pitcher Ryan
25 Shea or Fenway, e.g.
26 Repository
27 "Wind in the Willows" character
30 Period part
34 Roman emperor
36 Correct + plane part = conservative
37 The best
38 Mister, in Managua
40 Draw with acid
42 Namesakes of Eve's third
45 Fabric measurements
47 Salt servers
50 Start the computer
53 Famous fictional elephant
54 Crockett's last stand
55 Contract provisions
56 Daniel or Debbie
58 Flood control means
61 Tsp. and Tbsp., e.g.
63 CPA's concern
64 Get-up
66 Hot beverage
67 Pointed tool

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

5/21/93

© 1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 5/21/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Christina Rothwell
Copy Editor.....John Winchell
Photo Technician.....Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor.....Michele Bakis
Production.....Sean Ramsey, Mike Carvalho

MENU

LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
Chicken Pucks
BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
Chicken Pucks

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Tacos
BASICS DINNER
Roast Turkey
Veggie Tacos

■ water polo

continued from page 12

"For some of those other teams, like Navy and Princeton, they've had their starting lineup together since the beginning of the year."

This weekend, the Minutemen might have learned the most important aspect of sports: a "team" attitude. Yarworth said he was happy with the total team effort over the weekend.

"I'm really pleased with the play of the whole team," said Yarworth. "The guys have to realize that it is the team that's going to succeed.

"If you play for one minute or all 28, the contribution is important. And if you don't play at all, it's what you do in practice.

"And that's the attitude we're starting to develop. Hopefully, that's the attitude that's going to get us to the NCAA's."

•GREAT BURGERS • HOT DOGS •O RINGS •DRAGON FRIES •
CHICKEN FINGERS
2 BURGS/2 BUCKS
PHILLY CHEEZE STK
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY
OPEN YEAR ROUND
Look for Ronnie the Mannequin
• FRIED CLAMS • SEAFOOD • SHAKES • SUNDAES • FLOATS •

Papa Gino's®
"We're Hot To Deliver"
10% College Discount
Tuesday 4-9pm All You Can Eat Pizza • $3.49
Wednesday 4-9pm All You Can Eat Pasta • $3.99
Sunday-Thursday 11:30am-9pm
Friday & Saturday 11:30am-10pm
(413) 584-0220 • Hadley
•• This offer good for any college student with a valid ID and is not to be used with any other coupon offer ••

Pepe Jeans
ADVOCATE ★BEST★ THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1993 1st Place
191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-3013
J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
22 Masonic St. Northampton 586-6336
Open 7 days • Thursday nights in Northampton

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
University Health Center
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 549-2671

Open Letter to UMass Student Community from the Director of UHS Eye Care Program

Dear Students:

A recent survey indicates that a high percentage of students do not know they can receive Eye Care at the UHS. The purpose of this letter is to invite you to use the UHS Eye Care Program.

My name is Frederick Bloom. I graduated from the University of Massachusetts in 1971 and The New England College of Optometry in 1975. Since 1975 I have been affiliated with the UHS Eye Care Program. I am very proud of the program and the high quality eye care delivered to the over 70,000 individuals at the UHS Eye Care Program over the last 18 years.

I have been on the teaching faculty of The New England College of Optometry where I have lectured to practicing optometrists and supervised fourth-year student/clinicians. Recently I co-authored an article with Dr. Abel, a UHS physician, that was published in a national optometry journal. I am also credentialed in diagnostic ocular pharmaceuticals by the Massachusetts Board of Optometry. I have significant experience in all aspects of contact lens fitting and care.

Additionally, we have a well-trained, professional and caring staff with experience in contact lens care and sports vision.

The eye services offered at the UHS include the following:

1. Complete Optometry Examinations that include a health history review, visual acuity testing, refraction ie. eye glass determination, a glaucoma check, cataract screening, contact lens check for those wearing contact lenses and a retina check with pupil dilation, if necessary.

2. Reduced Rates on Spectacle Frames and Lenses from local participating opticians with a complete optometry examination at the UHS.

3. Emergency Eye Care includes the evaluation of eye disease and disorder; these may include, but are not limited to, the following: ocular foreign bodies, conjunctivitis, lid lesions, chemical eye injuries, corneal problems, inflammation of the iris, retinal problems and evaluation of ocular trauma.

4. A Comprehensive Contact Lens service including initial evaluation, fitting if necessary, follow-up care, and same day service on many contact lenses due to our large in-house inventory; all fittings are done by eye doctors experienced in contact fitting and care. We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had trouble in the past using contact lenses.

Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Care Program over the years has been consistently excellent.

Again, I invite you to use the UHS Eye Care Program, conveniently located on campus. If you have any questions about our service, or want to make an appointment, please call 549-2671 x244. I look forward to seeing you.

Sincerely,

Frederick H. Bloom

Frederick H. Bloom, O.D.
Director, UHS Eye Care Program

WANTED:
GRAPHIC ARTIST ASSISTANT
WITH GRAPHIC DESIGN SKILLS AND MAC EXPERIENCE (QUARK)
CONTACT
LYNNE THOMPSON
FOR PORTFOLIO INTERVIEW
UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
GRAPHICS— 549-2671 X181

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment with
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos
only $2.00
9:30 to 1:30
THE 25 YEARS PUB CELEBRATES 1968 • 1993 IN AMHERST
• 51 EAST PLEASANT STREET •

■ volleyball

continued from page 12

The Minutewomen to the Lady Friars in three games by scores of 7-15, 6-15, and 9-15. UMass had team totals of 24 kills and 42 digs, both tournament lows. Nash led UMass with nine kills.

"We were physically, mentally, and emotionally drained from Friday's game and it showed," Kenny said.

UMass also lost to Sherbrooke of Canada on Saturday 3-0. The game scores were 5-15, 7-15, and 10-15. The Minutewomen were led by Maga, who had a team-high 18 kills and eight digs, and Anderson who had 30 assists and nine digs.

Sky-Stiskin had 10 kills and nine digs and was named to the All-Tournament Team.

For the tournament, Sky-Stiskin had a team-high 30 kills and 29 digs. Anderson continued her superb setting with 92 assists and Maga led the team in digs with 34 while also adding 29 kills.

UMass has a tough week ahead with three A-10 conference games in a row.

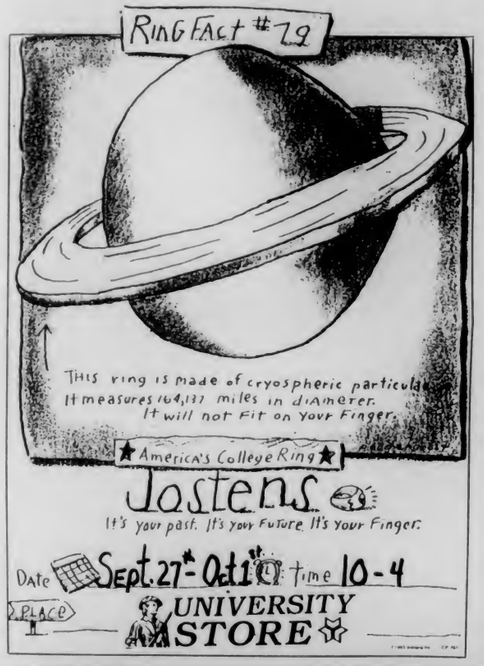
"If we can build on these past games, it will help us," said Kenny.

UMass' record stands at 5-4 and will be looking to improve on that tonight when they host Siena at 7 p.m. at the Curry Hicks Cage.

■ tennis

continued from page 12

here. He could be the best to play here since Barry Wadsworth was tearing up the Boyden courts a couple of years ago.



"The USTA [United States Tennis Association] told me that the tennis team was not here anymore, so I did not expect to play tennis here," Vaala said. He went on quickly to prove his appreciation for its revival.

"I just walked on to the courts, and [head coach] Judy [Dixon] happened to be there. I told her I had played a lot of tournaments in Denmark, and she let me hit some balls," Vaala said.

Since then he's been hitting them quite well, one shot in particular.

"My forehand is my best shot," Vaala said. "It's not great, but I have the most confidence in it."

"He doesn't have a weakness," notes Kleinman. "He's a true all-around player. His laid-back, confident personality is reflective of his playing style."

■ beanballs

continued from page 12

Atlanta would be 10 games out.

As it is, they have 100 wins with six games left, and if they win them all, they'll have the best record since the 1986 New York Mets won 108 games. That may not happen, though, because the San Francisco Giants are applying major pressure.

Finally, a word about those players who have announced their retirement effective at the end of the season.

It was a tragedy for Nolan Ryan to end the way he did, but after 26-years in the bigs, you can't really say he missed out on anything.

Many players never get to go out on their terms. Ryan, for the most part, did. He will be remembered as much for his demeanor as for his seven no-hitters or his win-loss record.

Speaking of the end of an era, George Brett was Kansas City Royals baseball for two decades. He decided enough was enough, and for those who grew up watching him in his prime, the last three years were painful.

This season, Brett is still on par with players like Will Clark and Kirk Gibson, who had a monster start, and a .373 clip in 13 World Series games is just one of the more amazing stats Brett has racked up in his career.

He was never about money, and that is why he finally quit. George Brett was a non-profit player. What better tribute is there?

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist

Delivery to Southwest in 20-25 minutes
COLLEGE PIZZA
"Quality Is Our Business"
OPEN FOR LUNCH
Saturday and Sunday at 11:00 AM
Located at Patterson Corner of Southwest
We Now Deliver To:
Townhouse • Puffton • Brandywine • Gilreath • Hobart Lane
Slices: $1.00
SUBS Closest Location 549-6073
SALADS Hottest Pizza 549-6098
Fast Free Delivery
FALL SPECIAL
MUST MENTION THIS SPECIAL TO GET:
A Large Pizza with 1 or 2 Toppings $6.99
Large Cheese Pizza $5.99
A Small Pizza with 1 or 2 Toppings $4.50
A Small Cheese Pizza $3.50
Free Soda
with Large Sub, Salad or Spaghetti
All prices subject to 5% Mass Meal Tax

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Spectrum General Meeting Literary magazine seeks students to produce 1993-1994 publication. Staffs are art, poetry, prose, photography. Also seeking new treasurer, production editor, poetry editor. Those interested should bring informal resume to meeting, 8pm Thurs. 9/30 Room 165-169 Campus Center basement.

UPC Productions General Committee Meeting tonight, 9/28, at 6 pm in the Cape Cod Lounge. Sign-ups and final lists for Lit' Ed and Belly. Help us bring UMASS concerts!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543-5640

Indecent Proposal at the CCA Sept. 30th 5 pm at $2.00
7,9,11 pm at $3.00
Sponsored by NEAG

Interested In a Wrestling Team? Like the thrill of systematically conquering an opponent until the ref slaps the mat? So do I! I'm looking for serious individuals to form a club team. Call Troy at 546-1613

UMass Theatre Guild General membership meeting - Wednesday, 9/29 at 7 pm in Earthfoods. NEW MEMBERS WELCOME! 777s 5-0415

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Chevy Nove II California car 283 engine powerglide grast body $4800 or B.O. 665-3630

1978 Olds Cutlass — only 60 K miles. Must sell fast - $250. 586-9416

1980 Buick Century Dark blue new tires. Great. Great winter car. $1000 or B/O Caroline at ACI 549-0701

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental 253-9742 Free Delivery

Smell Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Apple imagewriter II like new all cord extra ribbon and paper $150 549-6708

Babsy for Super NES
$40
Call 256-4532
After 10 pm

Basically Bicycles
Quality bikes for less
863-3555

DOC Martens 3-hole black UK size 5 Hardly worn! $65 Cell Julie 548-0271

Motorcycle - 1980 - Honda CB400T almost completely restored. Runs perfect $500 or best 549-7605

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

Skis 139 CM Head Look 3D bindings Poles ladies size 7 boots ski bag 25.00
545-4187

RCA 14" Color TV 85.00 545-4187
Penncrest 14" Color TV Remote 50.00 545-4187

XLG Dorm Fridge
$70
Call Joe 538-8689

Women's Lacrosse Stick
Excellent Condition
Call Amy 546-3540

GOALIES

ATTENTION GOALIES
We are looking for a goalie for the upcoming intramural ice hockey season.
If interested call
Matt 548-4820
or Chris 546-0880

HELP WANTED

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month. • World Travel. Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

Greeks and Clubs
RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority, and club
Plus $1000 for your self!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling
1-800-932-0528 ext 75

Postal Jobs Available. Many positions, great benefits. Call 1-800-4365 ext. p-3306

Sales Help Wanted
The Salvation Army
Is opening a store
In Amherst -- please call
Send Resume to
Judith A. Fell
984 W. Columbus Ave
Springfield, MA 01105

LOST

Address book, green 8X5", v. important Reward Call Nathan 253-7646

Casio Digital Diary Computer pocket size lost around Mahar auditorium. Please return important tel. nos. lost! Call 546-7335

MUSICIANS

Drummer Wanted 549-1981

PERSONALS

Spring Break 7 Nights from $299 Includes: Air, Hotel, Transfers, Parties and more! Nassau, Paradise Island, Cancun, Jamaica, San Juan. Organize a small group -- earn a free trip plus commissions!
1-800-GET-SUN 1

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Beat a Speeding Ticket Former Highway Patrolman tells how. 1-800-377-4602

Factfinder Custom Library Research. All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amharst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchas homa heating at reduced cost. Registar at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Women's volleyball meets Siena at 7 p.m. tonight in The Cage

Sports

Scarlet Knights slide past Minutemen

By ANTHONY GUIDO
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team absorbed a tough loss on Saturday against Rutgers University. The Minutemen played a great game against their Atlantic 10 foes, but came up short, losing 2-1.

The Rutgers combination of Hamisi Amani-Dove and Richard Ferraro (a goal and an assist each) proved too much for the Minutemen. UMass falls to 2-5 on the season and 1-1 in the A-10.

Rutgers University	2
Massachusetts	1

A sign on the fence of Garber Field read "We Believe," and, all afternoon, the underdog Minutemen played evenly with the best team in the A-10, the Scarlet Knights.

"We had two mental lapses all day, and that's all it takes [to lose] against Rutgers," said midfielder Brad Miller.

After playing a scoreless first half Rutgers (6-1, 4-0 in A-10 play) came out in the second half a decidedly more aggressive team. At 59:33, Amani-Dove got a long ball down the right side behind the slow-reacting UMass defense and was able to cross to a wide open Ferraro, who slipped it by a helpless UMass goalie Mark Wolf.

The goal came after Amani-Dove missed an open chance just moments before. At 63:18, Wolf was able to punch a blast by Rutgers' Brian Sentowski over the top of the crossbar, then stop the ensuing corner kick.

Randy Jacobs tied it up at 69:20 by banging in a loose ball that was in the goalmouth. After the tally by Jacobs, UMass picked up the tempo and had a couple of chances to score, one by captain Todd Kylish that just skipped wide of an empty net.

A little over five minutes later Ferraro lofted a high cross over two UMass defenders to Amani-Dove who easily beat Wolf for the game winner.

"I feel we definitely should have won. The game was in our hands. We just couldn't put it away," said Kylish.

"Our marking in the defensive zone could have been better, but our defense played very well," UMass assistant coach Rob Donnenwirth said.

After falling behind 2-1, UMass forward Dave Siljanovski was hit in the face at the top of the penalty box, but no call was made.

"That certainly was questionable, but the officials were fairly consistent all day," said Donnenwirth.

UMass must again pick up the pieces as it travels down to Hartford on Wednesday afternoon for a contest with the Hawks.

STEVEN PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Senior Ted Priestly is seen here flipping from the sidelines to toss the ball into play during the UMass men's soccer team's loss to Rutgers Saturday at Garber Field.

Water polo learns from defeats

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

For the University of Massachusetts water polo team, this past weekend was a test.

And according to head coach Russ Yarworth, what mattered most wasn't whether the squad passed or failed the test, but more importantly, what they got out of it.

Facing four nationally ranked, highly-touted opponents, the Minutemen lost three of four games, falling to Princeton (11-9), Pacific (21-6) and Navy (10-8). The win was a solid 10-7 decision over Bucknell.

"I'm not disappointed," said Yarworth. "I'm excited about the possibility to come out of this with a couple of good losses. I think we can learn from this, and progress from there."

Yarworth pointed out the Navy game as the premier contest of the four. Trailing most of the way, UMass continued to claw back, tying the game at eight midway through the fourth quarter before surrendering two late goals.

"That was a great water polo game," Yarworth said. "We just came out on the back end of it."

Luis Limardo potted five goals in the losing effort. Javier Gonzalez scored five in the loss to Princeton, while Greg Menton netted five in the victory over Bucknell. Goalie Alex Mujica was consistently spectacular, according to Yarworth. Mujica got the start in all four contests, accumulating 29 saves over the four matches.

"Alex is playing great," said Yarworth. "I'd say he's playing as well as any goalie in the East right now."

After watching his team play in four extremely competitive games, Yarworth said he feels he has a solid grasp of the personnel he will go with.

"For us, this was a weekend in which we're still developing what we're going to do," said Yarworth.

Turn to WATER POLO, page 10

Volleyball loses three straight

By CANDICE FLEMMING
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team had its five-match winning streak halted when they lost three at the University of Rhode Island Tournament last weekend.

On Friday night, the Minutewomen took two-time defending Atlantic-10 champion URI to five games, but lost 3-2. The game scores were 9-15, 15-13, 13-15, 15-12, and 8-15.

"I thought we played phenomenal," said UMass head coach Bonnie Kenny, "but we came up on the short end."

UMass was led by sophomore Rachel Sky-Stiskin, who had 15 kills and 13 digs, and sophomore setter Cass Anderson who had 43 assists and 13 digs. Also starring was freshmen Dionne Nash who had 12 kills and 15 digs, and Susan Maga who led the Minutewomen in digs with 20.

"I'm proud of the way we played," said Kenny. "I was real happy to see us that competitive against that caliber of a team. We played extremely well."

On Saturday the Minutewomen did not fare as well. UMass had to play a tough Providence College squad after the grueling five-game match the previous night.

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 11

Kasper Vaala leads tennis team to victory

By TED KOTTLER
Collegian Staff

The alluring lore of Copenhagen, the capital of Denmark, will always be this Scandinavian nation's greatest claim to fame. As opposed to, say, its development of great tennis players. But this little land by the Baltic Sea is home to at least one fine professional and another promising amateur.

The pro is 20-year-old Kenneth Carlsen, a top 40 guy on the American Tennis Professional charts and Denmark's all-time highest rated player. The amateur? Coming to a court near you: Kasper Vaala, 19, a University of Massachusetts sophomore.

That's right, the Minutemen were blessed on day one of practice by the arrival of Vaala, a player who assistant coach David Kleinman says "makes everything look easy." Indeed, he had no trouble disposing of Brian Klaes, 6-4, 6-1, in the second singles match of UMass' 6-3 defeat of Springfield College last Friday. It was Vaala's debut as a Minuteman.

"We felt very good about his performance. He's a very steady player, and his game is very smooth," Kleinman said.

That Vaala walked on to this team is not newsworthy in itself; only Ankur Baishya was recruited to play tennis

Turn to TENNIS, page 11

Blue Jays make run at repeat

The Toronto Blue Jays have been the best team in baseball for at least the past three years. There isn't much room for argument here.

Whether the Jays win or the Yanks lose, Toronto will have clinched its third American League East title in four years. They have eight division titles in 17 years, and they are baseball's defending world champions.

So the question remains, can anyone unseat this year's Jays from their perch?

Michael Morrissey's BEANBALLS

The games are played on the field, not on newsprint, so we won't know until it happens. But, the statistics do jump out at you. Toronto, through Sunday, has the top three statistical leaders in batting average. John Olerud has cooled down to only .368, and the eternal man, Paul Molitor, and Devon White might wind up with the silver and bronze.

Adding Molitor was a great decision. So was adding Rickey Henderson. Rickey has 110 runs with a week to go, and over 50 stolen bases. He's a proven winner who always does better in the postseason.

The weakness here is the pitching. Toronto is the second best offensive club in baseball. But the 4.23 earned run average is pathetic.

Pat Hentgen was the stopper through August. Jack Morris and Dave Stewart have winning traditions, but haven't shown a lot lately. Juan Guzman is a great pitcher.

If the pitching holds true to this year's form, the Blue Jays will not repeat, but it may take a team like Atlanta to do it. Chicago is just happy to be there. The White Sox probably won't beat them.

Postseason awards: Frank Thomas for Al. MVP, Jack McDowell for Al. Cy Young, Fred McGriff for NL MVP and Greg Maddux for his second straight NL Cy Young. No need to elaborate here.

The ChiSox pair have shown they are the most valuable position player and pitcher. Olerud gets shut out despite a great year, but Thomas is simply more valuable.

The same goes for McGriff. Barry Bonds could win the triple crown, but if it wasn't for his September slump and McGriff's season as a Brave,

Turn to BEANBALLS, page 11

SGA says students have rights in Amherst too. Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Wednesday
69° September 29, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 15

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Cosby speaks out on hatred and racism

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"The silent hatred that we all carry needs to be stripped. You need to grow up, there's no excuse," Bill Cosby advised in his speech last night at the William D. Mullins Center on the University of Massachusetts campus.

In his keynote address for UMass' system-wide two day conference, Cosby spoke to a crowd estimated at 2,500 about the racism, sexism and ignorance which is being acted out in our society.

UMass president Michael J. Hooker began the evening by explaining the tie Cosby and his wife Camille have to the university and how he approached him to speak at the "Strategies for Combatting Racism and Promoting Civility" conference.

Before speaking, Cosby had the audience view an older movie that he wrote and produced called "Bill Cosby on Prejudice." In this short film, Cosby, playing one of the last two bigots in existence, sits down and airs his opinion on people from every walk of life.

Beginning the speech, Cosby shared with the audience how he tried to sit down and write a speech that was fair to everyone. He explained when a person shares his particular experience of being attacked or excluded another person has a similar story.

"It becomes a game people play," Cosby said.

Cosby went on to talk about those children who make it to college bringing that ignorance with them and wondered how a 19-year-old boy could have a "racist, bigotted bone in his body."

"God knows a university offers a person a chance to act stupid," said Cosby, who brought up such typical college stunts as sliding down a dorm hallway filled with soapy water naked. He said after a while some students become bored with that and decide to go out and harass others.

The treatment of women was also an important topic for Cosby. He said he didn't understand how women could be treated the way they are on college campuses in an age with AIDS.

"I don't care if you're in her with two strokes, if she says no you have to get out," said Cosby, to the cheering crowd.

Cosby said parents do not teach their children rape, but they teach hate, a hate that is brought with those children to college campuses. He called on those in

Turn to COSBY, page 6

MATTHEW J. SIMONEAU / COLLEGIAN

Bill Cosby and Dr. Herbert Aptheker

Anti-racism conference is just the beginning

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

The conference on Strategies for Combatting Racism and Promoting Civility taking place at UMass is President Michael Hooker's start at forming a model, multicultural community.

According to Allan Sessoms, a representative from the president's office, this conference is not just an action in public relations. President Hooker is committed to his goal, and has already made plans to follow up on the conference.

"We're going to have to be doing something all the time," Sessoms said. "We will have programs put together all throughout the year to try to stop racism on each particular campus."

The graduate student newspaper The Voice and some panelist members question Hooker's commitment on this issue and wonder what is beyond the conference.

"This is absurd," said Hooker. "Why would we engage in something of this size if we weren't going beyond this?"

Hooker said he is very satisfied in the exchange that he has seen between the five campuses at the conference.

The Voice also was concerned about the exclusion of certain groups on campus. According to Rita Poussaint Nethersole, one of the organizers in the president's office, there were approximately 600 spaces available to 50,000 people from the five campuses. Nethersole said some people were bound to feel excluded.

"But even with only 600 spaces, the door was open to anyone wanting to participate," Nethersole said.

"No one was intentionally excluded," Hooker added.

After the conference is over, Hooker said he plans to meet with the organizing committee to go over the results. According to Hooker, the focus will be on all campuses to have a series of workshops on specific topics.

"One of the programs we are reestablishing is a workshop on multiculturalism in the residence halls which was stopped because of budget cuts," Hooker said.

According to Sessoms, this conference was aimed at faculty and staff, but the president's office is encouraging students to put their own conference together dealing with multiculturalism in the spring.

Sessoms said that the office will do whatever it can to help. Even if the help is financial, Sessoms said the president will back the students.

"We want UMass to be a place that other universities look to when dealing with the same problem [racism]," Sessoms said.

Hooker began the conference with a speech yesterday in which he related anecdotes from his life dealing with

Turn to CONFERENCE, page 10

Lack of Afro-Am professors at conference earns criticism

By DARIENNE HOSLEY
Collegian Staff

Despite a stated goal of "achieving social harmony and civility," the University conference on combatting racism has been accused of hypocrisy — of giving lip service to diversity while excluding particular minority groups.

A front-page editorial by the Graduate Student Senate newspaper The Voice, distributed this weekend and hand-delivered to conference participants, called the event "nothing less than a series of insults aimed at the campus community in general and minority and progressive groups in particular."

"The most shocking element of the program is the fact that not a single member of the African American studies department on campus is listed as a panelist or presenter," wrote the Voice. "Informed sources suggest that many of the African American studies faculty were relieved not to be asked to present talks, since it spared them the need to refuse."

Shyamala Ivatury, GSS president, and Ricardo Townes, associate dean for Academic Support Services, said they knew of unidentified professors in the Afro-American studies department who felt deliberately excluded from the conference. Both suggested that the perceived snub was related to a letter signed by 11 professors last spring criticizing the choice of David K. Scott for chancellor over Claudia Mitchell-Kernan, an African American woman.

Esther M.A. Terry, chair of the department, said she had not heard anything about the issue from department professors. "It hadn't even occurred to me that those two things might be connected," Terry said.

"I don't know how we can criticize any attempt at ending racism, whatever the origins," she said. "I find it hard to sit back and say that any attempt at eradicating it is a bad attempt."

Ivatury holds that the conference is all show by the administration. "Instead of a public relations exercise, we [the GSS] think it's better if they keep their commitment to increase minority enrollment to 30 percent," she said.

Conference participants and organizers pointed out that the event, the first system-wide conference in the University's history, is primarily a forum for raising questions and creating a network of administrators, faculty, staff and students that can address more specific issues in the future.

Turn to PROFESSORS, page 11

Hold still – I'm almost done

MATT KELLEY / COLLEGIAN

Catherine Bazyne displays her artistic talents by painting a portrait of a house.

Troops to withdraw

Pres. hopes to secure order in Somalia

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — There must be a "date certain" for withdrawing troops from Somalia, President Clinton declared Tuesday, and the White House said the government was negotiating with the United Nations for replacement of some U.S. troops.

The president said he wants the United Nations to first develop a political strategy ensuring that starvation and chaos will not revisit the East Africa nation after U.N. troops pull out.

Clinton's push for an exit comes under pressure from Congress. His comments shifted gears from the hunt for fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid, placing new urgency on achieving political stability.

"Every peacekeeping mission or every humanitarian mission has to have a date certain when it's over," Clinton said in a picture-taking session as he met with Democratic congressional leaders.

While the administration still believes the capture of Aidid would make it easier to ensure lasting peace in Somalia, the White House is trying

Turn to CLINTON, page 9

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian, a nonprofit paper weekdays during the academic semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is owned by the Massachusetts Daily Collegian Society, Inc., a nonprofit organization separate from the University of Massachusetts and receives no funds or revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bavliss

Newsroom
545-3500

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-7864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Mikerowski, Maria Papas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

This is a public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI please send a press release containing all pertinent information including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, September 29

Meeting — The UMass French club meets every Wednesday night at 5 p.m. This week's meeting is in Herter 301.

Service — UMass Hillel is sponsoring Sukkot service at 7 p.m. at the Hillel House Inner Courtyard, 388 N. Pleasant St., Amherst.

Meeting — MassPIRG is holding a general interest meeting for all students interested in participating in MassPIRG's projects this semester. The meeting begins at 6 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101.

Open house — The UMass Grenadier and Gaming Society is holding an open house from 7 p.m. to 12 a.m. in the Duke's Room, Student Union. For information, call 527-0252.

Thursday, September 30

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the second floor classrooms in the Newman Center.

Meeting — An informational meeting for the 1994 UMass program in Siena, Italy, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 301. All those interested are invited to attend.

Film — People of the Shining Path, a film about the revolution in Peru, will be shown at 7 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 227. The event is sponsored by the Maoist International Movement and the Office of Third World Affairs.

Meeting — The Graduate Employees Organization is holding its first membership meeting from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163C.

Service — Hillel is sponsoring Sukkot service and a light lunch at 10 a.m. at the Hillel House Inner Courtyard, 388 N. Pleasant St., Amherst.

Convocation — The School of Management is holding a convocation initiating the Charles and Janet Nirenberg Chair of Business Leadership at 7:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Dr. Barry Z. Posner, a graduate of the School of Management and author of The Leadership Challenge, will deliver the inaugural lecture. The event is free and open to the public.

Collegian
For Students
By Students

Northhampton Bowl
College Night

Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

CHI ALPHA
Christian Fellowship
XA
A Community of Worship, Fellowship, Discipleship and Witness Informational Meeting
Tonight 7:00 pm
Hatch

STUDENT TRAVEL
1-800-777-0112
THE WORLD'S LARGEST STUDENT & YOUTH TRAVEL ORGANIZATION STA TRAVEL

EARN MONEY BY ASKING FOR IT . . .

IT'S THAT EASY!
UMASS TELEFUND
☆Network with UMASS alumni all over the U.S.☆
☆ Work evenings for $5.50/hour PLUS bonuses ☆
☆ Add marketable experience to your resume! ☆
Call 545-3509 or stop by Memorial Hall

If You Are An Ambitious, Organized Freshman or Sophomore,
THE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT
is Looking for You!
We are currently accepting applications for
Executive Advertising Representatives
Applications due Thursday, September 30
A Car is Required for this Particular Opening

Local News

Students build away
UMass engineers putting up bridge

By CHRISTINA ROTHWELL
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts engineering honor society is literally bridging their book knowledge to practical experience.

For the past month, members and initiates of Tau Beta Pi have been spending 30 hours a week in constructing a 40 foot footbridge at the Mill River Recreation Area.

"It has been great to get your hands dirty. You spend so much time reading text books," said Jennifer Clary, who is the cataloguer for Tau Beta Pi and a senior civil engineering major.

Although their ground breaking ceremony was last weekend, Tau Beta Pi started to build the bridge two weeks ago. And, for the past few weekends members and initiates of Tau Beta Pi have been spending long hours in preparing the site. Stacks of hay have been placed along the river bank to prevent silt from running into the river. The bridge will be made with pressure treated pine wood, and it will replace a 24-year-old bridge.

Designing a bridge is not as easy as it seems. Just ask Tau Beta Pi President Pierre Tehrany who decided in May that he would like to get Tau Beta Pi involved in an environmental project serving the Amherst community.

"When I first started [to design the bridge], I just thought there would be just two stakes going across, and we would have extra money," Tehrany said.

Tehrany said he soon realized otherwise. Tehrany, a senior electrical engineering major, said he worked about 30 hours a week in designing the bridge over the summer. And, before long Mike McGrath, the treasurer of Tau Beta Pi, was using his structural knowledge that he had acquired from his civil engineering major to help design the bridge. Edwin Tan, the vice president of Tau Beta Pi, put in about 250 hours creating the engineering drawing and renderings of the bridge. Tan is a senior engineering major with a minor in art and math.

"It is a little overwhelming for all the officers, so without the members and initiates it could not have been done," McGrath said.

The town gave $2,300 for the building of the bridge, along with the national chapter of Tau Beta Pi donating $750. The Engineering Alumni Associated gave $500. Local businesses also supported the bridge building. Daniel O'Connell's and Sons Construction Consulting, a local business, donated the concrete. The College of Engineering Machine Shop also donated their services.

"We want to get the University to realize that [engineers] are concerned and that we want to get involved in more projects like this," Tehrany said.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Tau Beta Pi Engineering Honor Society president Pierre Tehrany explains the bridge building project to the public.

Students challenging Amherst town bylaws

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association is currently trying to improve student relations with the town of Amherst by challenging town bylaws it considers to be discriminatory against students.

Undergraduate student speaker Matt Pavesi said town restrictions on noise, the purchase of kegs and the fact that Southwest residents must travel to town to vote all discriminate against students.

Pavesi said the keg bylaw, which prohibits the purchase of a keg without a permit, prevents students from buying kegs for no reason.

"In order for a house to get a keg in Amherst you have to go to the chief of police to get a permit, and the chief decides if the house should be allowed a have a permit," he said. "Unfortunately, the town goes by what the house has been like historically. If a house has a history of being a party house they will not be granted the permit, even if the people in the house are new."

"It's a ridiculous bylaw that discriminates against students. How many faculty members go out and buy kegs?" he said.

Pavesi said Amherst police are currently authorized to give a noisy house a ticket without warning.

"In the past, police were required to give the house a warning before they could issue the house a ticket," he said. "But now police can give a house a $100 ticket without warning. There is no qualification for what 'too much noise is.' What is the difference between a student party at night and a family party during the day with screaming kids? Amherst residents need to understand that they live in a college town and on a Friday and Saturday night there will be a certain level of noise."

Pavesi said the SGA is currently trying to challenge the constitutionality of both of those laws.

In order for students living in the Southwest area to vote, residents must travel to the Bangs Community Center located in the center of the town. The Southwest area, precincts four and 10, are the only precincts that do not have a polling place within the precinct. Students should be allowed to vote at the Hampden Dining Commons in Southwest, Pavesi said.

"On a Tuesday it is difficult for students to travel into town to vote if they have a busy schedule. Historically, voter turnout is much higher if the polling place is nearby," he said. "If there was a polling place close by, student voter turnout would triple and it would force members of the town meeting to recognize students and it would force selectmen to run bigger student campaigns."

"Students have to realize that we are part of the Amherst community and we have rights," Pavesi said.

Speaker freed from death row

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Correspondent

William Neal Moore is a man who faced the electric chair and lived to tell about it. On Tuesday night Billy Moore, the only person in the history of Georgia to have confessed to homicide and had a death sentence commuted, spoke in front of a crowd at Hampshire College.

After being sentenced to death after murdering a man, Moore turned to God. He believes God is the reason he is a free man today.

Now, the Rev. Moore travels the country, speaking to people about his experiences on death row. Moore talked about living in a violent area and its effects on him.

"I was addicted to beating people up," Moore said, referring to fights he was involved in as a teenager. With a father in jail for 13 years, Moore turned to alcohol, drugs, and crime. His troubled adolescence would be an indication of things to come.

One night a drunk and stoned Moore broke into a man's home with a friend. The sleeping man awoke and confronted the two robbers with a gun. After the man fired a shot, Moore pulled out his gun and shot and killed the man.

"I didn't mean to kill him," Moore insisted. "I was shooting where I thought the man was. It was too dark to see him."

Moore was arrested and confessed to the murder. He plead guilty in court and was sentenced to the electric chair. While on death row a preacher baptized Moore and from then on, he put his faith in God. Moore's case was appealed and he spent 10 years on death row, where he spent his time studying the Bible and writing to his victim's family for forgiveness.

After receiving support from Jesse Jackson, Mother Teresa, and especially from the family of the man he killed, Moore was released from prison.

Moore now devotes his time to God. As well as being a reverend, he began the Jesus Christ Prison Ministry. He tries to bring God to the lives of prisoners. He also talks with young kids who have gotten themselves in trouble and are staying in juvenile detention.

Imperialist feminist's life examined at lecture

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

"The 'rise' of U.S. feminism [has] often rested on the emerging scientific discourses which also [has] supported U.S. foreign policies as well as domestic hierarchies," according to Tracey Boisseau, a Five College women's studies research associate who lectured at Mount Holyoke College last night.

Boisseau's lecture was entitled "They Called Me Bebe Bwana: A Critical Cultural Study of an Imperialist Feminist".

Boisseau, a Ph.D. candidate at Binghamton University, has examined the life and work of Mary French Sheldon to support her findings.

Sheldon was a self-proclaimed "feminist explorer" who traveled through East Africa in 1893 "on a self-initiated quest to support her 'feminist' assertions about gender relations," Boisseau said.

Much of Boisseau's research examines how the West views underdeveloped countries and uses "cultural Darwinism" to deem the cultures and practices of other non-Western countries as "backward."

Boisseau read excerpts from Sheldon's book, Sultan to Sultan, to describe the irony of Sheldon's "feminism" and her treatment of African women.

Boisseau explained that it is necessary for us to recognize and confront the "colonialization," the racist roots of Western feminism.

Sheldon traveled "alone (without other whites)" in a palanquin carried by several African men and had been known to wear a white-sequined gown and a tiara "to impress African kings," Boisseau said. Sheldon also held an air of superiority especially when describing African concubines Boisseau said.

This superior air, according to Boisseau, was based in her "whiteness"; Sheldon's "modern, Western, feminism" did not include women of color or of other non-western cultures.

"Sheldon's cultural position pivots the triple topics of U.S. feminism, science, and imperialism and, thus, highlights the interlocking dynamic of race, gender and nationality in the culture of turn-of-the-century United States," Boisseau said.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Tracy Boisseau

Pats ready to move?

Conn. says yes while Mass. says no

by ROBERT W. TROTT
Associated Press

BOSTON—Hartford stands ready to welcome the New England Patriots, but Massachusetts officials said Tuesday a Connecticut victory celebration was premature.

Connecticut Gov. Lowell Weiker signed a bill Tuesday authorizing $252.1 million in bonds to build a professional football stadium in Hartford if the Patriots move there.

But Bay State officials and the National Football League said keeping the team in Massachusetts still was the best course.

"We're flattered by the interest and commitment, and certainly stadiums are a key to the future of all NFL teams," league spokesman Greg Aiello said. "But we're still supporting the current team ownership in their support of megaplex legislation that would provide a downtown Boston home for the club."

Weld's proposal—a $700 million convention center and domed stadium—received a cool reception from Democratic legislative leaders, who voiced doubts about both spending public money on a stadium and initiating casinos in Massachusetts.

Connecticut is counting on that split to lure the Patriots away.

"I'm impressed with the speed at which the Legislature was able to act down there in our sister state," Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci said. "It points again to the need for this Legislature here in Boston to move forward on the megaplex bill...not just because of the Patriots but because of a lot of other economic reasons."

Peer Assistance Information and Referral Hotline

To support students experiencing harassment and other forms of intimidation

Applications available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, and must be recieved by 5:00 pm, October 8th.

Training Sessions for Fall 1993 will begin Thursday October 14th at 5:00pm and will continue on a weekly basis at that day and time.

Questions?? Contact Amy Ostiguy, Coordinator of the Peer Assistance Hotline or Paul Vasconcellos, Assistant Dean of Students Phone #: 545-2684

COLLEGIAN
What you want.

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT THE HATCH?

HATCH FOOD

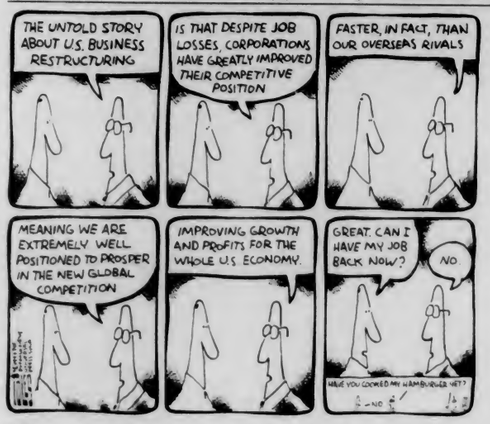
NEW Taco Bell
Foot Long Hot & Cold Grinders
Foot Long Steak Grinders (at the grill)
New Salad Bar Choices
• now open 'til 8:00pm.
Deli Sandwiches
• now available 'til 9:00pm.

AND COMING SOON ...
Oriental Stir Fry
To Order!

HATCH BAR

Pool Tables
Large Screen TV
16oz. Draft Beers
FREE Popcorn

THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
Miller Genuine Draft
$1.25



AND COMING OCTOBER 6th AND 7th
The 2nd Annual Octoberfest!
Sam Adams Octoberfest Beer on Draft!
Beer Mugs and More!

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

To carpet or not to carpet

Today's highly controversial issue is my blue toilet rug. You know — a small carpet on the top lid. The dilemma for us all: to carpet the top lid, or not? Let's explore a little, shall we?

The detractors of toilet carpeting say: "What's the point?" You don't sit on the top lid: why make that part fuzzier? If any sitting is to be done, you sit on the middle lid, or, if you're a male (depending on your imperative mission and state of sobriety), you stand, raise lids one and two, and do your happy business right in the bowl.

Mark Tyler
WENHAM

"So why make the top lid comfy and fuzzy?" the detractors ask. The only lid that really counts is number two, the one that gets most of the sitting action. A soft, plush rug on the top lid does nothing for you when you sit on the middle lid in the cold depths of winter, which is going to feel like ice cubes even if there's an 8-inch thick shag carpet on the cover lid. In fact, you could install an electric blanket on the top lid and crank that sucker up to ten and still freeze your buns like superglue to the sitting lid.

Which can be embarrassing when you call 911: "Yes, maam, it is an emergency! The top lid may not be hot enough to fry eggs on, but my poor cheekies froze right to the sitting lid, and if I stand up I'll rip both of them clear off. Now please send someone with a turkey baster and warm water as soon as possible."

So, yes, the detractors of top-lid carpeting have a valid point. If carpeting is going to happen, it seems that it should happen on the all-important middle lid. Being a believer in making the elimination process as fun and painless as possible, I can't really argue. I even have this idea of hooking up Gameboys to toilets to really add thrills to this necessary function; Nintendo said they'd get back to me. But that's another story.

If there were a truly brilliant thinker out there in the big world of plumbing advancements, we'd soon see toilets with top-lid carpeting and a gently vibrating, electrically heated middle lid. And, of course, any factory-installed carpeting that would be on the toilets would naturally be Dupont StainMaster carpeting, because stains can happen around the toilet. But that's also a whole different story.

However, until toilets and modern technology truly catch up with each other, I, for one, happen to like the tacky, cheesy blue rug cover that I've put on my top lid. If I want to simply sit on the top lid and stare at my bathroom wall, I can do it in generally warm, soft and fuzzy comfort. With or without pants. Especially without. But that's getting a little personal.

So today's big lesson is this: If a cheesy blue toilet toupee can remind us that life isn't so serious after all (which it should be for most people), then that toilet rug does as much as any medicine for ailing the ills of the human race. And it's available without a prescription.

You simply won't get a lesson like that on any sitcom, folks. Amen.

Mark Tyler Wenham is a UMass student

The next steps for diversity

I am excited to announce the wave of events surrounding the issues of "diversity" and "multi-culturalism." They have invaded our campus and have all made us feel "good" about the historically oppressed African, Latino, Asian and Native American populations. They have eased the guilt of past transgressions and given the University of Massachusetts at Amherst "good press."

Michele
MONTEIRO

Ms. Lani Guinier, Dr. Mae Jemison, Dr. William H. (Bill) Cosby, Mr. Orlando Taylor, Dean of Howard University Graduate School, all great African American personalities and speakers are a good start, but are just not enough. Where are the great Latino, Native and Asian American speakers? All students, not only the students of color, on this campus need to see a consistent tangible commitment by the University to not only talk, but act.

Where will these speakers be when the next racial incident occurs? Who will we call? Bill Cosby? Or will we call professors from the African-American studies departments who were not even included in initial discussions of multiculturalism and diversity?

Students of color, who have been present on this campus for over 25 years, are still fighting for inclusion. Our tight ranges from accurate coverage in the press, to actual coverage in the student-run yearbook.

Take the "Index" for example. There are photographs in the 1992 edition of basketball players, all of whom are black, and "Black Greeks." The "Black Greeks" couldn't even be included with the "other" Greeks. They are all part of the same Pan-Hellenic council. Latino, Asian and Native American student organizations were not even considered.

The yearbook is significant because it chronicles a particular class of students' presence at the University culminating with graduation. The yearbook's portrayal, ideally, is to be as accurate as possible. The absence of students of color in this portrayal makes this goal unobtainable. Students of color would like to see that they attended this University for four years also.

Again, the lectures, panels and discussions are a good beginning but not enough. True multiculturalism and diversity pervades every aspect of campus living from food to the residence halls; from classes to extracurricular events.

If we are truly committed to changing the culture of the campus to reflect a more diverse population, we must first examine the definition of multiculturalism in comparison to tokenism.

Instead of fulfilling quotas, the University must begin to look at students of color for who and what they are, and what they bring to the table.

Instead of talking about us, University officials should see us. Instead of hearing us, they should listen to us.

Michele Monteiro is the Collegian Black Affairs Editor.

RA course exercises hypocrisy

Is it wrong to differentiate, segregate and enroll students into a "required course" based on their color, creed or ethnic background? In this university of higher education and pristine ethnical prowess, could it even be conceivable that such a situation exists? The answer is: yes.

The first year resident assistants in every cluster of this university are required to take "A Training Practicum for First Year Resident Assistants." A criteria per individual class formation, that was not readily explained, was race and ethnic background.

The explanation for segregating the RA classes, as it has been explained to me, is to alleviate unnecessary pressure put on minority students within a class full of majority whites, all looking for explanations to ethnic and diversity questions. This policy is said to protect minority students from being thrust into the position of being spokesman and not one looked to in a class for all the answers.

Although this is an admirable thesis, let us look at the principle end for discussion. The university still took the time and effort to investigate and report on every RA who was to take the class and segregated differing race and ethnic groups for their own higher purposes.

I never filled out any form or paperwork with this institution that designated me as a "white of European national heritage." Every one of the possible forms that could have designated this was labeled "optional" and I always opted to reply with "Not applicable."

So where did this information come from? Solicited investigation? Inquiry? or possibly supposition? Such research and designation, as well as the principle of segregation in any institutionalized form, is wrong and a violation of my rights.

Who is this university to label me, or anyone, and administer education, in the name of diversity and multiculturalism, through segregation with impunity. If segregation is wrong when it is to the benefit of the majority, then it should be equally wrong when it is done in the name of minority rights. Otherwise, it is only an argument in semantics and an exercise in hypocrisy.

Michael F. Guthrie
Southwest

Abortion isn't part of the Women's movement

What would you say if you were asked the question, "Do you believe in abortion?"

Around here, a "yes" response indicates you have graduated UMass with straight A's in rally demonstration attendance, you are automatically catapulted into the class known as the PC elite, and perhaps you even voted for Clinton thinking he could single-handedly change the value of a life.

Give a "no" response and you are frowned upon and told you must change (no not that word again!), stop being closed-minded, and my personal favorite, you are asked "why?" and any answer you give is shut off by (surprise, surprise) closed-mindedness.

So, you say to yourself, neither of the above seem appealing to you, so you use the new and improved cop-out, please-all answer, "Well, I wouldn't, but you could."

Sounds good at first, huh? Guess again. So many people think this is an acceptable answer because it says you would never have one but someone else can, therefore not offending anyone. But it does. It offends us who believe you can't separate the fact that you do or do not believe that it is right to destroy a baby.

You can't say it's right for someone else but would never be right for you because the underlying principle is wrong. Nevermind the conditions that "make" someone have an abortion.

There is something else that bothers me about this response. You are in fact saying "no" but are mistakenly thinking someone else must have a better reason than you for getting one. (Please keep in mind that only a small percentage of abortions are rape cases.)

Abortion should not be part of the women's movement. The baby may be in the woman's body but both man and woman helped create it. Therefore, any decision should be made by both parties. I bring this up because women as a whole have taken on abortion as "their" obstacle to tackle and then, ironically, complain that men are not as vocal as they should be. Abortion has absolutely nothing to do with women's rights — it has everything to do with the baby's rights. If men were pregnant the same thing would apply.

There are plenty of issues out there I'd be glad to call my own "women's right", such as equal pay for equal work and extended periods of time off for pregnant women in the workplace. I still consider myself a fighter for women's rights, I just don't think anyone — man or woman — should be able to take away a life.

So call me a closed-minded conservative. At least I took a stand.

Cheryl Lyons
Amherst

Committee praises dept's response

The members of the Sexual Assault Advisory Committee wish to commend the members of the English Department who spoke out on the subject of the principles and responsibilities inherent in the faculty-student relationship [Collegian, Sept. 14].

Teaching carries with it certain ethical obligations and we urge all faculty on this campus to publicly discuss and acknowledge these responsibilities.

Eileen Stewart
Sarah V. Boy
for the Sexual Assault Advisory Committee

Thanks for all your recent letters.

Please keep in mind letters should be under 50 lines, typed, double spaced ' must have your name, address and phone number. Anonymous letters will not run, without sufficient reason.

Keep writing.

Police Log

Compiled by Vanessa Adelman from University reports

Thursday, September 23

• Police responded to a report of an individual causing a disturbance at a North Village apartment Thursday afternoon. The subject was issued a trespass notice.

• Two individuals disrupted a meeting of the Radical Student Union in the Campus Center Thursday night. Allegedly one individual threatened another individual with an umbrella. The case is under investigation by the Community Disorders Unit.

Friday, September 24

• Police were called to a disturbance on Observatory Rd. and placed a male subject into custody. A Show Cause hearing will be sought for disturbing the peace.

Saturday, September 25

• Police responded to a domestic disturbance in the North Village apartment complex. A judge issued a restraining order against an individual.

• An individual walking with a friend reported an individual who exited a parked vehicle on Stockbridge Rd. and displayed a handgun to him which was in the individual's waistband. The case is under investigation.

• A vehicle backing up in Kennedy Lot struck a parked vehicle causing damage estimated at $600.

Sunday, September 26

• A 17-year-old male living part way into the street was found by an officer and placed in to protective custody.

Cosby

continued from page 1

attendance to think about what they are going to teach their own children.

The unexpected star of the evening was Dr. Herbert Aptheker, a history researcher, who "has written and edited more words that have to do with slavery in this country." He spoke about the history of anti-racism in this country which has never received much credit with historians.

He said that in order for any progress to be made, all people must reject racism.

"It's not talk that this damn thing requires," said Aptheker. "It's commitment....you have to put your life on the line. The point is not how long you live it's what the hell you do with the life you have."

Comics News Horoscope Opinion
Everybody reads us.

SPELL IT OUT 1-800 O-P-E-R A-T-O-R

There's no lower price for a collect call℠

For long distance calls from public phones.
You don't have to be an Economics major to see that AT&T's new 1 800-OPERATOR service is lower priced than anyone else's standard operator service rates for long distance collect calls. Use it from any phone on or off campus. When you call, just spell it out.
Dial 1 800-OPERATOR (1 800 673-7286).

AT&T

Pricing tariff effectiveness. © 1993 AT&T

ONLY 6 YEARS, 3 MONTHS AND 2 DAYS UNTIL THE YEAR 2000

...and you'll still be able to read it in The Collegian.

CELEBRATING 25 YEARS OF DAILY PUBLICATION

Amherst Ballet Centre
29 Strong Street
10-week Adult Courses
Oct. 4 - Dec. 16
Beginner Ballet
Mon. & /or Thursday
6:30 - 7:30pm
Grahm Modern Technique
Tues. 7:00 - 8:30pm
Jazz Dance
Thurs. 7:30 - 8:30pm
549-1555
for registration

Northhampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Arts & Living

Street Preachers hit Gold; hollyfaith hits bottom

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

Gold Against the Soul
Manic Street Preachers
Columbia Records

Manic Street Preacher's second full length album, Gold Against the Soul is fun. And it bothers me that I feel that way.

The Preachers, twentysomething rockers from the U.K., consider their influences to be the Clash, the Sex Pistols, the Who, the Rolling Stones, Public Enemy and Guns 'n' Roses. They may wear more eyeliner than Liz Taylor, but the emotions their music elicits are very real. So real in fact that when rhythm guitar player Richey James was being interviewed by an NME journalist, he carved the slogan "4 Real" into his arm with a razor blade.

Which brings me to one of my favorite songs on the album, the snappy, happy sounds of "Roses in the Hospital." The lyrics of this song allude to the fact that the Preachers are a decidedly unhappy band, "We don't want your [expletive] love/ Roses in the hospital/ Stub cigarettes out on my arm/ Roses in the hospital/ Want to feel something of value."

Their last album, Generation Tourists, yielded six top 40 singles in England over the last year, but it didn't cheer them up at all. The Gold Against the Soul album has a driving rocking feel and yet the lyrics are mercilessly, flatly depressing.

In the tradition of the Who's rock opera "Tommy," the Preachers have included the song "Symphony of Tourette" on this album. It paints a gruesome picture of the way society treats Tourette's syndrome patients. Tourette's syndrome is a condition of severe and multiple tics, including vocal tics and involuntary obscene speech. "Stutter stutter says the little boy/ I wanna blow a hole in my head."

Unlike the rest of this album "Symphony of Tourette" is morbid for a reason. It advocates social reform. Not that Gold Against the Soul has no artistic value. They should just replace the "Explicit Lyrics" label with a "Don't use if you're in therapy" sticker.

Purrrr
hollyfaith
Epic Records

Hollyfaith's debut album, Purrrr, can be summed up with drummer Jeff Warncke's motto, "I believe in hitting them hard."

These Atlanta rockers are chock full of out-of-this world, dreamy sounds. "Whirlwind" has the most psychadelic sound while "Voodoo Doll" has the most pop sound. "Doll" does have merits in spite of its unintentional commercial value, however.

While Manic Street Preachers are depressing, hollyfaith is disturbed. And there is a difference. May I present the lyrics of "Color of Blood?" "Try to wash away the mental stains/ The only stain remaining is pumping through your veins/ Color of Blood."

Forget Purrrr and invest in some Gold.

COURTESY/HOLLYFAITH

Hollyfaith

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Lunncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

- WANTED -
Assistant Business Mgr.
EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...
We are looking for :
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills.
Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, October 6, 1993 12:00pm.

Grand Opening September 30th
BandyWinkle
Natural Resources for Body & Soul
Among all the Amherst pizza parlors and Chinese restaurants... a real honest to goodness store, selling great stuff is opening. BandyWinkle is a "green store".
We offer a wide range of the finest European & American natural skin care/beauty care lines. From bath/shower gels, soaps, shampoos, facial cleansers, toners, moisturizers, body lotions, to cosmetics. All natural, NO animal testing, no chemicals, no preservatives, and all that nasty stuff... (nasty for Mother Earth and nasty for your skin). YOU GUYS OUT THERE, if you're inclined to buy gifts for girlfriends, mothers or wives... we also offer a fantastic selection of over 60 designs in T SHIRTS (great and small) featuring the finest artwork focusing on environmental awareness, the rainforest, animals, conservation etc. Please come by and give us your support. A percentage of profits are donated to environmental organizations. The more the sales, the more the profits, the more we can give to EARTH and all creatures great and small... the 4 legged, 2 legged, winged, finny, and furry.
BandyWinkle
9 East Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA
549-1988
(Next to the Mercantile and the Raw Carrot)
Hours: Tues-Sat 12-6 PM
P.S. Hours will be extended as soon as sales warrant or as soon as my partner can get moved to Amherst... whichever occurs first!

Black Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

UMOJA (UNITY) "To strive for and maintain unity in the family, community, nation and race."

University must address race relations

Since the arrival of the first minorities in the 1970s, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst has had its share of racial incidents.

October 27, 1986 — a date that many associate with the New York Mets winning the World Series, was a milestone in the way the University would look at multiculturalism. Four days before Halloween an incident that started out as anger at the loss of the Boston Red Sox, a team who is backed by a white majority, turned into a racial incident that left 10 people injured and many more emotionally disturbed.

Marc
COUSINS

Following this was the 1992 incident of a black resident assistant accosted by a guest of a UMass student, both of whom were white, in the Washington dormitory while trying to enforce University housing policy.

In the eyes of many, these disturbances have left a lot to be desired about the structure and organization of UMass.

These incidents spelled major changes in the system. In the aftermath of the first, the University commissioned a report which was done by Frederick A. Hurst of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination based in Springfield, Mass. The second incident resulted in a list of demands being met in order to facilitate the needs of people of color on campus.

"This is a relatively progressive campus," said Grant Ingle, director of Human Relations for the University, while commenting on other campuses he's visited.

Ingle believes that, although student demands are met, they are not getting as many results and the quality of results they could if they tried to have three major concerns addressed:

- Behavior of staff and faculty
- Behavior of undergraduate and graduate students
- Curriculum and courses.

What the demands have addressed are: minority representation at all levels, minority support organizations, undergraduate recruitment, campus safety and security, resident assistant's roles, New Students program and Upward Bound.

"The University has always been a reactive system; it has never dealt with anything primarily," Ingle said. "The student raises more immediate questions. The faculty and staff raise more long term questions and they are ignored."

Marc Cousins is a UMass student.

This Week in Black History

Dates in Black History -
September 27, 1993 - U.S. Marshal Craig Meacham allows Laurence Powell and Stacey Koon, the police officers convicted in the 1991 Rodney King beating, to go free without a jail sentence.

-September 24, 1993 - South African Blacks allowed a role in governing.

-September 20, 1962 - Black student, James Meredith, was blocked from enrolling at the University of Mississippi by Governer Ross R. Barnett.

-September 24, 1957 - President Eisenhower orders federal troops to Little Rock, Ark., to enforce court ordered integration at Central High School.

-September 22, 1862 - President Lincoln issued the preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, declaring all slaves in rebel states should be free as of January 1, 1863.

Community Calendar

Wednesday Sept. 29

The Black Student Union will hold elections for leadership positions at the Malcolm X Cultural Center at 6:30 p.m. All are encouraged to attend. For more information, contact Tammie Strowder at 546-6617.

Thursday Sept. 30

The Black Mass Communicators Project's general body meeting will be held at the Campus Center at 7 p.m. The room will be announced on the daily activity sheet at the information desk. All are encouraged to attend. For more information, contact the BMCP office at 545-2420.

UPCOMING

C.C.E.B.M.S.
General Assembly Meeting and Organizational Fair. Thursday October 14, 1993 7 p.m., in the Campus Center Auditorium. Come learn important information. Meet the C.C.E.B.M.S. staff. Meet the ALANA organizations. For more information, contact Ed. Bervie, or Mary at C.C.E.B.M.S. at 545-0631/0632.

ONGOING

Benjamin Banneker Computer Laboratory Facilities are now open! Located on the Fourth floor of New Africa House, the facilities are available only to students who are affiliated with the W.E.B. DuBois Afro-American Studies Dept. as majors, Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and other Minority Students members, Bilingual Collegiate Program members and United Asia Resource and Learning Center members. Regular Hours are Mon-Thurs 1:30-11:30 p.m., Friday 1-3:30 p.m., Saturday 11 a.m.-3 p.m., Sunday 2-11 p.m. For more information call 545-0169 or 545-1611.

The Black Affairs Page is currently accepting event announcements to place in the calendar. Send all submissions one week in advance to the Black Affairs Page, in care of the Collegian or place the announcement in Black Affairs' box at the Collegian. If you have any question about our policy call us at 545-1749 or come down and visit.

Your View

Question: How Do You Feel As a Person of Color on Campus?

Carl Melius
Junior
"It's not that difficult. Academically, it's fine. Socially it can be disturbing because at times I have to be cool. I have to act 'Black'. I see reverse discrimination against me."

Rob Venator
Graduate Student
"In order to be recognized as a member of the community, you have to disrupt civil peace. Also it seems to me that this institution excludes us from discourse and has a tendency of being ahistoric while placing the blame on inept people. There is no consistent commitment."

Dwayne Howell
Class Withheld
"Although situations aren't as bad as they were, I feel that the University still has a long way to go in terms of racial equality."

Reina Pizarro
Sophmore
"I feel that the University doesn't cater enough to the needs of our community. Also, I think that they [the administrators] lack understanding. They [the administrators] don't know our struggle."

Maia McClinton
Senior
"I think it's hard because we have to work a lot harder in order to prove ourselves. People have preconceived notions about who you are."

Angie Bonilla
Junior
"I feel that our resources on this campus are limited. The University does not represent us culturally. The University says that it doesn't have money for us, yet it can afford to do other things that are unecessary."

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

The Carpetbag Theater members strike a pose from their historical play "Dark Cowgirls and Prairie Queens" which ran Friday Sept. 24, 1993 and Saturday Sept. 25th. Signing traditional African American spirituals, the oral account conveyed the hardships that African American pioneers to the Midwest endured during and after slavery.

Especially For You
Haircare & Beauty Supply
Now at
233 N. Pleasant St., Downtown Amherst Carriage Shops
OPTIMUM • MORNING MAGIC • LUSTER'S
BRAIDS & WEAVES HUMAN & SYNTHETIC & BEADS & MUCH MUCH MORE
Come Down & Browse Around or Call 549-8316 To Place Your Order
FREE Delivery Within The Five-College Area
Especially For You
Hair Care & Beauty Supply Specializing in African American Hair Care Products

Are you artistically inclined?
The Collegian's Editorial/Opinion page is looking for cartoonists!
Contact E.C. Thomas
at 113 Campus Center for information.

■ Clinton

continued from page 1

to change the view that the U.S. is a combatant.

"The enforcement strategy did not change," Clinton said. "But what I wanted to emphasize at the U.N. yesterday was that there has to be a political strategy that puts the affairs of Somalia back into the hands of Somalia; that gives every country. . . that comes into this operation the sense that they're rotating in and out, that there is a fixed date for their ultimate disengagement in Somalia."

His announcement came as the House neared a vote on a resolution asking him to report to Congress by Oct. 15 on the goals of the Somalia operation. It also urges Clinton to seek congressional authorization by Nov. 15 for continued U.S. involvement.

The Senate approved the same provision earlier this month by a resounding vote of 90-7.

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers would not take a position on the resolution, saying only, "We will continue to work with Congress to figure out the best strategy."

Have You Spoken to Your Attorney?
FREE professional legal assistance for fee-paying UMass/Amherst students!
Legal Services
922 Campus Center
545-1995
Call Today
for an appointment

classé café
We're not just for Breakfast anymore
BEER & BURGERS
'TILL 10 P.M.
Sunday Brunch 7-3
Mon-Sat 7-10pm
READY IN MINUTES —AND SO THRIFTY
168 Pleasant Street Amherst • 253-2291

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

여성의 건강을 위한 모임들에게.

본 여성 보건 위원회는, UMass 여성들의 보건관리 필요에 따른 정보 수집과, 이 필요에 부응하는, UMass Health Center의 보다 효과적인 서비스를 위하여 1992년 가을, 여러 관심있는 단체들과 대학사회 구성원들, 그리고 이곳 Health Center 요원들에 의해 설립되었습니다.

본 위원회는 올해 다수의 큰 프로젝트를 가지고 있는데, 이 프로젝트는 광범위한 스펙트럼의 설문조사나 여론이, 다양한 문화적 인종적 배경을 가진 여성들로 구성된 소규모의 모임 수를 면밀하게 검토하고 있습니다. 이 조사로 모든 수는 여성건강 관리에의 관심사 전반 수집, 여성 건강 관리 사업에의 적극 참여, 그리고 보건업무 수행자로서의 Health Center의 효율성 증진을 위한 자료입수에 그 목적을 두고 있습니다. 저희는 이번 가을학기에 약 10개의 소규모 모임을 계획하고 있는데, 그 중 하나는 한국 여성 모임입니다. 저희는 이 모든 모임에서 수집된 자료를, UMass Health Center의 건강업무 방향에 대한 제언으로 및 계획을 위해 분석하겠습니다.

각 모임은 기초상의 목적으로 독립이 되겠지만 이들이 모두 취합됩니다. 모든 주관한 인명에 대해서는 기록에서 삭제하겠습니다. 이 모임을 위해 이점 꼭이 사용하고 싶습니다.

UMass 여성보건의 강화를 위해 하루의 짧더는 여러분의 참여합니다. 부디 이 취지에 공감하시고, UMass 여성 보건 강화를 위한 제반 활동에 도움을 주시기 부탁 드립니다.

한국어 모임의 모임시간은 다음과 같습니다.

1993년 9월 30일, 6:30 - 8 p.m., North Village Apts H-2

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

THE WOMENS' HEALTH COMMITTEE WAS ESTABLISHED IN FALL 1992 BY CONCERNED STUDENTS, CAMPUS COMMUNITY MEMBERS AND UHS STAFF TO COLLECT INFORMATION ON THE HEALTH CARE NEEDS OF WOMEN AT UMASS AND THE EXTENT TO WHICH THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE MEETS THOSE NEEDS. SEVERAL SMALL DISCUSSION GROUPS AMONG A WIDE RANGE OF WOMEN FROM VARIOUS CULTURAL AND ETHNIC BACKGROUNDS HAVE BEEN SCHEDULED THIS FALL.

THE FOCUS GROUPS WILL BE AUDIOTAPED FOR TRANSCRIPTION PURPOSES AND KEPT STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. ANY NAMES MENTIONED WILL BE DELETED FROM THE TRANSCRIPT. BILINGUAL MODERATORS WILL ASSIST WITH THE DISCUSSIONS.

PLEASE HELP US CREATE A VISION FOR WOMENS' HEALTH AT UMASS BY ATTENDING THE DISCUSSION FOR KOREAN-SPEAKING WOMEN ON THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 30, 1993, 6:30-8 PM, NORTH VILLAGE APARTMENTS H-2. CALL HEALTH EDUCATION AT 549-2671 EXT. 181 FOR MORE INFO.

For Everyone's Information
Submit your FYI to the Collegian and tell the world what they need to know.
P.S. Type it.

Marcus Alexander
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N PLEASANT ST AMHERST 256 0733

Until there's a...
24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...
There's us...
$29.95 professional resumé package
kinko's the copy center
Professional resumé package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (#10). One coupon per customer at the Kinko's listed. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 1st, 1993.
250 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST, MA 01002 413 253 2443

WANTED:
GRAPHIC ARTIST ASSISTANT
WITH GRAPHIC DESIGN SKILLS AND MAC EXPERIENCE (QUARK)
CONTACT
LYNNE THOMPSON
FOR PORTFOLIO INTERVIEW
UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
GRAPHICS
549-2671 X181

conference

continued from page 1

problems in multiculturalism at other universities. At these universities, which included the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the University of Maryland, Hooker said he did precisely what he wants to do at UMass.

"I want to build a model community," Hooker said. "This would be a community where differences are not just tolerated, but celebrated as a strength of the campus."

U.S. general replies

North Korea receives stern warning

SEOUL, South Korea—Underlining a warning by President Clinton, the top U.S. general in Korea says his force will annihilate North Korea if it tries to use nuclear weapons.

The remarks by Gen. Gary E. Luck, made public on Tuesday, came as North Korea issued its own message of defiance by calling off talks on allowing U.N. inspections of its nuclear facilities.

North Korea's official newspaper, Rodong Shinmun, said that to end the threat of nuclear war, "nuclear weapons must be removed, first of all, in the countries that actually pose a nuclear threat."

The commentary did not mention the United States, usually identified by the North as a nuclear threat, nor the inspection issue.

Luck noted Clinton's warning last July that the use of nuclear weapons by North Korea "would be the end of their country."

"The combined forces command is capable of making the president's word a grim reality," the general told a dinner for U.S. and Korean business groups.

EVERY TEST DOESN'T HAVE TO BE A STRESS TEST.

Practicing for tests can help raise your scores and lower your anxiety. And Cliffs StudyWare® has the most complete test preparation programs available for your computer. Get a free Test Survival Kit, details at:

UNIVERSITY STORE

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS

If you are new or returning and still don't know where to go...

IDB can help answer questions about:

- Daily Events
- Where to access your Academic Records
- Pool Schedules
- University Honors Program
- Meal Plan Options & Exemptions
- Finding/Changing your Academic Advisor

We are located in the lobby on the 2nd. floor of the Whitmore Building. Our phone number is 545-1555.

Mike's Westview

Wednesday Night is

GUEST BARTENDER NIGHT

Thursday is MILLER NIGHT -

MGD & MGD Lt. Bottles $1.25

FREE HATS, T-SHIRTS, & OTHER PRIZES

Come Try Our All-You-Can-Eat Friday Buffet $1.00

Saturday, Please Come and Join Us For a Free Buffet After the Game

Monday Night Football Free Buffet 9:00 pm

TACO TUESDAY Free Tacos at 9:00 pm

UPC Jazz & Blues Series Presents:

LIL' ED AND THE Blues Imperials

WITH SPECIAL GUEST MARK NOMAD

8PM THE BLUEWALL, UMASS

OCT. 1, 1993

TIX: $5 w/ UMass ID $6 all others

Tix available at: Tix Unlimited (Student Union), For The Record, Dynamite Records, & the Northampton Box Office

A UPC Production

And one drop of nitroglycerine and ...

ANDREW SPENCER / COLLEGIAN

Junior microbiology major Brian Young performs an experiment in chemistry lab.

professors

continued from page 1

"Doing something is better than just sitting around," said William H. Wright, director of public information for the President's Office. "No matter what you do you'll have your critics."

He responded to criticism that the choice of a comedian — Bill Cosby — as the keynote speaker was a publicity move by commenting on the energy Cosby has devoted to education.

"The key to increasing tolerance is people learning to live more cooperatively. The use of humor is a way to get serious ideas across," Wright said.

Organizers said Cosby is not being paid for his appearance.

Ricardo Townes said he agrees with the Voice's point that more students should have been involved in the conference, but squashed accusations directed toward organizer Javier Cevallos.

"There's a subtle criticism of a person that is not fair," Townes said. "Javier Cevallos did not decide every little detail, and I know Javier's door is open."

Chancellor David K. Scott said he had received no direct complaints regarding the conference, but said he feels some aspects of the conference could have been done differently.

"I think it was a mistake — whatever the focus of the conference, students have a major role," Scott said.

In retrospect, Cevallos believes that students and some faculty should have been more actively welcomed to the event. "There's a silver lining to everything," Cevallos said. "On the positive side, there's a group of students who are very concerned and want to do something. On the negative side, there is some misinformation about what the conference is about," he said.

"The other problem the graduate students fail to see is that some others have to carry the weight," he said. Cevallos said that there is often a core group of representative authorities on such topics as racism and civility, and that the steering committee sought a variety of voices.

"There's enough bigotry out there for every single person on this campus to handle," said Esther Terry. "Racism on this campus is not the problem of the Afro-American department. It's not the thing we claim as our own, for us to handle. Today I'm hoping some other people will be carrying forth."

"I don't think there was any bad faith," Cevallos said. "There's also no representatives from the Spanish department.

"Of course the conference is just a first step. It's not an answer, by all means — it's a question," said Cevallos. "The campus culture has to change and make the University more open."

Immigration Law

Hans & Curran, P.C.

30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law

1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370 | 13 Old South St Northampton, MA 584-3232 | 50 Congress St Boston, MA (617)722-0043

Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty

RUSH ΒΘΒ The Collegian 113 Campus Center 545-3500

Northwestern College of Chiropractic

is now accepting applications for its next three entering classes (April 1994, September 1994, January 1995)

General requirements at time of entry include:

- Approx. 2-3 years of college in a a life or health science degree program.
- A minimum G.P.A. of 2.5. A more competitive G.P.A. is favored.
- A personal interest in a career as a primary care physician.

Northwestern offers:

- A professional school of 500 students with student faculty ratio of 12:1.
- A well-rounded education in Basic and Clinical Sciences, Diagnosis, X-ray, and Chiropractic.
- Full accreditation by North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and the Council on Chiropractic Education.

Call: 1-800-888-4777 or Write: Director of Admissions
2501 West 84th Street, Minneapolis, MN 55431

CTB CENTRAL TRAVEL

YOUR STUDENT TRAVEL EXPERTS

LOOK for our ad in Friday's paper to see how you can win a free airline ticket!

We Get You There With Money to Spare

Central Travel
25A Pray St.
Amherst, MA 01002
Call... 549-4900

No Charge for American Express Vouchers

DOMINO'S PIZZA

NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S

How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.

Amherst 256-8911

South Hadley 535-1111

Open For Lunch at 11 AM

AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY

FREE DELIVERY

Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan

VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas

THE DOMINATOR™

30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • 2 Toppings

ONLY $10.99

ONE MEDIUM Two Topping Pizza & 2 Cokes ONLY $7.99

ONE LARGE Two Topping Pizza & 2 Cokes ONLY $10.99

LARGE SUB Can of Soda Bag of Chips ONLY $5.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax where applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20c. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

La plus constante marque de la sagesse, c'est une constante réjouissance.

The most constant sign of wisdom is constant rejoicing.
Michel de Montaigne (1533-1592)

SEMESTER OR YEAR ABROAD

The American University of Paris is a four-year liberal arts college in Paris welcoming visiting students.

Majors in Applied Economics, Art History, Comparative Literature, Communication Studies, European Studies, French Studies, International Business, International Relations, Journalism, Modern Theatre.

The Program in European Affairs (PEA) allows students to select Europe-focused courses from three different majors, and to integrate them through an intriguing seminar.

Year-long students may qualify for International Hours in anthropology in the second semester.

- 1000 students from 50 different countries
- 30 U.S. courses (C.E.E.) each
- In small (8-12) learning sessions
- Housing is guaranteed

The college credit summer courses

- Three terms (intensive)
- Six weeks (split) summer session

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY OF PARIS

Please send me more information on Study Abroad Opportunities at The American University of Paris

Name Mr./Ms. _____

Mailing address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____ Telephone _____

Name of program exactly as currently attend _____

I plan to matriculate at (spring for years as: Fall 19___ Spring 19___ Summer 19___

I am a: Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior

My primary academic interest/program _____

Write and fax: United States Office, The American University of Paris
41 East 11th Street, Suite 404 New York, New York 10003-4602
Tel: (212) 477-4537 Fax: (212) 475-5249

- IMPORTANT IMMUNIZATION INFORMATION -

Before you pick up the phone and call us... ...PLEASE READ BELOW

Never received our Health Questionnaire packet in the mail?

If you have not received a Health Questionnaire, you still have 30 days to complete your immunization records. You can pick up the Health Questionnaire form at the University Health Services Medical Records Desk or at the Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00).

How much will it cost? Is it covered by my student insurance?

There is a $20 Nursing fee for these appointments. There is no charge for a Tetanus-Diphtheria booster. If you are a Massachusetts resident, there is no charge for an MMR (Measles, Mumps,& Rubella) booster. Out-of-state residents must pay a charge of $30 for an MMR (Measles, Mumps, & Rubella) booster. Your Basic Health Fee and Supplemental Insurance does not cover the cost of these clinics.

How do I get my immunization record?

You should contact your family doctor, your medical clinic from home, or your high school to complete your missing immunization requirements.

Can I get the needed shots at Health Services?

Health Services will be holding Immunization Clinics on Friday, September 24 and Friday, October 1. To make an appointment, call our main appointment desk at 549-2671 ext. 101 or ext. 102.

Will I be administratively withdrawn or be assessed a late fee?

All entering students must meet the state requirements for immunizations If you remain incomplete after the October 1 Immunization Clinic is held, you will be assessed a late fee fine of $25. Continued non-compliance will prevent you from registering for your next semester classes, and you may face administrative withdrawal from the University after the pre-registration period.

Other questions?

Come in to see us at the Health Services Health Questionnaire Office, Room 174 (Monday - Friday, 8:30 to 4:00) or call us at 549-2671 ext. 275. Please be patient with the phone...our lines get pretty busy.

University Health Services

It's not how you wear it, it's what you pay for it.

Up to 40% off, limited time only.

BICYCLE WORLD TOO

PEARL IZUMI · TREK USA · SHORTS · bellwether

Our Only Business is Bikes.
63 South Pleasant St. (rear); Amherst 253-7722
Behind Bonducci's

THE FIVE COLLEGE PROGRAM IN PEACE & WORLD SECURITY STUDIES

PAWSS

PRESENTS:

"IS PEACE POSSIBLE? THE PROSPECTS FOR ISRAELI-PALESTINIAN RECONCILIATION"

A LECTURE BY:

MICHAEL HUDSON
Georgetown University

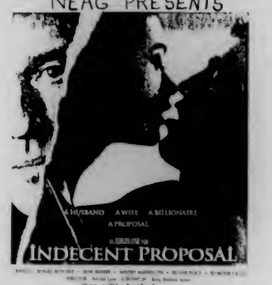
Wednesday, September 29th

2:30pm - 4:00pm
The New York Room, Mary Woolley Building
Mount Holyoke College

7:30pm
The West Lecture Hall, Franklin Patterson Building
Hampshire College

These events are free, open to the public, and wheelchair accessible.
For more information call PAWSS at 582-5519.

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON



JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS — By B. DEUTSCH

ATTENDANCE IS MANDITORY! IF'S HAVE TO BE HERE, YOU HAVE TO BE HERE.
AND AS LONG AS YOU'RE HERE, YOU MAY AS WELL PRETEND TO LISTEN— SPEAKING OF WHICH!
YOU THERE! THE GENTLEMAN WITH THE GRAY HAIR! THAT YOU'RE LADY IS NOT TEACHING THIS CLASS! SO WHY ARE YOU STARING AT HER?
WELL?
SUDDENLY THE BRAVE YOUNG STUDENT LEAPS UP AND KILLS THE PROFESSOR WITH ONE MIGHTY BLOW!
HA HA HA

Belly
AND
radiohead
WITH SPECIAL GUEST
theBats
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM 8PM
OCT. 5, 1993
TIX: $15 w/ UMass ID $17 all others
Tx available at Tx Unlimited (Student Union), For The Record, & Main Street Records
A UPC Production

BUD NIGHT TONIGHT
FREE T-SHIRTS, HATS, ETC. 9:00pm - MIDNIGHT
Sept. 29th
Charlies tavern since 1978
NEW HOURS FOR SPECIALS 8:00 - 10:00 P.M.
MONDAY - 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks TUESDAY - 10¢ Mild or Hot Buffalo Wings
WEDNESDAY - 25¢ Pizza Slices OR 1/4 # Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
THURSDAY - 10¢ Chicken Nuggets
DRINK SPECIALS!! DRINK SPECIALS!! DRINK SPECIALS!!
Pint Bottles of Golden Anniversary $1.50
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95
Kamikaze Shots - $1.75
Open 11 am - 1 am 7 days a week • kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street, Behind Old Town Bank, Amherst
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen T.V. • MC, VISA, AMEX Accepted • 549-5401

ATTENTION STUDENTS!!!
Do you...
...like to argue?
...enjoy defending your positions on issues?
...love to have a great time with interesting people?
Then come to the first meeting of the
UMASS DEBATE UNION
Wednesday, Sept. 29th at 6:00 pm
in Campus Center Room 905

Delivery to Southwest in 20-25 minutes
COLLEGE PIZZA
"Quality Is Our Business"
OPEN FOR LUNCH
Saturday and Sunday at 11:00 AM
Located at Patterson Corner of Southwest
We Now Deliver To:
Townhouse • Puffton • Brandywine • Gilreath • Hobart Lane
Slices: $1.00
SUBS Closest Location 549-6073
SALADS Hottest Pizza 549-6098
Fast Free Delivery
FALL SPECIAL
MUST MENTION THIS SPECIAL TO GET:
A Large Pizza with 1 or 2 Toppings $6.99
Large Cheese Pizza $5.99
A Small Pizza with 1 or 2 Toppings $4.50
A Small Cheese Pizza $3.50
Free Soda
with Large Sub, Salad or Spaghetti
All prices subject to 5% Mass Meal Tax recruiting

continued from page 16

mates, Tino Hunter, a 6-6 banger, who Francis ranks in his top 100.

Chris Herren, a 6-foot-3-inch guard from Fall River, Mass., and Durfee High School is also being pursued by the Minutemen. Herren is also considering Boston College, Wisconsin and Florida. He was being recruited by Kentucky, but Wildcat head coach Rick Pitino has backed off in favor of another guard.

"He has no weaknesses in his game," Francis said. "He may not be a pure point guard but he is a pure shooter. He's quick and terrific going to the hoop."

Francis names Herren as a top 15 or 20 player. Wallace has him in his top 15.

"He is a great player, who can play either guard spot," Wallace said. "He had a great summer and was named MVP of the Las Vegas AAU Tournament. He showed people a lot out in Vegas."

"I'd be surprised if he didn't go to BC," Francis said. "UMass is still in but I think he likes BC. If not Florida and Wisconsin are there also."

blindsided

continued from page 16

sense of gang warfare on the football field. It kind of made me all warm and fuzzy to see the brawl that unfolded with 20 seconds left in the half in its game against Colorado, resulting in the ejection of seven Miami players.

Miami proved its mettle as a team, however when they held on to beat the Buffs, who had five players thrown out, 35-29.

It must be said though that Colorado is suffering from the dreaded BLINDSIDED jinx. Since I praised the boys from Boulder two weeks ago, Bill McCartney's team has reeled off two straight losses.

WHAT THE THE HECK, WHY NOT DOUGHERTY? In 1985, Sports Illustrated touted little known Joe Dudek of tiny Division III Plymouth State College in New Hampshire for the most prestigious award in college football — the Heisman Trophy.

I know it's a pipe dream, but why not hype Robert Dougherty, the outstanding Doug Flutie-clone quarterback of Boston University. He's easily the most exciting player in the Northeast and besides Alcorn State QB Steve McNair, the best player on the Division I-AA level.

Alabama has its hands full this weekend when it takes on South Carolina in Columbia. Gamecock quarterback Steve Taneyhill has a flair for the dramatic, especially in the big games.

Collegian foreign correspondent Caleb Cochran is on special assignment at USC and gives his outlook on the big game. "The Cocks are definitely going to have their hands full with the Tide. Their defense will have to carry them through."

Look for Notre Dame big over Stanford this weekend. Bill Walsh and the Cardinal sidetracked the Irish on their quest for the National Championship last year by embarrassing them in South Bend.

The 1-2 QB tandem of Kevin McDougal and Paul Failla will lead the Irish offense over, around, and through a Cardinal D that's ranked 104 out of 106 Division I-A teams.

CELEBRITY PICK OF THE WEEK: Quaker Stater Brian "Papa G" Garber predicts a Penn State victory over Michigan next week. "Penn State is too much for them, they'll win 24-17."

It's more like Joe Paterno being too much for Gary Moeller, who can't coach his way out of a corner.

Sean P. Hayden is a Collegian columnist.

BE A TEACHER. BE A HERO.
Call 1-800-45-TEACH.

COMPUTERS
Recycled for our times.
Hundreds Available
Warranteed
IBM Brand
Model AT 286 2MB Ram 52 MB Drive 14" Color Monitor Keyboard - $550
Model AT 286 1MB Ram 20 MB Drive 14" Color Monitor Keyboard - $395
Model XT 8088 640K Ram 10 MB Drive 14" Color Monitor Keyboard - $310
Model 3270 8088 640K Ram 10 MB Drive 14" Color Monitor Keyboard - $275
Rentals Available Printers from $95
Call 253-7510

BASICALLY BICYCLES
QUALITY BICYCLES AT AFFORDABLE PRICES!
ATB & HYBRID BIKES $200 & Up
SAVE ON HELMETS, RACKS, LOCKS!
FREE DELIVERY ON NEW BIKES
80 AVENUE A • TURNER FALLS, MA
MC/VISA accepted
PHONE: 863-3556

Northhampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

EVERY WEDNESDAY
SETTIE
9:30 PM - 1 AM
All Menu Nachos Only $2
9:30 PM - 10:30 PM

THE PUB IN·AMHERST
25 YEARS
CELEBRATES
1968 • 1993
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Spectrum General Meeting Literary magazine seeks students to produce 1993-1994 publication. Staffs are art, poetry, prose, photography. Also seeking new treasurer, production editor, poetry editor. Those interested should bring informal resume to meeting 8pm Thurs 9/30 Room 165-169 Campus Center basement.

The Not Ready For BedtimePlayers, a safer sex, drugs and alcohol educational theatre troupe, will be holding an audition for men only on Wed. 9/29 at 7 pm in CC room 904. We are sex positive, GLB friendly and stress education. Being shameless and liking bananas are bonuses.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

Indecent Proposal at the CCA Sept. 30th 5 pm at $2.00 7,9,11 pm at $3.00 Sponsored by NEAG

Interested in a Wrestling Team? Like the thrill of systematically conquering an opponent until the ref slaps the mat? So do I! I'm looking for serious individuals to form a club team. Call Troy at 546-1613

UMass Theatre Guild General membership meeting. Wednesday, 9/29 at 7 pm in Earthfoods. NEW MEMBERS WELCOME! 777s 5-0415

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Chevy Nove II Californiacar 283 engine powerglide great body $4800 or B.O. 665-3630

1977 Chevy Van Good body, runs great, all weathertires, seats 8, $750 or B.O. 586-8366

1978 Olds Cutlass -- only 60 K miles. Must sell fast -- $250. 586-9416

1980 Buick Century Dark blue new tires. Great. Great winter car. $1000 or B/O Caroline at ACI 549-0701

Toyota Tercel 1980 runs very well. Many new parts 104,000 miles on engine. $1100 O/B/O 259-1850

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental 253-9742 Free Delivery

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Apple Imagewriter II like new all cord extra ribbon and paper $150 549-6708

Basically Bicycles Quality bikes for less 863-3555

Digital Step Machine in corner take inches off thighs. $90 549-4732 Donna

Motorcycle - 1980 - Honda CB400T almost completely restored. Runs perfect $500 or best 549-7605

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

Skis 139 CM Head Look 3D bindings Poles ladies size 7 boots ski bag 250.00 545-4187

RCA 14" Color TV 85.00 545-4187 Penncrest 14" Color TV Remote 50.00 545-4187

XLG Dorm Fridge $70 Call Joe 538-8689

FOUND

Glasses found about 3 weeks ago behind Wheeler. Prescription, with thin frames. 546-5365

HELP WANTED

Cruise Ships now hiring- earn up to $2000+/month + World Travel! Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

Greeks and Clubs RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK! For your fraternity, sorority, and club Plus $1000 for you self! And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling 1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

$$$ Looking for Entrepreneurs, set your own hours, work with established student-run company. Call Teo or Phil. 617-391-8439

Sales Help Wanted The Salvation Army Is opening a store In Amherst - please call Send Resume to Judith A. Fell 984 W. Columbus Ave Springfield, MA 01105

LOST

Address book, green 8X5", v. important Reward Call Nathan: 253-7646

Casio Digital Diary Computer pocket size lost around Mahar auditorium. Please return important tel. nos. lost! Call 546-7335

Lost my watch at Chucklehead Help! Joe 546-4408

Missing Tiger Kitten He wears a red bell collar Lost on Notting Ave. 549-1387

MUSICIANS

Drummer Wanted 549-1981

PERSONALS

Happy 21st Sharon!! Uptown legally - what a relief!! Love, your AA roommates

MIKEY Happy Belated 18th Birthday. Little Bro. Hope that you are enjoying your first year in college. Study hard! Love, Sharon

ROB HUSSEY I know this is late, but hope you had a great 20th birthday on Saturday! Love, Sharon

Spring Break 7 Nights from $299 Includes: Air, Hotel, Transfers, Parties and more! Nassau, Paradise Island Cancun, Jamaica, San Juan. Organize a small group -- earn a free trip plus commissions! 1-800-GET-SUN-1

SERVICES

Beat a Speeding Ticket Former Highway Patrolman tells how 1-800-377-4602

Factfinder Custom Library Research All subjects PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004 242-549-0312

Pregnant? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services: ALTER NATIVES 245 Main St Nhan. 586-2000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVCC Co-Op. Portugas home heating at co-operative prices near at OCHO. 428 Student homes at all 545-0865 SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM! Join TODAY!

SUPPORT UMASS BAND

Eat at Burger King? (Route 9) TONIGHT from 6:30 to 9:30 % of profits benefit UMass Marching band and other ensembles

WORD PROCESSING

Expert typing of your papers, quality printing, low rates. Call Christina 253-9702

Vollyball, tennis teams win yesterday. Stories on Thursday

Sports

Make or break time for Minuteman soccer

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Both the University of Massachusetts and the University of Hartford men's soccer programs were riding high last season and when the two teams met here at Richard F. Garber Field in a battle of New England powers with winning records, there was a stalemate: a 2-2 tie.

But today at 3:30 p.m. in Hartford, Conn., the Minutemen (2-5) and the Hawks (3-4) carry losing records into the clash, with both teams looking to salvage this season before it becomes a total wash.

One problem for UMass is its inability to score away from Garber Field, let alone win on the road. The Minutemen have only scored one goal outside the friendly confines of the Hill, that being senior Randy Jacobs' meaningless strike in a 5-1 loss to the University of New Hampshire.

"We're not focused on the road so far this season," said UMass assistant coach Rob Donnenwirth, "and that has been a problem."

Sophomore midfielder Brad Miller agreed with Donnenwirth on the team's problems on the road.

"We are struggling on the road," Miller said. "We have not been mentally prepared."

Before the season began, it was expected that the balanced offense of the Minutemen would be able to keep the team in every one of its games.

Entering today's game with the Hawks, UMass only has five players who have tallied a goal, and four of them were in one game. For the entire 1992 season, UMass had 12 goal scorers.

Because of this balance last year, opponents were not able to key on Jacobs, the first scoring option for the Minutemen. This season, however, Jacobs has been held to three goals, and he is tied for the team lead with freshman Dave Siljanovski, whose hat trick in the 6-0 shellacking of Rhode Island accounts for his total.

Senior Justin Edelman and sophomore Colin Johnson, last season's second and third leading scorers, respectively, have been shutout so far. Jacobs and Siljanovski are the only two Minutemen to have more than one goal.

Despite all of the troubles UMass has had on the road, though, hopes of making the NCAA tournament are not dashed, mainly because of the automatic bid the Atlantic 10 tournament champion receives.

So now UMass must focus on the A-10 race, in which they stand tied for second with three other teams at 1-1. Rutgers sits alone in first, undefeated in the conference at 4-0. After today's battle with the Hawks, UMass' A-10 schedule reaches a crucial point: this weekend's trip to Philadelphia to face St. Joseph's and Temple.

Between the pipes: According to Donnenwirth, the Minutemen are looking healthier and in better shape now than they have been all season.

Starting keeper Mark Wolf is fully recovered from an injury that kept him out of three games, and Edelman is coming back from a leg injury that sidelined him for one game.

STEVEN PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN
Sophomore back Dan Chagnon and the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team looks to stop the bleeding when it travels to Hartford today to take on the Hawks.

Challenge awaits field hockey at Northeastern

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The number six field hockey team in the country, the University of Massachusetts, gets set to do battle with No. 11 Northeastern today at 3:30 p.m. in Boston.

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The No. 6 nationally-ranked University of Massachusetts field hockey team (6-1) takes its six-game winning streak on the road this afternoon as the Minutewomen travel to Boston to play No. 11 Northeastern University (4-4).

NU field hockey is a program on the rise. The Huskies are a young team with only three seniors. Denise Nasca, the leading NU scorer, is only a freshman. They upset No. 7 Maryland and have played strong games against No. 5 Northwestern and No. 8 James Madison.

"It will take a total effort to beat Northeastern. The biggest thing for us is to play hard and compete as a team," said UMass coach Pam Hixon. "They are a better overall team than their record shows."

To beat the Huskies, the Minutewoman offense will have to continue its torrid pace. Senior Tara Jelley (7 goals) and junior Natalie Hart (6 goals, 3 assists) have been strong for the Minutewomen so far, but they will have to solve NU freshman goalkeeper Danielle Butsch who has been the backbone of a very talented Northeastern defense.

UMass will counter with a freshman goalie of their own, Hilary Rose has five shutouts and an impressive 0.29 goals against average, earning her the second Atlantic 10 Defensive Player of the Week award of her young career. Rose has emerged as the early favorite for A-10 Rookie of the Year.

Hixon said that she expects quite a challenge from Northeastern this afternoon.

"I think they're better than Northwestern. I certainly think they're better than any of the opponents that we've faced so far," Hixon said.

"We really haven't been tested on defense, and I know it will happen today. We're looking to play a total-team swarming kind of defense against Northeastern," Hixon said.

Hixon said that the team has resisted the temptation to look ahead to Saturday's match-up with No. 2 Old Dominion.

"We've only talked about Northeastern and only dealt with the tactics surrounding Northeastern. We have to focus on the job we need to do today," said Hixon.

"It will be a real test of our character. We've got to play together as a team from start to finish."

Recruiting quality not quantity

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Last fall the University of Massachusetts basketball team convinced a bumber crop of high school talent to sign letters of intent, largely because head coach John Calipari was able to promise starting positions and plenty of playing time.

This fall, with a young (no seniors) and deep team, Calipari is at the other end of the stick and his recruiting, last year at breakneck speed, is in a much slower gear. However, the players Calipari is closing in on, represent quality, and top of the line quality, not quantity (UMass has only two scholarships available).

UMass is still in the running for Dan Fortson, a 6-foot-9-inch power forward from Glenshaws, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh. Fortson is considered one of the top 10-15 high school players in the nation and is also considering Cincinnati, Michigan, Wisconsin and Duquesne.

"I think he's top 10," said Clark Francis, editor of Hoop Scoop magazine. "He is a force. He's big, strong and has the best drop step in the class. He is also a good rebounder. Right now he can score 25 points and grab 15 boards against anyone at the high school level and I don't see why that would change in college."

Chris Wallace, a scout for the Miami Heat and editor of Blue Ribbon Basketball said, "He has great size and a tremendous touch around the rim. He's top 10 or top 15 in the country. He'll step in at the college level and make an impact from the start."

Calipari, who grew up in Pittsburgh and was an assistant at the University of Pittsburgh, is reportedly close with Fortson's AAU coach J.R. Stright. Francis says Stright will have a major influence on where Fortson will sign. Cincinnati head coach Bob Huggins is also friends with Stright.

"I think J.R. will be the guy to decide where Dan is going," Francis said. "He'll make the decisions. Sometimes it's a parent, sometimes it's a high school coach and sometimes it's an AAU guy. In this case J.R. is close with Cal but also tight with Huggins. That's why they are the favorites right now. Dan will go to one of those schools."

Fortson said he is not ready to commit but likes the UMass coaching staff and its style of play.

"I think UMass would be good for me," Fortson said. "They have some great players up there and I like the Atlantic 10."

UMass is also recruiting one of Fortson's AAU team-

Turn to RECRUITING, page 15

Jinx beats Buffs twice as do 'Canes

BLINDSIDED
Sean Hayden on College Football

As near as three weeks ago, executives at ABC were drooling at the prospect of having a contest with major bowl ramifications between two Eastern football powers on their network this Saturday when Boston College collides with Syracuse.

Not.

What was originally a match-up of the two teams who would supplant the Miami Hurricanes as the Beast of the East has quickly turned into a game nooobody cares about except the Heisman hypers who will have their eyes on Orangeman quarterback Marvin Graves.

Speaking of the Hurricanes, it was nice to see the Bad Boys of college ball haven't lost their

Turn to BLINDSIDED, page 15

UMass grabs a transfer football player from Colorado Page 12

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

57° Thursday
September 30, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 16

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Up, up and away!

CHRISTOPHER EVANS / COLLEGIAN
A pair of National Guard helicopters leave the field next to Alumni Stadium after dropping off ROTC cadets from an overnight training exercise.

Weld to outlaw assault weapons

By KEN GUGGENHEIM
Associated Press

BOSTON — Gov. William F. Weld, who as a candidate opposed banning assault weapons, reversed himself Wednesday and proposed legislation to outlaw them.

The ban was part of a sweeping gun control proposal aimed at making it tougher for youths to get guns. It also includes a state version of the Brady Bill, requiring a five-day wait for the purchase of handguns.

At a Statehouse news conference, Weld said he changed his view because crime has worsened since he ran for office in 1990.

"We've had three years of escalating random violence in the streets of Boston and other cities in Massachusetts," he said. "This can't be permitted to continue."

The Republican governor denied suggestions that his reversal was politically motivated, saying he was "influenced by a changing reality." Weld's proposal was applauded by gun control advocate James Brady, who was in Massachusetts Wednesday.

But Weld's proposal was attacked by the Gun Owners Action League, which endorsed Weld, an avid hunter, three years ago.

Its executive director Michael Yacino, said Weld's proposal will punish law-abiding gun owners and do nothing to stop crime.

Yeltsin issues his ultimatum

Tells parliament to leave or suffer; hard-liners dig in

By DEBORAH SEWARD
Associated Press

MOSCOW — The government gave increasingly isolated lawmakers five days to leave the parliament building or "face the consequences" Wednesday. Besieged hard-liners vowed to hold out.

The government kept up a tight cordon of razor-wire, guns, and thousands of armed riot police and troops around the building. The hard liners showed no signs of surrendering, and the government's ultimatum threatened to paint Yeltsin into a corner of his own.

The government didn't spell out what it meant by "serious consequences," but it will be expected to do something if the lawmakers continue to hold out past Monday. Foreign Minister Andrei B. Kozyrev offered fresh assurances Wednesday that force would not be used in the showdown, but Yeltsin may ultimately have no other option.

For a second straight night, police with rubber batons clashed with hundreds of people who tried to demonstrate in support of parliament. Protesters threw bottles at police. One lawmaker was injured.

The week-long standoff claimed its third fatality, when a traffic policeman died of injuries suffered when he was pushed in front of a car by anti-government protesters during a clash Tuesday with police.

People seemed tired of the long political struggle that has pitted Yeltsin against parliament for 18 months.

"We're fed up," said Otto Latsis, political commentator for the newspaper Izvestia.

President Boris Yeltsin met in the Kremlin with his top advisors.

Later, the government bluntly warned the rebels' leaders — Vice President Alexander Rutskoi and parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov — that they would bear all responsibility in the assurances Wednesday that force would not be used in the showdown. He spoke during a visit to the United Nations in New York.

Police on Tuesday had given lawmakers until Wednesday to surrender their weapons and leave the building. The deadline passed without incident.

The threat of armed conflict has caused concern among world leaders who have voiced strong support for Yeltsin, and the ongoing standoff also poses risks for the president by making him appear weak and indecisive.

When Yeltsin dissolved parliament last week, 629 deputies rushed to the White House for an emergency session. On Wednesday, only about 100 remained.

Many carried sidearms. Some of the lawmakers and their volunteer defenders were seen drinking heavily, although the alcohol seemed to be running out.

They remained defiant, and lawmakers told journalists Wednesday that 100,000 supporters will soon be marching on the White House to rescue them.

Khasbulatov has said he will fight to the end. White House defenders claim the grounds have been mined to prevent attack.

Inside, a few hundred volunteer defenders continue to patrol the parliament building. Weapons are constantly in view. A sniper's nest has been established on the roof of the riverfront building.

Yeltsin trucked in special red-beret paratroopers late Tuesday to beef up the riot police deployed round-the-clock outside parliament. Snow and rain drenched Moscow as police stopped anyone entering the building.

Writer looks into gay life in Buffalo

By MARNI HELFNER
Collegian Staff

Elizabeth Lapovsky Kennedy looks into the lives of the working class lesbian community of the 1940s and 1950s in Buffalo, New York. Her novel gives an in-depth look into how an ethnic study was constructed over a 14-year period with 45 different narrators.

Kennedy was the lecturer in the third of the gay, lesbian and bisexual studies brown bag lunch series. She co-authored the book, Boots of Leather, Slippers of Gold, and lectured participants on "Constructing an Ethnohistory of the Buffalo Lesbian Community: reflexivity, dialogue, and politics."

Kennedy said she was more interested in "writing an analysis of the community's history and culture rather than compile a collection of reminices; not only individual lives and voices were missing from history it seemed to us, but also an understanding of common cultures, concerted actions, and consciousness of kind."

In looking for narrators within the community they found that "lesbian or gay communities are about networking."

One of the most important and controversial points Kennedy discussed was "lesbian history needs to be directed by lesbians."

She compared the documentation of lesbian history to that of the documentation of African-American history.

"It was fascinating . . . I was really interested in the way she said to think about common similarities that she had with the subject, being con-

Turn to LECTURE page 7

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN
Dr. Elizabeth Laporsky Kennedy discusses her book on lesbian lifestyles in Buffalo at the LGBA's third brown bag lecture of the year.

Boltwood teaches life lessons

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

The Boltwood Project is more to a student than just a ten week program. Although a student can receive one to two credits for writing an essay once a week, the Boltwood Project teaches you something more than human development and growth.

It teaches you how to reach out to people that normally you would never meet.

The Boltwood Project was formed in 1970 by a group of Amherst College students that now spans the entire five college area. It is a program that is designed to utilize undergraduate and graduate student volunteers as providers of aid and leisure activities to the mentally and physically challenged, the elderly, and homeless adults and children.

"It is the most fulfilling experience you could possibly have in the ways of coming to contact with people," said Bari Zell, a senior Assistant Coordinator that works with 30-60 year-old mentally and physically challenged people.

The group outreaches to other areas of the community including Jesse's House, Farren Care Center, the New Medical Facility, and the Belchertown State School, meals on wheels, food drives and Large Group Residences for terminal care patients.

"It is a rewarding, enjoyable feeling to be able to brighten a child's day, and they like us to be there. They look forward to it, and so do I," said Reid Wagner, a senior sociology major, in charge of Feelye Street, a program for children of parents in drug rehabilitation. This is his fourth semester with the project.

The group meets once a week for about three hours and each group member is required to enter a page into a reactionary journal, and others write short essays. At the end of the ten weeks, on the basis of attendance, a group member is graded by a coordinator, and given a grade and one or two credits. The group gives a student an opportunity to be involved in a project that is both fun and challenging.

"Even though someone is different that you, or has an ailment, they are still human beings, and should be treated as such," said Howie Wizwer, the head coordinator for the Boltwood Project, and a member for three years.

"I think of it as my study break," said Jody Slotnick, a third semester coordinator. "It is soothing and is an alternative means for me; it is absolute personal fulfillment that changes you."

A fundraiser at Alpha Epsilon Pi will be held on November 13. Entrance is $2.00 and all proceeds go to benefit the Boltwood Project.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-3500

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan I. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanirz
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlew
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-3500

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

THE NEWMAN CENTER WELCOMES YOU !

LORD'S DAY MASSES:
Saturday : 4:30 pm
Sunday: 8:00 am, 9:30 am, 11:00 am and 7:00 pm

DAILY MASSES:
Monday - Friday : 12:15 pm and 5:15 pm
Saturday: 9:00 am

SACRAMENT of RECONCILIATION:
Saturday: 3:00 to 4:00 pm or upon request.

The Newman Center is located at 472 North Pleasant Street in Amherst, MA 01002, and is open daily from 8:00 am until 10:00 pm.

Paraplegic charged in heist

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — Authorities arrested a paraplegic man Wednesday and charged him with robbing a bank in a wheelchair.

The suspect, Anthony C. Garafolo, 33, of Holyoke, robbed the same bank three years ago and later suffered a gun wound from the owner of a liquor store during a heist. The back wound paralyzed him from the waist down.

But Garafolo's lawyer, Rudolph Brothers, said his client "vehemently denies" involvement in the latest robbery.

Garafolo, who was not allowed to attend his arraignment, was charged in Springfield District Court with unarmed robbery. He let his lawyer enter a plea of innocent to the charge, which could carry a maximum prison term of 20 years. He was held on $100,000 bail.

Correction

The story in Tuesday's Collegian on the open house at the Program for GLB Concerns incorrectly grouped the program and the LBGA under the heading of the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Association (GLBA). No such group exists.

The comic strip "Psychic Eyes" will be running on Thursdays. This week's strip was printed in yesterday's paper. The Collegian regrets the errors.

Also in Tuesday's Collegian, Student Government Association President David Nuñez was quoted as saying the LBGA does not have multiculturalism. Nuñez said he did not mean the statement and retracts it.

Syracuse University
Division of International Programs Abroad
119 Euclid Avenue
Syracuse, New York 13244-4170
1-800-235-3472

DIPA

SYRACUSE ABROAD
Something to write home about!

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE

- Programs in Africa, Australia, Belgium, Czech Republic, England, France, Germany, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Poland, and Spain
- Prior foreign language not always necessary
- SU credit
- Field trips/traveling seminars
- Internships
- Study for a semester, a year, or a summer
- Home or limited apartment placements

SHOWCASE
COMICS • GAMES • CARDS

AMHERST
Phone 253-2000
48 North Pleasant Street
Downtown
under D'Angelos Subs

HADLEY
Phone 586-8711
Hampshire Mall
Route 9
next to movie theatre

it's not just a shop...

...it's an adventure!

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS

If you are new or returning and still don't know where to go...

IDB CAN HELP ANSWER QUESTIONS ABOUT:

- Daily Events
- Where to access your Academic Records
- Pool Schedules
- University Honors Program
- Meal Plan Options & Exemptions
- Finding/Changing your Academic Advisor

We are located in the lobby on the 2nd. floor of the Whitmore Building.
Our phone number is 545-1555.

Local News

News from other "U's"

compiled by Dan Wetzel

The plane truth

Kent State University officials and the FBI are scratching their collective heads over the recent theft of a university plane.

The Daily Kent Stater reports that a 1984 Cessna 172 airplane was stolen from the KSU airport on Aug. 10 and has not been seen since. The plane had been locked up but apparently the thief was able to fly away sometime in the early morning hours of the 10th.

"It (the airplane) could have been taken without a key," Kevin Hart, chief flight instructor at the airport, said. "You would compare it to hotwiring a car. They could've pulled the poop through by hand."

The estimated price of the plane is about $57,000. There was no comment about who could have stolen the plane, something I figure to not be an easy task, and where they may have flown it to.

Nickel Beer

Perusing through a copy of The Daily Texan, an advertisement reading "Nickle Beer" and listing a phone number stood out.

The number lead me to the Dessau Dance Hall and manager, and my new friend, Tom West. The Dessau is named after a town in Germany and is located about 12-15 miles outside of the University of Texas.

On Thursday's the roadhouse caters to UT students by selling 10 oz. Coors Lights for only a nickel. That's right, a mere five cents.

"We get a lot of students every Thursday," West said. "It's a gimmick to bring kids in. We're kind of out in the country."

West insists he makes a profit on that night, mainly because of the three dollar cover charge and people buying bottled beers and wine coolers.

"It's a good night for us," West said. "We like getting the college kids in and having some fun."

The Dessau was opened in 1867 and this is no country bumpkin roadhouse. The Dessau has brought in a virtual who's who of music over the years to play there. Elvis came twice and Bob Willis and the Texas Playboys, Glen Miller and Tommy Dorsey have all also played the Dessau.

West is a good fellow, easily the nicest guy (and only) I ever met from Texas.

"How you hear about us up in Massachusetts?" he asked.

"Nothing can slip by 'News from other U's,'" I told him.

While plans to franchise in Amherst are not currently underway, do not completely rule it out. In the meantime if you want a beer for a nickel and you're in Austin, stop by the Dessau. Ask for Tom, and tell him Dan sent you. He might even give you a break on the cover.

No teeny-weenie

Hot dog, they've got a controversy cooking down in Milledgeville, Ga. and no solution seems to be able to cut the mustard.

The problem is the town's people do not seem to relish the idea of a new giant hot dog statue, created by a Georgia College art student, being placed directly across the street from Milledgeville's historical district.

Kenny Williams, the artist, created the the 15-foot high, concrete hot dog for a show last year. When he was unable to sell it, he donated it to the college and it wound up in the historical district. There was no word on why someone would ever sculpt a hot dog.

"It's out of place, gross. I think they should move it to a junkyard," said resident Bill Williamson.

"It has nothing to do with the historic district," said Vera Bell, who lives in the shadow of the dog. "I could think of a lot of prettier things they could have put over there."

However, some defend the hot dog. "[The hot dog] adds charm and character," said Pat Topping, vice president of the Milledgeville County Chamber of Commerce. "I think we need to get the other food groups represented there."

If that happened, there certainly would be a bone to pick, so beefore it gets to corny down there, lettuce hope the parties involved meat together and solve the problem.

Editor's note: I do not make this stuff up.

MassPIRG sets year's goals

Student group holds first meeting, organizes events

By CHRISTINA LEVERE
Collegian Correspondent

MassPIRG (Massachusetts Students Public Interest Group) held its first meeting to draw students in and help make its goals known for the upcoming year.

MassPIRG currently has chapters on 27 Massachusetts college campuses and 30 statewide. Although it is a national network, MassPIRG is still concerned with getting its message across.

In order to accomplish this, MassPIRG has organized a number of events for students interested in protecting the environment and helping to end hunger and homelessness.

Some of these events include a Hunger and Homelessness Week, canned food drives, a Grassroots Network Day, and a National Sleepout. A member said these activities are intended to educate those not involved and also to help MassPIRG branch out and draw in more members.

MassPIRG currently has organized petitions to get their voices heard but organizers said it is difficult fighting against powerful competitors.

Companies using their money to quiet those with different opinions on waste disposal and energy use are tough to fight but organizers said they are convinced that with enough people power they will be able to combat these companies.

Another fight MassPIRG is battling is the destruction of the rainforests. Only five to ten percent of the ancient forests are left and soon President Clinton will decide what to do with these remaining few.

Organizers said they hope letters and petitions will help Clinton decide to save them from destruction. Of the five to 10 million species currently inhabiting these forests, one species becomes extinct every day.

Member Margie Alt had a few words to share with the group. She stressed the importance of communication among all people in today's society.

Alt also said we need an increase in the amount of attention given to worldwide epidemics: hunger, misuse of government power, homelessness, overuse of energy and the need for its conservation, ignorance, apathy and lack of education.

She said many are so concerned with their own life that they forget to participate in other's lives, they forget how to make a difference.

Alt said it is important to educate people of all ages, no matter how young or old because it is everyone's responsibility to make the world a better place.

Respite from the rain

MATT KAHN/ COLLEGIAN

Aliva Lymari, a junior finance major, gains brief shelter from Monday's rain as she pases through the Southwest tunnel.

Speaker remembers Indians

By PAUL HAYES
Collegian Correspondant

The first of three lectures to be given by Howard R. Lamar on the American West was presented Wednesday night at Amherst College on the American Indians.

After an extravagant introduction by Marty Santweiss (a member of the Amherst College faculty), Lamar remarked on the Pequod Indians' (who own a gambling establishment in Connnecticut) reluctance to help lure a National Football League team to Connecticut.

"A group of investors trying to lure the New England Patriots to Connecticut asked the Pequod to help . . . Needless to say, they declined," Lamar said, inferring their reluctance had to do with the franchise being named after the Pequod's persecutors.

Once he got into the lecture, though, it was all business. He brought up very many interesting issues, including the fact that Native Americans were not one culture, but rather that "Indians" was a name for many diverse and seperate cultures.

He also brought up the point that Indians, while thought of as savages, were actually traders. Some were quite friendly with or disliked by whites, but others disregarded the whites as useless just as the whites disregarded them. He closed the lecture by pointing to the Indian population in Texas.

In 1900 it was taken at only 1,000; in 1990 it had jumped to 66,000. To dwarf that statistic, a recent survey shows that over 12,000 people of Indian descent live in the Dallas area alone. A fact that, as he said, "Makes it both so promising, and so tragic".

After the lecture, when asked if he thought the Indian would ever again be large enough to be thought of as a national minority and thought of in national demographics again, he said they would not.

"But the sheer fact that they continue to keep and practice their culture in the face of adversity shows incredible persistence, Lamar added. "They've been through so many hardships, and yet they haven't let themselves be conquered."

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Howard R. Lamar

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Twenty-something angst

Twenty-something. As of Monday I have kissed my teen years good-bye. Forever lost in the sea of time are those years of innocence never to return again. I will never again be a teenager. I will never again be able to say to someone "Leave me alone. I'm only nineteen. What do I know?"

Adam Scott
ROBERTS

Birthdays used to be something to look forward to. When I was 16 I got my license. When I was 18 I got to vote in my first presidential election. Now I'm only 20 — not 21. So basically, I'm stuck between a rock and a hard place.

Being twenty has some meaning. Two decades wow that sounds like a lot. I've been climbing a giant staircase where each step was a year in my life and now that I have reached 20, I have reached a landing.

At this landing I am learning to really make decisions on my own. Some may be good and some may be bad, but the key is they are my own. If I want to explore and be adventurous, so be it. I'm allowed. I'm in control and I'm a big boy.

Recently, one of my closest friends and I have been having some tension. I couldn't figure out why. I even went as far as to tell her that I thought she liked me. Although she said "You have some ego." I was still convinced that sexual tension had come between us.

But it wasn't until my birthday that I realized the root of our troubles. She and I are both maturing, our views are changing; we are changing. That is life.

So, when she said to me "You've changed, I like the old Adam better," it made me think: "Who was the old Adam, and who is the new Adam?"

I started to examine how my life has changed since my final year as a teen to the time I entered the twilight zone. I have changed. I have matured. Maturity comes with age, supposedly. Being part of that twenty-something generation I feel a new found sense of security and maturity. "I'm 20, so stand back." But I still feel like a kid, yet in all reality I am not nor will I ever be again.

Because of my rocky relationship with this woman I've realized both of us have grown up since we met last year in the dorms. Both of our lives have pretty much run along the same track and occasionally our paths have crossed and met. My drive to succeed has come in contact with her drive to succeed — and that is part of life.

I can no longer complain to a friend, "Why can't my friendship with this woman be just peachy keen like on Melrose Place?" I have answered my own question. Because Melrose Place is TV land and all fantasy. This is real life and things won't always be perfect. So, it took a year to grow up and lot of new found wisdom to help me along. Being twenty-something brings new meaning to the new ASR.

As for my close friend and our friction, the earthquake has stopped shaking and we are both ready to take our friendship to the next level in our twenty-something years to come.

By the way, 361 days until I'm legal!

Adam Scott Roberts is a Collegian columnist.

Holidays aren't respected

Well, it happened again. For the third year in a row, I am behind in my classes by the third week of school. I've spent every night of the last week and a half trying to catch up and trying not to fall farther behind. I'm just about there, but now I'm almost too exhausted to attend my classes. And it's way too early in the semester for me to be this stressed about school work. I try not to be a basket case until after Columbus Day weekend.

Stephanie
EISENBERG

Nevertheless, I am behind and the reason is not too much late night partying on school nights. Nor is it that I haven't been attending my classes in pursuit of catching up with my soap operas. But a week and a half ago I chose to go home for Rosh Hashanah, the second highest holy day of the Jewish year, and in doing so, I missed three days of classes. I am grateful that Yom Kippur, the highest holy day of the Jewish year, fell on a Saturday this year, otherwise I would have had to miss even more classes.

When I informed my professors I would be missing my classes, they were all extremely understanding. No one gave me a hard time. They just explained that I would be responsible for all the work I had missed, but that my absence was a "legally excused" one. While that's all fine and dandy, their responses did me no good.

That's not their fault, they were just following university policy. I guess I should feel lucky that the university grants me a legally excused absence for the highest holy days of my religion. But I don't. Rather I am upset and outraged.

Here at UMass, you can get a legally excused absence for just about anything. My freshman year I was excused from a final because I told the professor that my iguana had died the night before in a tragic accident. So basically for the Jewish high holidays, I skipped classes and was not directly penalized for it, yet I still suffered the consequences.

All my professors told me to get the notes from someone else and to make up the work I had missed. Well, I like the way I take notes, I specifically never miss any of my classes so when it comes time for a paper or an exam, I know that I have good notes to refer to. I also learn a lot from attending the lectures. Are my professors going to give me a private lecture?

A month from now when a topic comes up on the exam that the person who I copied the notes from forgot to right down, am I going to get credit for that day because I had a "legally excused" absence? Of course not, even the most understanding professor would laugh at me.

The university feels that the phrase "legally excused absence" should reassure students that the university is looking out for them. Perhaps in my freshman year at the peak of my naivete it did. Now I see it for what it is, nothing. Jewish students at UMass suffer if they take off for the holidays, and the University blankets that with the phrase "legally excused absence." I have many friends who didn't go home for the holidays because they knew what would happen if they missed their classes. I think that's a shame.

For me, attending classes on the high holidays is similar to other students attending classes on Christmas. On Christmas, I have no plans. I usually go see a movie (half price, no lines, and choice seating!). Obviously, we would never have classes on Christmas, and I don't think we should. But the University should make an attempt to honor the Jewish holidays as well.

Every year for Christmas, we get more than just one or two days off, but over five weeks. Winter break starts four or five days before Christmas and drags on until the end of January. For most students, this seems like an eternity anyway. I don't think anyone would notice if three days (just three!) were taken from that break and were used to close the University on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. It is ridiculous that the University has a five and a half week winter break yet it can't find three days in the entire calendar to honor the Jewish holidays. I find it very disrespectful and rather insulting. And I know I'm not the only one.

I would love to write more on this topic, I have much unexpressed anger and hurt. But unfortunately, my time to write is quite limited today . . . I have way too much work to catch up on.

Stephanie Eisenberg is a Collegian columnist.

There is no pain in being liberal

Don't accuse me of being "unconstitutional" when I comment on how insulting some of those anti-liberal articles are to me. Two writers have gotten on my bad side: Michael Morrissey and A.J. Stewart. I understand this is a free country, and even narrow-minded Republicans are allowed to speak their minds. Being liberal is being open-minded and concerned with our surroundings.

I am not saying that by being conservative you don't care about society, and I am not advertising liberalism either, but there is no "pain", as Morrissey put it [Collegian, Sept. 17], in being a Democrat. We just choose wisely.

Lorraine Urbanski
Orchard Hill

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

What is the purpose of life? It is to live. I know it's pretty simple but that is what the purpose of life is so leave it alone.

Think of all the questions people ask you every day. Okay, enough thinking, come back and read me again. The point is people ask so many questions. How many dumb questions are you asked everyday?

Well that was a dumb question, so count it as number one. I'll answer my own question. Millions. Millions of dumb questions skim the edges of my ears everyday. They never seem to get any farther than that, but they never go away either.

Lets all protest dumb questions. Hold hands with your neighbor and scream, "No more dumb questions!" at the top of your lungs. Now didn't that feel good? That was not a dumb question.

A friend, God, asked me if I ever notice when I am asked a question and I say "huh?" or "what?" and then proceed to answer the same question I questioned. That process is called "thought digestion." That is when you are digesting what someone asked and you are pausing to respond with a semi-intelligent answer.

This leads to the conclusion that yelling shall now be referred to as "thought-puking." Kind of a vivid concept.

This whole process is not due to a lack of hearing nor dying brain cells, in fact it is very normal for overworked college students so there is no need to see a doctor.

Stacy
MALONE

Relax, if you suffer from this condition you'll be fine. And if you are the friend or relative of someone who suffers from "thought digestion," whisper "Italian, thousand island, or vinagrette" every time they say "huh?" or "what?" I promise it will drive them crazy.

I went to a rally the other day. There weren't many people there, but I did get a free button. Actually I lost my focus on the speakers once I got the button, but the button was great.

Later on that day I tried to pin it to my knapsack, but it stuck into my finger really hard. It stuck me good. I bet someone was laughing at me. The lessons are: you don't get something for nothing and people laugh whenever you are in pain.

An "Unawareness Week," what do you think of that? A friend of mine suggested a week where we all try to be unaware of the differences between us.

This whole week would be dedicated to just acting like human beings and treating others as human beings. I think that's a great idea, but pretty unrealistic. Personally I think differences are what make us all beautiful, but then again I believe in free love, too.

"Sign the Petition." Have you seen that neon sign all over campus. I didn't until it was pointed out to me, but now I can't not see it. What the hell is all that about anyway?

I say, no don't sign it. Not because I don't agree with the petition (in fact I don't even know what the petition is or even if there really is a petition) but because I just want everyone to be a rebel.

I DARE you.

Slap huge stickers on trees, leave thousands of posters with an Earth on them outside where they can run free, interrupt classrooms to recruit for your organization, waste lots and lots of paper but tell everyone else to conserve — join MassPIRG.

Recently someone said it was great that I admit I like the Grateful Dead. I automatically blurted out, "Well, I didn't inhale." Talk about socialization.

Stacy Malone is a Collegian columnist.

How to make a fool out of yourself and amuse others

I humor myself.

This is my reply when I find something humorous and bust out laughing only to realize that I am the only one who thought it was funny. For some reason, it happens to me quite a bit. The looks I get when this occurs? Looks of disgust, nausea, and revolt. How do I react to the looks? It makes me laugh.

Does this expose a demented, delirious, silly sense of humor? Maybe. I guess I am just a helpless lad who laughs entirely too much.

Seemingly laughing at anything and everything is really not a bad characteristic to possess (unless, of course, it offends or affronts a person who is bigger and stronger than I am). I am the guy who my friends come to with humorous punch lines because they know they can count on me to find it witty.

There are those things that my friends and I do that are amusing only to us. If someone sees us laughing after one of our ridiculous episodes, they are annoyed by our actions and stare at us in dismay.

Here are four examples of how my friends and I stay amused when boredom begins to set in. These are things that my friends and I have used recently, and I hope they can accommodate you, too.

Andrew
BRYCE

Looking through the peephole on your door — little did the person who created the peephole realize how truly entertaining this could be. Get one of your friends to look through the peephole as you go out in front of the door. You then precede to make faces in the peephole, much to the amusement of the person looking out. The key for non-stop laughter is to get close to the peephole, thus creating a distorted look of your face. It can provide hours upon hours of entertainment, and all you need is two people and a peephole to do it.

Riding the elevator — You are on the elevator, and it is packed with people. You are then faced with an awkward silence. For this one, it is best to stand right in front of the elevator door. Try to shake things up a bit. Turn 180 degrees so that you are facing everybody, gaze at all in front of you, and bust out laughing. Remain laughing until you reach your floor. This is the kind of thing that really ticks people off, yet try it anyway.

Bob — If you watch a television show on any local station, you are bound to see the illustrious Bob from Bob's Mattress Discounters. This is always good for a laugh. The guy just goes off. Even more amusing would be to round up a group of people to visit one of his stores and actually meet the infamous Bob. After all, you would definitely be able to find one of the stores because, as Bob says, his chain of stores "keeps growing, and growing, and growing, and growing, and growing...COME ON DOWN!"

Ice Ice Baby — You are sitting in your room, and you and your friends are bored to death. The solution. Just slip in the Vanilla Ice CD "To the Extreme" and you create joyous amusement. That is, of course, assuming that you, like myself, have the CD. But of course you do.

Are these ideas obnoxious, silly, and despicable? Definitely. But are they also harmless? If done the proper way, yes. Try 'em.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian staff member.

Health services won't be ready

Death, as if I wanted to die, as I sat, coughing, sneezing, blowing my nose and wiping my eyes for more than four hours. I sat with over fifty other students all sick like myself, most who would never even see a doctor. It was at what UMass calls Health Services, it was last year and it was during the cold season.

Mike
EINHORN

A cold season not even recognized by the University, while attendance dropped by half or more than half in all of my classes, and this is no exaggeration, and most of the people who did attend were sick as well.

From missing papers and exams to missing mom's homemade soup, it was two weeks where people went home instead of class and went to bed instead of dinner. It will be repeated as temperatures drop again this winter when the fierce cold cuts off roadways and pathways, bites into the faces of each and every one of us, and forces us to look down as the wind whistles around our crispy red ears. And the cold season begins as a wave of flu-fever creeps maliciously onto campus.

Now as a few of us are getting over the initial coming-back-to-college cold, I think we should consider the coming winter and the coming cold season, a season which will probably be even worse with increased enrollment and two more towers opened in Southwest.

As we catch the inevitable flu-fever that crosses campus like an unquenchable inferno, reaching every floor of every dorm, and making us so sick we can't even go to class, Health Services will not be ready. They will not be ready as students fill their waiting rooms and an appointment with a doctor is a three week wait.

They won't be ready as many students are turned away by the wait or simply because they heard about the three hour minimum sit on the floor, with a hundred thousand coughing, sneezing kids.

They won't be ready, I personally guarantee it, as a friend of mine spent three hours there just this past week, but she said they moved her around. With a skeleton crew for a staff and an over-stuffed budget, there will once again be the over-stressed, humorless Triage nurse taking names she would not call for hours. She would be calling names of students who could not endure the wait, like a Tuesday/ Thursday economics class, as the earth cools and the sun begins to go supernova, "Einhorn . . . Einhorn?"

Cold season will return to UMass and it will be just as ruthless as last year. Unforgiving as thousands of students sweat out fevers without ever seeing a doctor, simply because it is not possible. Now is the time, now as the rhythm of the fall rains has left us for a day or two, now is the time to prepare. Extra blankets, sheets, cold medicines, warm hats,scarves, and boots all need to be obtained, stuffed animals, spare toothbrushes and gloves, all essential.

Also this year there will be a flu inoculation event. Sponsored by the same herbal medicine group that knows it can't handle you all during the coming cold season. Watch for it, miss a class if you have to, it could save you two weeks worth, and a few failing grades. Don't do it because they want you to, do it because you don't want to have to pitch a tent at Health Services this winter.

If you do end up trekking over there be prepared to wait, be prepared to be looked over, and through, before you are looked at, and be prepared to kill time, as you feel like dying. Then kill more time, as you pray for the cosmic summons. Remember part of their budget is expended to repel students, so bring a sleeping bag and make a scene if necessary. You paid for it.

Mike Einhorn is a UMass student.

Police officers deserve respect

This is in reply to Stephen Korpi's letter to the editor [Collegian Sept. 27]. Mr. Korpi, your comments and attempted insults are not only dull and bland but outright offensive to police officers and their families throughout this country.

My father has been a dedicated police officer for the past 30 years. He once saved a man's life who had, only a few hours earlier, tried to kill him. My father's quick response in using CPR saved the man and earned him a commendation from then-President Ronald Reagan. There are countless other stories I could tell you, not only about my father's bravery, but also other police officers.

Your comments against the police are so poorly thought out. I don't know one police officer who wouldn't shoot you down if you had that "fake" gun in your possession. Police officers are intensely trained but they need to have superior instincts and they don't have time to stop and think, "Maybe it's a fake gun." This week a Boston police officer was gunned down in execution-style. It was the sixth officer to die in the line of duty over the past six years. His killing is only a few short miles from where my father works.

Ten years ago the phone rang at my house. My mother answered it and turned ghostly white; my father had been shot. It was the coldest feeling I have ever experienced. Being a police officer is not an easy job. Police officers have a higher divorce, alcoholism, suicide and stress rate, more than almost any other profession in the country.

You were foolish for even complaining about your experience with the UMass Police. What were you doing with a gun in your room anyway? I have the utmost respect for the police. Any person who can strap on a bullet-proof vest along with about 40 pounds of gear around their waist every night demands respect. You offended all police officers and their sons and daughters, of whom there are many on this campus.

Until you realize what its like to see someone go to work and know full well that there is a possibility they may never come back, I would appreciate it if you showed these incredible man and women some respect. They certainly deserve it.

Scott Smith
Southwest

New Africa House slowly deteriorating from neglect

If your child had a house and the house was falling apart, would you stand by and neglect your child or would you help your child rebuild his house even stronger than it was? If you were the child would you sit back like a fool and let your house deteriorate or would you stand up and take some action?

I will use Mr. Bill Cosby's term execution. It is time the students start to execute and demand that the University take care of yet another of it's fallen children. The University would rather sit back and relax for another twenty years and let this child crumble to the ground. Remember that Cosby said the students are in charge on this campus.

UMass claims an avid committment to a confused term — multiculturalism — and under its four-part mission statement it is supposed to be dedicated to enhancing diversity and pluralism. Over the four years I have been at UMass I have not seen this philosophy applied to the New Africa House.

The New Africa House, once a mecca for ALANA organizations and other members on campus, slowly and silently deteriorates from neglect. The building is handicap-accessible by a ramp at the back of the building, yet if a disabled student wanted to attend classes on the third floor it would be pretty difficult because the rest of the building in non-accessible. Under the new Americans with Disablities Act, all buildings are supposed to be made accessible this year — not when the university feels like it.

There are no public phones in the building and there is no help telephone outside. There is even a library with no books. Every time I go in I'm not sure I will make it out alive.

The carpets in the building are old and smell bad. Paint and other substances hang from the pipes. Many have complained of headaches, coughing, and allergies due to the lack of a ventilation system except for a few old windows which never stay up. I've been told the building still has some asbestos insulation. I wonder if they still have these problems in the Whitmore ("palace") building.

Malkes
GOMES

The furniture in the building appears to have been shipped straight from a junkyard. The little furniture the student offices have looks like it belongs in a non-usable antique shop. The fourth floor remains a constant fire hazard because of all the junk that clutters the halls. It took the Cape Verdean Student Alliance months to get a falling ceiling fixed by the physical plant.

After the job was done a huge mess remained for us to clean, but the physical plant got paid. No one bothered to paint over the patch work. Students have been denied the right to open up the rest of the student offices located on the north wing of the building.

The administration acts stupid or unknowledgeable when it comes time to discussing this issue. In reality, many are aware of the situation, but have tried to stall the students. The art gallery was remodeled, but the gallery falls under the responsibility of the Fine Arts Center. The rest of the house does not.

The whole scenario reminds me of a ghetto and of the behavior a slum lord displays toward his tenants. Many dogs have better living conditions than the people in New Africa House.

No one should be treated as a second class citizen at their own university. Many people don't want to face this issue, and would rather pretend it doesn't exist. When we pretend a problem doesn't exist, things get worse. Does the ceiling have to fall in and hurt someone before action will be taken?

When I come back here in 20 years I want to see the New Africa House stronger and better, not abrogated. It is time to execute and rebuild what others have left to fall.

Malkes Gomes is a Collegian columnist.

music mania

Everything in the store on sale!

ONCE A YEAR
ONE DAY ONLY!
FRI. OCT 1

11.99 CD ▲

GREAT MOVIES GREAT PRICE!

JUST 11.99ea.

Every Single Album Title CD Reg. $14.99 or Less

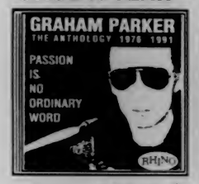
10.99 CD OR LESS

Vol. III & IV 10.99 ea.

Stock Up and Save.
Collect your favorite movies at one incredible price.
Star Trek VI, Top Gun, True Grit, Grease, Airplane, Crocodile Dundee

Look for the Special In-Store Display.

EVERY ARTIST • EVERY TITLE • EVERY CD • EVERY CASSETTE ON SALE!



ALL VIDEO 20% OFF

ONCE A YEAR • ONE DAY ONLY! • OUR LOWEST PRICES EVER!

19.99 CD ▲

Strawberries Annual Midnight Madness Sale Event!

SALE

ON SALE 15.99 ea.

PolyGram Video
5.99

Bon Jovi Keep The Faith ..15.99 VIDEO
Kiss Konfidential ..15.99 VIDEO
U2 Numb ..5.99 VIDEO

FUJI T-120 HQ Video Tape
All Fuji Tape On Sale
2.49

Napa Valley P 100 & CD 96
Your Choice
14.99 ea.
Solid Wood Storage Units
P 100- holds 100 cass
CD 96- holds 96 CDs

LaserLine Flip disc
7.99 Holds 12 CDs

Discwasher Laser Lens Cleaner
14.99

ALL ACCESSORIES 20% OFF

MAKE A LIST AND MAKE YOUR WAY TO STRAWBERRIES FAST!

Check Local Stores For Special Late Night Hours.

Strawberries
MUSIC AND VIDEO STORES

*Bargain Merchandise and Manufacturers Overstock Not Included. *No Double Discounts.

HADLEY, Russel St. & Route 9	(413)256-3160
HOLYOKE, 2275 Northampton St	(413)536-2222
PITTSFIELD, 241 North St.	(413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd.	(413)543-1517
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave.	(413)737-4128
ENFIELD, CT.,Rte. 190 Hazard Ave.	(203)741-3030

Abandoned Property Auction • October 3

The Division of Public Safety will conduct a public auction of abandoned property on Sunday, October 3 and 10 am at Grinnell Arena near Lot 64. Viewing will be from 9-10 am on the day of the sale.

The auction sale of abandoned property is in accordance with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 75-32A as amended.

The abandoned property includes approximately 70 bicycles and miscellaneous items. All items will be sold as is. Identification will be required on all personal or business checks. All property must be removed by the buyer immediately after sale.

Paid Advertisement by Department of Public Safety

lecture

continued from page 1

scious of the similarities and not letting them get to much in the way of the interview," Caitlin Featherstone, a University of Massachusetts student said.

"I thought it [the lecture] was wonderful, very similar to the introduction to her book, but the question and answer period was better," said Jaimee Salibee, comparative literature professor teaching a new women's studies course, "Queer Lives in 20th Century America," which addresses the history of lesbian and bisexual women in America.

Need A Roommate?

They're clean, quiet, and won't hog the bathroom!

Call Dave's...

We know what we're talking about when it comes to reptile roommates of any kind. We can help with food, supplies, homes (cages), as well as selecting lizards, snakes (including Boas and Ball Pythons) and more. Sorry, no advice on human roommates!

Farm Raised Iguanas

$24.95 with this ad
Expires 10/21/93

Dave's Soda & Pet City
"The Supermarket for Pet Lovers!"

HADLEY
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
584-7511 SC

Career Center News

Open House
Friday October 1
10:00 am - 3:00 pm
on the lawn outside Curry Hicks

Come and see what the Career Center's all about! Pick up the latest news, schedule of events and more!
Don't miss it!

Seniors! We will be collecting resumes for potential interviews with these employers:

THE AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS
MAJORS: ANY BUSINESS DECEMBER GRADS PREFERRED

BLASLAND, BOUCH, & LEE ENGINEERS
MAJORS: CE, ENV ENG GPA: 2.80

CLEAN WATER ACTION
MAJORS: ANY

K-MART CORPORATION
MAJORS: ANY, BUS, FAMKTG, LIBART, MGMT, MKTG

LECHMERE, INC
MAJORS: ANY, BUS, COMSTU, ECON, LIBART, MGMT

BOSTON CHICKEN
MAJORS: BUS, MGMT, HRTA

T J MAXX
MAJORS: ANY, BUS, FAMKTG, MKTG, MGMT GPA: 3.00
DECEMBER GRADUATES ONLY

IDS, AMERICAN EXPRESS
MAJORS: ALL MAJORS INTERESTED IN FINANCIAL MGMT

OUR SALES ARE REAL HEAD-TURNERS! COME SEE FOR YOURSELF!

LIQUORS 44

BEER WINE LIQUORS

KOCH'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY REG. & LIGHT $7.29 + DEP. CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

CATAMOUNT OCTOBERFEST $4.99 + DEP. 6-PK. BOTTLES

LITE CASE OF 24 16 OZ. SUITCASE CANS $12.49 + DEP. (16 OZ. FOR THE PRICE OF 12 OZ.)

MILLER GENUINE DRAFT REG. & LIGHT $12.49 + DEP. CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES

MOOSEHEAD BEER $7.49 + DEP. 12 PK. BOTTLES

ALMADEN WINES FRENCH COLOMBARD, RIESLING, CHENIN BLANC, GOLDEN RHINE, VIN ROSE, BURGUNDY, CHABLIS, BLUSH CHABLIS $7.49 4 LT. BAG IN A-BOX

NEW DUCA LEONARDO RED & WHITE ITALIAN TABLE WINES $4.49 1.5L

NEW SIZE SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL $6.49 1.5L

CHATEAU STE MICHELLE CABERNET SAUVIGNON $7.99 750 ML

COLUMBIA CREST CHARDONNAY $4.99 750 ML

POPOV VODKA $9.99 1.75L

TEN HIGH BOURBON SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 $9.49 1.75L AFTER REBATE

J.B. SCOTCH $26.49 1.75L

SAUZA GOLD TEQUILA CO-PACK (1-750 GOLD TEQUILA, 1-1.0 MARGARITA MIX) $10.99

CAPT. MORGAN SPICED RUM SALE 15.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 $12.49 1.75L AFTER REBATE

not responsible for typographical errors

OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday

• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS 9/30/93 THRU WEDS. 10/6/93

Full Redemption Center

BASICALLY BICYCLES
QUALITY BICYCLES AT AFFORDABLE PRICES!
ATB & HYBRID BIKES $200 & Up
SAVE ON HELMETS, RACKS, LOCKS!
FREE DELIVERY ON NEW BIKES
MC/VISA accepted
PHONE: 863-3556

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

■ volleyball

continued from page 12

Quite a set of accomplishments for the UMass squad, especially considering they are mainly a freshman team composed of only eight women.

The story of the night was Susan Maga though, who came up with 16 kills and 20 digs. Maga always seemed to deliver on the big points or side outs, and kept UMass in the match a number of times. If the set did not go back to Nash it was sent to Maga which made for a deadly 1-2 combination.

The Minutewomen managed to keep control for the first game, and most of the second, but they showed their first sign of faltering at the end of game two. UMass allowed the Saints to come back from a 14-11 deficit to tie the game, but squeaked out a 16-14 win.

Game three went to a 5-5 tie, but the remainder of the game blew by UMass before they had a chance to regain composure and the score ended up at 15-5. Siena freshman Kristen May was the main cause of the Minutewomen's woes, collecting 20 kills for the night.

Game four started out even worse for UMass with four straight service errors. With UMass falling behind the Saints 10-4 it looked as though Siena was going to push a fifth game on the tiring Minutewomen.

UMass returns to A-10 action tomorrow against St. Bonnaventure in New York and looks to win their first A-10 game after losing their first to the University of Rhode Island.

"I hope for us to be one of the top six (of eight) teams in the A-10," said UMass coach Bonnie Kenny.

Write for the Collegian.

Contact our Editors for information on how to get involved.

113 Campus Center • 545-3500 • UMass

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family

Wednesday - October 6
6 p.m.-8 p.m.
UHS - Room 304

I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?

I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?

I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?

If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.

For more information, please call
549-2671, Clinic IV - ext. 233 or 234.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS
PARAMOUNT THEATER
TEARS FOR FEARS
SATURDAY
OCTOBER 2ND

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT BOX OFFICE CALL (413) 734-5474
ALL STRAWBERRY RECORD OUTLETS: NORTHAMPTON TICKET OFFICE AT (413) 586-8686 OR TICKETRON PHONE CHARGE AT 1-800-829-7800

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES

9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50c HOT DOGS, 50c SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

the POWER of Your Future

Information systems and communications technology is uniquely dynamic. It continues to evolve at an accelerated pace, requiring constant innovation and uncommon expertise. In both the Government and Commercial marketplaces, GTE's Government Sector is meeting the information management and communications challenges of a changing world. From multi-media communications and virtual reality to artificial intelligence and voice recognition - GTE is developing the technologies of the future.

- ON-CAMPUS INTERVIEWS -
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1993
MATHER CAREER CENTER
If interested in an interview with GTE, please bring your resume to the Mather Career Center by October 6, 1993

SOFTWARE ENGINEERS AND SYSTEMS ENGINEERS

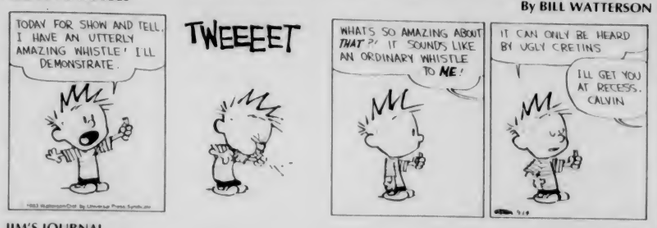
Individuals interested in joining GTE can look forward to challenging careers in one of the following areas.

- System Architecture
- Object Oriented Design
- Networking
- Real Time Software
- Communications Systems Software Development
- Simulation and Modeling
- Information Engineering
- Rapid Prototyping
- DBMS
- Expert Systems and ANN Designs
- Graphical User Interface
- Case Technology

As GTE continues to diversify, we require talented professionals with the ability to capture the power of technology. See your Placement Office for interview availability, more information, or the opportunity to review our video. If you are not available to attend the On-Campus Interviews on the date listed, send your resume to GTE Government Systems, 77 A Street, Needham Heights, MA 02194, Attn: Julie Bebo, College Relations Coordinator. An equal opportunity employer m/f.



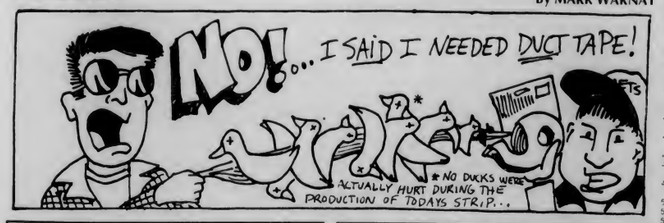
GTE Government Systems

Pearl Street
DANCE CLUB
▼ Wednesday ▲
GAY NIGHT
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
10/13 - Country Line Dancing
• Thursday-WHMP •
EIGHTEEN & OVER DANCING
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
Oct. 7 - Model Search By Elite Modeling of New York
Party on Thursday, Receive a Free Admission Pass For Friday
• Friday •
DANCING WITH DJ PETE D.
Playing More Top 40 Music
Listen To WHMP In The Morning For Your Chance To Win An Office Party
• Saturday •
The Areas Biggest & Best
SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE PARTY
with DJ Pete D.
Playing More Top 40 music
Every Saturday at 8:00pm
THE DATING GAME
presented by Compatables Dating Service-Hook up for your Dream Date. Win Dinner in Northampton
Grand Prize - A Seven Day Carribean Cruise Courtesy of Go Travel & Carnival Cruise Lines
Listen to WHYN for More Details
Dine in Select Area Restaurant's...
Receive Free Admission to the Dance Club
OCTOBER DRINK SPECIALS
12oz Budweiser Draft $1.00
Bottles BUD LT & BUD DY $2.00
Jagermeister $2.00
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs., Sept. 30 - 9:30pm/18+/
AC/DC Tribute
BACK IN BLACK
Fri., Oct. 1-7:00pm
Male Dance Revue
CALIFORNIA PLAYGIRL CENTERFOLDS
Downstairs-9:00pm
U2 Tribute
ZOO STATION
Sat., Oct. 2-9:00pm
THE SIGHS
Amy Fairchild Band-Hollapopper
Tues., Oct. 5-9:00pm
JASON & THE SCORCHERS
The Swinging Steaks
Thurs., Oct. 7-9:00pm/18+/
Pink Floyd Tribute
THE MACHINE
Fri., Oct. 8-9:00pm
THE BIG BAD BOLLOCKS
Sat., Oct. 9-9:00pm
THE EQUALITES
Sun., Oct. 10-7:30pm
OTTMAR LIEBERT & LUNA NEGRA
Tues., Oct. 12-9:00pm/18+/WRSI
THE SAMPLES
Fri., Oct. 15-7:00pm/WRSI
AIMEE MANN
Tues., Oct. 19 - 9:00pm/18+/
An Experimental Blend of Jazz & Hip Hop
GURU'S JAZZMATAZZ
Thurs., Oct. 21-8:00pm
BLACK 47
Fri., Oct. 22-7:00pm
NRBQ
Mon., Oct. 25 - 9:00pm/18+/
TRIBE CALLED QUEST
De La Soul
Mon., Nov. 1-9:00pm/WRSI/
JIMMY CLIFF
Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office, Tix The Record in Amherst, Ticket Pro (800-828-7800) 111 Pearl Street Northampton 584-7327

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM



CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

STEVE By MATT (STEVE)

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"And then wham! This thing just came right out of left field."

Quote of the Day

"If segregation is wrong when it is to the benefit of the majority, then it should be equally wrong when it is done in the name of minority rights."
– Michael F. Guthrie

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Small, stable financial gains are likely. You know exactly how far you can go with higher-ups. A budget restraint will help avert a money crisis.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Compromise helps when a conflict of interest arises. Staying on schedule may be difficult. Seek your co-workers' cooperation in order to meet a deadline.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Interesting people seek you out today. Your energy level peaks by mid-afternoon, allowing you to finish a tough work project. VIPs will be impressed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Get important tasks completed early in the day. Teamwork and idea-sharing go great this afternoon. Improved communication with a business associate lets you bury the hatchet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A true artist inspires you to make a change in lifestyle. Finding common ground will help you save a faltering relationship. Build for the future together. Resist the temptation to splurge.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bold ideas are required to keep a favorite project in play. Involve people who are willing to make personal sacrifices to achieve a worthwhile goal. Avoid mixing business and pleasure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Unexpected developments may cause a sudden shift in your plans or thinking. Do your best to bring order out of chaos.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Guard against accepting any amount at face value. Important decisions require deep thought, perhaps even a secret investigation. The truth may come out in a discussion behind closed doors.

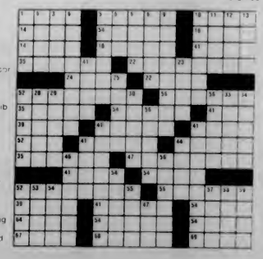
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Unfinished work must be completed before a new project can be launched. Contact with VIPs helps instill more confidence in your business acumen.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new situation involving your career or quest for prestige may be a blessing in disguise. Remain flexible. The summit you will soon swing in your favor. Trust your intuition in new situations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You and your co-workers make a great team once you get your signals straight. Open up a little with someone you would like to know better.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone may take a hard line and refuse to cooperate. When some give-and-take but resist surrendering. A romantic gesture could catch you off guard.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Lemus binding
5 Item in a trunk
10 End of the work week: abbr.
14 System of signals
15 Like some harms
16 Atmosphere
17 Sir — Guinness
18 Nimble
19 TV talking horse
20 Chinese philosophy
22 Ballerina
24 Atlas features
26 Puppy cries
27 Occupation
31 Like 17 Across
35 Writer Zola
36 Composition for nine
38 Menu words
39 Nein and no: Abbr.
40 Swiss ski resort
41 Gang or mob follower
42 Turkish title
43 Fathers, in Paris
44 One of the Martins
45 Pantry
47 Highly educated
49 Author unknown: Abbr.
51 Oxford, e.g.
57 Encroached
58 Desirability
60 Word with crib or cob
61 Slugger of renown
63 Como
64 Disregard
65 Baseball transaction
66 Brown-family color
67 Imre of Hungary
68 Adlai's running mate
69 Photographed

DOWN
1 " hath nine lives, like —": Heywood
2 Soft drink
3 Thought: Comb. form
4 Dewey units
5 Shrimp dish
6 Curly tailed canine
7 Saharan
8 Type of team race
9 Light-colored minerals
10 Least feral
11 Spiritual guide
12 Angers
13 Lose color
21 Eats another way
23 Companion of polish
25 Detection equipment
27 Mercenary
28 The last letter
29 Humidor item
30 Unusual
32 In the future
33 Alone: poet
34 Chairmen's
37 Track margins
40 Disparage
41 Parts of the skyline
43 Famed Quaker
44 Halt
46 Delicate
48 Scottish feudal baron
50 Closes in
52 Image
53 Famed NYC museum
54 Bluehose
55 Mid-term
57 Per
58 Fend: Comb. form
59 Clumsy fellow
62 Verse form

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

D	E	C	A	S	A	L	S	T	A	R	T	■
E	L	A	S	■	A	L	O	O	F	■	O	M
A	R	■	■	J	U	M	P	I	N	G	O	F	F	P	L	A	C	E
A	L	P	I	N	E	■	■	A	L	E	T	T	E	S	■	■	■	■
■	■	■	R	U	S	■	S	I	N	E	E	■	■	■	■	■	■	■
U	N	F	A	S	T	E	N	■	C	E	R	U	S	E	■	■	■	■
N	O	R	T	E	■	M	A	R	T	S	■	R	A	N	■	■	■	■
F	R	E	E	■	S	A	M	O	S	■	T	I	L	T	■	■	■	■
I	M	A	■	E	A	S	E	L	■	B	A	S	E	N	■	■	■	■
T	A	K	E	I	T	■	S	E	A	R	C	H	M	E	■	■	■	■
■	■	■	E	L	L	I	S	■	O	B	I	T	■	■	■	■	■	■
R	A	D	I	A	N	T	■	A	T	L	A	S	T	■	■	■	■	■
S	H	O	O	T	F	R	O	M	T	H	E	H	I	P	■	■	■	■
T	A	U	T	■	O	U	N	C	E	■	S	U	N	K	■	■	■	■
S	T	S	■	R	E	E	L	S	■	S	M	E	E	■	■	■	■	■

5/24/9...

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor.....Jacob Nevala
Photo Technician.....Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor.....Lisa Jezowski
Production.....Michael Stern, Andrew Davidson and the Bee Girl

MENU

LUNCH
Brocilower Casserole
Cow on a Roll
BASICS LUNCH
Brocilower Casserole
Oat on a Roll

DINNER
Lemon Grass Chicken
Shrimp/Pork Stir Fry
BASICS DINNER
Lemon Grass Chicken
Tofu & Blk Bean Sauce

■ shots

continued from page 12

know, he'll be speaking at graduation.

• The New Orleans Saints are using "Whoot. There it is," as their new battle cry. The Connecticut Patriots are contemplating "Shoot. There it goes," as theirs.

• With all these new faces on the Red Sox, Lou Gorman called the other day to see if my nephew Jake was ready to pitch against Detroit this week.

"Lou-Lou, the kid's a great prospect, but he's still only five months old and just a shade under the required 20 pounds (the old Oil Can Boyd rule)."

"No problem Dave, we'll just use him in the outfield."

"Well, he does work well with The Wall in his crib. . ."

(And that, ladies and gentleman, is this week's literary embellishment brought to you by the fine people at Dunkin Donuts. Coffee creates strange text.)

• Old friend Herb-o, last year's winner of the "Name My Nephew" contest, has reappeared in the news this week. It seems Herb (last name withheld to alleviate unsolicited attention at his Amherst home) has been named the Valley's Premiere Bridge player for the week ending with the end of last week.

We've never quite understood bridge, so we asked Herb-O for a crash course.

"Dave-O, it's what you use to cross a body of water when you don't have a boat."

Thanks Herb-O. May all your hands have five Aces.

• One more thing on Drew's Ya-Hoos. When they seal Biosphere 2 (or is it 3?) again, is there any chance of shoving the Pats in there?

• Months of investigative work, days of phone calls and hours of boredom have led us to the discovery that the first member of the "Scott's Shots Nickname Hall of Fame" hails from Jim Rudy's 6-1-1 Lady Kicksters.

A founding member of Rudy's Fan Club and a leader in the "We Believe" campaign, please give a warm welcome to . . . "Pigly Wigly," Ms. Paula Wilkins. First the cover of the media guide, and now this? Unprecedented.

• Let's hear it for three-peat (thanks Pat Riley) Freshman of the Week in A-10 women's cross country, Melissa Langevin.

• Keep your feet in bounds and your eyes on what could be Jerry's last night ever at The Garden.

David Scott is a Collegian columnist.

FROM THE DIRECTOR OF "THE ADDAMS FAMILY"

Michael J. Fox

For Love Or Money

A Choice Comedy.

IMAGINE FILMS ENTERTAINMENT PRESENTS A BRIAN GRAZER PRODUCTION A BARRY SONNENFELD FILM MICHAEL J. FOX "FOR LOVE OR MONEY" GABRIELLE ANWAR ANTHONY HIGGINS BOB BALABAN MICHAEL TUCKER BRUCE BROUGHTON SUSAN ULL GRAHAM PLACE JIM MILLER PETER LAURIA OLIVER WOOD MARK ROSENTHAL & LAWRENCE KONNER IMAGINE DAVID T. FRIENDLY BRIAN GRAZER BARRY SONNENFELD

PG

OPENS OCTOBER 1ST A UNIVERSAL RELEASE

– WANTED –

Assistant Business Mgr.

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...

We are looking for :

Ambitious • Responsible • Organized

SOPHOMORES

with good communication skills.

Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, October 6, 1993 12:00pm.

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS

Discount Discount

18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

S.S. Pierce Vodka $8.99 1.75L.

Miller "High Life" $9.99 case cans (Quantity Discounts Available)

Miller "lite" 16oz Cans $12.99 case

Fetzer Sundial Chardonnay $4.99 750ml

Narragansett Lager $7.29 case $6.99 (10 cases or more) WOW!!

Absolut Vodka $10.49 750ml.

Sam Adams and Catamount mix or match $9.95 12/pk All Flavors

Bud Dry Bots. $10.99 cse

All Beer plus Deposit

Visa/Mastercard accepted on Keg Deposits • Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)

Delivery Available

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For Individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

■ Gonzalez

continued from page 12

While he tackled the language obstacle head-on, his improvements over the past two years in the water have been a joy to watch.

"His progress has been tremendous," said Yarworth. "Each year he gets bigger and stronger. He's certainly a kid, that when we play another team, gets marked closely."

This Saturday, the 7-3 squad travels to MIT to play St. Francis and Queens. And if Gonzalez puts up the Princeton-like numbers of last weekend, and the team comes to play, a 2-0 day looks to be a good possibility.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

IF YOU THOUGHT COLLEGE WAS EXPENSIVE, TRY PUTTING YOURSELF THROUGH RETIREMENT.

Think about supporting yourself for twenty-five, thirty years or longer in retirement. It might be the greatest financial test you'll ever face. Fortunately, you have one valuable asset in your favor. Time.

Time to take advantage of tax-deferral. Time for your money to grow.

But starting early is key. Consider this: if you begin saving just $100 a month at age thirty, you can accumulate $172,109* by the time you reach age sixty-five. Wait ten years and you'd need to set aside $219 a month to reach the same goal.

At TIAA-CREF we not only understand the value of starting early, we can help make it possible—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over a million people in education and research are already enrolled in America's largest retirement system. Find out how easy it is to join them. Call today and learn how simple it is to put yourself through retirement when you have time and TIAA-CREF on your side.

Start planning your future. Call our Enrollment Hotline 1 800 842-2888.

TIAA CREF

75 years of ensuring the future for those who shape it.™

© 1993 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association College Retirement Equities Fund

*Assuming an interest rate of 2.00% credited to TIAA Retirement Annuities. This rate is used solely to show the power and effect of compounding. Lower or higher rates would produce very different results. CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services.

Amherst Sunshine CAR WASH

381 College Street (Rte. 9 East)

AUTOMATIC WASH/WAX

Open Daily 8:00 am to 5:00 pm

SELF-SERVICE BAYS

Open 24 Hours

Soap/Rinse/Wax • Bubble Brush

Tire Cleaner • Engine De-Greaser

VACUUM CLEANERS

$1 & $5 CHANGER

"OUR ATTENDANTS ARE HAPPY TO ASSIST YOU."

R&P Liquors

Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade

253-9742

505 West Street • South Amherst

IF YOU AIN'T ATE AT DOROTHY AND LEEROY'S ALSO YOU JUST AIN'T ATE!

Create Your Own Sandwich!

Everything Homemade!

ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET

LUNCH $4.49 • DINNER $6.49

Vegetarian Dishes • Sweet Potato Pie • Soups • Pasta • Fried and Baked Chicken • Smothered Pork Chops • Chicken Fried Steak • BBQ Beef • Seafood • Meatloaf • Peach Cobbler • Salad

Rt 9 Near Pizza Hut 256-0118

MACINTOSH COMPUTERS

YES COMPUTERS

STUDENT MAC RENTALS from $75 per month

BRAND NEW/USED MACS FOR SALE

REPAIRS AND MEMORY UPGRADES

MAC/IBM HOURLY RENTALS

LASER PRINTS/COLOR SCANNING

AUTHORIZED RESELLER

585•0007

NORTHAMPTON • 38 MAIN STREET • LOWER LEVEL

Until there's a...

24 hour-copy-color-oversize-fax-computer-binding, delivery-to-your-door machine...

There's us...

$29.95 professional resumé package

kinko's the copy center

Professional resume package includes one page typeset and saved on disk, 25 copies on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets, and 25 envelopes (white, 1 ink, copies produced on a state-of-the-art copier). Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1993.

220 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 01002 413-253-2543

Classifieds

• 20¢ per day per word for students
• Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
• 113 Campus Center
• Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

Spectrum General Meeting Literary magazine seeks students to produce 1993-1994 publication. Staffs are art, poetry, prose, photography. Also seeking new treasurer, production editor, poetry editor. Those interested should bring informal resume to meeting. 8pm Thurs. 9:30 Room 165-169 Campus Center basement.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Auditions for UMass Theatre Guild's production of Pippin, Fri 10/1 at 7 pm, Sat 10/2 at 12 pm and 7 pm. Attend only one session. Call backs Sunday. 777s 5-0415

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Indecent Proposal at the CCA Sept. 30th 5 pm at $2.00
7,9,11 pm at $3.00
Sponsored by NEAG

Interested in a Wrestling Team? Like the thrill of systematically conquering an opponent until the ref slaps the mat? So do I! I'm looking for serious individuals to form a club team. Call Troy at 546-1613

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Chevy Nova II California car 283 engine powerglide great body $4800 or B.O. 665-3630

1977 Chevy Van
Good body, runs great, all weather tires, seats 8, $750 or B.O. 586-8366

1978 Olds Cutlass - only 60 K miles. Must sell fast - $750
586-9416

1980 Buick Century Dark blue new tires. Great. Great winter car $1000 or B/O Caroline at ACI 549-0701

1991 Toyota Tercel 1991 DX
Silver new tires excellent condition $5700 or B.O.
549-9334

Toyota Tercel 1980 runs very well Many new parts 104,000 miles on engine $1100 O/B/O 259-1850

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental 253-9742 Free Delivery

Small Dorm Sized refrigerators 2 and 3 cubic feet. Spirit Haus Rte. 9 East 253-5384

FOR SALE

Apple Imagewriter II like new all cord extra ribbon and paper $150 549-6708

Basically Bicycles
Quality bikes for less
863-3955

Bed 4 Sale $50 or BO 256-0750

Digital Step Machine fits in corner Take inches off thighs. $90
549-4732 Donna

Motorcycle - 1980 - Honda CB400T almost completely restored. Runs perfect $500 or best 549-7605

Skis/bindings expert never used 549-8180

Skis 139 CM Head Look 3D bindings Poles ladies size 7 boots ski bag 250.00
545-4187

21" Specialized MTN Bike
New tires, cables, brakes
Pedals, paint, and tune up.
$400/bo 549-8036

XLG Dorm Fridge
$70
Call Joe 538-8689

FOUND

Glasses found about 3 weeks ago behind Wheeler. Prescription, with thin frames. 546-5365

HELP WANTED

Cruise Ships now hiring. earn up to $2000+/month • World Travel Summer and Career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5001

Greeks and Clubs
RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority, and club
Plus $1000 for your self!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling
1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

$$$ Looking for Entrepreneurs set your own hours, work with established student-run company. Call Teo or Phil: 617-391-8439

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center 545-1995

LOST

Casio Digital Diary Computer pocket size lost around Mahar auditorium Please return important tel nos. lost! Call 546-7335

MUSICIANS

Drummer Wanted 549-1981

PERSONALS

Dell,
I love you,
Davey

Happy Birthday To CHRIS TABBI
Congratulations
$ have a great year
From all your buddies.
Keith, Ken, Mark, Pete, Ted, Luke, & Josy

Spring Break 7 Nights from $299 Includes: Air, Hotel, Transfers, Parties and more! Nassau, Paradise Island, Cancun, Jamaica, San Juan. Organize a small group - earn a free trip plus commissions!
1-800-GET-SUN-1

SERVICES

Beat a Speeding Ticket Former Highway Patrolman tells how. 1-800-377-4602

Factfinder Custom Library Research. All subjects. PO Box 3242 Amherst, MA 01004-3242 549-0312

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nhamp 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchas home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865 SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

WANTED

Buy TV
Call Yuki 546-4465

Wanted
HUM Development Book
GJ Craig 6th ed.
Call Colleen
256-1239

Listen to SportsLine tonight on WMUA 91.1 FM from 6-7 p.m.

Sports

UMass lands Colorado fullback

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Greg Anderson had to give it all up for the woman he loves. He packed his bags and travelled from Boulder, Colorado to the University of Massachusetts because his wife got transferred, despite the fact he was doing well for himself at his own job.

Greg Anderson was the starting fullback for the University of Colorado football team, which was ranked as one of the top 10 Division I-A teams in the country the last time he was there.

Greg Anderson now calls Amherst home. Almost four games into the college season, the 6-foot, 240-pound back is playing for his second team. As of Tuesday, he is a full-fledged Minuteman.

Who is Greg Anderson, and why is he here?

"Is that his name? I didn't even know it," said quarterback Andrew McNeilly. "Until [Tuesday], I didn't even see him."

"All I know is he's from the University of Colorado," said offensive coordinator Doug Berry. "I don't know a thing about him."

Anderson transferred to UMass two weeks ago from Colorado because his wife, a member of the United States Air Force, was assigned to active duty at Hanscom Air Force base in Bedford, Mass.

She was originally scheduled to report to Hanscom on Jan. 2, 1994, but the government changed its mind, throwing a huge wrench into Anderson's life.

"I had won the starting job at the end of two-a-days [in August] at Colorado, but that's when she broke the news that she had to move," Anderson said. "We had talked, and I said I'd go with her and transfer to a school near her.

"Thank God there was a school that needed a fullback."

To say UMass needs a fullback is a classic understatement. Mike George, last year's starter, went out for the year with a chronic back injury.

While Rene Ingoglia is the team's, and the Yankee Conference's, best runner, common sense maintains both he and the team will be better off if he returns to his natural position, which is tailback.

Next question: why would a Division I-A starter transfer to a I-AA team?

"To be honest, it was the fact that UMass would accept my financial aid package," he said. "I'm getting federal funds and loans, and I was supposed to go to Boston College but they couldn't give me any more aid. I talked to them here, and they gave me the aid."

Right now, he's starting slowly. Although the NCAA rules mandates a player sit out a year after transferring, if a player transfers down a division, he can come in and play right away.

Although Anderson runs a 4.65 40-yard dash and is more accustomed to the Fiesta Bowl than the Yale Bowl, even he doesn't think he will start right away. He is currently practicing on the scout team, and is not yet listed on the offensive depth chart.

"I would love to see some playing time, but I'm not expecting any miracles," Anderson said. "My plan was to just show off in practice this year, but if the Lord has blessed me, I'll play."

Whether he sees time this weekend (and head coach Mike Hodges almost guaranteed he won't) against James Madison University is irrelevant. Sooner, rather than later, Greg Anderson will make an impact.

Pats' ineptness gives Drew blues

The Collegian's Own SCOTT'S SHOTS

We now believe the Red Sox' magic number for clinching the 1994 pennant is 162, plus or minus. Butch Ball, gotta love it.

• If it wasn't for a few bad calls, some tough bounces and approximately 800 to 1,000 missed tackles, the Drew England Patriots had a legitimate shot at beating the Jets.

• There are now 23 days left until the Rebirth of UMass Hockey when Joe Mallen's boys face Merrimack. Practice starts Tuesday, the home-opener comes a week later against the Villanova Pussycats. Even the most marginal hockey fan should be getting excited about the prospect of what Mallen calls "Big time hockey."

"We've got to spread the word, especially to the students," Mallen said at yesterday's sports luncheon. "You look at schools like RPI and Harvard and those kids are nuts for their hockey.

Consider that a challenge to be nuttier than those wild and engineers and other assorted freaks. It's a challenge that should be easy to live up to.

• This other David Scott is really starting to get on my nerves now. He has taken up residence in my old digs on the hill, he's sitting in my office and now I hear he's getting all my fan mail (keep those letters coming anyway, Sis). Next thing you

Turn to SHOTS, page 10

Water polo's Gonzalez making waves in pool

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

One-dimensional he is not.

Junior Javier Gonzalez, one of a slew of University of Massachusetts water polo studs head coach Russ Yarworth has recruited over the past few years, can play both offensively and defensively in the water. And out of the water, he also does it both ways, speaking Spanish and English fluently.

Through the first ten games of the season, his numbers speak volumes of the impact he has made at the driver position: 22 goals, five assists, a .611 shooting percentage and 15 steals.

"He really is the guy we look to in the driving part of our offense," said Yarworth. "He's developed a really good work attitude. He'll go all out, all the time, and that's what you want."

Against Princeton on Saturday, Gonzalez continued his relentless offensive surge, collecting five goals, while also garnering an assist.

While he has consistently put up the offensive stats, he remains a defensive force as well. Note the 15 steals, a direct result of his swarming style.

"He's got the whole package," said Yarworth. "He's a team player, and he's starting to be more of a leader too as he gets older."

Gonzalez was recruited by Yarworth when playing for the Junior National team in Puerto Rico. While the Rio Piedras native has played up to his lofty expectations in the water thus far, he is also paying dividends to the team in other areas as well.

"He's been one of my best recruits now," said Yarworth. "All his friends are coming up here to play because he's had such a good experience."

For Gonzalez, it has taken perseverance to reach the top. Coming to UMass in the fall of 1991, English was his second language. Now, he grasps the language with relative ease.

"Javier had to make an adjustment," noted Yarworth. "His freshmen year was a transition year. He stuck it out."

Turn to GONZALEZ, page 11

No. 6 Minutewomen roll

Next up: defending champ Old Dominion

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

The temptation to overlook the No. 11 team in the nation and focus your attention on the upcoming game against the No. 2 team must have been great for the University of Massachusetts field hockey team yesterday, but the Minutewomen resisted the urge and overpowered Northeastern on its way to a 1-0 victory.

Northeastern	0
Massachusetts	1

If any of the younger players on the Massachusetts squad had an urge to do so, the veteran players could have informed them what would happen if they do so.

Two years ago, the Minutewomen were in an eerily familiar situation. Massachusetts was undefeated and ranked second nationally heading into the Northeastern game, with Old Dominion looming heavily on the horizon, and got thrashed by NU.

"It's only natural to want to look past them, but we've got a lot of discipline," said Minutewomen coach Pam Hixon. "I didn't think they'd let what happened two years ago happen today."

Massachusetts (7-1) has now defeated three ranked opponents in a row (No. 7 Temple, No. 17 Rutgers, and No. 11 NU) by a combined score of 9-1.

The Minutewomen played a conservative game yesterday, preferring to move the ball up the sidelines so as to not create any turnovers in the middle of the field.

"I knew if we gave them any opportunities in the midfield it would come back to haunt us," Hixon said.

Freshman Kyle Rothenberger tallied the game winner, and her first collegiate goal, at 57:42 on a deep rebound off a Natalie Hart penalty corner shot.

The ball bounced out beyond the Northeastern circle to Rothenberger, who dribbled into the circle and drilled an eight-footer to the lower right hand corner past NU goalie Danielle Butsch.

The Massachusetts defense completely shut down Northeastern (4-5), allowing only two shots on goal, none of which came in the second half.

"Our defense was absolutely spectacular," Hixon said. "I think the backfield played its best game of the year."

"Now, we can start talking about ODU," Hixon said.

Women win at home

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team continued its winning ways at the Curry Hicks Cage Tuesday night, defeating Siena College to remain undefeated in match play on their home turf.

UMass (6-4) dropped only one game in the tough contest for a 3-1 victory. The Minutewomen won the first two games 15-12, and 16-14 before dropping the third, 15-5, and finishing out the match with a 15-13 win.

UMass started out slowly, going down 4-1 as Siena (10-3) passed a few drop shots into an open spot in the UMass defense. Making the necessary adjustments, the Minutewomen quickly got back into the game and took control. Michelle Shepherd came up with some big plays, including a series of blocks to help set UMass back on track.

Figuring big in this game and on the night was one of the newer weapons in the Minutewomen's arsenal, a back set from setter Cass Anderson to Dionne Nash. Nash picked up a team-high 20 kills on the night, to keep her among the A-10 kill leaders along with teammate Kimberly Mizner.

Anderson is also among the many Minutewomen who received high marks in the Atlantic 10. Anderson is among the assist leaders, and her 55 assist performance on the night will propel her up in that category.

Also figuring big in the match was Rachel Sky, who had a well-rounded performance with 12 kills, and 13 digs. Sky appears on the national statistical rankings, placing 15th in the country in digs per game.

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 8

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team defeated Siena College, 3-1, Tuesday night at the Cage to remain undefeated at home this season.

THIS WEEKEND

Sept. 30 – Oct. 3

The Collegian's Guide to Arts & Entertainment in the Five Colle[illegible]ea

LIL' ED AND THE BLUES IMPERIALS

WHAT YOU SEE IS WHAT YOU GET

by emily marino
COLLEGIAN STAFF

If singing the blues is your thing as of late, you will not want to miss Lil' Ed and the Blues Imperials as they rock the Bluewall Cafe Friday night. Not only is this group's success story inspirational, but the tunes they jam will put you into a swingin' funk true to the title of their most recent album, What You See is What You Get.

The four-member band is on tour to promote this album, their third effort on the Alligator Record label. This 14-song collection features kinetic slide guitar boogie blues that carries the soul of what The Boston Globe called "the world's No. 1 house-rocking band."

Having struggled for virtually a decade, playing in Chicago dives, Lil' Ed Williams and the gang were discovered in 1986 by Alligator Records president Bruce Iglauer. After seeing the band play a couple of times at various locations on the West Side, Iglauer was immensely impressed.

"I knew Ed was a hot slide player, but I had no idea what the band was really capable of. I just knew that their music reminded me of Hound Dog Taylor and J.B. Hutto, two of my favorite musicians," Iglauer said. After they cut a couple of songs for Alligator, the Imperials had staffers cheering, offering a full album contract and suggesting a beer run. The rest, as they say, is history.

The band's street-smart, powerhouse first album, Roughhousin' earned feature length articles in both Spin and Musician magazines, raving revues in The New York and Los Angeles Times, The Boston Globe, and dozens of others, as well as airplay on over 500 radio stations.

In 1989 the Imperials came out with a second, follow-up album, Chicken, Gravy & Biscuits. The mouth-watering record was heralded by Guitar Player as outstanding.

"Man,oh, man can Lil' Ed cook on slide guitar! With a jumping band behind him, he blasts wild, passionate lines..powerful, let's blast boogie blues that's utterly devoid of rock, jazz or fusion influences," the magazine wrote.

Likewise, What You See is What You Get, the band's newest work brought to our own Campus Center after decades of hard work, promises to be an electrifying musical experience.

Lil' Ed and the Blues Imperials will team up with special guest Mark Nomad for this 8 p.m. Bluewall spectacular. Tickets are available at Tix Unlimited (UMass Student Union,) For the Record, Dynamite Records & the Northampton Box Office for $6/$5 with student ID.

photo courtesy alligator records
collegian design by mike carvalho

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2

- Eff., 1, 2, &3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $420 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

JOE BOXER
WITH UNDERWEAR LIKE THIS, WHO NEEDS PANTS.

191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-2013
J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
22 Masonic St. Northampton 584-6336
Open 7 days • Thursday nights in Northampton

THE INEXPENSIVE ALTERNATIVE
RADIAL RETREADS
Full Warranty • Safe • Free Road Hazard • Economical 30,000 mi. Tread Life • 90 Day Replacement Guarantee
AS LOW AS $19.95

GUARANTEED USED TIRES
TOP QUALITY FULL WARRANTY
13" 9.95
14" 12.95
15" 14.95
HADLEY TIRE AND BRAKE CENTER
439 Russell St., Hadley
253-9911 or 253-9054

549-3500
cousins MARKET
Downtown Amherst
11E. Pleasant St. (Next to The Pub)
♦ Full Line of Deli Meats, Cheeses & Salads
♦ Fresh FRUITS & VEGETABLES!!!
♦ Largest Selection of Juices
♦ Cigarettes - all brands $2.19
♦ Fresh Grinders & Sandwiches Made to Order
OPEN 24 HOURS
SUB, SODA, SALAD & CHIPS
ONLY $3.75
BULKIE ROLL SANDWICH
ONLY $1.50

We've changed at Seasons
Come sample our new menu

APPETIZERS
Soup Du Jour 2.95
Baked French Onion Soup 3.75
Clam Chowder 3.25
Shrimp Cocktail 6.95
Oysters on the Half Shell 6.50
Shrimp, Mussels and Littlenecks, Portuguese Style 6.95
Littleneck Clams 5.75
Clams Casino 5.95
Angels on Horseback 6.50
Escargot 5.50
Blackened Chicken Fingers 5.25
Clams Zuppa 5.95

SOUP AND SALAD BAR
Baked French Onion Soup and Salad Bar 5.95
Soup Of The Day and Salad Bar 5.50

SALADS
Grilled Chicken Caesar Salad 5.95
Shrimp Caesar Salad 6.95
Chicken Artichoke Salad 5.95
Salad Bar 4.95

PASTA
Roast Chicken and Vegetable Lasagna 9.95
Linguine Tossed with Sauteed Chicken 9.50
Linguine and Chicken Puttanesca 9.95
Shellfish and Pasta, Portuguese Style 14.95
Tortellini and Vegetable Primavera 9.25
Rajun Cajun Chicken 9.95
Spicy Shrimp Biscayne 12.95
All pasta entrees include salad bar and bread.

GRILLED SPECIALTIES
Grilled Steak Au Poivre 14.95
New York Sirloin Steak 14.95
Grilled Steak Tamari 10.95
Grilled Ginger Chicken 9.95
Grilled Medallions of Pork 10.95
Grilled Atlantic Salmon 13.95
The Seasons Grill Pricedduals
All grilled specialties include salad bar, bread, and choice of potato, rice or fresh seasonal vegetable.

CHEF'S CHOICE
Veal Marsala 12.95
Veal Scallopini 12.95
Veal Parmesan 12.50
Chicken Piccata * 9.95
Grilled Chicken Quesadilla * 9.25
Breast of Chicken * 9.95
Prime Rib of Beef * 14.95
Seasons Cut Prime Rib Combo * 16.95
*Includes salad bar, bread, potato, rice or fresh seasonal vegetable.

SEAFOOD
Seafood Casserole 11.95
Baked Stuffed Sole 11.50
Fisherman's Platter 10.95
Boston Baked Scrod 9.50
Baked Sea Scallops en Casserole 12.95
Louisana Crab, Corn and Shrimp Cakes 11.95
Coconut Beer Shrimp 11.95
Baked Stuffed Shrimp 12.95
All seafood entrees include salad bar, bread, choice of potato, rice or fresh seasonal vegetable.

THE LIGHTER SIDE SANDWICHES
Grilled Chicken Sandwich 5.95
Blackened Chicken Sandwich 5.95
California Sandwich 5.95
Vegetarian Baguette 5.95
Sirloin Steak Monterey 7.95
Seasons Club Sandwich 6.75
Salad Bar with Lighter Side Sandwiches 1.95

THE LIGHTER SIDE ENTREES
Chicken Parmesan 7.95
Sauteed Sesame Chicken 7.95
Herb & Garlic Roasted Chicken 7.95
Deep Fried Fish and Chips 6.95
Rack of Baby Back Ribs 10.95
Pasta Primavera 7.95
Pasta Mediterranean 7.95
Pasta Carbonara 8.50
Steak and Mushrooms 8.95
Salad Bar with Lighter Side Entrees 1.95

SEASONS RESTAURANT
529 BELCHERTOWN ROAD, ROUTE 9, AMHERST, MA
(413) 253-9909

WEEKEND HAPPENINGS

The Weekend Happenings calendar is printed each Thursday during the academic year. Groups wishing to have an event published may send a press release containing all necessary information to Lisa Curtis - Arts & Living Editor, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian regrets that due to space constraints not all submissions can be published.

THURSDAY

EXHIBIT— R. Michelson Galleries in Amherst features the works of Michael Kuch in his collection, "Killing of The Metaphor The Art of Mythmaking." Works by artists Penelope Bennet, Christopher Gowell and Swietlan Kraczyna will also be featured. The exhibit will run through Oct. 15.

LECTURE— Northampton artist Beth Beede will present an illustrated lecture on "Felt-Making Around the World." Beede's work has been exhibited in galleries and shows around the country and abroad since her career began in 1975. Her lecture is one in a series to commemorate Northampton's Year of American Craft. Lecture begins at 7:30 p.m. in the A.P.E. Gallery in Thorne's Market, Northampton.

FOOD— Residential Arts and Auxiliary Services present South Asian Ethnic Food Night in the lovely UMass Dining Commons. Designed to celebrate cultural diversity by uniting ethnic foods with corresponding art, this promises to be a D.C. experience to remember. Dinner served 5-7 p.m.

FILM— The classic, heartwarming Italian film Cinema Paradiso will be presented at Amherst College's Campus Center Frontroom at 8 p.m. at no cost. Director Giuseppe Tornatore's 1989 Academy Award-winning masterpiece is an ode to the cinema not to be missed.

LECTURE— "In the Grips of Immorality: Issues in Child Abuse and Moral Character" will be presented by Syracuse University Philosophy Professor Laurence Thomas. The free lecture will be held at Mount Holyoke College's Mary Woolley Hall at 4:30.

EXHIBIT— Duane Michals' photographic collection, "Self-Portrait As If I Were Dead" will be on display in the Herter Art Gallery through Oct. 18. Gallery hours are Mon. — Fri., 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

CONCERT— Jimmy Thackery and the Drivers will heat up the Iron Horse Music Hall with the Blues tonight at 8:30 p.m. $8.50 and a smile will get you in the door.

FILM— Indecency will run amuck tonight at the Campus Center Auditorium as the Northeast Area Government presents Indecent Proposal at 5,7,9 and 11 p.m. $2 for the 5 p.m. show, $3 for the rest.

RECEPTION— An opening reception for "Shinobazu Pond: Endangered Sanctuary, International Conservation Exhibition" will be held tonight at Smith College's McConnell Hall foyer at 4:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Clark Science Center, friends of the Botanic Garden and the Sazanaml Club, this exhibit of photos of migrating birds, dragonflies, frogs and other friendly folks, promises to be a naturally delightful event.

EXHIBIT— "What I Did On My Summer Vacation," a group show by UMass Summer Art Students will display a diverse range of multi-media art. Exhibit will run through Oct. 7, gallery hours are Mon-Thurs, 4-8 p.m. and Sun. 2-5 p.m.

LECTURE— A mandatory orientation and Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual speakers Bureau for new and returning members will be held from 5:30-7:30 p.m. in the Program for GLB Concerns' Office, Crampton House.

COURTESY DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC & DANCE

Nigel Coxe

FRIDAY

IN CONCERT— Blues at the Blue Wall! Don't miss Blues sensations Lil'Ed and the Blues Imperials along with Mark Nomad as they heat up UMass' own Blue Wall Cafe tonight at 8 p.m. Tickets are $5 with student ID, $6 for all others and available at Tix Unlimited (UMass Student Union,) For The Record, Dynamite Records and the Northampton Box Office.

AUDITIONS— The UMass Theatre Guild will hold auditions for their production of Pippin, today from 7-11 p.m., Saturday from 12-4 p.m. and 7-11 p.m. in room 101 of the Campus Center. 545-0415 for more information.

FILM— Three Men and a Little Lady will be shown in Mount Holyoke College's Gamble Auditorium at 7 and 9 p.m. For a mere $2.50 Ted Danson, Tom Selleck and Steve Guttenberg will make a special appearance in your life!

CONCERT— U2 Tribute band Zoo Station will play Pearl Street in Northampton at 9 p.m. Call 584-7771 for more info.

READING— Jack Agueros, short story writer, playwright, poet and former director of El Museo del Barrio, the oldest Puerto Rican Cultural organization in the U.S. will be reading with Martin Espada at 7:30 p.m. in Mount Holyoke College's Mary Wooley Hall. The reading will consist of Agueros' new short collection: Dominoes & Other Stories from the Puerto Rican.

OPEN HOUSE— The UMass Career Center staff will be outside of their satellite office in Curry Hicks today from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. distributing free publications and information about services available to students.

CONCERT— The Vertex in Hadley will feature a blowout rock and roll showcase of five area bands. Death Corp, No Morals, Pangloss, Sugar Plum Dandy and Toxic Ketchup will jam in the Alternative Entertainment presentation. Tickets are $6 in advance, $8 at the door. Doors open at 7 p.m.

RECEPTION— Artspace Gallery in Greenfield will host a reception for artists Janet Lauroesch and Virginia L. Senders from 6-8 p.m. The photographs and paintings of the two artists will be featured through Oct. 30 in an exhibit titled, "Peaceful Pieces." Call 772-6811 for more information.

SATURDAY

OBSERVATORY— Free observing tonight and every Saturday at 9 p.m. at Amherst College's Wilder Observatory. All ages welcome.

IN CONCERT— Local rockers The Sighs will perform at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton at 9 p.m. with special guests TBA. Cover charge ranges from $4-6, so call 584-7771 for loads of info.

PARTY— The Amherst Area Chamber of Commerce presents live entertainment, food vendors selling Italian, Indian, Southeast Asian, Chinese, American cuisine, music of the bluegrass persuasion and much more at their Boltwood Block Party today from 4-9 p.m.

RECITAL— Nigel Coxe will give a recital "Edvard Grieg, Poet of the North" tonight at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall to celebrate the composer's sesquicentennial year. $5 general, $2.50 for students.

WORKSHOP SERIES— The Barn Studio in Amherst will host a series of workshops to focus on African-Cuban music and culture. Edwin Rodriquez will conduct a drum workshop at 2 p.m., Victor Jaroslaw will lead a song class at 4 p.m., and Xiomara Rodriquez will follow with a dance workshop at 6 p.m. Contact Oriki Artists Collective at 584-8748 for more info.

COURTESY HAMPDEN GALLERY

Mimesis & Metaphor

SUNDAY

MUSIC— Angela Cheng, piano and Sharon Kam, clarinet will perform a joint concert at Bowker Auditorium today at 3 p.m. Tix: $13, half price for students. 545-2511 for more info.

OPEN HOUSE— StageWest will open its doors today from 1-3 p.m. to give folks a chance to tour the theatre, in celebration of Massachusetts Cultural Month. Call 781-4470 for more info.

CONCERT— Irish musicians Eileen Ivers and Robbie O'Connell offer a mix of traditional and contemporary songs about their homeland today at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton. Tix: $8.50 in advance (586-8086,) show starts at 7 p.m.

MUSIC— International trio Morten Alfred (Denmark) Tapani Varis (Finland) and Ruthie Dornfeld (U.S.A.) will play at the Green River Cafe, in Greenfield. The American Cafe Orchestra will present a refreshing, unconventional style. Show begins at 8 p.m., tix $6. Call 256-3061 for more info.

◆ Elephant Man

continued from page 8

audience. Merrick's crude art is condescendingly lionized, audiences in his presence become a trendy pastime for upper class thrill seekers, and the London public rejoices in hearing of his adventures in the real world — as long as they need not look at him, smell him, or hear the sick texture of his voice.

The lacerating point of Pomerance's play is that Merrick is misshapen only in his appearance. The decent life which Treves and society force him into is really a destruction of the spirit and being beneath the cracked bones and cauliflower skin. Merrick becomes, as Treves later realizes, a mirror at which people shout hallelujah when they see a reflection of themselves. When society's freak ultimately dies, it is not from complications in his illness. He is crushed by the weight of other people's dreams.

A great performance is given by Kenneth Miles, who plays Frederick Treves as a terminally aloof doctor/butcher with cold, placid eyes that seem to become wounded when he realizes the extent to which he has destroyed Merrick. To anyone who has scorned difference, and regretted it, it is a wound we can all feel.

☆ Important Announcement ☆

The next Writing Program Placement Tests will be offered on the following dates:

Tuesday, October 5
& Wednesday October 6
7:15 pm
BARLETT 65

This test may be taken only once.
Students should pre-register for ENGLWP 112.
Students do not need to register for the test.

Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling

Continuous Exotic Dancing

Now Open
Holyoke's Hottest New Night Spot

• Mon-Wed 4pm til 1:30am
• Thur- Sat 12pm til 2am

Route 202 to Rt. 141 East to 268 RACE St, 532-1422

Race St. Pub

Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling

NOW YOU CAN GET DIRTY FOR A WHOLE LOT LESS.
TREK USA MOUNTAIN BIKES
ON SALE!
Trek 7000 was $700.00 now $629.95
Trek 930 was $539.95 now $499.95
Road bikes also on sale
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
EST 1971
319 Pleasant St
Northampton, MA
586-3810
800-444-3810
TREK USA

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL OF AMERICA
If You Are Over 18, and Would Like to Earn Full Time Income Working Part Time Be a Bartender
• Day/Evening 1 Week
• Local/National Placement
• Limited Openings Remain for Oct, Nov, Dec Classes
• Make Your Move Now & Learn a Recession Proof Trade
Pop the Cork on a New Career
1655 Main St.
Suite 202 • Springfield
CALL TODAY! 747-9888
MC/VISA/AE

Judies
New Menu
New Low Prices
$3.99
Lunch Specials
Mon-Fri until 4
With This Ad, Get One Free Popover with Purchase of $3.99 or More.
Expires 10/28/93
One Coupon Per Person Per Visit
Northampton Pleasant St
Amherst • 253-5497

Northhampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

BayBank Gives Students A Great Package At A Great Price.

The BayBank Student Value Package.®
Save time and money with a great banking package specially designed for students. The Student Value Package features:

- ❑ Checking and companion Savings
- ❑ The BayBank Card with X-Press Check™*
- ❑ Unlimited BayBank X-Press 24® transactions
- ❑ Overdraft Protection of up to $250*
- ❑ A BayBank Credit Card with a $500 credit line*
- ❑ Free CheckView™

Plus there's no normal monthly service charge if you're under 19. If you're 19 or older, your package price is just $5 a month which includes eight checks. And the annual fee for a BayBank Credit Card is just $21.*

Receive All Your Checks At A Glance – In To A Page With Free CheckView

Get A Great Rate And Establish A Good Credit History With A BayBank Visa® Or MasterCard®

Use The BayBank Card To Get Cash At Over 750 BayBank X-Press 24® Banking Machines – Many On College Campuses And With X-Press Check You Can Use Your BayBank Card Like A Check Anywhere MasterCard Is Accepted

Open your BayBank Student Value Package today!
Visit your nearest BayBank office or call 1-800-BAY-FAST.*

Full-service offices and banking hours: Amherst: 75 East Pleasant Street (Monday – Thursday, 10:00 a.m. – 4:00 p.m.; Friday, 10:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.; Saturday, 10:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.) Northampton: 297 King Street (Monday – Wednesday, 9:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m.; Thursday and Friday, 9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.; Saturday, 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.)

BayBank

Fall program at HSCN comes up a mixed bag

By MARTIN BROWN
Collegian Staff

Hello everybody, Welcome back! (yeah, I know it's almost October.) This column is designed for people who get the Housing Services Cable Network offered to all people living on-campus. I think it can be used by just about everybody as a video rental guide, too.

Normally I will use this space to pick three movies from the weekly batch that are the best to see. If I can't recommend three movies from the weekly batch then I'll go out on my own and recommend one you should rent.

This week was an easy decision for me — Airplane, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, and The Flamingo Kid are the ones, if you haven't seen them you definitely need to catch a clue and check out. By the way, if you agree with my reviews, congratulations, you have great taste. If you don't agree, watch the local news and check out Sy Sperling, he's probably more your type. Anyways, here we go.

Airplane. It's always nice to start on a good note, and this is definitely a comedy classic. The movie is essentially a take off on the bunch of airport movies that came out in the '70s, it demonstrates that there are spoofs on just about everything. There are so many great, funny scenes in this movie that it's hard to point out just one. One such scene is when a boy is invited into the cockpit, and is interrogated by the Captain with questions like, "Have you ever seen a grown man naked?". It's one of those movies you either love or hate. I love it. A+.

Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid. Another great movie. One of the best, if not the best Western ever made. Paul Newman and Robert Redford star in this semi-factual account of these two outlaw legends. This is the movie all other partner movies try to emulate, not only is it interesting, but also is very funny. The ending is one of the best in film history. A+

Fatal Attraction. I can't say I'm crazy about this one. The story is essentially of a married man who has a one night stand with an alluring woman who eventually turns psycho when he tries to break it off. The movie has great momentum until the last half an hour or so, when the man has to tell his wife. The final confrontation is pretty silly also. Strong performances by Glenn Close and Michael Douglas make the movie definitely watchable, though. C+

The Flamingo Kid. Many of you probably haven't seen this one yet, but you really should. It's a diamond in the rough. It's the early '60s when 18-year-old, disenchanted Matt Dillon goes against his father's wishes and becomes a cabana boy at a well-to-do resort. He eventually learns a lot about life, love, and money. Funny, smart, and entertaining this movie is highly worth seeing. A.

Gas, Food, Lodging. A solid movie about two sisters and a mom in a small Texas town. Intelligent and independent, it is worth seeing just for something different than typical Hollywood formula. The movie has some problems maintaining interest and some unlikely turns of events late in the movie, but is still definitely entertaining. It also has an excellent soundtrack by local legend Jay Mascis. B.

Passion Fish. Boring, annoying, and eventually disappointing. The story of an actress who becomes paralyzed from the hips down tries to be realistic, but only comes off as a shallow story about a shallow person. D

A River Runs Through It. I can honestly see why Robert Redford made this movie. The river does revive a certain nostalgia for different times, and ties into the pollution problems with the river today. It had potential to be an important film. A good book doesn't necessarily make a good movie though, (remember Bonfire of the Vanities,) and much of the nuances of the story are lost. While watching the film I kept wondering when something interesting was going to happen. I never came up with an answer. C.

Total Recall. Ahh-nold stars in this sci-fi thriller that starts off exceptionally well, but dies in the last hour (especially the scene where he falls down a mountain, and his face goes into about a million contortions. Sssuurrre). A cool concept and great special effects save this movie. If you have time, check it out. B-.

Unlawful Entry. Typical Hollywood formula about a cop haunting a married couple. The only thing that redeems the film is good performances by Kurt Russell (Yo Kurt, how about a sequel to Escape from New York), Madeline Stowe, and Ray Lliota. The story is just too preposterous, though. C.

Last of the Mohicans. Danielle Day Lewis became a star with this likable film. The movie is visually outstanding, yet I felt like there was a missing reel somewhere in

Turn to HSCN, page 7

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE

All Beer Prices Plus Deposit
Miller Lite 16oz Cans Suitcase.....$13.99
Heineken, Amstel.....$9.99 12pk bot.
Gearys Pale Ale Portland, ME
.....$5.69 6pk $20.99 case
Complete Selection of Ocktoberfest Beers Including Harpoon, Catamount, Sam Adams...

Majorska Vodka .....$4.99 750 ml
Poland Spring Vodka .....$9.99 1.75 L
Southern Comfort .....$8.99 750 ml
Glen Deveron Highland Single Malt ..... $21.99 750 ml
Seagrams Coolers $3.99 4pk

Corbett Canyon Cabernet Sauvignon or Chardonnay .....$8.99 1.5 L
Chianti Rufina Riserva 1988 .....$8.99 750 ml

Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED
Open 9 am - 11 pm
RTE 9E 338 College Street/253-5384
One mile East of Amherst Ctr. on Rte. 9

Grand Opening Today!

BandyWinkle

Natural Resources for Body & Soul

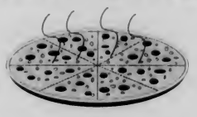
Among all the Amherst pizza parlors and Chinese restaurants... a real honest to goodness store, selling great stuff is opening. BandyWinkle is a "green store".

We offer a wide range of the finest European & American natural skin care/beauty care lines. From bath/shower gels, soaps, shampoos, facial cleansers, toners, moisturizers, body lotions, to cosmetics. All natural, NO animal testing, no chemicals, no preservatives, and all that nasty stuff... (nasty for Mother Earth and nasty for your skin). YOU GUYS OUT THERE, if you're inclined to buy gifts for girlfriends, mothers or wives... we also offer a fantastic selection of over 60 designs in T SHIRTS (great and small) featuring the finest artwork focusing on environmental awareness, the rainforest, animals, conservation etc. Please come by and give us your support. A percentage of profits are donated to environmental organizations. The more the sales, the more the profits, the more we can give to EARTH and all creatures great and small... the 4 legged, 2 legged, winged, finny, and furry.

BandyWinkle
9 East Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA
549-1988

(Next to the Mercantile and the Raw Carrot)
Hours: Tues-Sat 12-6 PM

P.S. Hours will be extended as soon as sales warrant or as soon as my partner can get moved to Amherst... whichever occurs first!



Delivery to Southwest in 20-25 minutes

COLLEGE PIZZA
"Quality Is Our Business"
OPEN FOR LUNCH

Saturday and Sunday at 11:00 AM
Located at Patterson Corner of Southwest
We Now Deliver To:
Townhouse • Puffton • Brandywine • Gilreath • Hobart Lane

Slices: $1.00

SUBS
Closest Location
549-6073

SALADS
Hottest Pizza
549-6098

Fast Free Delivery

FALL SPECIAL
MUST MENTION THIS SPECIAL TO GET:
A Large Pizza with 1 or 2 Toppings $6.99
Large Cheese Pizza $5.99
A Small Pizza with 1 or 2 Toppings $4.50
A Small Cheese Pizza $3.50

Free Soda
with Large Sub, Salad or Spaghetti

All prices subject to 5% Mass Meal Tax

Harding entertains with chatter and song

By JEFF TRULSON
Collegian Correspondent

"Where's my pick?" After a few minutes of fumbling around for his guitar pick, John Wesley Harding began his show at the Amherst College Frontroom on Sunday, September 20th. He opened with a relatively unknown song about birth, followed by a talking blues tune that told the audience about his own growing up. According to Harding, he "just wrote the song yesterday."

Harding continued the evening with songs from his latest LP, Why We Fight, including "Kill the Messenger," "An Ordinary Weekend" and "The Truth." Differing from previous performances, he asked the nearly filled room for requests. "I'm here to entertain you," he said.

He played songs that he had recently relearned, "Roy Orbison Knows," as well as songs that he does not do so often, such as "The Red Rose and the Briar" and "Bastard Son." The audience was very appreciative of his willingness to play their song requests, and often laughed at his short stories in between and during the songs.

The evening went almost flawlessly. The only time Harding slowed the performance was in the middle of a song, when his guitar string broke. He quickly released it from his guitar and threw it out to a member in the audience who he noticed bore a similar resemblance to an old friend.

The evening quickly grew late, and Harding started the close of the set.

"All things good must come to an end, even mediocre things," he said.

Harding ended with an energetic version of "Devil In Me," leaving the audience applauding loudly until he returned to the stage. Harding agreed to perform an extend-

Turn to HARDING, page 6

Stock up for the game at Scott's

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN Mon-Sat 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

NEW LOWER KEG DEPOSITS

Budweiser
Bud Light & Bud Dry
½ Kegs $39.99

No Permit Needed To Purchase Kegs

ABSOLUT VODKA 750ml $10.99
JACK DANIELS WHISKEY 750ml $11.49

MILLER GENUINE DRAFT & G.D. LIGHT 24-12 oz. bar bottles $10.99 + dep

BUDWEISER & BUD LIGHT 12 pk. bottles $6.99 + dep

Michelob ½ Kegs $41.99
& Michelob Light
LOWEST KEG PRICES IN TOWN!

INGLENOOK BAG IN THE BOX (Chablis, Rhine, Blush, White Grenache) $8.99 5 ltr.

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Tele-check for your personal check.
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

Hi, my name is J.R. "BOB" Dobbs, but you can call me "BOB". When I'm not eating bacon, or taking over companies hand over fist, I'm reading the Mass. Daily Collegian.

'Cause it just feels right.

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

여성의 건강을 위한 모임들에게.

본 여성 보건 위원회는, UMass 여성들의 보건관리 필요에 따른 정보 수집과, 이 필요에 부응하는, UMass Health Center 의 보다 효과적인 서비스를 위하여 1994년 가을, 여러 문화권을 망라한 대학내 여성학생들, 그리고 이곳 Health Center 회원들에 의해 설립되었습니다.

본 위원회는 올해 가을에 큰 프로젝트를 가지고 있는데, 이 프로젝트는 광범위한 스케일의 설문조사와 여러, 다양한 문화적 인종적 배경을 가진 여성들과 상담원 소개로의 모든 수업을 진행하는 권을 포함하고 있습니다. 이 소개로 모든 수업은 여성건강관리에의 관심사 정보 수집, 여성 건강 관리 사업에의 정의 규명, 그리고 보건업무 담당자 로서의 Health Center 의 효율성 증진을 위한 자료입수에 그 목적을 두고 있습니다. 저희는 이번 가을학기에 약 10개의 소개로 수업을 제공하고 있는데, 수업 대부분 한국 여성 수업 입니다. 저희는 이 모든 수업에서 수집된 자료들을, UMass Health Center 의 건강업무 향상에 대한 제언으로 및 계획 을 위해 보관하겠습니다.

각 모든는 기록상에 특정으로 특정이 되겠지만 비밀이 보장되겠습니다. 모든 중 얻는 인력에 대해서는 기록에서 삭제하겠습니다. 이 모든을 위해 이용하여 사용하고 즐비 보겠습니다.

UMass 여성보건의 강해를 위해 귀하의 참여는 매우 중요합니다. 부디 이 취지에 공해 주시고, UMass 여성 보건 강해를 위한 제작업정에 도움을 주시기 부탁 드립니다.

WOMENS' HEALTH DISCUSSION GROUPS

THE WOMENS' HEALTH COMMITTEE WAS ESTABLISHED IN FALL 1992 BY CONCERNED STUDENTS, CAMPUS COMMUNITY MEMBERS AND UHS STAFF TO COLLECT INFORMATION ON THE HEALTH CARE NEEDS OF WOMEN AT UMASS AND THE EXTENT TO WHICH THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE MEETS THOSE NEEDS. SEVERAL SMALL DISCUSSION GROUPS AMONG A WIDE RANGE OF WOMEN FROM VARIOUS CULTURAL AND ETHNIC BACKGROUNDS HAVE BEEN SCHEDULED THIS FALL.

THE FOCUS GROUPS WILL BE AUDIOTAPED FOR TRANSCRIPTION PURPOSES AND KEPT STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. ANY NAMES MENTIONED WILL BE DELETED FROM THE TRANSCRIPT. BILINGUAL MODERATORS WILL ASSIST WITH THE DISCUSSIONS.

PLEASE HELP US CREATE A VISION FOR WOMENS' HEALTH AT UMASS BY ATTENDING THE DISCUSSION FOR KOREAN-SPEAKING WOMEN ON THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 30, 1993, 6:30-8 PM, NORTH VILLAGE APARTMENTS H-2. CALL HEALTH EDUCATION AT 549-2671 EXT. 181 FOR MORE INFO.

한국어 모임의 모임시간은 다음과 같습니다

1993년 9월 30일, 6:30-8 p.m., North Village Apts H-2

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton / Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

☆ RICHARD'S ARMY & NAVY ☆

"CO-ED NAKED" T-SHIRTS ONLY $12.99

EVERYTHING BUT THE DOG!

Next to the Iron Horse
Center St.
Northampton
586-0275

AHHH SHOE

ZANNA

Women's Shoes, Clothing & Accessories
Zanna • 187 North Pleasant Street • Amherst
413.253.2563
Open Thursdays 'til 8 p.m.

◆ Harding

continued from page 6

ed encore, but only if someone would give him a cigarette. While awaiting the arrival of an ashtray, Harding welcomed questions from the crowd and pleased them with some more short tales of his life and songs.

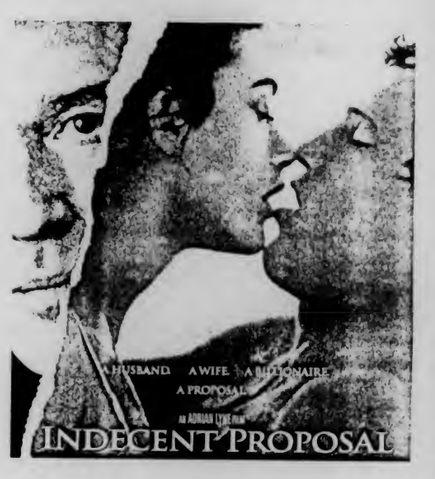
In his encore, he performed the much requested "July 13th, 1985," breaking in the middle with Madonna's "Like a Prayer," a very rare occurrence.

"The music was [really] brilliant/ And that Madonna she sure can move/ Life is a mystery . . .," he sang.

After reentering and completing "July 13th," he agreed to do a second encore if he could get his cigarette re-lit.

His non-structured set and friendliness with the audience made the concert seem more like a recital, as Harding noted a few times during the evening. The two hours, though brief, were full of songs and entertaining stories, better than in previous shows he had done in the valley.

If you were not able to catch this show Sunday, make it a point to see this talented folk/protest singer/songwriter next time he returns. His shows are worth any price of admission.



Hi, my name is Al.

This is my brother Ed, and this is my other brother Ed. We don't agree on much.

Well... except for salami and turkey club sandwiches, and reading the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

NEAG PRESENTS

STARRING: ROBERT REDFORD • DEMI MOORE • WOODY HARRELSON • OLIVER PLATT • SEYMOUR CASSEL
DIRECTOR: Adrian Lyne SCREENPLAY: Amy Holden Jones
119 min. • 1993 • Rated R • Paramount

Sept. 30th NOW SHOWING Sept. 30th
AT THE CCA
5pm $2.00 7,9,11pm $3.00

◆ HSCN

continued from page 4

the movie where the leads actually talk to each other and fall in love. Only in the movies. Strong performances and an eloquent story make for a good movie. A-.

Movies not reviewed this week available for viewing on HSCN: Amos and Andrew, Crazy People, Half Moon St., Waterland, Hear No Evil, How I Got Into College, and Mo' Money.

Reach for the Power TEACH
BE A TEACHER. BE A HERO.
Call 1-800-45-TEACH.
Ad Council
A Public Service of This Publication

Thank you for your patronage The Krupczak Family
4 Seasons
Rte.9 • Hadley • 584-8174
Between Burger King & Dunkin Donuts
NEW!! Lower Keg Deposits
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

KEG BLOWOUT! This Weekend $38.99 + Dep For BUD, BUD LT, BUD DRY, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, MICHELOB DK, MILLER, MILLER LT, M.G.D., M.G.D. LT, LOWENBRAU, LOWENBRAU DK, ROLLING ROCK, ROLLING ROCK LT
PLAY IT SAFE BUY YOUR KEGS AT 4 SEASONS

BUD DRY 24-12oz. Bar Bott $10.99 + Dep
NATURAL LT. 24-12oz. cans $8.89 + Dep
MAD DOG 20/20 $1.99 750ML
PABST 24-12oz cans $8.99 + Dep
COORS GOLD 24-12oz. Bar Bott $10.99 + Dep
American Beer 24-12oz. Cans $7.29 + Dep
KEYSTONE & Lt 24-12oz. Cans $9.49 + Dep
4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L
Andre Champagne $2.99 750ML
1/2 BBL BUSCH $36.99 + Dep
ICE 10 LBS $1.50 50+LBS $5.49 100+ LBS $9.99 BLOCKS $1.25 You Can't Buy It Cheaper
MATADOR TEQUILA $6.99 1.0L
BOONES FARM $1.99 750ML
1/2 BBL NATURAL LT $32.99 + Dep
1/2 BBL Milwaukees Best $32.99 + Dep
SOUTHERN COMFORT $7.99 750ML
MAD DOG 20/20 $1.99 750ML
BUD, BUD LT. BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep
GO UMASS FOOTBALL HOME THIS WEEK DON'T MISS IT!
COORS, LT., GOLD BEER BALL $19.99 + Dep
Tired of Stores with Bad Attitudes? At 4 Seasons You'll Be Treated with Gratitude And... We Deliver

Not Responsible For Typographical Errors
Sale Thru 10-7-93
Monday - Saturday 9:00am - 11:00pm
Kegs & Beer Ball Deposits Held Up To 30 Days

DOMINO'S PIZZA
NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.
Amherst 256-8911
South Hadley 535-1111
Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan
VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas

THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • 2 Toppings
ONLY $10.99

ONE MEDIUM Two Topping Pizza & 2 Cokes ONLY $7.99
ONE LARGE Two Topping Pizza & 2 Cokes ONLY $10.99
LARGE SUB Can of Soda Bag of Chips ONLY $5.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20¢. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

The Elephant Man portrayed with brilliance

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

The Elephant Man
Shea Theater, Turner Falls
September 24, 1993

The opening scene of Bernard Pomerance's The Elephant Man presents us with a positive portrait of Dr. Frederick Treves, a handsome young scholar, lecturer, and "scientist in the age of science." The following scene introduces John Merrick, the deformed freak-show oddity who arouses Treves' scientific curiosity.

The difficult brilliance of Pomerance's interpretation is the blurred distinctions between decency and normalcy. Treves is a questionable hero here, willing to lecture on Merrick's incurable state for reasons of publicity and "scientific" acknowledgment, but equally willing to pass him back into the garish nightmare of Ross' Travelling Freak Show.

The "Elephant Man," in contrast, is something of a wonder: intelligent and lucid, with a devout spirituality, a romantic soul, and genuine concern for those who scorn and abuse him. As Dr. Treves begins to guide Merrick's slow climb toward "normalcy," we see this simple dreamer merely becoming a different type of freak for a different type of

Turn to ELEPHANT MAN, page 4

Amherst Ballet Centre
29 Strong Street
10-week Adult Courses
Oct. 4 - Dec. 16
Beginner Ballet
Mon. & /or Thursday
6:30 - 7:30pm
Grahm Modern Technique
Tues. 7:00 - 8:30pm
Jazz Dance
Thurs. 7:30 - 8:30pm
549-1555
for registration

Hadley Coin-op Laundromat
206 Russell St./Rt. 9 Hadley
OPEN 7 DAYS 7AM - 11PM
Single Load Washers $1.00
Double Load Washers $1.50
Located next to the Hadley Pub & Campus Pizza
ONE FREE WASH
W/coupon
Hadley Coin-op Laundromat
Located next to Hadley Pub
VALID 10/2/93 1pm - 5pm
ONE COUPON PER CUSTOMER

THE UMASS THEATRE GUILD
announces
AUDITIONS
FOR
PIPPIN
HIS LIFE AND TIMES
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1
ROOM 101 CAMPUS CENTER 7pm - 11pm
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2
12pm - 4pm
7pm - 11pm
CALLBACKS
Sunday, Oct 3
10am - 11pm!
Attend only 1 Session, Be on time, Dress for movement! Audition music will be taught.
FOR MORE INFORMATION, call 545-0415 or call Elise or Jessica at 253-2727

Peer Assistance Information and Referral Hotline
To support students experiencing harassment and other forms of intimidation
Applications available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, and must be recieved by 5:00 pm, October 8th.
Training Sessions for Fall 1993 will begin Thursday October 14th at 5:00pm and will continue on a weekly basis at that day and time.
Questions?? Contact Amy Ostiguy, Coordinator of the Peer Assistance Hotline or Paul Vasconcellos, Assistant Dean of Students Phone #: 545-2684

Sometimes you have to go over there to get a perspective on over here.
Next semester, get a better perspective with Beaver College. Just think. Next semester you can continue your major in another country. You can intern in London, ponder Peace Studies in Austria, cycle to class in Oxford or sun yourself in Mexico (while studying Spanish, of course). You can even linger at a cafe in Vienna or tour a Greek isle. We also have a wide variety of integrated university programs in the U.K. and Ireland. For over 30 years Beaver has been sending students abroad for the experience of their life. Now it's time for yours. Call us today for more information.
Study Abroad with Beaver College.
1.800.755.5607

The Collegian
545-3500

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE FRIDAY, OCT 22
Grants for:
•Visual Art & Design
•Literature, Theatre, Performance Art
•Film & Video
•Music
•Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202

Bomb threat evacuates Holdsworth Lab Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
61° Friday October 1, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 17
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Pres. Yeltsin okays talks, ends trauma

By JULIA RUDIN
Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin agreed Thursday to church-mediated talks with hard-line lawmakers in an effort to break the siege of parliament and end Russia's 10-day-old political crisis.

Yeltsin's announcement came after a meeting at the Kremlin with Patriarch Alexy II, head of the Russian Orthodox Church. The patriarch's offer to mediate the power struggle underscored the church's growing influence since the decline of Communism.

The president and patriarch agreed that closed-door talks will begin Friday at a Moscow monastery.

There was no immediate comment from the leaders of the 100 or so lawmakers who have holed up in the parliament building with a few hundred volunteer defenders since Yeltsin dissolved parliament on Sept. 21 and called new elections.

Earlier Thursday, Yeltsin's rebellious vice president, Alexander Rutskoi, toted a machine gun at a news conference and vowed no compromise as long as Yeltsin remains president.

Other hard line lawmakers have said they were willing to negotiate if the church acted as mediator.

Thousands of riot troops continued to ring the building, known as the White House. Power, water and phones have been cut off to the building, and food supplies were running low.

Yeltsin said he disbanded the Soviet-era parliament to break 18 months of political deadlock in which the lawmakers slowed the president's free-market reforms and rolled back his powers.

On Wednesday, Yeltsin gave lawmakers until next Monday to surrender their weapons and leave the White House or face "serious consequences." Deputy Security Minister Sergei Stepashin told the Trud newspaper that militants in parliament had up to 800 firearms.

A statement issued jointly by Yeltsin and the patriarch said Alexy urged that bloodshed be avoided. "The need was stressed to take measures making it possible to alleviate the situation without allowing violence," it said.

Yeltsin vowed to defend the "civil rights of the population and human rights."

The government will be represented at the talks by Sergei Filatov, the president's cheif of staff, and Oleg Soskeovets, a first deputy prime minister. Yeltsin's aides said parliament would be represented by Ramazan Abdulatipov and Veniamin Sokolov, high ranking parliament officials but not among the lawmakers inside the parliament building.

Gokolov said earlier Thursday that lawmakers would surrender their weapons if the police blockade ends and the government gives "firm guarantees" not to punish the hard-liners.

Yeltsin showed no signs of bending on the substance of his dispute with parliament.

Hard liners have been demanding simultaneous presidential and parliamentary elections in March. The president's aides stressed again Thursday that Yeltsin would not agree to simultaneous elections.

He has called for elections in December.

Cinderella, where are you?

BRIDGET GURSKI/COLLEGIAN
A modern day fairy tale unfolds around this abandoned sneaker.

Quake kills thousands in India

By THOMAS WAGNER
Associated Press

NEW DEHLI — A major earthquake shattered the dawn quiet on Thursday, collapsing mud and mortar homes onto sleeping families in villages across southern India. More than 10,000 died and many more cried for help from the wreckage.

Authorities feared the death toll would rise substantially in India's worst quake in a half a century.

Many villages were leveled so quickly as the earth shook violently and opened crevices that people were crushed inside their homes while sleeping, news agencies reported.

"The rising sun created darkness for us this morning, swallowed up our villages, and made our houses into tombs," a survivor told a reporter.

Some survived when frantic rescuers heard them shouting for help beneath toppled walls and roofs or saw a hand reaching out from the wreckage, Press Trust of India reported.

Friends, neighbors and police strained to lift stone, brick and wood by hand to free victims.

The quake ripped through southwest India at 3:56 a.m. It was felt at least 400 miles from the epicenter and caused a wide swath of damage.

The death tolls given by state officials and news reports varied from 6,200 to 12,000, and all appeared to be based on confirmed statistics and estimates.

By nightfall, the death toll was more than 6,200,

Turn to QUAKE, page 4

Bentsen plans 'corrective steps'

Waco mishaps cited as reason for suspensions

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen replaced the head of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms on Thursday, and suspended five other top officials after a scathing report faulted the agency for the raid on a Texas religious cult in which four agents died.

Field commanders "obviously. . .should not have" proceeded with the Feb. 18 raid on the Branch Davidian compound near Waco upon learning that cult leader David Koresh knew they were coming, Bentsen said.

He announced that he was immediately replacing the agency's director, Stephen Higgins, with John Magaw the head of the Secret Service who will serve as acting head of ATF. Higgins had announced plans Monday to retire on Oct. 30.

"Corrective steps are necessary," Bentsen said.

He released the report of an investigation that said the agency's plan for the operation was "based on seriously flawed assumptions" about Koresh and his followers.

The report found "disturbing evidence of flawed decision making, inadequate intelligence gathering, miscommunication, supervisory failures and deliberately misleading post-raid statements about the raid."

Three of Higgins' top deputies were placed on paid administrative leave along with two Houston based agents who commanded the operation at the scene.

The two field commanders made false statements to

Turn to BENTSEN, page 4

New Somalian republic to be freed from troops

By JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

When President Clinton asked the United Nations this week to set a target date for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Somalia, the new Republic of Somaliland felt relieved.

News Analysis

Located in northwestern Somalia, this region declared independence from Somalia in the Fall 1991, shortly after the fall of the government of General Siad Barre. The capital of the region, Hargeisa, was heavily bombarded by government forces during the civil war.

The region's independent feelings go back to the period of British occupation. Unlike the rest of Italian ruled Somalia, Somaliland was declared a Protectorate by the British in 1886.

Both colonies united in 1960, but the people of Somaliland kept their desire for autonomy. The region's opposition to General Barre grew stronger when resources were indiscriminately taken to finance his government. Soon, guerrilla activity began.

Somaliland didn't suffer as much as the south, the impact of a decade of civil war. Food was available for most of the population. Now, the separatist government is criticizing the United Nations. According to the New York Times, president Mohammed Ibrahim Egal has been able to lead the only form of government in devastated Somalia.

"We agreed to accept the presence of the U.N. if in return they would contribute to the reconstruction of the country," said the president.

The government needs help to strengthen the current institutions. A police force of 4,000 is at work but the New York Times reports that "the soldiers provide their own weapons and are paid in rations." There is hope that negotiations with the militias, that still control the airport, will continue.

The U.N. was suppose to help transform the 30,000 militia members into a police force: 6,000 of them are sitting in a camp with limited food and water supplies. The director of the camp, blames the U.N. "What are they doing? They are not helping us....Life is very hard but we are independent."

Other attempts by the government to impose civilian rule include taxing livestock shipments.

"Two private Somali Airlines commute daily between here and Djibouti...new bus companies ply the roads to the Gulf of Aden...half of the city's buildings are skeletons...but the markets bustle." reports the New York Times correspondent in Hargeisa.

In the meantime, opposition to U.N. policy makers keeps growing among the population of Somaliland. As the president of this young nation says: "They go all around the country and make promises, but they don't do a thing... They have to go."

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editors ..... Lisa J. Curtis & Emily Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas, Brian Harrington
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, October 1

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is holding auditions for its production of "Pippin" from 7 to 11 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101. For more information, call 545-0415.

Saturday, October 2

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is holding auditions for its production of "Pippin" from 12 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 11 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101. For more information, call 545-0415.

Sunday, October 3

Meeting — SHARE is holding its first general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria.

Opus ready for screen stardom

By CATALINA ORTIZ
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Since Opus the penguin has taken to shooting flocks of flying toasters, a computer company is taking a legal Magnum to Opus.

When cartoonist Berkeley Breathed, a 1987 Pulitzer Prize winner, first walked into a software store, he "didn't see anything funny." So he designed the "Opus N' Bill Screen Saver" program for Toronto based Delrina Corp.

Since the soaring appliances are the icon of Berkeley Systems Inc.'s popular "After Dark" program, the company is suing rival Delrina.

"They're essentially profiting on our brand identity which is focused in and around this flying toaster image."

Delrina denies trying to mislead customers. It insists the program simply makes legitimate use of parody. And it's surprised by its competitor's lack of humor.

"They're in pretty good company. We make fun of Bill Clinton, too," said Mark Skapinker, president of Delrina.

"Berkeley Breathed's style is to make fun of everyone," he said. "They should certainly be honored."

Such flattery has gotten nowhere with Berkeley Systems, in a federal lawsuit filed Tuesday in San Francisco, it accuses Delina of unfair competition and copyright and trademark infringement.

Breathed was not named as a defendant, and damages were not specified in the lawsuit, which seeks an order to wipe the offending toasters from the screen.

"Opus N' Bill" is among the latest screen-saver software, programs that float brief displays across monitors when computers lay idle, preventing images from burning into the screen.

They are becoming increasingly refined and entertaining, echoing old movies and television programs as well as comic strips.

Delrina's program features 16 animated sketches based on Breathed's wackily irreverent strips "Bloom County" and "Outland."

Insurance rates to rise only slightly

BOSTON (AP) — The auto insurance industry has agreed to waive its right to seek a higher rate for this year and to cut back its request for next year.

The industry had sought $168 million more in premium for 1994, a 5.9 increase and the lowest request in 15 years, but cut it back to $59 million, to about 4 percent, Attorney General Scott Harshbarger's office said.

Harshbarger's office negotiated the agreement with the Automobile Insurers Bureau, which represents auto insurers, but it needs the approval of the state insurance commissioner. A decision likely would be made by Friday, the commissioner's office said.

Assistant Attorney General George Dean said the difference would mean a proposed increase in the average rate of about $36 per car, instead of about $52.

The average premium in Massachusetts this year is about $892 per car.

Daniel Johnston, president of the insurers bureau, confirmed the agreement, but said the proposed rate increase now is about 5 percent because of adjustments since the original request.

Harshbarger said some of the reduction reflects an estimate of savings because of insurer programs aimed at controlling claims fraud.

"It is a reduction of the rate request in an area where we feel some programs we have put into effect will reduce claims next year. It's a much more cooperative spirit in dealing with the issue of fraud," Johnston said.

Rockport

A NEW DISCOVERY FROM ROCKPORT.

This go-anywhere boot from the Rockport® Discovery™ Series gives you the lightweight support of an athletic shoe. And the rugged, outdoor spirit of a hiker. Come in today and discover the comfort and style of Rockport.

Rockport.® You should be in our shoes.™

Mathews SHOES
On the Village Green

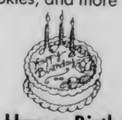
TED BANKS
(413) 256-6374

© 1993 The Rockport Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湘園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252



ATKINS Farms Fruit Bowl
1150 West Street (Route 116 & Bay Road)
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
(413) 253-9528

A NEW ENGLAND APPLE ORCHARD COUNTRY FOOD STORE

Student Special Care Packages
Simply Call & We'll Take Care of the Rest

Snack Pak
Our most popular pak contains fruits, cheese, cider donuts, cookies, and more for just $14.95

Birthday Cakes
So Moist and delicious, they'll believe you made it yourself! All sizes!

Happy Birthday Gift Basket
A fun pak that includes everything except the cake! Candy, trail mix, cookies, fruit, plates, napkins, sparkling cider, birthday mug, and much more! Festively wrapped, and is fun to open and discover.

Also:
Floral Arrangements & Bouquets, Get Well Pak, All Natural Snack Pak, Mix & Match (Brochure Available)

STOP AT THE STORE
to find out what Fall is all about at Atkins:
HOME GROWN APPLES, PEARS, & PEACHES (in season)
COMPLETE LINE OF PRODUCE
FULL LINE BAKERY
with Pies, Cakes, Donuts, Cookies, and assorted Pastries
SPECIALTY FOODS • DELI • GIFTS

Local News

Head rush

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN
Greg Silverman tries a new and exciting way to study for upcoming mid-terms.

BOG seeks to answer problems on campus

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

New advancements were discussed by the Board of Governors last night in the campus center regarding the problems with rising prices of the vending machines, cookies on campus, University Bureaucracy and the loss of funding to the Craft Center and art galleries

Chairman George Fitzgerald related the findings of his investigation involving the vending machines. The prices in the machines were raised due to a 14 percent increase by the Coca-Cola companies and their distributors.

An added hike in fees also resulted from a high increase of vandalism done to the soda machines. An estimated $40,000 worth of damage was done to soda machines by tipping them over and throwing them out of windows in the towers of Southwest.

Another investigation surrounded the rise in prices of the cookies in the Blue Wall. The prices rose because of the high cost of the cookies itself.

According to the chair, the price of the cookie covers 48 percent of the cookies' total cost, not adding labor, ingredients and other factors involving the Blue Wall.

Mylie Needie presented policies of vending on campus. She outlined the guidelines of qualifications for vending on the campus center concourse, and introduced a policy that deemed that items, food and large companies or affillates are not allowed to vend at the University.

The BOG increased funding to the Craft Center and the University galleries. The BOG increased the funding from $31,000 because of declines of sponsors from the Graduate Student Senate, Student Government Association and the UMass Arts Council.

Many governors expressed concern with the BOG spreading itself too thin in the University, and taking on too many projects for a low number of governors.

Nominations for the vice-chair were finally rectified with two nominations for Bob Fitzgerald and Dan Gordon. Elections will be held next week. Many of the seats have yet to be filled for the fall semester.

The evening was clouded with an air of confusion by the governors due to a missing formal agenda and a lack of knowledge of parliamentary procedure by the governors.

Film portrays terrorist regime

Peruvian guerrilla faction focus of documentary

By PHILIP LEVASSEUR
Collegian Correspondent

Concerns surfaced yesterday about the possibility that the Maoist International Movement (MIM) used deception to obtain the use of a University of Massachusetts facility for its presentation of the British Broadcasting Corporation's documentary "People of The Shining Path."

The documentary, which was sponsored by MIM was also co-sponsored by the Office of Third World Affairs. Nelson Acosta, the director for the Office of Third World Affairs, said "i feel I have made a mistake co-sponsoring this movie." Acosta said he was led to believe that the documentary by the BBC was about the people and country of Peru.

When students began to voice objections that the Third World Affairs office was co-sponsoring a documentary on the Maoist regime The Shining Path or "Sendero Luminoso," known for human rights abuses, Acosta said he realized the mistake.

A spokesperson for the MIM who wishes to remain anonymous said "I thought when I talked to Nelson Acosta about sponsoring this documentary I was very clear as to the nature of the film."

Because the MIM is not associated with the University it cannot gain access to UMass facilities, unless it is co-sponsored by a university department or student organization.

"I believe in the marketplace of ideas, and support open dialogue about any issue. However, I do not support the Shining Path, or any violence to bring about results, I will not co-sponsor them again," Acosta said.

Acosta said Peru has many problems including the government itself, but believes the only way of achieving resolutions is through peaceful negotiations.

Carlos Hernandez, a UMass student, who lives in Peru said, "I am upset [MIM] are here at UMass trying to gain support. The Shining Path is destroying the country not helping it."

The Shining Path was started in the mid-1970s by Abimeal Guzman, who holds a doctorate in philosophy and was a professor at the University of Huamanga in Ayacucho, Peru.

The Shining Path has used terror to achieve its own political goals, including threatening voters, bombing election offices, car bombings, the killing of innocent people, political assassinations, massacres, extortion and coercion.

In September of 1992, Guzman was arrested by Peruvian police in a Lima residential area.

The Shining Path continues operations under unknown leadership, including the bombing of the United States embassy in Lima on July 28,1993.

Fake IDs are potential trouble

By VANESSA AMIN
Collegian Correspondent

It is time! You are now in college and ready to try anything but you are under the drinking age. Most of your friends are 21 or older and are ready to go barhopping. Either you go to bars or stay home. it's time to invest in a fake id but is it worth the risk?

Many students have either fake identification cards or fake driver's licenses so they can purchase alcohol or work their way inside a bar said Jeff Manning, an employee of Russell's Liquor in Amherst.

According to Manning, during the weekends he can catch one person with a fake id a night. Most fake id's are out of state because students think that it is harder to detect if it is fake or not, said Manning.

"Technically, one can't take away an out of state driver's license," said Manning.

There are various steps that bartenders and bouncers take to detect fake id's, said Susan Call, a bartender at Delano's Bar in Amherst. If given an id, Call first will look at the birthdate and expiration date. Then she will look to see if the picture matches the person's face.

According to Call, if she feels a bit hesitant on whether or not the id is real, she will look to see if there is a seal or if the id is laminated. If presented with an out of state driver's license, Call will ask for two other forms of identification; either a school id or another form of photo identification.

"For the most part, students go through a lot to possess a fake id and the id's are generally very good," said Call.

According to Call, if the id really seems fake, she will quiz the person on her birth sign, year of high school graduation and have them sign their name. If the person fails the quiz, the id will be taken away, said Call.

"At first I was nervous because he was a police officer, but then I felt excited because I was 21 and I had a chance to shove it in his face," said Weinstock.

A cop walked into a bar and asked an unexpected patron for some form of identification, said a student whose name is withheld upon request. According to this student, the photo on the id was real but the information was false. The cop called in the id and found out that it was fake. She was taken to jail and was set to $500 bail if she didn't appear at her court date. She paid a lawyer $500 to represent her and the case was dismissed. She was put on probation for 9 months.

"I feel that if you are 18 and can drive, vote and fight for your country then one should be allowed the responsibilty of alcohol consumption," said the student.

According to Lt. Mike Grabiec of the UMass Police Department, possessing a fake id is a felony and a police officer can arrest the person on the spot or summon the person to court.

"According to the circumstances, a judge could either fine you or give you a jail sentence," said Grabiec.

Soviet Union finds stability in economy

By TOM HAYNES
Collegian Correspondent

The former Soviet Union's struggle to achieve democratic reform and economic stabillty has proven to be a long-term challenge for Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

Yeltsin disbanded Parliament last week in an attempt to loosen its control over things such as the Central Bank, which is responsible for the countries monetary policy. The move was intended to take control from hard-liners who want to continue subsidizing private industry which, in turn, has driven interest rates to levels similar to those in Latin America.

Last night, Mount Holyoke College began its five part series entitled Crisis and Transformation: The Ex-Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. The lectures are intended to address tough issues facing Russia and other nations throughout Europe.

Dr. Stanley Fischer, an expert on macroeconomic policy, was the first to speak on Russia's stabilization program. According to Fischer, the former communist nation will, undoubtedly emerge from its present state of turmoil.

"This is an economy which has enormous productive potential, which has enormous raw materials, and which, no doubt, one day will get its act together and play a major role in the world economy," Fischer said.

Turn to RUSSIA, page 6

Bomb threat at Holdsworth Lab

Students were evacuated from Holdsworth lab yesterday afternoon because of a bomb threat.

University of Massachusetts Police Chief Jack Lupo said University police were called to Holdsworth lab at 3:17 p.m. yesterday when someone discovered a "suspicious looking device" in the recycling area on the second floor of Holdsworth.

Police then brought the device to E-lot, an isolated area on campus, and students returned to the building by 3:52 p.m.

The device was a small box with a battery and some wires. The State Police Bomb Squad was consulted.

The bomb threat is now under investigation by State Police.

— BRIAN GORMLEY

■ quake

continued from page 1

said N. Raghunathan, chief secretary of Maharashtra, adding that more than 2,000 bodies had been recovered. He said 3,000 people were killed in each of the two districts, Umarga and Killari, and that the total death toll was more than 6,200.

State run Doordarshan TV raised the toll to more than 10,000 and said more than 12,000 people could still be trapped. The United News of India new agency later put the death toll at 12,000.

About 10,000 people were injured, said Raghunathan.

Officials said they expected the death toll to rise sharply. Telephone, electricity and water lines were cut, and no reports were available from Latur, a city with a half-million people, 20 miles north of the epicenter.

The largest death toll - 3,050 - was reported from Umarga, 270 miles southeast of Bombay. Sixty percent of the town's buildings were destroyed, Raghunathan said.

■ Bentsen

continued from page 1

their superiors and Treasury Department investigators and altered their original planning document "in a concerted effort to conceal their errors in judgement," the report said.

"And top ATF management, perhaps out of a misplaced desire to protect the agency from criticism, offered accounts based on those raid commanders' statements, disregarding evidence that those statements were false," the report said.

Higgins had joined other agency officials in describing the raid's failure as an unexpected ambush.

In those public statements, agency officials blamed a loss of secrecy for the raid's failure. But they had ample evidence that when the raid began those in command already knew Koresh was expecting it, the report said.

"The story ATF top management told the American people bore little resemblance to what had been told to the shooting review team" that conducted an internal investigation after the raid, it said.

Higgins had assured Treasury Department officials that the raid would be aborted if the element of surprise were lost, Bentsen said.

RMV doubles your pleasure

Mass drivers soon to receive two new license plates

By ROBERT W. TROTT
Associated Press

BOSTON - The state will start handing out two license plates to drivers on Friday for two reasons - to aid law enforcement, and because the state has more than a million pairs in storage.

The process will be gradual, though. It likely will be five years before all Bay State motorists fasten two plates to their cars, said Jerold Gnazzo, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

Of the state's 4.3 million vehicles, about 2.2 million have one run of the mill license plate - or are "passenger normal," in Registry lingo.

The others are either commercial vehicles or have vanity plates, and already have a pair of plates.

"The decision was made in 1985 to issue sets of two, mainly at the urging of law enforcement people," Gnazzo said. "They can see them coming and going."

Beginning Friday, motorists who apply for a new registration will receive two plates. Gnazzo said the gradual implementation should include 500,000 people a year.

Motorists with current registration will keep their single license plate until the Registry completes its "full conversion process," he said. No timetable has been set, nor is there a system in place that would allow motorists to retain the same plate number when they receive their new tags.

The Registry had 1.1 million sets of inmate-manufactured license plates - which cost about $1.40 per plate to make - sitting in its warehouse in Norton until this week, when they were distributed to offices throughout the state.

Gnazzo said the two-plate plans were laid out in 1985, but didn't come into effect until now because the state needed to press a new set.

Massachusetts issued two plates until 1976, when it cut back to save money.

All-male stronghold may be integrated

By JONATHAN YENKIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — It happened at Yale, and also at Princeton. Now one of the laser bastions of manliness at Harvard University could open its doors to women.

The Fly Club, whose ranks have included Franklin Roosevelt and Gov. William Weld, has overwhelming support from its student members to admit women.

Now the question is whether the graduates will approve. "I think we all miss our golden college days, there's a certain hope that nothing will ever change," said Eric Vogt, the club's graduate president. "At the same time, there is a recognition that the club today must serve its most active constituency, which is the undergraduates."

The undergraduate members recently voted 28-0, with one abstention, to ask the club's graduate council to support admitting women.

"We think it's the right thing to do," said Scott Logan, the club's undergraduate president.

But Logan said the club can't make such a big change without support from the graduates, who provide valuable contact with the students as well as financial backing.

The graduate council is scheduled to meet next week and could vote on the proposal or choose to poll the 1,100 graduate members.

The Fly Club is one of nine all-male "final clubs" at Harvard. The school cut formal links to the clubs in the mid-1980s because they wouldn't admit women.

Harvard opened its dormitories to women in 1970, although women admitted to Radcliffe College began attending classes with men during World War II, and women began receiving joint Harvard Radcliffe degrees in the 1960s.

The Fly Club's roots go back more than 150 years when it was originally a fraternity.

Talk of admitting women has been "going on for years," Logan said. It came to a vote before the student members in 1989 but didn't pass.

The Fly Club was hit with a gender discrimination complaint by a female student, but the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination ruled in 1990 it had no jurisdiction to decide the case.

The all male tradition, however, had already been falling at other Ivy League schools. Three years ago, the New Jersey Supreme Court forced Princeton University's all-male eating clubs to admit women. Yale University's "secret societies" also opened up, including the best known of them all, Skull and Bones.

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT THE HATCH?

HATCH FOOD

NEW Taco Bell
Foot Long Hot & Cold Grinders
Foot Long Steak Grinders (at the grill)
New Salad Bar Choices
• now open 'til 8:00pm.
Deli Sandwiches
• now available 'til 9:00pm.

AND COMING SOON ...

Oriental Stir Fry
To Order!

HATCH BAR

Pool Tables
Large Screen TV
16oz. Draft Beers
FREE Popcorn

THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
Miller Genuine Draft
$1.25

AND COMING OCTOBER 6th AND 7th
The 2nd Annual Octoberfest!
Sam Adams Octoberfest Beer on Draft!
Beer Mugs and More!

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Between tragedy, heartbreak and baseball lives an icon

I've got problems. Big time.

This probably won't surprise those of you whom I call friends, but for everyone who has ever asked "What is that Michael Morrissey kid really like?" I'll give you a glimpse into the roller-coaster life I lead.

All of my friends seem to have big crises in their lives. At the same time I'm more depressed than I've ever been. I'm beginning to think the natural order of the universe is screwed up.

About a month ago, I was driving along with my friends in Newport, Rhode Island, at the end of a night of betting on jai alai, when tragedy struck. The car taking a left in front of us was rammed when a convertible bulletted through a red light and crashed into it.

The people in the car in front of us were knocked unconscious. They needed the jaws of life to pull the woman in the passenger's seat out. One of the people involved in the crash suffered possible brain damage.

We were one car behind, and if we hadn't delayed leaving jai alai, that blue car would have been our white one. Big deal, right, because it wasn't.

Even if it was, we were in a luxury-sized car, not a compact, and the driver's side had an airbag, so we would've probably been in better shape had it been us.

Two weeks later, on the way up to Maine, our back wheel blew a tire, and we couldn't get it fixed. We drove 600 miles on one of those toy tires, the ones as thick as a donut. Luckily, we didn't have an accident.

It seems like whatever God or fate or whatever has in store for us, it isn't physical harm — at least for now.

Michael
MORRISSEY

Instead, our pain is of a more internal, personal nature. One friend gets threatened over the phone, then gets threatening messages telling him to watch his back.

Two more of my friends who seemingly had everything they could've hoped for and more have impossible relationship problems.

In the last week, I've already vomited twice, cried myself to sleep twice and driven drunk. Boy, things are just turning up roses.

I can't seem to help my friends out with their problems, no matter how much I rack my brain. It doesn't help when you can't seem to figure out your own life.

I hear the tales about how senior year is supposed to be the best time of your life. I see the leaves begin to turn, and see the most beautiful season of the year unfold in front of my eyes, and I am unmoved.

The baseball pennant race is providing the most excitement in years. The World Series is coming, which has always been my favorite sporting event. All I think about is how my biggest dream, to become a baseball player, is dead.

I've spent more time in one week with my ex-girlfriend than I did in the months we were going out. All I see is the futility of another dream, and I realize how badly I screwed my life up.

Not the icon you expected? Well, that's a week in my life. I'm so happy I could share it with all of you.

My point is: is it better to have a broken heart than a broken arm? A bruised ego rather than bruised ribs? A depressed emotional state than a depressed cranium?

I'm not asking to be maimed rather than suffer any emotional turmoil; I just think my friends and I have been lucky in one respect, and almost tragically unlucky in another.

I just cannot figure out why it's less fun being "famous" than it is being obscure; less painful to be cut than to be threatened. I guess I can't figure out a lot of things right now.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist

A caffeine junkie's plea

OK, I have a confession to make. Just this week, I've started taking a new drug.

Actually, to be completely honest, this isn't really 100 percent new to me. I've had this particular drug before, in other things I've taken. This is just a much purer form, I decided, "Hey, why do things by halves? Why not just go all the way with this?" And thus, I did.

Michael
PAGE

I already know all the negative aspects of this one, too. It's likely to have an effect on my long term health. It'll probably cause me to become more irritable over time. And it's a powerful addictive agent; just about everyone I know who uses it talks, from time to time, about how they need it, how they have a hard time functioning without it. But I like the way it feels, and anyway, just about everyone does it, right?

So I've started drinking coffee. The drug I'm talking about is caffeine.

This is not a joke. You probably had a very different idea of what I was talking about. Many people automatically assume certain things when they hear the word "drugs." Drugs are bad. Drugs turn everyone who uses them into deranged zombies. Only weirdos, freaks and losers use drugs. But caffeine isn't a drug! (Right?)

To put it bluntly, we are, in a very wide variety of ways, a society/nation of utter hypocrites. We have declared a "War on Drugs", but the people responsible for this war are also responsible for smuggling heroin into the country (from Golden Triangle, during Vietnam); for at the very least encouraging the Contras (moral equivalents of our Founding Fathers) to step up cocaine production in the eighties; and, many believe, perfecting LSD during the fifties and sixties. The men leading this war put themselves in the pockets of the tobacco industry over two or three martini lunches.

Studies have shown, with little to no doubt, that nicotine is far, far more addictive than even heroine. I know of absolutely nobody who is at all likely to smoke a joint or two, and then go out starting fights with strangers; I can think of plenty of violent drunks. Nicotine and alcohol have both been directly responsible for more deaths than heroine, cocaine or LSD. Nobody has ever, repeat never, died from smoking marijuana.

I'm not saying that "drugs" are completely harmless. Some are in fact quite dangerous. I have never really been known for my self-preservation instinct. I strongly believe that there is a great gap between what we say we believe, and what we act upon.

Notice, if you will that the drugs which are legal (alcohol, tobacco, caffeine and the like) have reasonably powerful lobbies, and make rather large contributions to the campaigns of various politicians. Hmmmm.

I do not suggest that we take this prohibition nonsense further and outlaw everything, I'm too firm a believer in people's various civil liberties, and those implied by the same. However, people need to give things more thought, and remember when they talk about drugs and drug users, that there are a whole lot more caffeine and nicotine junkies than heroin addicts.

Michael Page is a Collegian columnist.

Depo-Provera harmful to women

In response to the article on Depo-Provera [Collegian Sept. 27], before we all run over to University Health Servies, I would like us to consider the origins, motives and usefulness of such a drug.

Kelly Spang writes that "Depo-Provera was stalled by the FDA for over two decades," citing links to cancer as a cause. Usually drugs are tested first on animals, then on people. Which people? Certainly not our American sisters and mothers. Rather, the "racist population control policies of the United States government and agencies aimed at 'third world' peoples that limit their populations through forced sterilization and the distribution of. . .drugs such as DES and Depo-Provera" (Our Bodies, Our Selves, 201).

Americans' expanding choices were tested on women in other countries. No statistics are given on those women, no report of cancer or side effects, although it "has been available throughout the world since the late '60s."

Though Upjohn claims the risk of cancer due to Depo-Provera is "minimal, if at all," minimal is too much for me. In our increasingly toxic world, a "minimal" increase in the risk of any cancer is great.

Although it has been released to the general public, Depo-Provera still needs an additional "five year study with a two year follow-up." Why not release the drug to doctors doing specific research on hormonal contraceptives? Are other universities offering Depo-Provera? Are college women being used as guinea pigs? Why do we need yet another female hormonal contraceptive? Conception involves two parties, yet one rarely reads of new developments into contraceptives for men, certainly not ones that involve their hormones. "Women receive about two-thirds of all prescription drugs and the most profitable drugs made by the industry are oral contraceptives and tranquilizers, all dangerous in some ways, and all targeted mainly for women" (ibid 566).

The appeal of Depo-Provera is that it provides three months of pregnancy prevention. This then must be a huge dose of hormones, to leave their tiny crystals over a prolonged period of time and enter the body. Possible side effects include fatigue, weakness and dizziness, as if the ever-present flu wasn't enough. Headaches? Are these hormones effecting the blood vessels in our brains? Nervousness and abdominal pains? During finals? In Spang's article, Gloria DiFulvio states that "the main reason a lot of women aren't using Depo-Provera is that it is not known that it's here." Couldn't headaches and abdominal pains be a deterrent? Would she recommend Depo-Provera to her daughter? Not to mention that it is birth control only; all this fuss and not one word about protection from sexually transmitted diseases.

The article, in short, reads like an ad. We all make different choices, especially those concerning our bodies. What works for me may not work for you. All I am suggesting is that before you try to find Clinic Whatever-it-is, consider the information that wasn't printed.

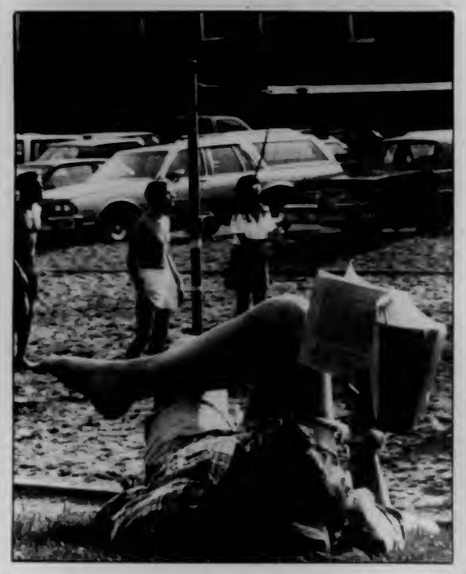
Kristen Lee
Amherst

President Hooker promotes greed

President Hooker's recent interview in The Voice was very revealing into the character of the political animal who was selected to be president of this university system. He says, "you shouldn't do research aimed at genocide." I think we should ask a deeper question. Does the university system of "western civilization" promote genocide to the earth? Does the patriarchal/matriarchal ideology which underlies the U.S. system of education foster truth, love and peace?

Even though Hooker informs us that he doesn't support genocide research, he seems to justify the university as a place for improving weapons and financial gain by stating that since the beginning of the scientific revolution the university has not been a place of such activities.

We get an even clearer picture of what kind of place Hooker thinks the university ought to be when he gives us his image of the university as a place to cultivate one's abilities to compete in the market economy for one's personal greed. He states, "we are all driven by the need to do a little more than provide for our substance, we like to provide for our comfort as well as our substance. And so to that extent, we are all driven by what you might hyperbolically call greed."



He goes on to say that money is another reason why "people perform the research that they do in the hopes of making money."

Hooker's reasoning is simply false and ignorant. I am in no way motivated by greed or by the comforts of the American dream. I do not think he possesses the wisdom needed to be in the position of president of the university system.

Isn't it time to put an end to the dictatorship of people like Hooker, who are not saving the union, but who are destroying it [illegible] maintaining their greedy self-serving lifestyle?

Libby "Doctress Neutopia" Hubbard
Amherst

Kicking back

BRIDGET GURSKI/ COLLEGIAN
An unidentified student is slacking off in the job as line judge.

BE A TEACHER.
BE A HERO.

- WANTED -

Assistant Business Mgr.

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...

We are looking for :
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills.

Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, October 6, 1993 12:00pm.

■ Russia

continued from page 3

One of the major obstacles to achieving that goal is the Central Bank's reluctance to ease up on the monetary subsidies it grants private industry. Giving these lines of credit, Fischer says, drives up the inflation rate.

"The real difference between this Central Bank and most others is that it is pouring massive amounts of money into enterprises. That is what is, basically, driving the inflation," Fischer said.

The problem President Yeltsin has faced, among others, has been controlling government agencies like the Central Bank. Any attempt by the Finance Ministry to try to curb such activity was halted by traditional hardline industrialists who dominate Parliament.

As a result, firms which received grants were not obligated to respond to market behavior. Instead, they depended on credit, and if business was slow, it was of no consequence because more subsidies were available.

Fischer mentioned other issues that have inhibited economic expansion such as accumulating foreign debt, and not allowing organizations like the International Monetary Fund and Western countries to grant aid. But Fischer did maintain that should Boris Yeltsin's initiative succeed, Russia's economic and political future would prosper.

"Things are happening and change is coming, and I think it is absolutely impossible to put Humpty Dumpty back together again. Anybody who tries to go back to a centrally planned economy will not be able to do so.", he said.

Experience...

"It ain't perfect, but it's the only game in town. And it's an important game for students who seek careers in journalism. Experience on the Collegian is increasingly valued by the editors throughout the northeast."

Professor Howard Ziff
Head of the UMass Journalism Department

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Join us.

Come write for the Collegian. 113 Campus Center.

Radiohead
Live at UMass 10-5

RADIOHEAD
Pablo Honey includes
Creep • Stop Whispering • Anyone Can Play Guitar

Music Mania! Everything On Sale Oct. 1st.

on sale
11.99 CD
7.99 CASS

Sale ends 10/7

Strawberries
MUSIC AND VIDEO STORES

AMHERST, Route 9 & Boyle's
BROWSE, 2276 Northampton St
PITTSFIELD, 241 North St.
(413)256-1660
(413)536-2222
(413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd.
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave.
ENFIELD, CT, Rte. 190 Hazard Ave.
(413)543-1517
(413)737-4128
(203)741-3630

Arts & Living

Lightning bolt Lenny Kravitz lights up Mullins

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Mullins Arena was transformed into a majestic backdrop Wednesday night for the electrifying, swinging spectacular that Lenny Kravitz will not let his bell-bottomed, funky fans forget for a long time.

Pre-Lenny entertainment was delivered by Blind Melon, the versatile band that proved capable of driving with unrelentless power as well as good, old-fashioned country twang.

Best known for that song, "No Rain" (which wasn't even sung by the band, thanks to the thousands of bellowing voices in the stands), Blind Melon's high energy, musical originality (save for an Allman Brothers cover or two) and dynamic interaction with the audience was a welcome surprise to many fans unfamiliar with their first album.

Pumped up by Blind Melon, fans awaited the arrival of Kravitz for almost an hour, jammin' to the tunes of the Red Hot Chili Peppers and, right before Kravitz did make his appearance, a Jimi Hendrix tune that failed to underscore the lightning-bolt entrance of the musical funk-master.

Decked-out in white, seemingly sprayed-on bell-bottoms (no complaints on the tightness of the pants here), and a tatoo-revealing vest, Kravitz soaked up the psychedelic colored lights and projected a booming rainbow of emotion and sound that filled Mullins.

Kravitz played a variety of music from all three of his albums, focusing mainly on his most recent material from Are You Gonna Go My Way. Taking down the house from the top of his lineup with older hits from his second album, Mama Said, such as the title song and the ultimate hippy dream-song "Fields of Joy," Kravitz took his enthralled fans through a chronology of his three-album representation of the '60s we all seemed to somehow miss.

In addition to the pulsating, disco-worthy pieces like "Come on and Love Me," Kravitz's mellow, jazzy "What Goes Around [Comes Around]" carried a deeper message.

"This is about all the people who lived on this planet before us, and made a mess, and [screwed] everything up, and left it for us to deal with," he yelled.

The climax of Kravitz's show was the sexy, feel-good finale that he put on for "Let Love Rule." A flurry of lights and dashes into the audience to be embraced by his fans brought his message home.

"This is a school, right," he quipped, "and most of y'all go here, right? Now I'm not putting school down, I think people should go to school, especially my people, who have had to fight to be there. But, they don't seem to prepare you for the real [expletive], you know? They should be teaching about love," he exclaimed.

Kravitz gave the roaring audience two expected encores. His first was nothing short of brilliant, despite the lack of surprise as the first chords of "It Ain't Over 'Till It's Over" and then of the current, often-played "Believe." His final act, "Are You Gonna Go My Way" shook the walls and left the audience with a high that probably explains the dazed look on many students' faces even today.

ARAM COMEAU/ COLLEGIAN
Lenny Kravitz lit up Mullins Center Wednesday night to the delight of thousands.

Professor Nigel Coxe performs Grieg showcase

By BILL LABERIS
Collegian Correspondent

On Saturday, Oct. 2 the Bezanson Recital Hall at the University of Massachusetts will host an evening of composer Edvard Grieg's music, as performed by Professor Nigel Coxe. The evening will aim to be a showcase of Grieg's music, as well as provide informative background concerning each piece.

In "Edvard Grieg, Poet of the North," Coxe hopes to introduce his audience to the music of the Norwegian born Grieg.

"Grieg was a composer who, although very famous, is known by very, very few of his works," said Coxe.

Grieg composed his music in the second half of the 19th century, at a time when the vast majority of music in Europe originated in Germany. Grieg, however, moved away from the German influences and attempted, in his music, to capture a distinctly Norwegian sound.

"Grieg succeeded brilliantly in creating a truly authentic Norwegian voice," said Coxe. "Grieg's works reflect his country's myths, legends, people, customs and scenery."

The evening will feature a variety of pieces linked together to show how Grieg began and developed his music. The central piece of the performance will be Ballade, Op. 24 in G minor, a piece that is 20 minutes in duration and is considered to be one of Grieg's most ambitious works.

Coxe discovered his interest in Grieg through a compact disc he recorded containing the music of Percy Grainger. Grainger was an Australian composer who, very much like Grieg, tried to capture the sound of his native country.

Coxe previously performed the evening of Grieg's music in a special he did for the BBC.

The New York Times wrote about Coxe, "He goes to the heart of his music in modestly straight forward fashion, leading from expressive strength and shun-

Turn to GRIEG, page 10

GRADUATE MANAGEMENT STUDIES IN FRANCE

The Consortium of leading French Grandes Ecoles of Management is seeking to recruit June '94 graduates for a 2-year International Management Program in French and/or English.

For further information about the Schools and the programs they offer, please meet our representative, Mr. Ian Tovey, at a presentation;

at: the Campus Center
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
on: October 6th, 1993
at: 10:00 and 11:30 am

(contact: Terri HALL McINTOSH, Career Center)

also: a presentation at Amherst College
Porter Lounge, Converse Hall
October 6th at 3:00 pm

THE UMASS THEATRE GUILD
announces
AUDITIONS
FOR
PIPPIN
HIS LIFE AND TIMES

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1
ROOM 101 CAMPUS CENTER
7pm - 11pm
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2
12pm - 4pm
7pm - 11pm
CALLBACKS
Sunday, Oct. 3
10am - 11pm!

Attend only 1 session, Be on time, Dress for movement! Audition music will be taught.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, call 545-0415 or call Elise or Jessica at 253-2727

The Collegian.
545-3500.
Call Us!

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY
LIMITED TO SEATING
+ Amour SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT
MT. FARMS 6 Rte. 9 & Rte. 47 Hadley 584-0183
Call Theatre For Showtimes
The Fugitive PG-13
Malice R
The Age of Innocence PG
For the Love of Money PG
HAMPSHIRE 8 Hampshire Mall Rte. 9 & Hadley 584-7350
Call Theatre For Showtimes
The Program R
Striking Distance R
The Joy Luck Club R
The Good Son R
Cool Runnings PG
Bronx Tale R

You Can Apply To Become
MISS MASS. USA
Official Preliminary
Miss USA Pageant

• $200,000 to USA Winner on National TV
• Ages 18-26 as of 1/94
• U.S. Citizen Never married
• College Students Eligible

NO PERFORMING TALENT REQUIRED
Call NOW for Free Entry Info:
617-266-3280
FINAL DEADLINE IS OCT. 12, 1993

549-3500
cousins MARKET
Downtown Amherst
11E. Pleasant St. (Next to The Pub)
◆ Full Line of Deli Meats, Cheeses & Salads
◆ Fresh FRUITS & VEGETABLES!!!
◆ Largest Selection of Juices
◆ Cigarettes - all brands $1.90
◆ Fresh Grinders & Sandwiches Made to Order
OPEN 24 HOURS
SUB, SODA, SALAD & CHIPS ONLY $3.75
BULKIE ROLL SANDWICH ONLY $1.50

WE CARRY KEGS & BEER BALLS
Redemption Center & Videos
We Accept Visa & Mastercard • We Discount!
WATROBA'S LIQUOR
Great Prices on Liquor
Conveniently located in No. Amherst just past the lights!
SUNDERLAND RD., NO. AMHERST, MA 549-0933

SUPERIOR PIZZERIA
SUPERIOR PIZZA
17 MONTAGUE ROAD, AMHERST
549-0626
$1.50 off ANY LARGE PIZZA
with coupon-good thru 12/31/93
one coupon per order
coupon cannot be combined w/other offers
$1.50 off ANY LARGE PIZZA
with coupon-good thru 12/31/93
one coupon per order
coupon cannot be combined w/other offers
$2.00 off ANY LARGE 2-Item PIZZA
with coupon-good thru 12/31/93
one coupon per order
coupon cannot be combined w/other offers
$2.00 off ANY LARGE 2-Item PIZZA
with coupon-good thru 12/31/93
one coupon per order
coupon cannot be combined w/other offers
FREE Can of Soda with any large grinder or dinner with coupon-good thru 12/31/93
one coupon per order
coupon cannot be combined w/other offers

do you HAVE THAT CREATIVE IMPULSE?
do you CRAVE some CULTURE?
dance, music, visual arts, film, literature, performance
do you HAVE IT COMING TO YOU!?
YOUR ART MATTERS: our HIGHEST PRIORITIES
UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
project support, information, advice
GRANT DEADLINE: Friday, OCTOBER 22nd
Grant application forms are available: SAO or at
UMASS Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202
Visit our table at the Campus Concourse on October 7th

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

CENTRAL TRAVEL
We Get You There With Money to Spare!
FREE AIRLINE TICKET
ALL STUDENTS/PARENTS WHO PURCHASE THEIR TRAVEL FOR THE THANKSGIVING/CHRISTMAS RECESS BETWEEN OCTOBER 1st AND OCTOBER 8th WILL AUTOMATICALLY BE ENTERED IN A DRAWING FOR A FREE AIRLINE TICKET.
DRAWING TO BE HELD ON OCTOBER 9.
• New Reservations Only
• No Charge for American Express Vouchers

Central Travel
25A Pray Street
Amherst, MA 01002
Call... 549-4900
This Quarter Break,
Take a Real Break...
COME TO CENTRAL TRAVEL
YOUR STUDENT TRAVEL EXPERTS

Apple Harvest and Crafts Festival & Community Block Party

By Kelly Spang
Collegian Staff

Saturday will be a day of festivities in Amherst starting with the 7th annual Apple Harvest and Crafts Festival and ending with the Community Block Party.

The Apple Harvest Festival will be held rain or shine from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Amherst Town Common. The Community Block Party will take place from 4 to 9 p.m in the Boltwood area with a rain date set for Sunday, October 3.

Food, games for children and hand-made crafts of over 100 craftspersons from all over New England will be featured at the Apple Harvest Festival.

Two special events in particular stand out: an apple pie baking contest and a raffle.

The apple pie contest will have three categories for a baker to enter: adult, children or commercial. Among the judges will be State Rep. Ellen Story and a Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle. The contest will take place in the Lord Jeffery Inn.

The big prize of the raffle will be UMass basketball tickets, a 10 home-game package for two. Other prizes include a tennis racket from Fenton's and brunch at Season's Restaurant.

There will also be activities for children such as pumpkin decorating, candle making, mini golf, races and clowns.

The event is sponsored by Atkins Fruit Bowl of Amherst and WMAS-FM in Springfield.

All proceeds of the festival will benefit the Amherst Family Center located at the North Congregational Church.

WMAS-FM will be broadcasting live during the day with FM program director Tom Holt.

All proceeds of the festival will benefit the Amherst Family Center located at the North Congregational Church.

The center offers a place for toddlers, infants and preschool children to be with children their own age. Parents also have a place to be with other parents, but they must stay at the center since it is not a day care center.

"It is an opportunity to make connections with other families," Lisa Slocum, a volunteer for the center, said.

Pauline Lannon, president of retail business for Atkins Fruit Bowl said the festival is "more regional than local." She said she expects a large turnout on Saturday.

Following the Apple Festival is the Community Block Party sponsored by the Amherst Chamber of Commerce.

There will be food and live entertainment in the large esplanade, located outside the Bangs Center, and along the Boltwood pedestrian path.

A wide variety of food will be offered including Italian, Indian, Southeast Asian, Chinese and American.

Events include a Step Show performance by the University of Massachusetts Pan Hellenic Council, "Bluegrass and Beyond" music by Salamander Crossing, country & western music with the Wayout West with Debbie Weyl Band, and "Caribbean and Traditional Latin Blend" music by Caribombo.

GREAT BURGERS HOT DOGS SHAKES DRAGON FRIES
FRENCH FRIES PHILLY STEAKS SPINNERS ONION RINGS FLOATS
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
QUARTER POUND BURGERS
100 % FRESH LEAN GROUND BEEF
ROUTE 9 HAMPSHIRE MALL RAIL TRAIL
PETE'S on the Rail Trail the MECCA of the Bike Path
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY
FRIED CLAMS SOFT SERVE SUNDAES FROZEN YOGURT

"Tired of Crowded Gyms?"
The GYM at mountain farms mall
Rt. 9 / Russell St.
584-2175
Membership Thru 12/31/93
Fall Membership "79.00"
(Plenty of Free Parking – Easy To Get To)

patagonia

PCR (post-cosumer recycled) Synchilla Fleece is part of an ongoing attempt at patagonia to reduce the environmental impact of our clothes. PCR Synchilla is made with recycled soda bottles (80%) which helps reduce landfill and requires less energy and natural resources to produce than virgin polyester.
patagonia AND RECYCLED SODA BOTTLES, A COMMITMENT TO THE ENVIRONMENT.
WILDWATER OUTFITTERS
355 RUSSELL ST (ROUTE 9) HADLEY, MA 01035 (413) 586-2323
20 ELLIOT ST BRATTLEBORO, VT 05301 (802) 254-4133

Twist-filled Malice; very Good Son

By JON LUPO & EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Malice — There's certainly a lot of double crossing, red herrings and deception in Malice, a twist-filled whodunit wrapped in the guise of a preposterously entertaining erotic thriller. There's also plenty of hysterical dialogue ("You think I have a God complex? I am God!") and happily overplayed performances. This is pure machine-tooled claptrap, but it's a fun tilt-a-whirl of a flick; not quite camp, but certainly no threat to Hitchcock.

Filmed in part last semester at Smith College, Northampton and Amherst, Malice also features local scenery, but blink and you'll miss it. Sure, there's plenty of Smith and downtown NoHo (see if you can catch the continuity error), but all that remains of the Amherst footage is a night shot of the Lord Jeffery Inn. Most of the interesting stuff happens elsewhere, anyway.

University of Massachusetts alumni Bill Pullman (Sommersby) plays an assistant dean at a local women's college who is investigating a campus killer even though he's becoming the prime suspect. Nicole Kidman plays his hospital-volunteering wife who desperately wants a baby. Alec Baldwin is an enigmatic surgeon new to town who moves into the couple's attic apartment.

Think you've got things figured out? Don't even try. Malice swerves from one red herring to the next, teasing and taunting the audience. While there may be too many twists — they come so fast it's hard to really savor them — Malice is a popcorn thriller that makes no apologies to the fact that it's more interested in being clever than credible.

The performances are all hammy and overwrought, each actor reciting the pulpy dialogue with knowing half-smirks. Baldwin gets most of the meaty lines, his "I am God" speech is the highlight of the script. Kidman is still trying to lose her Australian accent, and her femme fatale is more a collection of noir cliches than anything else. Despite third billing, Pullman is the real lead, and one hopes his stalwart, wooden hero thing is on purpose. Even "Cheers" star Bebe Newurth gets into the act as a police detective with the most hideous Bahstahn accent this side of "Spenser: For Hire."

Written by Aaron Sorkin (A Few Good Men) and Scott Frank (Dead Again) and directed by Harold Becker (Sea of Love), Malice makes no claims at being high art, or even particularly original. Along with Pop Rocks, that new "Lois & Clark" show and the Collegian, Malice is candy worth rotting your brain for. B- (J. L.)

The Good Son — In this new thriller, director Joseph Rubin and choirboy Macaulay Culkin make the ultimate domestic assault. To sinister effect, Culkin seizes the very hearts he captured in earlier films Home Alone and My Girl and strikes at them with venomous authority, rattling the cages of viewers and cautionary parents alike.

Culkin actually plays second fiddle to Elijah Wood (Radio Flyer), the true good son of the title. Wood's Mark Evans, reeling from his mother's premature death, is sent to stay with his cousin Henry (Culkin) and his family in Maine for two weeks as his dad (Davis Morse) clears up business problems.

Faced with a caring family and a cousin deep into mischief, Mark warms to the idea and and begins to enjoy the pleasures of being a boy; whether that be tossing the football among the snow-drenched fields, or cliffhanging from a 65-foot tree house. Still Henry's sense of fun echoes maliciously and before long, dead pets are plummeting down wells and skeletons are rumbling in the family closet, leaving Mark to caution the oblivious adults about the presence of evil.

Sure the concept is standard "(fill in the blank) from hell" material, but the film rejects the tawdry Bad Seed trappings inherent in past psycho tot films (Any early Linda Blair effort will do), largely due to Culkin's sinister, against-the-grain performance.

A good thriller is all for not if it doesn't contain a steadfast protagonist and Elijah Wood easily fits the bill. He gives gives Culkin a run for his "Richie Rich" child actor status. The script gives Wood a lot of emotional baggage to carry, especially through early scenes with his bedridden mother.

Though Rubin's film generates some primal playground horror (Culkin stalks pets and kid sisters with devilish glee), the film truly sparkles as a macabre coming-of-age story set against a psycho killer backdrop.

As a final payoff, the film's conclusion is a genuine white-knuckle armrest grabber of a climax that should leave viewers gasping for breath. It's a truly inspired cliffhanger, leaving the viewer stunned with a finale (s)he won't quite shake.

On its surface, it's a chilling "Hand that's too young to leave the cradle" thriller that vastly entertains, but it's the buried, dark take on the "Wonder Years" complete with Oedipal angst that makes this a psychological thriller Freud would relish. B+ (E. H.)

■ Grieg

continued from page 7

ning any sort of virtuoso exaggerations."

Coxe was born and spent his childhood in Jamaica. At age 14, he moved to England where he was trained in piano. When asked of what motivated him to pursue a career in music, Coxe said, "Hearing records of music by Chopin and Beethoven, I just knew that was what I wanted to be involved in."

Coxe has been involved indeed. He has performed widely in Europe, the United States and in Great Britain with the London Philharmonic, London Symphony and Halle Orchestra, among many others. He has been broadcast by the BBC numerous times, as well as by the Australian Broadcasting Commission in Sydney.

Coxe has previously taught at the Royal Academy of Music in London. Today, he is a professor of music at UMass.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. "Edvard Grieg, Poet of the North" recital are $5 for the general public, $2.50 for children, seniors and students. University students are admitted free of charge with a valid ID. Tickets may be purchased at the door the night of the show, or through the Fine Arts Center box office at 545-2511.

FOR 26 WAYS to help SAVE the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.
Ad Council — A Public Service of This Publication
Earth Share

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days 8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine Starting at $1
Attendant available all day.
326 College St. (Rt. 9) Amherst • 253-5072

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
WE DO NOT USE "MSG"
• MANDARIN & SZECHUAN CUISINE
• HOMESTYLE COOKING
• FRESH VEGETABLES FROM OUR FARM
• EAT IN OR TAKE OUT
• FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
• OPEN 7 DAYS • NEWLY REMODELED
MASTERCARD & VISA ACCEPTED
253-7835 253-2813
82 MAIN STREET, AMHERST

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

The Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Counseling Collective is in need of Peer Counselors.
If you or someone you know is interested in becoming a peer counselor, please come to one of our info sessions on Monday, Oct. 4th, noon or 5pm, 319 Whitmore.
If you cannot make either session, please contact Paul Vasconcellos at 545-2684, Lydia Rackenburg at 545-2337 or Alan Davies at 546-0743.

DOMINO'S PIZZA
NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.
Amherst 256-8911
South Hadley 535-1111
Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan
VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas
THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • 2 Toppings
ONLY $10.99
ONE MEDIUM Two Topping Pizza & 2 Cokes ONLY $7.99
ONE LARGE Two Topping Pizza & 2 Cokes ONLY $10.99
LARGE SUB Can of Soda Bag of Chips ONLY $5.99
Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20¢. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

The Economics of the Citibank Classic Visa card. How Student Discounts and Price Protection contribute to upward growth.

